Vineyard planted

BY MARY JENKINS

Eldorado has seen many businesses come and go. One of the most recent is the Eldorado Lantana Winery, Inc., a Sub. S Corporation, operated by George Gower of Eldorado. It is located east of Eldorado on the Menard Highway.

The vineyard was planted in April, 1988 with 4,000 Chardonnay wine grape plants. Another 8,000 will be planted in the spring of 1989 when the press and tanks will be installed. The grapes produced by these plants, presently a premature grape, have a real sweet taste.

"We hope to harvest three to four tons of grapes in July, 1989 and reach a harvest of 25 tons by July, 1990," Gower commented. "So far we have only lost about one percent of the 4,000 plants."

Irrigation is done by a drip system. Five gallons of water are pumped each week to each plant. The grapes do well in this climate. "It is pretty dry here, not too much fungus or too many insects. But we do have to watch for them," Gower said. "We start worrying when the temperature falls below 28 degrees.

Then we have to cover the plants."

Presently there are nine wineries in Texas that bottle wine and have their own label. Soon that number will be 10.

AN EDITORIAL Thievery could lead to deaths

Imagine this. Outside your child is riding his bike, suddenly you hear the screech of tires and your child screams. You rush outside to find your child seriously hurt. Minutes count!

You call for the ambulance and they are promptly dispatched. Ten minutes later they arrive! The reason? Someone has removed the gasoline from their tanks and they were forced to go and refill their tanks BEFORE they could respond. Not possible you say!

Imagine this! You and your family are traveling home from a fun day of shopping. Suddenly a truck veers into your path. Within minutes your world has turned into glass and blood and the cries of your family. Within minutes the accident is reported and the ambulance is dispatched.

They speed to the scene and set out to free your family from the wreckage. The horror begins to unfold.

Someone has removed the valuable tools from the ambulance. They are forced to sit and wait for a backup unit.

Seem impossible? Not so, within the last six months our ambulance service has been plagued by the above problems.

So far no one has been hurt by someone's insensitivity. We have to pay for our tools and gasoline from our fees we collect. Already we have spent over $150 in replacing tools taken from the ambulance.

Please! We are a volunteer service who want to help our community. Don't jeopardize your family or yourself by removing any item from the ambulance.

If you know who has done this or suspect anyone please contact the Sheriff's department. All calls will be kept confidential.

Remember we are there because we care!
Won't you!

Bullriding changed to Eldo

The Eldorado Bullriding Classic will be held September 18 in Eldorado with proceeds going to Michael Phillips of Eldorado.

Phillips was injured in Idalou when a bull stepped on his face shattering both cheek bones and breaking other bones in his face.

Proceeds from the benefit will go to help defray some of the hospital and out-of-hospital bills. See BULLRIDING Page 2.

Talk pepped EHS

BY TERRY B. NEILL

A discussion, which head coach Armando San Miguel termed, "heart to heart", at halftime apparently spurred the Eldorado Eagles on to their first win of the 1988 season last Friday night in Eden.

Down at halftime, 8-6, and almost washed to the dressing room at halftime by a torrent of rain, the Eagles found new life in the third and fourth periods and rallied for a 20-8 victory over the playoff-hardened Bulldogs.

"We were a little displeased at halftime. I think we read our press clippings a little too much and didn't respect Eden enough coming into the game," San Miguel said.

"But after our talk at halftime and some adjustments by the coaching staff, we came out and played much better. We got three turnovers and scored points off two of them so we did something right," the third-year head mentor opined.

Tiny but tough Juan Espinosa was the catalyst for Eldorado's offense, gaining 122 yards on 12 carries, including a 70-yard jaunt on the first offensive play of the game for Eldorado.

Espinosa was named to the San Angelo Standard Times' Honor Roll.

Ward Evans played well in the line, according to San Miguel, and Bass had a good second half at quarterback. Carter Edmiston ran hard on his fullback slot and threw one pass for a touchdown on the option.

Jesse Barajas and Ward Evans were cited by San Miguel for their rugged play on defense. Evans created one of the game's biggest turnovers when he crashed into Eden's quarterback in the third period, separating him from the pigskin.

This week the undefeated Eagles will try to keep their record intact when they host the always-tough Iraan Braves in Eagle Stadium.

San Miguel has one word he likes to use to describe this week's opponent: "They're big, and we mean BIG!"

For example the offensive line consists of a 250-pound tackle, 215-pound guard, 220-pound center, 220-pound guard and 170-pound tackle.

On defense the Braves have 190 and 250-pound ends and 215 and 220-pound tackles. "They have a real good wide receiver who stands 6'4". They're just big," San Miguel said.

Iraan will line up in a new offense this year, the Wing T, but the quarterback will be a three-year veteran.

"Our practices have been real good, however, and it should be a good test for us. Eldorado suffered a last-minute loss to the Braves last year.

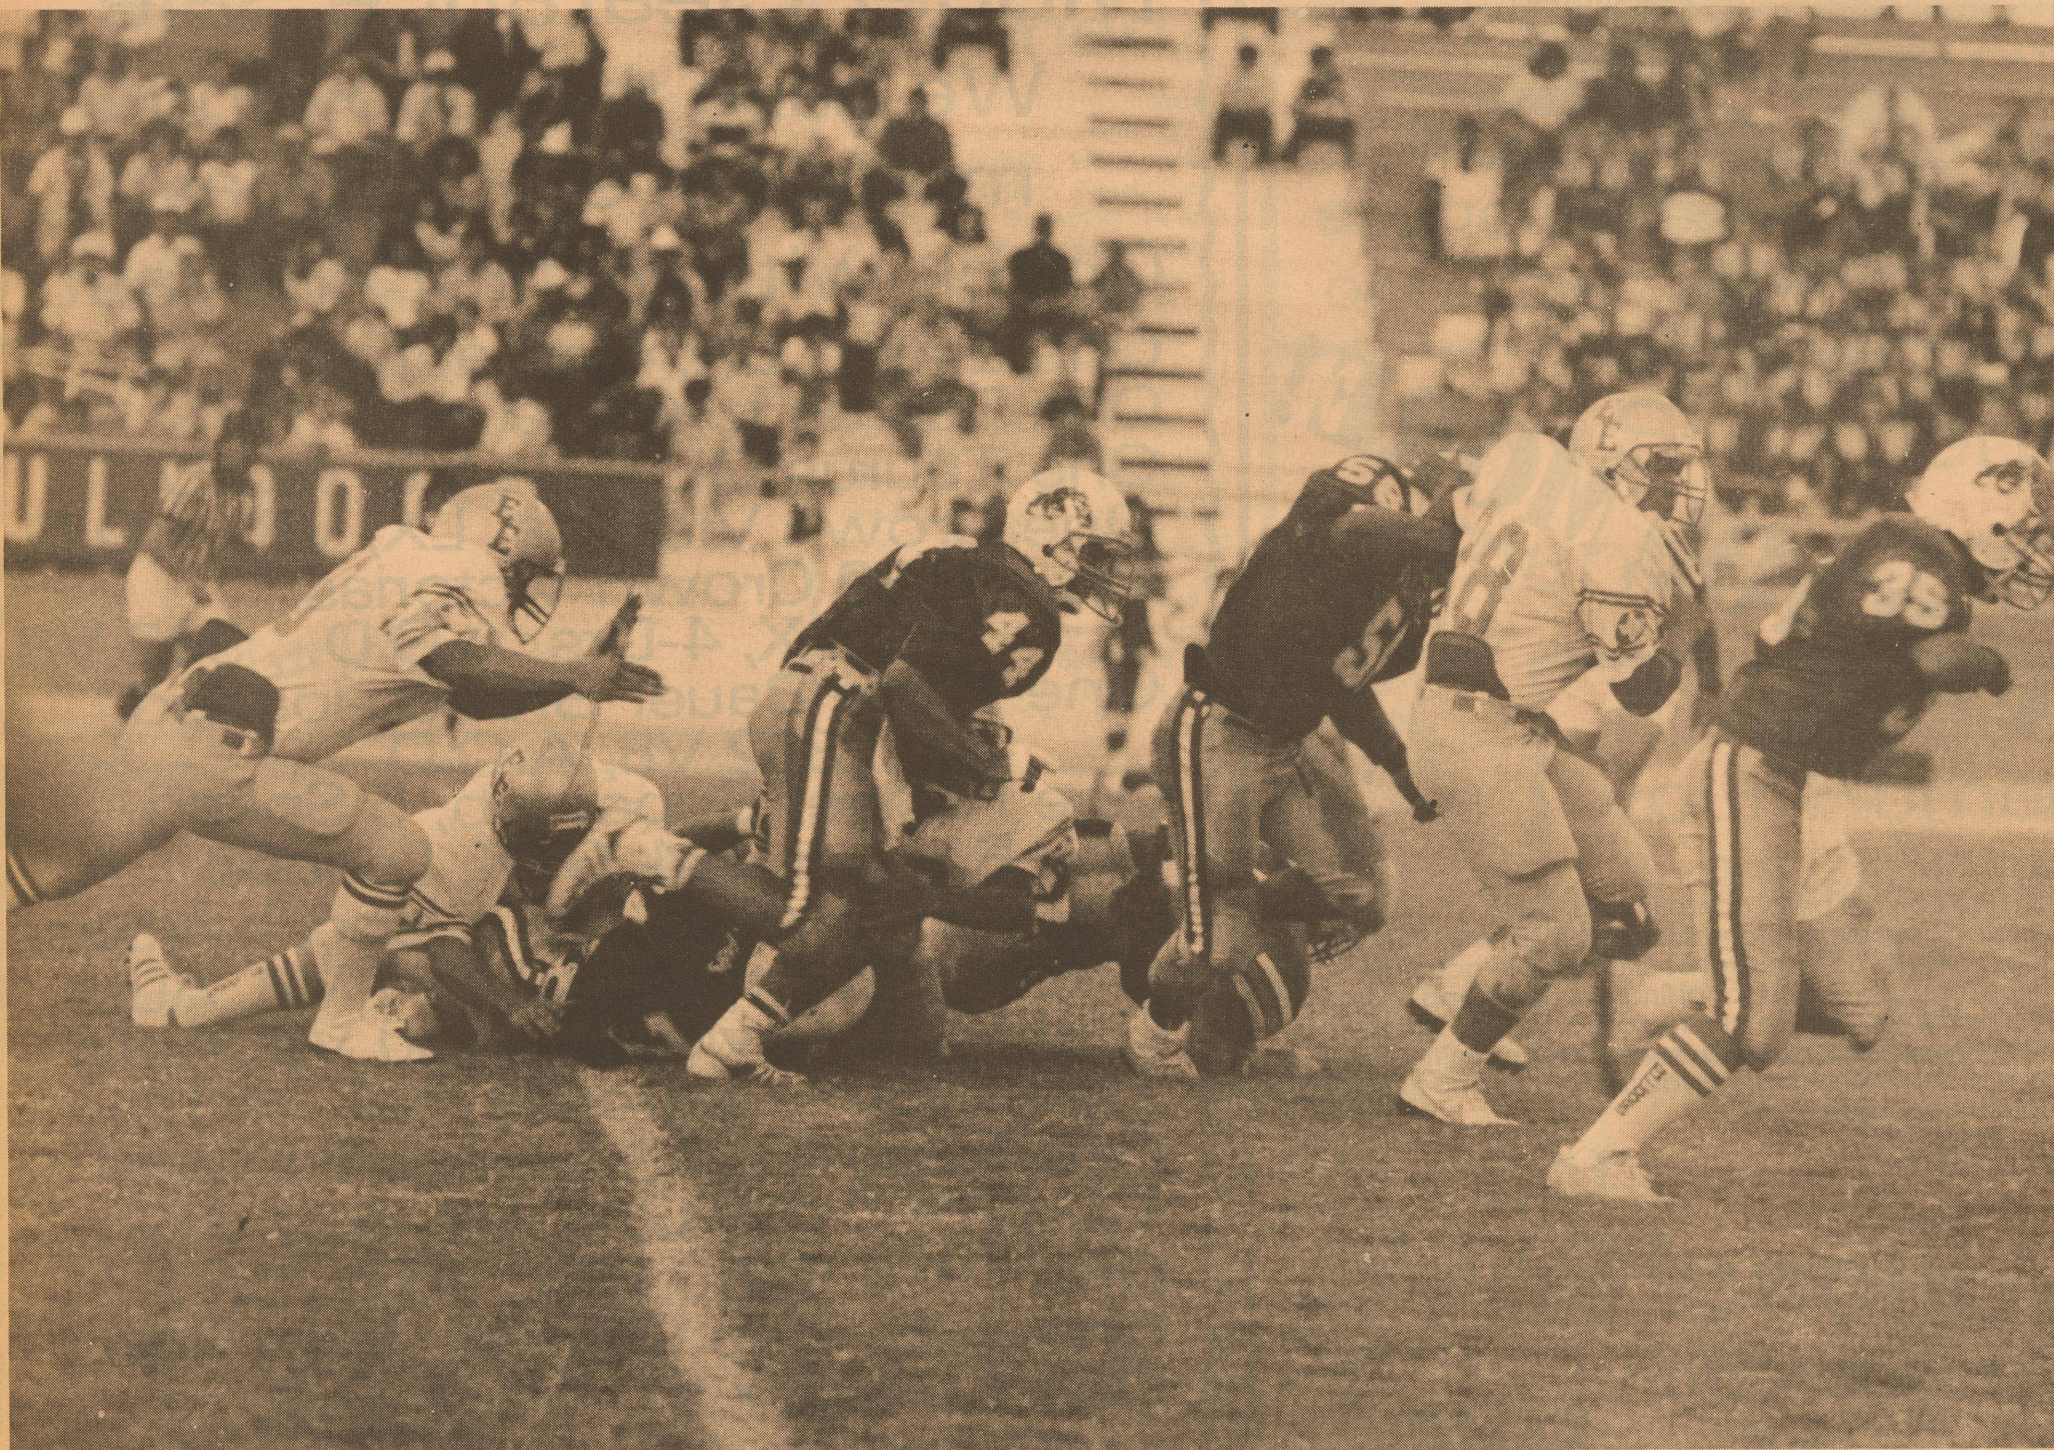

Kickoff time will be 8 p.m. in Eagle Stadium.

Well, Annamarie made the transition from house child to school child fairly easily. She did have one little complaint on Thursday morning. I went into her room about 6:45 a.m. to wake her. The night before, although she had cooperated about going to bed early she had been a little too excited to go right to sleep.

So Thursday morning, when I switched on the lights and nudged her awake her first words were, "Turn off that light, it's too bright!"

Boosters meeting on Mondays

The Eagle Booster Club met Monday night, September 5 with 13 members present.

They report that the football programs are together. They will be ready to sell at this Friday night's football game. They will sell for .50 cents each.

Anyone who would like to help decorate the stadium or the locker room for Friday night's game, please meet at the school after school, around 4 or 4:30 p.m.

Plans were discussed briefly on having a supper before the homecoming game in October. More details will follow later.

"The boys played well last Friday night. Come out this week and support our boys," a spokesman said.

Other than that inauspicious beginning, her first day went rather well, I think. Annamarie went right into her classroom, no tears or clinging to Mom or Dad. Having older siblings probably helped that situation. She had been looking forward to going to school since she was two.

She indicated that most of the activities that first day had been okay, but she was a little disappointed that she had not learned how to read. Maxine and I explained to her that learning to read, at least for most people, would take longer than a day. In fact, we tried to make her understand that it might take the better part of this school year.

Her first weekend was a little confusing for her. Although she did wake up earlier than she had on previous Saturdays, she was worried that I had not gotten her up to go to school. When I explained that she did not have to go to school on Saturday, and would even have the next day off, I thought I noticed a small touch of disappointment in her eyes.

All in all though, Annamarie has been a real trouper, gamely getting her sleepy self out of bed, dressing and washing, and then sitting down to breakfast. She really doesn't show alertness until she has finished her meal.

Annamarie is usually pretty tired when she gets home in the afternoon, but I figure that is more from her not quite adjusting to the early hours rather than too much strenuous activity in school. To be sure, not every one of her school days will be perfect, but I think she has taken to education with some interest. It might also interest you to know that you won't have to hear about every single day she goes to school.

FROM PUC WTU increase sought

West Texas Utilities Company has asked for permission to increase fuel factors effective on January 1989 bills. In the request filed today with the Public Utility Commission the company stated that the primary reason for the increase is the expiration of a 20-year gas supply contract at the Rio Pecos Power Station.

"This contract was essentially a fixed price contract which let us buy fuel at pre-1973 Oil Embargo prices," said WTU local manager Leroy Reeves. "Compared to the average cost of fuel during the last 20 years, this 22 cents per million BTU gas will have saved our customers almost $350 million by the time the contract expires in late December 1988," he said. That includes the period in the early 1980s when average fuel prices had reached $4 per million BTUs before declining to $1.95 in 1987.

The company will continue to operate its system in a way that will minimize fuel cost and is presently studying gas supply proposals. However, WTU expects to pay eight to ten times more for replacement gas than the cost of the expiring contract.

The local manager emphasized that this change is tied primarily to expiration of one contract. Since 1985 WTU has lowered the factor five times, and had six refunds totaling almost $50 million as a result of other contract changes.

WTU filed the request four months before the effective date of the factors to allow the commission time to review the request and process it through necessary channels.

Under the request a typical residential customer using 635 kilowatt-hours a month would see an increase of $2.97 or 5.7 percent per month on the electric bill.

Fuel factors cover the cost of boiler fuel used to make electricity. All other costs essentially are covered in base rates and can only be changed through a lengthy rate case proceeding. The company's last rate increase went into effect in January of this year. WTU officials do not anticipate the need for a rate increase in the foreseeable future although there could be some changes in the fuel factor as prices change.

Davis reunion staged

Davis brothers Chalmers, Charles, Walter, Weldon and Winiford, their wives, children and grandchildren, gathered at the Weldon Davis home for Labor Day weekend. There were 51 in attendance and many spent two nights, bringing cots and campers, pickups, vans and tents.

Saturday evening was barbecue time and Sunday was caserole day, brought and shared by all.

The reunion was not without excitement. After the children had played in the yard all day, a three foot rattlesnake was killed in the dog house about six feet from where the adults had cooked and spun tales all day.

Three rattlesnakes were killed over the weekend, the largest measuring 45 inches long with 13 rattlers.

The children swam, rode horseback and played while the adults pitched washers and horseshoes. The women played Wahoo and the men did some dove hunting.

Twenty nine of the 51 present carry the last name of Davis, and all children of the brothers were present except Vickie Davis of Dallas and Janet Davis Rutledge of Bossier City, Louisiana.

Moore says 'things running smoothly'

BY J. WELDON MOORE

With September 1 having arrived and gone, the school year is off and running. Teachers had six days of inservice and preparation prior to the first day of school plus most teachers attended several other workshops or took college courses during the summer.

The first day of school went very smoothly, and indication of the preparation done by the principals and teachers. Credit must be given also to our custodial and maintenance crew and their work to have buildings and grounds in tip-top shape.

The total enrollment for the beginning of school is down compared to last year and a reversal of the decreasing high school and growing elementary enrollments was seen. This year the high school enrollment is up by 13 with a total of 171 in 9-12. The middle school is down slightly (5) with a total of 242 students enrolled and elementary is down 24 students from last year with a total enrollment of 285. This gives an overall enrollment of 695 this year.

Although these figures are small on a comparative bases, they do reflect how local economies and situations can contradict national trends. The U.S. Department of Education projects rising enrollments in elementary students (K-8) through 1996.

Secondary school (9-12) enrollments are expected to continue falling until 1990, when the large numbers of elementary school students moving on to high school will raise secondary school enrollments.

Trends other than enrollment are going to greatly influence local decisions concerning education during the next few years. Three demographic phenomena - aging, family structure and minority population - will effect fundamental change.

As the population lives longer, many persons will face at least two distinct careers over the course of their lifetime and public education will be involved - once at the K-12 level and again through adult and continuing education programs.

As the family structure changes - since 1955 the "typical" family of father, mother and two children has fallen from 60 percent of the population to only seven percent - so does the nature of problems to be dealt with in the schools.

During the past 20 years, every conceivable social and legal responsibility has been pushed off on the schools until public education now is so saturated with gratuitous functions that it can not clearly distinguish its primary mission. Like nothing else, the change in family structure will demand a resolution from the schools.

The third demographic factor with which public education must deal is the emergence of a diverse minority population. Currently several schools in Texas must deal with no less than 30 or 40 different languages among its students. We must seriously rethink the basic modes of communication and come to the realization that a common language is the one essential bond of any civilization. As the "melting pot" theory reverses with the growing interest in racial, ethnic and cultural identities, the nation's schools must face the question of how can the education system accentuate the richness of cultural diversity while at the same time honoring and preserving traditional American values.

As the 21st century is approached (this year's first graders will be the graduating class of 2000), public education must take in hand the three demographic phenomena - aging, family structure and minority population - and prepare for fundamental change.

—letters to the editor—

Dear Editor,

Our District 67 in West Texas is often overlooked when our legislators meet in Austin. Most of the laws, written for Texas, are aimed at and for the convenience of larger populated areas throughout the state.

District 67 has 13 counties of sparse population in comparison to its vast geographical area with only one Texas House Representative to listen to us and speak for us in Austin. Houston, alone, of dense population and sparse area, has 26 representatives!

When I became involved in our political process six years ago, my goal was to seek out a strong candidate to represent us in the Texas House. It's been a difficult process, but at last we have the man for the job.

We need special people to represent this special part of Texas, West Texas, District 67. David Currie is the special person for the challenge, November '88. He is strongly determined and committed to make sure District 67 is "not short-changed in Austin and that West Texans are not overlooked by urban interests" when Texas Legislation commences.

Many of our locals have had the opportunity to meet with David Currie on several occasions, as he has been working hard this past year to meet the sum 62,000 plus voters of District 67. David is running a well-organized campaign and has an array of endorsements throughout our district.

Currie has selected Eldorado as his center-point of operations, holding strategic campaign workshops here for the 13 counties he will represent. (This is another first for Schleicher County.)

My purpose in writing this letter is easily understood. I am loyal to West Texans and Schleicher County in particular. I don't usually make public endorsements but in this case, I will. I know the Democrats have the best candidate for this often understated job of representation in the Texas House. We are in need of a leader to listen to us, as we are West Texans! We need a leader that can voice our concerns as West Texans! I know that David Currie can be that special representative. I am asking you to print the following enclosed information in doing your part to promote a better voice for West Texans in Austin. I am also asking the people of Schleicher County to rally behind David Currie, giving him the support and encouragement he needs to succeed this November.

Please note that David will again be here for his campaign "Walk thru Eldorado" on September 15. Some 25 volunteers will be walking with him, knocking on doors and handing out information.

Then, again on Saturday, September 17, he will return for a Rally barbecue (Gary Mauro of the Texas Land Commission will accompany him and his family and be on hand to speak). Also a county reception will be given October 24.

T.B., I'm counting on you to keep this man in the news. I would also like to add that if anyone wants to help with or contribute to David's campaign please contact me, Janee Finlay 853-2848 or Billy Sims in Paint Rock.

Very truly yours,
Janee L. Finley,
Chairwoman

Pat Lloyd is working as solo beautician and many thanks to her for being so faithful.

Residents have the opportunity to attend the movies every Tuesday in the dining room. Movies are donated by the VFW Auxiliary Post #9842.

Anyone bringing gifts of food to the residents please check at the nurse's desk first. Some residents have special diets and are unable to have certain foods. The staff appreciates your cooperation in this matter.

SAFETYGRAM

School will soon be in session and just some safety reminders for you drivers:

To stop for all school buses loading or unloading children. To remember that drivers, overtaking the bus from the rear or approaching the bus from the front, are required to stop and wait until the school bus moves on.

To remember an empty seat in a school room just because a child forgot or because some motorist couldn't or didn't stop in time is hard to explain and difficult to forget.
