Dental Group To Honor Water From Hereford

DALLAS (UPI) — One of the honorees at this week's convention of dental assistants will be a bit unusual: a jug of water, but a jug of water worth the hoopla.

The water will be from "the Plymouth Rock of fluoridation" — Deaf Smith County — and it involves a story which many Texans probably have forgotten.

Forty years ago two dentists in Hereford, the Deaf Smith County seat and now known as "the town without a toothache," made the discovery that led to widespread fluoridation of drinking water.

The dentists noticed that there was almost no tooth decay among native-born, continuous residents in Deaf Smith County and even those who had moved to the area showed a great deal of immunity to cavities.

The state's director of dental health, Dr. Edward Taylor, was notified and a random study was undertaken.

The cross-section survey failed to turn up a single filling in the mouths of those who all their lives had drunk water from the windmill wells, which contained approximately 2 parts per million of fluoride.

But those living in areas where the water contained much more fluoride — about 6 parts per million — had dark, mottled teeth with imperfect enamel and much more decay.

That led to more studies and a 1942 article in the Journal of the American Dental Association where Taylor concluded a high degree of immunity to cavities could be developed with a combination of fluorides, phosphorus, calcium, vitamin D And "possibly other factors in the food and water intake."

Taylor said he believed "in the neighborhood" of 2 parts per million of flouride was necessary to protect teeth from decay without causing mottling.

He said vegetables grown in the area, irrigated from the windmill wells, along with the milk and meat from cattle and the flour ground in Deaf Smith County were additional sources of calcium and phosphorus necessary to build and maintain tooth tissues.

"The role played by this Texas Panhandle town and county in the improvement of dental health has been largely forgotten by dentists and the public alike," said Lois Mazzucchi of Santa Josa, Calif., and president of the American Dental Assistants Association.

"But our members, as we celebrate our 55th year as an organization, believe it should be recalled and remembered."

She said the convention delegates, representing approximately 145,000 dental assistants in the nation, Sunday will toast Hereford, Deaf Smith County "and the children whose decay-free, unmottled teeth owe a lot to fluoridation."

Libya, Iran Hike Crude Oil Price

By United Press International

Libya, America's third largest oil supplier, and Iran have broken ranks with other OPEC producers and raised crude oil prices above the cartel's official price ceiling, an authoritative newsletter said today.

Libya, which exports about 800,000 barrels of oil daily to the United States, today increased its prices on all grades of crude by $2.77 a barrel, according to Petroleum Intelligence Weekly in New York.

The move brought the new price range on Libyan crude to between $25.57 and $26.27 a barrel — far in excess of the $23.50 a barrel ceiling set by the Organization of Petroleum Exporting Countries for the second half of this year.

On July 1 OPEC established a minimum price of $18 a barrel for Saudi Arabia's benchmark crude and allowed its members to charge as much as $23.50 a barrel for the cartel's best quality crude.

Iran, the second largest U.S. supplier of crude before the Islamic revolution, today raised the price on its light crude by $1.50 to $23.50 a barrel, PIW said.

Iran's state radio confirmed the price hike and said it was retroactive to Oct. 1.

"When Iranian light crude, which is comparable to Saudi Arabia's benchmark crude, goes to the top of the price scale, what happens to the better ones?" a PIW spokesman said. "Iran has broken the OPEC ceiling."

Iran also boosted prices on its heavy crude oil by $2.87 to $22.77 a barrel, PIW said.

Analysts predicted Algeria and Nigeria, major U.S. suppliers that produce a top quality crude particularly suited to the manufacture of U.S. gasoline, soon would follow the Libyan move and break through the OPEC ceiling.

"It would appear this is a concerted move agreed upon by OPEC," said David Mizrahi, editor of the MidEast Report, a New York-based newsletter covering events in the Arab world.

"The scenario is simple: first the OPEC members cut production and then claim there is no way of maintaining the current price level," he said.

"Gradually each OPEC nation — with the exception of Saudi Arabia — is announcing that it plans to cut back on production as of Jan. 1."

Libya has informed its Western customers it is restricting purchases of crude oil sold under long-term contracts by as much as 50 percent beginning Jan. 1.

Algeria, America's No. 5 supplier, recently announced an additional cutback of 5 percent in contract sales following a 20 percent reduction in sales July 1.

Kuwait, another U.S. source of crude, is expected to curb production early next year. Kuwait last week announced it was increasing its crude oil prices by 10 percent, but the new level still was below the OPEC ceiling.

Most analysts expect Saudi Arabia, the largest U.S. oil supplier, to revert to its official production level of 8.5 million barrels a day on Jan. 1 and eliminate the extra 1 million barrels it has been pumping daily since July to help consuming nations through the winter.

Health Bills Get Support

By SYLVIA TEAGUE
Avalanche-Journal Staff

Legislation recommended by the Texas Department of Health would make state public health laws enforceable in Lubbock County, a Texas Senate subcommittee was told this morning.

The Public Health Subcommittee of the Senate Human Resources Committee, chaired by Sen. E.L. Short of Tahoka, heard comments this morning on three pieces of legislation proposed in a state health department study of local health departments.

One recommended bill would give directors of local health departments and public health regions authority to enforce state public health laws where no public health officer has been appointed.

Such is the case in Lubbock County, John Board, regional health department director, told the subcommittee.

"In Lubbock County, the commissioners court and the county judge have not appointed a health officer for the county," Board said.

When he is called upon to enforce state health laws in the county outside the city limits of Lubbock, Board said he must rely on bluff and cooperation of the party in violation.

Specifically, Board said he's been asked to take action against businesses in the county generating a large number of flies.

Each time, Board said it's come down to "a cooperation thing — there's no legal status to it."

"Very frequently I'm in a situation where I'm required or expected to take action where I have no authority," he said, adding the proposed legislation would give him legal authority to take action against violators.

Marjorie Orr, city of Lubbock Health Department director, echoed Board's comments.

"The county government elected not to provide food sanitation out in the county" and does not provide other preventive health services like maternal and child health care, she said.

"Without the cooperation of the county, we get involved in a lot of things in the county, but we can do nothing," Dr. Orr said.

She noted Lubbock County has $8

Carter Holds Lead In Florida Voting

MIAMI (AP) — President Carter holds a statewide lead in Florida's Democratic caucuses, but after all the hard work, hoopla and money, the tallying still isn't over. In one county, the contest has come down to the luck of the draw.

"I don't know if it'll be straws or cards or what," said Brevard County Democratic Chairwoman Monnie Yungkans of Rockledge.

But, somehow, fate tonight will break a tie between two men who want to go to the Democratic State Convention for a non-binding presidential straw ballot Nov. 18 — George H. Canada, a Melbourne builder who favors President Carter, and Lee W. Rabb, a Merritt Island aerospace technician who supports Sen. Edward M. Kennedy, D-Mass.

They are vying for one of the delegate slots that has not been officially determined from Saturday's caucuses. Final results from 65 of 67 counties, accounting for 65 percent of the delegates, showed 376 delegates for Carter, 119 for Kennedy, 51 for AFL-CIO slates and 27 uncommitted.

White House press secretary Jody Powell said Carter was "very pleased" with his showing. Rain in populous parts of the state held Saturday's turnout far below the 50,000 expected.

New York lawyer Harold Ickes Jr., a Kennedy supporter and political organizer who came to Miami for the caucuses, said results mean "that we now know we have an organization job to do here and the nucleus of an organization."

Canada and Rabb each received 462 votes for a seat in Brevard County's delegation to the convention in St. Petersburg. The winner will get to vote with 877 other delegates chosen Saturday and 839 non-elected delegates — party leaders, elected officials and their appointees.

The blocs still untallied were the 188-member delegation from Miami and Dade County, where Carter and Kennedy ran very close, and the 116-member delegation in Fort Lauderdale and Broward County, which Carter supporters conceded to the senator

Depending upon the results in Dade, Carter could widen his lead and claim a "knockout punch" in the draft-Kennedy camp's base or Kennedy could narrow the gap. Carter seemed likely to get at least 34 Dade delegates who favored Carter but were on Carter and labor slates.

Even if Kennedy draws closer, however, Carter seems all but certain to win the straw ballot in November because of his unswerving support from Gov. Bob Graham and other members of the Florida establishment who will make up the "automatics."

The draft-Kennedy forces suffered a blow late Sunday when Palm Beach County, which they had hoped to carry, gave Kennedy only 16 of its 60 delegates. An AFL-CIO slate captured the other 44 slots, but 10 members were also on Carter's slate and two were on Kennedy's.

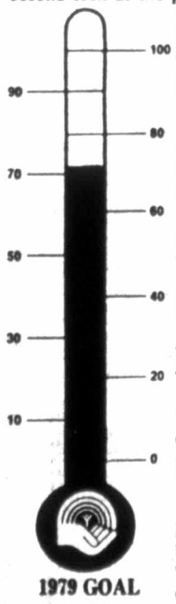
UW Closing In On 1979 Goal

United Way campaign officials took a second look at the progress of the drive today at noon at Memorial Civic Center and with $1,291,010 reported for 72 percent of the 1979 goal of $1.8 million, said the campaign appears to be on schedule.



1979 GOAL
$1.8 Million

"We appreciate the work of all the volunteers who made a special effort to get reports in for this meeting," campaign chairman Joe Price said.

"The second report meeting must continue the pace set by the first or the campaign might falter. We are pleased with today's report and look forward to the third one Oct. 24 which should put us within striking distance of completion."

All divisions turned in reports today, with a number of them greatly increasing their quota percentages over the first report.

Price gave special attention to members of Mackenzie Junior High School's student council who were guests at the meeting. Selling spirit ribbons, Mackenzie students raised $225 for their contribution to the campaign. Presenting that amount to Price were Jeff Johnson, Cody Hurdt, Marni Gibson, Leigh Ann Ogle and Ricky Shew.

Division totals and quotas:

Pacesetter, $436,265, 100 percent; Loaned Executive, $418,303, 60 percent; Advance Gifts, $96,773, 84 percent; Employee, $26,166, 45 percent; Professional, $93,306, 64 percent; Federal, $76,247, 84 percent; State, $6,484, 44 percent; City, $37,928, 117 percent; Schools, $43,992, 45 percent; Texas Tech, $26,787, 54 percent; Metro, $9,664, 24 percent; Business, $12,324, 46 percent; and Residential, $9,771, 65 percent.

Panel Eyes Increase For EMS

By KIM COBB
Avalanche-Journal Staff

Officials at Health Sciences Center Hospital have come up with what they think are some reasonable suggestions for shoring up Emergency Medical Services — and that includes a substantial rate increase.

Members of the hospital district's administrative committee voted this morning to send several recommendations to the board of managers, including a proposed EMS base rate increase from $60 to $100. The proposed rate increase and other cost-cutting, revenue-raising options were scheduled to go before the full board at 1:30 p.m. this afternnon for a formal vote.

Financial advisor Ronnie Elliott, an employee of Brookwood Management Services, reported to the committee he has been closely studying the EMS financial situation and day-to-day operation for the past two weeks. He also has met with members of the Blue Ribbon Advisory Committee called in to study EMS.

After two meetings with Elliott, advisory committee member Ron Shelly, said, "I think he's got some reasonable suggestions." The board recently voted not to transfer the emergency service to either of two interested private firms and the general consensus seems to be that the service should be maintained, he said.

Elliott estimated his proposal could mean a large savings for the hospital district, which has budgeted $400,000 for the EMS operation next year. Elliott speculated that the district may have to pay only about $120,000 if his suggestions are put into effect.

In addition to raising the base run charge, Elliott proposed closing down the substation at 48th Street and Avenue Q and moving into an old city fire station located at 30th Street and Texas Avenue. This would mean a savings in terms of rent currently paid for the substation.

He also proposes reducing EMS' overtime by changing the structure of their work shifts. EMTs and paramedics currently work 24 hours on, 24 hours off, 24 hours on and then 48 hours off.

The current shift structure produces a large amount of overtime, which the district cannot afford, Elliott said.

Elliott's recommendation is that EMS employees change to a 24 hours on, 48 hours off schedule. This will reduce the take-home pay of the EMS employees — but Elliott hopes to include a salary increase for them at a later date.

He said acting EMS director Doak Enabnit seems to think the EMTs and

KLBK Delays Controversial Film

By LISA PAIKOWSKI
Avalanche-Journal Staff

KLBK-TV Sunday night delayed for late night viewing the controversial movie, "Flesh and Blood," in order to bypass a young audience that might be affected by the questionable content of the drama, station manager Bill deTournillon said today.

DeTournillon said he felt the scheduled 8 p.m. slot for the movie, which contains an incestuous subplot, was "a little early" for the material featured in the show.

The movie, an adaptation of the Pete Hamill best seller about a boxer's road to success, was replaced by a rerun of "Gunsmoke" at 8 p.m. and was shown at 10:30 p.m. instead. The second half of the two-part offering will be shown also at 10:30 p.m. Tuesday.

DeTournillon said Channel 13 was not practicing censorship by delaying the air time of the movie "because we're against that." He said the 10:30 time slot was "when we felt most of the young people would be in bed."

Prior to the scheduled 8 p.m. showing of the movie, KLBK aired a brief explanation of its decision, saying "KLBK-TV has been put into a very awkward position — that of deciding for you, our viewers, what you can and cannot watch. In our opinion that is censorship."

"We realize and accept our responsibility to all our viewers and not just specific groups. It is our contention that TV should be viewed intelligently by the family and censored by the family. The movie 'Flesh and Blood' has brought this situation home. KLBK has decided to give that responsibility of censorship to you the parents."

The explanation said the movie will be broadcast at 10:30 p.m. and added, "The on-off switch is there awaiting your judgment."

Program director Bill Blann said the same announcement will be made at 8 p.m. Tuesday night when the second half of the movie was originally scheduled to be shown.

DeTournillon said the schedule change was his decision and was in response to adverse community reaction to the movie.

He said in an Avalanche-Journal interview last week that he had received mail in protest of the showing of the drama, including a petition with approximately 500 signatures that called for a cancellation of the program.

The decision to delay the air time of "Flesh and Blood" was made Thursday or Friday when CBS advised deTournil-

Committee Recommends Testing Of Hazardous Recycled Waste

WASHINGTON (AP) -A congressional subcommittee, referring to contaminated oil spread on East Texas roads, has recommended that regulations be revised to require testing of all recycled wastes before disposal.

"The subcommittee found out in hearings on toxic road oil in Texas that some 'recycled' wastes have not been adequately treated," a report released Saturday said.

"Therefore, we recommend that the proposed regulations be revised to require the testing of all recycled waste for toxicity if such wastes will be disposed of in the environment."

The report of the House Subcommittee on Oversight and Investigations also said shipping records should be required for all hazardous wastes until their final disposal.

The oil came from the Browning-Ferris Chemical Services Inc. transfer station near Nederland.

"The company accepts full responsibility and to its credit, promptly consented to remove the contaminated sections of eight of those roads under orders from the Texas Department of Water Resources," the report said.

The subcommittee, chaired by Rep. Bob Eckhardt, D-Texas, had subpoenaed shipping records and held a public hearing last May in Corrigan.

The report said the company did not know the final disposition of materials sent to small reeyclers in Louisiana.

"The subcommittee discovered that these small waste oil firms do much of their business with asphalt contractors in Lousiana and Mississippi, thus it is possible that roads in those states may also be contaminated with toxic substances," the report said.

The study found that the company was negligent in the placement of the oil on the Texas roads and the water resource department's district offiee did not conduct an adequate investigation.

The company testified at the hearing that the contamination was accidental and the procedures leading to the problem had been eliminated.

"However, documents ... suggest, at a minimum, a pattern of negligence on the part of the management of the Nederland facility prevailed through Nov. 2, 1978," the report said.

It said the accounting controls necessary to prevent improper disposal were absent before that date.

The water resources department's district office in Orange received a complaint on Nov. 2, 1978, that cyanide was mixed with the waste oil being dumped near Corrigan.

Banquet Honors Jim Wright

FORT WORTH (AP) — More than 5,000 persons, including three Cabinet members, attended a weekend banquet to honor House Majority Leader Jim Wright on the 25th anniversary of his political career.

WRIGHT

Those gathered to salute the veteran Texas Democrat included 17 members of the Texas congressional delegation, House Speaker Tip O'Neill, Labor Secretary Ray Marshall, Secretary of State Cyrus Vance, Secretary of Energy Charles Duncan, and Sen. Lloyd Bentsen, D-Texas.

The event also was a fund-raiser for Wright's re-election campaign. Republican House leader John Rhodes first accepted an invitation to attend Saturday night's tribute, but later declined after learning all proceeds would go to Wright's campaign fund.

Wright entered public office 25 years ago as a member of the Texas Legislature at the age of 23. At 26 he was elected mayor of Weatherford. He went to Washington when he was 33, and in 1977 he was elected majority leader by one vote.

GM Heir Marries

BREWSTER, Mass. (AP) — Standing on an Oriental rug on a dirt floor, Stewart R. Mott, heir to a General Motors Corp. fortune, and Kappy Wells, a New York sculptress, were married.

The Saturday wedding was the first marriage for both. Mott is 41, and the former Miss Wells is 30.

The wedding was performed by Dean James Morton of the Episcopal Cathedral of St. John the Divine in New York at the unfinished home of Miss Wells' parents, Mr. and Mrs. Malcolm Wells.

Wells is an architect, and Mrs. Wells said their daughter wanted to be married at home, in a house designed by her father. The couple met in New York several months ago.

About 30 members of both families attended the ceremony, which was followed by a Cape Cod clambake.

Eating Crow, Not Muffins

The Lighter Side Of Today's News

Armed with a recipe from a cereal box, Smith, 13, won a blue-ribbon over the weekend at the North Carolina State Fair for his bran muffins. The muffins, from a recipe off a box of bran cereal, won first prize — about $3 — in the under-16 division.

"I told one of my friends about the ribbon and he didn't believe me," Alex said. "I guess they'll have to believe me now."

As an added bonus, he thinks reading the recipes may have helped him with his math problems.

"... I was having trouble in school with math, with fractions and all. So I started baking because it uses a lot of fractions, you know," he said.

Study Cites Chemical Dump Problem

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Federal experts believe the problem of chemical waste dumps is even worse than has been suspected so far.

But they foresee no repetition of the Love Canal disaster, which shot the problem into the headlines 14 months ago.

While other dumps uncovered across the country may contain more chemicals than those found in the now-infamous Niagara Falls, N.Y., neighborhood, there is not the combination of danger and people living in proximity that was found at Love Canal, as far as the officials know.

A report released over the weekend by the House Oversight and Investigations Subcommittee said hundreds and perhaps thousands of hazardous waste disposal sites "now pose an imminent hazard to man and the environment."

Gasoline Price War Starving Dealers

ANCHORAGE, Alaska (AP) — There is a gasoline price war going on among a handful of Anchorage gas station operators, but those involved say the fight might end soon.

The lowest gas price in town has been about 89.9 cents per gallon.

"We're starving each other to death, literally," said Terry Renner of Renner's Chevron. "We're losing money each day just to operate."

Renner said the gas war started when prices topped the $1 per gallon mark. He said he began to slice his prices to undercut those selling gas at 99 cents per gallon. Other station operators followed suit.

The price fight is less than a week old. But cheap gasoline apparently won't last long in Anchorage. Station owners say prices should be back up to the $1 per gallon level this week.

Study Cites Drawbacks Of Whole-Life Insurance

By LOUISE COOK
Associated Press Writer

What do you want your life insurance to do?

Do you simply want to protect your family in case you die? Or are you looking for an investment that will pay you money when you're older and, if so, is an insurance policy really your best deal?

A recent federal study has aroused new interest in the answer to these questions.

The study, conducted by staff members of the Federal Trade Commission, focused on what is known as whole-life or straight-life insurance. That's the kind of policy that provides savings as well as a payment on the death of the insured.

According to the FTC study, the average rate of return on whole-life policies is only 1.3 percent, far below the yield on passbook savings accounts and other investments. And commission staff members said insurance buyers often do not realize how little they are getting.

There have been proposals to force companies to provide more information about the cost of insurance. Meanwhile, you can help yourself by learning some of the basics.

The two most common types of insurance are term and whole-life.

Term policies generally are designed to protect survivors who are paid a lump sum on the death of the insured. It provides insurance for a limited period only. You have to renew it periodically and the premiums increase as you get older. If you live longer than the term of the policy, you get nothing.

Some term policies have a decreasing face value. The premium stays the same even though the insured gets older, but the amount of insurance decreases. This kind of policy can be useful for a family which expects its insurance needs to drop with time, as children grow up, for example. It also can be used to protect against a specific, declining expense, like a mortgage.

Whole-life policies are more complicated and more controversial. The premiums are more expensive than those for term insurance — particularly in the early years — but they do not increase during the life of the policyholder.

Whole-life policies provide a payment to beneficiaries on the death of the insured. In addition, the policies have a cash value which grows with the years. The holder can, if he or she chooses, redeem the policy and take the cash value. He or she also can use the cash value of the insurance as security on loans.

If you live long enough, the cash value will be greater than the total of the premiums you have paid.

TODAY'S EDITORIAL:

Eyes Of Taxes Upon Us

TAKE YOUR eyes off the gas pump meters and supermarket cash registers for a moment and study your tax statements if you want to see real inflation power.

Local, state and federal taxes have been going up at a rate now approaching twice that of consumer prices.

For 1978, taxes were up 13.2 percent while prices as measured by comparative figures in the Consumer Price Index were up 7.6 percent.

The tax take swelled by 155.3 percent while price inflation was 87.5 percent in the period between 1968-78.

And if that bottom line is bad news, some of the statistical details as laid out by Industry Week magazine are even worse.

THREE MAJOR expenditures (food, housing and clothing) traditionally get the largest of consumer budgets.

But as a consequence of tax-flation, Americans are now shelling out more in taxes than they do for the three basics—$624.3 billion this year as compared to $575.1 billion last year.

The difference, rounded off to the nearest million, was $49.2 billion, or about triple what it was only two years ago.

Tax growth, while general, is uneven. Local and state levies have increased more rapidly nationwide than federal—187.5 percent during the past 10 years compared to Uncle Sam's 139.9 percent.

But while they may be gaining, local and state governments still take in only about half of what Washington extracts from the economy every year.

The fastest growing tax category is social insurance. Up 249 percent in 10 years, Social Security and kindred programs accounted for 26.3 percent of the total tax load in 1978.

ON AN INDIVIDUAL basis, as Industry Week figures it, each American contributed $1,814 to the federal and $1,043 to state and local governments last year for a total tax payment of $2,857, which represented 57 percent of the per capita income from wages and salaries of $5,047.

As a final measure of tax-flation, the tax total of $624.3 billion in 1978 was larger than the entire Gross National Product for the country in 1963, only 15 years earlier.

Of course, to be completely fair and accurate, the figures would have to be adjusted for changes in the value of the dollar, that of 1978 being worth considerably less than that of 1963 as a result of inflation. But then, that's what we're talking about, isn't it?

'...The Trouble With You Is You're An Alcoholic!'

ONE MAN'S OPINION

Kenneth May

First Things First

IT TELLS YOU something about why we're in the mess we're in when, while the stock market crumbled and interest rates and inflation soared to the highest points in American history, Congress was in session.

No sooner had SPAG (Some People After Grants) reorganized by adding eight minority members to its board of directors than some in the minority minority community were grumbling: Six Mexican-Americans and only two blacks were seated.

President Jimmy insists the economy will improve. Small comfort. An inflation rate of 14 percent would be an improvement.

ONE BENEFIT FROM being named an Honorary Weed Eater is that, if this inflationary recession gets any deeper it'll be easier to become the real thing.

Councilman Carolyn Jordan, bless her, presented me a proclamation last week signed by Mayor Dirk West, blast him.

Along with the citation came a motorized (motor burned out) weed cutter to replace the antique hand model My Sweet Wife has worn to a nubbin.

But the best part is that I got it in writing from West that the City Council is conscience-stricken about weeds that "sprout in profusion to hide our towns beauty—and to cut them and mow them we see as our duty."

They must have gotten information officer Vaughn Hendrie to write that rhyme and this:

"Our inspectors are busy and our weed-mowers, too,

In hopes that our efforts will be pleasing to you.

We want you to know that in three months of trying,

We've mowed four thousand lots and the weeds have been flying."

But, alas, the City Council giveth and taketh away. The proclamation concluded:

"Be it proclaimed for all Lubbock to hear.

Your task is not over; next Spring is too near."

I TAKE SOLACE in the knowledge that the City Fathers and Mother have noticed we have a few weeds growing in the vacant lots, alleys, street medians, curbsides, parking lots, yards of vacant houses, parks, cemetery, railroad rights of way, ditches, schoolgrounds and sidewalk cracks.

Even though some of these Amazing Weeds are not more than five or six feet tall, now that the Council has noticed them it might insist that property owners cut them next Spring.

After all, there could be some potential candidates hiding in some of those weeds—and it would be terrible to have to point them out to a whole new set of Council members.

They might not have as good a sense of humor as this set.

No sooner had his fellow senators voted, 81 to 15, to "characterize his conduct as reprehensible (and) denounce that conduct" than Sen. Herman Talmadge, D-Ga., rose to "reaffirm" that the action was a "personal victory" for him.

Good old Herman the Optimist. If he had gone down with the Titanic, his last words would have been "man, did you see how we whupped that iceberg?"

SHORT OF WIPING it out entirely, the best thing that could happen to the CETA program would be the implementation of recommendations made by a business research group.

After studying the $10-billion-a-year Comprehensive Employment and Training Act programs, the group said too much money is being spent on make-work jobs.

Rather than put CETA "trainees" on governmental jobs, it recommended on-the-job training in private industry and business.

Last year, CETA spent $5.8 billion on public service jobs and "only" $1.65 billion on jobs in the private sector.

THE STUDY GROUP said that CETA training programs too often prepare clients only for menial labor. It recommended that employers be reimbursed 75 percent of a trainee's pay for the first month and 25 percent for the next five months, instead of the current 50 percent, in order that CETA workers be prepared to earn a real living doing real work.

One of the most wasteful boondoggles in the history of the Republic, CETA might not be worth saving even with the recommended changes—but it would be better than continuing to pour so much of that $10 billion annually down a hole.

Salary 'Cut' Lightens Tax Load

(Repeated by local request)

WASHINGTON—A little-known provision of the Social Security law can save workers and employes some of their hard-earned money in these days of increasing taxes and rising costs.

The "double saver" is a 40-year-old provision that permits employers to pay the worker's share of the social security payroll tax—a payment that normally comes out of an employe's regular pay check.

While this part of the Social Security law has been little used in the past, more businesses are discovering its benefits because of increasing Social Security taxes, according to a survey by the tax-writing House Ways and Means Committee.

WORKERS AND EMPLOYERS must now pay 6.13 percent on income up to $22,900, for a maximum tax of $1,403.77 each, and big increases are scheduled to begin in 1981 under past rate changes made in the Social Security law.

Under the little publicized provision, the employer can pay the worker's share of the payroll tax and trim the employe's gross salary by the same amount. This procedure helps both save.

In the case of a worker earning $10,000 a year, for example, he and his employer normally would pay social security taxes of $613 each on that amount, for a total tax of $1,266.

Total cost to the employer is the wage plus the tax, or $10,613, and the worker's pay before income taxes would amount to $9,387. Under the so-called "double savers" provision, the employer would cut the worker's gross pay to $9,387 and pay the full amount of Social Security tax owed on that amount.

AS COMPILED BY the House committee's staff, the total tax comes to $1,150. Add that to the employe's salary, and the total cost to the employer in wages and taxes is $10,537, a savings of approximately $75 a year over the usual method of paying social security taxes.

For workers in the higher pay scales, savings can run upward to more than $170 for each worker.

When hundreds and thousands of workers are involved, the savings for these firms can range from hundreds of thousands of dollars a year into the millions.

For the rank and file workers, the use of the provision can boost his actual take home pay each week. The lower gross pay would put most workers in a lower income tax bracket.

In other words, the worker would stop having to pay taxes on the part of his income which in the past went for Social Security taxes.

In some cases, workers have worked out arrangements whereby they would keep the same gross pay in lieu of other benefits with the firm paying all of the Social Security taxes.

For workers, there is one long-range drawback. Since old-age benefits are based on a worker's average lifetime earnings, employes using the provision would receive slightly lower payments.

While Social Security officials agree the "double savers" provision is very proper and legal, they aren't advertising it because of the revenue lost to the government.

Instead, these officials are now quietly lobbying the House Ways and Means Committee to eliminate the provision from the present Social Security law.

At the present time, only Texas is using a modified version of the provision. Another dozen states have made inquiries this year. Several have discovered they can save millions yearly by using it and are expected to put it into effect in the near future.

Sylvia Porter:

Withdrawal Not Always In Your Best Interest

WASHINGTON—If you are considering the advantages of switching your funds from the traditional checking and savings accounts into an automatic savings-to-checking transfer service or NOW (Negotiable Order of Withdrawal) account, hold off—at least until you have studied the following tips from the General Accounting Office itself.

Above all, use these new transfer plans only when you are sure you can meet the minimum balance requirements, advises the GAO in a report recently prepared at the request of the House subcommittee on consumer and monetary affairs.

"Depositors who can meet and maintain the minimum balance requirements can, indeed, benefit from transfer plans," says the GAO. "However those who cannot do so would fare better with regular checking and savings accounts."

TRANSFER AND NOW accounts offered by 18 banks and savings and loan associations in six major cities were compared in a study.

The minimum balance requirements varied widely among the plans. One had none and levied no service charges; the others required depositors to keep from $200 to $5,000 on account to avoid paying fees.

In general, the GAO, reports my associate, Brooke Shearer, found that:

* If you are a low-income depositor (those of you with incomes of less than $13,000 a year) you would make out better with regular checking and savings accounts, no matter how often or infrequently you write checks each month.

* If you have incomes of $30,000 a year or more, you will gain the most from the transfer plans and find it easiest to choose a transfer plan suited to your needs.

* IF YOU'RE IN the middle-income brackets ($13,000 to $30,000 a year), you can come out ahead with the new plans—but you must shop for a suitable plan with utmost care.

For instance, say you're a middle-income depositor in Washington, D.C. who writes between 21 and 29 checks a month (a level of check-writing the study calls "medium").

You could earn $58, $78, or $164 a year, depending on which of three transfer services you select.

But you would have earned more if you had stayed with a traditional checking/saving account deal at all but one of the banks.

"ALTHOUGH IT IS advisable for most people to shop around for the best plans," says the GAO, "this may be a difficult task for many consumers."

So wide a variety of service charge arrangements are being used by the institutions surveyed that you, a saver, must be adept at mathematics, grammatical construction and financial legalese to pick out the plan that best meets your particular checking and savings requirements.

In addition, the GAO researchers noted that they could not get all the facts they need to analyze the costs and benefits of the new accounts from the advertisements and brochures which the institutions supplied.

The researchers had to ask bank officials such additional questions as:

How is interest compounded? How is the minimum balance calculated? How do service charges change if/and/as the depositor meets or fails to meet minimum balance requirements?

FOR MANY, THE time and trouble involved in figuring out which type of account at which institution will give you the best deal won't be worth what you might gain from applying the information you do dig out.

So why bother? Many Americans don't. And "this posture of 'turning off,'" as Dr. Richard Morse of Kansas State University pointed out in recent congressional hearings on bank advertising, "is an undesirable and unhealthy condition for a free enterprise competitive economy."

"Undesirable," or not, the message to you is clear: Take your time before you take actions that might not benefit you at all.

Berry's World

"I HOPE the Soviets pull those combat troops out of Cuba soon. I'm SICK of hearing you gripe about it."

James J. Kilpatrick:

The Early Birds Get The Word

WASHINGTON—The President of the United States invited a dozen senior correspondents to breakfast with him one morning week before last.

His pleasant purpose was to feed us on bacon and eggs, to water down the Cuban non-crisis and to sell us a nice bill of goods.

As our leader explained how a status quo that had been wholly unacceptable had now become altogether acceptable, my sleepy eyes seemed to glaze. The drowsy mind wandered. As in a dream, I heard Carter say:

"Gentlemen and lady," and here he bowed to Meg Greenfield of the Washington Post, "I have invited you here this morning to brief you upon a modest proposal on arms limitation that I will send to the Hill within the next hour. Mr. Powell will give you the text of my message when we conclude."

THE LOS ANGELES Times hunched forward in expectation. The Washington Star produced pen and notebook. The New York Times looked grave. Three columnists creaped their noble brows. The President smiled fleetingly, and began.

"You should first be advised," said the President, "that I am withdrawing SALT II altogether. The arms limitation treaty is now as dead as last year's Congressional Record.

"You may discard your copies of the proposed treaty and toss out the various analyses you have been interpreting so profoundly."

The stunned correspondents sat frozen in disbelief. A network commentator interrupted to ask if the President had disclosed his astonishing decision to the Soviet Union. Again Carter smiled.

"Cool it, Rod," he said in his disarming way, "You'll get the whole story. You should know that I spent more than an hour on the hot line last night with President Brezhnev.

"I HAD PHONED him to get his approval of my statement on the Cuban business, but we fell to talking about SALT.

"I do not intend to release a verbatim transcript of our conversation—I am saving that for my memoirs—but I can give you the substance.

"I remarked that the treaty will authorize each of us to have 2,250 launchers, heavy bombers and air-to-surface missiles next year, and I added, simply in passing, that we both truly could get along with half of that number, or less.

"I must quote to you Brezhnev's precise response: 'Jimmy,' he said, 'you took the words right out of my mouth.'

"It seemed appropriate to pursue the point. I commented, rather casually, that even one-fifth of our existing nuclear weapons would blow the Soviet Union to smithereens.

"I REMARKED THAT it was no secret that we had missiles perfectly targeted on Moscow, Leningrad, Kiev and the bistros of Minsk. He replied with some warmth that with with just one-tenth of his existing strategic arsenal he could wipe out Washington, New York, Baltimore and John Connally's ranch.

"'Leonid,' I said, 'why don't we scrap this troublesome treaty? Why don't you fellows stockpile what you think is necessary, and we will stockpile what we think is necessary, and we will both save a great deal of money.'

"He snapped at the idea. He remarked that maybe I could now abandon the Goofy. I thought the translator had misunderstood, but Brezhnev said he was referring to the Goofy Racetrack for concealing missiles. He said it must have been designed by that dog with the floppy ears.

"Well, we chuckled a bit over that, and I said, yes, I certainly could put the $30 billion to better uses.

"We could beef up our Navy, buy the Marines some new trucks and provide the Air Force with enough airplanes to intimidate the Cubans.

"We could stop chiseling on our officers and enlisted men by nibbling at their commissary privileges and dependent benefits. We could modernize our conventional equipment, the better to meet real problems instead of fictitious ones.

"He said, 'Jimmy, I couldn't have put it better myself.'

"THE UPSHOT WAS that within minutes we reached a clear understanding to abandon 85 percent of our strategic weapons, and to make our own unilateral decisions hereafter.

"Jody will give you the text. I will now accept questions..."

When the President said "accept," the word triggered a renewed awareness of cooling coffee and congealing eggs.

Carter, I realized, was telling us earnestly that the difference between a combat unit and a noncombat unit lies in a Soviet assurance that a combat unit will not function as a combat unit. And alas, my eyes glazed over again.

A man who cannot bother to do little things cannot be trusted to do big things.

Citizens Across Nation Rally To Protest 'Big Oil'

By The Associated Press

Tom Corrigan was looking at the snow falling in Boston, the first snowfall of the year, gauging how it might influence his part of this week's 50-city citizens' protest against "Big Oil."

It could help the turnout, decided the New England field coordinator for Wednesday's "Campaign For Lower Energy Prices." October's early snow was a reminder of New England's heavy reliance on heating oil — a fuel whose price has almost doubled since the start of last winter.

"The price problem is really acute here," says Corrigan.

In Louisville, Ken Dupree has been helping local groups organize rallies, marches and demonstrations in cities throughout the South for the day of protest.

Local citizen groups are being encouraged to "do their own thing," and Dupree said he's been swamped.

"I'm frankly hard-pressed to deal with the tremendous response we've gotten. People all over are clearly very angry about the price of energy and have reached the point where they're going to demonstrate that anger," Dupree said.

Altogether, some 200 labor, citizen and consumer groups — as disparate as the Gray Panthers, the NFL Players' Association and the United Auto Workers — are participating in the nationwide protest.

"This is a vehicle for people locally to express their outrage in a way that will help counter the enormous influence of the oil lobby in Washington," said Bob Brandon of the Citizen-Labor Energy Coalition, the organization spearheading the activities.

William Winpisinger, coalition chairman and president of the International Association of Machinists, calls the campaign a "national grassroots organizing effort" designed to force government action to lower energy prices.

Winpisinger is also coordinating a national effort to draft Sen. Edward M. Kennedy for the 1980 Democratic presidential nomination and many of the positions advocated by the coalition are those which have been long espoused by the Massachusetts Democrat.

"It's true that Kennedy is supportive of almost everything we're doing, but there's very little direct coalition with his office," said Brandon.

The planned demonstrations include a march by senior citizens on the American Petroleum Institute headquarters in Washington and a protest rally in Chicago led by actress Jane Fonda and her activist husband Tom Hayden at the Standard Oil of Indiana office.

Rush-hour "honk-ins," university "teach-ins," church "prayer-ins," picket lines at refineries, rallies and candlelight processions are planned in a number of cities.

While the form of protest varies throughout the nation, the demonstrators will all be distributing red, white and blue oil "discredit" cards to be filled out and returned to members of Congress.

"The oil companies' credit has run out with me," proclaim big letters across the top of each card.

The cards call for Congress to "stop phony shortages by the oil companies," to name a special prosecutor to investigate the oil industry, to create a publicly-owned energy corporation to buy imported oil and to reimpose price lids on oil and natural gas.

Oil industry officials are either reluctant to comment on the activities or are issuing carefully worded statements.

"To blame the oil companies for the high cost of imported oil is tragically misguided and self-defeating at a time when increasing the energy self-sufficiency of the country is of the utmost priority," said a Gulf Oil Corp. statement.

Asked about the planned demonstration by senior citizens at the API building in Washington, API spokesman R.G. Ensz said, "We'll be keeping an eye on it. ... But we have no statement to make."

Legislation to accomplish the ends sought by the organizers will be introduced later this month in the House by Rep. Toby Moffett, D-Conn., and in the Senate by Sen. Howard Metzenbaum, D-Ohio.

"The bill will include a conglomeration of things. It will be mainly an organizing tool so that the various groups involved in the protest have something around which to rally," said Moffett. He isn't too optimistic about the legislation's actual chances.

Nor do many seeking a return to price controls think their job will be an easy one.

The issue of price controls may have been decided last week when the House voted overwhelmingly against challenging President Carter's decision to allow U.S. oil prices to rise to world levels by mid-1981.

The House also voted to deregulate gasoline prices and rejected attempts to slap price lids for the coming winter on heating oil and diesel fuel.

Natural gas is being deregulated under legislation passed last year by Congress.

Organizers of Wednesday's protest had originally sought to postpone the House vote on decontrol until after the rallies in hopes of building grass-roots support for the return to price controls.

House Speaker Thomas P. O'Neill, a decontrol opponent himself, agreed to the delay. But seeing that support for price control was not gaining, a decision was made not to postpone the vote any further.

"The avalanche of mail that was expected apparently didn't arrive," said O'Neill.

He said he felt it was unlikely that Congress would change its mind and vote to reimpose controls in view of the House vote.

But the snow that fell in Boston and through much of the East last week may still build that public groundswell for price controls that protest organizers are counting on.

Fuel Price Policies Studied

WASHINGTON (AP) — Presidential adviser Alfred Kahn says his office is checking fuel pricing policies because oil and gas prices "seem to have increased much more than can be explained by the increase in the cost of crude oil."

If oil companies are found to be violating the administration's price guidelines, Kahn said Sunday on CBS' "Face the Nation," "then I think we would use our most powerful weapon, which is public opinion."

"We found they (oil companies) prize above all their good name. We are prepared, if we find non-compliance, to tell the world and scream it to the world and I think that would be very effective," said Kahn, chairman of the president's Council on Wage and Price Stability.

He added that no evidence of widespread non-compliance has yet been turned up by the review, which likely will be completed at the end of the month.

Meanwhile, Occidental Petroleum chairman Armand Hammer predicted Sunday that Americans will face continuing oil price increases "until we make ourselves independent of foreign oil."

"There's a great danger that next year we can have lines again in front of gas stations, and the price of oil can escalate again," he said on NBC's "Meet the Press".

He suggested the United States persuade Mexico to step up its oil production in return for "building American industries in Mexico" to help that country's unemployment rate.

Hammer also said that oil shale may contribute to future energy independence. With government incentives, Occidental could produce 50,000 barrels of oil a day.

Local Woman Reports Rape By Husband's Uncle

A Lubbock woman told police she was raped Sunday night by her husband's uncle at a birthday party given for the alleged assailant.

The 21-year-old complainant said she entered a house about 9 p.m. and was grabbed by the man, who allegedly began pushing her towards a bedroom.

The woman quoted the man as telling her, "If you don't take off your clothes, I'll tell your husband that you've been offering yourself to me."

Police were told the woman partially disrobed and was sexually assaulted by the suspect, described as a Mexican-American, about 40, weighing 170 pounds and 5-feet-9 inches tall.

The woman said she attempted to resist the assault and yelled, but that no one came to her aid. The victim was taken to the police station by her husband and a relative.

In other activity Sunday night, two persons received hospital treatment after being assaulted in two separate altercations.

Jonathan Lynn Swanson, 20, stationed at Reese Air Force Base, said he was shot about 10:45 p.m. in the 4700-block of Loop 289 by a man he had been feuding with for some time.

Swanson, who was treated and released at Methodist Hospital for a gunshot wound in the chest, said the suspect pulled a revolver and fired twice at him, with one bullet striking him.

The alleged assailant, described as a black man, reportedly drove off in a black and gold 1967-69 Oldsmobile.

Also about 10:45 p.m. Sunday, Edwardo V. Vidales, 25, of 1206-B 23rd St. said he was cut in a domestic quarrel in the 1200-block of 23rd Street.

Vidales, who was treated at Methodist Hospital, told police he was cut on the forearm and right hand by the assailant, described as a 27-year-old Mexican-American man, weighing 135 pounds and 5-feet-4 inches tall.

Police early today were looking for a horse thief in connection with the theft Sunday of a $5,000 Appaloosa in the 2200-block of East 50th Street.

The owner of the horse, Hershel McKnight, said the animal had been stolen between 11 a.m. and 3 p.m. Sunday. The horse apparently had been taken from a fenced in area near McKnight's 2223 E. 50th St. residence.

The animal was described as white with brown spots, and with a white star-shaped formation on its forehead. The animal's back hoofs were missing horse shoes, according to reports.

About $2,035 in clothes and a television set was the apparent loot taken in the break-in of Betty Mae Dorsey's 2807 Ivory Ave. apartment between 11 a.m. and 1 p.m. Sunday.

Max Walden of 5614 Ave. B said his storage shed was burglarized Sunday and about $614 in household goods stolen.

Guns, a clock and radio were reported taken between Oct. 7 and 5 p.m. Sunday when George W. Hay's house at 2723 52nd St. was burglarized. The loss was estimated at $2,100.

A Lubbock youth suffered a gunshot wound to his arm Sunday when his friend, who told police he didn't know there was a live round in the chamber, pointed a pistol at him and pulled the trigger.

The 16-year-old victim reportedly had taken the pistol to his friend's house. The youth's friend told police that he picked up the pistol, pointed it at the boy and pulled the trigger. The man said he didn't know there was a live round in the chamber.

Reports show that the victim was taken to a local hospital by private vehicle.

The Lubbock fire marshal's office today was investigating for possible arson in a fire which swept through a frame house at 3509 Vanda Ave.

Firemen were dispatched to the blaze at 4:11 a.m. The fire marshal was called to investigate the blaze after a fireman reported a strong odor of gasoline in the building. Fire officials estimated damage to the structure at more than $1,000.

The house is reportedly an after-hours bar and pool room, known as "Shot's Place."

A 16-year-old Estacado High School student told police that two black youths assaulted him about 1 a.m. Sunday while he was parked in front of his East Lubbock home.

The boy reported the two youths hit and kicked him and damaged his windshield.

The victim described one of the youths as being between 14-to 17-years-old and said his other attacker was about 18 to 25.

The victim said he had argued with the youths Saturday night.

Four youths allegedly threw a beer can at an East Lubbock man, and one of the boys reportedly struck him in the mouth while he was stopped at a red light at 19th Street and Avenue S shortly after midnight Sunday.

Dwane Harrod, 20, of 1505 E. Tulane St. said the youths were Mexican-American and about 14-to 17-years-old.

James Mabry of 2220 Sixth St. reported that burglars took $2,275 worth of goods, including a TV and jewelry, from his home sometime between 8:30 p.m. Saturday and 2:45 a.m. Sunday.

Prosecutors To Play Recording For Jury

FORT WORTH (AP) — Prosecutors leveled their big guns at Cullen Davis today, hinting they will play for jurors a tape recording they feel proves their murder-for-hire case against the millionaire industrialist.

Davis, 46, was on the stand Friday when the trial recessed for the weekend, having been the target of cross-examination by prosecutors that intensified steadily last week.

The recording was made through a body microphone the FBI attached to informant David McCrory on Aug. 18 when he and Davis discussed money and murder.

Chief prosecutor Jack Strickland has said the recordings are the heart of the state's case.

No one was harmed.

Davis and McCrory discussed murder-for-hire, a fact that was uncontested during Davis' first trial on the charge at Houston earlier this year. That jury deadlocked at 8-4 for conviction, causing a mistrial.

Davis and his million-dollar defense team, headed by Houston defense attorney Richard "Racehorse" Haynes, contend that Davis was just playing along to please the FBI. Davis says a purported FBI agents investigating extortion attempts on Davis advised him to go along with scheme as part of the "extortion" investigation.

Girl Identifies Alleged Slayer

OKLAHOMA CITY (UPI) — A teenage sales clerk today identified mass murder suspect Roger Dale Stafford as the driver of a green station wagon she saw speeding from a restaurant the night six persons were shot to death.

Pamela Lynch, 18, pointed to Stafford in the courtroom and said she was "100 percent sure" he was the driver.

"He (the driver) kept moving his hair out of his eyes. He was wearing a light-colored shirt," Miss Lynch said.

Stafford is charged with first-degree murder in all six slayings.

Miss Lynch's testimony was the first, other than that of Stafford's estranged wife, Verna, that placed Stafford near the scene on the night of the slayings.

3-Year-Old Leukemia Victim Desired To Go Home

By The Associated Press

Chad Green had only one thing on his mind as he neared the end of his struggle against leukemia. According to his parents, he wanted to go home.

Chad, 3, died Friday in Tijuana, Mexico, the center of a legal and medical debate over the effectiveness of Laetrile in treating cancer.

"He wanted to go home so bad he just stopped doing everything," his father, Gerald Green, told NBC News on Sunday. "He didn't want to eat; he didn't want to take his pills."

Home for Chad was across the continent, near Boston. Chad's parents, in defiance of a court order, fled their Scituate, Mass., home with the boy to seek Laetrile, which is not legally available in the United States.

The parents contended Laetrile would stem the cancer that had eaten away at their boisterous son for most of his young life.

The parents said Sunday they still believe they did the right thing when they abandoned conventional chemotherapy treatment for Chad. "What we should be looking at here," Green said, "is a system that forces a child into exile. Chad was depressed. He wanted to go home. This was his sign of going home."

"He wanted to lay down on the bed so I let him lay down on the bed," his mother, Diana Green, said of the boy's final moments.

"He looked out the window and he said, 'Out the window. I want to go there. Let me go.'

"And we ... said ... do you want to go outside? We'll take you outside.

And he said 'No.'"

"And then he ... said again, 'I wanna go there. Dad, help me.'"

"And then he was gone," Mrs. Green said.

The father said he applied cardiac compression and mouth-to-mouth resuscitation to the boy for 10 minutes before seeking a doctor. But his search for a doctor was unsuccessful, he said.

Dr. Julio Selva, a hemotologist at the Tijuana clinic where Chad was being treated, said he warned the Greens one month ago they were putting Chad's life in danger by taking him off chemotherapy.

"If the boy had remained on chemotherapy, he would still be alive today," said the doctor. He said the boy's leukemia could have been abated only with chemotherapy.

Child Lived Unaware Of Legal Tug-Of-War

BOSTON (AP) — Chad Green, the 3-year-old leukemia victim who died in Mexico where he was undergoing Laetrile treatments, spent two-thirds of his short life unaware of the battle he fought.

From the time he was first diagnosed as suffering from a common type of childhood leukemia, Chad was put in the middle of a legal tug-of-war between his parents, Gerald and Diana Green, and the medical profession.

Doctors in Omaha, Neb., first diagnosed Chad's blood cancer in August 1977 and began a chemotherapy program. However, a month later, his parents pulled him out, objecting to the radiotherapy he was receiving along with the chemotherapy, or drug treatments.

The family went to Massachusetts to stay with Gerald's father in Scituate and Chad began receiving chemotherapy at Massachusetts General Hospital in Boston.

Diana Green said she had heard about nutritional therapy and had seen films on Laetrile, a substance derived from apricot and peach pits. Laetrile has never been officially accepted by the medical profession in this country and its interstate shipment is banned by the federal government.

Doctors at Massachusetts General said the Greens took Chad off chemotherapy in November 1977, substituting Laetrile and a nutritional therapy program. In February 1978, the doctors said, Chad was suffering from a severe relapse of leukemia.

When the parents refused to resume chemotherapy, Dr. John Truman took the issue to court. He pointed to a law that gave the state the final determination on whether a minor could be released from what doctors considered live-saving treatment.

In April 1978, Superior Court Judge Guy Volterra ordered the Greens to resume chemotherapy. The Greens lost appeals of that decision in state and federal court. By the end of 1978, the Greens returned to court, asking that the drug therapy be replaced with Laetrile.

In January of this year, after several days of hearings — including testimony that Chad ran the risk of cyanide poisoning from the Laetrile — Volterra ruled the Laetrile treatment should be ended.

The Greens fled Massachusetts for Mexico shortly after the ruling, taking their son to a clinic in Tijuana. They returned to this country only once, to appear on a television show in Texas to discuss their decision to flee and to continue Laetrile treatments.

The court fight continued without the Greens, as Volterra issued a criminal injunction directing the Greens to stop giving Laetrile to Chad and return him to Massachusetts for treatment.

Boy's Parents Could Face More Charges

BOSTON (UPI) — Chad Green's long battle with leukemia is finally over, but his parents' long legal battle in Massachusetts is not.

Gerald and Diane Green of Scituate, Mass., took their 3-year-old son to Tijuana, Mexico, for Laetrile treatments last January in defiance of a Massachusetts court order. He died there Friday.

The couple's attorney, William I. Ginzburg, in announcing the boy's death, said the Greens would remain in Mexico for the time being because of possible criminal charges against them.

After the Greens fled to Mexico, Plymouth Superior Court Judge Guy Volterra issued a civil contempt order against them.

Assistant state Attorney General Jonathon Brant, who developed the state's case against the Greens, said Sunday they still face sentencing on the contempt charge.

"And since the result of their taking him out of the country is that he died ... I won't say what the judge will do," Brant said.

Volterra also found probable cause for criminal contempt.

But sources close to the attorney general's office said they doubt the Greens will face criminal charges if they return to Massachusetts.

At Massachusetts General Hospital where Chad had been treated, he was mourned deeply.

Doctors at the hospital had fought in court to keep Chad on chemotherapy, which they said was keeping his cancer in remission.

Bodiless Head Adds To Halloween Party

By SHARI LEWIS

Picture this. It's your Halloween Party. You lead your friends into a room lit by just one bulb. Suddenly the group hears a strange voice say, "Welcome," and they notice a bodiless head lying on the floor.

Of course the bodiless head does have a body. It's a secret helper — hopefully one with a high forehead and very long hair.

Draw a nose and a mouth upside down on the person's forehead (use eyebrow pencil and lipstick). Stick some tufts of cotton under the person's eyes, to make eerie eyebrows. (Stick the cotton on with double-faced tape, regular cellophane tape rolled backwards into a circle so that the sticky sides are on the outside all around the loop, or use bits of chewing gum). Stick some more cotton under the false nose to make a big mustache. This will hide the fact that there is no mouth.

Have this person lie down on the floor with his or her body under the table. Put a long cloth on the table, bringing the hem all the way down to the floor. Fix the cloth so that it falls right across the person's real nose, above the false eyebrows, and then drape the cloth loosely around the person's neck. Now take some of that long hair I mentioned, brush it to a point around the face and it will pass for a beautiful beard.

Give out riddles written on cards, and this bodiless head can answer the riddles, one after the other.

Today's brain twister: Put 10 pennies down on the table in a row. Now, you can pick up any penny, and put it on top of any other penny. Here's the catch: Each time you pick up a penny, you must pass over two pennies before you put it down on top of another penny. In other words, penny No. 4 can only be put down on No. 1 or No. 7. What's the aim? When you are done, there should be no single pennies left — just five piles of two pennies each! (Look for the answer in tomorrow's Kids-Only Club column.)

Solon Seeks Gay Rights Measure

WASHINGTON (AP) — The turnout of an estimated 50,000 marchers here Sunday shows that gay rights are "a matter of national concern," says a congressman who wants to extend the Civil Rights Act to protect homosexuals.

"I think most Americans are ready for it," Rep. Ted Weiss, D-N.Y., said Sunday before addressing the marchers, including many lesbians and gay men, massed on the Mall at the foot of the Washington Monument.

The U.S. Park Police estimated the crowd at 50,000. March organizers said it was two to three times that size.

The marchers paraded down Pennsylvania Avenue and behind the White House under banners from nearly every state. Large contingents from California and Texas stepped behind their own marching bands. A gay men's chorus from Los Angeles sang several tunes, including "Stout-Hearted Men."

Weiss said he has about 50 co-sponsors for the bill he introduced earlier this year to amend the Civil Rights Act of 1964 to ban discrimination against homosexuals.

Weiss' bill has spurred Rep. Larry McDonald, D-Ga., to introduce a resolution that would put Congress on record as opposing any special legal status for homosexuals. It has not been acted on.

As the march took place, conservative Christian groups were staging a news conference and prayer session to protest the demonstration. They said special prayers were said in churches around the country Sunday urging homosexuals to change their ways.

"God did not create Adam and Steve, but Adam and Eve," said Rev. Jerry Falwell, a television evangelist from Lynchburg, Va.

DEAR ABBY

DEAR ABBY: As a long-time reader and admirer, I was shocked at your advice to the parents of the 12-year-old-boy who, with his parents, had visited relatives in another city. On returning home, he told his parents (in confidence) that his 15-year old cousin had offered him some pot, but he refused.

The parents immediately phoned the cousin's parents to report it. Instead of being grateful for the information, they reacted angrily, saying their son had never smoked pot, and the younger boy must be lying. When the visiting parents asked if they were wrong to have called the other parents, you said yes. (You also said, "Children should not betray their peers.")

Abby, if the kids had stuck up a gas station, or shot someone, would you still have said, "Children should not betray their peers"?

I just can't believe you would advise parents not to tip off the parents of children who are breaking the law and doing harm to themselves.

If I misunderstood your answer, please explain.

DISAPPOINTED IN YOU

DEAR DISAPPOINTED: You did, and I will. If you had read the letter carefully, you would have noticed that the boy said his cousin had offered him some pot. He admitted that he never actually saw his cousin smoke pot.

It was my feeling that the older boy was only talking big to impress his young cousin. Had he actually smoked pot in the boy's presence, it would have been a different story. No pot was inevidence, and none was smoked!

I'm sorry I didn't make myself clear, and juding from the critical mail I received, I did not.

Marijuana is still illegal, and those who break the law should be reported and dealt with accordingly.

However, in this case, no law had been broken, I should have said, "When no law is broken, children should not betray their peers." And to have reported back to the parents with such flimsy evidence, thus creating a rift between the families, was uncalled for. (P.S. I hope the editor of the Rock Hill, S.C., Herald sees this. So incensed was he with my reply that he wrote an editorial about it.)

DEAR ABBY: I have been a widow for 11 years. My sister and my daughter still remember my wedding anniversary in a quiet way, which I feel is comforting.

However, my son (now married) never remembers my wedding anniversary.

Am I expecting too much of my son? What is proper?

HURT

DEAR HURT: It is not proper to offer congratulations on a wedding anniversary after one of the couple dies.

Perhaps your son remembers the date, but doesn't acknowledge it because he fears it might sadden or depress you. Let him know that you derive comfort from having those you love remember that day. Then if he forgets, you will have a legitimate reason to feel hurt.

Club Notables

By CONNIE CHAPMAN
Family News Staff

In spite of some record high temperatures which deny that we're really into Fall, a flurry of club activities prove that that busy season is indeed upon us.

Reports coming in to Family News tell of some special meetings and programs scheduled for this week. Some are especially "Notable."

On Tuesday, ARCS (which stands for Achievement Rewards for College Scientists) will have a tour of Jones Station by Bob Brummal and Roy J. Holmes of Southwestern Public Service. ARCS not only provides scholarship funds for deserving science students, but also attempts to learn more about different operations in the community of a scientifc nature.

Congratulations to Caprock Chapter of ABWA as these ladies celebrate the second anniversary of the chapter Tuesday.

The members of the Lubbock Garden Club hope the nice weather stays around at least throgh Friday so they can get maximum enjoyment out of a planned garden tour in Anton. The tour will include the garden of Mrs. Ruth Alexander and Mrs. Jack Grace as well as the Anton Rose Garden.

Daughters of the American Revolution (DAR) will have a very special guest for their meeting on national defense Wednesday. Brig. Gen. (Ret.) A. Ray Brownfield, the immediate past commander-in-chief of Military Officers of World Wars, will be the speaker. The public is invited to this 1:30 p.m. meeting at the Garden and Arts Center.

The Lubbock Knife and Fork Club meets for dinner Tuesday evening at the Hillcrest Country Club. Robert "Bob" Gadberry of Wichita, Kan., will be the featured speaker for this meeting. Gadberry, now vice president and trust officer and public relations officer of the Fourth National Bank of Wichita, has a reputation as a delightful speaker, according to reports from the local club.

Mrs. Yolanda Moore from the Lubock Zoological Society will be the Tueday noon speaker for the Lunch Bunch. Mrs. Moore will talk about current developments in the efforts to begin a zoo in Lubbock.

District II of the Texas State Division of American Association of University Women will be meeting Saturday in Plainview. Several women from the local chapter are planning to attend the workshop the theme of which is "Families Facing Change."

Officers newly elected by the 59'er Grandmothers Club are the following: Mrs. Carl Hawkins, president; Mrs. Buddy Perry, vice president; Mrs. B.T. Rucker, secretary; Mrs. C.I. Green, treasurer; and Mrs. W.H. Trice, chaplain.

Xi Gamma Sigma Chapter of Beta Sigma Phi will meet Thursday at 7 p.m. in the Flame Room of Pioneer Natural Gas Co. for a program on parliamentary procedure.

Techsan Garden Club will meet today at 7:30 p.m. at the home of Mrs. Bruce Mattson, 3118 21st St., to work on ornaments for the Christmas tree to be on display at the Garden and Arts Center.

THIS WEEK AT THE LUBBOCK WOMEN'S CLUB: The Broadway and Books Roundtablewill meet Wednesday for luncheon and to see the very special doll collection belonging to Esther McMurty, the speaker for the meeting.

At Wit's End...

By ERMA BOMBECK

I don't like to think about the executive at ABC who decided to pit Pope John Paul II's Celebration Mass in Washington, D.C., against two pro football games and a major league baseball series last Sunday.

It was a gutsy go-for-broke decision that would either make him a hero to 75 million football widows or plummet him to obscurity. He has not been heard from in a week.

Some of you are not old enough to remember the last time a civilian show tried to buck television football. I'll never forget it. It was in November 1967. One of the networks cancelled out the football game between New York and Oakland to run a children's classic called "Heidi" in its place.

It not only set children's literature back 20 years, but the shock waves throughout this country are still being felt.

A football fan from San Jose broke into a library and slashed up copies of "Hans Brinker," "Alice in Wonderland," and "Little Women."

A bitter fan in Queens relinquished his citizenship and said, "This is not what I came to America for."

A drunk in a bar in Cleveland Heights, Ohio, had to be restrained when he threw a glass at the TV set and shouted, "I've been watching that stupid goat commercial for 20 minutes now. Where are the Raiders?"

The day after the telecast, I called my friend Marge. You may remember she's the woman who got sick and tired of her husband sitting around every weekend like a dead sponge, so she made a lamp out of him.

"What did Fred say when you tried to watch the Pope's Mass?"

"He didn't know the difference," she said. "He said the offense moved a little slow. Then he went to the kitchen for a snack and asked me to call him if anyone scored. I told him it wasn't a ball game. It was a Mass. He thought I said 'pass' and nearly broke his foot getting back into the room. Then he wanted to know who was calling signals and I told him it was His Excellency. He said that could be any one of 15 quarterbacks. What did your husband say?"

"I can only tell you the vote was NFL-4-Christians-1."

From drab 18 to dynamite 6

and shopping's fun again for Ms. Barnwell

Lots of little pleasures—like shopping for a smaller size—are part of the joy of attaining a slender figure. Ray Barnwell, for example, enjoys looking for new clothes now that she has lost 60 pounds on our proven program of weight reduction. A petite 113 pounds, she slips easily into size 6—and that's much more exciting than trying on the size 18 (or larger) she wore before she started treatments at Pat Walker's.

"After years of being overweight and trying all types of diet plans, I discovered a truly workable solution," Ms. Barnwell writes. "Pat Walker's is helping me take off the weight plus the inches I have struggled with all my life... For the first time, I'm getting down to the size I want to be and feel I can control my weight without being on a starvation diet."

GOREN ON BRIDGE

Q.1—As South, vulnerable, you hold:
♠AK104 ♡AQ53 ◇A1097 ♣A
What is your opening bid?

A.—Normally, when you hold three four-card suits you should open the suit below the singleton, which, in this case, would dictate a one spade opening bid. However, this hand is an exception. Although your hand does not merit a demand bid, you have so much strength that partner might find it difficult to respond if you open one spade. For example, if he held nothing but five hearts headed by the king-jack, he would pass and game, or perhaps even slam, would be missed. So we would open one diamond to allow partner a convenient opportunity to respond at the one-level.

Q.2—Neither vulnerable, as South you hold:
♠A62 ♡AJ4 ◇A642 ♣Q109
The bidding has proceeded:

South	West	North	East
1 ◇	Pass	1 ♡	Pass
1 NT	Pass	2 ♣	Pass

What action do you take?

A.—What began as a minimum opening bid has improved because of your fit for both of partner's suits, which has enhanced the value of the honors in those suits. You can show this by taking a jump preference to three hearts. Don't worry about partner expecting more from you for your jump—your initial rebid limited your hand to 15 points.

Q.3—As South, vulnerable, you hold:
♠KJ ♡J753 ◇Q9 ♣J7543
The bidding has proceeded:

North	East	South	West
1 ♠	Pass	1 NT	Pass
2 ◇	Pass	2 ♠	Pass
3 ♠	Pass	?

What action do you take?

A.—Thus far, you have done nothing to tell partner that you have anything of value for him—indeed, your bidding has been most discouraging. Despite that, your partner is interested in game. You have a wealth of key cards in both of his suits, so failure to proceed on to game would be a gross dereliction of duty.

Q.4—As South, vulnerable, you hold:
♠732 ♡A6 ◇A742 ♣KJ75
The bidding has proceeded:

West	North	East	South
1 ♠	2 ♡	Pass	?

What action do you take?

A.—Opposite a partner who has made a vulnerable overcall, this is simply a matter of whether you should bid three hearts or four. With three low spades, we would be inclined to a cautious approach and would simply raise to three hearts. Don't be concerned about the fact that you have only a doubleton ace in partner's suit—that is ample support facing a two-level overcall.

Q.5—Neither vulnerable, as South you hold:
♠4 ♡KJ76 ◇K1075 ♣KJ93
The bidding has proceeded:

North	East	South	West
1 ◇	Pass	1 ♡	Pass
3 ♣	Pass	3 ◇	Pass
3 ♡	Pass	?

What do you bid now?

A.—You have a reasonable hand, and so far you have done nothing but respond in a new suit and then take a simple preference. Some strong action is indicated—preferably one that will highlight your singleton spade. Five clubs will do the trick, but we wouldn't quarrel with you if, instead, you Blackwood and bid a slam in diamonds if partner showed an acceptable number of aces.

Q.6—As South, vulnerable, you hold:
♠KQ65 ♡K53 ◇KQJ9 ♣AQ
The bidding has proceeded:

South	West	North	East
1 ♠	Pass	2 ♠	Pass

What action do you take?

A.—You certainly want to be in game—but which game? If you could be sure that partner held four spades, you would obviously want to play in the major suit. However, partner might have raised with only three-card support. Allow him the option of selecting the final contract by jumping to three no trump.

What action do you take?

A.—With your unbalanced hand, you should prefer a suit contract to no trump. Rebid three diamonds. That accomplishes two purposes with one bid—it shows your support for partner's suit and strongly suggests a singleton club. In addition, partner might now show a belated heart preference, in which case you can place the contract in four hearts with a fair degree of confidence.

Q.8—Both vulnerable, as South you hold:
♠K1052 ♡KJ984 ◇A97 ♣4
The bidding has proceeded:

South	West	North	East
1 ♡	2 ◇	2 ♡	3 ♣
Pass	3 ◇	3 ♡	4 ♣
Pass	5 ♣	Pass	Pass
Pass

What is your opening lead?

A.—This is close. You can bet that you are not going to get more than one heart trick—if that. It would seem that to defeat this contract, you will have to score spade tricks before declarer can get any discards. Therefore, we would lead a spade while we still have the ace of diamonds in our hand.

Americans Capture Nobels

STOCKHOLM, Sweden (AP) — The 1979 Nobel Prize in physics was awarded today to two Americans and a Pakistani and the chemistry prize to an American and a West German as U.S. scientists again this year dominated the prestigious international awards.

Four of seven laureates selected for the three 1979 science prizes are Americans, the same number as last year.

The physics prize was awarded to Sheldon L. Glashow and Steven Weinberg, both 46, of Harvard, and Abdus Salam, 53, a Pakistani physicist working in London and Trieste, Italy, for studies aimed at unlocking the mystery of forces that hold matter together. They believe their work may eventually find a single force underlying the universe.

The chemistry prize was awarded to Herbert C. Brown, 67, of Purdue University, West Lafayette, Ind., and Georg Wittig, 82, of the University of Heidelberg, West Germany, for their development of chemical tools for synthesizing organic compounds.

Last week the medicine prize was awarded to physicist Allan McLeod Cormack of Tufts University and British research engineer Godfrey Newbold Hounsfield for developing the X-ray technique known as computer-assisted tomography.

Today's awards were made by the Swedish Royal Academy of Sciences. Each prize carries a $190,000 stipend to be shared among its winners.

The Academy cited the three physics winners "for their contributions to the theory of unified weak and electromagnetic interaction between elementary particles, including ... the prediction of the weak neutral current."

In Massachusetts, Weinberg told a reporter today the work is an effort to help "people understand what makes the world tick."

Both he and Glashow agreed their studies do not have any immediate practical application, although they have spinoffs in understanding radioactivity and how the sun produces energy.

"We suspect that there is at root a fundamental simplicity of nature," Glashow said. Their theory is that "the particles of nature are held together by four different forces, of which one is gravity. That's what Einstein spent his life on. The other three are weak, strong and electromagnetic."

The goal now is to show that the other three are "three different facets of the same thing" — a single underlying force of which they are simply manifestations.

In 1967, Weinberg proposed that electromagnetism and a class of subnuclear reactions called the "weak interactions" could be understood as different expressions of a process described by a single group of equations called a "broken gauge symmetry group."

Salam independently proposed a similar theory a few months later.

It turned out to be the first unification of two basic natural forces since electricity and magnetism were shown to be connected more than a century ago.

Glashow and Weinberg, both New York City natives, are the 38th and 39th American winners of the physics prize.

Weinberg, who obtained his Ph.D. at Princeton, has been Higgins professor of physics at Harvard since 1973. Glashow, who holds a Harvard doctorate, has been a professor of physics at Harvard's Lyman Laboratory since 1967.

Salam, who was educated at Cambridge University and had been considered a likely Nobel winner for several years, is a professor at the Imperial College of Sciences and Technology in London and director of the International Center for Theoretical Physics at Trieste, Italy. He is the first Pakistani to win a Nobel Prize.

The London-born Brown and Wittig, the chemistry winners, were cited for developing the use of boron- and phosphorous-containing compounds as important reaction agents in the synthesis of organic compounds.

These carbon-based compounds are the chemicals of life, but also include many important industrial compounds, such as benzene and petroleum.

Brown, who obtained his Ph.D. from the University of Chicago, later became an American citizen, and has been a chemistry research professor at Purdue since 1959, introduced an entirely new class of chemical compounds called organoboranes.

Organoboranes "can be used for reductions, rearrangements and additions and have opened up a range of new possibilities for linking carbon atoms to each other," the academy citation said.

Wittig developed new synthetic methods of considerable importance and has studied reaction mechanisms. His most important achievement is the discovery of the rearrangement reaction bearing his name as "the Wittig reaction."

"Brown's and Wittig's results have opened up new vistas in organic synthesis and highly stimulated the further development of their science," the academy citation said.

Brown is the 22nd American Nobel winner in chemistry.

The Nobel Prize in economics is to be announced Tuesday and the peace and literature prizes later this week or next week. President Carter has been nominated for the peace prize for mediating the Camp David accords between Egypt and Israel.

Last year six of the nine Nobel winners were Americans.

The awards are financed by the estate of the late Alfred Nobel, the Swedish inventor of dynamite.

NEW JUDGE — Cecil Puryear, former assistant district counsel for the Small Business Administration, is sworn in as Lubbock Municipal Court presiding judge by County Court-at-Law Judge Edwin Boedecker. Puryear, a former Municipal Court prosecutor, takes over as presiding judge today, replacing Drew Littleton, who resigned in June to take a job in Brownsville. SALT II Pact Important To NATO, Brown Says

NEW YORK (AP) — "There is a very severe danger" that NATO could fail if the SALT II treaty is rejected by the Senate, Secretary of Defense Harold Brown said today.

"I am not alone in saying so," Brown said. "Alliance leaders — from defense ministers, through foreign ministers, to heads of government — have been saying that and they are expressing their judgment about the political situation in their own countries."

Brown's comment came as the Senate Foreign Relations Committee began work today on deciding what action it will recommend to the full Senate on the SALT treaty.

The defense secretary said further that it is a "likelihood" that the Soviets could gain an upper hand in Western Europe, and the North Atlantic Treaty Organization could face a breakdown, if its member nations reject the deployment of medium-range missiles in their countries.

"I think that there is a danger, in fact I would say more than a danger — a likelihood — that if the alliance shows itself unable to modernize its forces this way it will lead to an unraveling of alliance ties and a clear indication that the Soviets will continue to have advantages which will allow them to carry out political intimdation," Brown said.

He was referring to the U.S. proposal that 572 missiles be deployed around Western Europe to give that region, for the first time, the ability to fire warheads that would reach Soviet soil.

Some European leaders are said to be ready to reject that plan when it comes up for consideration by NATO between now and December should SALT not get Senate approval.

"The Soviets have been building up their intermediate-range forces (in Eastern bloc nations) for some time in terms of quality, numbers of warheads and so on even as they retire older systems. ... We're in a situation where the Soviets have conventional advantages over the Europeans.

"To leave a gap where the alliance, the NATO alliance, has essentially no intermediate-range systems and the Soviets have quite a few is a dangerous situation," he said.

Brown denied that the Soviet Union was gaining a military advantage worldwide, saying the United States is responding in areas where a balance of power could be upset.

"For example, just yesterday (the United States) sent into the Indian Ocean a task force headed by the carrier Midway," he said. "And we decided, because that's a vital region to us, that we will in the coming year deploy four task forces — two of them led by carriers — during next year...

"We have increased our permanent presence there by adding two destroyer-type ships to the permanent force there. We will be able to respond to requests from friends and allies," he said.

Health Bills Get Local Support

million in savings, saying "that's because they don't provide animal control, fire protection, preventive health services or food sanitation services in the county."

Dr. Orr said the legislation also might have prevented the "appalling" situation in which she said she found the city Health Department when she became its director last year.

The department had been headed by only an acting director "for many, many years," Dr. Orr said, adding "all sorts of illegality" was taking place.

The steering committee report states "29 local health department directors and 10 public health regional directors are without authority to initiate appropriate court action for violations of state public health laws."

"In such cases the directors find themselves handicapped in carrying out their duties," the report states.

William Ross, chief of the health department's Bureau of Community Services and chairman of the steering committee which drafted the recommendations, said many cities and counties are without health officers because of a state requirement that the directors be physicians residing in the city or county.

Of 254 counties in Texas, Ross said 58 did not have health officers either because there was no physician in the county or no physician willing to serve as director.

Of the 1,075 incorporated cities and towns in Texas, 594 are not covered for the same reason, he said.

Ross cited the example of a county in West Texas which for years has had no physician living inside its boundaries. A physician regularly travels into the county, but under state law, couldn't be the health director, he said.

Short said the hearing was the first of several to be held around the state to get input on the legislative proposals.

Truckload Of Aliens Captured

EL PASO (UPI) — A 29-year-old Big Spring man was arraigned today for allegedly attempting to smuggle 79 illegal Mexican aliens into the United States during the weekend for a $40,000 fee.

Arraigned on eight felony counts of transporting illegal aliens was Thomas Kirkpatrick, a spokesman in U.S. Magistrate Harry Lee Hudspeth's office said.

Kirkpatrick, driver of a leased semi-trailer grain truck, was arrested Saturday after U.S. Border Patrol officers at an Interstate 10 checkpoint near Sierra Blanca inspected a trailer he was pulling.

According to Border Patrol spokesmen, Kirkpatrick was involved in a scheme to transport the aliens from El Paso to Chicago and had charged each alien $500.

The aliens involved were from "all over" Mexico, a Border Patrol officer said, adding the apprehension represented the biggest alien smuggling bust "in terms of dollars" in the El Paso office's history.

Arrangements for the illegal trip were made in Juarez, the Border Patrol said, and resulted in the aliens traveling south about 20 miles along the Rio Grande boundary to a point where the group crossed into the U.S. late Friday.

Kirkpatrick was the lone occupant in the truck's cab as it approached the eastbound checkpoint near Sierra Blanca, authorities said.

Border Patrol officers asked to inspect the trailer of the grain hauler and found five juvenile females, 13 juvenile males, 10 women and 51 men packed inside the trailer, along with provisions for the trip.

The aliens were transported Saturday to the Border Patrol's detention facility in El Paso.

paramedics can work with this kind of a schedule change.

If the board of managers votes to approve the base run charge increase, the matter will have to go before the Lubbock City Council for approval. In addition to approving the rate increase, hospital district officials are still hoping the city can provide some financial help.

Committee chairman Don McInturff asked if Elliott had studied the possibility of running transfers in addition to emergency service. The transfer service, currently provided by private ambulance firms in the city, is usually more lucrative than emergency service.

EMS has been doing some transfers for about a month now, Elliott said, many from the airport and others from physicians' offices.

"But we haven't actively sought that," Elliott said.

Elliott praised the EMS operation and its employees, many of whom have been with the operation since its start in 1975. He said he would continue to keep board members informed of the situation.

"I think you've got a good system and you need to keep it up," Elliott stressed.

Local Station Delays Controversial Film

lon he could show the movie in a later time slot, the general manager said.

DeTournillon said he does not believe that those viewers who opposed showing of the film are in the minority. "They are the normal silent majority."

But he added that he believes those people "are misinformed about the content of the program" and that they have "misconstrued" the movie with the book.

DeTournillon said last week that the movie was "tremendous" and that the incestuous subplot has drawn more concern than is warranted.

He said today he had received two phone calls "thanking me for putting it on at 10:30."

The president of the local conservative Eagle Forum, Skeet Workman, who attended a screening of the controversial drama, said today she was happy that the airing of the movie was delayed.

"I'm glad," said Mrs. Workman. "That's (10:30 p.m.) after the children have gone to bed. My first preference was that they not show it at all. But I appreciate the fact that they showed it after prime time."

British Say Talks Will Continue

LONDON (AP) — Britain announced today it will go ahead with separate independence talks with Zimbabwe Rhodesia's black Prime Minister Bishop Abel Muzorewa after guerrilla chiefs again rejected the proposed independence constitution.

The dramatic turn in the peace talks opens the way for British recognition of its war-torn rebel colony.

The announcement followed an icy 45-minute session between British Foreign Secretary Lord Carrington, conference chairman, and Patriotic Front coleaders Robert Mugabe and Joshua Nkomo.

Given three deadlines over the past week to accept Britain's proposed constitution for an independent Zimbabwe, the guerrilla leaders told Carrington they will not drop their objections.

Mugabe and Nkomo walked rapidly from the meeting, simply telling reporters there was "no progress." The Front has been demanding integration of their guerrilla fighters into the army, among other things.

Within minutes, the Foreign Office issued a statement announcing that talks would begin Tuesday with Muzorewa on implementing the constitution which the country's first black prime minister agreed to 10 days ago.

"It will be open to the Patriotic Front to join in these discussions if they, too, let the chairman know that they accept the constitution," a Foreign Office spokesman said.

"We very much hope the Patriotic Front will agree to participate."

Muzorewa, who has been hoping for just such a development, was conferring at his London hotel with the country's supreme military commander, Lt. Gen. Peter Walls.

Walls' arrival underlined Muzorewa's impatience to move to discussing implementing the British draft constitution. Walls is adamant that the current mainly black, but white-led security forces should not be dismantled or integrated with guerrillas during a run-up to fresh elections before British-granted independence.

Convicted Slayers Lose Appeals

The justices refused to hear three separate appeals that raised a variety of constitutional issues. Each conviction and death sentence previously had been upheld by Texas courts.

The Supreme Court in 1976 ruled that Texas' capital punishment law is constitutional, as applied to convicted murderers.

The appeals turned down today included those from:

—Bobby McCormick and Billy McMahon, convicted in the June 19, 1976, contract murder of Earl Hammond, who was shot to death at his Center home.

—Harvey Earvin, sentenced to die for the Dec. 7, 1976, shotgun slaying of service station attendant Ertis Brock in Lufkin.

—Edward Corley, convicted of the rape and murder of Vicki Lynn Morris in Tyler on Sept. 14, 1974.

The court also refused to become involved in one of the largest and potentially most expensive sex discrimination lawsuits ever filed.

The justices left intact an order forcing Western Electric Co., a wholly owned subsidiary of American Telephone & Telegraph Co., to pay virtually all costs in what may be more than 2,000 separate trials to determine damages.

A federal trial judge ruled last year that Western Electric has systematically discriminated against women at its Kearny, N.J., plant.

The original lawsuit was filed in 1973 by Cleo Kyriazi, now 47, who worked from 1965 to 1971 as an industrial engineer at the Kearny plant.

Her suit was later certified as a "class action," and more than 2,000 other women have joined her to charge Western Electric with illegal sex bias. It is possible more women — those discriminated against in their jobs or those refused employment at the Kearny plant — also will join the suit.

In other action today, the high court:

—Granted a hearing to two men convicted of shipping obscene films through the mails. Their appeal charges that the FBI was required to get a search warrant to accept the films from a company that received them by mistake.

—Left intact an appeals court ruling that outlaws new methods adopted by banks, credit unions and savings and loan associations for handling savers' transactions, such as automatic transfers of money from savings to checking accounts.

—Agreed to decide whether federal courts, when invalidating a state court's challenged judicial act, may order that court to pay the winning side's legal fees.

—Refused to exempt a Cherokee Indian woman frm paying federal income tax on proceeds from her motel on a North Carolina Indian reservation and rent on craft shops she owns in Cherokee, N.C.

Troops Remove Israeli Citizens

JERICHO, Occupied West Bank (AP) — Israeli troops have begun to evict about 2,000 militant Jewish nationalists who set up 31 temporary camps overnight on the occupied West Bank.

A spokesman for the settlers said they would go peacefully. Army helicopters flew over the camps, asking the people to leave quietly. Radio Israel said 10 camps were evacuated by mid-morning.

"This is just the first of many actions we will take," said a spokesman for the ultra-nationalist Gush Emunim, or Bloc of the Faithful, which organized the operation after Prime Minister Menachem Begin's government rejected their demand that Israel seize Arab-owned lands on the West Bank of the Jordan River for Jewish settlement.

The settlers slipped out of existing West Bank settlements during the night to build "footholds" in virtually every corner of the captured territory where the Palestinian residents are to be given home rule next year.

Elyakim Haetzni, a Gush Emunim spokesman, said the purpose was to press demands for the government to increase the area of Jewish settlements from about 4,000 acres to as much as 50,000 acres within the next six months.

The action followed a Cabinet decision Sunday to allocate about 1,000 acres of West Bank land not owned by anyone to five existing settlements and to build a new Jewish town south of Jerusalem that would be inhabited in part by Jews from New York City. However, the Cabinet unanimously rejected settlers' demands that it seize private Arab property for Jewish enclaves.

Working by car headlights and flashlights, about 80 squatters raised the Israeli flag and slapped together a tin hut and makeshift tents about half a mile outside the ancient West Bank town of Jericho, 14 miles northeast of Jerusalem and the site of Joshua's defeat of the Canaanites.

Women and children from the existing settlement of Mitzpeh Jericho nearby joined the men in pounding stakes into the rocky ground.

The wildcat settlement network was coordinated by Gush Emunim, which wants Israel to annex the West Bank and the Gaza Strip, captured from Jordan in the 1967 Arab-Israeli War, and opposes the Egyptian-Israeli plan to give home rule to the areas' 1.1 million Palestinians.

"The autonomy is starting in six months. It is clear that no settlements will be established once that happens and we want the government to take action now," said settler Eli Greenwald.

Gush Emunim believes that only a large Jewish population on the West Bank will prevent the Palestinians from setting up an independent state after they get autonomous home rule. But Israel's existing network of 52 West Bank settlements inhabited by 12,000 Jews has drawn sharp international criticism. The United States says the settlements violate international law and are obstacles to the Mideast peace process.

In another development, a delegation of seven black American civil rights and labor leaders arrived in Israel Sunday for meetings with Begin and other leaders. The blacks endorsed U.S. guarantees for Israel's security and condemned the Palestine Liberation Organization.

The visit was a counterweight to recent support for the PLO from such black leaders as the Rev. Jesse Jackson and the Rev. Joseph Lowery, chief of the Southern Christian Leadership Conference. The pro-PLO campaign stemmed from the resignation of Andrew Young, the American ambassador to the United Nations, who was forced to quit in August because he held an unauthorized meeting with a PLO official.

South Plains Readings Still High

A-J News Services

Warm rain fell over parts of the South Plains Sunday night to end a cloudy and cool October Sunday.

However, rainfall amounts were generally light, and sunny skies are forecast for today and Tuesday as area cotton crops near peak maturity and farmers pray for the first freeze to hold until after the first week in November.

There was no chance of a freeze this morning as Lubbock had a balmy overnight low temperature of 64 degrees.

Area rain reports included .22 of an inch at Tulia, .20 at Big Spring, .15 and pea-size hail at Friona, .09 at Snyder and .02 at Dimmitt.

Traces of rain fell at Crosbyton, Lockettville, Morton, Olton and Tahoka. Some light showers were reported in parts of Lubbock, but none fell at the weather station at Lubbock International Airport.

Temperatures will be in the mid-80s today and low 80s Tuesday, weathermen predict.

The low tonight should be in the low 50s.

The late-planted cotton crop of 1979 will be safe at least through the middle of next week if the warm weather holds through this week and the extended forecast released today by the National Weather Service holds true.

Weathermen say West Texas will have above normal temperatures and no precipitation Saturday, Oct. 20, through Wednesday, Oct. 24.

Warm, moist air covered the central and eastern parts of Texas today with some low cloudiness reported from Central Texas northward into Dallas-Fort Worth.

Heavy thunderstorms raked sparsely populated areas of West Texas today and rain fell over much of the Southern Plains.

Pecos was pelted with golfball-size hail late Sunday and a severe thunderstorm moving through the Midland-Odessa area produced 54 mph winds early today.

Less intense showers were scattered over parts of Colorado and New Mexico. More rain fell in the northern Rockies and in the northern and central Pacific Coast. Light showers dampened parts of the Upper Midwest and Great Lakes region.

DePauw Wanted On Charge Of Unlawful Flight

By JACK DOUGLAS
Avalanche-Journal Staff

Joseph Michael DePauw, charged with the murder of a Lubbock businessman, is now wanted on a federal charge of unlawful flight to avoid prosecution after allegedly kidnapping a man near Amarillo and forcing him to drive to San Jose, Calif., according to the FBI.

The 28-year-old suspect, wanted by police here for the murder of sign company owner Oland Kenneth Anderson, became a target for federal agents Sunday when a warrant for his arrest was issued from Lubbock's FBI office.

"It's slightly unusual for a warrant to be issued on a Sunday," an FBI agent in the San Jose area said. "But he's very badly wanted."

San Jose police indicated they believe a 21-year-old Dallas accounting clerk, who told them Friday night that he picked up a hitchhiker — suspected to be DePauw — near Amarillo, and was later forced at gunpoint to drive his passenger to San Jose, which turned out to be a five-state, five-day journey.

Cary D. Olsen, an accounting clerk with the Market Center Holiday Inn in Dallas, told California police his passenger in Albuquerque, N.M., displayed a revolver and said, "I'm going to San Jose and so are you." Once in Santa Monica, Calif., the hitchhiker reportedly told Olsen, "I'm a murderer."

Olsen could not be reached today for comment. A fellow employee told The Avalanche-Journal Olsen was last seen at work last week. He was scheduled to work today, "but he went on this unexpected trip," she said.

An FBI agent said Olsen was thought to be en route to Dallas today. "I don't know what Cary was doing in Amarillo," the employee said. "The papers say he's suppose to be back en route to Dallas, but we haven't heard anything."

Bill Gergurich, area commander for the San Jose police, said today DePauw was still at large in the city. A police spokesman said the suspect has a brother and a former girlfriend living in the city of about 600,000, but that neither had seen him.

Olsen told police he attempted several times to escape from his abductor before the passenger asked to be let out of the car Friday in San Jose.

"We stopped for gas at least a dozen times," Olsen said in an interview with a California newspaper. I wrote 'help' on my credit card several times. He thought I was just writing my signature.

"But none of the station attendants apparently realized what was happening."

Olsen said his abductor kept his weapon in his waistband most of the time, "but he pulled it out several times to remind me he had it."

Olsen, who described the man as a "weirdo," said they traveled for five days, but ate only four times.

The victim told police he managed to escape his abductor in Las Vegas, Nev., but that he accidentally locked his keys in his car trunk and was discovered by the kidnapper moments later.

Olsen said he tried to escape a second time on a beach when both men were out of the car. "He had me pull right onto the sand at a beach," Olsen said. "It was 10 miles from anybody. I jumped into the car and tried to get away, but the car got stuck in the sand."

The man added, "DePauw kept drinking beer all the time. Constantly. He would go through a 12-pack in a couple of hours, then stop and get more and keep on drinking."

Olsen described his kidnapper as about 5-feet-10 inches tall, with brown hair and the letter D tattooed on his right arm.

The man had a tattoo of the devil on his left leg, according to Olsen. He had a beard and "looks a lot like Charles Manson," he said.

DePauw was charged with Anderson's murder Oct. 8. The elderly victim, owner of Neon Speciality Co. at 2402 Ave. J, was found sprawled in a pool of blood inside his business Oct. 5 by his brother and an employee.

An autopsy revealed Anderson died from a crushed skull caused by a blow to the side of the head with a blunt instrument.

Carter Says American Family In Trouble

KANSAS CITY, Mo. (AP) — Quoting the pope and praising Roman Catholic charity workers, President Carter today declared the American family "in trouble" and said he is taking steps to help it.

In remarks prepared for the National Conference of Catholic Charities, Carter announced he is forming a new "Office for Families" within the Department of Health, Education and Welfare.

He said he also is ordering the government to cooperate with the objectives of a planned "White House Conference on Families," which he said will be held in three separate segments next summer in Baltimore, Minneapolis and Los Angeles.

Carter repeatedly quoted Pope John Paul II and said his recent meeting with the pope "was one of the great privileges of my presidency."

He said he shared the pontiff's concern for the family. "Today, what Pope John Paul called 'the first and essential cell of human society' is in trouble," Carter said.

"Many families have been strained to the breaking point by social and economic forces beyond their control. Some indeed have been broken. The tragic results are all around us — in alcoholism, in drug abuse, in social alienation."

The president praised the efforts of Catholic Charities, saying that without such voluntary action "we would live in a society without a soul."

Carter said the new families office will be the first of its kind, and "will provide the focal point for the development of federal policies and programs affecting families."

Dealer Told To Stop Tampering

By KAY BELL
Avalanche-Journal Staff

An agreed temporary injunction was entered this morning by 140th District Court Judge William Shaver against a Lubbock automobile dealer accused of rolling back the odometers on used cars.

This morning's order prohibits W.D. "Buddy" Ball, president of Buddy Ball Auto Sales Inc., from altering used car odometers, certifying any altered odometer readings as correct and demands that all odometer mileage statements be filled out "completely and accurately" and provided to purchasers.

The State Attorney General's office has accused Ball, either personally or in his capacity as owner of the 4320 Ave. Q business, of being responsible for employees who reset odometers on used vehicles to reflect less mileage.

Shaver last week issued a temporary restraining order against Ball and a hearing was to be held on the injunction sought by the state this morning. However, Assistant Attorney General Roy Smithers and Ball's attorney, George L. Thompson, reached the agreed injunction limitations and the hearing was cancelled.

Shaver notes in the order that the injunction will remain in effect until further court orders or until a hearing on the case. But no hearing date was set this morning.

The injunction also states that although Ball has agreed to the temporary injunction, his agreement to the order does not constitute an admission to the state's charges, filed under the Consumer Protection Act.

State officials allege that as part of Ball's business, he buys, reconditions and resells used automobiles, a large number of the vehicles being purchased in California and then transported to Texas.

However, in the course of business, according to the attorney general's petition, Ball or employees who are his responsibility have turned back the odometers on the vehicles before their resale. The state further charges Ball with certifying the falsified odometer readings as correct and presenting purchasers with incorrect odometer mileage statements.

Documents in Ball's possession indicating such activity, the state alleges, date back to Jan. 1, 1976, and state officials ask in their petition that Ball be ordered to present the documents to the court.

Fidel Castro Flies Home After Short U.N. Visit

NEW YORK (UPI) — A reclusive Cuban President Fidel Castro pulled a surprise departure from the United States Sunday, leaving from an isolated runway under cover of darkness amid tight security to return to Havana.

Thanks to extraordinary security precautions — including the services of thousands of New York police on overtime, machine gun-toting Secret Service agents and some 200 Cuban agents armed with bazookas — his visit was peaceful.

Attempting to portray himself as the spokesman for the world's 92 nonaligned nations in his speech to the United Nations last Friday, Castro did not directly attack U.S. policy — until the eve of his departure.

Then at the last of a series of receptions late Saturday, he reportedly told news industry executives he was "quite disillusioned" with President Carter's handling of the Soviet troop presence in Cuba — a force he contends has been stationed there since the early 1960s.

Michael O'Neill, editor and executive vice president of the New York News, who was at the dinner, said Castro was very animated, talking and answering questions for more than three hours. Dinner was late as Castro discussed his sister, Juanita, who led demonstrations against him, and how his mother and grandmother used to pray for him because he was a socialist.

Burial will be in Gaines County Memorial Cemetery under direction of Singleton Funeral Home.

Williams died at 9:55 a.m. Sunday in Memorial Hospital after a short illness.

The Paducah native had lived in Seminole 34 years and retired from Phillips Petroleum Company in 1972. He was married to Ruby Johnson on Nov. 21, 1978.

Williams was a Baptist and a member of Senior Citizens.

Survivors include his wife; a daughter, Katrena Neagle of Midland; three sisters, Marie Edgleston of Hemphill, Pauline McGee of Lamesa and Lois Miers of Ventura, Calif.; four brothers, J.T. and Otho, both of Hobbs, N.M., and Elvis and E.F., both of Seminole; and two grandchildren.

Funeral Services Set For Drowning Victim

Services for Don Mitchell, 34, of 1304 65th St. will be at 2 p.m. Tuesday in the Franklin-Bartley Chapel with the Rev. David Stokes, pastor of Victory Baptist Church, officiating.

Burial will be in Peaceful Gardens Memorial Park under the direction of Franklin-Bartley Funeral Home.

Mitchell drowned early Sunday after he apparently lost his balance and fell out of a small fishing boat in a man-made playa lake about one mile northeast of Lubbock International Airport.

Idalou Justice of the Peace Earl Yarbrough ruled the death accidental.

James Geddes, a Rescue and Recovery diver, pulled Mitchell's body from about 20 feet of water at 12:55 a.m. Lubbock County sheriff's deputies were notified of the incident at 12:17 a.m.

Sheriff's deputies said that Mitchell and two of his friends, Melvin Leroy Haggard and Ronald W. Currin, had been setting fishing lines.

Reports show that Mitchell got into a small fishing boat by himself and that Haggard yelled at Mitchell to come back to shore because the boat leaked. Apparently, reports indicate, Mitchell began rowing and trying to turn the boat around toward shore when he lost his balance and fell out of the boat.

Haggard and Currin dived in after Mitchell but were unsuccessful in finding him and notified authorities.

He was a Lubbock native and was a member of the 25th Street Baptist Church.

He was married to Bernice Sutton Aug. 10, 1965, in Lubbock.

Survivors include his wife; a son, David of the home; two daughters, Cassandra and Tammie, both of the home; his father, Everette Mitchell of Lubbock; six brothers, Bennie of Russellville, Ark., Clyde of Summerset, Mass., Frank of Lubbock, Darmon of Mineral Wells, Glenn of Grants, N.M. and Loyd of Fort Sill, Okla.; and three sisters, Martelle Holt of Mesa, Ariz., Catherine O'Nell of Fort Worth and Ann Wright of Lubbock.

Jury Selection Starts In Trial

Jury selection began this morning in 137th District Court in the murder trial of Ruben Ramos, 17, of 1829 E. Brown St.

Ramos is accused of the shooting death of 23-year-old Curtis Lee Pegues. Pegues was shot five times at Chocolate City Pool Hall, 308 Idalou Highway, the night of April 14.

In August, the pool hall was one of 12 city night spots closed down by sheriff's deputies and the criminal district attorney's office because of what authorities termed "excessive violence."

Maker Of Nuclear Power Reactor Seeks Improved Coal Burner

By EDWARD ROBY

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Babcock & Wilcox, the firm that made the stricken Three Mile Island nuclear power reactor, may yet endear itself to environmentalists for a coal combustion technology that eliminates the notorious "acid rain" phenomenon.

The firm, which stepped up its research on fluidized bed coal combustion in 1975, nosed out three competitors this month in winning a $35 million pilot plant contract from the Tennessee Valley Authority.

The fledgling fluidized bed boiler technology could eventually permit electric utilities and manufacturing plants to produce steam from high sulfur coal without fouling the atmosphere with oxides of nitrogen and sulfur.

Sulfur dioxide and nitrogen oxides belched into the atmosphere from utility and factory stacks in the Ohio Valley has been blamed for killing the fish in wilderness lakes in New York's Adirondack Mountains.

Swept eastward by prevailing winds, the stack gases combine with water vapor to form dilute nitric and sulfuric acid that rains down on the nearest mountain range, environmentalists theorize.

Although anti-pollution devices called scrubbers can remove sulfur dioxide from stack gases, nitrogen oxide would still escape from conventional utility and factory boilers that burn pulverized coal at high temperatures.

The fluidizided bed combustion concept could eliminate the need for scrubbers because coal is burned in beds of churning limestone particles that absorb the sulfur.

And combustion takes place at temperatures of 1,500 to 1,600 degrees Farenheit, just half as hot as normal boilers and 500 degrees too cool for nitrogen oxides to form.

Although fluidized bed combustion solves two of the three big pollution problems in coal combustion, the third — formation of coal dust particles — becomes more acute, said Richard Gentile, a spokesman for Babcock & Wilcox.

Crime Line Provides Second Murder Suspect

A call to Crime Line last week resulted in the arrest and indictment of a suspect in a recent murder at the El Tropical Club, the second murder in which a suspect has been provided through Crime Line, according to Lubbock Police Sgt. Doyle Nelson.

The $1,000 paid to the informant in the murder case has upped the total rewards paid out to more than $8,000 in the 77 felonies that have been cleared through the program, said Mayor Dirk West.

Crime Line is funded totally by private donations. Persons wishing to make donations should mail them to Box 2000, Lubbock. Persons with information pertaining to a crime should call the Crime Line number, 741-1000.

This week, Crime Line is offering rewards totaling $1,800 for information on an aggravated rape, a murder fugitive and three burglaries.

Crime Line is offering $500 to anyone knowing about the rape of a South Lubbock woman that occurred Oct. 3 at at about 3:45 p.m. The woman said she left her apartment door slightly open to check her mail, and when she returned to her kitchen, a man grabbed her from behind and told her, "Don't make any noise and I won't hurt you."

The woman said she was dragged to the floor behind her couch, gagged and raped.

She said her assailant is described as a white male, between 26 and 35 years of age, about 5-foot-11 with blond hair and blue eyes. She said he was wearing a light blue knit shirt, faded blue jeans and drabby black shoes.

And $300 is offered to anyone knowing the whereabouts of Joseph Michael DePauw, address unknown, who has been charged with the Oct. 5 murder of Lubbock businessman Oland Kenneth Anderson.

Police describe DePauw as a white male, age 28, with brown shoulder-length hair. He is 6 feet tall and weighs about 160 lbs. A warrant for his arrest has been issued.

Crime Line has listed rewards of $300 each for information in three recent burglaries. In the first, which occurred Oct. 8 at a house at 27th Street, when someone entered and took more than $1,450 worth of property.

Entry was gained through a bathroom window. Taken were: an RCA XL100 19" color TV, model no. FA445W, serial no. G23421887; a J.C. Penney stereo receiver, model 6838225, serial no. 6833223; a J.C. Penney turntable, serial 6833330; two J.C. Penney speakers, 20" tall, brown walnut, serial no. 6836501; a J.C. Penney eight-track tape player; several ladies' rings and gold neck chains, and $50 cash.

The second burglary occurred Oct. 11 at 3 a.m. at 2223 51st., rear. The burglar removed a screen from a window and lifted the window to gain entrance, and took a 10-speed Kokosi bicycle with a blue frame and a black tape handle bar and black seat. The bike was valued at $150.

Police said there have been several similar burglaries in this neighborhood and believe they may be connected. Persons with information are eligible for a $300 reward for calling Crime Line.

In the third burglary, which also carries a reward of $300 for persons providing information to Crime Line, police said an apartment at 2010 Ninth St. was broken into while its occupants were attending the Texas Tech-Texas A&M football game Oct. 6.

Taken in the burglary were: a Audio Reflex Model EQ-1 equalizer; a rent check for $125 from Debbie & Shelley Young; a Marantz receiver; a Sony reel to rell tape deck; two BIC Formula Six speakers; a Pioneer turntable; a homemade clock with wood face; a 19" Curtis Mathes color TV, serial no. 148545-007; a set of gold cufflinks; two men's Seiko watches; and several albums and music reels. Total value of the property is estimated at $4,195.

Persons with information concerning any of these crimes are urged to call Crime Line. All callers will remain anonymous. Rewards will be paid if the information received in the call leads to the solution of the crime.

City Woman Charged In Stabbing

By ESTHER LONGORIA
Avalanche-Journal Staff

A nine months pregnant Lubbock woman Sunday was charged with voluntary manslaughter and released on a $5,000 personal recognizance bond in connection with the stabbing death of Johnnie Louise Essix, 30, of 2020 Fifth St., Apt. 32.

Named in the charge was Erma Jean Ward, 25, of 1918 Ninth St., Apt. 10. The criminal district attorney's office recommended the $5,000 temporary bond.

The DA's office also recommended a $2,500 material witness bond for a 33-year-old Lubbock man.

Reports show the manager of an apartment complex at 1918 Ninth St. summoned police about a fight in progress at Apartment 10 about 2:10 p.m. When police arrived at the apartment, they found the body of Miss Essix lying in the middle of the living room floor. She had suffered a deep stab wound above her left breast.

Justice of the Peace Charles Smith ruled the death a homicide—the city's 27th for the year—and ordered an autopsy to be performed at St. Mary's Hospital.

The suspect and the 33-year-old Lubbock man were taken into police custody at the scene. Police also recovered a kitchen butcher knife.

Police said that the incident apparently stemmed from an argument the two women were having over their mutual boyfriend. Miss Essix reportedly went over to the Ninth Street apartment where she and the suspect got into an argument. Reports show the two women then began scuffling, and that Miss Essix was stabbed during the fight.

The 33-year-old man told police that he was in a back room of the apartment when he heard the women fighting, came out and saw Miss Essix fall to the floor in the struggle.

Wallace Given Death Penalty

EL PASO (AP) — David Leon Wallace heard a jury foreman recommend Sunday that he die by lethal injection.

Wallace was convicted of capital murder Friday in the Dec. 23, 1978, shooting death of flamboyant defense attorney Lee Chagra. The shooting took place in Chagra's fortress-like law office complex, where sophisticated electronic surveillance equipment had been installed.

Attorneys for the 20-year-old former soldier said they would appeal.

As Wallace left the courtroom, he shouted to trailing cameramen that he wanted the world to know that he didn't pull the trigger of the gun that killed Chagra.

DOWNTOWN SOUTHERN SEA IMPRESSIVE IN FOOD, CONVENIENCE, DECOR

Southern Sea's Expanded Menu Lauded For Goodness, Economy

"Thanks for the reception to our expanded menu at Southern Sea, at 10th & Q and at Loop 289-South Indiana!"

"You, too, should join the ranks of those who find the delicious dinners (and all at modest prices) just what they have been wanting."

The Seafeast is one of these combinations that has proved most popular. Consisting of two cornmeal rolled fillets, two pieces of batter-fried fish, two butterfly shrimp, one fried oyster, coleslaw and two hot puffs, it is quite a meal at just $3.95.

Chicken fried steak (USDA choice) with Southern Sea's own delicious gravy, French fries, coleslaw, two hot puffs, this is an economical $2.86.

The Combination Dinner, at $2.99, includes two pieces of dark meat chicken, two pieces Southern Style fish with French fries, coleslaw and two hot puffs.

"Doesn't all this sound good? It is!"

A la Carte, Also

And there are a la carte orders making it fun to fashion one's own lunch or dinner from Southern Sea's wide selection of chicken, fish and seafood. Whether one prefers shrimpies, clams, butterfly shrimp, oysters, chicken bits, chicken fried steak or the many other selections from the menu, Southern Sea affords a meal to enjoy.

Child's plates are available, too.

Catering

(For full catering details, call Danny Waller, catering manager, at (806) 799-2099.)

Under a carefully planned and executed customer-consideration program by owners Bob and Priscilla Sims, Southern Sea has greatly increased in region-wide popularity since its establishment at the Indiana location back in 1976.

"Once you eat with Southern Sea, you will discover the reason for this acceptance; you'll discover why your friends and neighbors probably already are eating at Southern Sea!"

"May we serve you, too?"

Fireplaces By Artistic Design Offers Multiple Products, Unique Services

A visit to Fireplaces by Artistic Design, Town South, at 3402 73rd St., can be a revelation!

Three immediately-noted factors could be singled out as reasons for this eye-opening discovery:

(1) The firm has so much more than fireplaces alone. Check further in this report for items contributing to the "total decor concept" that is basis of the operation and stock. Even a "total energy package" is afforded.

(2) Display of merchandise is most unique — and convenient for the customer — with the several room arrangements, with wall dividers making for ease in viewing and selection.

(3) The friendliness and capabilities of the folks at Fireplaces by Artistic Design make you feel immediately at home. From the time that one is greeted upon entry to the attractive store, traditional West Texas friendliness and sincere interest is recognized and appreciated. The coffee pot is always on!

More about the product and service selection . . . with only a brief outline presented here. One simply must come to this unique and recently established Lubbock store, just off the Loop 289-South Indiana intersection, to discover the scope of products and services:

Custom Construction

There are fireplaces, and fireplaces, and fireplaces! By such respected names as Majstic, Fisher and Malm. There are modern, contemporary and antique units!

Let Larry Morris and wife, Bonnie, owners of Fireplaces by Artistic Design, personally design a fireplace for your home! They are most adept in planning and custom building, even providing estimates right in the home. (Usually, installation of a custom unit is only about a three-day operation.) Fireplaces by Artistic Design stands behind all its installations.

And there are storm windows and doors in the firm's offerings within its total energy package, part or all available including installation.

Select from decor items prominently displayed within the store, including original oils and prints.

Antiques

Browse and note the gorgeous antiques, including sideboards, breakfronts and others . . . all out-of-the-ordinary. (Note the lamps that include both copper and brass fire extinguisher utilization.)

Ceiling Fans

On and on the list of "goodies" could go, including Fisher wood stoves, inserts for fireplaces, heater grates, scented candles, custom made game tables (to the customer's design), five lines of ceiling fans, with prices from $180 to $500, and still other items.

It is a surprising store!

Larry Morris marks eight years of experience in the fireplace and decor field in Lubbock, and he is ably assisted by his wife, a lifelong Lubbock resident, in operation of the unique south Lubbock firm opened in August.

"This winter . . . and seasons to come . . . can be more fun after selection at Fireplaces by Artistic Design, a most unique establishment!

Everything in women's apparel, with exception of shoes, that is the envied and appreciated situation at Wanda's Holiday of Fashions, at 4523 50th St., in Sunshine Square.

Wanda's Holiday of Fashions was opened in April of this year by Wanda Reeves who for 18 years had a well-known dress shop in Clovis (N.M.).

Since the attractive store's opening, customers have found that a very, very good selection of junior and missy sizes is provided, with the working girl and housewife especially considered. A medium price line is featured to assure quality without exorbitant price.

SPACIOUS NEW HOME BEING OCCUPIED BY LUBBOCK CASH REGISTER

Lubbock Cash Register Introducing New Home With 'Old Dogs' Sale Event

Lubbock Cash Register Co. has a new home!

Serving for years at 3033 34th St., Lubbock Cash Register has completed move-in at big 2832 34th St. facilities just two blocks east (and on the north side) on 34th Street.

Record of growth and service of Lubbock Cash Register has been most enviable, and owner Max Christopher emphasizes that this latest achievement and milestone has been made possible by the appreciated list of customers throughout the region.

The new quarters are much larger than former facilities, with the showroom dsply area alone comprising some 3,200 square feet. Add to this the large service area, the ample and convenient off-street parking, and the still-advantageous 34th Street area location . . . and there you have Lubbock Cash Register with its expanded stock but same fine lines and a staff on which to depend.

Specific Savings

To introduce the new home, another significant announcement is made:

This limited-time "old Dogs" sale means that Lubbock Cash Register will allow $350 trade-in on any "old dog" register, in working condition or not, when traded in on the great Sweda 2620 electronic register. Thus this regular $1,495 register is available now for $350 less when "the old junker in the back room" is traded in!

"You know and I know that the reality is that the time of the mechanical register has passed. Parts are hard to get and are expensive. We want to get you into a new electronic register, and we believe the current 'Old Dog' offer will be a great assist in your transition."

Full Line

(2) Lubbock Cash Register has the entire family of Sweda L-25 electronic cash registers available in stock, with a spread from 3-department to 40-department capabilities, and in a sensible price range of $995 to $1,595.

"So, whatever size your operation, there is a Sweda L-25 model seemingly built exactly for you . . . and stocked at Lubbock Cash Register, now at 2832 34th St., phone (806) 792-2885.

"Lubbock Cash Register wants to be your electronic systems dealer and consultant, and we give service accordingly."

The 2610 is for you if you don't need a lot of department breakdowns for your merchandise, yet you don't want to skimp on quality. This model gives you the kind of management control, sophisticated functionality and smooth operation that once demanded a premium price.

The 2615 is for small to medium-sized retail operations, with as many as eight departments. From the number of departments to the type of validation to the style of the customer display, the 2615 can be custom-tailored to you and your store.

The 2630 eletronic cash register stores a lot of sales figures and gives you a lot of the help you need to improve those figures at the front end . . . with food stamp and coupon handling . . . and a scale function, and price look-ups for your fast-changing prices.

The 2640 gives you "push botton" speed, and helps you monitor important operations. Even if your store's or restaurant's functional needs change, as example, the 2640 with range of programmable options goes right along!

"May we show you how one of these great Sweda L-25 models can work for you? Please call upon us at Lubbock Cash Register, 2832 34th St.? (We want you to see our new home, too, and how all operations and facilities are geared to your service.)

Montgomery Ward Beauty Salon Staff Specialists In Perm Styles, Methods

"Perming has come a long way from the days when hair was curled by heat!"

"Perm styles can be just as individual as hair cuts, and the perm specialists at the Montgomery Ward Beauty Salon, 50th & Boston, phones 795-8221 and 795-0557, invite one's visit at their salon where you not only find quality but also value."

More about perming:

With the invention of cold wave (more desirable styles and easier on the hair) today the world of chemical processing has gone even further, with the acid waves that give softer natural looking curl.

The amount of curl and the size depends upon the rod size, that depends on the texture of hair to be permed.

Certain styles demand different perm techniques . . . such as piggy back wraps, stack wraps and double wrapping. For long hair, the method we suggest is a wrap giving fullness to the hair. Longer hair requires special attention when perming because of the length, and usually two bottles of solution are required for saturation.

Perming is the most popular chemical processing in the salon since most customers do not have the desired amount of curl for a certain style or the holding power needed to help maintain the set.

Proper care of the perm at home also is essential, especially for the first two weeks.

Curly look perms are often shampooed by customers at home too often. Let us give you hints on proper care.

Pincurls are returning in style, and shorter hair shows the tips or all of the ear.

Special For Week

And this week, the regular $6 conditioning treatment at the Montgomery Ward Beauty Salon is just $3!

There are so many advantages of the Montgomery Ward Beauty Salon . . . such as gift certificates, and the scads of easy parking.

Also, did you realize you could use Ward's Charge-All for beauty services at the salon?"

"We invite you to check further reports and the weekly Monday ads of the Montgomery Ward Beauty Salon on these pages for other helpful hints, of the many services to help one secure the right service at the right price . . . at Montgomery Ward Beauty Salon in Lubbock."

Touch of Class, In Terrace Center, Tells Expansion Plan

There's great news from the Touch of Class in the Terrace Shopping Center, 4902 34th St.:

(1) New lines and new arrivals have been added to the already-outstanding stock; and

(2) So enthusiastic has been the public's response to the Touch of Class, established just over a year ago, that now a second and added location is becoming reality!

Yes, watch for early November target date for opening of a second Touch of Class, this to be located in Oak Tree Village, on 19th Street just west of Methodist Hospital.

No doubt about it, Touch of Class since its founding has stocked profusely and selectively, proving not only to be a "special-occasion bonanza" but also a great source of supply for whatever occasion at hand.

Sometimes the name of a business so correctly conveys its type of operation that one cannot conceive of any other name applying. Such a shop is the Touch of Class!

Accent Jewelry

"Or that a new line of decorator candles and silk candle rings enables great selection in this category?

Unique Picture Farmes

"New style porcelain and brass picture frames have arrived, with designs suitable for men's and children's rooms, too.

All in all, this unique Terrace Shopping Center shop is a "great find" for decor items and quality things wanted for one's own home or office enjoyment, or for gifting, in any season.

There are Hallowe'en party items . . . and 1980 calendars, as example of the in-season considerations at the Touch of Class.

Names to Appreciate

Quality lines are the rule . . . such as Fenton glass, Russell Stover candies, Kamar stuffed animals, Hagan-Renaker miniatures, and more.

The Touch of Class is owned by Gary and Leola Chevalier, with Leola actively operating the attractive shop. A longtime city resident and a South Plains native, Leola has years of experience in the field, and this knowledge is most evident in the selection presented, with customer consideration and customer appreciation foremost.

"For a new experience in pleasant browsing and selecting, we hope to see you soon at Touch of Class in the Terrace Shopping Center, and soon also in the added Oak Tree Village location."

Metro Tower, Downtown, Gives Invite:

'Come Share a Unique Point of View'

The view is strikingly magnificant from Lubbock's 20-story Metro Tower in the heart of downtown!

And even better is the unusual flexibility of floor space for office and suite design that can be customized for the particular needs of the tenant.

"Thrusting upward at 1220 Broadway, Metro Tower has become the dominant address of the area. It can be your address, too! For information regarding leasing in the most beautiful business site in all Lubbock, call or write building Manager, Metro Tower, 1220 Broadway, Lubbock, Tex., 79401, phone (806) 763-4597.

The complete renovation and modernization of the Metro Tower has been one of the key factors in change of the profile of the central downtown Lubbock area in recent years. Formal opening of the building was back in October of 1975. (Formerly known as the Great Plains Building, it was constructed at a cost of more than $3 million in 1955. In 1970 it withstood a tornado blast and under direction of Gaut & Gaut, after determination that the building had sustained no structural damage, it has again become a central sphere of activity, with renovation under the supervision of competent professional engineers and architects.

Modern Throughout

Now, the envied tenant list can enjoy such benefits in the Metro Tower as reflective non-glare glass, an early warning fire safety system, four high-speed elevators (traveling 700 feet per minute), sound-proof office suites and a climate control system on every floor, a law library and a coffee lounge.

Reception to the facility's advantages have been almost beyond all expectations, the owners report. A continuous program of modernization and provision of conveniences is underway. Parking spaces are provided for tenants, as example, for 120 vehicles.

In the heart of Lubbock, Metro Tower is within walking distance of governmental buildings such as the court house, city hall, federal building, post office; the $14 million Lubbock Memorial Civic Center; major financial institutions, law firms, shops, business and professional establishments; restaurants, clubs, motels, etc.

Possibly the best news of all, however, is:

"There's still room for you at the top — in Metro Tower, Lubbock's tallest office building dominating the skyline from all directions. No address is needed when one is located in Metro Tower, a South Plains landmark!"

(One is invited to inquire at the Tower offices or phone 763-4597 for further details about one to three year leases, etc.)

Hearing Aid From Sonotone-Lubbock Could Be Finest Of Christmas Gifts

"In planning ahead for fullest holiday enjoyment by the entire family, in making life richer for someone who might have a hearing problem, have you considered a gift certificate from Sonotone-Lubbock, independent multi-line hearing aid dealer?"

Such thoughtfulness is nothing new with customers of Louise Bills, certified hearing aid audiologist, and with long-time staffmember Ralph Huntington, at Sonotone-Lubbock, 2318 Broadway, phone 762-5469.

As one woman wrote Louise:

"Happiness is wearing a Starkey C.E. It is all you said it was, and then some".

Hundreds Assisted

"Professionalism with a human touch" at Sonotone-Lubbock has earned appreciation of customers throughout the area and throughout the years. Life has literally been made richer for hundreds.

"Can you benefit, too, by availing yourself of these services?"

"Too many people don't realize they have a hearing problem. If you have a hearing problem or even suspect that you may have one, that visit or call you make to Sonotone-Lubbock may be the most important one you will ever make."

Satisfaction Assured

About the Starkey, one of the recommended lines at Sonotone-Lubbock:

"In the past five years, Starkey Labs has become the world's largest manufacturer of all-in-the-ear hearing aids. Their phenomenal growth is due to the proper fit of each custom-ordered aid to the shape of one's ear and particular hearing loss. We are so confident that you will be satisfied that you will receive a full refund within 30 days if you are not completely satisfied."

Ask yourself these questions:

"Do you hear, but don't understand?

"Do you ask people to repeat?

"Do you have difficulty hearing in noisy places?

"Do you hear as well as you think you could or should?"

If these or any other hearing problems apply, then turn to Sonotone-Lubbock, 2318 Broadway, for counsel and advice . . . and the greatest products imaginable.

It is reported that too many of the 15 million hearing-impaired in the nation (which is one out of every 14 people) are hesitant, even fearful, about seeking the hearing health care they need.

"So . . . if you or someone important to you may have a hearing problem, we urge that you call or visit at soonest date with Louise Bills and the folks at Sonotone-Lubbock, independent multi-line hearing aid dealer at 2318 Broadway, phone 762-5469. It can be a greater Christmas ahead!

Nutrients, Additives In Bread Types Outlined In Rainbo Service Message

Rainbo Bread is good bread!

"When you purchase a Rainbo loaf of any type, when you select any or all the products from the Rainbo family of fine bakery items, you can be assured that nothing has been left undone to assure its goodness and nutritional desirability."

There has been much discussion regarding breads, nutrients, pros and cons of whole grain breads, and additives (what's in a loaf of bread and why).

Rainbo is offering this commentary as a public sevice explanation, outlining why whether refined or unrefined flour is used, its bakers believe both white and brown bread offer nutritional benefits, even pointing out that there are good reasons for some additive substances in bread. Findings are from Rainbo's own nutritionists and by others from the American Bakers Association.

"Because we make both white breads and whole grain breads, we feel it important that the public understands the nutritional nature of both.

Obviously, white bread and whole grain breads are not identical. White bread is softer, less dense, less chewy, different in color, has less texture. The nutritional differences are less obvious.

And whether it be enriched white bread or whole grain bread, bread is an essential and inexpensive source of the nutrients needed by our bodies. Both are nutritious.

The fiber in the bran is lost in white breads, but neither white nor whole grain breads are a prime source of fiber. Trace vitamins and minerals found in the bran layers and the wheat germ are not found in white flour. Fortunately, they are widely available in other foods and scientists are aware of no demonstrated shortage of these nutrients.

There are three B vitamins found in whole grains that were deficient in the American diet before enrichment of white bread became common practice. These are niacin, thiamine and riboflavin.

White bread was chosen to be enriched with B vitamins and iron, with calcium and vitamin D as optional ingredients, when during World War II American men were being inducted and many were discovered to be suffering from deficiencies of these three B vitamins as well as D, A, iodine and iron. Vitamin D was later deleted from bread's enrichment formula as milk was enriched with vitamin D. Iodine was added to table salt and now vitamin A is added to margarine.

B vitamins are added to enriched white bread in quantities equavalent to or greater than, the amounts found in whole grain breads. Riboflavin is added in almost double the quantity found in whole grains, thiamine in a substantially greater quiantity.

All breads have much in common . . . chiefly protein and carbohydrate. Wheat protein contains all the essential amino acids, but is low in lysine. Six slices of bread per day provide 20 to 25 per cent of the total required protein intake.

Bread is most, most important in the diet . . . and what better buy is there, after all?

Watch for further discussions from Rainbo, with the importance of additives, explanations of types, etc., outlined. Rainbo wants you to know that goodness and nutrition are the watchwords at our bakeries, whatever the selection from the family of products of which we are extremely proud, products that have been acclaimed by the public with a popularity reflected in every-increasing purchase of Rainbo items at your favorite grocery or supermarket.

Impending Workshops, Classes Afford New Opportunities At Warp 'n Weave

Exciting workshops and classes crowd the calendar at Beck's Warp 'n Weave this fall, and to be sure of participation in one of these opportunities, early arrangement is well advised.

Check now at Warp 'n Weave, 3021 34th St., phone 799-0151; new fun and achievement awaits!

In just a few days (Oct. 27, 28), an Advanced Basketry workshop is slated by Lynn Haney. There will be study of advanced techniques including use of found objects, design and hints on construction with emphasis on sculptured forms.

Instructing this workshop will be Lynn Haney, a working fiber artist specializing in weaving and basketry. Haney has his Masters degree in Art Education from Texas Tech and has taught in the Lubbock Public Schools and in numerous classes and workshops. He has received award from Texas Designer Craftsmen for his basketry, and his work was featured in the Jan.-Feb. '77 Fiberarts Magazine on basketry. Lynn has three large panels of tapestry weaving at Odessa College plus work hanging and in progress for Texas Tech.

This workshop presents a great opportunity for those students who have a general knowledge of basket making.

Rotary Needlepunch

Also drawing much interest is the Needlepunch design with Rotary Needlepunch instruction, on a schedule between Oct. 30 and Nov. 20, with Mark Hammack directing. (See the fantastic rotary needlepunch that was featured in the October Family Circle magazine. It and other supplies are stocked at Warp'n Weave.

In this class, one will be creating from his or her own design rather than from a kit. Beck and Hammack both agree that teaching the student to be self sufficient is of prime value, and the course is designed along these lines. One will learn the basics for "doing your own thing."

Coiled Basketry

Beginning Coiled Basketry instruction begins Oct. 18 (this Thursday) continuing until Nov. 8, with Nancy Beck instructing. Nancy always is a popular instructor, and in this as for other classes, early arrangements are necessary.

Tatting

A Beginning Tatting course begins Oct. 30, taught by Betty Bradford; and this, too, is just a few days away.

Other instruction opportunities are afforded later, including Color Harness Loom in November.

Fees are most reasonable at Beck's Warp 'n Weave, and one should check now for the specific costs involved in each class. One-half of the modest fee reserves a place, with full amount due before class starting.

One is invited to see the work by Mark Hammack hanging at Warp 'n Weave; it is exciting and good!

One must come in to the attractive and "different" 3021 34th Street store to fully comprehend the incredible supply provided in weaving and related fields. Customers from throughout the Southwest have expressed amazement at the shop's large but selective offering.

Discover how Warp 'n Weave has distinct appeal to beginner, advanced weaving enthusiast or for just anyone appreciating beautiful yarns and the other products (and instruction) brought to the area by this Lubbock business.

ACLU Disputes Hasie's Claim

By LISA PAIKOWSKI
Avalanche-Journal Staff

The majority of Lubbock residents want religion in the public schools, says a school board spokesman, but the head of the Lubbock Civil Liberties Union argues that many residents may oppose it, but are afraid to speak out.

Lubbock public school board president Monte Hasie contends the majority of Lubbock residents support the school system's prayer policy and "don't want God left at the door of the school."

"We believe the recognition of a Supreme Being is a part of the majority of our lives. To deny this would be reverse infringement on the majority's rights," he argued in an interview with The Avalanche-Journal.

But Lubbock Civil Liberties Union president Rodric Schoen does not believe the majority of Lubbock citizens support the school board and says that many residents are not speaking out for fear that others "will think they're against religion or something."

Schoen also discounted arguments that religious activities in Lubbock schools are voluntary. "It somehow makes it seem less objectionable" when individuals enegaged in religious activities in the school are said to be doing so voluntarily, he said.

But such activities still are in violation of the law because "with the authority and tacit approval of the board and its employees, they are in fact using the time and facilities of the public instrumentalities for religious activities," the Texas Tech law school professor said.

The Lubbock Civil Liberties Union recently filed suit against the school district, trustees and superintendent.

The civil rights action, filed in U.S. District Court here, states that the Lubbock Independent School District "has established a policy expressly authorizing religious exercises in the local schools" and that such exercises violate the First Amendment and the U.S. Constitution.

The suit challenges both past school district policy and the current policy adopted by the board this spring that states that "insofar as religion is concerned, the Lubbock Independent School District adheres to the principle of freedom of religion as expressed in the Constitution of the United States and the Constitution of the State of Texas."

Hasie adamantly believes the board's policy on religious activity "will pass court scrutiny...because there is no prescribed religious activity. It is student-initiated and directed and there is no favoritism toward any religion."

Schoen, however, said that just because the activities are student-initiated, "it doesn't alter the legal ramifications." Even if the religious activity is not prescribed, he continued, "The school board has the authority to prevent it and is still permitting it. It is done with the approval and sanction of school officials and their employees."

He added that even though no favoritism toward religion is displayed, "the state is not to favor religion per se."

Both Hasie and Schoen say that complete separation of church and state can never be achieved, with Schoen adding that even the Supreme Court has acknowledged that fact.

But, the attorney added, the Supreme Court still has developed a test to determine "if religion is too much involved with the state."

That test is a set of guidelines viewed by the high court as criteria to measure whether objectives of the religion clauses of the First Amendment have been violated. The statute in question must serve a secular purpose, must neither advance nor inhibit religion and must avoid excessive government entanglement with religion.

Hasie noted that several government entities, such as the courts and Congress, begin their activities with a prayer, and added that Congress even has "an official chaplain. The non-religious approach has in fact formed a religion. Madalyn Murray O'Hair has declared atheism a religion."

Schoen called Hasie's contention a "valid point," but said the Supreme Court has not ruled on such activities. "I can't account for that (religious activities of Congress and the courts). But the problem with (prayer in) public schools has been dealt with by the court."

Hasie argued, however, that, "It seems we should investigate the constitutionality of the guaranteed right of freedom of speech of individual students who choose to voluntarily participate in these activities."

That point, Schoen said, was addressed by the court in the 1963 case of Abington School District vs. Schempp. The case argued that individuals interested in such religious activities are being denied the free exercise of religion if they cannot participate in religious activities in school.

But, Schoen said, the argument in the Schempp case "was not accepted because the establishment and free exercise clauses (of the First Amendment) never have been construed to permit any group to commit government instrumentalities for religious beliefs."

He added that, "if every child (in the public schools) approved of the prayers in school, it still would be against the law. The Bill of Rights and then the 14th and 15th Amendments were put into the Constitution to restrain the majority and I think everybody agrees to that."

Schoen said he is not sure the board policy is neutral, as Hasie termed it, "in view of the history of the practices of Lubbock school board. The so-called neutrality remains to be seen."

He said he does not know if the school district had a written policy on religious activities prior to the policy adopted in the spring, but commented, "I think the past policy is very persuasive of what's happening in the current time."

The LCLU president emphasized that the American Civil Liberties Union is not "anti-religious. We have tried to preserve and protect the right of the individual to exercise their beliefs...especially unconventional religious beliefs because they're usually the ones that require it."

Museum Group To Celebrate Anniversary

By GERRY BURTON
Avalanche-Journal Staff

"To preserve the past, record the present and provide perspective for the future."

It was a purpose set forth 50 years ago when a small handful of Lubbock residents, thrilled by a first-hand account of European museums, formed the Plains Museum Association to work toward a Lubbock museum.

A history professor coming to Tech had built a museum for McMurry College; so, they appointed him curator in the British museum manner.

By the time Dr. W. C. Holden arrived, the association had a collection, but it took six months for Holden to locate it. After much searching, he found it in the attic of the then chemistry building — a son-of-a-gun stew pot with a hole in the bottom, a burro packsaddle with the leather gone and a branding iron.

Tuesday, at 7 p.m. in Lubbock Memorial Civic Center, the association, now 1,400 strong, celebrates its 50th birthday. Currently, it has a $202,000 annual budget to support programs of The Museum of Texas Tech University which has many thousands of items in a number of collecting areas.

The original collection grew slowly, but a building in which to put it came even slower.

In 1935, the association changed its name to West Texas Museum Association to include more counties in a try for Texas centennial celebration funds.

With $25,000 acquired after a 67-county march on the reluctant centennial committee in Austin, association members approached Tech leaders for permission to put a museum on the campus.

The location, where Holden Hall is today, was chosen because it was only five feet from the college utility tunnel, a money-saving location.

Quadrangle plans were halved and the top floors left off to fit money to construction costs. The first museum, five feet above and six feet below ground, seemed appropriate for a first home for artifacts from pioneers having their first homes in half-dugouts.

Tarpaper on the roof, which was to be the floor of the next story, cracked and leaked with each rain. Tarpaper roofing was assisted in its demise by a popular student practice of wheeling jalopies around on the museum top and then roaring off down the steps.

Most of West Texas contributed to the "Give a Brick" campaign which raised brick and $50,000 for a museum building fund.

By the 1960s, collections were swelling the inside and Tech expansion was crowding the outside of the West Texas Museum.

The museum on memorial circle, with a Spitz planetarium and Peter Hurd historical mural obtained by the association, was in the way of Tech progress, so regents offered acreage on Fourth and Indiana plus a price for the existing structure.

Association and university joined in a drive for the multi-million dollar complex now on the site.

The university pays staff salaries while the association helps with improvements and aids with programs in its supportive role.

A visitor sees the association touch in traveling exhibits, in the museum's own art collection, and in other things—the allosaurus in the bones exhibit, the Qashqa'i nomadic home scene from Iran, vintage items in the historical costume collection, etc.

This year, typical of past efforts, the association added four paintings and 25 Laura Gilpin photographs to the collection and bought $8,000 in equipment for the planetarium. It also helped convert the balcony to exhibit space.

Continuing efforts over the years, according to association executive secretary Winifred Vigness, includes paying for staff travel to seminars and meetings for professional benefit.

The association, Mrs. Vigness said, furnishes supplies for restoring and maintaining the collections.

"We are holding $50,000 in reserve for a permanent exhibit on the urbanization of the South Plains," she added.

In addition, the association operates a gift shop, an educational adjunct fo the museum featuring the current arts and crafts of various cultures of arid and semi-arid lands.

The association's Women's Council, which will be 20 years old this year, sponsors summer young classes and junior programs.

A medallion, showing the three museum buildings in the 50-year history of the West Texas Museum Association on one side, and the logo of the Museum of Texas Tech University on the other, has been set into a letter opener to mark the 50th anniversary of the Association. The limited edition will be gifts for members donating $50 in the 50th year membership drive of the museum.

State House Speaker Mulling Race For Comptroller's Job

DALLAS (AP) — Bill Clayton, who is up for an unprecedented fourth term as speaker of the Texas House, says he may run for Comptroller Bob Bullock's job in 1982 if Bullock's health prevents the incumbent from running.

Clayton, of Springlake, has also mentioned the possibility of running for governor, lieutenant governor, and U.S. senator in 1982. But this was the first time he mentioned he is considering Bullock's job.

"I certainly wouldn't run against Bob, but if Bob's health doesn't permit him to run for re-election, that would be a possibility," Clayton said.

Rodeo Continues

Willie Craig, 59, the oldest contestant in this year's series, drew cheers from the 25,200 spectators, but defending champion Weldon Byrd moved back into the winner's circle with a first place in saddle bronc riding.

Stephen Poole, serving 13 years from San Antonio, won the bareback bronc riding event Sunday. John Black, serving 20 years from Paris, won the mad scramble and Marshall Hawkins, serving five years from Bryan, plucked a tobacco sack containing $250 from the horns of a charging bull.

Mary Jo Greer, serving seven years from Houston, and Joyce Hobbs, serving 28 years from Simms, won both the greased pig sacking contest and the calf tussle.

Lawyer Hired

DALLAS (AP) — Lawyer Bob Hinton says an anonymous businessman has hired him to defend a 17-year-old girl charged with stabbing her mother to death last month.

Hinton said he was contacted a week ago by a Dallas businessman who asked to "substantially fund" the defense attorney in the case against Tammy Lynn Harrison.

Wade Recovering

DALLAS (AP) — Veteran District Attorney Henry Wade rested comfortably in Baylor Hospital's coronary care unit Sunday where he has been since suffering a mild heart attack last week.

Wade's condition improved to fair Saturday and remained unchanged Sunday, a hospital spokesman said.

He was stricken at home Wednesday, and his condition Friday was described as "fair to serious."

Doctors have not said when Wade will be released.

Urban Living Interest Seen

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — Life in the city may become more attractive than suburban living in the 1980s, a recent study indicates.

The prediction, made by William C. Lichtenfels, president of Emhart Industries, Inc., is based on a survey made for his company by seven experts in the fields of architecture, urban planning, sociology, economics, energy planning, electronics and attitude analysis.

The new interest in urban living was attributed mainly to energy, economics and demographics, Lichtenfels said.

Lichtenfels said that while 24 million people added to the population during the '80s would require, minimally, 20 million new homes, the cost of new homes, combined with smaller families, was making the three-bedroom suburban house obsolete.

With the cost of buying and maintaining a single-family home increasing twice as fast as the average family's ability to handle it, only one of four families will be able to buy a house.

Bowen Supports 'Back To Basics'

AUSTIN (AP) — The outspoken Texas commissioner of education says public schools have a simple mission — teaching kids to read and write and giving them the training to get jobs.

"Give me a child who is literate and has a saleable skill, and we've done our job," said Alton O. Bowen, who replaced the retired Marlin Brockette as commissioner five weeks ago.

Echoing the "back to basics" cry of parents troubled by the direction of public education, Bowen, 63, insists he is speaking the language Texans want to hear.

"Get back to basics — that's what they're saying. I think it's time to gut up and get with the issues," Bowen said.

Bowen, a McKinney native who has served as superintendent in Josephine, Rosebud, Mexia and Bryan, set the pace of his administration when he banned beards and tieless employees in his agency.

And true to his words, the commissioner has not shied from controversy during his brief tenure in office.

Last week he infuriated Mexican-American leaders by saying bilingual education belonged in the home — not in the classroom.

Earlier this month Bowen angered Antioch University by imposing a moratorium on accepting degrees from the school's branches in Texas. He said he took the action because some teachers were earning the degrees — and qualifying for higher salaries — without having to attend class or take written tests.

But Bowen had to back down from that stance last week after the school filed a $1 million lawsuit. The moratorium was lifted but the controversy is not over.

He does not see a need for more college graduates in the future.

"Seventy percent of all the jobs available in tomorrow's market will require craftsmanship and manual skills," he said.

Cowboys Rough Up Rams

IRVING (AP) — There's something about the Los Angeles Rams that brings out the old firehorse in Roger Staubach.

Staubach came out smoking Sunday night, completing three touchdown passes and scrambling the Rams dizzy with five runs for 44 yards.

He connected on his first nine passes and finished the evening 13 of 18 for 176 yards before he departed midway through the fourth quarter in the 30-6 rout.

"He had a great night," said Ram coach Ray Malavasi. "I'm sure he has his bad days, too, but we caught him on one of his better days. With our defense hurt his receivers were open and he really zipped the ball in there."

RECEIVING—Los Angeles, Dennard 5-82, R. Smith 3-33. Dallas, Saldi, 4-66, Hill 4-63.

Los Angeles, now 4-3, went into the game without starting wide receivers Willie Miller and Ron Jessie, and guard Dennis Harrah.

Dallas is 6-1 and tied with the sizzling Philadelphia Eagles for the lead in the National Conference East.

"It was our best effort of the year," said Staubach. "We executed well and I threw the ball pretty well."

The 38-year-old Staubach completed touchdown passes of 18 yards to Tony Hill, 3 yards to Tony Dorsett and 23 yards to Jay Saldi. His second TD pass broke the club record of 136 established by the man Staubach replaced, Don Meredith, who was in the television booth at Texas Stadium.

The Cowboys totally dominated, holding the ball for over 40 minutes and making 13 of 19 third-down situations.

"Roger was as sharp as I've seen him this year," said Cowboy coach Tom Landry.

However, Landry wasn't overjoyed with Staubach running five times.

Haden completed only nine of 26 passes for 122 yards and was intercepted once before he gave way to the ill-fated Ferragamo, who was hurt on the Rams' final offensive possession.

Dallas exploded for 17 points in the third quarter on Staubach's third TD pass, Rafael Septien's 32-yard field goal and Tony Dorsett's 1-yard run.

Dorsett had his third consecutive 100-yard game with 103 steps on 24 carries.

"We are just hoping to improve each time out right now, and we are playing well," said Landry. "Of course, so are Washington and Philadelphia. So we'll have to get better each week."

Tech Hosts Kittens In Shrine Bowl

By NORVAL POLLARD
Executive Sports Editor

The Texas Tech Picadors will be looking for their second victory of the 1979 season tonight at 7:30 in Jones Stadium when they host the University of Houston junior varsity in the 13th annual Khiva Shrine Bowl.

The Picadors, Tech's junior varsity football squad, sports a 1-0 record entering tonight's contest. That lone win was a 10-8 decision over the University of New Mexico junior varsity almost a month ago.

Houston's Kittens come into the contest with a 1-1 mark. The Kittens fell to the Louisiana State JV 23-7 to open the season, but rebounded last Monday with a 24-6 win over the University of Texas Shorthorns.

The Shrine Bowl game is sponsored annually by the Lubbock-area Khiva Shriners. Proceeds from ticket sales go directly to the Burns Institute in Galveston, one of 22 Shrine hospitals in North America that treat children with orthopedic problems or severe burns who might otherwise not be able to afford the proper care and therapy.

Tech squads have won eight of the previous 12 games, including last year's 22-19 last-second victory over the West Texas State junior varsity.

"Our players consider it an honor to play in a game that aids such a worthy cause," Tech junior varsity head coach Jerry Bomar stated. "The junior varsity program at Tech allows some of our younger players the chance to play in a game situation."

The last time Tech and Houston junior varsity squads played each other was in 1977 when the Kittens took a 21-15 decision away from the Picadors.

"I think we'll be a little more prepared for this game than we were for New Mexico," Bomar added. "We've had a little more time to work with the players than we did before the New Mexico game."

The Boob Tube

FOR THE SECOND TIME in a week, lots of Lubbock football fans were snarling at the television networks and their local stations Saturday afternoon. Texas and Oklahoma were teeing up the pigskin at the Cotton Bowl, understand, but there on the tube were the Pirates and Orioles trudging through the late innings of their World Series game like they had all the rest of the century.

The network was in a tough situation, admittedly. There was no way they could leave the World Series and switch to Dallas for the big grid tussle. There are, after all, millions of viewers who think the World Series is the greatest thing since tax rebates. They don't mind all that wasted time while the players spit, scratch and gaze toward the heavens for inspiration.

But there were tens of thousands of viewers in the Southwest who, given a choice, would rather have seen the kickoff at the Cotton Bowl Saturday than the final couple of innings of that particular Series game. SWC grid fans are like that, believe it or not!

A WEEK EARLIER, COWBOY FANS missed most of the first half of Dallas' game at Minnesota because of a scheduling conflict by the network and the local station. Good ol' CBS put the Houston-St. Louis game on at 1 p.m. as the first tilt of a twin bill, knowing that it would overlap the Cowboy clash. Sure enough, halftime was approaching by the time the cameras shifted to Bloomington.

Angry fans of the 'Pokes rang the phones off the wall at local TV stations and CBS Sports in New York City, but all to no avail at that late date. A few lucky viewers got to see it all, however, because several stations in Texas and Oklahoma rebelled and made special arrangements to carry the full Cowboy game.

The local video officials always blame everything on the networks, but the home-town lads have the final word on all programs. Viewers should remember that in the future.

I HATE TO COMPLAIN, though, because the viewing situation is so much better than it was in the early years of the Dallas franchise. Newcomers will find it difficult to believe, but Lubbock video stations frequently snubbed the Cowboys in order to carry the Bears and the Rams. During the first three years Dallas was in the NFL, no more than about 25 percent of their games were televised in the Hub City.

There was no radio network to rely on, either. Cowboy games were broadcast in Dallas by KLIF or KBOX, if memory serves, and could only be heard in Lubbock when conditions were right. Fortunately, there were fewer radio stations on the South Plains at that time to block out the Dallas broadcasts.

It took some maneuvering to see or hear the Cowboy games. When I couldn't go to Dallas for a contest, I had to find alternatives. Sometimes an Odessa TV station would be carrying the 'Pokes, so my brother at Midland had a frequent visitor on Sunday afternoons. Sorry about that, Ed!

MANY TIMES I HAD TO RELY on that Dallas radio station. By trial and error, I found one spot on the Monterey Center parking lot where I could get the broadcast when there was not too much static. My car had to be in exactly the right location and facing a certain direction, but I could hear some of the games that way.

I was rather conspicuous, though, parked there on Sunday afternoons with no other vehicles or people around. One time a police car slowly cruised by me, then returned a half-hour later. When the officers came by again a little later, they pulled alongside me and asked, "What are you doing?"

"Listening to the Dallas Cowboy football game," I explained. "This is the only place in town where my radio will pick it up."

The gave me a funny look and drove away.

THERE WERE TIMES WHEN even the old parking lot failed and I would have to drive east on the highway until I could pick up the Dallas station. Sometimes I could get it at the edge of the caprock, but a few times I had to go as far as Guthrie or Dickens.

Fortunately, gasoline was a lot cheaper in those days.

In October 1962 I was hunting elk in the mountains of southern Wyoming. When Sunday afternoon rolled around, I headed for camp a little early and turned on my portable radio. There a Denver sportscaster was saying that Dallas had defeated Philadelphia 41-19, and that Mike Gaechter had returned an intercepted pass 100 yards for a touchdown.

Oh happy day!

Cowboy owner Clint Murchison had the best solution to the problem of hearing the 'Poke games, however. One summer he and his family were vacationing in a wilderness area in the Rocky Mountains, so club general manager Tex Schramm paid a Montana radio station to carry a broadcast of a Dallas exhibition game. It must have cost a bundle, but Clint didn't care as long as he got to hear it.

Perhaps that is the way Tex got to be club president!

Pirates Stay Alive With 7-1 Win

PITTSBURGH (AP) — The Pittsburgh Pirates have used the word adversity as a rallying cry all season, and they did it again Sunday to stay alive in the 1979 World Series.

The National League champion Pirates had trailed 1-3 in games to the American League champion Baltimore Orioles.

They went out and beat the Orioles 7-1, reduced their deficit in the Series to 2-3, and headed for Baltimore for a sixth game Tuesday night.

Pirates' manager Chuck Tanner was asked if he felt the victory switched the momentum.

"Well I hope it means momentum for us, because we have to win two and they have to win one," Tanner replied.

You know what I think about momentum ... If (Jim) Palmer goes out and pitches a good game ... then there is no such thing as momentum."

It was a grim, saddened Pittsburgh team that took the field to attempt a feat accomplished by only three teams in the history of a best-of-seven game World Series — come back to take the championship.

Then, it was disclosed that Edgar Speer, a director on the Pirates' board and former chairman of the board of U.S. Steel had died Saturday night.

The Pirates had to start a pitcher, Jim Rooker, who was 4-7 in the regular season and twice had been on the disabled list with a sore elbow.

The Pirates, who had battled from behind all year to get where they are, went into Sunday's game faced with still another challenge, and they responded.

Shortstop Tim Foli, who had two hits, drove in a run and scored twice in what could have been the last game, said the scrambling bunch of Buccaneers had not been themselves in the World Series until Sunday.

"This is the first game they've seen the real Pittsburgh Pirates. You saw an imposter in the other four games. We played bad up until today," Foli said.

And Dave Parker, who had two hits, an RBI and a run scored, issued a warning to the Orioles.

"If we win Tuesday (night) you're going to see a shootout in Baltimore," Parker said, referring to a potential seventh game.

Gary Roenicke started the Baltimore fifth with his team's first hit, a double, moved to third on a single to short right, and scored while Doug DeCinces hit into a double play.

Flanagan, the winner of the Series opener and the biggest winner in the majors during the regular season with 23 victories, stayed around for six innings. He gave up two runs in the sixth and wound up the loser.

Foli opened the Pirates' sixth with a walk on a 3-1 pitch, and Parker followed with a single. Clean-up hitter Bill Robinson sacrificed the runners along. Willie Stargell then lifted a sacrifice fly scoring Foli and tying the score 1-1.

Parker moved to third on the sacrifice fly, and came home on the third of Bill Madlock's four singles. The Bucs now led 2-1.

After Flanagan left, Pitsburgh's suddenly awakened sluggers beat a tattoo on three Baltimore relievers. They scored two in the seventh and added three in the eighth.

Meanwhile, Bert Blyleven, who hadn't pitched in relief since 1972, had relieved Rooker in the sixth. He checked the Orioles with just three hits the rest of the way.

In the seventh, Phil Garner opened with a chopping single over the shortstop's head. Two force plays produced two outs, but Omar Moreno reached sec-

Campbell Dances Through Colts

BALTIMORE (AP) — "The difference in the game," said Baltimore Colts coach Ted Marchibroda, "was Earl Campbell. Everyone goes into a game against him planning to hold him, but he makes a lot of teams look bad."

Marchibroda fell short of saying it, but Campbell made the Colts look bad, scoring three touchdowns and leading the Houston Oilers to a 28-16 victory Sunday.

Asked to assess the running back's performance, Oilers Coach Bum Phillips couldn't find the words he wanted.

"I'm not eloquent enough to describe it," Phillips said. "Great. That's a way to say it. That's a word I understand."

"I'm tickled to death with the guy," he added. "That's why we have him."

Campbell scored on runs of seven, 20 and three yards. Each was a different type of running, and two were on fourth downs.

On the first, he started inside, spun to his left and broke two tackles. On the 20-yard score, he darted through an enormous hole in the left side of the Colts' line and sped to the corner of the end zone. And on the final score, he moved to his left and bulled in sideways for the TD.

"He's tough, very tough," said Colts cornerback Dwight Harrison who was knocked back by Campbell on one play. "On films, I've seen him run through people. But if you brace yourself, he'll run around you."

But the game was not all Earl Campbell.

Both teams had their share of mis-

Bengals Win At Pittsburgh's Expense

By The Associated Press

And then there was one.

Going into Sunday's National Football League games, the Cincinnati Bengals had been one of two teams still looking for a victory this season. Thanks to the unbelievable generosity of the Pittsburgh Steelers, they got it.

Nine times the Steelers fumbled. Seven times the Bengals came up with the ball. And two times the fumbles were turned into instant touchdowns on runbacks of 27 yards by Jim LeClair and 12 yards by rookie Howie Kurnick.

Two interceptions of Terry Bradshaw passes didn't hurt, either. Neither did Ken Anderson's two touchdown passes, to Dan Ross and Rick Walker. And Pete Johnson ran 1 yard for a score.

It all added up to a 34-10 romp for the Bengals.

That left the San Francisco 49ers as the only team with seven losses in seven games. New York Giants rookies Phil Simms and Earnest Gray made certain of that, hooking up on eight passes, two of them for touchdowns, that paved the way to the Giants' 32-16 victory.

Also on Sunday it was Oakland 50, Atlanta 19; New Orleans 42, Tampa Bay 14; Dallas 30, Los Angeles 6; San Diego 20, Seattle 10; New England 27, Chicago 7; Miami 17, Buffalo 7; Philadelphia 24, St. Louis 20; Washington 13, Cleveland 9; Denver 24, Kansas City 10; Houston 28, Baltimore 16, and Green Bay 24, Detroit 16.

"We aided and abetted them considerably," Pittsburgh Coach Chuck Noll said. "We proved the Bengals are not as bad as their record." And Joe Greene, the Steelers' superb (and philosophical) defensive tackle, added: "We helped them get well. In a season, there are highs and lows, as in life. This is one of the low points."

Giants 32, 49ers 16

Phil Simms, who made his first pro start a winning one against Tampa Bay a week ago, passed for 300 yards against San Francisco. Eight of the passes — 169 yards' worth — went to Gray, who had suffered a case of butter-fingers earlier in the season.

"I was surprised I kept dropping them, but I knew I could catch them," said Gray, who scored his first two pro touchdowns on passes of 13 and 11 yards in the Giants' 27-point second period. "My confidence never left me but my pride was hurt. I knew I had the talent to catch the ball."

The Bucs had the league's best defense, but Archie Manning pierced it with 11 passes, one for a TD, and ran for another score in the Saints' romp.

The Colts mounted a strong running attack in the first half, but had to shift to the pass as they fell behind.

On their first possession, Colts quarterback Greg Landry dropped back to pass, and the ball was knocked into the outstretched arms of defensive end Jesse Baker who romped 20 yards for a touchdown.

Kicker Steve Mike-Mayer missed the point after, however, and later he missed a field goal.

"We had opportunities to score, but we didn't," said Landry, who was intercepted three times, twice by league-leader Mike Reinfeldt. "But we missed assignments, had interceptions, and dropped passes. We just made too many mistakes."

"They've got a good, tough football team," said Colts tackle Wade Griffin. "Yet we were able to run on them. But the mental mistakes ... We let the game get away from us. Our backs were totally against the wall.

"And we had a feeling coming into this game that we were going to beat them," he added. "It was very frustrating."

The Oilers also made their share of mistakes, and quarterback Dan Pastorini completed only five of 14 passes for 49 yards. He was intercepted twice.

The Oilers, however, didn't need a passing game Sunday, and with the win they now share first place with the Pittsburgh Steelers in the AFC Central Division.

Revitalized Vikes Visit New York

NEW YORK (AP) — A few months ago, a lot of fans were writing off the Minnesota Vikings as a team which, without Fran Tarkenton at quarterback, would be lucky to win more than game or two this year.

And a few weeks ago, many of those fans were writing off the Vikings as a team which, considering the Tampa Bay Buccaneers' hot start, would be lucky to stay in contention more than half the season.

Well, here it is, one game shy of the National Football League's halftime this season — and with a victory tonight against the New York Jets, the Vikings' record will be 4-3 and they'll be within one game of the Bucs, a fast-fading team which still leads the National Conference's Central Division. Tampa Bay was mauled 42-14 by New Orleans on Sunday.

When Tarkenton retired after the 1978 season to, among other things, join Howard Cosell up in the Monday night booth, Tommy Kramer replaced him in the Vikings' huddle. And he has been a more-than-respectable successor to the scrambler who rewrote the NFL's record books.

"When Bob Lee didn't show up at training camp, I knew I was the quarterback," said Kramer. Lee, a veteran reserve in Minnesota and elsewhere, wanted a fatter contract but didn't get it and his retirement from pro football was hastened.

With Kramer, a former star at Rice, running the offense, "our approach isn't very different," says Coach Bud Grant. "There's been very little change. The coaches call most of the plays now, though. The big difference is that Fran threw more to the backs.

"This is Tommy's third year and he's in the middle of the pack statistically," Grant said, looking at the chart which shows Kramer fourth in the National Conference and seventh in the league in passing, ahead of bigger names like Ken Stabler, Brian Sipe, Steve Grogan and Archie Manning.

"Those statistics are a good indication," Grant continued. "Tommy will get better. He'll play in this league a long time. He has all the qualifications."

Monday night football has been kind to the Vikings, who have won eight of 13 games in front of Cosell & Co. The Jets, meanwhile, have lost all seven of their Monday night appearances — but they've all been road games. Until now, ABC chose to stay out of the Big Apple since televising a game from New York meant blacking out the city and wiping out the biggest advertising market.

It's been three years since the Jets appeared on a Monday night game, that one an embarrassing 41-7 shellacking by the New England Patriots. "These are not the same Jets that used to go out and stink up the tube," says safety Burgess Owens.

TURNING TWO — Baltimore's Al Bumbry is cut down on the front end of a double play in the eighth inning of the fifth game of the World Series against Pittsburgh. Pirates second baseman Phil Garner, rear, started the play when he fielded Ken Singleton's grounder and flipped to shortstop Tim Foli, who makes the relay to first. (AP Laserphoto)

Foli then ripped a single scoring the fleet Moreno for a 3-1 lead. Tippy Martinez relieved and was greeted with a run-scoring double by Parker.

Pittsburgh wrapped it up with three in the eighth.

Stargell and Madlock started it with singles. It was Madlock's fourth hit and made him the third player in this Series to tie that single game record. Now 39 have done it.

Blyleven then bunted, and Moreno was walked intentionally to load the bases. Foli bounced a single up the middle, scoring two more runs.

Tanner wasn't sure if he'd be accompanying the Pirates to Baltimore after a Monday workout because of the death of his mother, Anne Tanner, 70.

Palmer will be opposed by John Candelaria, the third game loser. Tanner said the pitcher with a chronic back condition and some arm problems this season, was in good physical condition.

Baltimore catcher Rick Dempsey offered this analysis for the Orioles:

"We really didn't have the opportunity to win today (Sunday)," Dempsey said. "We didn't put enough men on base to threaten. That's the way it goes. We're a hot and cold team and we weren't hot."

Blyleven said he felt strange pitching in relief.

"It was really different, but in the final games of the World Series, everybody has got to do a little more," Blyleven said.

Rooker gave all the credit for his fine performance to his catcher, Nicosia.

"He called for the fast ball in on the right-handed hitters and it ran in on them," Rooker said. "They were looking for something outside and they were surprised when we got the third called strike on the inside pitches."

"Today, for the first time in the Series, we were the Pirates," team captain Willie Stargell said Sunday after Pittsburgh avoided elimination and overcame the Orioles.

"You could see there was hurt because someone very dear to him had passed," said Stargell. "But Chuck didn't want it to reflect on any of the players. He walked tall today ... It was a very gutsy performance."

Did Rooker feel pressure before the game?

"Who me? Heck, I was cruisin'," he responded. "When you're down three games to one, you can't be uptight."

Now, the Pirates are down only three games to two. Game Six is set for Tuesday night in Baltimore.

"It's super to be going back to Baltimore. We could be packing our bags to go home," said Dave Parker.

"We needed that shot we got today," he added. "We had a game get away from us Saturday, and we needed to win convincingly. If we can go in there and win Tuesday night, it's gonna be a shootout in Baltimore."

"Win lose lose, we're gonna give a heck of an account of ourselves," said Rooker. "We're going to go to Baltimore and do some kind of job."

District 4-AAAA Squads To Begin Loop Action

By JIM FERGUSON
Avalanche-Journal Sports Staff

It's time to either put up or shaddup around the District 4-AAAA homestead these days.

After six weeks of whetting the tools of their trades, four of the five league teams will get down to some serious "bidness" Friday night when conference actions kicks off.

On Thursday night, Monterey faces Plainview in what could be the league decider; Lubbock goes against Coronado on the Lowrey turf Friday evening; and Hereford draws a bye in the first round.

Let's take a quick trip around the loop and see how things shape up on the eve of the lid-lifters.

•PLAINVIEW (2-3) — No matter how you slice it, the Bulldogs are still the team to beat for the district title. Make no mistake about it. Although PHS has won only two of its five games, don't go counting the Dogs down for the count. The three Plainview losses have all come against teams that possibly will win their respective districts: Estacado in 1-AAA, Midland Lee in 5-AAAA and Amarillo in 3-AAAA. Plainview's offense, which exploded last week and scored 25 points against defending New Mexico champion Clovis, appears to be breaking out of its shell.

And the defense? There's never been any question that the Bulldogs can play the D with the best of them. The 13 points given up to Estacado were the most scored by any team against the Bulldog defense. Plainview had last week off and you can rest assured it'll be ready for Monterey come Thursday night.

•MONTEREY (5-1) — The Plainsmen have the best record of any 5-AAAA team heading into league play. But the competition has been nowhere close to Plainview's. Over the past two weeks Monterey has rolled up 1,003 yard of total offense, scored 100 points and held its opponents to 107 yards totally. Impressive? You bet, until you notice that the two teams, Hobbs and Carlsbad, couldn't match up with Laurel and Hardy, or Mork and Mindy.

But make no mistakes, Monterey is strong. The offense, paced by running back Willie Johnson and quarterback Kent Potts, has averaged 345.1 an outing, while the defense has limited opponents to 131.0 yards an outing — well over 40 yards better than Plainview. The Monterey defense has hurled three shutouts. And no matter who the opponent is, that isn't bad.

•CORONADO (4-2) — The Mustangs could be the darkhorse of the year, which is a nice way of saying wait 'till next year. But Coronado has come on strong of late winning its last three, including a 20-0 victory over 3-AAAA kingpin Pampa. So who knows? Coronado's offense, guided by quarterback Alan Harp, has started to show some life and the defense — like Monterey's — has posted three shutouts. Coronado is awfully inexperienced, though, and that could eventually lead to their downfall against either Monterey or Plainview.

•LUBBOCK HIGH (2-4) — Army Salinas warned listeners early in the year that it might take Lubbock half the year before it started coming around. It looks that way, folks. Over the past three weeks, the Westerners have proved they're a team to be reckoned with. Lubbock was blown out of the tub early in the year, losing to Borger 21-7, Estacado 32-0 and Amarillo 45-12. But since then, LHS has posted a 21-14 win over Dunbar, lost to a highly-touted Odessa Ector team 10-7 on a last-second field goal, and defeated Cparock 20-13. Look for Lubbock to throw a monkey-wrench into the works.

•HEREFORD (4-2) — If ever a team was charmed, it's Hereford. The Whitefaces have won four games by seven points — three of those have been one-point affairs. The Don Cumpton-coached Herd has been tested only twice by tough opponets, Pampa and Amarillo, and lost both encounters. Hereford has beaten only one AAAA school, Palo Duro 10-6, this year.

Key Matchups Highlight 1-AAA Openers

By CHUCK McDONALD
Avalanche-Journal Sports Staff

For what seems like an eternity, Class AAA teams in the area have been going at it tooth and nail every Friday night. But, for all practical purposes, the teams might as well have spent the time banging helmeted heads against the wall.

Because the action has meant little in terms of post-season play. Even though every team in district's 1-AAA, 2-AAA and 3-AAA has played at least five or six contests, none of the games have been district affairs.

So while the games were a lot of fun — they were pretty meaningless. But, finally, district action is about to begin. All three district begin loop action this weekend and already several key matchups are on tap.

In district 2-AAA, Pecos and Andrews, both boasting 6-0 non-district records, will meet Friday in Pecos. Although it'll be just the first district contest for either team, it could possibly decide the loop champion.

Pre-season favorite Fort Stockton will meet Odessa Ector in another key contest at Fort Stockton. Both teams are 5-1 and Pecos is fresh off a hard-fought 3-0 victory over tough Snyder.

A little closer to home, defending 1-AAA champion Estacado begins its crown defense on Saturday hosting hapless Dumas. Dumas is 1-4 on the year but that lone victory is a hollow one since it came on a Pampa forfeit.

After five contests, no one in the loop has more than two victories. Borger, Canyon and Levelland all boast(?) 2-3 marks.

The darkhorse of the league would have to be the Dunbar Panthers. The Lubbock school is only 1-4 but has shown marked improvement in its last three outings and has displayed a rapidly-improving running game.

The Panthers open district play with Levelland at Lowrey Field on Friday.

Lake View is ranked in the Class AAA state polls and owns a 5-1 record. Snyder, on the other hand, is 3-3 but has suffered some heartbreaking defeats.

The latest was a 3-0 decision the Tigers dropped to undefeated Pecos last Friday. The only difference between the two teams was a roughing-the-punter penalty that set up a Pecos field goal early in the game.

And that ought to decide the 3-AAA loop champion since Brownfield, Lamesa and Sweetwater have a grand total of two wins and 16 losses between them.

So for the loser of the Snyder-Lake View contest to hope for anyone else in the district to sneak up on the winner would be like asking Santa Claus to bring a World Series team to Texas — it's a little late.

•ESTACADO (4-1)— The Matadors only problem so far this season has been getting motivated. For instance it took Estacado over 20 minutes to score a single point against Lamesa last Friday. And Lamesa is undoubtedly the worst AAA team in the area. Still, the Mat defense has allowed only 14 points in five ballgames. That was seven points against Class AAAA power Plainview and another seven against the Monterey Plainsmen. Since the Mats will play strictly Class AAA schools from here on, it's safe to assume no one will score on them in district play. Predicted Finish: first.

•DUNBAR (1-4) — The Panthers are improving, that's true. But they have plenty to improve on. If they can beat Levelland in the district opener this weekend it'll put some wind in their sails... Predicted Finish: fourth.

•DUMAS (1-4) — What happened to those powerful Demons of yester-year? If anything was left of them they disappeared on Oct. 5 when Dumas traveled to Liberal, Kan., and took a 40-0 spanking. Things won't get any easier this weekend against Estacado. Predicted Finish: fifth.

•BORGER (2-3) — Most inconsistent team in the league. Opened year by crushing Lubbock High 21-7, then lost a 15-13 decision to Hereford. After taking whippings from Pampa and Caprock, the Bulldogs came back to smack Tascosa. Face Canyon this week in a battle for second place. Predicted Finish: third.

•CANYON (2-3) — Like Borger, the Eagles dropped a one-point decision to Hereford. But, to give you an idea of the edge Estacado has on everyone else, Canyon was throttled 35-7 by the Plainsmen while the Mats and MHS battled to a 7-0 standoff. If Canyon can beat Borger, it'll take second. Predicted Finish: second.

•LEVELLAND (2-3) — The Lobos' record is deceiving. They've given up 105 points while scoring only 52. Only a blocked field-goal attempt that was run back for a Levelland touchdown on the final play of the game kept them from losing to Lamesa. Other victory was a one-pointer over Brownfield. Predicted Finish: sixth.

Amy Alcott Captures Golf Win

Her comment came Sunday after a par-five on the final hole gave her a one-shot margin over Susie McAllister in a $100,000 LPGA tournament over the 6,100-yard Elizabeth Manor course and her third tour victory this year.

Miss Alcott, whose one-over-par 73 for the final round gave her a 72-hole total of 286 and the $15,000 first-prize money, was a winner because Miss McAllister ended her round of 72 by missing a four-foot par putt to finish at 287.

The earnings moved Alcott from seventh to fourth on the money list with $124,000. Miss McAllister, who hasn't won a tourney in four years and had finished no higher than 15th this season, picked up $9,800.

Stock Mart Continues To Decline

NEW YORK (AP) — The stock market, continuing to have second thoughts about the Federal Reserve Board's credit-tightening actions, fell today for the sixth straight session.

The Dow Jones average of 30 industrial issues was off 3.84 to 835.15 at noon.

Anaysts traced the market's continued decline to worries about the effects on business and the economy of the Fed's decision Oct. 6 to boost the discount rate and increase the amount of reserves banks must keep on hand.

This caused major banks to raise their prime lending rates a full point last week to 14½ percent, making it more expensive to do business by raising the cost of loans. The Fed's moves were partially intended to aid the dollar and steady gold prices, but so far, the success in these areas has been mixed.

Marriott topped the noon list of most active issues on the NYSE, unchanged at 16¼ with a 296,700-share lock trading at that price.

The NYSE's composite index of its more than 1,500 listed common stocks lost .26 to 59.03. At the American Stock Exchange, the market value index was off .86 to 212.95 at noon.

Big Board volume was 13.55 million shares in the first two hours of trading, compared to 15.24 million at noon Friday.

Among other active issues, IBM was unchanged at 65¾, American Airlines fell ¼ to 10, American Motors was off ⅛ to 8¼, CIT Financial dipped 1½ to 55⅝, Schlitz Brewing lost 1⅜ to 11⅝ and Texaco was up ¼ to 29⅝.

Chrysler, UAW Resume Talks

DETROIT (AP) — Chrysler Corp. Chairman Lee A. Iacocca kicked off resumption of negotiations with the United Auto Workers today saying, "Now is the time for all good union men to come to the aid of their company."

"I hope to convince them we need a lot of help," Iacocca said before entering the bargaining room at Chrysler headquarters.

Iacocca said he would not personally stay for the give-and-take of negotiations but would "update them on the situation."

The union has said it would grant concessions to the troubled automaker but earlier rejected Iacocca's opening-round request for a two-year wage freeze.

UAW President Douglas A. Fraser has said the union in negotiating with Chrysler will "meet our responsibilities."

Although American Motors Corp. has been given contract breaks in the past, no Big Three company has ever snatched an easier contract than the others — but none of the companies has ever been as close to the wall as Chrysler is now.

Chrysler could lose up to $1 billion this year and has asked for $1.2 billion in federal loan guarantees to help meet its investment needs for the next two years. The Treasury Department is insisting that the company scale down its request to something less than $1 billion and that everybody concerned with the company — banks, suppliers and the UAW — make sacrifices.

The Ford and GM settlements were expensive. Published estimates not denied by GM have said the contract will increase that company's overall labor cost by 33 percent over three years, which would mean about 10 percent per year compounded.

One possibility, commented on favorably by Fraser, is for deferred wage increases. About 1,700 company executives already have taken pay cuts of 2 percent to 10 percent that can be restored with extras if the company's stock is doing well in August 1981. Iacocca took a $359,999 cut to $1 in his annual salary that could also be paid back in 1981.

Chrysler's 110,000 UAW members in the United States and Canada have been making $9 an hour on the average — close to the $9.03 an hour at Ford and $9.05 an hour at GM before the new settlements.

Teen Gets Probation In Shooting Death

KISSIMMEE, Fla. (UPI) — A 15-year-old girl convicted of shooting her stepfather to death because he repeatedly raped her promised today to "be a good girl" and was placed on probation.

The judge said the girl could continue living with her grandmother in Orlando where she moved after the shooting.

The girl, her mother and grandmother burst into tears when Osceola County Judge Russell Thacker announced his decision.

Thacker admitted he had walked into the courtroom today planning to send the girl to the Nashville, Tenn., home of her uncle because of a recommendation by state Health and Rehabilitive Services officials.

"I think (the teen-ager) did wrong and I don't mind telling you so, but I'm going to leave you where you are," the judge said. "Somehow you changed my mind."

The girl, convicted of manslaughter, testified briefly at today's sentencing, saying she likes her new school in Orlando, where her grandmother lives, and promised to "be a good girl."

She testified at her trial her 31-year-old stepfather began fondling her when she turned 13 and raped her five times before March 21, the night she shot him. Prosecutors charged she plotted to kill him while he slept.

At her trial, friends testified the girl boasted about her stepfather, who became her mother's second husband when she was 2 years old. He often took her hunting for wild hogs and taught her how to shoot a rifle.

She testified that on the night of March 21, he grabbed her in his bedroom and ripped her blouse while her mother was at work. She said she ran from the room and grabbed a rifle from a hallway gun rack.

She said she could hear him laughing when she poked the gun barrel through his bedroom doorway, closed her eyes and fired.

Assistant State Attorney Jon Morgan rejected her story, telling the judge the girl plotted to shoot her stepfather in his sleep.

"The preponderance of the evidence indicates it was a premeditated murder," Morgan said. "The victim was shot in the back from a distance of less than two feet with a .22-caliber rifle. There was never any proof of sexual assault. It was not self-defense."

Legendre opted for the juvenile proceeding in which the girl was convicted of manslaughter without a jury Sept. 14 because her record will be cleared when she reaches legal adulthood at age 19.

Officials Shut Down Nuclear Power Plant

PLATTEVILLE, Colo. (AP) — Fort St. Vrain nuclear power plant has been shut down after what a Nuclear Regulatory Commission inspector called an "insignificant" amount of radiation was released inside the reactor building.

Engineers will attempt to bring the plant back on line today if inspections show no damage and safety equipment is working properly, said Robert A. Burns, a spokesman for Public Service Company of Colorado.

The release occurred about 7 a.m. Sunday, Burns said, when a small amount of helium gas used as coolant for the reactor escaped through a relief valve.

"There was no measurable release of radioactivity into the atmosphere," Burns said.

Four persons inside the control room adjacent to the reactor building housing the reactor did not suffer radiation exposure and were not evacuated, Burns said.

Asked about the amount of radiation released, NRC resident inspector Bill Dickerson said, "Well, it's insignificant ... nothing released above what could be released normally" under commission guidelines.

Burns said the NRC was notified immediately by hotline of the release, but the press wasn't notified until late afternoon.

"Since there was no threat to the employees and no threat at all to the public, they (plant engineers) had to make sure of the situation before we were notified at 2:30 p.m.," Burns said.

Jim Montgomery, chief of the Colorado Health Department's Radiological Health Section, called the incident "minor."

"There's been a history of mechanical problems with this reactor. It has to make a person a little leery as the machine gets older," Montgomery said.

Pennsylvania, California Teachers Continue Strike

By The Associated Press

Thousands of teachers remained off the job in two states today but classes resumed for 7,000 students in Pittsburgh's Mount Lebanon district after a six-week delay.

And in Brimfield, Ill., a tentative contract agreement was reached, ending the last teachers' strike in that state.

A ratification vote will be taken among the 36 Brimfield teachers to officially settle the dispute which has idled classrooms for 700 students since Oct. 2.

By a majority of 4-to-1, the 370 Mount Lebanon teachers approved a contract Saturday providing raises of more than $4,900 over three years. The school board was expected to ratify the pact at a meeting tonight.

'Horns-Hogs Shootout Highlights SWC Week

By The Associated Press

Just call it an old-fashioned Arkansas-Texas shootout.

Although it doesn't have quite the glamour of "Shootout I" when Arkansas and Texas met for the national championship in 1969 in Fayetteville, the collision of the Longhorns and Razorbacks Saturday in Little Rock is the biggie of the Southwest Conference season.

Texas is unbeaten, fourth-ranked and sure to climb.

The Longhorns whipped third-ranked Oklahoma 16-7 Saturday and No. 2 rated Southern California was tied 17-all by Stanford.

Arkansas is unbeaten and ranked No. 12. The Razorbacks defeated Texas Tech 20-6 Saturday.

The game will be regionally televised, and all tickets are sold for the 3:10 p.m. (CDT) kickoff in War Memorial Stadium.

Oklahoma Coach Barry Switzer had some advice for the Razorbacks: "I was very, very impressed with the entire Texas team. It's going to take a GOOD team in the Southwest Conference to beat Texas ... only a VERY, VERY GOOD team can move the football on the Texas defense."

There will be some important other SWC family feudin' Saturday.

Mustang Mania will try to survive at Houston where Southern Methodist has sprung some big upsets in the past on the Cougars.

SMU is 2-1 in league play while Houston and Arkansas lead the SWC ledger 2-0. Texas is 1-0 and Baylor 3-1.

Houston is unbeaten after surviving Texas A&M 17-14 Saturday while SMU loss 24-21 to Baylor.

Arkansas hasn't defeated Texas since 1971 when the Razorbacks turned the trick 31-7 in Little Rock.

The Razorbacks lost 28-21 to the Longhorns last year and suffered a 13-9 defeat in Fayetteville in 1977.

In 1976 it was Texas 29-21, in 1975 Texas 24-18, in 1974 Texas 38-7, in 1973 Texas 34-6, and Texas 35-15 in 1972.

Arkansas has yet to defeat Texas since Lou Holtz has been coach.

Memphis Plans To Make Bid For Colts

MEMPHIS, Tenn. (AP) — Baltimore Colts owner Robert Irsay, who says he wants his team to play elsewhere, will get an offer today from a city eager for a National Football league club, a newspaper reports.

According to the city's morning newspaper, Memphis officials will offer Irsay a guarantee of $7.5 million per year for 10 years, expansion of Liberty Bowl Memorial Stadium from 50,180 to at least 70,000 and an office-training complex.

The Commercial Appeal, quoting unidentified sources in today's editions, said Irsay in return will be asked to sign a binding, 22-year lease on the stadium.

Irsay has said he wants to leave Baltimore because of "frightful conditions" at Memorial Stadium.

"The stadium is not suitable for us," he has said in previous interviews. "We want drastic improvements in the stadium and I'm afraid the city of Baltimore does not believe we are serious in our demands. They will quit laughing when we move."

Irsay has listed Los Angeles, Phoenix, Memphis and Jacksonville, Fla., as possible new homes for the Colts. He said recently Memphis and Jacksonville "are the leading cities right now."

The newspaper said John Malmo, representative of Memphis Mayor Wyeth Chandler to the National Football League, will present the city's financial offer to Irsay today in Chicago.

Fiori Captures First Pro Golf Victory

COLUMBUS, Ga. (AP) — Tom Weiskopf won't forget Sunday's final round of the $200,000 Southern Open Golf Tournament easily. Neither will Ed Fiori — but for very different reasons.

Fiori, a 26-year-old in only his second year on the tour, knocked in a 13-foot birdie putt on the second playoff hole to capture the $36,000 first prize, but only after the tournament-tough Weiskopf had blown a 3-foot putt for par on the first overtime hole which would have given him the victory.

"I though I lost the tournament right there," said Fiori. "Tom Weiskopf doesn't miss putts like that very often. I did not watch the putt because I didn't want to see it go in."

Given another chance, however, after both players bogeyed the first playoff hole, the 1977 All-American from Houston quickly capitalized, knocking in the winning putt after Weiskopf missed a 25-foot birdie attempt by inches.

"When you have a chance to win and you don't, you don't remember the first four rounds," said Weiskopf, who received $21,600. "When the tournament was given to me and I didn't take advantage of it — you don't forget it."

The extra-holes drama was set up when leader Mike Reid bogeyed three of the last four holes, allowing Fiori and Weiskopf to charge past him to tie for the top spot. Both finished the regulation 72 holes at 274, 6-under-par over the 6,791 yard Green Island course.

Fiori had a steady 68 Sunday, including a birdie on 17 while Weiskopf, the 15-year veteran who has earned more than $1.7 million during his career, needed a 12-foot birdie on 18 for a 70 to tie the youngster.

Calvin Peete, the leader entering the final round, fell to a 72 and finished in a three-way tie for third place with Reid and Artie McNickle.

DR. LAMB

By LAWRENCE LAMB, M.D.

DEAR DR. LAMB — I hope you have the answer to a very serious problem of mine. I lost my wife a few years ago from cancer. Now I've fallen in love with a wonderful woman and would like to make her my wife, but I'm impotent. I am 57 years old and used to be very virile, but now nothing happens even though my lady friend is the most sexy person alive.

I tried a second marriage a year and a half ago and had trouble with it. I put that down to incompatibility.

I've gone to a doctor and taken a series of shots that made me oversexed but unable to perform. The urologist says I'm just unlucky and that nothing can be done except to put a piece of plastic or something in my penis.

I have talked to my son about this extensively. He says it's because I loved my first wife who passed away and couldn't have sex with her during her teminal illness, so I just relieved myself. Also, rather than fight during my year-long marriage I did the same thing. He says that has caused me to be impotent and that if I didn't do it I'd be all right.

With all the advances in medicine today, there surely must be an answer. I cannot ask this wonderful girl to be my bride until I've solved my problem.

DEAR READER — Impotence is a symptom and it's a lot more common than many peple think. It can be caused by many things. You've done the right thing by seeking medical advice. I'm just sorry that it hasn't been more successful for you.

Most harmone shots don't correct impotence unless you're talking about the rare person who has a significant decrease in production of male harmones. Sometimes if the person has conficence in the medicine — even if it has no real action — the conficence will result in a satisfactory performance.

I am sending you The Health Letter number 3-12, Impotence, to give you a better understanding of this problem. Other readers who want this issue can send 75 cents with a long, stamped, self-addressed envelope. Send your request to me, in care of The Lubbock Avalanche-Journal, P.O. Box 1551, Radio City Station, New York, N.Y. 10019.

It's true that some people have a guilt reaction to masturbation and that, in turn, can cause them to be impotent. That's only one of the many psychological factors that can be involved. I should add immediately that there's no evidence, other than psychological reactions, that masturbation is in any way harmful to the body or to a person's sexual capacity.

The other point is that if you are able to have an erection when you "relieve yourself," your reproductive system is normal and able to function properly.

Government Studying Possibility Of Humans Transmitting Rabies

ATLANTA (UPI) — Federal health officials say animals may not be the only carriers of rabies. An Oklahoma case has them investigating the possibility of humans transmitting the deadly virus.

Faced with that theoretical possibility, the national Center for Disease Control in its Morbidity and Mortality Weekly Report recommended antirabies shots for those in close contact to human rabies cases.

Dr. Larry Anderson, a CDC Epidemiologist, said exposure to rabid animals is the way humans normally contract rabies, but it is possible for people in a hospital setting and in close contact with a victim to acquire it through open wounds or mucous membranes.

The CDC suggested the possibility of human rabies transmission in the case of an Oklahoma man who died earlier this month. It said the 24-year-old victim had no documented contact with a rabies source, although his occupation as a woodcutter provided the potential for such exposure.

"If a likely exposure to rabies is not found," the CDC Said, "this man will be the fourth of eight cases of human rabies reported to CDC since January 1978 in which no source of rabies was discovered."

Male Reigns As Homecoming Queen

UNIONTOWN, Pa. (AP) — Roy Dowdell, a 6-foot, 200-pound former wrestler and football player, acted like a prince when he was honored as his school's homecoming queen.

"I had a standing ovation," said Dowdell, who edged out 12 female candidates in an election for the honors at Laurel Highlands High School. "It was extremely nice. I went through the ceremony in the way it was traditionally done."

Principal Daniel Lukotch presented the 18-year-old senior with a crown and a bouquet of roses before Saturday night's football game. Dowdell then handed the flowers to his escort, Kim Halfill. Miss Halfill is a junior at the Fayette County school about 50 miles southeast of Pittsburgh.

"I was very nervous and so was my date," Dowdell said.

"I was very well pleased with it," said Lukotch. "It went fine, just like I thought it would."

When Lukotch presented the crown, Dowdell reached inside the coat of his powder blue tuxedo and pulled out a satin pillow. He held the pillow with the crown throughout the pregame ceremony.

"I think that kid has more guts than any 10 people in this place," said spectator Harold Cunningham of nearby Masontown. The ceremony and game drew a capacity crowd at the school's stadium.

"The mood at the stadium seemed to be rather jovial," said Dowdell's father, Leroy.

School officials were not amused after Dowdell, who says he is an honor student, was elected last week.

Incredibility Stands Out As Main Selling Point Of NBC Movie

By JOAN HANAUER

"The steel of the pistol was cold against her hand."

"She would never see him again after tonight. But she must have tonight."

Anyone who has read the romantic novels of Barbara Cartland will recognize the style of the dialogue, and there's more where that came from — as Cartland fans will discover if they tune in NBC Oct. 15, 9-11 p.m., Eastern time.

The title is "The Flame Is Love," but the basic plot could be from any Cartland romance. The heroine is an innocent — so delicatedly virginal that she asks a Paris artist to take her to his studio at night. When they arrive and he tries to disrobe her, she asks him what he's doing — and she really doesn't know.

The tale is pure spun-sugar, as believable as a fairy tale, with its very incredibility its main selling point.

Linda Purl, cute as a button, plays a New York heiress of 1890 who is being shipped obediently but reluctantly to England to marry a nobleman she has never seen.

A detour is arranged to buy her trousseau from Worth's in Paris, where she arrives incognito and without a proper chaperone because of an accident along the way.

That's where she meets Pierre, a symbolist journalist, and the satanically handsome Marquis de Guaita.

While she feels attracted to Pierre, she also accepts an invitation to dinner with Guaita, is shocked by the Moulin Rouge, where she sits with Toulouse-Lautrec.

Guaita and his friends, including La Goulue, premiere can-can artist of the Moulin Rouge, have a problem — they want to sacrifice a virgin to Satan, but where will they ever find one in gay Paree. Miss Purl, the innocent American abroad, answers the bill.

So there's our heroine — drugged during dinner, then all stretched out for the kill, stripped of her lovely period finery but chastely covered with a white drop cloth.

Along comes Pierre to the rescue, aided by a pistol-packing anarchist, and they quickly dispatch Guaita's satanic crew.

Pierre and Miss Purl as Emmaline "Vada" Holtz speak of undying love, but she must travel to Egland to inform the Duke of Grantham that she has given her heart to another and cannot marry a man she does not love.

She is greeted by Joan Greenwood as the Duke's mother in too small a role for her talents — and there are other surprises in merrie olde England.

All's well that ends well — and Barbara Cartland novels never end any other way.

Here is pure romance of another age where kisses are soul-devouring but lead to nothing this side of marriage, where reality is forbidden and love conquers all. Luckily, it conquers rich people, which smooths the way for the lovers — not to mention the designers of elegant costumes and sets. Cartland fans will find the television version as faithful in spirit as a Cartland heroine.

STAR CYCLES

WASHINGTON (AP) — Stars pass through a well-defined life cycle, according to National Geographic. It says, "They are born from clouds of dust and gas, live long and relatively uneventful lives pouring out energy, and then die spectacularly. The explosion of a large star, called a supernova, creates one of the most dazzling displays of fireworks in the universe. About 100 million times more brilliant than the sun, the explosion sends matter in all directions."

Museum Exhibiting Burial Artifacts

ANN ARBOR, Mich. (AP) — Mummy masks bore little resemblance to their ancient Egyptian owners, but helped the deceased gain special recognition, says a University of Michigan art professor.

Margaret Cool Root, curator of an exhibition of the burial artifacts at the university's Kelsey Museum, says the plaster masks attached to mummies identified the spirits of the dead as god-like to guarantee them privileged status in the hereafter.

The masks were popular among the royalty ad upper-cass Egyptians from about 2000 B.C. to the third century A.D., she said, adding that even some Romans, who were occupying Egypt, had adopted the practice.

The exhibition, titled "Faces of Immortality," runs through Feb. 17.
