Lowery Dies In Miami

Rev. J. P. Lowry, pastor of the Miami and Pampa Methodist churches, died in Miami at 7 o'clock Sunday morning. While not in the best of health for the past year or two, the deceased was able to attend to church duties until two weeks ago, when his condition became serious.

Funeral services, conducted by Rev. T. J. Hicks, presiding elder of the district, were held in Miami Sunday afternoon, after which the remains were shipped to Amarillo by Undertaker N. S. Griggs of this city, who again forwarded them to Chico, Texas, Monday morning, where interment will take place.

Deceased has been a resident of the Panhandle for the past six years, two of which were spent in the pastorate at Miami and Pampa. He is survived by a wife and two sons, the latter 12 and 15 years of age respectively.—Amarillo News.

Rev. Lowery was pastor of the local Methodist church for two years and was a man well liked. Hosts of friends here will learn with regret of his sudden demise and join with us in extending sincere sympathy to his excellent wife and children in their sad bereavement.

will be held at Corn Valley, in Wheeler county, this place having won over Alanreed by a vote of sixteen to twelve. There were no representatives from Alanreed but in view of the fact that that place had never entertained the association it was the desire of many of the delegates and visitors that it go there next time.

The retiring president, J. S. Earp, has served continually since the organization of the convention four years ago and would undoubtedly have been re-elected had he not specifically requested that this place be filled by some one else. He has been a faithful and consistent worker for the upbuilding of the convention and it is largely through his untiring efforts that it has grown to its present importance.

To Continue Road Work

When the move was first inaugurated looking to the closing of all the local business institutions on Thursday of each week and spending the day in a tual labor on the roads leading into McLean, there were those who said "them town fellers will soon get enough of that proposition". This was rather a poor prophecy in face of the fact that now the initial agreement has expired, the "town fellers" having spent five days of sincere effort in trying to complete the piece of road from here to the county line east, and practically every one of them responded to the second call extending the time limit until the first of September—two more months.

One more day, or two at the outside, will be sufficient for the present on the highway road and then the other roads leading into the town will demand the attention of the boosters. Having in mind the absolute necessity for continued effort along the lines already attempted, the local road association decided to circulate a second agreement calling for the closing of business houses until the first of September—one day a week—and the response has been most flattering. Below we give a list of those signing the agreement, which reads as follows:

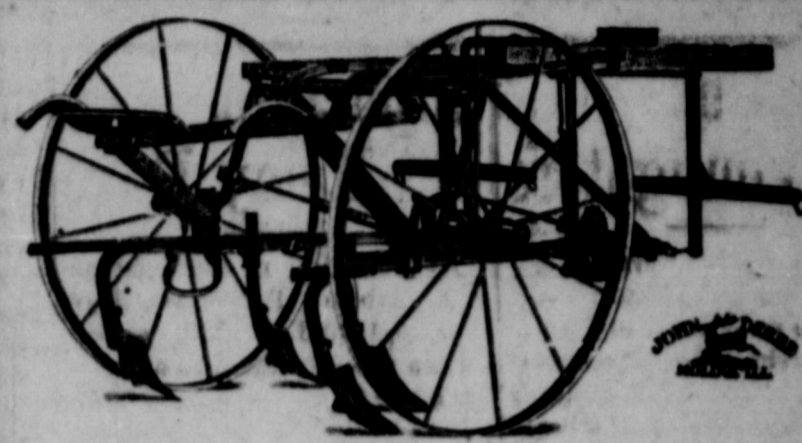

"We, the undersigned business houses of McLean, Gray county, Texas, hereby mutually agree to continue closing our respective places of business on Thursday of each week, and devote said time to working on the roads tributary to McLean; said agreement to continue in force until September first, A. D. 1914."

The following signatures have been attached up to this writing and it is hoped and believed that the few who failed will fall in line with the progressive movement before another Thursday:

It was thought best not to solicit a closing agreement from the hotels and restaurants as their business is of a nature that it is impossible to suspend, even for a day, but we have had the assurance of each proprietor that he is in hearty accord with the movement and it is believed that they will all be represented on the road.

This subsequent agreement settles the question as to whether or not the business men are willing to put their shoulder to the wheel of progress and put a half their muscle in an effort to

The Singing Convention

Folks who attended the meeting of the Wheeler County District Singing Convention at the Heald school house on last Sunday had the pleasure of enjoying a most successful meet. Singers from classes all over the district were there and the big crowd overflowed the building to such an extent that there was not even standing room. Fifteen or twenty leaders participated in the conducting of the songs and lovers of music were permitted to feast on the good old songs of our fathers as well as the latest productions of modern composers. The excellent little book written and compiled by J. S. Earp and L. Q. C. Taylor was used but little in view of the fact that it had been very badly printed and the authors announced that they would send it back to the publishers for revision before offering it to the public. The book contains many good compositions and will take its place among the leaders when it is placed on the market.

At the noon hour the good ladies of the Heald community sustained their enviable reputation for hospitality by inviting the visitors to participate in a "dinner on the ground" that was par excellence. A long table had been arranged on the school grounds and from every conceivable hiding place and nook and cranny the baskets, tubs and boxes began to appear as soon as the crowd was dismissed for dinner. Soon the table was piled "knee high" with good things to eat of every imaginable kind. Those of us who were not used to such high living probably made spectacles of ourselves by the enthusiastic manner in which we responded to the invitation to partake and by the splendid tenacity displayed in staying on the job.

The afternoon session was quite as pleasurable as that of the morning, but was cut short by the business session. The election of officers resulted as follows: President, Willie Weeks of Corn Valley; Vice president, T. L. Harris of Gracey; secretary and treasurer, Mr. Smith of Corn Valley. The next meeting of the convention

EXCELLENT QUALITIES OF KARAKULE SHEEP

Karakule Ewe and Twin Lambs.

(By HAILAN D. SMITH, Kansas Agricultural College, Manhattan, Kan.)

Persian lamb, astrakhan and krimmer furs, for which the United States pays $14,000,000 annually to Russian farmers, can be grown just as profitably in the United States, a Kansas farmer has shown. L. M. Crawford, a rancher near Cottonwood Falls, has been so successful in producing these furs by crossing Karakule sheep from Asia on native long wool breeds that the Kansas Agricultural college, seeing the possibilities of an industry of much promise, has entered into a co-operation with the Kansas rancher for the development of the new farming. The agricultural college will send its expert assigned to the fur farming experiment, Dr. R. K. Nabours, to Hokkara, Central Asia, this summer to study Karakule fur farming in its native country. The knowledge thus gained will be applied in perfecting a sheep fur industry on the Kansas ranch which, it is thought, will be of the utmost importance to United States farmers. Dr. Nabours will leave in May and will be gone four months. Crawford has a large part of the only Karakule herd ever brought to the United States. He is the pioneer in the attempt to grow the much desired Asiatic furs in this country. On 300 white Lincoln and Cotswold ewes he is crossing purebred and half blood Karakule rams. Pelts from the lambs when only a few days old have been sold on New York markets for $3 to $10 apiece. The pelts are valuable even if the lambs are born dead or die soon after birth. The importance of this fact is realized when it is considered that now the thousands of lambs that die in this country every year are complete losses.

Nearly 600 curly, lustrous black lambs bearing valuable furs had arrived on the Kansas fur farm from April 1. One hundred and fifty of these were from half-blood Karakule-Lincoln rams on Lincoln and Cotswold ewes. The pelts of these lambs were hardly distinguishable from those of the purebred Karakule on Lincoln and Cotswolds. This fact, and the further fact that only five of the 150 were white and three spotted, are considered the most important of this year's results, inasmuch as it proves that a half-blood Karakule ram which can be bought for $150 will bring lambs with pelts almost as valuable as a purebred Karakule which sells for $1,000 to $1,200. Sheepmen, therefore, could get a start in fur production on a very small investment.

Aside from its fur-bearing characteristics the Karakule sheep has excellent mutton qualities, the Kansas test has proved. Crossed on American breeds this strain causes a remarkable increase in weight and seems absolutely to breed out the woolly or musklike flavor of the meat of native sheep. The Karakule also is a very hardy sheep. In fact its many desirable qualities, proved since its importation to America, have convinced the Kansas college experts of the advisability of its wide introduction on this continent. The tests on the Crawford farm are being made to that end.

BEST FERTILIZER FOR THE GARDENS

Trials Have Proved That Mixture of Artificial Manure Produces Excellent Yields.

Numerous experiments have proved the high value of a mixture of artificial manure for potatoes, consisting of four hundredweight of superphosphate and two hundredweight of sulphate of ammonia and two hundredweight of sulphate of potash per acre. This dressing should give a good crop, even when no farmyard manure is available, though ten tons of that manure per acre is a valuable addition. When the last is applied the sulphate of ammonia and potash may be reduced to half a ton each. Trials have proved that these manures produce their best results when placed in drills under the seed potatoes. Growers who plant only a few rods may have difficulty in getting locally small quantities of the artificial manures named; but there are some large town firms who sell them by the bags. A ready-made potato manure from a firm of high reputation may answer equally well, although it will cost a little more than its constituents cost when bought by the ton. A deep stirring of the soil, without bringing the subsoil to the top, is a security against drought.

GREEDY HOGS ARE MOST DESIRABLE

Breeders Might Well Devote Themselves to Developing Appetite Instead of Points.

The Oregon agricultural station has found out by actual feeding tests that the hog which eats most greedily is the most profitable. Thirty pigs were divided into three lots, the heaviest eaters in one lot, and the others graded according to their capacity for consuming feed.

A hundred hogs like the heaviest eaters, at the rate of gain made and present prices, would make a profit of $297.65, or almost exactly $2 a head. A hundred like the poorest feeders would have made a profit of $115.85, or only a little more than a dollar a head. They were evenly graded as to size and sex. If there is this great difference between the heavy eating hogs and the light eaters—and most hog growers will agree that the breeders might well devote themselves to developing appetite in hogs, instead of to fancy points. If the appetite makes the profits, breed appetite.

SOUTH SEA ISLANDS

Recall Adventures of Daniel Defoe's "Robinson Crusoe."

Cannibals and Pirates Have Gone, But Islands Are Still Rich in Romance as of Yore—Civilization Has Done Little There.

New York—Almost every one who can remember his "Swiss Family Robinson," "Treasure Island" or "Robinson Crusoe" has some knowledge of the existence of innumerable little tropical islands in the South Pacific ocean. If he can recall his boyhood impressions of these islands and the stories of romance and adventure with which he associated them at that time he will remember some of the most thrilling and delightful moments of his life. Growing older, he has drifted away from the pleasures of his early youth and has probably not lived over in his mind the experience of Robinson Crusoe for many years. And if he has he has put aside the thoughts as childish fancies, outside the bounds of reason and not to be considered in the day dreams of a mature mind. If he has learned more of these islands than was taught by the authors of interesting fiction he has probably believed that all the romance has gone out of the South Seas, that the tropical verdure has been replaced by cultivated lands and that commercialism has destroyed all that which so appealed to his imagination in youth. To those who have visited them within recent years the South Sea islands are still as rich in romance, if not in adventure, as in the days of which Stevenson wrote, and more beautiful than they have ever been painted by brush or pen. It is true there are no cannibals on the islands, nor pirates in the surrounding seas, but if one is searching for adventure it can easily be found, either in accompanying a pearl-diving expedition to one of the numerous atolls (coral islands), climbing the gigantic peaks or exploring the mysterious caverns that extend to unknown depths beneath the mountains. Also a three months' cruise on a pearl trader's schooner will afford ample opportunity for excitement and adventure.

Outside the principal villages on the larger islands, the islands themselves have undergone little or no change. Civilization has done little in the South Sea islands outside of putting an end to cannibalism, except to put more clothing on the natives who live in town and to erect a few buildings to mar the natural scenery.

Semi-civilized, yet retaining almost all their native simplicity, the natives are still the South Sea Islanders of a hundred years ago. They are still children of nature, although they are forced to obey the laws of the white nations which now rule them. Their simple nature has not rebelled against this invasion and they have gone on under the new order, living their easy going lives as before.

One of the principal groups of the Australasian archipelago is the Society islands, and in this cluster is found the gem of them all, the pearl of the South Seas—Tahiti. Beautiful as the artist's conception of the Garden of Eden, with a climate that is surprisingly temperate the year round, the island is one of the tropical fruits known to the world, there is probably not another spot on the face of the globe so favored by nature at Tahiti, the "Paradise of the Pacific." The shores of the island, fringed with coconut palms, are surrounded by coral reefs which protect them from the heavy seas. High mountains shield the most densely populated side of the island from the trade winds, and over all looms Mount Orohena, towering 8,000 feet above the sea, and which, so far as is known, has never been scaled by man.

Green Serge and Taffeta for Afternoon

ONE of the prettiest models for an afternoon gown has been developed by Green of Paris. It is unusually plain and it is unusually shapely. Yet it is strictly in the mode, and the mode started out to be very fussy. But Americans would not have too much fussiness. Hence it is a quiet and much-chastened mode exemplified in the model shown in the picture.

The skirt is draped in plaits folded over toward the left side, with a short split at the hem. It hangs in at the ankles and out a little at the hips. The underbodice is a separate garment of silk and lace.

The little coat is cut with kimono sleeves and shaped to the figure at the front by folding it in from the swell of the bust downward. A short basque is shaped into a semi-fitting back and short rounded end. A double ruffle, widening toward the back, is sewed to the edge of the coat and gives the effect of a shaped overskirt. There is a smart finish of military cord and silk tassels across the front.

The sleeves are three-quarter length, terminating in a ruffle trimmed to a point. There is an underruffle of silk and a cord finish.

There is no coat collar, but a tie of plaid silk makes a pretty finish at the neck. But in the matter of the neck finish there is latitude here for the use of any of the modish collars of lace or net which the makers of neckwear have provided for the prevalent styles.

Taking it altogether, this is a costume which is far more satisfactory to the possessor of a good figure than most of those furbeled and full, hanging or bunched effects to which fashion gives countenance, but her devotees give a rather wide berth.

Designed for Youthful Wearers

HATS for misses and little girls do not noticeably reflect the modes that are in the ascendant for their grown-up sisters. The sailor shape for misses, like that shown in the picture, the poke-bonnet shapes and wider brimmed droopy hats, almost cover the field of choice for the miss. But these few dominant ideas have been so variously developed that there is no monotonous sameness.

For little girls the bonnet shapes, the sombrero and some small replicas of the simplest shape worn by their elders, provide a wide enough choice. For the copyist who finds it worth while to trim the children's millinery at home, the four hats pictured here are excellent models to follow. It is no more difficult to trim these shapes at home than to make dresses for the same young wearers.

A quality of the trimmed poke bonnet of the picture, is trimmed with a wreath of forget-me-nots and a plain white No. 60 satin ribbon. The hat is faced with the ribbon, and the shoulder is sewed of progress and put a half inch in an effort to Satin messaline is the ribbon chosen, in any light color. It is tied in a four-looped bow at each side. Finally the wreath of forget-me-nots is adjusted. It extends about the base of the crown at the front and along the edge of the ruffle at the back.

The small and wonderfully artistic "sombrero" in the next picture is trimmed with a cord, very appropriately, and finished with a ribbon ruffle about the brim, beaded with the cord. Loops and ends of this cord make the finish.

One of the hats, for an older girl, is a sailor shape with oblong crown. There is a collar of fancy silk braid in rich colorings and a fan of satin ribbon in the color which predominates in the braid, at the front.

The remaining hat is a sailor with a round crown covered with overlapping rows of narrow ribbon over the crown. There is a wide band of braid on the side-crown and six small loops of satin ribbon, doubled, set about the base of the crown at intervals. Following the copy one runs no more turning out an amateurish-looking hat as the result of painstaking effort in home trimming.

AVOID SPREADING OF DISEASE

Precautions That Should Be Observed by Those Afflicted With Tuberculosis.

All persons who are intimately associated with cases of active pulmonary tuberculosis cannot be too cautious about the proper disposition of tubercular sputum. Such sputum should always be received in cups containing a five per cent solution of lysol or carbolic acid, or, in the absence of these, milk of lime. Paper cups, made especially for this purpose, may be used and subsequently burned. Soiled handkerchiefs and cloths should be immersed for one hour in lysol or carbolic acid (five per cent) and then boiled before they are handled. The patient should be provided with a set of dishes for his exclusive use, and these should be kept by themselves and boiled thoroughly after each meal. Remember that tuberculosis is a preventable disease, but that its control can be accomplished only by the strictest observance of sanitary precautions.

HER MOTHER-IN-LAW Proved a Wise, Good Friend.

A young woman out in Ia. found a wise, good friend in her mother-in-law, jokes notwithstanding. She writes:

"I was greatly troubled with my stomach, complexion was blotchy and yellow. After meals I often suffered sharp pains and would have to lie down. My mother often told me it was the coffee I drank at meals. But when I'd quit coffee I'd have a severe headache.

"While visiting my mother-in-law I remarked that she always made such good coffee, and asked her to tell me how. She laughed and told me it was easy to make good 'coffee' when you use Postum.

"I began to use Postum as soon as I got home, and now we have the same good 'coffee' (Postum) every day, and I have no more trouble. Indigestion is a thing of the past, and my complexion has cleared up beautifully.

"My grandmother suffered a great deal with her stomach. Her doctor told her to leave off coffee. She then took tea but that was just as bad.

"She finally was induced to try Postum which she has used for over a year. She traveled during the winter over the greater part of Iowa, visiting, something she had not been able to do for years. She says she owes her present good health to Postum."

Name given by Postum Co., Battle Creek, Mich. Read "The Road to Wellville," in pkgs.

Postum now comes in two forms: Regular Postum—must be boiled. 15c and 25c packages. Instant Postum—is a scuder. A teaspoonful dissolved in a cup of hot water, and sugar, makes instantly, 37- in two. The Paxton school about thirty.

Fort Worth, Tex., June—The Statistical Department of the Texas Business Men's Association has just issued a statement dealing with the counties of Texas and the United States. The significant facts contained in the report are: Texas has more counties than any other state in the Union; Rhode Island has the smallest number. The largest county in the United States is San Bernardino, California and contains 20,157 square miles; Bristol County, Rhode Island is the smallest and its area is 24 square miles. All states with the exception of Louisiana are divided into counties and its subdivisions are known as parishes. In the entire United States there are 2,957 counties, 19 independent cities, and one national park.

The counties of Texas lead the nation in many respects. Ellis County, Texas, leads all other counties in the value of farm crops produced annually.

Odd Fellows Meeting.

A. W. Haynes, J. T. Hicks and Jeff Earp returned Saturday of last week from Plainview where they had been in attendance upon the annual meeting of the Panhandle Odd Fellows Association as delegates from the local lodge. They report a most delightful time and a splendid meeting in every sense of the word. On account of the fact that Clarendon had already made a strong line-up for the convention in 1915 the local men did not present the claims of this place, but lent their efforts to Clarendon with the hope of being in better position to ask for the meeting in 1916.

The Clarendon boosters were there and won the next meeting by a large majority. The Panhandle Odd Fellows Association is composed of representatives from all the lodges in this section of the state and they attend the meetings several hundred strong.

Car Turns Over.

G. S. Loyd and his wife, both sustained painful injuries about the head and shoulders and Miss Bessie Fondren was slightly injured last Sunday afternoon when the auto in which they were riding turned over. Mr. Loyd was at the wheel and in descending a hill the wheels in some manner buckled under the car and turned completely over, stopping with the wheels in the air and the engine still running. All the occupants of the car were caught under it but in view of the fact that the top was up and prevented the heavy body of the car from falling on them they escaped more serious injury. Mr. Loyd is a beginner in the mysteries of Ford manipulation and announces his intention in the future of giving more attention to horses and plows than things of that kind and an expert "chiffonier" who understands just how to make a safe landing when the machine takes a parachute leap. Had the car that turned over been properly handled it could have been given more impetus and forced to light on its feet a running.

THE DINING ROOM, FRESH COOKING IN

GRILL IN LIVING ROOM HIDE

WING GLASSED WINDOW SHOWS THE KITCHEN

The earliest expert on record who made a scientific study of devices for economizing floor space and simplifying the labors of housewives was the Old Lady in the Shoe. History tells us that she was an extreme advocate of decreasing the size of dwellings, for even though seriously handicapped by the possession of a large family, she succeeded in keeping house in an ordinary piece of footwear. However, her home lacked all the modern conveniences usually demanded by people of the present day. She was barely able to feed her babies, and had not time to dream of such appliances as furnaces, plumbing and washing machine.

Since the days of this aged eccentric woman, our cities have grown up at amazing speed, and since mechanical inventions have raised the standard of living so that even the underpaid clerks insist on all sorts of improvements in plumbing and fixtures for their residences, the problem of constructing attractive homes in the small space available for the average family perplexes architects and engineers more than ever in the past. Tenis, portable houses, and cheap apartment buildings are endorsed where necessary, but none of these is fully satisfactory.

An experiment carried on by Adam Int-Hout that has stood the test of weather for a winter and a summer without showing a defect seems to be the best solution offered. Professionally, Mr. Int-Hout is a chemist, but he has studied physics and engineering as an avocation in his interest in settling the housing question, and has designed his own home according to the results of his scientific calculations.

On a fifty foot lot, shaded under a pair of arching elm trees, stands his artistic folding bungalow, made in six weeks on a foundation of concrete covered with stucco, the total expense amounting to only $2,000. The flower beds and garden, with the cottage twenty-six feet square seemingly planted in their center, make the spot a pleasant haven in the evening following a day's work in the torrid city. Still, it is the interior of the little house where Mr. Int-Hout displays his ingenuity in eliminating many worries of the housekeeper.

In acceptance of an invitation to dinner, one crosses an eight by ten foot porch to the door bell, and is received by the host and his wife in a comfortable, large living room extending nearly the entire width of the house. Mrs. Int-Hout retires for a few moments to the kitchen, where by means of numerous mechanical arrangements she does her housework unassisted more easily than most women with servants. The chemist at once begins to show off the wonders of his studies, and he directs the visitor up a flight of stairs leading out of one end of the living room. During his climb the guest notices that the balustrade is cleverly planned as a book case, thus serving the owner doubly. At the top of the steps one finds a bedroom, fifteen and one-half feet square. Good ventilation for this chamber is insured by two glass doors, one on the north side and the other on the south, which lead out on to a pair of sleeping porches.

is preparing the dinner he cannot take the visitor to the kitchen, the remaining room on the first floor. Both on account of general curiosity and because of his hungry impatience for something to eat, the guest by this time is wondering where the dining room can be and why Mr. Int-Hout does not offer him a glimpse of it. He is distracted, however, by noticing the unusual, artistic iron grill running from floor to ceiling in the center of one side wall, and apparently serving no particular purpose. At one side of this hang three handsome watercolors, and farther along is a swinging door opening into the kitchen, through which Mrs. Int-Hout at this instant emerges. The housewife places her hand lightly on a spot in the wall, and the caller rubs his eyes and pinches himself to find whether he is awake when he sees the whole partition, paintings and all, suddenly start to disappear into the kitchen, while on the other side of the revolving wall there comes into view a small sideboard with glass front, and rolling along before the wall comes a large dining table, all white and tempting with its covering of napkins, silverware, and viands. With an easy shove, the table is moved away from the wall and half the parlor is completely transformed into a dining room.

When the party is ready for dessert, Mrs. Int-Hout does not need to excuse herself while she clears the table. She merely turns to the buffet at her back, opens up a drawer on which the next course stands already served and which at the same time is used to keep the soiled plates of the previous course out of sight. At the conclusion of the meal, the inventor of the folding bungalow pushes the table over to the wall and sets the machinery in motion, when, presto!—the dining room has vanished and the persons have moved to the living room without taking a step. Mr. Int-Hout never allows dirty dishes to interfere with her evening pleasures, because in a few odd minutes she can go to the kitchen, where the dining table stands beside the sink and laundry tub, and convert the aid of an automatic dish washer, installed only recently, can wash the room tidied in almost no time. The chemist has computed accurately the time and work saved by this scheme, and estimates that for every half a mile of useless walking back and forth from kitchen to living room, and he notices a difference in her happiness proportionate to the saving of this wasted energy.

The evening is not completed, of course, until the husband has explained to you his heating system, which is the most important feature of any house to a man. He started his first winter in the building with a single stove placed in a small closet at the center of the first floor where all four rooms come together. He soon discarded this, however, for a school furnace, protected by a drum. Cold air holes were ordered drilled along the bottom of this drum to the height of fourteen inches. As it sent heat in every direction the side partitions to the closet were cut off above and below at the same height from the floor as the cold air holes—the front partition, beside the revolving wall, was already an open grill.

The unpleasant task of carrying coal for the furnace is eliminated in this inventor's system. There is a half-way two feet wide running to the closet from the outside between the bathroom and kitchen, intended originally to give access to the gas and water meters, and medicine chest. Now in this narrow space the owner has built a chute, the outside end being at the right height to receive the load from the delivery wagon. The chute holds two tons, and slopes down at such an angle that the coal slides to the bottom by gravitation, and the operator can get a shoveful right at the furnace door.

Another feature of the furnace is a revolving dust pan, in which there is no sinking or dumping to make extra work for either the man or the woman of the family.

With this ingenious arrangement absolute suction for drawing in cold air is effected. Its success as a basis of a heating and ventilating scheme is shown by the fact that the house was kept warm all winter on less than five tons of coal.

MONUMENT TO SOUTHERN WOMEN

This monument to the Southern women of the Confederacy is to be unveiled at Raleigh, N. C., on July 10. It represents a boy holding his father's sword and being told the story of the war by his mother. The monument was designed by Augustus Lukeman.

An experiment with four blind telephone operators is now being made at the general post office in Turin.

Riding Underneath the Horse.

During the Russo-Japanese war an officer of Cossacks offered to carry a dispatch which ten horsemen had already failed to get through. The general said that the effort was useless.

"The others have failed," the officer insisted, "because they traveled on horseback. I shall go under my horse."

The general was astonished; but the officer's offer was finally accepted. He started off in the middle of the night, strapped face downward under his horse, which he guided by means of the bridle through the forests. The Japanese whistled to what they thought was a riderless horse. But the animal, egged on by blows from the officers' heels, accomplished the journey of 35 miles in safety.

Stranger still, the officer accomplished the return journey on the following night.

Next! Like an old heirloom is a high chair in one Wichita family. The chair was purchased seven years ago for the first olive branch, and when he got a brother the chair automatically fell to him. Last week the youngest son was given the chair by the second boy in a manner that caused the mother's cheeks to burn fiercely for a minute.

Locomotive Engineer Made Quite Plain What Had Caused Argument Between Travelers.

Two commercial travelers while in a train got into an argument over the action of the vacuum brake.

"It's the inflation of the tube that stops the train," declared the first traveler.

"Wrong, wrong!" shouted the second. "It's the output of the exhaust."

Then when the train arrived at the station they agreed to submit the matter for settlement to the engineer.

That gentleman, leaning condescendingly from his cab, listened with an attentive frown to the two travelers' statements of their argument. Then he smiled, shook his head and said:

"Well, gents, you're both wrong about the workin' of the vacuum brakes. Yet it's very simple and easy to understand. When we want to stop the train we just turn this valve and then we fill the pipe with vacuum!"

A Century Ago. One hundred years ago Dr. Thomas Fanshawe Middleton was consecrated first bishop of Calcutta. The consecration took place in London, and soon afterward the new bishop sailed for India.

In Calcutta, he laid the foundation for the Bishops' college in 1829, and established a consistory court in that city. While zealously engaged in his duties he was attacked with a fever, of which he died in 1822. For more than a century the efforts to spread the Christian faith in India have continued. Numerically the Christian population in the great eastern empire is still insignificant, amounting to only about one per cent of the population, but it is generally admitted to have an influence out of all proportion to its numbers.

"Hard Luck" Story. A Washington clubman is firmly convinced that the fates are against him, especially with reference to his golf playing.

"It's no use," he said to a friend, "I can't lift the hoodoo." Nine times out of ten I miss the ball when driving off from the first tee at the Country club. And every one of those nine times I look around and find the veranda lined with people, all staring at me with eyes the size of porcelain plaques on a plate rail. The tenth time, however, I hit the ball; I knock it to a speck. Then I turn proudly around, my chest swelling with pride. And there's not a single soul on the veranda. Everybody has just gone in."

TRINITY HOUSE OLD IN YEARS

Granting of Charter by Henry VIII. Was Celebrated in London on May 20.

London.—On May 20, 1514, King Henry VIII, who was the virtual founder of the British navy, granted a charter to the corporation of Trinity House, and on May 20, 1914, the brethren of the corporation celebrated the 400th anniversary by holding a banquet, to which the leading members of the government and of the opposition were invited.

The corporation of Trinity House has been unfortunate in the matter of fires. Their establishment in Water Lane suffered in the great fire, for, according to Pepps, himself master in 1676 and in 1685:

Corner of Old Trinity House and Garden.

cording to Pepps, himself master in 1676 and in 1685:

"Now and then, walking into the garden, saw how horribly the sky looks, all on a fire in the night, was enough to put us out of our wits; and indeed it was extremely dreadful, for it looks as if it was at rest and the whole heaven on fire. I, after supper, walked in the dark down to Tower street, and there saw it all on fire, at the Trinity House on that side and the Dolphin Tavern on this side, which is very near us; and the fire with extraordinary vehemence."

The house was rebuilt, but was again destroyed by fire in 1714, and on this occasion the outbreak was particularly disastrous, as most of the archives of the corporation were destroyed. As a result the history of its early days is obscure. It is generally believed that some kind of association of maritime men for the protection of the trade of the port of London existed long before the reign of Henry VIII, and the charter, granted in 1514, seems to recognize the value of such an organization and to aim at strengthening its position.

For it grants "to our said liege people and subjects that they may have and enjoy all and singular the liberties, franchises and privileges which their predecessors the shipmen or mariners of this our realm of England ever had, used or enjoyed. And also that they may have and hold, them and their successors, all the lands and tenements which they now have in Deptford Strood."

IS OLDEST WOMAN IN U. S.

Mrs. Clara Fountain Born in Bondage Year George Washington Died—Celebrates 115th Birthday.

Hastings, Neb.—Mrs. Clara Dawson Newhouse Briley Fountain, the oldest person in Nebraska, who lays claim to being the oldest person in the United States, celebrated her 115th birthday at her home in Hastings recently. She said her health is far better than it was five years ago and she chuckled as she said between puffs of her favorite pipe: "Speck there must be something to what my son said on my birthday, when he declared I was going to live forever."

Mrs. Briley lives with her son, Dr. Nelson Briley, seventy-five, a colored veterinarian. She was born in bondage on a Virginia plantation in 1773, the same year George Washington died, she says. Her own father, Tom Dawson, on whose plantation she was born of a slave mother, sold her in bondage to Middleton Thomas of Louisville, Ky., and when she was but eleven years old she was taken to a Kentucky plantation, away from her mother and associates.

"My old daddy promised me half the $300 he got when he sold me, but I never seen any of the money or him again," she said. "I was christened twice, the first time Dawson and the next time Newhouse. I was married three times and I outlived them all more than 40 years."

Mrs. Briley dearly loves her pipe and smokes incessantly, often arising in the middle of the night for an extra pipe or two. "No, it don't hurt me," she said, "but it does me lots of good and makes me live longer. I like pop, too, and drink a bottle whenever I can get it."

"I sleep well and can eat more than any one in the family, I guess. Two white women brought me two new aprons and a jar of apple butter on my birthday. My, they were good to me. A man offered to give me a ride in his auto, but I'm 'foerd of them things."

Mrs. Briley has not been to church for several years, but accepted an invitation to attend Sunday. She has recently lost the sight of one eye, but the other member is good. She suffers but little ache or pain, is never sick and walks about the house and yard with the aid of a cane. She posed for a picture with pleasure on her birthday.

GET AFTER SUMMER PESTS

This is the Time to Wage War Against the Deadly Fly and the Annoying Mosquito.

Let us bear in mind that one of the prime objects of a spring cleanup is to eliminate the fly and the mosquito. When we are exercising our muscles and our ingenuity ridding our dwellings and neighborhoods of dust and filth, it will be worth our while to give these twin winged pests serious attention.

The first spring fly, of course, came some time ago, though she is still pleasantly modest and retiring. It is not reassuring, however, to reflect that the little insect is keeping carefully out of our sight and the reach of our swatters while she lays a few myriads of eggs, which presently will hatch out into a whole flying regiment of nuisances and disease-carriers.

The shy and unobtrusive mosquito is making the best use of her time for the same purpose. When the open season on human beings arrives she hopes to have a whole army corps of her progeny to lead to the attack.

Now is the time to get busy if we want to preserve ourselves from the pests a few months hence. The swatter and the kerosene can are fully as important household implements at this season as the broom and the scrubbing brush.

RINGWORM ITCHED TERRIBLY

1545 Alsewith St., Baltimore, Md.—"My children were afflicted with what they called ringworm of the scalp contracted from a house-cat they were playing with. The ringworm formed on their scalps about the size of a silver dollar and their hair fell out, leaving a round scale or crust on their scalps. Their hair fell out in round spots. There was terrible itching, and they scratched till the blood came. They were very fretful and could not sleep at night, and they were very cross."

"They were treated for several months with no improvement whatsoever. I was told they would never have any hair and would always be bald. Then I began using Cuticura Soap in connection with Cuticura Ointment and the first week I could see the wonderful remedies were doing all they were claimed to do and in six weeks' time they were entirely cured. They all have a beautiful growth of hair." (Signed) Mrs. Sadie Pollock, Jan. 1, 1913.

Cuticura Soap and Ointment sold throughout the world. Sample of each free, with 22-p. Skin Book. Address postcard "Cuticura, Dept. L, Boston."—Adv.

Dr. Eliot on Education. "The practice of England and America is literally centuries behind the receipt of the best thinkers upon education." Is it not humiliating that an American is forced to make such an admission concerning our most vital American institution?

What can be done? How can this wasteful school system be speedily remedied so that it fills its real function and sends out into the world, boys and girls developed according to their individual talents as far as those talents permit? It is a big question, but in my next article, I propose to outline a rational, practical system of public education which will serve those ends.—Editorial Review.

FORCED TO EAT CRUSHED ICE

And Was Not Even Allowed Privilege of sitting Up, but Final Wins Out.

Kaplan, La.—Mrs. Casamir Burkhardt, of this town, gives out following for publication: I feel that I owe my life to Cardui, to woman's tonic. I was married in April, and was in fairly good health. Shortly after marriage my health began to fail, and for three long months I was threatened with serious sickness.

I passed most of my time in bed, with a nurse at my bedside. At last, I was told an operation was necessary. I was so weak I could retain nothing on my stomach but crushed ice, and was not even allowed to sit up in bed.

A friend of mine advised me to use Cardui, the woman's tonic, and they got a bottle for me, as a last resort.

After taking Cardui for one week I was able to be up in my room. After continual use for two months, I was in perfect health and could do all of my work without tiring.

I take an occasional dose of Cardui and Black-Draught now, to keep my system in good condition.

Several of my friends are using Cardui with good results. I am never without it in the house.

There's a bottle of Cardui waiting for you at your nearest druggists. Get it and begin making today. You will never regret—Adv.

Mr. Palmer came from Duluth, Minn., just ten years ago, and brought with him four cows and three horses—and that was his all. He homesteaded in the Staveley district, and today has 40 acres of land, $3,000 worth of implements, 34 Percheron horses, 6000 $1,000 out of hogs last year, raised 7,000 bushels of wheat, 6,000 bushels of oats, 12 acres of potatoes, and 18 tons of onions. His farm and stock is worth $30,000, and he made it all in ten years.—Exchange.—Advertisement.

Our Individual Method Qualifies.

If conditions were so that you could enter a large office and each one in the office could give you special instructions and attention while you were learning, you would have ideal conditions for developing into an efficient worker—in fact the conditions would be an exact duplicate of those in this school. We have modeled our course of training along these lines. It is the same practical training that you would receive in an office, and the same learning-by-using system which adds a little to your efficiency each day, until you are able to turn off a large amount of work in a short time, and with perfect ease. You are not asked to memorize long statements telling "how to do the work", but you are instructed while doing the work so that efficiency and the right way to do things become a fixed habit.

If you would like to know just what our business training has done for hundreds of others; what it consists of; the possibilities that it holds out for you; in fact, full information in regard to the advantages of a business training over that of any other technical training, write, and without any responsibility on your part whatever, we will lay the facts before you.

NOW is the time to enter. We have electric fans in each department of the college for the comfort of our students—in fact, nothing is left off that would tend to make our college an ideal school. Best of private board at from $2.50 to $3.00 per week—a little more than one half what it would cost you else where.

The Best Cotton School in The South.

Our Cotton School will open this summer Monday, June 29, and will be under the management of Mr. S. F. Harrill, who is recognized as one of the best Cotton Experts in the South.

The Cotton Business pays big salaries. Our students are prepared for and command good salaries from the start, and buy successfully against cotton men of long experience.

United States Government types are used as a basis, and students are taught how to handle the samples of all types of cotton, from "bollies", on up to the best grades.

We are prepared to take care of only fifty students at one time in this department, and each student is registered as he writes in for particulars, so let us have your postal saying for us to reserve a place for you.

Every farmer should know how to grade his own cotton, and they are awakening to that fact. If the father can't get off to attend the school let him see that his son comes, and hereafter he will know the value of cotton just as he knows the value of everything else produced on the farm. No gin man can afford to run a gin and not know how to class cotton. It is more important than to know any other line of business, especially in our Southland, where cotton represents the farmer's financial "backbone".

Price of Scholarship and books for the entire Cotton Course, is $20.00. Best private board can be had here at from $2.50 to $3.50 per week.

For further particulars, address, Cotton Department, Bowie Commercial College, Bowie, Texas.

Give us a call and let us demonstrate to you our splendid confectionary service. Jeff Earp.
