Reasonable Time

Before a contract arises someone must make an offer and another must accept it. Without an offer, no acceptance; with no acceptance, no agreement. But there is often a time within which you can accept the offer. And if not, the offer ends anyhow within a "reasonable time" which is determined by circumstances and the parties' intentions.

Smith had a set of books which Brown wanted. Brown wrote and offered him $200 for the set. Smith didn't answer for six months, and meantime Brown bought a similar set. One day Brown got a letter from Smith saying, "I accept your offer of $200 for the set of books."

Brown told Smith he'd bought the books elsewhere, but Smith still claimed that his belated "acceptance" had nevertheless sealed the contract with Brown. Was there a contract? No, the offer had lapsed because it had not been accepted in the circumstances, within a reasonable time. There are many ways to end an offer. You may withdraw it, you may say that the offer expires at a given time, or you may die, or the other party may turn it down directly or by making a counter offer.

Here Smith had failed to accept Brown's offer within a reasonable time, which ended it just as though it had been withdrawn. What is a reasonable time? It varies. The offer could expire in a few minutes in the stock market or last for quite a while, depending upon what a court would think is a reasonable time. But in Smith's case six months was unreasonable.

MRS. CLARENCE PIERCE

Vows Spoken for Charlene Hall and Clarence Pierce

Miss Charlene Hall, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Charles H. Hall, Jr., and Clarence Pierce, son of Mr. and Mrs. Lyman Pierce, were united in marriage Thursday, July 3, in the Church of Christ.

David Fultz, Church of Christ minister, performed the double ring ceremony before an arch formed by 28 blue candles, banked with emerald greenery and baskets of blue and white carnations and white gladioli. Aisle decorations were blue and white carnations and greenery tied with white satin bows.

Music was furnished by George Saunders, uncle of the bride, who sang "Whither Thou Goest" by Sanger, "Until the End of Time" by Kay-Mossman, "Oh Promise Me" by Scott-DeKoven, and the processional and recessional.

Fern Grimsley, maid of honor, wore a blue embroidered eyelet ballerina length organza with a scooped neckline, fitted bodice and full skirt. She carried a bouquet of blue and white carnations.

Donna Lou Hall, sister of the bride, was the flower girl. She wore a pink dotted sheer nylon with satin trim, a round neckline, puff sleeves, and a full skirt. Her headdress was of white nylon net and blue carnations.

Candlelighters were Janelle Hall, sister of the bride, and Paul Pierce, brother of the groom. Miss Hall wore a pink embroidered eyelet organza with velvet trim, a round neckline, fitted

COLD FEET . . . ?

A generation ago some people thought rubbing the soles of the feet with grease would ward off a head cold. Today, we know better. Adequate rest and a well-balanced diet go a long way toward preventing colds. But, sometimes even the best precautions aren't good enough. When you are ill—whether you have a cold or something more serious—effective medications are important. They can be the difference between pain or comfort . . . slow or fast recovery. Let your physician decide the remedies you need. Then come to us for the prescribed medication.

bodice and full skirt. She had a wristlet of blue and white carnations tied with silver ribbon.

The bride, given in marriage by her father, was attired in a ballerina length gown of hand-clipped imported Chantilly lace over net and taffeta, with a flattering scalloped neckline and short scalloped sleeves. The full skirt fell from a fitted bodice. She carried a white orchid bouquet on a white Bible. She wore a blue wedding garter borrowed from Mrs. Bernard McClellan, a penny in her shoe, and carried a handkerchief belonging to her Grandmother Saunders.

Jerry Guyton served as best man. Ushers were Melvin Pierce of Fort Worth and Donald Pierce of Bethany, Okla., brothers of the groom; Charles Crockett and Bob Stubbs of McLean.

Little Jim Mac Hall, 3-year-old brother of the bride, led the bridal party to the altar.

Mrs. Hall chose for her daughter's wedding a blue lace dress with pink accessories.

The groom's mother wore a pale green sheer with beige accessories.

A reception was held immediately following the ceremony at the ranch home of the bride's parents. Fionelle Crockett registered the guests. The bride's table was covered with a white embroidered linen cloth, with a centerpiece of a blue double ring and a memory candle. Darlene Potter poured from a crystal service. Nancy Tate and Linda Grimsley, Mrs. David Fultz, Mrs. Bernard McClellan and Mrs. Harris King assisted with the serving and Mrs. George Saunders assisted the bride. All members of the house party were presented with blue and white carnation corsages.

Mrs. Pierce chose a blue chemise-princess with white accessories for a wedding trip to points of interest in Texas and New Mexico.

The bride is a granddaughter of Guy Saunders of McLean, a well-known Gray County rancher. She is a 1958 graduate of McLean High School, was president of F. H. A. her senior year, and was a member of the Tiger band.

The groom is a 1955 graduate of Bethany, Okla., High School. He is employed by Southwestern Bell Telephone Co. at Pampa.

Mr. and Mrs. Eddie Mae Stewart and children, Karen and Charles Edward of Houston visited their parents Mr. and Mrs. Leon Crockett and Mr. and Mrs. F. E. Stewart. The children remained with their grandparents for a longer visit.

It is not the dawdlers and triflers who find life worth living; it is the strenuous, robust workers.—Charles W. Eliot.

CARD OF THANKS

I want to thank the wonderful neighbors and friends, both in McLean and Kellerville, for the flowers, cards, letters, and gifts I received while I was in the hospital. It made my stay seem much shorter. I want to especially thank Creed Lamb for being so kind and thoughtful. May God's richest blessings rest on each of you.

MRS. DALE GREENHOUSE

Kay Stubbs and Dale Greenhouse Wed Friday, July 4

Miss Sandra Kay Stubbs, daughter to Mr. and Mrs. William F. Stubbs of McLean, pledged wedding vows with Alton Dale Greenhouse, son of Mr. and Mrs. Alton Guy Greenhouse of McLean, Friday evening, July 4, in the First Presbyterian Church, with Rev. Gerald L. Hill, pastor, officiating at the double-ring candlelight ceremony.

The couple knelt on a kneeling bench covered with power blue satin, decorated with lemon leaf and blue daisies with candelabra and palms on either side, accompanying the baskets of white gladioli and blue daisies.

The bride, given in marriage by her father, wore a waltz length gown of silk mist, designed with an empire bodice of embroidered lace and scalloped portrait neckline studded with pearls and iridescent sequins. The flowing skirt billowed from a tucked midriff. Her elbow length veil of illusion was appliqued with lace and trimmed with sequins and pearls. Short mitts of matching silk and lace completed her costume.

Girls Return from Cheerleaders School

The girls who attended the cheerleaders school at Midwestern in Wichita Falls last week had a wonderful time. They learned new yells and came home full of enthusiasm.

When they arrived in Clarendon Thursday night a group of McLean persons were there. The girls gave some of their new yells. McLean had a pep rally at the Clarendon Depot. Attending the school were Laura Mae Switzer, Geraldine McPherson, Elizabeth Boston, Adella Vineyard, Peggy Sharp and Helen Smith.

daisies and frenched carnations with showers of blue ribbon.

Wayne Greenhouse of Miami, brother of the groom, was best man. Ushers were Harold Greenhouse, of Miami, brother of the groom; Robert L. Stubbs of El Paso, brother of the bride, Jack Hall of Alarred, Ronald Robertson of Amarillo, and Richard Brown of McLean.

Lighting the candles was Ronald Brown of McLean.

Mrs. Travis Stokes, organist, played a prelude of pre-nuptial music and the traditional wedding marches. She was accompanied by Miss Caroline Stokes, who sang "I Love You Truly" by Carrie J. Bond and "The Lord's Prayer" by Malotte.

Mrs. Stubbs chose for her daughter's wedding a sheath dress of embroidered antique linen with beige and white accessories and a corsage of purple asters.

The groom's mother wore a beige and white silk with white accessories and a corsage of pink carnations.

A reception was held in the basement of the church following the exchange of vows. The table was covered with a blue net banquet cloth. The centerpiece of blue and white carnations in a silver bowl flanked by candles enhanced the flower decorated cake.

Mrs. C. L. Halbert, aunt of the bride, poured. Mrs. C. M. Robertson served the cake, and Miss Marsha Andrews presided at the guest book.

For a wedding trip to Raton, N. M., and Colorado, the bride wore a beige burmaline suit with white trim and white accessories and a white orchid.

Mrs. Greenhouse is a senior student in McLean High School, where she plans to continue her studies this fall. She is worthy advisor of Rainbow for Girls.

The groom is a 1958 graduate of McLean High School and is owner and operator of Dale's Radio and TV Shop in McLean.

Out-of-town guests were: from Amarillo, Lt. and Mrs. T. L. Gaylon, Mrs. B. T. Stubbs, Mr. and Mrs. G. B. Stubbs, Mrs. Ray Fisher, Mrs. Wayne Allen, Mr. and Mrs. W. B. Stubbs, Mr. and Mrs. C. M. Editorial

HOLY COW!

The first domestic livestock in what is now the USA, landed in Florida in 1521. The first American meat packer was the founder of Plymouth, Mass. Yet, after all these years the meat industry and its intricate interplay of prices continue to be a mystery.

That observation was made by Robert West Howard, roving editor of the American Meat Institute, in an unusual talk before a YWCA Rural-Urban Workshop. And why should this mystery exist? Here's his answer: "Essentially, I presume, because no consumer really gives a tunket. I feel like a steak. All right, let's go downtown and have a good one. We'll really put on the dog and take in a play, too. Seven dollars for the restaurant steak; three dollars for a Caesar salad; $1.50 for the waiter; 50 cents for the cigarette girl; $3 for cabs; $8 for good orchestra seats; $12 for nightcaps and a floor show at The Blue Bubble. . . . Thirty-five bucks. Holy cow, how the price of meat has gone up! Who's getting it?"

Comparatively few consumers may operate on so expensive a scale as this. But the things people don't know about the meat industry would fill a book. For instance, Mr. Howard points out, it takes 18 months to grow a 1,000 pound steer. During that time the animal may change owners several times and travel thousands of miles. After dressing out and trimming, less than half of the weight—465 pounds—becomes retail cuts in the butcher's cabinets. And of this 465 pounds, a mere 35 pounds represents those highly regarded steaks. That's why a steak is expensive—while other cuts, equally nutritious and mighty toothsome when properly prepared, cost much less.

Mr. Howard thinks it's high time we take the mystery out of meat, through education and the dissemination of the facts. He's really got something there.

FREEDOM TO ADVERTISE

"Another vicious invasion of our dwindling freedoms was chalked up last month when the Bureau of Internal Revenue took action to try to gag private industry from using advertising to fight government competition." Thus began a long editorial in The American Press, a monthly magazine which speaks for the weekly newspapers of this country.

The ruling in question was that advertising placed by electric utility companies, and presenting their side of the public-vs-private power controversy could no longer be deducted as business expense for income tax purposes. Needless to say, all the proponents of socialized power greeted this act with shouts of joy.

The American Press also says: "We can't think of a more American way for business to battle for its rights than to take it case to the people by the use of advertising space. Surely this is more to be desired than secret, behind-closed-doors lobbying, which seems to be the alternative.

"It is our hope that the electric companies will not only fight this ruling in the tax courts but will go a step further and use part of their advertising space to acquaint the people with this attempt of the government to 'gag' them.

"Freedom to advertise is an important part of freedom of the press, and should be guarded with equal care. It is, in many cases, the one vehicle through which business can 'speak out in open meeting'."

This goes far beyond the fight over who is to produce this country's electricity. If a tax penalty can be used to prevent any man, any industry, or any group from stating his side of a case, one of the most essential of the freedoms supposedly guaranteed by the Constitution is on its deathbed. And government bureaus, tax weepers at the ready, will decide what can or cannot be said in the advertising pages of our newspapers and magazines.

CONSPIRACY?

During the past 50 years, probably no two industries have been more lawed over, regulated, investigated, taxed and abused by politicians than have power. The fact that these two industries have survived and progressed in an unprecedented manner to meet public demands leads one to believe that their management, personnel and politics are above the average.

Now comes a news story that 29 of the nation's oil companies are accused by a federal grand jury of conspiring to fix the price of crude oil and gas. Leading oil companies immediately denied such charges. The general counsel for one company said that government lawyers and economists "seem so obsessed with cleaning up non-existent conspiracies that they cannot understand the normal processes of a competitive market."

Of necessity the oil industry has the best obtainable management. It also has the best legal talent because its operations involve all manner of legal questions—local, national and international. Its every move has to be made with the anti-trust laws in mind.

It is inconceivable that 29 of the leading oil companies of the United States would deliberately conspire to evade the anti-trust laws. How could you get 29 heads of companies and 29 legal departments to be so dumb?

Congressman Rogers Reports—

TO THE PEOPLE

The Farm Bill

The agriculture committee of the House of Representatives last week voted out an omnibus farm bill that undertook to solve some of the dilemmas which have plagued the agricultural segment of our economy. It was a highly controversial measure. In fact, during the committee hearings all of the Republicans, except during the committee hearings room at one point in protest to the measure. Nevertheless, the bill was voted out with approval and was sent to the rules committee. The rules committee is sometimes called the legislative traffic cop committee. This committee passes upon the manner in which legislation is to be presented to the House, the length of debate and other procedural matters. The controversy concerning the farm bill was, of course, renewed in the rules committee; however, it was voted out of the rules committee by a resolution authorizing the House to debate the measure for five hours. This resolution was subject to debate, and the question was whether or not the House would adopt the resolution and thereby clear the way for consideration of the farm bill. Tempers ran high, and there was much oratory. The matter was approached on a partisan basis, and it soon developed that the vote would be along party lines. When the time came to vote on the resolution, it appeared that it would be very close. Had the resolution been adopted, we could have considered the farm bill and it probably would have passed. However, the Republican members of Congress, almost without exception, voted against the resolution, which was a vote against the farm bill. There was a split in the Democratic party. A number of the representatives from the big cities forsook the farm bloc and voted against the resolution. This, of course, swung the pendulum against the farmers and the result was that we lost the resolution by approximately 40 votes.

Mr. Benson, the secretary of agriculture, had attacked the bill as an "economic monstrosity" and had stated that if the bill was taken up and considered by the House, it would probably ruin his trip to Russia this year. Admitted, there were some rough spots in the bill. These rough spots could have been cured by amendments, and the indications were that such amendments would be offered and adopted. The matter that concerned me was why so many members did not want to debate the bill. It could have been debated and those who were not satisfied could have voted against it on final passage.

However, what happened was that we were cut off from even presenting the agricultural side of the picture. To me, this was not in keeping with what should

 OF TEXAS

QUALIFIED - EXPERIENCED

He is well trained and experienced in the law and has a good record as County Judge. He has served Gray County as County Attorney and County Judge for 12 years. Records will reveal that under his leadership Gray County is in excellent condition, financially and otherwise. He is asking the voters of all five counties of the 31st Judicial District of Texas for a promotion to the office of District Judge.

He is soliciting the good will and support of everyone in his campaign but he is not accepting financial help as he does not want to be obligated to anyone. He feels that a judge cannot be fair and impartial in his decisions if he accepts financial assistance in being elected.

OUT OF BALANCE

A deep concern about the future of our county is shared, I think, by all Texans and all Americans. All of us realize, I believe, that the way of life we have known is under attack as it has never before been under attack during the 182 years since our Declaration of Independence declared this a free nation and its individual citizens capable of self-government.

No one can read the alarming daily headlines without wondering whether our children will enjoy the rich, full life that has meant so much to Americans. All of us want our children to grow up in a country where freedom and opportunity are more than slogans.

This is a goal we can achieve if we unite on the things we are for—instead of dividing on the things we are against.

The major problem before us is maintaining the strength that will preserve our freedoms. And that does not mean military strength alone. A nation that is strong and vital in spirit will not lack for the power to defend itself. And strength and vitality exist in proportion to the care we devote to our problems as a nation and as a people.

One of the things we have learned in the 182 years of our existence as a nation is that independence and freedom cannot be desired their maintenance.

We have to work at it—consciously and knowingly—to have freedom as a way of life. And part of the work, an integral part, involves making sure that our government is not only free but effective as well.

Working for freedom is not a part-time job. It follows that government itself cannot be a "sometime thing"—something we look to only when somebody is in trouble or when election day is at hand. Our responsibilities as freedom-loving citizens of a free and independent nation must be exercised every day.

Let us hope that legislation concerning the vital problems of this great segment of our nation will be brought up again during this session so that the matter can be treated before adjournment.

Over the years, our country has been good to us—as it was good to our fathers and their fathers before them. We have had good times and we have had bad times. We have known both prosperity and adversity. We have experienced both war and peace. But even in the worst of times, our country has still offered us more freedom and greater opportunity than any other the world has ever known.

This is our heritage and it is a noble one. We must guard it against enemies from without. We must unceasingly protect it against erosion from within. Only through the exercise of unceasing vigilance can we hope to pass on to those who come after us the rich fruits of our heritage as Americans.

This is the road we must walk together—in a spirit of prudence, of confidence, of steadfast determination. It is the road for all Americans.

"The girl who lays all her cards on the table, will usually be left playing solitaire."

Veteran Information

Q—I named my mother as the beneficiary of my GI insurance money be paid to her in a lump sum. Would she have the right to change to some other method of payment if she desired?

A—Yes. She could choose to receive the GI insurance payments under any of several installment plans available.

Q—Does the fact that I am getting VA compensation for a disability incurred in Korea automatically entitle me to vocational rehabilitation training?

A—No. The law requires that a disabled veteran be in need of training to overcome the handicap of his disability. If need were established in your case, you would be permitted to train.

Q—I plan to sell my GI house and let the buyer take over the loan. If the VA grants me relief from liability, does that mean that GI loan entitlement will be restored?

A—No. Relief from liability does not mean that your entitlement will be restored. VA restores entitlement only under certain conditions, and then only when the loan is paid off so that VA is no longer liable on the guarantee.

Q—If I take on-the-job training under the Korean GI Bill, will I receive the same rate of allowance throughout my course?

A—No. Under the law, GI allowances for on-the-job trainees must be reduced at four-month intervals, as the training progresses.

TO THE VOTERS OF PRECINCT NO. 4
 GRAY COUNTY, TEXAS

There is a matter I would like to clear up for some of you relative to the time I would devote to the office of County Commissioner should I be elected.

I believe the office of County Commissioner is of such vast importance and pays a salary sufficient for a man to devote all of his time to this work. If elected, I shall retire from the insurance business and give all the time necessary to look after the affairs of Gray County, and especially of Precinct No. 4. I assure you I shall do my best to see that the people on this side of Gray County get their share of everything.

Your vote and influence will be appreciated.

Respectfully,

The Mysterious Skin Disease

One person out of every fifty in the United States is afflicted with an incurable disease which makes the skin red, blotchy and scaly. Called psoriasis, this disease has been known since Biblical times, but little more is known today of its basic cause than when it was called "lepra alphas."

Like many skin conditions, psoriasis is not even mildly contagious, and never fatal. Most psoriasis victims get the disease between the ages of fifteen and thirty-five, which means that they must live with it for from twenty-five to fifty years. Small children and older people seldom get psoriasis.

While the death toll from psoriasis is negligible, its costs in human misery and emotional upset is tremendous. The scaling off of the skin and the disfiguring red blotches lead some patients to shun society.

Psoriasis has inspired many theories as to cause and many remedies, both internal and external. X-rays, hormones, vitamins, special diets, extracts of other body organs and hundreds of creams, lotions, and greases have been used in its treatment. Some have been successful but only for a time. In many cases of psoriasis the disease subsides and flares up again for no apparent reason.

Recently scientists at the University of Pennsylvania have been concentrating their research on the skin itself, particularly the scales and underlying blotches in the skin areas affected by psoriasis. Several striking abnormalities have been found by Dr. Peter Fiesch and his coworkers, and a new remedy for psoriasis has emerged from their work.

The researchers found that an old drug—known for its wound-healing capabilities but never tried against psoriasis—could, when combined with a special form of coal tar, help eliminate the scales of psoriasis and act to restore the underlying skin to a more normal condition. The wound-healing compound, called allantoin, is formulated with the coal tar in a lotion called Alphasyl, which was then tested by skin specialists on more than one hundred cases of psoriasis.

The doctors recently reported that Alphasyl brought relief to most of these patients, even those who were resistant to every other known treatment.

Psoriasis still remains a medical riddle, but the work at Pennsylvania indicates that its cause may yet be identified. This should lead to a really curative drug. In the meantime, many psoriasis patients who had given up hope have been given a new chance for effective treatment.

PANHANDLE OUTDOOR LIFE

Bumper Quail Crop

Since 1951 there hasn't been a bumper crop of this upland game bird specie present in the top part of the Texas Panhandle. For six years the bird crop has been in very short supply in most areas. This fall we can look forward to the best bird year since 1951. You can depend on this.

There are several factors that make up what is called a good hatching season, especially in this part of the state. Up until now these factors have been favorable for this spring and summer.

The facts that make up a favorable hatching season for bobwhite quail are these: Under normal conditions quail will pair off and nest in the early spring. About 60% or more will usually be broken up. If the June weather is hot and dry these 60% or more birds on the range will not re-nest. However, if there is a cool, damp period in the summer and the grass greens up again, then these idle adult birds will again start nesting activity. This procedure will continue to repeat itself as long as there are pairs of quail that haven't successfully reproduced. The situation of this date is that there has already been one go-round on the nesting activity with another started due to this cool, wet season we have had in the middle of June. One more wet spell along in July will fill out the necessary requirements for these birds for an almost ideal hatching period.

We have already had an early hatch (this week I have seen two large broods of young quail). The second hatch is in the making and the third will start in late July or early August if we have rain. One pair of quail, contrary to popular belief, will raise only one brood per year. However, quail have been hatched from May until October in the Panhandle, but the peak months are usually June and July. According to the field technicians, "the accumulated re-nesting activity is what adds up to a large quail crop."

Not long ago a friend of mine said that if quail and bird dogs were mentioned less and other wildlife mentioned more in this column, the readers would appreciate it more. This possibility is correct, but after all, people usually talk or write about the subject that they are the most interested in. My pet hobby is raising bird dogs and training them.

Not only is the bobwhite and blue quail hatching in full swing, practically all other wild species that frequent the Panhandle are in the process of reproduction at this time. The other day I took a picture of a wild duck hen swimming in a bar ditch with five young ducklings. The location was about three miles southwest of Plemmons on the Phillips road, and about 3,000 miles south of the popular duck nesting grounds.

Each normal year there are a few broods of ducks found in this part of the state but more than 99% of the ducks fly to Canada and Alaska to do their nesting. Know Your Local Laws For Handgun Hunting

The June issue of "Texas Game and Fish" states: "Again the old question arises as to whether it is legal to hunt with a pistol. The Game and Fish laws place non restrictions on your weapons for hunting squirrels.

"Means of taking deer, however, vary in many counties. Some counties ban shotguns. In the counties which specify a rifle only, some ban .22's. Other county laws do not say it is unlawful to use handgun on deer, meaning, of course, a heavy caliber, preferably magnum. Just remember one thing: State laws and many county laws prohibit the ordinary citizen from packing around a pistol, even when hunting laws have no such prohibition. Pack it if you wish, but it's a good idea to have a talk with the county sheriff beforehand."
