McLean Historical Museum To Hold Open House

By Pearl Bogan

I took an offering to the museum and was so surprised at the progress made this past week. Vera Back was taking the items and was a busy woman. Today she was assisted by Marjorie Fish. There was several ahead of me so I looked around at the many things in there. The first thing I noticed was the eye was the eye, and the moment you see those skeletons you know you are in a museum.

Alice Smith was working at most everything. They were so busy at the entry desk, listing articles, giving a receipt to each one, and registering each. Helpers calling, "Where shall I put this? and that?" Vera and Alice never getting ruffled—just calmly doing the job. Some men were sawing boards for shelves, others driving nails to hang pictures for display.

Women adding a touch of paint here and there, and arranging antique dishes, and some beautiful infant dresses. The women's dresses on the forms are of the bustle days. So many were helping that it was the busiest place in town. If those workers were getting paid it would truly be the biggest business in town. The City Editor comes in and takes some pictures for the paper.

I can't tell of many, but Effie Lou Everett's picture made from an old photograph of Main Street is of special interest, the old timers will recognize many of the buildings.

In the bedroom an old fashioned bed, and the old clock that was used each night. I looked to see if there wasn't a cat to put out.

In the parlor the old organ was waiting to be played. The old kitchen is fully equipped for the woman of yesterday. She can cook her meals, wash and iron the clothes.

At back, were the many tools and farm implements of by gone days.

Just wish I could describe each room but you must go see for yourself. This Alanreed-McLean Area Museum is something all can be proud of.

The formal opening service of Alanreed-McLean Area Museum will be in front of the museum Friday morning at 9 a.m.

Area Extension Meeting In Lubbock

BY FOSTER WHALEY

All members of the Texas Agricultural Extension Service located in the 67 counties which make up Districts 1, 2 and 6 will meet in Lubbock September 15-17 for in-service training sessions revolving around the theme, "Programming for Results."

A banquet at the Koko Palace at 6:30 p.m. on Monday, September 15 will officially open the conference, announces County Extension Chairman Foster Whaley, Presiding at the banquet will be Mrs. Florence Low, assistant director for home economics.

Extension Director John E. Hutchinson will set the stage for the professional improvement sessions the first day with presentation on the meeting theme. State Agricultural Agent Joe Rothe and State Home Demonstration Agent, Mrs. Claudia Williams will preside respectively at the morning and afternoon sessions.

The program for the three-day meet is designed to give new ideas for developing and carrying out local and regional programs which meet the needs of people, says Whaley. It will feature state subject-matter specialists and county extension personnel.

Dr. L. L. Pesson, professor and head of the Department of Extension Education, Louisiana State University, will discuss "How People Learn."

County Extension agents who will have a part on the program include Miss Jeannie Ford, Ward, Mrs. Catherine Crawford, Howard; Lee McElroy, Lubbock; Justin McBride, Deaf Smith; Ollie Liner, Hale; and Mrs. Mona Hildreth, Potter.

Dr. Dan Pfingstiel, assistant director, will conclude the first day's program by discussing the involvement of people in Extension educational programs.

The presentation of Superior Service Awards and a meeting of Epsilon Sigma Phi, honorary Extension society, will highlight the evening session on September 15.

The program on Wednesday September 17, will involve individual district sessions, explains Whaley. Personnel from District 1 will meet at the Texas A&M University Agricultural Research and Extension Center. Those from District 2 will gather at the South Plains Electric Cooperative while District 6 personnel will meet at the Plains Cooperative Oil Mill.

The tri-district conference is being held this year in lieu of the annual state conference, points out Whaley. Other conferences are being held at College Station, San Antonio and Dallas.

LOOKIN' BACK

by Vera Featherston Back

I am excited about this week, about the reunion of so many former students of MHS, so many of whom sat in my classes. It's always a great pleasure to see these grown men and women—parents themselves, and many of them grandparents. I can still look into their eyes, shake their hands and see a little boy who once had rather too kick a football than conjugate verbs; a teenage girl who did her own work well and enough of some manfully lazy boy so that he could maintain his eligibility for Friday's night scrimmage on the gridiron.

Down at the museum many people are working overtime to have the museum ready as a special attraction for Homecoming. So many have had a part in this project in various ways. Every day our list of donors, lenders, and workers grow. It was started as an area project and it has proved to be just that.

Some thought the building was too big, it's almost full now and many more items of historic and aesthetic value are still to come in.

This is an invitation to all: to those who live in the area, and those who are coming home for the reunion, to visit the museum. Make it YOUR museum. The contest as to which class or classes will be honored with a plaque will close Saturday night as the Homecoming activities come to an end. It will be interesting to see which group will win out, the announcement will be made and the plaque ordered as soon as the final figures are in, and there's time for complete tabulation.

See you at the museum Friday morning.

The occasion will be the fifth in a series of "listening conferences." It will be held on September 18 in G. Rollie White Coliseum on the Texas A&M University campus.

County Agent Whaley said such subjects as farm programs, how to maintain and increase farm income, rural urban balance, proper nutrition and diets, development of natural resources and conservation are due to get major attention during the day.

While plans for the conference are not yet complete, it is known, said the county agent that every person who attends will have an opportunity, either through oral presentation or written brief, to present his ideas.

As plans are finalized, details on the conference will be released, Whaley said. He noted that several of the Secretary's senior staff members are expected to attend and also members of the Agriculture Committee of the House of Representatives, headed by Congressman W. R. Poage from Waco will attend at least a part of the conference. Dr. H. O. Kunkel, dean, College of Agriculture at A&M, will serve as presiding officer, and Grant universities in staging the event.

Those interested in attending are urged to contact Foster Whaley. Transportation will be consolidated.

Let us rise up and build. (Neh. 2:18).

God's miracle-working power goes to work for us. When we meet life with the faith that with God all things are possible, we break from the bondage of false ideas, and become free and confident. We then express ourselves freely and easily, for God's love inspires us to know that we can. We appreciate life and its blessing, opportunities and responsibilities. The words, we can, inspire us today.

Seniors Start Magazine Sales

Starting Tuesday, September 9 and continuing for 2 weeks, students at McLean High School will be participating in a Program of benefit to the students, the school and the community. A magazine subscription Program is being organized and sponsored by the senior class.

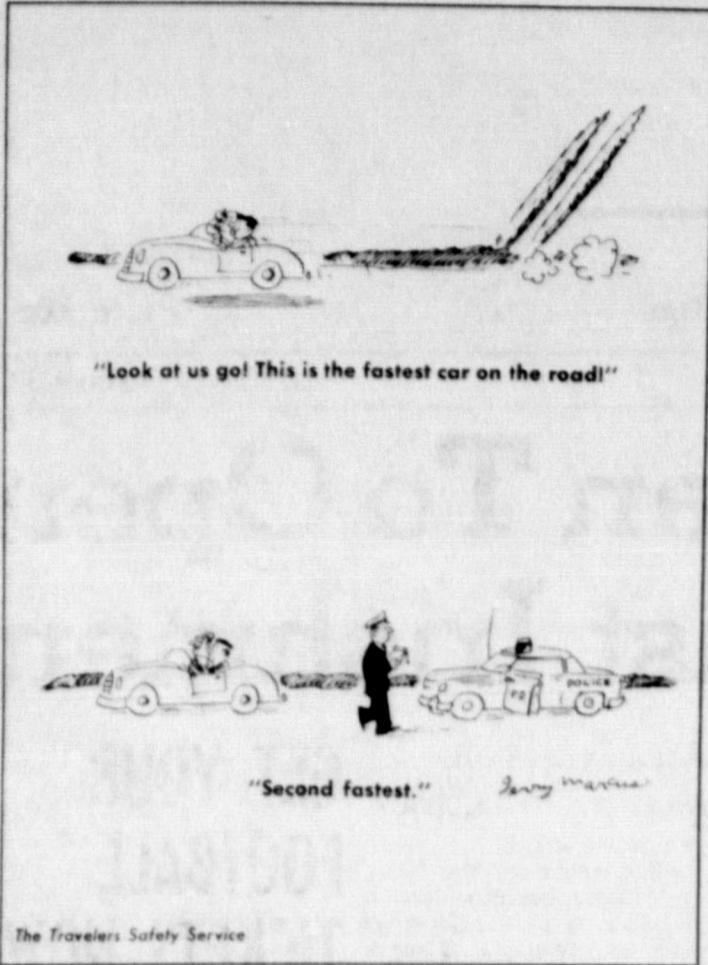

This activity was announced today by Carl A. Dwyer, principal of the school.

"We will be working with the Reader's Digest and Time, Inc., and their Quality School Plan," said Mr. Dwyer. "Both the Digest and the Life-long groups offer great services to Education and their Educational editions are now used in more than half of the nation's schools. We are pleased to associate with the Quality Plan which our students will present to their family, friends and neighbors, as we can, inspire us today.

 feel it represents the same high degree of skill and knowledge that is now manifested by their Educational Programs.
 Principal Dwyer also announced that Miss Lawton, Mr. Pack and Mr. Harmon would act as faculty sponsor. Student leaders include Donna Pearson, Rhonda Davis and Judy Saunders. The money raised this year by selling new and renewal subscriptions to the Reader's Digest, Life, Look, McCall's, Better Homes and Gardens, and over 150 other top quality magazines will be used to help underwrite the cost of the Jr. and Sr. Banquet.
 School magazine sales programs have been in existence for some 45 years. They offer students a chance to help their school, their communities and themselves. The profits represent a good percentage of the subscription prices, are retained by the school to use in the purchase of items not usually provided by the school budget.

 The Quality Program, said Mr. Dwyer, has the added effect of teaching students to work as a team, to develop initiative and to gain solid business experience that will benefit them in the years ahead. It also helps the entire community develop better reading habits through exposure to some of the nation's most distinguished magazines, in a most dignified manner.
 In further consideration, Mr. Dwyer suggested "as the students approach you during these next few days, please realize that you are not contributing, but are assisting in a service to that student, his school, and to you. We will all be purchasing these subscriptions anyway, why not from one of our own students?"

FOOD FOR ATHLETES

Is your boy in an athletic program at school? If so, it wouldn't hurt for you to know that a lot of food faddism gains circulation in athletic circles. Some coaches know nutrition. Many don't.

As a result, special restraints, or special food products, especially on game day, may be recommended to your boy. In my opinion, advice to athletes that they use oxygen, or vitamins, or honey with their meals, or special medication is a lot of nonsense.

Eat Regular Meals

There simply is no reason for a football player, for example, to not eat his regular breakfast and lunch on Saturday, provided he has the same time interval between breakfast, lunch and game time as he has observed during the week between breakfast, lunch, and 4 o'clock practice.

What coaches are usually after when they suggest a different routine is to make game day special, psychologically. They use every means they can to get the team "up" for competition.

Well, there are plenty of means for influencing a boy's frame of mind and stimulating motivation without messing around with your son's basic body metabolism. In fact, fooling around with food practices that are otherwise sound can, in fact, serve to make a boy less effective.

Your son should, in my opinion, consume a diet that provides 15 percent of the calories from protein, 40 percent from fat, and 45 percent from carbohydrate. Higher protein diets cause problems, especially when the weather is hot and water is limited. On the other hand, a pure carbohydrate diet results in difficulties in retaining water. And, finally, too high a fat content in the diet, particularly in cold weather, will cause problems too technical to discuss here, but real nevertheless.

The Average American Diet

Trained nutritionists will, of course, recognize my recommendation above as being pretty much the average American diet. Well, yes. That is what I'm recommending. I am saying that a special diet has no benefit so far as athletic performance is concerned, but that a well balanced diet will be of benefit.

In research I have been personally involved in we have found that no special food regimen, no so-called aids improved whatsoever the physical index of individuals. So give your athlete normal meals at pre-game intervals he's used to. And if you want to reward him with some special food treat, do so after the game.

DROWNINGS UP IN TEXAS

AUSTIN—Summer is the time of the year when many Texans take to the water. And unfortunately, it's also the time of the year when the water takes many Texans.

The Texas Safety Association reports that 426 persons drowned last year in Texas, most of them from accidents in summer water sports. That was 50 more than in 1967.

Preliminary reports indicate that there have already been more than 370 drownings this year—with about half of the summer yet to go.

This sharp increase in drownings can be stopped if the following safety rules are observed:

Stay in shallow water unless you can swim, tread water and float.

Don't panic. The fear of real or imagined danger is a leading cause of drowning.

Never swim alone.

Don't swim if you are chilled, overheated, overtired or in a storm. Cold or tired muscles cramp more easily.

Wait a couple of hours after a heavy meal before swimming.

Don't try to show off.

Don't swim too far — your stamina may not be what it once was, and unused muscles cramp more easily.

Never dive, swim or wade into strange waters. The water may be more shallow or deeper than you think.

Learn the depth, tides and currents where you swim.

Closely supervise children playing in the water. Be sure the bottom has a gradual, even slope. Empty portable pools at night.

Build a fence with a gate that can be locked around your home pool or any farm pond used for swimming. Mark any unsafe places in the pond, and clean rubbish from the bottom.

If you get tangled in water weeds, don't thrash about. Move gently, shaking your arms and legs clear of the weeds.

If you cannot buck a current, swim diagonally across it, moving with the flow.

If you fall while water skiing, recover the skis. They will help keep you afloat. Also, if your boat capsizes, hang on to it if you can't right it. The swim to shore is usually longer than it seems. Besides, the boat is easier to spot than a lone swimmer.

If you have cramps, don't panic. Keep calm. Fear most often causes cramps to be fatal. If you're in deep water, take a deep breath, assume a face-down position, seize the cramped muscle with thumbs and fingers of both hands, and squeeze with all your might—then stretch the muscle for relief. As quickly as possible, go ashore and massage it.

Remember, if cramps cannot be broken, you can swim in a cramped position if you do not get excited.

If you follow these simple water safety rules, you can be assured that all your summer water fun will be accident-free.

Unlike his cousins, the polar bear does not take a long winter nap. He spends most of his time searching for food.

Sand dollars dine on microscopic life. They, in turn, are eaten by flounder, cod, haddock and starfish.

Although it is no larger than a thumbnail in size, the female peeper frog lays approximately 1,000 eggs.

Who says fishing is not fun in the wintertime? Man, there are angling opportunities galore during the winter months in Texas.

In fact, if you want "quality" fishing it awaits you most everywhere in the Longhorn State . . . in the cold, cold weather when the whites are hitting.

Ever go after white bass? Best time of the year is the cold-month period. And they hit live bait, dead bait, artificial lures . . . almost anything you toss out among the lively schooling whites.

And it's a ball catching them! They're scrappy, energetic creatures. Good eating too!

Thrill of white bass fishing is the tremendous action. They are hit-and-run fighters — the whole school of them seem to battle for the bait. Taking 20 or 40 whites from one darting school is not uncommon. We've heard of as many as 140 catches in one day's haul.

Don't deride the hoggishness of such an angler. 'Tis said that you could take all the whites out of an impoundment the size of Lake Travis . . . but 20 . . . and in one season the entire stock would be replenished. Don't know whether this is true or no, but I understand from biologists that the white bass do reproduce by the thousands.

White bass fishing in the wintertime is done — in quantity — by following the gulls. When you look at these circling birds you know you've hit the jackpot. Right below them "spotters" you'll find a school of darting, dashing shad. And right below the shad you'll find whites.

Probably your best lure is a silver spoon, like the Dixie, or a Mr. Champ or a slab.

Make your cast beside the school . . . on the edge of the active . . . not in the middle of it.

Heavier the lure the deeper and faster it sinks . . . and the larger the fish you'll catch. Reason for this is the big ones stay below and grab up the injured shad as these crumple sink to the bottom.

Occasionally you'll find a lazy ol' lunker black bass on your hook . . . providing your lure goes deep enough. Most likely he will be right on the very bottom eating only what falls comes his way. He's lazy, but tough and a fighter too, with lots of objection to being netted.

Fishing for whites is equally successful, if not more so, in the tail races below a dam — when the whites go upstream to spawn. And that's a cold-weather too . . . oftentimes the deep of winter . . . on the very coldest days . . . when the ice freezes in the guides of your fishing rod . . . and the angler's veins turn purple.

But it's fun . . . and when you're catching fish you don't notice the weather . . . be it steaming hot or freezing cold.

While you're saving money for college, make sure there's a college to save money for.

There are all kinds of ways to save money for a college education.
 A good savings account.
 Life insurance.
 Or U.S. Savings Bonds.
 You see, U.S. Savings Bonds will not only save you money, but they'll insure your country's future at the same time.
 It's one way of making sure there's a college whenever you're ready to send somebody to college.
 But back to the money part.
 Let's say you buy your one-year-old son a $25.00 Bond every month. When he's 18 and ready for college, he'll have $5,506.00.
 A $50.00 Bond every month would give him $11,012.00 when he's ready to enroll.
 And the beauty is, you never have to worry about this investment.

 You simply sign up through a Payroll Savings Plan where you work and then sit back and let the money pile up.
 Savings Bonds now pay a new higher rate—4 1/2%—when held to maturity of 7 years.
 And if they're lost, stolen, or destroyed, the Treasury Department will replace them free.
 Also, with each Series E Bond you buy, you're entitled to buy the same or lower denomination Freedom Share.
 Which pays 5% when held to maturity of 4 1/2 years and is redeemable after one year.
 Any way you look at it, buying U.S. Savings Bonds makes sense.
 They not only get the kids ready for college.
 They keep the colleges ready for the kids.

If and when disaster strikes, thousands of telephone men and operators, and tons of equipment are available to help restore communications.

Emergency phone service for police, hospitals and city officials is the first order of action. Then attention is turned to customer telephones that may be crippled.

It's a job we would rather not have to do. But when necessary, whatever the emergency—floods, hurricanes, tornadoes—we're ready. We may be the only phone company in town, but we try not to act like it.

In Time of Emergency If Warning Sounds, Here's What to Do

Warning of an enemy attack on the United States probably would be preceded by a period of international tension or crisis which would help alert all citizens to the possibility of attack. The actual attack warning, however, would be given to the public by outdoor warning devices, supplemented by radio or television.

If an attack actually occurs, it is almost certain that incoming enemy planes and missiles would be detected by our networks of warning stations in time for people to get into shelters or at least take cover. This warning time might be as little as 5-15 minutes in some locations, and as much as an hour or more in others.

Outdoor Warning Systems

Many U.S. cities and towns have outdoor warning systems, using sirens, whistles, horns or bells. Although they have been installed mainly to warn citizens of enemy attack, some local governments also use them in connection with natural disasters and other peacetime catastrophes.

THE ATTACK WARNING SIGNAL will be sounded only in case of enemy attack. The signal itself is a 3 to 5-minute rising and falling sound on the sirens, on whistles, horns or stations also, except in an actual nuclear emergency—will be broadcasting all the official information available. The telephone lines will be needed for official calls.

If There Is a Nuclear Flash...

It is possible but unlikely that the first warning of an enemy attack would be the flash of a nuclear explosion in the sky some distance away. Or there might be a flash after warning had been given, possibly while people were going to shelter.

TAKE COVER INSTANTLY.

If there should be a nuclear flash, take cover instantly in the best place available. By getting inside or under something within a few seconds, serious burns or injuries from the heat or blast waves of the nuclear explosion might be avoided. If the explosion were some distance away, a person might have 5 to 15 seconds before being injured by the heat, and perhaps 30 to 60 seconds before the blast wave arrived. Never look at the flash of an explosion or the nuclear fireball—it could cause permanent blindness.

Any kind of a building—a storm cellar or fruit cellar, a subway station or tunnel, a ditch or culvert alongside the road, a highway underpass, a storm sewer, a cave or outcropping of rock, a pile of heavy materials, or a trench or other excavation—would provide some protection. However, if no cover is available, simply lie down on the ground and curl up covering the head with the arms and hands. The important thing is to avoid being burned by the heat, thrown about by the blast, or struck by flying objects. Then go to a fallout shelter for protection against the radioactive fallout, which would arrive later.

The information in this story was furnished by the U.S. Department of Defense, Office of Civil Defense, to help people prepare for a nuclear attack and learn what actions to take in case an attack should occur. Local government authorities are responsible for supplying the public with more detailed survival instructions for this area. This information was drawn from the OGD publication "In Time of Emergency" (H-14), which is available without charge at local civil defense offices.

ATTACK WARNING SIGNAL

other devices, repeated as necessary. The Attack Warning Signal means that an actual enemy attack against the United States has been detected, and that people should take protective action immediately. This signal has no other meaning, and can be used for no other purpose.

In some communities, the local government uses an alert signal to get the attention of citizens in a time of threatened or impending natural disaster, or some other peacetime emergency. This attention or alert signal is a 3 to 5-minute steady blast on sirens, whistles, horns or other devices. In most places, it means that the local government will broadcast important information and official instructions on radio or television concerning a peacetime disaster.

When the Attack Warning Signal Sounds

The Attack Warning Signal means—unless other instructions have been issued by local government—that people should go immediately to a public fallout shelter marked with a yellow-and-black sign or to a home fallout shelter.

Once in the fallout shelter, the radio should be tuned to any local station that is broadcasting to get official information and instructions. If there is no public or private shelter available, fallout protection should be improvised. As a last resort, take cover anywhere possible. If a warning signal sounds, do not use the telephone to obtain further information and advice about the emergency. Radio stations—and television

TAX SAM SEZ:

The Dallas District Office of Internal Revenue information offered to taxpayers in North Texas through news stories, radio spot announcements and various TV spots and programs. There were 426,000 taxpayers who called Internal Revenue offices or who walked in to ask a question. When they looked over the statistical sample of all the calls, they found that taxpayers in a very large percentage of the cases do exactly what Internal Revenue asks them to do. When Internal Revenue suggested that they might need more information, the taxpayers called or walked in and asked for the information. When Internal Revenue gave them the answer to a simple question to save them the trouble of asking, the calls dropped to almost nothing.

The tax folks have been saying for a long time that taxpayers believed in voluntary compliance and wanted to do what was right. However, the tax folks learned that most of us already know what most folks will listen real well, if you can just get their attention—but getting their attention is almost impossible.

The newspaper publishers have been telling businessmen for many, many years that it pays to advertise. Of course, in recent years, the radio and TV boys and the advertising firms have joined in. But now the good tax folks come along and prove that it pays to tell your story, whether it's good news or bad news. You still get results.

FORAGE TESTING WILL PAY--One of the big problems is properly and efficiently using forages is the wide variation in their nutritive value. Often this variation is not recognized by visual inspection, but, points out A. M. Meekma, Extension dairy specialist, forage testing will show the difference. Even small difference in forage quality should be recognized and feeding adjustments made, he says.

Mimics, Unlimited?

Mimicking the famous is, and always has been, a favorite mode of humor. Prince or president, magnate or movie star, anyone in the public eye can expect to see his idiosyncrasies turned into fodder for laughs.

Some are pleased, perhaps on the theory that imitation is the sincerest form of flattery. But suppose the person mimicked is not pleased. Does he have a legal claim?

As a rule, the answer is no. Whatever anguish he feels is considered one of the penalties of fame. The law gives a kind of poetic license to the mimic to practice what it calls "a distinct variety of the histrionic art."

However, there are limits. Even the famous are entitled to be shielded against the imitator who goes too far.

For one thing, mimicry must not be used as a device for defamation of character.

"A person shall not be allowed," said a judge, "to murder another's reputation in jest."

For another thing, the mimic—even though telling no lies—must not violate the right of privacy. He must not expose those areas of the person's life that are not "fair game" for public dissection. Thus, revelation of a tycoon's personal peccadilloes, if totally unrelated to his business career, might well be an invasion of his privacy.

What if the mimic uses imitation not for humor at all, but rather to pass himself off as the real thing? In one case, an actor assumed a name and mannerisms similar to those of a famous entertainer, so as to trick audiences into coming to see him.

But a court finally halted him with an injunction, partly to protect the original entertainer, partly to protect the public. As one judge put it:

"First, a man who has a reputation for excellence is entitled to be protected in the reputation thus established; and second, the public should be protected against whomsoever places a counterfeit article on the market in the likeness of the genuine."

CROSSBREDS CHECKED IN FEEDLOT--Crossbreeds, involving Charolais, Charbray and Santa Gertrudis, gave the highest feedlot weight gain in recent tests at Texas A&M University. The research involved 1,934 animals fed for 140 days.

In addition to the named breeds above, Hereford, Angus, Bituman, Brown Swiss and Red Poll were also represented. Objective of the tests was to determine how various breeds perform in the feedlot when different crosses are used.

Correct Lighting
Required For Boats
Part of boating safety is having the correct equipment on board, including proper lighting. The Texas Water Safety Act, in setting lighting requirements for boats and motorboats, lists classification by boat length. Class A includes boats less than 16 feet in length. Class I includes boats 16 feet or over and less than 26 feet in length. Class II includes boats 26 feet or over and less than 40 feet in length. Class III includes boats 40 feet or over.

Classes A and I boats must have red and green lights on the bow and white light on the stern. The red light must be visible 112.5 degrees on the port side, and the green light must be visible 112.5 degrees on the starboard side. The white light on the stern must be visible in a 360-degree radius. Boats in the II and III classification must display a white light on the bow visible in a 225 degree radius, a red light visible 112.5 degrees on the port side, a green light visible 112.5 degrees on the starboard side, and a white light on the stern visible in a 360-degree radius. Windbreak seedlings are sold in multiples of 50 trees but the minimum acceptable order is 100 trees, the price is $2.50 per hundred plus sales tax, includes shipping costs. No trees are available for resale or for ornamental use. Shipments of windbreak trees species will begin about mid-January and continue through the first week in March 1970. Orders will be handled on a first-come-first served basis. Applications for windbreak seedlings may be obtained from county agricultural agents, soil conservation district offices and the Texas Forest Service, College Station, Texas 77843.

Accent On Health
Accident-proofing your home doesn't happen accidentally, and it takes a little time and effort to make "Home Sweet Home," advises the Texas State Department of Health. Home is normally thought of as a safe, secure place, but it isn't always that way. In fact, it's a dangerous place which can cause death or injury. As modern living has become more complex, man has built in many dangers. Gas and electricity are useful tools, but they can cause fires or killing electric shocks. Out tiled baths, glossy floors, fancy draperies, decorations and neverending supplies of new gadgets present hazards to our lives every day. Last year the number of home deaths in this country was some 30,000 with falls, burns and poisons as the leading causes of these deaths. Most of these deaths occur in the bedrooms, kitchens and bathrooms. Most people think first of the bathtub, with its hazards of falls and drownings, as the number one killer, but it isn't. Bedrooms rank first. Too many people smoke in bed and "wake up dead" from fire or lethal smoke. Many infants smother from improper covering or to large a pillow. And people get up during the night and fall over objects in the dark. Bad housekeeping is at fault here. In our slick-floored kitchens we fall, burn, electrocute, bomb and poison ourselves. The oven cleaner, drain cleaner, bleach, dishwashing compounds, insecticide and furniture polish under the sink are products which are poisonous and easily accessible to children. Leaking gas - or fumes - may explode on contact with a pilot light with your stove. In addition to falls around the tub, the bathroom has another potential killer in the medicine cabinet. It has been estimated that 302,000 children under five years of age ingested some potentially toxic product last year. To prevent these home accidents, plan for safety. Keep medicines and home kitchen products out of the reach of children. Watch where you put your lit cigarettes and matches. Put hand holds around your bathtubs and make sure all rugs are slide-free. Never place inflammables near a gas water heater. Before winter sets in have your heating system checked to guard against fires - or carbon monoxide poisoning. Never touch any electrical appliance with your hands in water or while on a wet floor. And keep things in their places.

Texas Forest Service
Texas - 60ll and water losses to fields by fast, drying winds can be reduced according to Mason Cloud, Texas Forest Service. Properly planned and maintained, windbreaks or shelterbelts of trees and shrubs can reduce soil erosion by wind, protect homesteads and livestock and reduce soil moisture losses from evaporation. Tree species suited for windbreak plantings available this year from the state nursery near Alto will include Oriental arbutus, catalpa, cottonwood cuttings, eucalyptus, honeylocust (black and thornless) mulberry, sage orange pine, (Austrian loblolly), ponderosa, shortleaf, and slash, redcedar, sweetgum, sycamore, and black walnut stratified seed.

Disposition and personality - even character - will very largely be determined by the thoughts we welcome to our minds each day.

Since it is true that a soul is dyed the color of its thoughts, it is imperative that everyone be given guidance in thinking about truths and values that are noble and eternal.

A. The law requires a turn signal anytime the turning movement could in any way affect traffic in either direction. A defensive driver will establish a habit of giving a turn signal before any turning movement.

Q. Is it illegal for a truck to signal that it is safe to pass?

A. No. It is illegal for the driver of any vehicle to use the turn signals to indicate to another driver to pass. The driver of a vehicle following another should pass only when he can see the road ahead.

The Secret Of Barbecuing Chicken

One secret to top quality chicken barbecuing is long, slow cooking, . . . between 1 1/4 to 1 1/2 hours, advises Gwendolyn Clyatt, Extension consumer marketing specialist with Texas A&M University.

For barbecuing, choose young, well-meated birds weighing about 2 pounds. Markets are featuring fryers at attractive prices. Have the butcher split or quarter them, then place them on the grill skin side up, close together.

Baste pieces with barbecue sauce right away, says Mrs. Clyatt. A pastry brush or clean new dish mop works well for basting.

Turn the birds every five or six minutes and don't spare the sauce each turn. Use cloth gloves or a pair of tongs to turn the meat. A fork will pierce the skin and let juices escape.

If the drumstick bone turns easily, this usually indicates a properly cooked bird.

Here's a recipe for lemon-herb sauce for grilled chicken:

Blend 1/2 cup cooking oil 1/2 cup melted butter or margarine, 1/4 cup lemon juice, 2 teaspoons salt, 2 teaspoons paprika, 1/4 teaspoon pepper, 1/8 teaspoon thyme and 1/8 teaspoon garlic salt. This makes 1 1/4 cup sauce.

On halves of toasted buns or bagels, muffs bacon ham, swiss cheese, chicken, bacon, tomato, sliced ham cooked egg. Wrap in wax paper, and place in refrigerator until packing time. Tote a long favorite dressing, suggests Extension Consumer Marketing Specialist Gwendolyn Clyatt. Allow two halves of bun for each person.

Add variety to school lunches by using a variety of breads. You can if you have a freezer and freeze sandwiches for a week at a time. Naturally, advises Extension Consumer Marketing Specialist Gwendolyn Clyatt, look for enriched or whole grain bread.

A recent USDA survey pointed out that many American homemakers roast meat at too high a temperature. Half of those interviewed roast between 350 and 375 degrees. Extension Consumer Marketing Specialist Gwendolyn Clyatt recommends a temperature of between 300 to 325 degrees. Only one of seven homemakers surveyed reported using a meat thermometer as a means of measuring doneness. Mrs. Clyatt says the meat thermometer is almost foolproof.

WEATHER AND HARVEST AID CHEMICALS FOR COTTON

Dry weather stunted cotton, since the recent rains, will likely take on new life and thus make necessary a change in pre-harvest chemical use, advises Fred C. Elliott, extension cotton specialist. He outlines what he calls a "two-shot" treatment for stripper harvesting when conditions are not favorable at harvest time, use either a chlorate or phosphate defoliant when 60 percent of the bolls are open. If defoliation is not complete in 7 to 10 days, he suggests an application of arsenic acid to get the remaining leaves.

Social Security News

O. I started receiving my social security payments when I retired at age 62. I am now 63 years of age and totally disabled. May I apply for disability payments even though I have already started receiving my retirement payments?

A. Yes. The receipt of social security retirement payments does not bar anyone, who becomes disabled before age 65, from applying for disability insurance. If you qualify you will receive the slightly higher disability benefit instead of the reduced retirement benefit.

Q. I am 59 years old and receive social security disability payments. May I also enroll for Medicare benefits as a disability insurance beneficiary?

A. No. You must be at least 65 years of age to qualify for Medicare benefits.

Q. I am 63 years of age. I would like to retire but I have heard that once I sign up to receive my social security payments, I cannot stop them and return to work full time. Am I correct?

A. No. The decision to return to work full time, and thereby stop your social security payments, is your decision. You are required to report your return to work so that the necessary adjustments can be made on your record.

CONSUMER PROTECTION

There's a lot of talk nowadays about protecting consumers and the need to provide them with more information about the vast array of products they buy and enjoy.

We believe that the great majority of manufacturers go to untold lengths to turn out trouble-free products, and provide adequate information about their care and operation. Undoubtedly, there are some firms that might do a better job both in quality control and in issuing easy-to-understand instructions.

However, the customer has a responsibility, too. No matter how good a manufacturer does in consumer education, he can't do the whole job alone. The customer must be willing to read the instructions that come with a product or appliance.

Recently a housewife complained to a manufacturer that her washing machine wasn't getting her clothes clean. An investigation showed that she wasn't using any detergent or washing powder. She said she thought the machine supplied the cleaning agent automatically. Yet the use-and-care booklet for the appliance stated the exact amount of detergent to use.

Still another woman complained about her "washer." It developed that she had purchased a dryer and had it installed. No wonder her wash didn't come clean.

These are two extreme examples but they serve to point up the importance of reading what the manufacturers have to say about product operation.

A recent analysis by the National Association of Manufacturers shows that the greatest source of consumer complaints could be eliminated—if the consumer would take the time to read the directions FIRST.
