TDH outlines state's response to West Nile Virus

Texas Commissioner of Health Eduardo Sanchez, M.D., announced last Thursday an infusion of new funding, together with streamlined surveillance protocols, as part of the state's response to the emerging infectious disease West Nile virus.

At a news conference at the Texas Department of Health (TDH) in Austin, Sanchez said that Texas will receive about $1.3 million from the U.S. Centers for Disease Control and Prevention (CDC) to enhance epidemiology and laboratory surveillance of the virus.

"West Nile virus is an emerging infection that is straining the resources of local, state and federal health systems," Sanchez said. "Both public health officials and the public are having to learn about a new virus that appeared on the East Coast just three years ago and in Texas less than three months ago."

To date, the virus has been detected in humans, horses, birds and mosquitoes in 24 Texas counties. No human deaths have been recorded.

The virus, which can cause encephalitis, was first detected in the United States in New York in 1999 and has been found in 37 states and the District of Columbia. It is spread only through the bite of an infected mosquito. The virus is not spread from bird to human; it is not spread from horse to human; and it is not spread human to human.

The CDC funding will be used to supplement TDH laboratory capacity, to support local and regional surveillance activities and for educational campaigns. "While funding details are still being worked out, TDH will provide more than $500,000 to local health departments in some of the hardest detected in the state, Sanchez re-emphasized the protocols for West Nile virus surveillance efforts aimed at streamlining and clarifying the process so that intervention measures can be swiftly implemented and resources used efficiently.

"The amount of testing in the surveillance process will vary for different counties," Sanchez said.

only a limited number of samples from each state and will place samples from previously positive counties at a lower priority. Sanchez said that TDH will continue to accept some samples from counties where the virus has been detected as long as they do not interfere with testing samples from other counties where the virus has not yet been detected.

"There is no set number of birds to test from any county," Sanchez said. "Testing will vary according to county size, geography, ecology and population distribution."

Local health departments are obligated to report all human cases with symptoms and supporting lab results for West Nile virus to TDH.

"There are three things we all should do," Sanchez said. "We need to be vigilant. We need to take precautions; and we need to avoid panic. Individuals can work to protect themselves at the same time local and state health officials are doing their jobs."

The Health Commissioner said the best way to reduce the risk of West Nile encephalitis and other mosquito-borne illnesses is to reduce the chances of mosquito bites. People can eliminate mosquito breeding sites by removing standing water around the house, mosquito-proof homes by checking screens, avoid outdoor settings heavy with mosquitoes and wear insect repellent containing DEET if they must be outside.

West Nile infections are usually mild with flu-like symptoms including fever, headache, sore throat, body aches, fatigue and swollen lymph nodes. Those most at risk are the elderly and people with weakened immune systems. Although rare, death can occur.

Scrimmage rescheduled

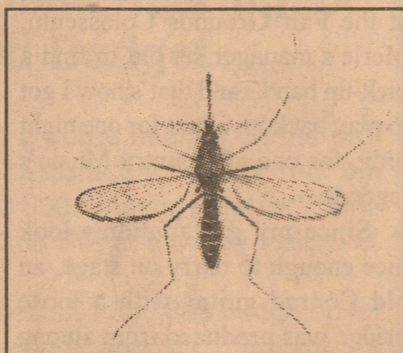

Match moved to Friday

The scrimmage with the McCamey Badgers, previously slated for Thursday afternoon, has been rescheduled. The Warbirds will travel to McCamey tomorrow evening, Friday, August 23. Junior Varsity action will begin at 6:00 p.m. with the Varsity taking the field as soon as the JV concludes.

Eagles fans who are able are encouraged to make the trip to McCamey to support the Warbirds! Remember, wear your green and be loud!

Local students will labor on Labor Day

While much of the nation will enjoy a the Labor Day holiday on Monday, Sept. 2, 2002, with a day at home, Eldorado students will not. School officials ask that parents take note that school will be in session on that day with a full schedule of classes.

To date, the virus has been detected in humans, horses, birds and mosquitoes in 24 Texas counties. No human deaths have been recorded.

hit areas of the state," Sanchez said.

TDH developed a West Nile virus response plan earlier this year before the virus was detected in the state. Key points are to minimize human illness through public education, early diagnosis of the disease and vector control; track the virus as its geographic range expands; identify locations where the disease poses the greatest threat; and identify key vector species that contribute to the transmission of the disease.

Now that the virus has been

Mosquitoes, birds and humans are covered in surveillance activities.

Sanchez noted that mosquito surveillance for West Nile virus and other diseases is an ongoing activity conducted by local public health departments and mosquito control districts across the state while the TDH laboratory conducts the tests.

Mosquito borne disease — The West Nile Virus was first detected in the eastern United States in 1999. This year it spread to Texas. So far, it has been detected in horses, birds and humans in 24 Texas counties.

Precaution, not panic, best bet against West Nile Virus

Precaution, not panic, is the best advice available from the Texas Department of Health (TDH) for dealing with the West Nile Virus.

"State, regional and local public health officials have been conducting an expanded surveillance program since 2000, searching for the virus in mosquitoes, blue jays, crows, horses and other animals," said Dr. Paul McGaha, director of the TDH office in Tyler.

Infected birds carry the virus but in most cases are not harmed by it. However, crows, blue jays and hawks are an exception, as many of these birds die when infected. "Testing these specific birds that have recently died is critical to the West Nile virus surveillance," McGaha said.

In addition, veterinarians are working closely with local health officials since testing horses with compatible disease symptoms can indicate the virus is in the area.

West Nile virus, which can cause encephalitis, was first detected in the United States in New York in 1999 and has now been found in 34 states and the District of Columbia. A total of 12 probable human cases have been identified in Texas — seven in Harris County, two in Orange County, one in Jefferson County and two in Dallas County. The virus was detected in neighboring Arkansas and Louisiana last year.

West Nile infections are usually mild with flu-like symptoms including fever, headache, sore throat, body aches and fatigue, often with skin rash and swollen lymph glands. More severe infections may include headache, high fever, neck stiffness, disorientation, coma, tremors, convulsions, muscle weakness and, in rare cases, death. Close contact with an infected horse or bird poses no threat to humans.

Mosquitoes, which transmit the disease to humans and horses, are drawn to areas with a ready water supply to reproduce. It takes only a thimble of water for these insects to breed. In about one week, a mosquito will go from egg to adult. Longevity of an adult female is about 30 days.

Tumbleweed Smith plans Eldorado visit to witness Tagoo calling event

Call him crazy, others already have...without lasting effect, but Jim Runge knows how to attract attention. This Saturday, noted newspaper columnist and radio personality Tumbleweed Smith is slated to be in Eldorado for the Grand Opening of the headquarters of the Eldorado Olympic Bid Organizing Committee, in the old Griffin gas station, next door to the Schleicher County Museum. Runge says that festivities will get under way at 11:00 a.m.

Afterward participants are encouraged to tour the Schleichersonian Hall of Fame and Pool Hall. At precisely 11:45 a.m. the dedication of the Tagoo Bird Sanctuary (located in Runge's Hysterical District near Casa Arispe) will commence. A mass Tagoo calling will follow.

All events are open to the public, however, a keen sense of humor will be required to fully enjoy the experience.

Mosquito Control

The primary way people can cut down on the multiplying families of mosquitoes is to eliminate breeding sites. People are encouraged to:

- Empty or get rid of cans, buckets, bottles, old tires, empty pots, plant saucers and other containers that hold water.
- Keep gutters clear of debris and standing water. Remove standing water around structures and from flat roofs.
- Change water in pet dishes, wading pools and bird baths several times a week.
- Fill in low areas in the yard and holes in trees that catch water.
- Maintain your backyard pool or hot tub and be sure someone takes care of it if you are on vacation.
- Stock ornamental ponds

- with fish that eat mosquitoes.
- Cover trash containers so they will not collect water.
- Water lawns and gardens carefully so water does not stand for several days.
- Repair any leaking plumbing and outside faucets.
- Screen rain barrels and opening to water tanks or cisterns.
- Keep drains and ditches clear of weeds and trash so water will not collect.
- Use an insect repellent that contains DEET and wear long-sleeve shirts or blouses and long pants when outdoors in areas where mosquitoes are present.
- To help keep mosquitoes out of the house, be sure door, porch and window screens are in good condition.

Fond memories of long ago guitars

I was about 10 when I decided I wanted to learn to play guitar. So, after considerable begging, and at least one well reasoned argument on how I was sure I was destined to be a country music star, my mom drove me to Abilene where I bought a battered old Harmony F-hole (that's a type of acoustical guitar, not an expletive deleted) for the exorbitant sum of seven dollars.

A Mel Bay chord book set me back almost that much. Then a new set of Black Diamond strings finished off the remainder of my savings.

Heading back home, with the guitar balanced on my knee and the chord book spread open on the back seat of the car, I was as happy as any country boy could hope to be.

Amazingly, the rugged old guitar had a good sound, despite the fact that I knew next to nothing about how to play.

Hours and hours of practice, my folks probably would call it torture, and years and years of experience saw me move beyond the old Harmony F-hole to a series of better guitars. While attending college in Lubbock, I had the opportunity to sit in on a few jam sessions in the upstairs loft of a pizzeria, just a half-block off campus. Besides the usual group of suspects, an occasional visiting musician would drop-in. That's where I met Johnny Gimble, Jerry Jeff Walker, Mac Davis and Jo Ely. Never mind that I couldn't hold a candle to any of them, they let me play and gave me a few pointers.

One night, Merle Haggard came to town. His plane made it in just ahead of a snow storm that closed the airport. Fortunately for me, his band, "The Strangers" were grounded in Tulsa. So, with a sold-out crowd waiting for him at the Fair Grounds Colosseum, Merle's manager set out to find a pick-up band...and that's how I got to play backup, albeit for one night only, for one of Country Music's legends.

Since my guitar didn't look nice enough to carry on stage, an old Conrad guitar with a loose bridge was produced from among Merle's gear. After the show was over he told me to keep it. A year or two later, I bought an Alvarez Yairi DY-74 from a music shop in Lubbock. It was hand-made by a Japanese craftsman named Kazuo Yairi. That was the best playing and best sounding guitar I ever owned. Two years later, it was stolen from a motel room in San Antonio. I wanted to cry.

Unable to afford another Yairi, I bought an Epiphone guitar, made by Gibson, that lasted several years. Now I play an Aria guitar, it, too, was made in Japan, and is a nice playing guitar.

Just the other day, while browsing around on Ebay, the online auction site, I found a Yairi DY-74 listed for sale. It was the spitting image of the one I had owned years ago. In fact, I checked the serial number to make sure it wasn't the same one I had lost in San Antonio. It wasn't. So, I bid on the instrument.

I'm usually not one to get drawn into a bidding war, but I was determined to buy that guitar. So, I posted a bid and waited.

Online computer auctions usually take several days, and I checked in every so often to see how my bid was doing. I was overbid once, but promptly posted another and won the final bid.

The seller and I have corresponded several times and I have mailed him a check. My guitar should be on its way. I can hardly wait. It won't be the same as my first Yairi — I realize that. Nothing is ever the way we remember it...except maybe that old F-hole Harmony and that ride home from Abilene when I was 10.

Sunset Commission to evaluate score of state agencies

AUSTIN — The $5 billion state budget deficit will be the primary focus for Texas lawmakers when the Legislature convenes in January, but far from the only one.

Another issue will be the review of more than a score of state agencies currently under scrutiny by the Sunset Advisory Commission. Sunset is the regular assessment by the Legislature of the continuing need for a state agency to exist.

Some of the higher-profile agencies to be reviewed in 2003 are the Texas Ethics Commission, the Lottery Commission, the Department of Health, the Department of Human Services and the Department of Economic Development.

Among the agencies you may not have heard of unless you're involved in their limited areas of focus are the Funeral Service Commission, the Board of Professional Land Surveying and the State Board of Plumbing Examiners.

State Capital Highlights

Classrooms filling

It may still be the Dog Days of August, but for more than 4 million Texas children, it's back to school time.

The Department of Transportation plans to spend what amounts to 75 cents for each of those children to improve bicycle and pedestrian safety around schools through sidewalk improvements, better crossings, off-street facilities for people and bikes, traffic diversion improvements, and what engineers call "traffic calming measures" — facilities designed to slow drivers in certain areas.

The $3 million Safe Routes to School program, enabled by HB 2204 passed during the last legislative session, began earlier this month with a call for proposals from cities or counties. Deadline for getting applications to TxDOT is Dec. 6.

In announcing the program, TxDOT also reminded drivers of three things they can do to keep Texas schoolchildren safe: abide by speed limits, watch for students walking and riding bikes, and stop for a stopped school bus.

Agency develops link link

No, that's not a typo. The Texas Department of Economic Development has added several new pages to its travel Web site, including one called "Hot Texas BBQ." Anyone interested in knowing where in Texas the best hot links and brisket can be found need go no further than:

Other high-lites...

• Despite the stock market, the Comptroller's office is predicting a 2.1 percent growth in Texas' gross product numbers for this year. For 2003, the estimate is a growth of 4.6 percent, but that is largely fueled by low interest and increased federal spending brought about following the Sept. 11 terrorist attacks. The full economic forecast can be viewed at www.window.state.tx.us.

• The flooding in July damaged 18 state parks from Abilene to Goliad, according to the Texas Parks and Wildlife Department. The cleanup cost is expected to exceed $7 million.

• Travel counselors at TxDOT's travel information centers get to meet a lot of interesting people in answering their questions about the Lone Star State.

Sometimes they provide more than information. When a counselor at the Gainesville center smelled smoke recently, she was about to politely remind the man that smoking was not allowed in the facility — until she saw that his hair was on fire.

The visitor knew the rules and had extinguished his cigar and placed it behind his ear. Unfortunately, the cigar still had a little life in it. Alerted to the blaze, the man calmly put it out.

A Summer Camp for Little Dudes

Kids get to experience the old fashioned western way of life at Time Walkers Ranch, located near the community of Hobson, 50 miles south of San Antonio.

"We have an eighteen hundreds summer camp for kids," says Cassie Gotthardt, the owner and director of the camp. "Our campers actually get to experience life in the eighteen hundreds either for a one or two week camp session."

The camp started last year as a family project. "We were looking for a new way to make a living on our ranch. We also have a love and interest in Texas history. It just seemed a perfect match."

Cassie was a teacher before she decided to become a stay at home Mom. "I was looking for something to use my education and all of those things came together to start Time Walkers Ranch."

Camp sessions are for boys and girls ages 9 through 15. Boys, ages twelve through fifteen, can attend a two week session called Trail Driver Camp. Girls ages 9 through 13 can attend a week-long Pioneer Camp where they join a pioneer wagon train and live like early settlers of South Texas. Boys ages 9 through 12 may attend a one week Settler Camp where each boy will re-live settling one of Stephen F. Austin's first colonies.

"The boys do everything from archery to knife and tomahawk throwing, camp fire and Dutch oven cooking, riding horses and driving wagons. At our girls' camp, they make rag dolls, do some knitting and quilting. At trail drivers' camp they learn to ride and rope and move cattle. They actually go on a two day cattle drive where they sleep under the stars at night just like the old cowboys did."

Campers do chores and learn to identify plants and animals. The ranch has lush pastures.

"It has two creeks that run through it. There's nice tree cover and things like that."

The kids get to use items from the eighteen hundreds. They wear period clothing at the end of camp.

"The boys when they come get an eighteen hundreds style shirt that they get to wear on Saturday when their families come. We do all our photos and everything like that while they're wearing eighteen hundreds shirts along with their blue jeans and boots and hats. For the girls, we actually have skirts and things they can put on with their long sleeve shirts and we take pictures of them in those."

The camp is limited to eighteen youngsters. "That way, everybody gets to participate in all the activities. It's just great being able to develop that personal relationship with everybody who comes into the camp."

Time Walkers Ranch is properly named. "We thought about what we were doing was taking people in a walk back in time."

Woolen Mill Foundation Update

Editor:

For the mill to produce woolen products, it is estimated that a minimum of $18,000 to $20,000 a year is needed for a full-time machine operator, materials, overhead, etc. Stacy did this for several years and it was not profitable. The Board is working with a gentleman that has raised money for Old Fort Concho and is interested in working with the Mill. If perpetual funding could be found, we would be able to produce a woolen product which is our first love and priority. But unfortunately, we do not have $20,000. Anyone wishing to step up with this amount of money and run the mill will be warmly received (Stacy gives her blessings too). In the meantime, Stacy must make a living and the Board agrees that she may sell her product at the Mill. In return, she keeps the Mill in good repair and open for tourism. We are doing the best we know how with the resources we have. Anyone wanting to get involved financially or constructively and/or become a Board Member will be most welcome!

Approximately 1,500 to 2,000 tourists come through the Mill each year which creates sales and tax dollars from any retail, gas or food services in our community—all as a result of tourism from the Eldorado Woolen Mill.

Tumbleweed Smith due here Saturday

Dear Editor,

Just wanted to remind your many readers that everyone is invited to the big doings in Eldorado this Saturday, August 24. At 11 AM, the EBOC (Eldorado Olympic Bid Organizing Committee) will conduct the grand opening of their World Headquarters between THE stoplight and THE museum. Some of the awards to be presented to olympians will be on display as will costumes of some of the celebrities who will be promoting our bid to the IOC.

In addition, the Schleichersonian Hall of Fame and Pool Hall (next door) will be open for viewing.

However, most of the fanfare will be reserved for the dedication of the Tagoo Bird Refuge and Sanctuary at 11:45. This ceremony in the Hysterical District will center around the honoring of the person who first discovered the Tagoo Bird in Eldorado in 1958, and who has since promoted the call and mystique of this interesting specimen, providing much participatory enjoyment for the citizenry. He will then lead the assemblage in a mass calling, in hopes of drawing in one of the 72 varieties for viewing by any who have not previously witnessed the spectacle.

Tumbleweed Smith will assist in the festivities. Bird watchers are encouraged to bring their birding books and binoculars...not for Tumbleweed, but for the much anticipated Tagoo sighting.

Eagles see first action of 2002 in scrimmage with Irion Co. Offensive and Defensive units test new system

by David E. Hill

Last Saturday morning the 2002 model of the Eldorado Eagle football team finally got to take on someone other than a teammate. Eldorado got their first test against what some prognosticators have said will be a strong class 1-A team from Mertzon. The Eagles came out strong and showed that they have spent the last two weeks of two-a-days learning the new system of Coach Gary Grubbs and seemed pretty comfortable in their new scheme.

All coaches will tell you that the score of the scrimmage isn't what they are concerned with, and Coach Grubbs is no different. "We just needed to see the guys in action and under pressure from someone else. They responded well and overall the staff and myself is pleased with the progress we have seen thus far. Both the J.V. and Varsity had some really good plays on both sides of the ball."

Offensively, the Eagles were in a new "set" from years past. The "Warbirds" sported the Veer attack. Eldorado's speed and agility seems to be a good fit for the offense. "The offensive line did a good job and the backs hit the holes quickly," Coach Grubbs commented after the action. "Our QB's and wide outs did a good job as well. We still have a ways to go but I think we did well at this time of the season."

Defensively, Eldorado swarmed to the ball on almost every down. Irion County runners were never hit by just one player, but several. The Eagles only gave up one big play on defense and attacked the ball well. As always, defenses are typically ahead of the offensive side of the ball this time of year. The defensive unit is under the guidance of first-year coach Charlie Bunch. "We really went to the ball well. The kids hustled and attacked the ball," Coach Bunch stated. "It was a good test."

Following the scrimmage, Eagle fans were introduced to the 60+ players of the Eagles Varsity and J.V. squads during the annual "Meet the Eagles" celebration. After the introductions, the Booster Club provided watermelon and refreshments for those in attendance.

Eldorado will travel to McCamey tomorrow night for the final scrimmage of the pre-season. The J.V. will begin at 6 p.m. and the Varsity will follow. Again, Eldorado takes on a team that is expected to do very well in class 1-A after a playoff appearance last year in 2A. The Badgers should be a good tune up for the Eagles as they prepare for their season opener against the Christoval Cougars next week.

In next week's edition, we will preview the Eagles 2002 schedule and opponents. A position by position overview of the Eagles team will give Eldorado fans a good look at this year's squad.

Everyone is encouraged to make the trip to McCamey and support Eldorado's student athletes.

God is faithful! Have you noticed? Since prayer vigils have started, we have had more rain and more healing. Please come by First Presbyterian Church on Tuesdays and Thursdays from 10 a.m. to 1 p.m. (extended hours) to pray, give thanks, and fellowship with the Lord. The whole community is invited to add more weight to the prayers for rain and healing.

"As the rain and the snow come down from heaven, and do not return to it without watering the earth and making it bud and flourish, so that it yields seed for the sower and bread for the eater, so is my word that goes out from my mouth: It will not return to me empty, but will accomplish what I desire and achieve the purpose for which I sent it." Historical re-enactment begins Aug. 31 at Pacific War Museum in Fredericksburg

FREDERICKSBURG, — From Aug. 31 through Sept. 2, "Island Assault: 1944" will run at the Admiral Nimitz State Historic Site-National Museum of the Pacific War.

This popular living history program uses objects from the museum's education collection to bring World War II to life for visitors as re-enactors demonstrate the weapons and discuss the tactics and strategies that won the war. Visitors can follow authentically dressed and equipped World War II Marines on a tour of a re-created Pacific War battlefield and experience an exciting combined arms attack on a Japanese pillbox.

In the attack, volunteers use the only operational World War II flamethrower in Texas. Flamethrowers were a key weapon in infantry tactics during World War II in the Pacific. Other famous vehicles and weapons of World War II that are featured include a Stuart tank, half-track, M1903

Springfield rifle, M1 Garand rifle, M1918A2 Browning automatic rifle, M1919A4 .30 caliber machine gun, Japanese Nambu machine gun, and Japanese-type 38 rifle (also known as the Arisaka).

Demonstrations will be presented at the Pacific Combat Zone at 10:30 a.m., and 12:30, 2:30 and 4 p.m. each day. The Labor Day (Sept. 2) schedule does not include a 4 p.m. show. The Pacific Combat Zone is located two blocks northeast of the museum complex on East Austin Street between Elk and Lee.

Fees for "Island Assault: 1944" are free with regular museum admission of $5 for adults and $3 for students. Admission is free for children younger than age 5. Fees without museum admission are $2 for adults and $1 for students. For additional information, visit <http://www.tpwd.state.tx.us/park/nimitz/> or <http://www.nimitz-museum.org/>, or call 830-997-4379.

Finishing touches — Ken Thomas swept sand into the joints of the recently completed Centennial Walk project in front of First Baptist Church of Eldorado. Work on the project began a year ago when David Creek poured the concrete portions of the sidewalk. Church members then bought engraved brick and granite pavers to help pay for the project. In all, 66 brick pavers and 45 granite pavers were sold. Also helping on the project were Vickie Schwiening, Kenneth Richardson and Harris Napier.

TPWD Game Warden Field Notes

The following are excerpts from recent Texas Parks and Wildlife Department law enforcement reports.

From owls to hawks — A Travis County game warden received a call regarding an individual who was in possession of several life size mounts of hawks, owls, herons, and other non-game species. The warden and the U.S. Fish and Wildlife Service contacted the owner, who allowed them to enter the residence/business to photograph the mounts. No permits were located and a warrant was obtained and served. Woodpeckers, herons, curlews, cardinals, kingfishers, various hawks, and owls were seized. All cases will be filed in federal court.

PWC hits house — A Llano

County game warden worked on an unusual jet ski accident on Lake LBJ recently. A young man had tied his lanyard around the throttle to keep it wide open to help him make faster turns. He hit a wake and was thrown from the PWC, which continued on to hit the seawall, fly 20 feet through the air and hit a house. The operator was cited for negligent operation.

Quite a catch — Recently, Aransas and Goliad county game wardens stopped a boat with a piece of plastic that had been wedged and tied in each of the four Bycatch reduction devices. The boat's captain was instructed to proceed to a nearby harbor where 13,880 pounds of shrimp were seized, off loaded, and sold for $19,057. Charges are pending.

Making the search easy — Hardeman and Wilbarger county game wardens assisted in a manhunt recently. A 17-year-old Wyoming resident was stopped by the Department of Public Safety as a suspect of an armed robbery near Chillicothe. He escaped on foot near Vernon. During the search, the suspect walked up to some officers and asked who they were looking for.
