Report of Primary

While the returns from the democratic primary election all over Texas last Saturday get incomplete, the indications are that Jas. E. Ferguson elected governor and subson was defeated by a comfortable majority. Hobby is in lead for lieutenant governor other nominations are David for the court of criminal appeals, Edwards for state treasurer, Doughty for railroad commissioner, Doughty for superintendent of public instruction, Robison land commissioner and Ter for controller. In the race Congressman at large the runs indicate the election of McLemore with Davis and running close for the other.

In its earlier report of the election the Dallas News draws interesting comparisons showing that Ball and Ferguson the good impressions in their closing address while their closing speeches did not yield such favorable returns. Mr. Ferguson son opened at Blum and carried that box by a vote of 171 to 59. He closed at Itasca and failed to carry that box. Mr. Ball opened at Greenville and led by a substantial vote in that city. He closed at Galveston and the island city went for Ferguson by a large majority.

All Texas congressmen who were candidates for re-election seem to have been successful, Johnson in this District maintaining a good strong lead over his opponent, Cocke of Wellington. The local box gave Coke a small majority.

In the district judge's race Greever won by a majority of about six hundred votes, carrying this county by a large vote. The district attorney, Ewing of Miami, had no opposition. R. L. Templeton, candidate for re-election to the house of representatives, also had no opponent.

The local county campaign was one of the most strenuous ever staged in this section and the various candidates for each office fought every foot of the ground. The detailed vote which follows shows the election of Siler Faulkner for county judge, W. S. Copeland for sheriff, C. L. Upham for county

The Mothers Club Now Out Of Debt

The ice cream and cake sale by the ladies of the Mothers' Club on last Saturday was quite well attended and the net proceeds was sufficient to discharge their last obligation on the school piano, and which leaves them free from debt.

This splendid organization has been of untold value to the public by reason of the fact that their efforts for the improvement of the school building and the enlargement of the equipment has proven so successful. It is now three years old and a resume of the work accomplished in that time makes it interesting reading to those who have not taken the trouble to keep pace with their advancement.

During this period they bought and paid for the school bell and tower at an expense of over $100.00; the seats at a cost of nearly $80.00; the school piano at a cost of $247.50, together with the interest on deferred payments; the lighting system which cost about $45.00; the partition and door in the auditorium at a cost of near $40.00. They have expended something like $100.00 in the library and minor expenses, including $10. for a regular curtain pole for the stage.

Besides all this, the auditorium stage has been built at a cost of about $130.00. This was paid for from the proceeds of a play but the club was given credit for the enterprise.

During the first two years of the club's life, under the direction of Mrs. A. G. Richardson clerk, A. H. Doucette for tax assessor, Henry Thut for treasurer, George Thut for county chairman. In this precinct J. R. Hindman was elected commissioner, T. W. Petty public weigher and Jas. F. Heasley justice of the peace. Following is the vote:

For District Judge.
Greever 363
Willis 195

For County Judge.
Faulkner 308
Rice 283

For County Clerk.

as president, approximately $600.00 of the money thus expended was raised.

At the beginning of the third year the selection of a president to take charge of the work presented an almost unsurmountable barrier as no one seemed willing to assume the responsibility. Mrs. C. E. Donnel finally decided to take the work and although she did not begin her labors until the very last of the school term, the results have been splendid. By her superior management and undaunted energy she has raised more than a hundred dollars in that short time and put the Mothers' Club entirely free of debt and ready to undertake other accomplishments.

It is likely that the next move of this booster organization will be the beautifying and improving of the school grounds which have never been given any attention. Trees should be planted and it is likely that the entire tract, which includes two full blocks and the street, will be fenced.

Like all other movements that have for their aim the advancement of public enterprises, the Mothers' Club work has been the subject of considerable knocking and criticism by minds too little to grasp the importance of public service, but nevertheless the work has gone steadily on until the sum total of its accomplishments stand out in bold relief to the driveling censure of its puny minded detractors.

Flight From Farm to City

"Every farmer who owns his own farm ought to have running water in his kitchen and a bathroom in his house, and those who do not own them should have these necessities supplied by the owners," said a business man of Dallas recently.

"The reason why young people leave the farm as soon as they are able is that they are very much less happy there than they might be if a little consideration on the part of their parents were shown them. The reason that so many farm wives are old and worn out before their time is that they do so much work every day that a little study and less expense on the part of their husbands would make unnecessary."

"It is surprising how much additional pleasure and comfort can be gained at little or no cost, and what a wonderful difference it makes in a home and the memories of a home.

"The farmer in reasonable circumstances buys sulky plows and improved farm machinery of all kinds, and generally lives in a house that is devoid of comfort. A farmer of my acquaintance has running water piped into his barn for the horses and cattle, while the wife has to carry what she uses in cooking and washing from a spring an eighth of a mile distant.

"It is only reasonable and natural that the boys and girls, as they grow up, should get away from conditions such as these and go where they can live more easily and comfortably. The living conditions on the farm must be made better as a necessary part of making farming itself better."

The Electric Theatre will be open again Monday night and by that time the electric piano will be installed.

Good Rain Saturday

Saturday afternoon, right at the time when the heat of the political campaign was slowly subsiding and the various aspirants to the office were beginning to slacken in their mad race for a breathing spell, the clouds began to roll up in the north and soon a torrent of rain descended upon the face of the earth, whose hungry and parched surface drank it up greedily. Rain had been sorely needed, even more than votes for the anxious candidates, and it came at a time when it would serve the double purpose of bringing first aid to the suffering crops and putting cheer into the despondent bosoms of those who had witnessed the triumphant march to victory of the hosts of oppositon.

The rain was just the thing needed to put the finishing touches to the bumper crops promised since early spring and the magnitude of the harvest will only depend upon the acreage and the manner of cultivation as it is claimed by those in close touch with the situation that there has been no damaging lack of moisture during this entire growing season.

The watermelon crop is reaching the marketing stage and soon the streets will be thronged with the continual string of wagons bringing this produce to market. It is believed that from three to four hundred cars will be shipped out this season and already the Rock Island, at the instigation of Local Agent Nunn, has made arrangements for the furnishing of sufficient cars. There are now on the ground sufficient flats for four hundred cars and the cars themselves have been accumulating at every convenient yard, ready to be pressed into service on short notice.

There has been a few cars of wheat shipped out and there are still numerous cars waiting for the thresher. The wheat crop as a whole was not nearly so productive as at first thought. Many a field that promised a big yield was found to be mostly stalk and husk.

All row crops are looking prosperous and thrifty and the yields will undoubtedly be much larger than at any time for several years past.

To My Customers.

I wish to thank my customers for promptness in paying their accounts. Also ask that you remember me on August 1st as I am expecting a car of Belle of Wichita flour and I'll have to "dig."

Jumps On Fork Handle

George Francis of Fairgrove, Mo., met with a very serious accident in Ochiltree county about 2 o'clock Monday afternoon where he was assisting his brother, R. H. Francis, to thresh wheat. He was on the platform of the thresher, about three and a half feet from the ground, when he attempted to jump off backwards. A short handled fork had been left sticking in the ground and he struck it in such a manner that the handle passed upwards into the body about seven inches.

He was soon given medical attention but suffered quite severely for about two hours. Upon being advised by the local physician that not much could be done for him without an operation, he was brought to Amarillo by two of his brothers.

He underwent an operation Tuesday afternoon and was able to walk to the operating table. He was found to be in a serious dangerous condition, unfavorable symptoms having already begun to develop.

It was found that there was a large rend in the intestines and also in the bladder. His strong and healthy physique will be to his advantage but his condition is recognized as being very critical.—Daily Panhandle.

C. E. Francis, father of the young man, hurried to his bedside and is still with him. A message from him yesterday stated that his son was resting easy and was very cheerful. Many friends here sympathize with the family and trust that the young man may recover.

Alanreed Notes.

The best news is that we have had a good rain. Crops that have been worked are looking well.

Our boys are out on the roads again today trying to improve them.

J. C. McClellan and wife who have been visiting the S. R. Loftin family, are spending the remainder of the summer in Colorado.

Grandpas Mangum and Davis are on the sick list this week, but we hope they will soon be up.

Miss Dora Agee came home from Canyon, where she had been attending the Normal, with a severe case of typhoid fever.

A. McEachern and wife are visiting relatives here.

John Hext and others arrived Wednesday to be with grandpa Davis in his sickness. Grandpa visited a specialist in Oklahoma last week and it was decided an operation would be useless.

P. F. Yocham has accepted a position with O. C. Brown of Jericho. We regret to lose such citizens as Ferris and his family, but we hope success and happiness will follow them.

Messrs. Yocham, McCracken and Crisp have just had their dwellings repainted. Others should follow.

One of our young men looks so "smily" here of late we think it means something out of the ordinary.

Elmer Reeves' family is visiting in Ochiltree this week. As we passed his house early one morning he was preparing a chicken for breakfast and we heard a soft voice singing "What is Home without a Mother."

Birthday Party.

At the beautiful home of Mr. and Mrs. J. M. Noel on Monday afternoon, little Francis celebrated her fourth birthday anniversary. The guests included thirteen little girls and two boys. The children enjoyed outdoor games on the lawn, while part of the time was spent in "playing dolls" and eating cracker-jacks.

At six o'clock the doors of dining room were opened and the children marched two and two around the table where the birthday cake, adorned with four tiny candles indicating the age of Francis, was sitting, each one trying to blow out the candles. Ice cream, cake and candy were served.

From the dining room the happy little group posed for Bro. Howell to take their pictures. After this they enjoyed an auto ride with Mr. Noel before wishing Francis many more happy birthdays.

Many nice little gifts will make Francis long remember the occasion.

A Guest.

To Can Corn Off The Cobb

The following recipe for canning roasting ears off and on the cobb is given by the Agricultural department at Washington and may be of interest to the housewife:
Select sweet corn ears of uniform size and proper ripeness. If too ripe the corn will color while processing. (Processing is the canning term for sterilization or cooking.) If not ripe enough much of the food value is lost in cutting the corn from the cobb. Use either glass jars or tin cans. For market purposes and greater safety in shipping use tin cans.
Remove husk, silk, shank, tips and injured or defective places. Blanch corn in boiling water or steam chest for from 5 to 10 minutes. The time depends upon the stage of ripeness, size of ears and degree of freshness. Remove the ears and plunge quickly in cold water. Cut the corn from the cobb with a sharp, thin-bladed knife. Pack well in glass jars or tin cans; add hot water and a level teaspoon of salt to the quart or No. 3 can. Place rubber and glass jar top in place, not tight. If using tin, solder cap in place and fill vent hole, or seal completely. Process the corn from 180 to 240 minutes in the home-made or hot water commercial bath outfits. After processing remove the jars, tighten covers, invert to test the joints, and cool.
If using tin, inspect the soldered end caps for pinhole leaks. Repair all leaks, allow to stand for 24 hours. If cans are still bulging at ends at the end of this time, one of two things is true—the pack is too full or some live pores are still left in the can. If the latter, replace in sterilizer and process the second time from 30 minutes to 1 hour.
Canning corn on the cob:
Blanch in boiling water from 5 to 10 minutes, according to ripeness, size and freshness; plunge quickly in cold water. Pack, alternating butts and tips; add just a little boiling water and one level teaspoon of salt to each quart. Place rubber and top and partially tighten. (Cap and tip tins.) Process 180 to 240 minutes in hot-water bath. Remove jars, tighten covers, invert and cool.
Heat up for table use in steamer, not in water. If corn seems flat or waterlogged, it has been overcooked or allowed to stand in too much water.
An ear of sweet corn on the dining car and hotel costs 25 cents. Considering this, canning corn on the cob for the market might prove a very profitable investment for a thrifty

Many Popular Dances Described as Injurious

By E. N. COLLETT, Cincinnati, Ohio

I am in a quandary. Some critics of the tango, the Argentine, the Maxixe and the other popular dances of the day describe them as highly injurious. I am speaking now irrespective of the moral phase of the question. These critics say that to indulge in these dances causes heart disease, rheumatism, hardening of the arteries and various other organic and functional troubles.

On the other hand, persons who profess to speak with the voice of authority proclaim the new dances as a boon to mankind.

They say that these dances have a wonderfully good effect upon the people whose lives are ordinarily sedentary, just as almost any other wholesome exercise might have.

As nearly as I can judge, the forces for and against are about equally divided. So I do not know what to do about allowing my children to perform these dancing evolutions.

I may confess, also, that my wife and myself have been considering the feasibility of indulging a little ourselves in this form of recreation, especially if, as some observers assert, the tango and other dances are good for middle-aged people.

But we are sorely perplexed by the conflict of ideas on the subject.

Elaborate Graduation Gowns Are Eschewed

By G. A. SMITH, Omaha, Neb.

The effort reported in the newspapers which is being put forth by the school authorities in Kansas City to promote simplicity at the graduations of high school pupils is highly commendable. Elaborate graduation gowns in particular are not to be tolerated, and it is the hope of the school principals that they may induce the minimum of expenditures for some of the customary features of these occasions like American Beauty roses, taxicabs and white satin slippers.

That kind of thing is all very well for the young people whose parents and friends can afford it.

But what about the young people whose means are limited? What about their feelings when they have to show themselves to the public in less elaborate and expensive dresses than the others? What about those whose friends have no money for American Beauty roses to send them?

I firmly believe that nothing is so undemocratic as to bring forward in this way the differences between the two groups of pupils. Is anything more likely to inspire class distinctions?

And in the place of all places where such distinctions ought to be most severely avoided?

Old Fashioned Mothers Are Getting Scarce

By M. SPONCELLE, Terre Haute, Ind.

Some time ago it was stated that the good old-fashioned mother was getting scarce. With all due respect to the old-fashioned mother, let us go deeper into the subject. What did the old-fashioned mother know about future training for her sons and daughters? How many men and women are suffering from chronic ailments today, who would not so suffer had the mothers of a generation ago been scientifically informed on proper feeding and care of the family? How many young girls have entered matrimony knowing nothing about the health of their husbands? How many diseased or deformed children have been born and cared for every year?

If children were properly taught in the home much said along these lines could be avoided. Too much false modesty has been a fault of women in the past and through it some have been made to suffer. Never has there been a time when women were better fitted for the rearing of a family than they are today.

With the passing out of the good old-fashioned mother comes the modern scientific woman and for the sake of a future generation we can be thankful.

Many Attempt More Than They Can Do

By REV. F. E. WILSON, Rector of St. Andrews Episcopal Church, Chicago

One great reason for the mistakes which are of daily occurrence is simply that people are in the wrong places. If they were somewhere else they might do very creditably, but in their present positions they are misfits. People frequently do not know what they are capable of. They either minimize their ability or overestimate it, and in consequence they are content with inadequate opportunities, or else they are attempting more than they are equipped to handle.

Spiritual mistakes go the same way. There are underestimates and overestimates in religious life. Some declare they are not good enough to be Christians, while others are eager to make an impression with their sanctity. In either case what they produce is likely to be a mistake. God has given every one some sort of spiritual ability and the apostle reminds us that we are to use it conscientiously "as every man hath received."

That involves two things—confidence and patience. We must be sure that God has some mission for us to perform, whether great or small. We must also have patience to perform it and leave the results with him. Christ said, "Be not anxious." Live up to the best of your spiritual ability and let God attend to the rest.

Talebearers and Gossips Should Be Avoided

By VICTOR CUNNINGHAM, Chicago

"One of the meanest classes of people are those who serve as tale-bearers and gossips." Whoever said that was indeed right. Still more inspired was he who some time ago suggested an anti-gossip law. A law which would prevent the useless wagging of tongues—female tongues especially—would obliterate a goodly portion of this world's misery.

Women, and men, too, who have nothing to do and yet manage to get a living in this world are, I have found, usually the gossips.

A law which might prevent gossiping should also provide a sort of municipal workshop, where all who have been found guilty of the high crime of useless talking should be forced to earn their living in this world instead of acting so admirably the part of human sponges or parasites.

Instead of bleeding the world, the persons with no visible means of support should be forced to earn their daily bread by honest toil.

This world is easy only for the devil's emissaries. People should beware of the idle gossip, who has nothing to do.

Another Balkan war is predicted by the sensation mongers of Europe, but it is an obvious error. It is self-evident that the rising generation in the Balkans has not yet arrived at a shootable age.

NATIONAL CAPITAL AFFAIRS

Dark Parks and Bashful Moon, Lovers Spoon

WASHINGTON.—At times Harry will be found with his head in Minnie's lap, with Minnie smoothing his damp brow and fanning him. Again, Frank and Florence may be more ardent, or the night may be cooler, and he will have his strong arm pressed protectively around her shoulders.

In this arrangement Flo always rests her slightly tinted cheek on Frank's clean shirt just below the collar. Frank then has a blush coming to him when the boys ask him what happened to his shirt. Positions without number may be assumed by these spooning couples, some even preferring to walk along the shaded paths with their hands tightly clasped or their arms twined like ivy across each other's shoulders. A fortunate investigator has reported that he has discovered a couple, Sally, weighing nearly 210 and Archer, size, two and six-eighths, which invariably assumes the position of Sally-on-the-lap-of-Archer.

Taken as a whole this class of spooners is an interesting one for the curiously inclined. We have them, and the police have not rid us of them, so why not study them from a zoological or anthropological point of view? Specimens might even be secured and mounted. A new fad! Let's start it.

Oh yes, stranger, those wide, cool, open green squares and triangles known as the parks of Washington are inhabited. In broad daylight we see nurses and tiny children enjoying the protecting shade, but at night—ah at night—we do not see the denizens of the park, who are enjoying the protecting darkness. How do we know there is any one there? We fall over them.

Can any one venture into Lafayette square or Franklin park or Lincoln park or any dark place provided with benches these summer evenings without feeling the presence of these amorous mortals who sit close together for coolness and utter such gentle foolishness as "Uzzy-wuzzy unpum-tweet-heart" for recreation? They are there and they are there to spoon. Be sure to "fall over them" for the results are most amusing.

It is hard to get a satisfying glimpse at some of them. Poor timid things, they fly far apart at the approach of a prowling squirrel and delude themselves into hoping that no one could ever guess that he had actually gotten so far as to put his arm around her. Others are more experienced, or more self-absorbed, and can be approached with safety by the investigator if he is careful not to chuckle aloud.

Says Capital Policemen Always Have Manners

OF COURSE, Pittsburgh may need a school of manners for her policemen as she does for some of her millionaires. Washington policemen have their manners before they get on the force.

Maj. Richard Sylvester smiled grimly as he read the dispatch from the Smoky city reciting the frantic attempts being made to civilize the police. Director of Public Safety C. S. Hubbard, the report said, is going to have classes where young cops will learn to be kind to dumb drinkers and ardent automobilists.

"How about a course like that here?" was suggested to the major. "Teach policemen to cut out the rough work with burglars and thugs and always speak gently to second-story workers."

The major pondered the idea for a moment. Then he branched off. "If we Washington policemen," said he, "were in the habit of maltreating citizens, this town would be in a furor inside of twenty-four hours. About every third person in Washington is a diplomatic attache or a public official."

"Can you imagine what would happen in this city if the police force developed the habit of clubbing military attaches and chiefs of government bureaus?"

The interviewer passed the buck. "You see," continued the major, "policemen in Washington have civility preached them before they get on the force. I believe that Washington policemen have too much tact than the police of any other city in the country. If they use too much force—get too free with their clubs—they quickly appear before the trial board."

When Little Boy Met the "Man of Importance"

A MAN of importance—you can always spot him by his "air"—was favoring the White House neighborhood with his stately tread when a small boy stopped him. He was such a tiny boy as to still be wearing white knits and a shiny red belt, and he talked with a baby lisp. In his outstretched hand lay a dead sparrow.

"Make him go—" The child said it so imperatively as if the important man were his very own daddy—"I picked him up and he won't go—Make him fly—far."

To be requested to make an exceedingly dead bird fly is too much to ask of any man of importance.

"Throw that thing back in the street. How do you suppose I can make it fly?" said the "Man of Importance."

"Wipe him up. Wif a key—" Perhaps he was an unfortunate man whose overimportance had hindered him from an acquaintance with little children and wound-up toys, for he merely flung the proposition aside and resumed his stately treading.

And perhaps—again—he would have been ashamed of himself if he had turned back and seen the tiny kid with the bird in his outstretched palm, and on his face the bewildered hurt at doubtless the first rebuff he had ever received in all the four years of his life.

It is not a particularly brilliant achievement to bring tears to a child's eyes even from a human point of view, but suppose—

Suppose it is really and practically true that—somewhere—the tears of the innocent are really counted against those who cause them to be shed!

Fishing for Pastime and an Incidental Income

FISHING is a pastime and an incidental income, or rather, outgo, with a large number of the people of Washington. Every traveler along the sides of the rocky reaches of the river above Washington has probably noted the signs "Bait for Sale," "Boats for Hire" and other signs put up for the benefit (perhaps) of prospective fishermen.

There is a little industry, though, at Georgetown to which the writer means to call attention. As the city cars outbound reach the intersection of Thirty-sixth and Prospect streets, or Thirty-sixth street and Prospect avenue, or, at any rate, the point where soft drink signs are posted all over the old Southworth cottage, many small boys tempt passengers with masses of wriggling worms. These boys in piping tones are saying, "Fish worms," or "Feeeh worms." They have their merchandise in a battered tin can and they hold it so that the mass of squirming worms wriggles partly in the can and partly in the hands of the boy. He is displaying his wares, and he wants to prove to you that the worms have plenty of wriggle in them. He has a tangled knot of them in one hand and he pleads with you to buy them. For five or ten cents he will let you have enough of them to feed all the fish that dally with your hooks. It may be that the fish esteem these worms; that they look on them as delicate morsels, and that their appetite is piqued and tempted by them; but there is no accounting for tastes.

Many fishermen pause at this transfer point to buy bait from the boys, and quite a thriving trade has been built up.

NEW METHOD BEING TAUGHT

Cincinnati Schools Equipped With Bathing Pools Are Teaching Swimming With a Circular Trolley.

Cincinnati.—A new system of teaching boys and girls how to swim, instituted in certain Cincinnati schools equipped with bathing pools, is thus described by the Scientific American: An apparatus is employed consisting of an oval track secured to the ceiling over the pool. A dozen trolleys run on the track, and from each depends a rope with a belt attached. Twelve pupils fasten the belts around their waists and the swimming lesson is on.

They go through the motions of "sailor fashion" and the "Australian crawl" as per the direction of the swimming instructor, who keeps watch from around the edge of the pool. They cannot sink, so the only thing remaining for them to do is to swim.

This "water merry-go-round" has proved so successful that others like it are to be installed in schools where a bathing pool is a part of the equipment.

WINS BATTLE WITH SEA BAT

Fourteen Feet Across the Back, It Towed a Gasoline Launch for Six Hours.

Mobile, Ala.—A great sea bat weighing more than a ton was captured in Mobile bay by Thomas C. Cairns of Birmingham after an all-day battle, and 25 men hauled it out at Bayou la Batre. It had towed a powerful gasoline launch for six hours.

The fish was 14 feet across the back and ten feet six inches from the mouth to the beginning of the tail. Though it was not weighed, old fishermen believe that it is the largest specimen ever landed in the Gulf of Mexico. The other one caught near Mobile weighed 2,500 pounds, it is said. This was 50 years ago.

Mr. Cairns says that the fish was sighted off Dauphin Island in the early morning. The launch was driven alongside and a harpoon thrown into the fish. The harpoon was attached to 600 feet of one-quarter inch sash cord. The fish towed the 18-foot launch occupied by Mr. Cairns and the boatman, developing a high rate of speed. Several times when the fish would come to the surface Mr. Cairns would fire at it with a 38-caliber revolver, but with apparently no effect.

Finally, late in the afternoon, the fish was tired out and towed alongside the tug Laura. Next morning the Laura towed the launch and the devil fish into Bayou la Batre. Mr. Cairns says the harpoon lines were put over the stern of the launch and the engine run ahead for six hours in an effort to tire out the monster. It required 25 men to haul the monster up on the beach. No scales large enough to weigh the fish were available at Bayou la Batre, but old fishermen guessed the weight of the monster, sometimes called a sea bat, at more than 2,000 pounds.

SLAYS MANY WILD ANIMALS

In Six Months Oregon Hunter Has Killed Panthers, Wildcats and Five Bears.

Port Oxford, Ore.—Within six months E. L. White of this place has proved himself a successful hunter of predatory animals, and his dogs have treed and he has killed five bears, five panthers, and a goodly number of wildcats.

He recently spent several days up on Sixes river, and killed a female panther that had destroyed many sheep and deer in that locality. She had often been run with dogs and had learned to elude them by springing from tree to tree and from stump to log, then dodging and running in a different direction.

Before the big cat was killed several photographs were taken as it was snarling and showing its teeth at the hunters.

Bluecoats Rescue Kitten.

A report was telephoned to the West One Hundred and Sixty-second street police station by Mrs. Emanuel Levy of 7 Hamilton place that some one had fallen into a culvert opposite her home. Patrolman Niesand and two other policemen were hurried to the place. When they looked into the sewer they saw a kitten swimming about in the water ten feet below the street level. It had fallen through a four-inch opening while chasing a ball. The patrolmen spent half an hour fishing for the kitten with a rake. HIT THE SPOT.

Postum Knocked Out Coffee Ails.

There's a good deal of satisfaction and comfort in hitting upon the right thing to rid one of the varied and constant ailments caused by coffee drinking.

"Ever since I can remember," writes an Ind. woman, "my father has been a lover of his coffee, but the continued use of it so affected his stomach that he could scarcely eat at times.

"Mother had coffee-headache and dizziness, and I drank coffee for breakfast and would taste it all day and usually go to bed with a headache."

"One day father brought home a pkg. of Postum recommended by our grocer. Mother made it according to directions on the box and it just 'hit the spot.' It has a dark, seal-brown color, changing to golden brown when cream is added, and a snappy taste similar to mild, high-grade coffee, and we found that its continued use speedily put an end to all our coffee ills."

"That was at least ten years ago and Postum has, from that day to this, been a standing order of father's grocery bill."

"When I married, my husband was a great coffee drinker, although he admitted that it hurt him. When I mentioned Postum he said he did not like the taste of it. I told him I could make it taste all right. He smiled and said, 'try it.' The result was a success, he won't have anything but Postum."

Name given by Postum Co., Battle Creek, Mich. Read "The Road to Wellville," in pkgs.

Postum now comes in two forms: Regular Postum—must be well boiled—15c and 25c packages.

Instant Postum—is a soluble powder. Made in the cup with hot water—no boiling—30c and 50c tins.

The cost per cup of both kinds is about the same.

COMBINES MANY GOOD FEATURES

Modest Dwelling in Which All the Modern Ideas of Comfort Are Incorporated.

PANTRY IN PROPER POSITION

For Purposes for Which It is Intended Apartment Should Be, as It is in This Case, Placed on the Outside of the House—Means Saving of Labor.

Mr. William A. Radford will answer questions and give advice FREE OF CHARGE on all subjects pertaining to the subject of building, for the readers of this paper. On account of his wide experience as Editor, Author and Manufacturer, he is without doubt, the highest authority on all these subjects. Address all inquiries to William A. Radford, No. 1827 Prairie Avenue, Chicago, Ill., and only enclose a recent stamp for reply.

By WILLIAM A. RADFORD.

The expression, a "two-story bungalow" which we often hear—is a misnomer. Properly speaking, a bungalow is but one story high, and is covered with a roof having very little pitch to it. But we are always improving things. It would be utterly impossible for the bungalow to travel across the continent from California as far east as Chicago without receiving the inventive attentions of the western sons of our "Down-East" Yankee ancestors.

In this plan we have a dwelling of modest dimensions, being 25 feet from front to rear, and 32 feet in width, with a four-foot extension to make room for a pantry. In this way we get three splendid rooms on the first floor, and they are well arranged for both convenience and looks.

Pantries were never properly built until this outside attachment was hit upon. It was born of necessity, like many other valuable inventions, and was improved upon as occasion demanded. Pantries are intended for the storage of food, both cooked and otherwise. Naturally, pantries should be kept as cool as possible, and they should be well ventilated at all times. Light is a necessity, and convenience is very important, for the pantry is this convenience it was never necessary to tote things up or down cellar. Only one trip below was necessary at any meal time. Very often the box itself contained everything needed, and it was only a minute's work to pull it up into the pantry.

Another feature in this little house, that is quite new, is the stairway built around the big chimney. It not only looks well from the large living room, but it occupies the least important corner of the house; and it lands you upstairs in the middle of the hall, in close proximity to the doors leading into the different rooms. Under this stair are the steps leading to the cellar, so that space is economized to the best advantage.

The material for the walls is concrete, preferably run in molds with provision made for dead air spaces, on the hollow wall principle, as this makes the warmest house because it prevents dampness. And it is the cheapest construction if you take lasting qualities into consideration.

A massive effect is given by the heavy loggia piers. And this loggia, by the way, is considered one of the most attractive parts of the whole house. The square openings are easily fitted with fly screens, so it is adapted for an outdoor summer parlor; and the size is sufficient to be of some use, as it is 10 feet wide and 20 feet long.

The rooms upstairs are stolen from the roof space. And they are right nice little rooms, too. When I think back a few years to the time when all such room was counted as attic space, good only for storage of old trunk, it is easy to realize to what extent small houses have been improved. Instead of a dark, dingy loft, with a floor, partition, or daylight, visited many times during the preparation of each meal, and meals come along regularly three times a day in most healthy families. You can't have a cool pantry, and have it built in the body of the house along with the other rooms, especially in a furnace-heated house.

In one little house where a pantry attachment like this was built on, the space below was made into a cold-drum room. The main cellar wall was carried across solid and straight, except for a doorway; and a good, heavy door was hung in the opening. The outside wall under the pantry was carried up in the same solid way, and a good outside window put in, which was covered with a fine wire screen. Shelves were built in this fruit room against the outside wall, from near the cement floor clear up to the ceiling. As the room is eight feet six inches long this gave considerable shelf room; and it proved a splendid place to store canned fruit, butter, eggs, and such groceries as a person likes to buy in quantities and keep on hand.

The fruit room and the pantry above were connected by means of a dumb-walker, which has just a box about a foot square and three feet long, vertically open on the front side, and fitted with two shelves in the middle. There was a pulley near the ceiling in the pantry, and a rope with a counterweight on the other end which balanced the box so that it could slide easily up and down. With we now have three bedrooms and a splendid bathroom with hot and cold water, the same as in large, expensive houses.

Then, in the matter of light, what a change! We have here 14 windows for four rooms and one stairway—which certainly looks like a liberal allowance, even for these times of extravagant ideas.

It has taken us a long time to learn that we can build an elegant small house as well as an elegant large house, and we are just commencing to put our knowledge to some practical use. Such cottages as this are becoming common in the more enterprising suburbs of the larger cities; and the indications are that they will continue to grow in popularity, for they meet the requirements of flat dwellers, who have become heartily sick of living in dungeons.

The estimated cost of this homelike place is $2,500.

Among the curious characteristics of Parnell as a leading statesman was his capacity for avoiding publicity. It is not only that he disappeared for weeks and months. But he evidently achieved the habit in early years of cutting himself off at will from the outside world. At the first meeting with Mrs. O'Shea in Palace Yard he confessed that he had not answered her invitation to dinner because "he had not opened his letters for days."

There are probably men who, like myself have achieved the art of now myself have achieved the art of now and then cutting off communications. Telephone, telegrams, letters will be telephoned, telegrams, letters will be poured in upon you if you let them. But I recommend the Parnellite method. When you have something else to do ignore the telephone bell, leave your letters unopened and even when the telegraph boy comes up with his buff envelope say there is "no answer." I have often left a telegram unopened till I've done the day's work and had a night's sleep!—London Chronicle.

HONOR ST. JOHN DEAD

Ancient Order of Hibernians Dedicate Monument.

Granite Cross in Memory of 45 Immigrants Lost on the Cohasset Coast in the Storm of October 7, 1849.

Boston.—The state officials of the A. O. H., and the Ladies' Auxiliary, with Governor Walsh for the principal speaker, dedicated a magnificent Celtic cross of granite, which was erected in Cohasset cemetery as a memorial to 45 Irish immigrants who lost their lives when the brig St. John was wrecked on the ledges October 7, 1849.

The cross was unveiled by Miss Teresa St. John, a relative of the only survivor of the wreck still alive, and 7,000 members of the Order of Hibernians from all over Massachusetts attended the ceremony.

The words "St. John" occupy an oddly prominent place in the story of this memorial, for it was brig St. John, bound for St. John, N. B., which was wrecked; one of the survivors, a woman, married Mr. St. John of Cohasset, and it is their descendant, Miss St. John, who unveiled the memorial.

October 7, 1849, was a Sunday, and one of the worst storms recorded in the history of Cohasset was blowing from the eastward. Two vessels had anchored inside Minot's Ledge for shelter, but the wind blew so hard that one of them, the brig Kathleen, began to drag her anchors just before daylight. She came ashore a little to the southward, and the life-savers went to her assistance. While they were away the St. John also dragged and came on the beach.

She was from Galway, Ireland, with a passenger list of 99, many of them children. She had 22 of a crew. Her passengers had left Ireland in flight from the famine, which began in 1845, and from which the country was not yet recovering.

The first wave that came aboard after the brig struck tore scores of people from her deck, and in 15 minutes all were gone. Here and there one would drift ashore, clinging to a bit of wreckage, and Charles Studley of Cohasset became the hero of the day by going repeatedly into the furious water to help these survivors to the beach.

All the crew except the first officer were saved. Only 27 bodies came ashore, and these were buried in one big grave in a corner of the Cohasset cemetery, a grave 20 feet long, 9 feet broad and 6 feet deep.

Credit for starting the movement for a memorial is due to Michael Sweeney of Cohasset, who took up the work because his father's dying injunction commanded it. He interesting

With these men as a committee of arrangements, have been associated Rev. James J. Chittick of Hyde Park, John Donovan, Patrick Murphy and Michael Sweeney.

The memorial is in the form of a Celtic cross, 19 feet in height. It was designed by Francis J. Markham of Quincy, and was cut and erected by Patrick J. Tagney of Quincy. The memorial consists of a base, a sub-base and a die surmounted by the cross, elaborately carved on front and back. On the front of the pediment is a shield containing the emblem of the A. O. H. On the back is a shield with the emblem of the Ladies' Auxiliary to the A. O. H. Below the shield, on the front die, is carved the following inscription:

"This cross was erected and dedicated May 30, 1914, by the A. O. H., and the L. A. O. H., of Massachusetts, to mark the final resting place of about 45 Irish emigrants from a total company of 99 who lost their lives on Grampus ledge, off Cohasset, October 7, 1849, in the wreck of the brig St. John, from Galway, Ireland R. Suits for Playmates of Neptune

THE playmates of Neptune swarm the beaches in costumes and bathing caps almost as varied as the faces of their wearers. Since the introduction of rubber fabric in all sorts of colors and patterns there is a choice of solid colors or gay stripes or attractive plaids. The entire garment or the sash and tie and cap only may be made of this cloth. It is, of course, impervious to water, and the bathers emerge from the sea with water running off from garments which cannot be water-soaked.

This rubber tissue is used for caps, ties, and girdles, or sashes, oftener than for the bathing suit, perhaps because it is a novelty which is not thoroughly introduced. And also certain fabrics, like taffeta silk and mohair, make suits that shed water readily and hold color creditably.

The suit shown in the picture may be made in either of these fabrics and trimmed with cotton or light wool braid (shrink before it is applied). Like all the garments now fashionable it is cut on simple lines. The waist and skirt are joined under a braid belt, and the dress fastens with snap fastenings like those on a glove.

This one-piece suit is worn over silk bloomers that reach barely to the knee. It is all right for the miss, or for anyone else, to dispense with stockings and sandals, but few people care to avail themselves of this privilege. The feet are more comfortable in light sandals. And stockings make quite an important element in the good effect of the suit. It is an item of style, this dressing of the feet properly. The cap, as the picture shows, is quite an elaborate bit of headwear, quite different from the simple puffed cap of rubber cloth which preceded it.

But the pretty bit of headwear pictured is hardly practical for the girl that really swims. And she who dives would be sure to leave it behind her when she comes up. It is all right for those who only paddle about in the water and stroll on the shore. For real water sport the plain rubber cap worn down over the ears and fitting snugly about the head is the only one that will keep the hair dry, or partly dry.

Every year the importance of teaching girls to swim looms up larger and larger. And once the little ones form a taste for the water it is easy for them to learn, because they desire so much to know how. Boys strike out for themselves, usually, and soon master the art and enjoy themselves forever after.

A GREAT throng of smartly dressed people, New Yorkers, English and people from the "outside" world, gathered to watch the international polo matches, arrayed in clothes that need not fear any comparison. In the games the English literally galloped away with the trophy, and the Americans took their defeat with a good nature altogether admirable. But if the occupants of the boxes and grandstands might have been matched against any other such concourse, any where, as to the excellence of their appareling, it is safe to say the New Yorkers would have more than held their own.

The field was a cheerful spectacle, with the stands packed with men in light suits and straw hats, making a suitable background for the gay tints worn by the women in their summer finery. The colors were soft, with many white and a considerable number of black and white costumes in evidence. Except for turquoise-blue and bright green, nearly all colors were so toned down in shade or so lightened to tint that hardly a trace of the former liking for the strong or garish remained.

There was a liberal display of colored parasols, and these provided the decided color notes. They were of

FARMERS' UNION PLATFORM A CAMPAIGN ISSUE

President Wilson's Attitude Pointed Out as Corroborating Position of Farmers' Union on Liquor Question.

PLEA FOR CO-OPERATION

Ft. Worth, Texas.—The politicians have been putting the farmers upon their platform ever since there was a politician and a farmer, but in this campaign we are going to reverse the arrangement by making our own platform and inviting the statesmen to endorse it.

For the information of the farmers and the friends of agriculture, we are going to publish the names of all legislative candidates who endorse the Farmers' Union platform. We have had many requests for this information from both the cities and the farms, and as soon as we complete the canvass we will make the results public. We have solicited many of them by correspondence and others by personal interviews, and candidates who may have been missed by either of these methods will please consider this article as a request on our part for them to give us their views so they can be properly classed, and we also ask that they publicly announce their position to their constituents. We want men who will stand squarely and publicly on our platform. We will leave the gum-shoe work to the political henchmen.

The Farmers' Union for twelve long years has been listening to the siren song of the politicians. There has been absolutely no uniformity in either thought or action on the part of the friends of agriculture and certainly no authoritative plan of procedure. Many of these campaign promises made by candidates, if fulfilled, would destroy agriculture. Some splendid efforts have been lost through lack of co-operation and proper comprehension, and the platforms of candidates who genuinely desire to help the farmer have been, in many instances, antagonistic to each other. These various platforms patched together looked like Joseph's coat, and all were lost in the scuffle between factional leaders in the legislature. Many times we have been compelled to sit down and watch important agricultural measures go up in the smoke of political strife. We shall no longer resign our destinies to such folly.

Liquor Issue An Obstruction.

This condition rendered it imperative that the farmers adopt a platform which would comprehend in an authoritative way the agricultural needs of the State, and in order to avoid becoming involved in factional controversies, we have gone direct to the people in the July primary. This platform deals with almost all economic problems because they are all a part of the business of farming. It handles the liquor question as an obstruction, for as such it has prevented much important agricultural legislation and has never failed to strike terror to all other bills on the legislative calendar, regardless of their merit. We had as well talk about plowing a battle field during a fight as to think of securing agricultural legislation when the liquor warriors pitch battle in the legislative halls over liquor issues in any of its disguises.

President Wilson has recently advised the Democratic party in Congress to postpone the consideration of the proposed prohibition amendment to the Constitution of the United States on the ground that it would obstruct all other legislation. The president has taken identically the same position in a national way that the Farmers' Union has occupied in the State campaign. We do not know of any better authority of Democracy than President Wilson and in any event we would prefer to keep company with him in public issues than with some of these "prohibitionists-for-revenue" politicians, who are willing to block agricultural legislation with liquor measures.

Agriculture is Not a Special Interest.

No agricultural legislation fundamental in its character can be considered as class legislation, for agriculture is a universal occupation and the farmer cannot help himself without helping others. The farmer is a ruler and all other occupations are in his employ and their welfare is indispensable to his business. He cannot successfully promote his own interests without providing for the welfare of his servants.

We realize that no platform of principles can please everybody. The Union faced the necessity of taking a definite stand on all important subjects and on many of them there has always been, and always will be, a wide difference of opinion, but all subjects were carefully considered and the interests of the farmer protected to the extent of our ability. The platform was unanimously adopted at the State convention of the Farmers' Union at Fort Worth on January 14-15 with over 600 delegates present and it is the official utterance of the Union and the authoritative voice of agriculture and as such the platform is submitted to all candidates for approval and to all voters for support.

The farmers have heretofore as a rule, divided about evenly or most all public questions, leaving the balance of power in the hands of a minority, controlled in the main, by machine politicians. The inability of the farmers to stand together makes machine rule common and corruption possible. The farmers can never hope to become a factor in public affairs unless they work through organized channels and certainly we had as well settle our differences in our own conventions as to turn them over to the politicians to settle in theirs.

Rally 'Round the Union.

The questions for the individual farmer to determine are, whether loyalty to his occupation is stronger than popular prejudice, whether fidelity to his interests is greater than sentiment, whether he has more confidence in those authorized to act for him in convention than he has in the politicians who endeavor to destroy the Union; whether our public servants shall play politics or transact business; whether he will follow the Union or follow the politician.

We want to disclaim any intention of permitting the Farmers' Union to become in any way involved in partisan politics. Our organization, at its annual meeting in Fort Worth last January made certain legislative demands which we have submitted to all candidates alike and we have listed those whom we consider most favorable to our demands; and the opportunity is afforded all candidates at all times to endorse our platform in its entirety. In pursuing this course the Farmers' Union is simply following a precedent of long standing of all organizations of whatever character that desire legislation. The Farmers' Union will stand for principles, never for men, but we must depend upon men to write our principles into law.

The Union has had a larger increase in members during the past six months than during the previous six years and the spirit of unity and co-operation was never greater. A few self-appointed guardians of the Farmers' Union have been publicly warning the Union to keep out of politics. When we want the counsel of politicians we will apply officially for their views.

In our next article we will give a list of legislative candidates who are on the Farmers' Union platform and if that be politics, make the most of it.
