Phone calls are still coming into the News office concerning a swimming pool for McLean. All the response I have heard has been favorable. If the majority of the people of McLean truly see the need for a pool, then I think we can devise some way to get one.

The first step, as I said before, is to talk to the City Council. Their regular monthly meeting is Tuesday night, and I intend to be there and ask about a pool. I hope some of you will join me there. The meeting will begin at 7 p.m.

One solution to the swimming pool problem might be for the City of McLean and the McLean Independent School District to cooperate on the effort. If the school could help finance the pool, and the City would donate the land, furnish the gas to heat the pool, and maintain the pool during the summer, all the community would benefit. It's not even too outlandish to dream about some sort of fiberglass enclosure or high fence which would allow the pool to be operated part of the time during the school year, and become a part of the school physical education program. I believe that that is what has been done in Gronom.

After the City Council meeting, I hope that we will form a swimming pool committee, so that we can have a group willing to spearhead the fund-raising and the research that will be necessary to build the pool. If we all work together, our children and grandchildren will have a place to swim next summer.

One of the disadvantages I find in living in McLean is that I don't get to see many of the current movies. It just seems too much trouble to get in the car and drive 20 or 30 miles to watch a movie... except in the summertime. When I take the paper to Pampa on Wednesdays, I must spend the whole day, so I sometimes spend an afternoon in the matinee.

Of course, now that McLean has Home Box Office, those of us who subscribe to the service get to see the top movies (even though HBO gets them a few

'Meals On Wheels' May Come To McLean If Residents Need It

McLean residents may have an opportunity to participate in Meals-On Wheels, a non-profit service organized by the Gray County Committee on Aging, according to Rev. Billy Wilson, pastor of First United Methodist Church in McLean. Wilson said that the program could be implemented in McLean if enough people were interested.

Any person 55 or older who is unable to prepare a balanced meal for himself or herself, and who has no one in the home able to cook, can receive the meals. The price is $1 per meal if the customer can afford the payment. Those who can pay more, are asked to, Wilson said, but those who can pay nothing, are not obligated.

Wilson said the meals would be prepared in Pampa in the kitchen of the First United Methodist Church by a cook hired by the Meals on Wheels. Special diets, such as bland, diabetic, low cholesterol, are served. Meals consist of a meat, two vegetables, a bread, and a dessert. The meals would be prepared in Pampa, frozen, and then transported to McLean where they could be reheated in the home, or by volunteers at the time of delivery.

Wilson said meals are delivered each day between 11 a.m. and noon.

Wilson emphasized that the program is not a government program, but is supported by contributions from the community and the United Way.

Before the program can be implemented in McLean, the group needs to know how many McLean people would be interested in the service. Those who qualify should call Wilson at 779-2337 or call Mary Dwyer at 779-2128.

If the program is established, Wilson said that many volunteers will be needed in the community to help with the delivery. Mrs. Dwyer emphasized that the program is for all people in the community who qualify.

Two Wrecks In Downtown Destroy Poles, Injure One

Two wrecks in downtown McLean occurred one block apart Thursday and Saturday.

At 10:50 p.m. Thursday, a 1969 Chrysler, driven by Kit Long of McLean allegedly ran a stop sign at the intersection of Interstate 40 and Main Street near the east bound lane of I-40. The car hit the side of a 1981 semi-tractor truck driven by David T. Eller of Bayonne, N.J. The car came to rest in the left hand lane of I-40. Long was hospitalized in Shamrock with multiple fractures, according to investigating trooper John Holland.

The second wreck, occurred at 3 p.m. Saturday when a 1980 Oldsmobile driven by Elwyn Charles Ayers of Bartlesville, Okla. turned left from the wrong lane and was hit by a 1980 semi-tractor truck. The truck swerved and hit the sidewalk on the north side of Parson's Drug, knocking down light poles and pulling down the traffic signal in the middle of the intersection. The light hit a 1979 motorhome driven by Emille J. Herbert of Monroe, La.

Damage to all the vehicles was light, and no one was injured in the wreck.

Bryan Smitherman Returns From Citizenship Workshop

Tony Bryan Smitherman of McLean returned home Friday from Washington, D.C. after attending a Citizenship-Washington Focus, a week-long experience in citizenship and leadership training at the National 4-H center.

Smitherman, who will be a junior at McLean High School this fall, was one of 72 4-H members from Texas and ten states participating. The program is designed to help young people understand the structure and function of government, study the heritage of the country's development, and prepare plans for active citizen involvement when they return home.

Using the nation's capital as a "classroom", the program included a day on Capital Hill to meet with members of Congress and see government in action. Smitherman met with Jack Hightower, Congressional representative for the district on July 21. He also met with members from all over the district.

Field trips to historical and cultural sites as well as to the agencies and community organizations were among the most informative and exciting parts of the week, according to Smitherman. He toured the Lincoln and Jefferson memorials and the Smithsonian Institute. He also toured Mount Vernon and Monticello, along with

Tigers Begin Workouts

The 1982 Tigers will begin their two-a-day workouts Monday morning at 7 a.m., according to Coach Joe Riley.

The boys will be on the field in uniform at 7 each morning, and workout until 8:50 p.m.

Coach Riley said the two-a-day practices will conclude Friday. School begins Wednesday, Aug. 18.

New Students Should Enroll Now, Others To Enroll Aug. 17

Students who will be new to the McLean school system should go by the school principals offices this week to enroll, according to high school principal Ron Cummings. Cummings said that school officials can go ahead and request the new students records from his previous school, and expedite enrollment.

McLean high school, kindergarten, and any new students not previously registered will register Tuesday, Aug. 17.

WARNING

Several collisions have been narrowly avoided in the construction area of Interstate 40 near McLean, according to Department of Public Safety trooper John Holland. The large equipment which is crossing the Hedley highway (Texas 273) south of town is not equipped to stop or turn rapidly, Holland said. Drivers on the highway have been ignoring the flagmen posted by the construction crew.

Holland emphasized that the construction vehicles have the right-of-way in the area, and that motorists are to yield to them.

Construction will begin in the near future on the highway near the J.D. Fish residence, Holland said, and he is worried that motorists will be involved in a serious accident. "I've sat and watched the construction area, and seen several misses. Someone is going to get hurt if motorists don't start using more caution in the area," Holland said.

Theron Stubbs Will Play In Greenbelt Bowl Classic

Theron Stubbs, a 6'1" 220 lb. guard for the Tigers last year, will play Friday night in the 33rd annual Greenbelt Bowl Football Classic in Childress at 8 p.m.

Stubbs, who was named to the second team All-State team by the UPI sports writers both his junior and senior years, will attend Abilene Christian University this fall.

The football game was originally designed to showcase the top players from the West Texas and Central Oklahoma area, according to officials of the game.

Players began workouts Monday morning and will view the formal queen's contest Thursday night at 8:30 p.m. at the portico of the First National Bank in Childress. Friday afternoon, a hot air balloon display is planned.

The only other player

from McLean's district will be Houston Hendricks of Foilet.

Reagonomics In The Red

Ben Ezzell in The Canadian Record

The Tax cut has its price, and we will soon all be paying it. Reaganomics has reached the bottom line and found it red. The percentages, small as they were, which have been trimmed off personal income taxes must be replaced...and replaced by much larger amounts...if the government is to remain solvent; and in a way, it is a relief that the new tax legislation is being enacted by Congress with no more delay.

It seemed obvious from the beginning that the Reaganomics theory that reducing personal income taxes without reducing expenditures would somehow inject enough new wealth into the system to finance increases in government spending would not and could not possibly work. It hasn't.

And since reductions in social programs demanded by the Administration have been more than offset by increases in military spending which the Administration considers untouchable, something obviously has to give.

What has to give, naturally, must be the taxpayer. In return for reductions in personal income tax, that staunch supporter of government will be required now to pay more for cigarettes (if he or she is one of those unfortunate persons who is addicted to the weed), more for telephone conversations if you can't refrain from talking; more for plant tickets if you can't refrain from flying; and more (or certainly more quickly) for income from interest and securities.

That latter item, the new withholding tax on interest and dividends, won't matter much to the people toward the lower end of the income scale, but may be considered almost an act of treason by the wealthier citizenry to whom Reaganomics has been an article of faith. This wasn't exactly what a lot of Reagan supporters had in mind when they cheered on the new economy which was to reduce the tax burden by cutting the lower economic echelons.

Still, there's rough justice in this economic turn of the screw. The personal income tax cuts haven't trickled down to the lower economic levels of our society to any extent, but have been of substantial benefit at the upper levels...leaving these fortunate folk more extra money to invest in interest-bearing securities. Under the new tax plan, they're not even going to have the free use of that interest until the end of the tax year...the government is going to siphon it off at the source with a withholding tax.

Wage earners are familiar with the withholding tax which taxes a percentage of their wages before they get them. Now the dividend-earners at the other end of the scale are going to learn about the joys of withholding, too.

The hard truth is that Reaganomics is no different from any other economics when we get to the bottom line...when government outgo exceeds income, something has got to give, and it's certain to be the taxpayer.

A perfect example was Sunday night's airing of Tarzan, the Bo Derek version of the famous old ape-man stories.

Remember how much fun it was to sit in a dark, cool movie house and watch Lex Barker's Tarzan swing through the trees and save a very chaste Jane from the ravages of a murdering tribe of natives? Well, forget that innocent story.

This dumb film (the bare Bo version) was a box office dud, and rightly so. Not even the gorgeous face (and other uncovered attributes) of Miss Derek can save this silly, confusing, simple-minded film. Despite Miss Derek appearing topless at the drop of a loin cloth throughout the movie, the film is boring, boring, boring.

If you take HBO you'll have a chance to see the film, because it's one of the biggies

Senator Bill Sarpalius Reports

NOT INSANE

AUSTIN — Was John Hinckley, Jr. really insane? To answer that question from a legal point of view, we have to see what the law considers insane.

Insane in Texas and insane in Washington, D.C., where the shooting occurred, do not mean the same thing. The rules for an insanity defense in Texas are much stricter, as they should be.

For example, all states recognize the defense of insanity for a person who does not know right from wrong — if he did not know the nature and quality of the act he committed, or if he did not know it was wrong. This is the only insanity defense in Texas, and also is one insanity defense in Washington.

However, Washington does not stop there. It is also a defense in the nation's capital to commit a crime as a result of an "irresistible impulse," as long as the impulse was caused by a true mental disorder and not by passion or anger.

As strict as the insanity defense is in Texas — it accounts for only a small fraction of the criminal cases tried in this state — there have been cries recently to make it stricter or abolish it altogether. Senator Ray Farabee of Wichita Falls has been working on a bill that would allow the jury in a criminal case to find the defendant "guilty, but mentally ill." This would allow for punishment and treatment. The insanity defense is rooted in a desire to punish only those who are responsible for their actions. Insane persons cannot help themselves, the theory goes, so punishing them would be pointless and cruel.

Such thinking would be appropriate if there were widespread agreement on what insanity is. Most of us think we can spot insanity when we see it, but apparently experts cannot. Psychiatrists and psychologists can spend days at a trial, with half of them swearing the defendant is perfectly sane and the other half of them swearing he's crazy. Many never have testified for the other side. In other words, many experts never have seen an insane defendant, and many never have seen a sane one, or so they swear. It's not something that gives one a great deal of confidence in psychiatry or the law.

None of us wants to punish someone who cannot help himself. But on the other hand, we all want dangerous people off the streets. We want them off the streets for a long time. We may feel sorry for the insane defendant, as our morals and our religion tell us to feel, but we want him locked up.

We hope Senator Farabee's bill will accomplish both these objectives — treatment and punishment. We would like to hear your thoughts on the subject. Please write Senator Bill Sarpalius, P. O. Box 12068, Austin, Texas 78711.

CAPITOL UPDATE

John Tower
U.S. SENATOR for TEXAS
142 RUSSELL OFFICE BUILDING
WASHINGTON, D.C. 20510

Definition of "navigable waters" for purposes of federal regulation has been a persistent problem for Texas communities and individuals. While logic would seem to dictate that the term "navigable waters" means a body of water over which boats can travel, the legal definition for the past 10 years has been ALL waters in the United States. This is such a broad definition that the Corps of Engineers conceivably could claim jurisdiction over a backyard swimming pool.

As a practical matter, it has stymied local efforts to control flooding near the coast, made it impossible for farmers to manage draws that run through their land and allowed the government to limit use of farm ponds completely contained on an individual's piece of land. This problem has been compounded by the red tape nightmare and time requirements involved in obtaining permits to dredge or fill the smallest body of water. When the system works well, the process takes 13 months. When problems develop, years elapse before a permit can be obtained.

I have introduced legislation to redefine navigable waters to mean bodies of water that could reasonably be considered to be navigable. This action would solve many problems encountered by Texans, and would narrow the scope of federal jurisdiction to that envisioned by Congress when it gave the Corps of Engineers authority to carry out this aspect of the federal responsibility to regulate interstate commerce.

Under the new proposed rule, most permits will be granted within 60 days of the original application. Instead of four levels of regulatory review, there will be only one.

In many cases, states will have more authority and responsibility under the new regulations. The Corps of Engineers will issue more general permits for some categories of projects, and will not have the authority to override decisions made by states or local governments concerning land use or zoning unless issues of national importance are involved.

Further, the Corps of Engineers and the Environmental Protection Agency are to clarify the rules concerning when application for a permit must be made and when it is unnecessary.

I applaud these excellent improvements to the regulatory process. However, I still believe that the ultimate solution must be legislative. I remain convinced that the federal government should not have the right to interfere with local, state or individual decisions regarding land use. The only way to make certain that federal authority does not exceed its rightful bounds of jurisdiction is to spell out the limits of that jurisdiction in law.

Thus, I will continue to work toward passage of my navigable waters legislation.

Loose Marbles

by Lisa Patman

You have to be careful about what you say. Just last week my son and I were driving along the highway when I mused, "I think this car has seen its last days. I wonder what we can get to replace it." A few miles down the road my son commented, "Don't you feel sorry for people whose cars break down on the highway. The people are so helpless unless somebody comes along to help." The next thing we knew the car was making a horrible racket and smoke was pouring from underneath the hood. We were stranded, on the highway, ten miles from the nearest telephone. We were, indeed, quite helpless.

We should have known better. We have patted, pleaded, and cajoled that old car through ten years of children fighting in the back seat, and roads slick with ice, not to mention pot-holed streets and outrageous gasoline prices. In people-years, I figure that car is about 120 years old. It's getting senile. It feels it has earned a right to be cranky. I guess that our talking about getting a replacement was a lot like thinking grandma should be put away. Grandma probably would have hit us over our heads with her cane. The car left us stranded on a deserted highway in the middle of a heat wave.

We were lucky; some homeward-bound tourists driving another relic of an automobile took pity on us and gave us a ride to the nearest truck stop. But before we left, they gave us some much-needed advice: "Don't never, never talk that way in front of her, honey. She'll balk on you ever time, if you do. After all, them cars has feelings too. Think how you'd feel if somebody drove you all day long and then left you out in the rain with your windows down. Or how about, if ever time you got tired, or maybe got choked, somebody would slam your door and kick your tires. Or, worst yet, what if somebody loaned you out to some hot-rodding idiot who gets his jollies by wearing out your pore old tires. Bet you'd go to smokin' and hollerin', too."

They were right. I had been an insensitive clod. And if the old dear ever gets fixed, or if (don't repeat this within hearing distance of my driveway) I ever get another, I'm going to go out and talk nice to it whenever I think it's lonely, tuck it in each night, and wake it gently in the morning--because those people were right--them cars has feelings, too.

All In the First Family

The President's Kinfolk Bill Adler and Norman King

The only version of royalty we seem to have in our country is the family of whichever man happens to be president at the time, and they are watched and scrutinized and talked about before, during and after the term of their prestigious relative.

Bill Adler in this new publication, shows that first families have often proven to be embarrassingly all too human, and such people as drunkards, enemy spys, suspected arsonist, swindlers, adulterers, suicides and murderers can be listed among relatives of the President of the United States.

Activities which have no doubt damaged the President down through the years are such as: Jackie Kennedys staggering first-year White House bill of $105,000 00 which set JFK on the warpath: sometime alcoholic Sam Johnson's remark regarding potential running mate Senator John Pastore: "How can an Italian from a stinky state like Rhode Island help me?"; Brother-in-law Abel's attempt to entangle President Grant in a million-dollar swindle to raise the price of gold certificates; Donald Nixon's $205,000. loan from Howard Hughes using a $13,000. vacant lot as collateral; and Billy Carter's $200,000. loan from the Libyan government and the resulting "Billygate" furor that hamstrung Carter's reelection campaign, all can be scrutinized in this volume as well as many others perhaps not so well known to the American public.

Bill Adler presents these interesting facts about our president's families in a unique style which will certainly be enjoyed by all who read it, and Norman King, who has written biographies of Dan Rather and Erma Bombeck, also makes poignant contributions to this book. "All in the First Family" is now available at Lovett Memorial Library.

We at Southwestern Public Service Company are forecasting now how much electricity you'll use today, tomorrow, next week, next month, next year, even 5 and 10 and 15 years from now. We take the forecasting job seriously. It tells us how much electricity to generate for you in the next few hours or few days. It helps us decide how much fuel to buy. And forecasting helps us decide when, where, or if we should build new power plants.

Grafton Clarke, Fuel Planning Senior Engineer, Amarillo.

School is out, and youngsters are out and about. Their safety concerns us, as it does you. We recommend this important warning about power line danger: Never climb a tree which is near electric power lines. There may be power lines among the branches. If the lines were touched, tree-climbing fun would turn into tragedy.

Mike Costello, Safety and Claims Specialist, Roswell.

Everyone, including SPS, is affected by high money costs. When we borrow money at today's high interest rates, or sell stock, people are actually letting us use their savings to build new power plants and lines and to buy equipment. If we do not pay the going "wage" for their savings, people will stop letting us use their money, and our ability to deliver the electricity you need will be limited.

Bob Whipps, District Manager, Seminole.

Knowing what electricity is worth is worth knowing. For answers to your questions, call or write your SPS manager.

Cuba's Cobalt May Be Wartime Necessity For United States

COLLEGE STATION — In the event of a drawn-out, non-nuclear war, American strategists might have to take a covetous look at Cuban reserves of high-priced cobalt, a useful material in building military aircraft and electronic weapons, concludes a study by a Texas A&M University System think tank.

A diplomatic arrangement for gaining access to cobalt deposits on the Caribbean island would be preferable, but the mines might have to be secured in some way by force of arms, study coauthor Dr. Richard Thomas says in the Texas A&M magazine Quest: Research and Scholarship at Texas A&M University.

"We certainly are not suggesting an immediate invasion of Cuba," said Thomas, director of the Center for Strategic Technology, operated by the Texas Engineering Experiment Station.

"But in a war, it would be difficult to imagine the United States allowing a Soviet satellite to exist 90 miles away, especially one that contains such a large amount of this important wartime material."

LEARNING BAKING SKILLS IS REWARDING

Summertime means kids have extra time for activities to develop their skills. Adult supervision is important with these activities, especially with baking.

The following two recipes will test your kids' baking skills and, perhaps, enable them to learn new ones. Surprise Cupcakes and Granola-Peanut Butter Brownies, developed in the Betty Crocker Kitchens, are two desserts to learn about and bake.

It is important to teach care when removing hot pans from the oven. Remind the child to always wear a protective mitt or use potholders. Never use wet or thin potholders.

Most important when baking with kids is to enjoy yourselves. Surprise Cupcakes and Granola-Peanut Butter Brownies are as fun to make as they are good to eat.

Surprise Cupcakes

Heat oven to 350°. Prepare 1 package Snackin' Cake, any flavor cake mix as directed except — mix in bowl. Divide batter evenly among 12 ungreased medium muffin cups, 2 1/2 x 1 1/4 inches. Spoon 1 teaspoon peanut butter onto center of batter in each cup. Bake 20 minutes. Place 4 miniature marshmallows on top of each cupcake. Bake until marshmallows are puffed and light brown, about 5 minutes. Cool completely before removing from pan. 12 cupcakes.

- Granola-Peanut Butter Brownies
- 1 package Betty Crocker® supreme fudge brownie mix
 - 1 cup any flavor granola, slightly crushed
 - 1/4 cup packed brown sugar
 - 1 tablespoon all-purpose flour
 - 1/2 cup peanut butter
 - 2 tablespoons margarine or butter, softened
 - 1 egg

Heat oven to 350°. Grease bottom only of rectangular pan, 13x9x2 inches. Prepare brownies as directed on package. Spread dough in pan.

Mix remaining ingredients in 2-quart bowl; drop by teaspoonfuls evenly over dough. Bake 30 to 35 minutes; cool. Cut into about 1 1/2-inch squares. 4 dozen brownies.

Although we know much about Socrates and his sayings, nothing survives of his writings. Much of the information we have about his life and teachings comes from the writings of others of his time.

TV and Your Child Tips From TSTA

The Texas State Teachers Association partners in your child's education—examines the effect of television on children. Here is Part II, of a four part series on the subject:

TV Can Be A Family Affair

Have you asked yourself, "What can I do to keep TV from having a harmful effect on my kids?" Try some of these tips which could help you solve the problem.

Watch television with your children. Help them to select the right programs by checking the TV listings in advance. Look for programs that are fair in their treatment of people or programs that are not violent or too sophisticated in content.

Plan with children what shows they can watch—whether you are home or away. Be aware that public television has special programming and that commercial TV produces many excellent shows especially geared to children.

Insist on a limit to TV time. Discuss what's "real" and what's "unreal" on TV and in life. Talk about how violence can be harmful—real people hurt when injured.

Provide adequate light in the television area and watch for tiredness.

listlessness, glassy eyes, trance-like states—signs of poor health or too much television.

Discuss ways problems might have been solved other than the way they were presented in the TV story.

Turn off the assaults, attacks, and uproars when they appear on your television set. Youngsters need a friendly atmosphere at home without a lot of unnecessary noise or violence.

Correct any language errors your child may hear on television. Unfortunately, there are mistakes on TV. Why not have fun finding them together?

Make meals a family event—don't eat in front of the TV set. Select food carefully—not what a TV character urges kids to eat. Don't let TV turn your child into the family shopper. Parents should take final responsibility for selecting foods, clothing, toys, etc. When children see things on TV, they may enter a "gimme-get me" stage. Don't give in to demands for junk foods just because children ask for them after they've seen them on TV.

Use TV to widen your child's horizons and to help the family become closer as you watch programs together.

Next: "Preschoolers and TV."

Education—Our Money's Worth?

In my travels over Texas, it has become clear that Texans rate crime, the economy, and the education of their children among their principal concerns.

This week I would like to discuss education. As the father of six children, this has long been one of my principal concerns also.

We currently spend over half our tax revenue on education, and many people raise the question to me: "Are we getting our money's worth?" The questions put to me indicate some think we are spending too much; others, not enough.

I too am concerned about the amount of money we spend on education, but I am more concerned about the quality of that education. I believe the quality of education our children receive can be improved by making some fundamental changes in the way we pay and treat our teachers.

I believe in merit pay for teachers. Frankly, I think good teachers ought to be paid more than poor teachers. A good, conscientious teacher cannot help but become discouraged and disillusioned when he or she ends the month with the same pay as one whom they know to be indifferent. The result is apt to be that they leave the teaching profession altogether.

I also think we ought to enter a system of competency testing not only for new teachers, but for those who are currently teaching. We test our kids, why not also test those who teach them?

In short, I think we ought to bear down on the basics, relieve our teachers of burdensome paper work now placed upon them, and recognize and reward our better teachers with better pay, for the sake of our children, and our future.

If you have thoughts on this subject, I would welcome them. Just write to me at 1213 W. 34th in Austin, 78705.

New Coach, Quarterback, Schedule

Change Typifies Booker Kiowa Football Team For Fall Season, 1982

Change is the word that may best typify the Booker Kiowa football team this fall.

The Kiowas will have a new coach, a new quarterback and a lot of new faces on the gridiron schedule when they take to the field, but one thing remains constant—the running ability of Gary Mills.

Booker opponents probably will be stacking their defenses against the flashing legs of this Kiowa speedster once again and how well they can stop him probably will be the answer to downing the Kiowas.

Mills rambled for 1,455 yards rushing on 185 carries last fall for a 7.8 yard average and scored 102 points, 78 of them via rushing. He also caught four passes for 95 yards and two touchdowns and returned 10 hitting six of eight passes for 158 yards and two touchdowns in directing the Greyhounds to a 41-6 rout. He is considered to be as good a passer as Maxfield, but may lack some of Maxfield's running ability.

Among the top candidates for the other two backfield positions are Lyle Halliburton, a part-time regular at halfback last year and ard said of the 1982 Kiowas. "Also, if Ammons should not be able to play at quarterback, that would be a problem."

"We have a good class of freshmen athletes moving up, but we don't know if any will be able to help us this year."

Other new members of the Kiowa coaching staff are Jimmy Lanning and Russell Ashley. Lanning is a Perryton native and Ashley is formerly of Canadian.

Lanning served as junior high coach for two years at Pampa. This is his first varsity assignment. He will work with the receivers and defensive secondary.

Ashley comes here from Bonham Junior High in Amarillo. He and Lanning both are graduates of West Texas State University. Ashley will work with the offensive and defensive defending district champion, will have something to say about what might happen.

"Follett will be up to play old Booker I'm sure. They have probably the best all-around backfield in the league and could make a run of it."

Pinckard said he also looks for Lefors to field a good team this fall. He knew the coach (Ricky Palmer) who is going there from Pampa and said that several of the Pampa players reportedly are going to Lefors also.

Groom and McLean are something of an unknown quantity this year. Groom, the former perennial champ or runnerup, has been down the past three years and McLean sustained some graduation losses that likely will hurt the Tiger chances.

While he hasn't had the opportunity to see any of the boys in action as yet and two-a-day practices don't start until Aug. 9, Pinckard said he is pleased with the attitude of the boys that has been shown in weight training and the off-season program in the spring.

"I'd like to think we can get close to the top two if things break right," he said. "I really think this is a tough, well-balanced district."

kickoffs 254 yards, one for a touchdown.

The versatile senior's longest runs from scrimmage included a 74-yarder against Groom and 73 yards in the Phillips and Hooker games. He also excels in track and basketball and has won trips to the state Class A track finals in Texas for the past two years.

Alfred Godino, who will get a shot at fullback, along with David Epp.

"We'll probably spend more time working with the fullback because that is the first basic move of the wishbone," Pinckard said. "Ammons looks like the top candidate for quarterback, but we'll have to wait until he gets here to see what we have."

Pinckard also is considering trying his son, Shane, a sophomore, at quarterback. This will be Shane's first year in football.

Returning line regulars are headed up by Pablo de Santiago, diminutive all-district line-backer and outstanding pulling guard on offense. He was one of the best linemen in the district despite his size, only about 5-7 by 143 pounds.

Others are Joe Martinez, 200-pound sophomore tackle and Tim Mounsey, 140-pound sophomore.

Scott Coxwell and Tim Bremer also saw quite a bit of action for the Kiowas last fall and will be vying for the tackle slots. Other line prospects include Devin McQuitty, Paul Shipman, Jerry Don Murphy and Shawn Eccles.

Wide receivers will come from a group that includes Allan McGee, Tim Wick, Brett Hughes and Mike Mounsey. Wick and Mounsey saw action last year.

"We feel that speed and quickness will be our major assets this year and size will be our main disadvantage," Pinckard said.

Take More Time For Fun, Expert Advises

Let's take more time for fun," urges Dr. Leo Buscaglia, "because fun brings laughter and laughter brings wellness and wellness prolongs life."

The popular Dr. Buscaglia brings this cheerful prescription in a special, "A Time to Live with Leo Buscaglia", that will be presented on Wednesday, August 25 at 9 p.m. on OETA (Channel 13, Oklahoma City; Channel 11, Tulsa; Channel 3, Eufala; channel 12, Cheyenne.

moment is yours—it's yours to celebrate. To misuse it, to lose it is to devalue our greatest gift, the gift of life.

"We are in the most serious society that ever was," observes Buscaglia as he reminds his audience that too much of a lifetime is spent on "trivia". The festive spirit of "A Time to Live with Leo Buscaglia" is an ordeal opportunity to stop and smell the roses and share Dr. Buscaglia's invigorating point of view.

SOS, the traditional call for help from a ship in distress, does not actually stand for anything. It was chosen because it could easily be sent as a wireless message.

Speaking-out-of-doors in Sacramento, California's Capitol Park, Dr. Buscaglia uses the beauty of the setting to illustrate his message that people should take time to celebrate the good things in life—things like friends, food, flowers, sunshine, balloons and having fun. In Buscaglia's words, "Each of us has a time for life. There is a misconception that we have forever; in reality, we have such a brief moment in time. But remember, even that brief

Winning the War Against Fleas

Fleas seem to be making it big in Texas, even in Pampa.

Over the last five to seven years, fleas seem to have more and more of a problem, particularly in urban and suburban areas.

Cat fleas which infest dogs or cats and readily attack humans are the most common, says an urban entomologist with the Texas Agricultural Extension Service, Texas A&M University System.

Flea bites are extremely annoying and generally become increasingly sore and irritated over a period of a week or more. Fleas most often bite people about the legs and ankles.

A small red spot with a light colored center appears where the mouthparts of the adult flea enters the skin. Applying cooling preparations such as carbolated vaseline, menthol, camphor, calamine lotion or ice will help relieve itching. Severe allergic reactions or infections should be treated promptly by a physician.

Although fleas can transmit bubonic plague and murine typhus, these diseases are rare.

How do you control these irritating pests?

Flea control must include treatment of the pets and thorough treatment of the entire premises--indoors and outdoors. These three areas should be treated simultaneously to break the "flea-cycle" and get effective control, emphasizes the entomologist.

Insecticides containing carbaryl (Sevin), dichlorvos (DDVP), pyrethrin, rotenone, malathion, methoxychlor or propoxur (Baygon or Sendran) are labeled for use on animals. Dusts or powders are generally preferred over sprays for treating pets and should be used at three to four-day intervals when infestations are heavy.

Rub the dust into the animal's fur by hand. Be especially thorough around ears, between legs and around the tail. Try to avoid getting dust in the eyes, mouth and nostrils. Flea collars which contain propoxur or naled (Dibrom) appear to be superior to those which only contain dichlorvos. Be sure to read the label before using any of these products and consult a veterinarian if questions arise.

Spray all infested outdoor areas such as the yard/porchas, garages and outbuildings with chlorpyrifos (Dursban), diazinon, propoxur or carbaryl. Be sure to treat areas used by pets, and let the spray dry before pets or children are allowed to use treated areas. Repeat the spray at two-week intervals until fleas are controlled.

Inside the home, begin control measures with thorough cleaning. Vacuum all floors and upholstery and dispose of sweepings immediately to prevent flea escape and subsequent re-infestation. Also, launder all pet bedding, bedding.

Apply an insecticide spray of chlorpyrifos (such as "Rid-a-Bug" or Raid "Home Insect Killer") to all floor areas, under and around upholstery cushions, and to pet bedding areas. Also spray moldings, baseboards and draperies to a height of one foot above floor level. Try to avoid further vacuuming and cleaning for 10-14 days after treatment.

While this insecticide should give three to four weeks of effective residual indoors, it will not rapidly knock down adult fleas. In conjunction with the residue spray indoors, homeowners might also use a non-residual insecticide applied as a total-release aerosol or fogger, suggests the entomologist. Products containing pyrethrins, resmethrin (SBP-1382) and dichlorvos are available to provide quick relief from indoor fleas. Again, be sure to read and follow all label directions and precautions with these products.

One final place which may require insecticide treatment is the family car, especially if your pet is a frequent rider. The Hardy Daylily Makes Nice Border

The daylily may be the answer if you are looking for a hardy perennial for your flower border. These plants will survive almost any abuse and still bloom. And, you will have very little trouble with disease or insect pests.

Daylilies are fine for naturalizing or for use as ground cover on a bank or roadside. They produce an abundant display of flowers and the course, grass like foliage retains attractive green color during the entire growing season.

Daylilies love sun, but will grow and bloom in partial shade if they receive four hours of sun each day. This vigorous plant can also compete with the roots of trees and still make satisfactory growth.

Many colors of daylilies are available except white and blue. The original plants from Asia had only yellow and orange blooms. During recent years, plant breeders have used a red flowered specie from China to develop pink, red and dark purple varieties.

The earliest flowering daylilies bloom in May with the iris. A careful selection of varieties will provide continuous blooming through August and early September. Some varieties will produce flowers in the spring and a second crop later in the summer.

As with many of our garden flowers, we now have dwarf daylilies. Compared to standard varieties with flowers about three feet tall, the dwarf types are about 18 inches high. They are useful in the border in front of taller plants, as a ground cover on a bank, or for naturalizing where the standard varieties would be too large.

Daylilies produce an abundance of blooms which provide beauty in the landscape. They may be used as cut flowers but each individual bloom lasts for only one day. Other buds in the cluster will open on succeeding days if the flowers are used in a loose bouquet, a loose bouquet.

Their use is seldom successful in arrangements expected to last for several days in which specific placement is needed to create a particular design.

The culture of daylilies is relatively simple. They will grow for many years with a minimum of care. If each plant is to become a large separate specimen, clump space them about three feet apart. If a solid mass planting is desired for a border, or as a ground cover, place them about one foot apart.

Daylilies are propagated by dividing the large clumps into small sections. The best time for this job is in spring about a month before the date of last frost in your area. They may also be divided and set in the fall a few weeks after the first frost. However, this tough plant may be dug up and reset almost anytime. They may be moved in midsummer if you take a good ball of earth and provide adequate irrigation until they are reestablished.

Daylilies require only moderate amounts of fertilizer, and their heavy growth of leaves serves as a mulch once they are well established.

In The Kitchen

by Linda Haynes

One of my favorite columns in the exchange paper which we receive is "Petticoat Patter" by Nan Ezzell in The Canadian Record. Every week Nan includes a recipe or two in her column, and the dishes are usually terrific.

As of Monday morning, I am now the proud owner of a set of recipe cards with recipes collected from Nan's column. The column has been a weekly feature in the newspaper since 1949, so there are many fine recipes collected in the set. If you would like to have a set of the recipe cards, you may obtain one by sending $7.50 (plus 38 cents sales tax and $1. for handling and postage) to The Canadian Record, 211 Main Street, Canadian, Texas.

Here's a sample of some of the wonderful recipes you will receive. Grace Spiller's Apple-sauce Nut Bread

2 cups flour
3/4 cup sugar
1 tbs. baking powder
1 tsp. salt
1/2 tsp. soda
1/4 cup salad oil
1/2 tsp. nutmeg
1 cup coarse chopped walnuts
1 egg, well beaten
1 cup medium thick applesauce, unsweetened

Sift dry ingredients and add nuts. Combine egg, applesauce and oil. Add to dry ingredients, stir only until blended. Pour into 5x9" greased and floured loaf pan. Bake at 350 degrees for 50 minutes. STUFFED CUCUMBERS
3 long (7-8") cucumbers, pared
1 cup flaked canned tuna or salmon
1 tsp. grated onion
1/4 cup finely chopped celery
1/2 cup bread crumbs

6 tbs. mayonnaise
2 tbs. lemon juice
1/2 tsp. salt
1/4 tsp. pepper
1/2 cup buttered crumbs
Cut pared cucumbers in half lengthwise. Boil about 5 minutes or until almost tender. Cut off thin slice the length of each cucumber, scoop out seeds and soft inside to make a shell about 1/2 inch thick. Sprinkle with salt. Chop the removed pulp and combine with fish, onion, celery, soft bread crumbs, mayonnaise, lemon juice and seasoning.
Fill cucumber shells with fish mixture. Sprinkle with buttered crumbs and a dash of paprika. Place in shallow baking dish containing a little water.
Bake in moderate oven (375 degrees) about 30 minutes or until lightly browned. Makes 6 servings.

Research shows salary secrecy may limit sales

COLLEGE STATION — A marketing professor whose research suggests lifting salary secrecy improves the performance of salespeople says the problem now is finding firms with enough guts to try it.

"If firms eliminate salary secrecy, they'll probably find out that it increases sales," said Dr. Charles Futrell of Texas A&M's College of Business Administration. "But if it does, then they probably wouldn't tell anybody."
In a study involving the measurement of job satisfaction and work performance among 508 salesmen at a pharmaceutical firm, Futrell found salesmen's performances were improved when they could compare their salaries with that of their colleagues.

The experimental pay plan allowed 152 of the company's sales representatives to know high and low merit raise amounts and overall averages. In addition, the salesmen could go to their supervisor and learn specifically who got how much.
In a follow-up study a year later, Texas A&M researchers learned salesmen within the experimental group increased their work performance, had higher salary satisfaction, were more satisfied with promotion policies and their work and they expressed more satisfaction with their co-workers.

The consumer today is bombarded with information labeled as "nutrition facts and figures". However, the consumer should beware! Reliable sources should be a major consideration when determining accuracy of food and nutrition information. Some reliable sources consumers can utilize are USDA, FDA, and Texas Agricultural Extension Service (Gray County Extension Office). All of these sources base their information on reliable research.

The following information is to let Gray County consumers know the facts concerning steam canners for home canning and the latest weight reduction aid, "Starch Blockers".

Food preservation using steam canners is not recommended when the process time is based on boiling water bath process times. Never under any circumstances should a steam canner be used for low acid foods. Since there are conflicting reports on the safety and adequacy of steam canners for canning high acid foods, we also cannot recommend the use of the steam canner until these conflicts are resolved through adequate research.

"Starch Blockers" The Food and Drug Administration has asked more than 100 manufacturers and distributors of "starch blockers" to discontinue marketing them until scientific testing confirms the safety and efficiency of these weight management products.

Starch blockers are prepared from raw beans, such as kidney and northern beans, and possible other unknown ingredients. The products have been advertised and sold nationwide with claims that they block or impede starch digestion and thus help in weight control and weight reduction by preventing absorption of carbohydrates.

Users of the products have complained to FDA of nausea, vomiting, diarrhea and stomach pains. Persons with diabetes should, not depend on starch blockers in calculating their diets.

FDA has been refused specific information by manufacturers about the exact chemical composition of starch blockers. Information supporting claims of safety or effectiveness in weight control or weight reduction has not been provided to FDA. FDA is also concerned about the safety of long-term use of starch blockers, because of the lack of adequate safety testing data.

Some manufacturers assert that starch blockers are special dietary foods. However, because the claimed effect of these products is weight control or reduction by their action to block or interfere with digestion, they may affect the body's normal metabolism function. Under the Food, Drug, and Cosmetic Act, a substance that is offered for a non-food purpose and that alters a function of the body is classified as a drug, rather than a food, even if it derived from a vegetable product.
