SYNOPSIS. --11---

Sheridan's attempt to make a business man of his son Bibbs by starting him in the machine shop ends in Bibbs going to a sanitarium, a nervous wreck. On his return Bibbs finds himself an inconsiderable and unconsidered figure in the "New House" of the Sheridans. The Vertreeses, old-town family next door and impovertshed, call on the Sheridans, newly-rich, and Mary afterward puts into words her parents' unspoken wish that she marry one of the Sheridan boys. Mary frankly encourages Jim Sheridan's attentions. Jim tells Mary Bills is not a lunatic—"just queer." He proposes to Mary, who half accepts him. Sheridan tells Bibbs he must go back to the machine shop as soon as he is strong enough, in spite of Bibbs' plea to be allowed to write. Edith, Bibbs' sister, and Sibyl, Roscoe Sheridan's wife, quarrel over Bobby Lamhorn; Sibyl goes to Mary for help to keep Lamhorn from marrying Edith, and Mary leaves her in the room alone. Bibbs has to break to his father the news of Jim's sudden death. All the rest of the family helpless in their grief, Bibbs becomes temporary master of the house. At the funeral he mets Mary and rides home with her. Bibbs purposely interrupts a tete-a-tete between Edith and Lamhorn. He tells Edith that he overheard Lamhorn making love to Roscoe's wife. Doctor Gurney finds Bibbs well enough to go back to the machine shop. Mary and Bibbs meet by accident and form a pleasant friendship. Roscoe Sheridan and his wife quarrel desperately about Bobby Lamhorn. Bibbs goes to work. Old man Sheridan hurts his hand.

If your daughter was deeply Infatuated with a good-for-nothing young man who wanted to marry her, and you wanted to break up the affair, would you let the girl see so much of her lover she would become sick of him or would you forbid him the premises and try to keep her from meeting him out? Do you believe that Edith's father handled a delicate situation of this kind properly?-as described in the following install-

"Not at all," said Blbbs. "I'm going to stand by the old zinc eater till five o'clock. I tell you I like it!"

"Then I suppose that's the end of your wanting to write."

"I don't know about that," Bibbs said, thoughtfully; "but the zinc eater least. It's better than being in busi- said. ness; I'm sure of that. I don't want lead just the life I'm leading now to mother and his sister and his sisterthe end of my days."

"Well, I rubbed it in on the old man that you had warned him not to slide his hand along too far, and that he got hurt because he didn't pay attention to your warning, and because he was trying to show you how to do something you were already doing a great deal better than he could. You tell him I'll be around to look at it and change the dressing tomorrow morning. Goodby."

But when he paid the promised visit the next morning he did more than change the dressing upon the damaged hand. The injury was severe of its kind, and Gurney spent a long time over it, though Sheridan was rebellious and scornful, being brought to a degree of tractability only by means of borrible threats and talk of amputation. However, he appeared at the dinner table with his hand supported in a sling, which he seemed to regard as an indignity, while the natural inquiries upon the subject evidently struck him as deliberate insults. Mrs. Sheridan, having been unable to contain her solicitude several times during the day, and having been checked each time in a manner that bianched "Now Then," Said Sheridan to Lamher cheek, hastened to warn Roscoe and Sibyl, upon their arrival at five. to omit any reference to the injury and | lection of records consisting excluto avoid even looking at the sling if sively of Caruso and ragtime. CHAPTER XXI.

The Sheridans dined on Sundays at five. Sibyl had taken pains not to arrive either before or after the hand was precisely on the hour, and the members of the family were all seated at the table within two minutes after she and Roscoe had entered the house.

It was a glum gathering, overhung with portents. The air seemed charged. awaiting any tiny ignition to explode; and Mrs. Sheridan's expression, as she sat with her eyes fixed almost continually upon her husband, was that of a person engaged in prayer. Edith was pale and intent. Roscoe looked ill; Sibyl looked ill, and Sherldan ked both Ill and explosive. Bibbs had more color than any of these, and te was a strange brightness. charged, and then looked away. Ros coe ate nothing. He did not once look at his father, though his father gazed heavily at him most of the time. And between Edith and Sibyl, and between Roscoe and his father, some bitter wireless communication seemed continually to be taking place throughout the long silences prevailing during this enlivening ceremony of Sabbath refec-

"Didn't you go to church this morning, Bibbs?" his mother asked, in the effort to break up one of those ghastly intervals.

"I think so," he answered, as from a roseate trance.

"You think so! Don't you know?" "Oh, yes. Yes, I went to church!" "What was the sermon about?" "What, mother?"

"Can't you hear me?" she cried. "I asked you what the sermon was

He roused himself. "I think it was about-" He frowned, seeming to concentrate his will to recollect. "I think it was about something in the Bible."

White-jacket George was glad of an pportunity to leave the room and lean ipon Mist' Jackson's shoulder in the pantry. "He don't know they was any suhmon!" he concluded, having narrated the dining-room dialogue. 'All he know is he was with 'at lady lives nex' do'!" George was right. "Did you go to church all by your-alone," "Oh?" Sibyl gave the ejaculation an upward twist, as of mocking inquiry, and followed it by another, expressive of hilarious comprehension.

Bibbs looked at her studiously, but she spoke no further. And that completed the conversation at the lugubrious feast.

Coffee came finally, was disposed of quickly, and the party dispersed to other parts of the house. Bibbs followed his father and Roscoe into the library, but was not well received.

"You go and listen to the phonograph with the women-folks," Sheri-dan commanded.

Bibbs retreated. "Sometimes you do doesn't interfere with my thinking, at seem to be a hard sort of man!" he

As the second reached its conclusion. George appeared in the broad doorway, but he did not speak. Instead, he favored Edith with a benevolent smile, and she immediately left the room, George disappearing after ber in the hall with an air of successful diplomacy. He made it perfectly clear that Edith had given him secret instructions and that it had been his pride and pleasure to fulfill them to Sibyl stiffened in her chair; her lips parted, and she watched with curious eyes the vanishing back of the white jacket.

"What's that?" she asked, in a low voice, but sharply,

"Here's another right pretty record," said Mrs. Sheridan, affecting-with patent nervousness-not to hear. And she unloosed the music.

Sibyl bit her lip and began to tap

"Where did Edith go?" she asked. "Edith?" he repeated, opening his eyes blankly. "Is she gone?" Sibyl got up and stood in the door way. She leaned against the casing. still tapping her chin with the brooch Her eyes were dilating; she was suddenly at high tension, and her expression had become one of sharp excitement. She listened intently.

tling and murmur, whispering, low, protesting cadences in a male voice. And as Mrs. Sheridan started another record, a sudden, vital resolve leaped like fire in the eyes of Sibyl. She walked down the hall and straight into the smoking room.

Lamborn and Edith both sprang to their feet, separating. Edith became instantly deathly white with a rage that set her shaking from head to foot. and Lamhorn stuttered as he tried to "Hush!" he begged, panic-stricken. "That was a manly thing to do! Oh. ft was like a gentleman! You wouldn't come-you wouldn't even come for five minutes to hear what I had to say! You were tired of what I had to say You'd heard it all a thousand times before, and you wouldn't even come No! No! No!" she stormed, "you wouldn't even come for five minutes. but you could tell that little cat! And she told my husband! You're a man!"

Edith saw in a flash that the consequences of battle would be ruinous to Sibyl, and the furious girl needed no further temptation to give way to her feelings. "Get out of this house!" she shricked. "This is my father's house. Don't you dare speak to Robert like that!"

"No! No! I mustn't speak-" "Don't you dare!"

Edith and Sibyl began to scream inults at each other simultaneously. fronting each other, their furlous faces close. Their voices shrilled and rose and cracked-they screeched. They could be heard over the noise of the phonograph, which was playing a heard in the kitchen; they could have been heard in the cellar. Neither of them cared for that.

"You told my husband!" screamed Sibyl, bringing her face still closer to Edith's. "You told my husband! This man put that in your bands to strike me with! He did!"

"I'll tell your husband again! I'll tell him everything I know! It's time your husband-"

They were swept asunder by a bandaged hand. "Do you want the neighbors in?" Sheridan thundered.

There fell a shocking silence. Frenzied Sibyl saw her husband and his mother in the doorway, and she understood what she had done. She moved slowly toward the door; then suddenly she began to run. She ran into the hall, and through it, and out of the house. Roscoe followed her heavily, his eyes on the ground.

"Now then!" said Sheridan to Lam-

The words were indefinite, but the voice was not. Neither was the victous gesture of the bandaged hand, which concluded its orbit in the direction of the door in a manner sufficient for the swift dispersal of George and Jackson and several female servants who hovered behind Mrs. Sheridan. They fled

"Papa, papa!" walled Mrs. Sheridan. "Look at your hand! You oughtn't to been so rough with Edie; you burt your hand on her shoulder. Look!"

There was, in fact, a spreading red stain upon the bandages at the tips that she thought it "right pretty," and of the fingers, and Sheridan put his hand back in the sling. "Now then!" he repeated. "You goin' to leave my house?"

"He will not," sobbed Edith. "Don't you dare order him out!"

"Don't you bother, dear," said Lamhorn, quietly. "He doesn't understand. You mustn't be troubled." Pallor was becoming to him; he looked very handsome, and as he left the room he seemed in the girl's distraught eyes a persecuted noble, indifferent to the rabble yawping insult at his beels the rabble being enacted by her fa-

But Edith screamed, clapping her hands over her ears to shut out the sound of his voice, and ran upstairs, sobbing loudly, followed by her mother. However, Mrs. Sheridan descended a few minutes later and joined her hushand in the library. Bibbs, still sitting in his gold chair, saw her pass. roused himself from reverie, and strolled in after her.

"She locked the door," said Mrs. Sheridan, shaking her head woefully. "She wouldn't even answer me. They wasn't a sound from her room.'

"Well," said her husband, "she can settle her mind to it. She never speaks to that fellow again, and if he tries to telephone her tomorrow-Here! You tell the help if he calls up to ring off and say it's my orders. No, you needn't. I'll tell 'em myself."

She's got a lot of your determination, father, and with what's going on inside of her she'll beat you. You can't keep her from seeing him, as long as she feels about him the way she does now. "All right." And Bibbs bore Sibyl's wraps across the street and delivered them to Roscoe, who met him at the door. Bibbs said only, "Forgot these," and, "Good night, Roscoe," cordially and cheerfully, and returned to the new house. His mother and father were still talking in the library, but with discretion he passed rapidly on and upward to his own room, and there he proceeded to write in his notebook.

CHAPTER XXII.

Bibbs was the only Sheridan to sleep oundly through the night and to wake at dawn with a light heart. His cheerfulness was vaguely diminished by the troublous state of affairs in his family. Ribbs was a sympathetic person, eas-

He went whistling from the house stairs. There was a fog outdoors, satshape of an automobile at the curb before Roscoe's house, he did not recognize it as Doctor Gurney's but went cheerily on his way through the dingy mist. And when he was once more installed beside his faithful zinc eater he whistled and sang to it, as other workmen did to their own machines sometimes, when things went well. His comrades in the shop glanced at liked him, and he ate his lunch at noon with a group of socialists who approved of his ideas and talked of electing him to their association.

The short days of the year had come, and it was dark before the whistles went to his office, where he divested himself of his overalls-his single divergence from the routine of his fellow workmen-and after that he used soap and water copiously. This was I've called you 'Mary!' " his transformation scene: he passed into the office a rather frail young working man noticeably begrimed, and passed out of it to the pavement a cheerfully preoccupied sample of gentry, fastidious to the point of elegance.

The sidewalk was crowded with the bearers of dinner pails, men and boys and women and girls from the workrooms that closed at five. Many hurried and some loitered; they went both east and west, jostling one another, and Bibbs, turning his face homeward. was forced to go slowly.

Coming toward him, as slowly, through the crowd, a tall girl caught sight of his long, thin figure and stood still until he had almost passed her. for in the thick crowd and the thicker gloom he did not recognize her, though his shoulder actually touched hers. He would have gone by, but she laughed delightedly, and he stopped short, startled. Two boys, one chasing the other, swept between them, and Blbbs stood still, peering about him in deep perplexity. She leaned toward him,

"I knew you!" she said. "Good heavens!" cried Bibbs. "I thought it was your voice coming out of a star!"

"There's only smoke overhead," said Mary, and laughed again. "There aren't any stars."

"Oh, yes, there were-when you laughed!" She took his arm, and they went on. "I've come to walk home with you.

THE BANKS AVONMORE

Here! Grandma, here's a present, it come a distance, too.

Tis a little pot of shamrocks and it comes addressed to you.

Yes, all the way from Ireland, and the card here mentions more—
They were gathered at your birthplace, on the banks of Avonmore.

From Ireland, do you tell me? O, dar-ling; is it true?

Acushia, let me feel them—and you say

'twas there they frem?

Well, I can scarce believe it; is it really what you say?

From my own birthplace in Ireland,
poor Ireland, far away.

I'm old, and stiff, and feeble, and in darkness—God be praised,
Yet, Katie, how it stirs, how my old heart is raised.
To feel it here so near me, the soil that fave me birth—The very soil of Ireland, let me kiss the sacred earth.

These blessed little shamrocks; I can't see them, yet I know
They bring me back the eyesight of many years ago.
And gleaming through the darkness comes the vision that I love—
The dear, green fields of Ireland and the sunny skies above.

I can see, as once I saw them, when a girl like you. I stood
Amid the furze and heather; there's the chapel, hill and wood.
There's the Abbey, clad with ivy, and the river's winding shore
And the boys and girls all playing on the banks of Avonmore.

God bless the little shamrocks, then, for calling back the scene.
The beauty of the sunshine and the brightness of the green.
Through long, long years to see it, and to see it all so plain—
O, child I'm sure you're smiling, but I'm feeling young again.

And though I'm truly thankful for the blessings that God's band. Has brought around me, Katie, in this great and happy land, I can't forget the old home, midst the comforts of the new, My heart is three parts buried where these little shamrocks grew.

50------United States Vaults in New York Full of Gold

N EW YORK.—There is about seven hundred millions of gold bullion and coin that the assay office in New York city has been unable to safeguard because of its lack of facilities, and which it has put into the custody of the subtreasury, its next-door neighbor.

In the subtreasury the boxes containing this fortune are piled so high and take so much room that only a canyon between is left as an aisle for those who must walk through the vault. The congestion is unprecedented.

Besides, there is no responsibility in the subtreasurer for the safety of the gold. The director of the mint hold their vigil on the summit. There and his subordinates in charge of the assay office are bonded to insure the safety of precious metals in their sustody. And, furthermore, apparently, the subtreasurer here is not delighted with the custody of all this wealth, even though he is not directly responsible. So arrangements are to be made to restore the gold to the custody of the mint. Assistant Secretary Vogel of the New York subtreasury has arranged with Supt. Adam Joyce of the Philadelphia mint to take at least $600,000,000 of gold into his charge.

There is already stored in the mint at Philadelphia over $470,000,000 in gold bricks. The increment from New York will mean that an additional billion dollars in gold will be together in one place.

An idea of just how much gold is involved may be gained from the fact that a gold brick two inches thick, three and one-half inches wide and nine Inches long is worth $8,000. In $1,000,000,000 there would be about 125,000 of these gold bricks. If placed end to end, they would stretch 18 miles. If they were bricks of clay, they would fill 55 wagons. But no wagon would be strong enough to carry the weight of a wagonload of gold.

The latest grievance—the abelition of the ambulance service for contaglous disease-following upon the city's attempt to place a garbage plant on Staten Island and the island's joining with New Jersey cities in the preferential rate fight, has fomented a spirit of rebellion not unmixed with a desire for retaliation upon the authorities who are responsible.

In addition to the abolition of the ambulance service, residents of Staten Island have heard that the sterilization and fumigation plant erected by the city is to be abandoned, as the cost of upkeep has been reported excessive. The matter of taking persons with contagious diseases on public ferryboats s expected to be made a subject for inquiry by Albert C. Fach, district attorney of Richmond borough.

New Yorkers Must Go Far to Locate a Mail Box A FRIEND'S

For five years designs were suggested and rejected, until finally, about a year ago, the Art society approved a design submitted. FRUIT LAXATIVE FOR SICK CHILD

"California Syrup of Figs" can't harm tender stomach, liver and bowels.

Every mother realizes, after giving her children "California Syrup of Figs" that this is their ideal laxative, because they love its pleasant taste and it thoroughly cleanses the tender little stomach, liver and bowels without griping.

When cross, irritable, feverish, or breath is bad, stomach sour, look at the tongue, mother! If coated, give a teaspoonful of this harmless "fruit laxative," and in a few hours all the foul, constipated waste, sour bile and undigested food passes out of the bowels. and you have a well, playful child again. When its little system is full of cold, throat sore, has stomach-ache, diarrhoea, indigestion, colic-remember, a good "inside cleaning" should always be the first treatment given.

Millions of mothers keep "California Syrup of Figs" handy; they know a teaspoonful today saves a sick child tomorrow. Ask at the store for a 50cent bottle of "California Syrup of Figs." which has directions for bables, children of all ages and grown-ups printed on the bottle. Adv.

Exhibition of Rare

Chinese Curios High School Auditorium Saturday, March 17 7:30 p. m.

The proceeds, with the funds already provided, will be used to help pay the tuition of the Senior Class for the last month of school

This collection of Curios was made by Mr. and Mrs. J. W. Ragsdale while the latter was for thirteen years United States Consul General to Tientsin, China.

The collection consists of beautiful and valuable objects of which we can only enumerate a few, such as silk and wool hand hade rugs. A Yack hair rug from Tibet, one of the rarest rugs n the world. 'A Cloisonne Vase 300 years old. Imperial Mon hie Embroideries. One garment of Tapestry (kossu) which is alued at $1,000. A Palace Braser of open work brass-very old land embroideried satin screen presented to Mrs. Ragsdale by Yuan Shi Kai, first president of the Chinese Republic.

Mrs. Ragsdale will explain the manufacture and use of the collection and will also tell something of the manners and customs of the people of China.

Instantly the soreness disappears, then shortly you will find the corn or callus so loose that you can lift it right off.

Freezone is wonderful. It fries instantly. It doesn't eat away the corn or callus, but shrivels it up without even irritating the surounding skin. Hard, soft or corns be-painful calluses, lift right off. There is no pain before or afterwards. If your druggist hasn't freezone, tell him to order a small bottle for you from his wholesale drug house .- adv.

As the clover leafhopper spends the winter under clumps of grass, weeds Clover Leafhopper-a, and trash, the burning of rubbish and vegetation during winter months in waste places and along fence rows and roadsides will do much to prevent the pest attaining destructive numbers the following year. This precaution will destroy great number of other hibernating insects as well as the leafhop-

SEVEN YEARS AGO

Then He Had 6 Mules, $660 Cash and Some Equity—Today He Has $20,000 and Owns 2 Sections of Land.

The story of the wealth of Western Canada cannot be told too often; the truth will bear repeatings. And in telling of it it is hoped that advantage will be taken of the great opportunities that Western Canada offers by those who are today struggling for a mere existence, by those who are occupying lands, high in price and high in rentals.

From grain, live stock and dairying in 1916, there was a return from the three Prairie Provinces of $258,000,000, or an increase of four million dollars over 1915, and 118 million dollars over

A prominent Trust Company says Some of our contract holders have paid off their purchase money on lands bought a year ago out of this year's crop, and what one man can do another can do. Thousands of Southern Alberta farmers harvested an average of 40 to 50 bushels of No. 1 wheat to the acre. These farmers have more real money to spend than any other people on the American Continent. J. D. Johnston of Bladsworth, Sask., left Johnson County, Kansas, seven years ago. When he left he had $660 in cash, six mules, some settler's effects and an equity in some prairie land. Mr. Johnston tells his story:

"In my seven years' residence in Saskatchewan, I have raised seven good crops the value of this year's and be cured. Delay and pay the awful crop alone being Twenty thousand dollars. I now own Two Sections of impressions. Price $1.00 and 50c.—Adv. proved land, 17 horses and mules, 40 cattle, a large steam thresher and a full line of farm machinery."

We have made five trips to Kansas, one trip to the Pacific Coast and return. We have enjoyed the society of a class of people than whom none oetter can be found. The climate is healthful and invigorating. The soil is fertile and productive, well adapted for the production of the best quality and large yields of all cereals and vegetables, wild and tame grasses. It is an excellent stock country."

The question of taxes is one that carries with it considerable weight. Coming from a man like Mr. Johnston the same weight should be given the answer. He says:

The tax system especially commends itself to me as being simple, reasonable and just. The P. & O. No. 111 Lister

This lister is known to farmers wherever sold as P. & O. No. 11, but the improved type is called No. 111 on account of important improvements.

There are more of them in the hands of farmers than all other makes combined, over 2,000 sold by one dealer in one county in West Texas. The special features on this Lister made it deserving of its immense sale. Its use is not confined to preparing for row crops; it is now almost universally used for plowing for small grain crops by listing and re-listing, leaving the ground in oval waves, which not only catches and holds the moisture but prevents the loose soils of the West

The adjusting link on front end of beam is an important exclusive feature on the No. 111, absolutely preventing the point from running below the desired depth. The wheels are provided with dust-proof boxes, an immense help in the sandy loam lands of the West. The seeding device absolutely deposits one seed at a time of any of the row crops, besides can be equipped for both corn and cotton. You will have to see this wonderful improvement to appreciate it. The tilting hoppers allow change of plates out emptying them. Furnished with either disc or shovel coverers. This Lister embodied many other important features that will convince you that it is the best on the market.
