We don't like to ask people to wait for telephones

THAT'S not the way we like to do business. Nothing would please us more than to be able to give people the kind of service they want, when and where they want it.

But that just isn't possible these days. We're in the midst of the most active construction program. we've ever undertaken. And yet, we just can't manufacture and install the switchboards, the cables, the wires, and the other things we need fast enough to keep up with the greatest demand for telephones in history.

When the war ended, we were about four years behind. In the five states we serve, we've put in 584,000 telephones since then. But new applications have come in so fast that there are still 210,000 people waiting for service.

We're working hard to bring telephones to the people who want them. We've crowded the switchboards to maximum capacity, We're asking all new residence telephone users to take party lines. We're reassigning disconnected numbers just as fast as we can. These temporary measures mean that more people can have telephones now.

You may be sure that we're doing everything we can to speed the day when everyone waiting will have telephone service, and when someone applies for a telephone he can get it right away. That's the way we like to do business.

More To College The need for better-trained homemakers is being felt in all parts of the country, and most schools feature such training in their curriculum. As a result slightly less than 250 girls in Howard county are taking high school homemaking, and it is anticipated that some 25 or 30 young women will take such courses at Howard Country Junior college. Eight courses in homemaking are taught daily in Big Spring high school, with Betty Hyer and Edna McGregor as instructors. Approximately 170 girls have registered for the courses. The local high school provides two and a half years of training in homemaking. The Howard County Junior college is featuring its courses in homemaking, Betty Hyer, instruc-tor said. Throughout the two years of college work there will be courses in foods and nutrition, interior decorating, clothing construction, study of child care, housing and home equipment, design and consumer buying. It is expected that enrollment will stand around 30 students, and the courses to be offered will depend on the desires of the enrollees in the homemaking department. Miss Hyer declared that there is a wide field for those receiving limited training.

Lady Nearly Choked While Lying In Bed-Due To Stomach Gas

One lady said a few days ago that she used to be afraid to go to bed at night. She was swollen with stomach gas, which always got worse when she went to bed, and the gas would rise up in her throat after she lay down and would nearly choke her. She couldn't lie flat. Had to prop herself up on pillows. Recently this lady got INNER-AID and now says gas is gone, stomach feels fine, bowels are regular and she can go to bed and sleep soundly.

No one could blame producers for being leary of the situation when they could not get help, when they were on a hand-to-mouth basis on feed, and when the margin of profit was too slim for the worry involved or not there at all. But everytime they guit business and put their herds up for sale, two things happened: 1) Best cows were sold to other producers, many of them in other milksheds, or went to farmers who normally do not produce for public consumption; or 2) marginal or dry animals went into the livestock ring and were sold for beal.
