Wonder how many bond buyers were among the horn-tooters and liquor buyers on V-J Day?

He is a dangerous citizen who thinks only of his own desires, without considering the effect on the community life.

Too many people are willing to engage in questionable practices to raise money for charitable purposes. A desirable object cannot excuse the deed.

After years of saving waste paper, one city alone wasted over 10 tons on V-E Day in celebration. Hundreds of tons were wasted when Japan surrendered. No matter how much "preaching" is done, some people go on their merry way, war or no war.

CITATION BY PUBLICATION

THE STATE OF TEXAS
To: Eva Mae Gibby, greeting:
You are commanded to appear and answer the plaintiff's petition as or before 10 o'clock a. m. of the first Monday after the expiration of 42 days from the date of issuance of this Citation, the same being Monday the 1st day of October, A. EDUCATION

Education does not mean teaching people what they do not know. It means teaching them to behave as they do not behave. It is not teaching the youth the shapes of the letters and the tricks of numbers and then leaving them to turn their arithmetic to roguery, and their literature to lust. It means, on the contrary, training them into the perfect exercise and kingly continence of their bodies and souls. It is a painful, continual and difficult work to be done by kindness, by watching, by warning, by precept, and by praise, but above all--by example.—John Ruskin.

ALMOST IMPORTED

Thomas Hart Benton, noted American artist, says that his agents recently tried to sell some of his paintings in Hollywood. They rented a room in a fashionable hotel, spent a month in the film capital, but didn't sell a picture. Then they took the exhibit to New York and sold almost the whole lot—to Hollywood buyers!

Long life is a blessing, if you live. But what does anybody gain by just staying here?—Quillen.

Cuba is the world's greatest producer of cane sugar, and the biggest exporter.

Teacher—Among our spelling words for today, children, we find the word "hence." Now, Billy, give me a sentence with "hence."
Billy—Hence are female chickens.

Texas has 76 towns with girls' names and 68 towns with boys' names, running alphabetically from Adell to Vivian, and Abner to Woodrow.

Teacher—How is it that you haven't made progress? At your age I could read fluently.
Pupil—Probably you had a better teacher than I, sir.

Teacher—Johnny, can you tell me what a grudge is?
Johnny—A grudge is a place where they keep automobiles.

DRIFTING

When I first knew him he was an active church member and an exceptionally useful Christian man. Even now so far as I know he is not guilty of any disgraceful or outbursting conduct. But he has quit going to church, takes no part in and shows no interest in, any Christian activity. When this happens he is apt to drift into the ways of men of the world. Having cut loose from church ties he finds himself easily indulging habits that he would have regarded improper, if not sinful, when active as a church member. He is apt to drift into one or more of the following habits of the recognized worldling: Sunday golf, Sunday fishing, Sunday movies, cards with stakes—"just for fun," the social glass the highbrow ballroom, profanity in profusion, an occasional "innocent flirtation," a relaxing of interest in the moral and religious training of his children, an abandonment of the family altar or even grace at meals.

I know this man. I shall not call his name but I know him. The fact is I am not thinking of any one man for I know personally at least a score of such men in my own town; and in my wider Texas acquaintance I have known more or less intimately hundreds of men whose career I have pictured.

Who can estimate the loss to our moral and religious fiber growing out of the course of these men? Speaking in the common use of the term, all of is accept them as good citizens. They would be shocked, wounded and doubtless indignant if anybody intimated otherwise. I am not writing to bring any railing charges against men of this class. Nobody realizes more thoroughly than I the fact that I am no their judge. To their God and their own conscience they must give account of their deeds done and their duties left undone.

More and more I seek to dedicate this column to high thinking and noble living. I use it with a three-fold purpose in view. In the first place, I would in the affectionate voice of a brother warn men of this type the few whom I know and the thousands I do not know, of the harvest that is sure to come from the seed they are sowing. My dear men, it will bring disastrous results, not only in your own lives, but in the lives of those you love and who are to come after you.

In the second place you are pursuing a course that must displease the Savior who loves you and gave Himself for you and Whom you once openly accepted as Lord and Master of your life. What has He done or failed to do that by your conduct and attitude you should disown Him? In the third place through this, the only means of appeal open to me now, I want to urge you in the spirit of a brother to get back into the harness.

Some of us, in our poor stumbling way, are laying ourselves out to create a wholesome moral and religious atmosphere in our community, in our country, and throughout the land. As I can to man, may I without presumption press upon you the question: Do you honestly feel that in your attitude of apparent indifference and unquestionable spirit of non-cooperation, you are toting fair with your neighbors who, by sacrificial service, are seeking to maintain schools and churches and religious influences for our children and yours?

Don't let the love of the world and indifference to the things of God rob you of the real high-st joy and deheart your usefulness as a man. Again I beg you, get back in harness and join the rest of us in a long pull, a strong pull and a pull all together for the things that are highest and best.—Jeff D. Ray in Star-Telegram.

Mrs. J. W. Trapp of Brownwood, president of Daniel Baker College, is the only woman college president in Texas.

So Clever

By ALICE WRIGHT
McClure Newspaper Syndicate,
WNU Features.

SATSUMA strutted on his bantam legs as he worked about the hedges of the park close to the green shipyards. So clever! Many things could be concealed among the lowly tools, and many too beneath the humble guise of a gardener. But no temporary abatement was too much when it was for the glory of the Rising Sun. None—not even the killing of one's own brother.

It had been so easy to be smuggled into the barbarians' country and make his way to where lived his brother Mitsuna in this mid-western city of shipbuilding along the muddy river. A swift rip of the knife, a note of resignation to the Yankee capitalist who had employed Mitsuna as yard boy, and Satsuma became Mitsuna, a naturalized citizen of the United States whose record was faultless in the eyes of the investigators.

He spat venomously as he recalled the large, lazy man with so sharp eyes who pretended to enjoy the park while he was observing Satsuma. But Satsuma was too smart to be caught off guard and, by ways known to himself, he had discovered that the man, also disguised in humble dress, was Lieutenant Roland Mason of Naval Intelligence.

As the morning wore on he began to wish that Lieutenant Mason would appear. It would be so good to fool him with his new ruse, to look so stupid while knowing he was being so clever. His shears clipped sharply along the hedge, his bright little eyes intently watching the entrance to the park.

Ah! The lazy-looking one had entered and seated himself on a bench across the lagoon. It took Satsuma over half an hour to move toward him, methodically clipping as if oblivious to the other's presence. Satsuma had patience. If Lieutenant Ah! The lazy-looking one had entered and seated himself.

Mason should decide to speak he would halt and prattle in the loose American fashion though he would be guiding the conversation to an objective. If not, he would continue on his way and await another opportunity.

"Nice day," Lieutenant Mason's voice was as lazy as he pretended to be, and his eyes regarded Satsuma dully.

Satsuma straightened, a mask of stolidity slipping over his features. "Very nice," he said in careful English. He could not resist adding, "You visit often."

"I like the view. Don't you?" Satsuma gazed around the park, carefully avoiding the yards. "Much work," he shrugged.

"It helps to keep up appearances," Mason idly tapped the newspaper he was holding. "You Chinese are making it plenty tough for the monkey-men."

Although his spirit writhed under the double insult Satsuma was too wary to let the lieutenant know his barb had hit home. "I am good American citizen," he smiled blandly and bent to resume his work.

Now was the time to let the picture work itself out of his pocket. The lieutenant would rise to the bait.

The fact that he and his brother looked much alike had made Satsuma's precaution simple. He had secured a car of the same make and year as Mitsuna's, had pored over the records at the courthouse to get the correct license number, and had manufactured a plate of that same year. Then, a snapshot of himself in front of the automobile with the license showing.

At last the photograph fell from his pocket, and Satsuma moved slowly on his way. He barely concealed a triumphant grin as he saw the slow one move swiftly for it and examine it with so sharp eyes before he called in his slow voice, "You dropped something!"

"Ah yess! Thank you so much." Satsuma returned with a gleam of something akin to pleasure in his bright little eyes. As he held out his hand to take the picture the cold bite of metal snapped over his wrist.

"So sorry!" Lieutenant Mason's voice crackled. "You Japs are so good at copying. Too bad! But in Missouri in 1943 the licenses were only small tags set over the outdated large metal ones which you have taken the pains to reproduce. You see, the metal we saved that way has long been flying over Tokyo."

THIS GAME WAS PLAYED IN WHITEWRIGHT

Whitewright will soon be seventy years old. During this long period of time many unusual things happened. But not until Wednesday night June 20, 1945, did a softball team of white women meet on the diamond a team of negro women. The game was on a field, the score being 42 to 3 in favor of the whites. Some twenty years ago a baseball team of women was organized in New York City. They were known as the "Blonkers." They toured the country playing teams composed of men. The team attracted much attention pro and con, and many condemned the women for playing baseball with men. But, now it is common for women to play all kinds of games without criticism. This is as it should be.

Whoever thought they would see a softball game played in Whitewright between white women and negro women? The year 1945 is different from the gay nineties in many respects, and this is one of them. What will come next?—Whitewright Sun.

The above mild commentary records the most disgraceful sport event, ever coming to our notice, as taking place in the Sunny South. It is disgraceful, contemptible and defiling and is enough to cause the unconquerable spirits of Jefferson Davis, Robert E. Lee and the coterie of grave and chivalrous men to shudder and turn in their graves. Of course, it is beyond their power to show their resentment and humiliation at such conduct, but surely the more cultured and refined female contingent of our beloved Dixieland are not so deluded as to willfully ignore the sacred traditions for which our brave men of the Confederacy made the supreme sacrifice. Has the witch-faced Eleanor succeeded in beguiling our Southern girls and women into becoming the champions of negro equality and social parity? We do not believe there is to be found anywhere in the Southland a club of white men or boys who would fraternize with a like club of negroes, or contend with them in any sport event. We have always believed in the purity, virtue and chastity of women, especially Southern women, and it is shocking to our sensibilities to witness any departure from the social standards of the beloved Southland. What we are seeing in 1945 is the result of what we have been exposed to for 12 years of the New Deal administration, and what the negro loving politicians of the North are trying to ram down our Southern throats in the form of the FEPC. We would rather have KKK than FEPC!—Ladonia News.
