Memorials, Tributes To Be Included In Book

The deadline for completing family histories will soon be here and McLean-history representatives Charlie Marie Shurley and Ruth Magee are urging residents to get their histories completed.

Writing seminars will be held on Tuesdays, 1 p.m. to 5 p.m. to assist people in writing their family histories for the Gray County History Book, at Lovett Library. Typing assistance will be available and residents are asked to bring their factual material.

Families are encouraged to limit their story to one generation per story. If three generations have lived in Gray County, one for only a short period of time, they are still entitled to a free story per generation because of the difficulty in combining more than one generation in the 700 word limit.

Those wishing longer stories beyond the 700 word limit may pay an additional 10¢ per word. The words "I, a, an" are not counted. Each generation story and photograph are published free of charge.

Also to be included in the book are "Memorial" and "Tribute" pages. The MHS graduating classes of 1964 and 1966 have collected funds to have memorials in the book for Jim McCarty and Val Sharp.

Memorials and Tributes may be bought by the page, half-

Deadline for the contest to name the history book is March 15. Those wishing to enter the contest may do so by writing their suggested name for the book on a sheet of paper, which has their own name, address, and telephone number on the back. Mail entries to Gray County History Book, Box 2196, Pampa, 79065.

Happy Belated 85th Birthday to a very special, sweet lady, Sally Lou "Sudie" Haynes Campbell.

Sudie was honored with a reception Sunday in Amarillo, and although we were unable to attend, our thoughts and best wishes were with her.

Sudie always remembers us on our birthdays, and is always so faithful and diligent in sending us her good thoughts and wishes.

By the time you're reading this, the infamous "Old-Timers" basketball game will be over, and there will be a lot of sore men and women crawling around.

Hopefully, those of you who were spectators enjoyed the game, and there were not any injuries or bruised egos.

I've dreaded this game more than almost anything I can think of.

I know I'm going to be sore-yet I'm really dreading finding out how poorly I'll play compared to the "olden days".

I hope it's a fun, successful, fund-raising event, and enables the boosters club to do much good for our athletes!

This seems to be the week for urging in the paper...I've urged you to write your senator, Sam's urged attendance at the rodeo meeting, and I'm fixing to urge you one step more!

The filing date for city alderman and school trustees for McLean and Alanreed schools is less than one week away and at press time, no one has filed in Alanreed, two have filed for three positions in the city election, and one on McLean's school.

I know you...yes, you are qualified to be on one of these governing boards. I know you are concerned and interested in the welfare of the city of McLean and the education of our children.

The deadline for filing for one of the two trustee positions (at either school) or one of the three alderman spots in the city election is Wednesday, March 6...less than one week away.

Many men and women have diligently served their time trying to find ways to better McLean, Alanreed, and their students.

Isn't your turn?

And while we're urging...those of you who are able to give blood and didn't at the last

Coffee Memorial Blood Drive in January might call Bill Wilson at the Methodist Church and offer to donate a pint of the "gift of life" to help with expenses currently incurred by Marguerite Burr, who has recently undergone heart surgery in Houston.

Marguerite will need approximately 30 pints of blood and perhaps more before her ordeal is over, and the Coffee Memorial Blood Bank has agreed to come to McLean to collect blood if at least 15 people agree before-hand to donate.

Council-Approved Tax Abatement To Benefit McLean

City councilmen recently approved Ordinance 216, establishing a reinvestment zone for a commercial-industrial tax abatement in the City of McLean.

The council was petitioned by the property owners within an area of land for commercial-industrial development by interstate-40 within the city limits.

The ordinance allows prospective business to have a tax abatement for five years. All ad valorem taxes to be levied and assessed by the City during the effective period of such designation against the real property and improvements constructed thereon shall be abated in full.

The abatement of taxes is subjected to the property owners within said reinvestment zone making improvements and repairs in conformity with the city's comprehensive plan.

Councilmen felt the tax abatement is in the best interest of the City to authorize the creation of the reinvestment zone at the earliest possible date to permit the construction of improvements for the economic growth of McLean.

Presently planned for construction in this area are a Motel, Western Wear Store, and Truck Stop.

Miro Pakan Files For Council; Deadline Draws Near

Miro Pakan joined George Green as a candidate for one of the two-year alderman positions, when he filed at the city hall this week.

There are two full-term (two-year) alderman seats opening this election, one currently held by councilman W.A. Bentley. The other was held by Loyd Bybee.

Also open is an unexpired (one-year) term, previously held by Wayne Bybee, and the mayor's term, currently held by George Terry.

Boyd Lee Thompson remains the only candidate who had filed for a trustee position in the school's election. There are two seats opening this year, currently held by Joe Magee and Loyd Hunt.

At presstime, no candidates had filed for the two trustee positions open in Alanreed.

Those seats are currently held by Frank Worsham and O.J. Weldon.

The deadline for filing for any of these positions is Wednesday March 6.

Meeting Scheduled To Decide Future Of Rodeo

A meeting will be held Monday night, March 4th, at 7:30 p.m. in the Lions Building for persons interested in putting on a rodeo and celebration here the third week-end in June. The fact that the Roping Club has dissolved has left the celebration without a sponsor.

Individuals have expressed interest in having the rodeo, the horse race, the cutting horse contest, a trail ride to Amarillo, a fiddle contest, a parade, and other events in June, as it will also be the year for the school re-union.

Anyone who will work on or support any of these activities is urged to be in attendance at this

Whittler's Bench

By Sam Haynes

Appearing elsewhere in this paper is a notice for people interested in having a rodeo and celebration here this June (the third weekend) to attend a meeting Monday night at 7:30 at the McLean Lions hall. All of this McLean Lions hall. All of us should consider this very seriously as McLean has had one of the longest running rodeos in the entire Panhandle.

School Homecoming will be held at the same time, and many have expressed desires to continue the celebration. The problem will be whether those same people are interested enough to attend the meeting and then work when the time comes to actually contribute their efforts to the success of the occasion.

Hope to see you there Monday night!

The weather has really been changeable here lately, warm one day and then cold the next. I don't ever remember receiving as much rain in February as we did last week. Almost four inches were received here in town and varying amounts over the region.

I was just thinking how much better that was than a having a dust storm like the ones we had almost daily back in the fifties.

I remember one particular occasion when it had blown constantly for about a week and my sister-in-law called and said that my brother hadn't come in when he was supposed to. I immediately began a search which seemed fruitless until I recognized his hat lying on the ground. I went to pick it up and to my amazement found it had a head in it.

When I finally cleaned the dirt from the eyes and mouth of my now-found brother, he blinked his eyes, opened his mouth and said: "get a shovel, I'm horse-back!"

Now, that was a dust storm!

Gardening time is right around the corner and Jack Ayers and others are already busily engaged in plowing gardens and making all the necessary preparations. I can't wait for the weather to settle down and warm up.

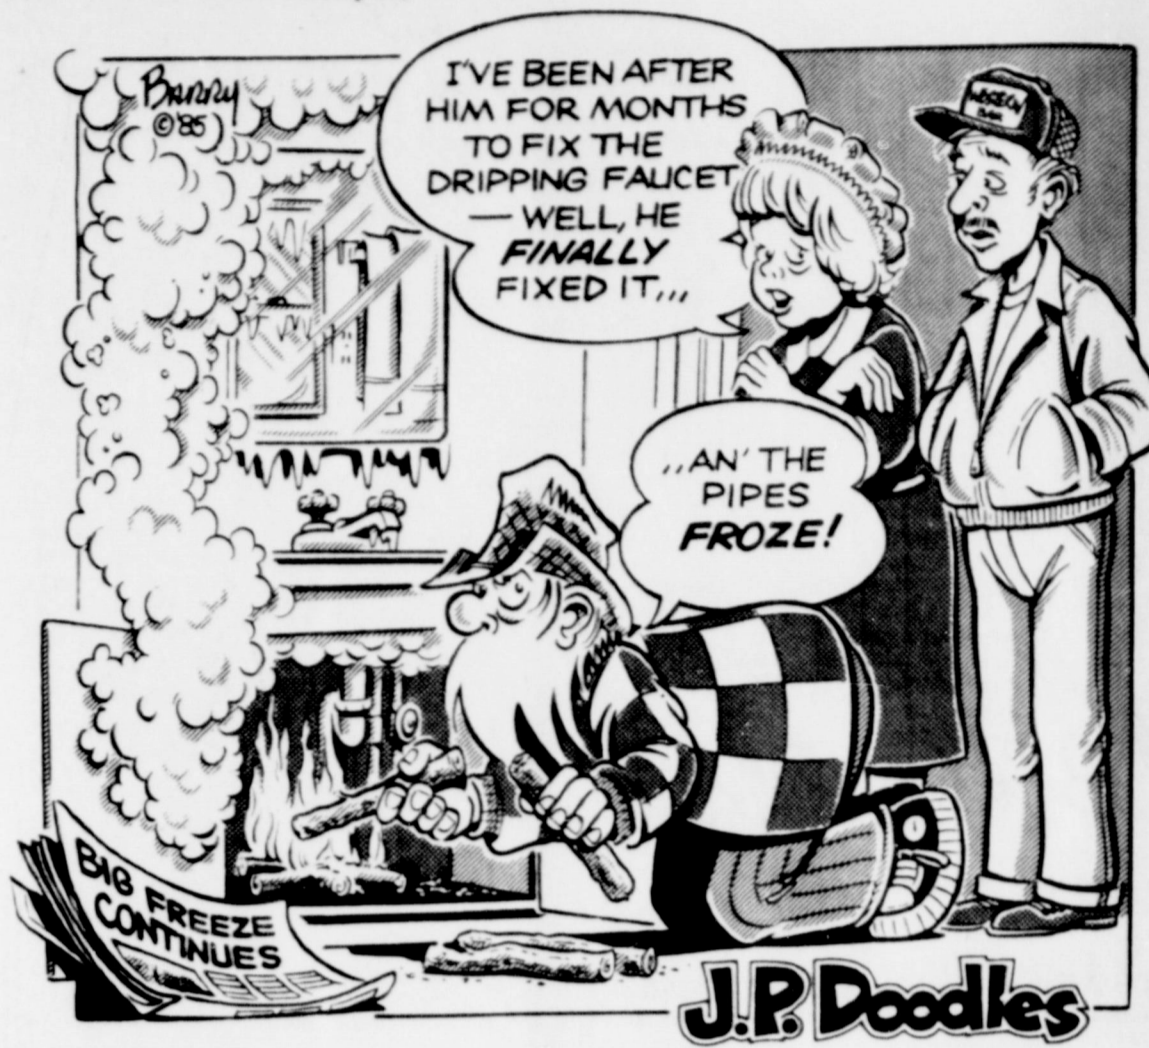

Still, we need some more cold weather to keep these fruit trees from coming out prematurely and being ruined, for the average last freeze for this country is sometime around the 10th or 15th of April.

So let's all cross out fingers and hold our breath for a few more weeks...

Letter To The Editor

[Editor's Note: The following letter to the editor appeared in Livestock Weekly and was brought to us by Bill Graham, who thought we would enjoy reading it. We did and thought you would too.]

Dear Sir:
This is comment, not criticism, with reference to the issue of Jan. 24, page 7.

Some people define parity as a price for (agricultural) products that is on a par with other prices received by producers of non-agricultural products or services.

Why do consumers seem willing to pay 50 cents for a dime drink, $4 for a $1 show, $12,000 for a $3000 car and yet expect a farmer or rancher to sell at low or below-cost prices.

Everything a cattlemans buys is high. In fact, nearly everything anyone buys is high. Wouldn't it seem that the law of averages or chance would result in higher cattle prices?

Businessmen set their price and the demand pays it. In the rancher's case the so-called demand fixes the price and the rancher accepts it.

Cattlemen need higher prices and it would seem that in an open market they ought to be able to get them. One definition of "market value" is a price at which the seller is willing to buy. Yet at an auction market or private treaty in a range sale, the price is really set by reference to "what cattle are bringing" or "the market." To say this is the price at Amarillo or Omaha just begs the question. Or to affect the price is no answer, because such conditions will always affect the price, regardless of the way it is determined.

What else could be affecting prices? Could it be the Chicago Mercantile Exchange and the futures market-is the futures market dominated by speculators, and is it possible that these speculators can manipulate the market?

There could be another factor affecting the price, and that would be market manipulation by means of monopoly or price fixing, or other such age-old devices known to traders and merchants for thousands of years, and such practices are daily prosecuted by the Department of Justice, in virtually all fields of commercial and industrial activity but are seldom if ever found in agricultural commodity markets; that is, the Department of Justice never looks for such activities.

Further, such activities operate within a market framework, and would not necessarily exclude other market manipulations. Farmers and ranchers have their share of incapable operators, as does any field of activity, and they must be distinguished. People who build office buildings are not dealing in basic commodities and are not dealing in a market that in any way resembles a commodity market. Oil operators may be dealing in a basic commodity market but they know going in that it may be manipulated or fixed in many ways, and it is subject to variances of all kinds arising from points all over the world. And in the final analysis, oil is not as basic as food.

In the last few days Sen. Dole (Kan.) said in effect, "We are not going to save agriculture or any other group in the United States" (not a direct quote), and at the same time other government officials were assuring Israel that we would save them, and the U.S. government continues to pour money down foreign ratholes all over the world.

Further, the government is engaging in bailing out big American bankers (and "big banker" is not an indefinite term) at the expense of the American taxpayer in ways that are clearly illegal even under existing laws and legal decisions. Why should a Republican senator at this time say that "we are not going to save agriculture"? The reason is a political asset or weapon. Consumers outnumber farmers, the people who control the government know that inflation is a major and serious problem, and that food and clothing are the chief concerns of consumers.

There is also evidence that there are deliberate plans to reduce the number of private citizens engaged in agriculture and to increase the ranks of large producers and corporate producers, both of whom can be more easily controlled.

At the same time and in many instances by the same methods, the number of small and rural banks is going to be reduced.

The primary moving factors in the economy and politics (and not in the sense of Republicans and Democrats of the U.S. are the Federal Department, and both are controlled by the banking and financial interests.

The attitude of most farmers and ranchers is "I don't want to talk about politics and financial intrigue. I want to stick to cattle market and not get involved in these other issues that divert the discussion."

As long as this attitude persists they will continue to decline in numbers and will lose their group and economic holdings. They will be caught up in such arguments as hedging as a benefit to a farmer, and the current idea that farming and ranching "as a way of life has to end" because the consumer won't stand for paying for it through the cost of food.

If an operator hedges and makes money, that is good. If he loses money it's not good. The method is speculative in itself and not predictable; and regardless, he should be able to do so without having to be in a market that is manipulated assuming that it is.

As to the "way of life" idea, if a man can survive in farming or ranching without direct subsidies, and do it with relatively small economic return for his time and labor because he likes what he is doing, then he is subsidizing food for the consumer. He is going broke because he's lazy or a poor manager, or because he lost a gamble when he borrowed too much, then he should take his losses and not expect to be saved by the government.

Even though in Las Vegas and at the nearest stockyards there is a winner for every loser, they all ought to have a chance to play with a deck that isn't stacked.

Senator Bill Sarpalius Reports

FORCED CONSOLIDATION UNACCEPTABLE

AUSTIN — Two of my colleagues, probably with the best of intentions, have offered the Senate a bill that is completely unacceptable to many people in District 31.

Sens. Hector Uribe, D-Brownsville, and John Leedom, R-Dallas, recently introduced Senate Bill 263, a measure that would force counties or the state to do away with school districts that have an enrollment of less than 500 students.

To that extent, the bill isn't so awful. Our only objection would be that the school districts to be annexed or combined would have no say in the matter. We would have asked the sponsors to allow the affected school boards to vote before any annexation or consolidation could be final.

Had the bill been left with just that provision, a compromise might have been possible. However, the sponsors added a second provision, one that causes us to object strenuously.

S.B. 263 also directs the State Board of Education to identify by Sept. 1 the school districts that have enrollments of less than 500. The state board then would be required to combine that school district with an adjacent district or districts to create a consolidated district of 500 or more students. This bill would affect 63 percent of the 89 school districts in District 31.

Affected districts would be notified by Sept. 15 of the proposed consolidation. New boards of trustees would be elected in early April, though there would be no provision for expanded boards to reflect the larger size of the district. The bill's sponsors say this measure would create stronger, more viable school districts in the state's rural areas. They say these consolidated districts would have larger tax bases and would be able to meet the growing financial burdens being placed on rural schools.

Their premise contains a basic flaw. School districts in rural areas often are dozens, even hundreds of miles from the next school district. The logistics of transporting students from an abolished school district to a new one 50 or 60 miles away are staggering.

If S.B. 263 passes, leaders of the new, consolidated school districts in the Panhandle and on the South Plains would have only two options. They either would have to expand greatly their transportation services to students or they would have to construct new schools at a point equidistant from the existing school district and the abandoned one.

Both options would involve new taxes and would create the very financial burden the bill is trying to avoid.

Forced consolidation might work for small school districts close to urban areas like Houston, San Antonio or Dallas, but it is not practical in the vast expanse of the Panhandle and South Plains. Nor, for that matter, would it work in far West Texas or on the Rolling Plains.

For all these reasons, we remain steadfastly opposed to S.B. 263 or any bill that would consolidate school districts without the consent of the affected district's board of trustees.

We would appreciate your comments on this matter. Please write to Sen. Bill Sarpalius, P.O. Box 12068, Austin, TX, 78711.

Opinion

...by Kathy Carter

Often in these pages, we, the editors urge you to take a stand...to write your senator, your congressman.

In this week's issue, we have included Senator Bill Sarpalius' questionnaire, and hope you'll take a minute to fill it out and return it to the Senator.

Before you mail the questionnaire, I strongly urge you to include a note condemning Senate Bill 263, a bill which Sarpalius has already taken a stand against.

SB 263, introduced by Senator Hector Uribe of Brownsville and John Leedom of Dallas, would force counties to do away with school district that have an enrollment of less than 500 students!

Possibly, for urban schools around Dallas, Brownsville, and Houston, forced consolidation would be feasible.

For McLean students attending a county school of 500 could quite probably mean riding a bus 45 miles one way.

To some of us, it could mean a bus ride of more than 60 miles.

I, for one, am not thrilled at the prospects of my six-year-old daughter riding a bus 60 miles (approximately two hours) just to get to school!

Furthermore, if I wanted Kristina in a larger school system, I would place her there.

One of the reasons Wayne and I make our home in McLean is for our children to be afforded the security of a smaller school.

I know that larger schools can sometimes offer more programs and more creative stimuli, but they can also offer more problems with which the student must cope.

Financially, as a tax-payer, I also have many qualms toward the proposed bill.

Transporting our 200 students 100 miles daily would be a financial disaster. With the passage of last summer's education bill, which requires schools to have one teacher for every 22 students, new schools will have to be built to accommodate them.

Yes, probably on paper the axing of teaching jobs (and therefore salaries) would alleviate some of the financial burden off the state. The expansion of transportation systems and construction of new schools and employment of unemployed teachers would throw the burden in our laps.

Bills similar to this one have appeared before and have not passed.

However, our contacts downstate tell us that this time, the bill has a good chance to become a law.

Texas is in financial difficulty and the legislator is looking at ways to either raise more money (lotteries and pari-mutual wagering) or severely trim the budget (forced consolidation).

Our school trustees have adopted a resolution strenuously objecting to the bill.

Please take a minute and do the same.

Senator Bill Sarpalius Reports

Dear Friends: You have placed your faith in me to be a voice for you in the 69th Session of the Texas Legislature. We face many issues which are of critical importance to the Panhandle and South Plains areas. Our primary goal always is to make sure that each vote we cast represents the wishes of a majority of the district's populace.

To that end, we have prepared a poll dealing with several major issues the Legislature will be addressing in the coming months. We would appreciate very much your taking a few minutes to fill out this poll and return it to our office. Please mail the poll to: Sen. Bill Sarpalius, P.O. Box 12068, Austin, TX, 78711.

1. Do you favor a bill that would legalize pari-mutuel wagering on horse races on a county-option basis? The bill currently before the Legislature does not provide for a constitutional referendum. ### Parents Invited To Eat With Students

Parents of local elementary children have been issued an invitation to eat lunch with their child and visit in the school one day next week, in observance of Public School Week, according to elementary principal Dorman Thomas.

"Parents might let the cafeteria staff know two or three days ahead of time when they plan to come and eat, so that there will be plenty of food for everyone," he continued.

PORK ROAST WITH GINGER ORANGE GLAZE

3 to 5 pound pork loin
1 teaspoon butter
1 small onion, finely chopped
2 tablespoons brown sugar
2 teaspoons cornstarch
1/2 teaspoon ginger
1 cup orange juice

Estimate total roasting time at 8 to 9 minutes per pound.

Place loin, fat side down, on a polysulfone roasting rack and tray. Cover with wax paper. Microwave at MEDIUM HIGH power for half of cooking time. Turn roast, fat side up, and rotate utensil one-half turn. Insert microwave thermometer into lean part of meat. Microwave at MED-IUM HIGH power until temperature on thermometer reaches 160° F; reduce power to MEDIUM LOW. Microwave 5 to 10 minutes longer or until temperature reaches 165° F. Cover with a tent of aluminum foil and let stand while preparing glaze.

In a polysulfone casserole or 2-cup glass measure, combine butter and onion. Cover and microwave at HIGH power 2 minutes. Add brown sugar, cornstarch and ginger; mix well. Blend in orange juice. Microwave at HIGH power 2 to 3 minutes or until thickened. To serve, slice roast and top with orange glaze. Glaze can be spooned over roast last 5 to 10 minutes of cooking time. Makes 8 servings.
