Tigers Go Into Action Tonight Slated To Scrimmage Here Saturday Night

FINAL PLANS MADE FOR FIRST McLEAN HOMECOMING

Final arrangements were being made this week for the first ex-students Homecoming for McLean High School, which will be held Sept. 5-6. The homecoming will begin Friday night with opening football game of the season with Shamrock Irishmen. Beginning time for the game is 8 p.m.

Saturday at 2 p.m. a barbecue will be held for all persons, with reservations being made through Jim Morris. Tickets will be $1.50 each and can be purchased at the football field where the barbecue will be held.

Individual class parties will be held at 6 p.m. Saturday, and a business meeting and party will be held at 9 p.m. in the Municipal Auditorium.

Lack of names and addresses has made it impossible to send invitations to everyone, but all ex-students, ex-teachers and friends are invited and urged to attend.

Funds Needed For Hospital

The citizens of Groom and Carson County are asking the assistance of people in surrounding communities and counties in financing Groom Memorial Hospital. The need for new hospital facilities in Groom and the entire Panhandle area is great. Through the Hill-Burton Act $100,000 has been made available to Groom and Carson County for the erection of Groom Memorial Hospital, but this amount must be matched with a like amount from the people of this area. Each year many people from McLean use the facilities of Groom Hospital and as our population increases the need for additional hospital beds will increase proportionately. There is a present need of CASH DONATIONS if this hospital is to be built this year, or if the Hill-Burton Funds are to be secured at this time. If you are able to give, your donation will certainly be appreciated whether it be large or small. The money needs to be in the hands of Finance Committee not later than September 1, 1958. Donations may be left at the office of Dr. Suderman or they may be mailed to Groom Memorial Hospital, Groom, Texas. The facilities of this hospital will be available for the use of any Licensed Medical or Osteopathic Doctor.

STOLEN CAR RECOVERED IN GROOM

Alert local and state officers thwarted an attempt at car theft here early Saturday morning as a 1949 Buick belonging to Hickman Brown was recovered shortly after it was taken from along-side Brown's Drug about 1 a. m.

State patrolman R. C. Parker reported that Leslie Vienup alias Leslie Hudson was being held on charges for the theft. Vienup was on parole from Missouri. He had come to McLean in a car stolen from Shamrock, and after parking the vehicle, attempted to steal another. Officers recognized the stolen auto and were watching for the driver.

Shortly after constable J. D. Fish had investigated a complaint of prowling, he recognized the car of Brown's leaving McLean. Officers in Groom were then alerted and Vienup was apprehended. He was taken to Pampa and held there on charges of theft.

Mobeetie Reunion On Labor Day

SPORTS CORNER

A factor to essentially winning football is proper public attitude. The attitude which fans have in our community and school toward football is the most important single factor in the development of a good team. Public attitude plays a great part in determining whether a team is to be very good, mediocre, or poor. It can be very damaging to a player's morale when he goes into any business or public meeting place and is asked, "What is wrong with the team this year? Why is the coach using the split-T when he should be using the single wing? Why don't the players train better?" If the players get this type of questioning all over town and if the mothers prefer to not have their sons play football, it is very difficult for the coach to develop the proper morale and enthusiasm that it takes to play the game well.

On the other hand, if the attitude of the community is such that the players on the team have to be good, the players will develop an attitude that they must play better than they really know how to play—then the greatest step has already been taken in developing a great football team. So long as it is a big thing for a boy to make the football team, so long as making the team means something in the eyes of the public, then the result will be a team the boys can be proud of.

The 1958 edition of the McLean High School Tiger football squad will start the gridiron wars tonight at 7:30 as they scrimmage the Erick, Okla., team in Erick. The two teams will tangle again Saturday at 7:30 p. m. in a scrimmage to be played here.

Thirty-one boys reported for the first practice session Monday, according to Coach Jack Riley, and showed plenty of desire, hustle and spirit. Among the squad which reported Monday are 10 seniors, eight juniors, two sophomores and 11 freshmen.

Coach Riley, in his first statement on the team since the workouts got started, said: "I am very well pleased with the spirit, hustle, desire and attitude of the entire squad.

"To my knowledge, we have not a single boy sick and hanging on the fence or one that has failed to move when told to do so. All of them have really been popping the leather. Last week I told the Lions Club that we had placed our candidates in three categories: (1) 'Some five or six boys who were football players' (2) 'Eight of ten who could be football players' and (3) '10 or 12 boys who thought they wanted to be football players.'

If the attitude of our squad continues as it has thus far, I think that we will have 31 boys who WILL BE football players.

"I have nothing but praise for Assistant Coach Darrell Christian. I think he is the 'shot in the arm' that our football team has needed. He has instilled a lot of fire and desire in our football squad and is doing an excellent job with the linemen.

Junior High Coach Bill Adams has also done a fine job with our backfield as well as working his Junior High team out in the afternoon.

"I am very much impressed with the work of Backs David (Freight Train) Crockett, Jim (Lover Boy) Rice, Billy (The Kid) Crockett and Jerry Biggers. I am also pleased with the work of O. K. Lee and Jimmy Watson, who will be splitting time at left end as well as alternating at the halfback spots. Joe Smith is doing a good job at fullback and Frank Worsham is performing like a veteran at right end. Coach Christian is very pleased with tackles Benny Woods and Ray Hupp, guards Kent Wiggins and Paul McCurley and center Melvin Butrum.

"I think that Don Cash is going to make one of the best defensive ends in our district. These are only a few individuals that come to mind quickly. There are others showing a great deal of promise and desire. In short, we are proud of our entire squad. We have eleven freshmen out this year and I attribute it to the fine work and leadership of Coach Bill Adams.

"Last year, we had only one freshman on the squad. I think it is easy to see the results of Coach Adams' efforts.

"At the present time, three boys are on the injury list, but are still going strong in work outs. . . . Jerry Biggers, bruised leg muscle; David (Freight Train) Crockett, strained leg ligament; and Bill (Tank) Moore, sprained ankle."

Ticklers

By George

"Of course I get tired of tramping around the country, but a man can't quit just because he's tired!"

You should get your application in to the Game and Fish Commission right away if you want a permit to shoot antelope this fall. Just write to the chief clerk and tell him you want an application blank.

Your application must be back in the Austin office by Sept. 1. A public drawing then will be held and permits issued for the killing of either a buck or doe antelope, depending on what you want and the area in which you hunt.

This year there are three hunts instead of two, set for the Trans-Pecos area, commonly known as West of the Pecos. Each hunt is of three days duration. There are two hunts in the Panhandle.

Last year there were plenty of permits for the Trans-Pecos area, but a drawing had to be held for the Panhandle area.

After your name has been drawn, you are assigned to an area for the hunt. The land owner can charge you as much as $60 for a buck and $40 for a doe. In some instances, particularly in the Panhandle, no charge, or a nominal charge, is made.

Many West Texas ranchers, because they have been subject to heavy droughts and feed shortages, feel they are entitled to a hunting fee for killing the antelope. This fee, is strictly up to the land owner. The legislature passed a law making it possible for him to collect such a fee. None of this money goes to the Game and Fish Commission, and neither is it collected by the game personnel.

All hunts, however, are carefully supervised by the game wardens and biologists.

The antelope season will open this year Oct. 1, with staggered hunts through Oct. 20. Deer-Quail Season Overlap Trans-Pecos deer hunters will find a new season this year, which they may like better. It will be Dec. 1 to 8 inclusive. The quail season begins Dec. 1.

This means a hunter may get his mule deer and some big all on the same hunt.

Since you must have a lease or hunt by the day basis, you might want to have an understanding with the landowner regarding the hunting of birds before you close the deal. Some ranchers don't like to have their quail killed. In most instances this is a fallacy as any wildlife biologist will tell you.

There has been a good farm crop this year not only in the Trans-Pecos but other areas, too. There was a good carry-over of deer from last season, so hunting should be exceptionally good.

Plan Your Hunt Early
This word of warning should be given those who plan a big game hunt. Get your rifle ready.

There is nothing more important to a hunt than having an accurate rifle and knowing when it will hit. You can spend a hundred dollars for a lease, buy a wagon load of groceries and have pleasant companions. But, if you can't hit the side of a barn, simply because you didn't check your gun, you've tossed a lot of good money away.

I think more deer are missed because of this one oversight than all other reasons combined.

Many hunters borrow guns or rent them. Naturally some just can't afford to own a deer rifle. Others don't want to be bothered with them. There are thousands, however, who do have guns and they should know where those guns shoot.

Perhaps the best shooters are those who have been shooting the rifle for years. They know where it will hit, and they take the time to keep it clean and keep the sights lined up.

If you are a novice at handling a deer rifle, right now is the time to get used to your gun. First get you a good ballistics table and learn just what your gun is capable of doing at a given range. Determine what lead you want to shoot, and what brand of ammunition.

All ammunition is good, much better than the average shooter. That doesn't mean that you can mix brands and get results.

For instance, if you are shooting a 30-06 and decide upon 180 grain load, which is a pretty good all-around piece of fodder, study on your table and learn where that bullet will hit at mid-range, at 100 yards, 150 and 200, even up to 400 yards. Get this in your head. Then take the gun to the range and put it through the hoops.

Try it first with a rest. Learn to squeeze the trigger instead of jerking it. Try to get where you pay no attention to the recoil. After all, the average rifle has much less kick than a high-speed 12 gauge shot gun cartridge.

If you are prone to flinch, learn to overcome this and your accuracy will be greatly improved. Of course in actual hunting you have little opportunity to worry about recoil. A buck jumps, you cut down on him and his all over. You haven't felt the recoil at all. If you have mastered your gun, you will have venison in the pot.

This information is rudimentary to most who will read it. There are many reasons, however, who will go afield this year for the first time. Some hunters never have had the opportunity to study their guns and their performance.

Even some of the old-timers have been so busy fishing during the year that they, too, have neglected to check their guns. Don't be among those this year who get a kick in the pants, or a shirt tail cut off for missing a big buck.

Eugene O'Neill wrote his first one-act plays while he was in a sanatorium recovering from tuberculosis.

YESTERDAY'S MEDICINE, TODAY'S COW FEED

A short time ago, people thought blackstrap molasses was effective treatment for anemia and rheumatism. Today we know better. We wouldn't think of relying on "home remedies" when we have so many fast-acting, reliable modern medications available to us. But remember—most medicines should be taken only upon the advice of your physician. The next time you're not feeling up to par, see your doctor first. Then, if he orders medication, come to us for quality prescription service.

"MY ELECTRIC HOME FREEZER MAKES MEAL PLANNING SO

SAYS Mrs. H. S. Hackfield, 2132 56th STREET, LUBBOCK, TEXAS

"An electric home freezer is the perfect answer to meal planning, especially for working wives," says Mrs. Hackfield. She continues, "There are many advantages of owning a freezer. For example, it's such a convenient appliance and, because we can buy in quantity when prices are lowest, our freezer lets us realize a big savings in food costs. But, getting back to meal planning — when I have odd moments I can prepare complete meals in advance, freeze them, and then when we have dinner guests it's a simple matter just to 'heat 'n serve.'"

The same advantages that Mrs. Hackfield speaks of can be yours just as soon as you get that electric home freezer you've been wanting for so long — why wait — there's never been a better time to buy!

"SLEEPERS" IN THE LABOR BILL

Students of the so-called labor reform bill, as passed by the Senate, find many a "sleeper" in its provisions. And there is a very real danger that the bill will become law without the comprehensive open hearings which are necessary if its merits and demerits are to be properly evaluated.
The bill, for instance, does little or nothing about certain tactics used by unions to force employees to join whether they want to or not—such as organizational picketing. It merely outlaw's "shakedown" picketing for purposes of extortion, and that is already a crime.
It also fails to reassert the right of states to deal with various labor abuses. Competent lawyers feel that it may make it more difficult than ever to refute the argument that Congress intended to regulate all picketing and to exclude the states from doing so, save where violence or other criminal activities are involved.
On top of that, according to The Retail Bazarist, which is a monthly law commentary published by the American Retail Federation, "two sections of the bill—Section 103 and 607—give union leaders an effective tool for organizing employees by eliminating the employer's right to tell his story to his employees. The bill does this by making it a crime for an employer to 'influence' the employees' thinking in any way. . . . The way these provisions are worded, giving employees a wage increase or other such tangible benefit could be construed as such an influence on thinking.
In any event, legislation of such significance certainly should not become law without extensive hearings in which all interested parties can make their views known
A BRIGHT FUTURE—IF!!!
"Electrical living" is a term which, for most Americans, is synonymous with the unparalleled standard of living this country enjoys," says a feature article in Financial World. "In essence, it means that the United States, with only about 6% of the world's population, accounts for about 41% of world-wide electrical power generation—a proportion better than three times the Soviet Union's."
Then the magazine goes into the question of whether the industry can maintain its fabulous rate of growth. And the answer, according to all available facts and forecasts, is a resounding Yes. It is expected that the electric business will continue to double in size every nine years. In 1979, the forecasters say, the industry's plant investment will be an almost incredible $221 billion, as against $36.5 billion in 1957.
Financial World explains some of the reasons for our insatiable demand for electric power. Electricity, it says, is probably the greatest bargain available in the average household. The typical monthly bill, last year, was less than 23 cents a day. The potential market for electrical appliances is enormous.
Electricity's a bargain to business, too. Its cost amounts to less than 1% of the value of manufactured products.

THEY TRIED—Scientists and technicians are shown as they made final adjustments to instruments in the business end of the ill-fated moon rocket launch recently at Cape Canaveral, Fla. Although the rocket assembly failed to hurl the conister of instruments into space, the Air Force is readying another rocket for a possible mid-September attempt to find out more about our nearest celestial neighbor.

Industrial use is expected to continue to climb. The farm market, existing and potential, is a tremendous one, with some 97% of all farmers now receiving service.

It's a bright outlook—though there are some "ifs" and "buts" involved. Financial World explains those in a sentence: "Even when things look brightest, the industry has to be on guard against restrictive legislation, political pressures and, perhaps the greatest hazard of all, renewed inflation." All of us who are interested in the future of this country must be on guard against such destructive forces as well.

Congressman Rogers Reports—

TO THE PEOPLE

THE MAD RUSH
The last two weeks of Congress are like outside rows of corn—they should never be planted. But no one has been able to solve the problem to do away with the outside rows of corn in the last two weeks of Congress. The only way that I can think of would be to pass a resolution the last thing before final adjournment, cancelling and voiding everything which had been done for the previous two weeks. This would probably work for one or two years until someone conceived of the idea of re-opening to weeks before final adjournment.
Much constructive legislation is passed in the last two weeks of a session of Congress, but such attention must be paid to the major bills with all of their complexities that it is an appropriate time for moment looking measures to be pushed through without sufficient debate. Many of these measures have many provisions included that can add up to a rather stuporous sum. On one day during the last two weeks, the Senate passed 12 measures, treating matters all the way from Virgin Islands to the Hawaiian Islands, Alaska and Guam. Territorially speaking, all the way from a bill dealing with a church to another bill having to do with jail-type confinement, spiritually speaking. The House of Representatives had several very similar days.
The committees grind to a virtual standstill during the early part of these last two weeks, because it is obvious that it would be futile to report bills that would have little chance of coming before Congress. When a committee reports a bill, it is more easy to take it before the committee in order to get clearance for consideration of it by the full House of Representatives. The Rules Committee acts as somewhat of a traffic cop with regard to legislative matters, saying what may come before the Congress and what may not. Even without the bills which are reported by the committee during the last days, there is all ways a big jam of bills that have been reported earlier in the session which have not been acted on by the Rules Committee. Therefore, the pressure on the Rules Committee during the last few days becomes tremendous. It would be hardly responsible for that committee to so much as consider a small part of the requests made for hearings. Several highly controversial measures had not been reported out of their respective committees in time for the Rules Committee to act upon them prior to the final drive for adjournment. The chairman of these committees were, therefore, expecting to get authorization to present the bills to Congress for a vote during this last two weeks period. However, these seemed to be the order of the day when the chairman of the Rules Committee turned up missing.

He is the only one who can call a meeting of that committee and, therefore, his presence was highly essential. There was much conjecture concerning his whereabouts. One Member suggested he might be on the submarine, Skate, underneath the North Pole. However, he turned up in good shape on Thursday morning and matters began to proceed in order. These several bills that were in controversy were the Housing Bill, the TVA Bill, the Minerals Stabilization Bill, and the Distressed Areas Redevelopment Bill. All of these involved big sums of money, and each of them should have been thoroughly and completely debated before the House. It is my fond hope that some day measures of this magnitude can be reached early in the session so that ample time may be had for full development of all of the problems involved. A full debate in both the House and the Senate of such measures would certainly provide much better laws and, in my opinion, open the door to a better solution of some of the problems under consideration.
The farm bill that was passed hurriedly on last Thursday was a compromise bill. It will answer only a few of the problems that I think should be in the agricultural measures which are being introduced. Until we do face up to our problem and begin to provide solutions to the agricultural difficulties, we are an expert the continued migration of farm families into the cities and the resulting increase in unemployment and social problems. I feel that the 86th Congress, which convenes in January, should go into this problem immediately and work out fair and sound legislation as early as possible so that ample time will be available without which to act.

ELECTRONIC NURSES' AIDE—There's a boxful of service at Dianne Benson's finger tips in Chicago's Wesley Memorial Hospital. She can make house calls as well as outside calls on the one-piece telephone. Electronic cabinet enables her to adjust room temperature, make adjustments of her hospital bed, open or close windows, control room lighting and operate closed-circuit TV connected with the visitors' lobby. In addition, she can talk via intercom to nurse on duty at the desk, tune in favorite radio programs and see the time on a built-in clock. The device, manufactured by a leading electronic control firm, is designed to boost patient morale and help solve the acute hospital personnel problem.

LOVE

By Jesse R. Leonard, Pastor
Pastor First Baptist Church

A popular song, "Everybody Loves a Lover," has depth of meaning in its title. Knowing that there are three types of love; animal type, physical type, and God type, the song is probably referring to the physical type love. If this be true that everybody loves a person with physical love, how much more will the world love an individual with God type love, who loves those who are unlovable.

When the "FORTH BRIDGE" was in the making, the workmen came to a crucial point, where one of the most important iron girders refused by some inches to come into position for the bolts to be driven through—a process which was absolutely essential to their union and stability of the whole structure. Every mechanical method to bring them together was tried to no avail; and finally, in despair, all further efforts were abandoned for the night. In the night a soft wind blew and the sunshine of the following morning was so hot the great masses of metal expanded beneath the gentle rays of the sun and the results were achieved where the utmost efforts of force had failed. So in human life consistency of character, purity, gentleness, sweetness, such holy living as issues from the qualities which our Lord has enumerated, will avail when the keepers of the house shall tremble, and the strong men shall bow themselves. "LOVE NEVER FAILETH," 1 Corth, 13:8a.

My guess is there wouldn't be one rancher out of a hundred who would refuse someone the privilege of picking wild plums that otherwise would go unpicked, provided the rancher hadn't been lipped upon in the past by townspeople who not only used the privilege but came back to seek privileges to hunt doves, ducks, deer and quail, plus fishing requests, as a result of their acquaintance with the ranch owner or foreman.

Of course, what the average fruit seeker wishes to know is where can he find and pluck bushels of plums. The answer is— inquire. If this doesn't work, then drive the country roads in the sandhills and in the breaks, locate what you are seeking, then ask permission to pick plums. Today I was driving the river road east of Borger to the Hay Hook Ranch and noticed a large thicket of plums that were red and yellow and just waiting for some family to stop by and load up baskets full. The thicket was a few hundred yards east of Spring Creek on the south side of the road and on the right-of-way.

Recent conversations with G. McLean, Texas Game Warden from Shamrock and Jack Parsons, State Game Refuge manager of Canadian, revealed that in these two respective localities the quail population would be from very good to excellent.

"Well son, you lost," was what Coach Weldon Chapman said many times in reference to the football team at Lubbock High in the early thirties. Well, we have lost at least since 1951 when it came to a popular bird crop. Now it looks as if the bobwhite is on the comeback.

My guess is there wouldn't be one rancher out of a hundred who would refuse someone the privilege of picking wild plums that otherwise would go unpicked, provided the rancher hadn't been lipped upon in the past by townspeople who not only used the privilege but came back to seek privileges to hunt doves, ducks, deer and quail, plus fishing requests, as a result of their acquaintance with the ranch owner or foreman.

From the way it looks now there will be many a wild grape in the top part of the Panhandle this year. Fact is, the grapes didn't freeze out, as is the usual case, but, rather, as soon as they leafed out there was some type of insect that consumed the plant completely back to the winter vines.

The mediocre quail hunters can again get back in the harness and partake of this aristocratic sport with not too much effort. (This last statement isn't exactly fair to many hunters, but to elaborate upon it would take too much space so it might be better to say that the average sportsman will have much more opportunity this fall.) Many bonafide hunters of upland game birds will feed from one to fifty and more, ducks in the water, have the kind of dog they desire to shoot over for about 40 days. Last year I killed exactly 16 birds—that adds up to four birds per dog that I have in my kennels.

Come December 1, the entire Texas Panhandle, together with the lower plains, will be saturated with quail hunters and the banging of the shotgun will fill the air as the quail hunters flush the birds in front of pointing dogs.

PANHANDLE OUTDOOR LIFE

By STARKEY WHITEHORN

Less than fifty years ago most settlers in this part of the country existed on what nature and elbow grease provided, to a great degree. There were no supermarkets, no electricity, natural gas, no modern transportation. Just picture a family living 20 miles from the nearest general store and then imagine what they could purchase once they arrived at the store via horseback, buggy, or most commonly, wagon and team. Probably some type of clothing material such as calico or gingham and other necessities such as sewing thread, baking powder, soda, salt, sugar, and a few novelties and notions (Indian trading material) for the ladies, combined with a few crude implements and, of course, guns and ammunition for father and the boys, were about all the trading posts had to offer the customers around the turn of the century.

The table was set with whatever was available. Now the table is set the same but a whole of a difference. Then, all Texans lived primarily from what the earth produced in a very local manner. If the townspeople didn't raise gardens, but they usually did, they bought from the farmers such food as was necessary. There was usually someone who bought and butchered beef and pork and peddled it from a horsedrawn cart. What few vegetables, such as potatoes, green corn, melons and other produce that the people in the towns bought were strictly seasonal and local. Old timers once looked forward to when potatoes were large enough to dig so that they could have these for the table for the first time in months. Roasting ears and other vegetables were likewise relished.

In the year 1958 what is the use to look forward to any seasonal crop when any kind of food can be bought at the supermarket whether it is in season or not? Nevertheless, there are still many who have a touch of the pioneer spirit about them. Just watch the wild plum thickets in the summer and notice from one to a half dozen cars parked around the area with women, children and menfolk eagerly at work. Choice jellies and jams can be made from this wild plum and usually the crops are well utilized.

Jumping from wagon and team to a modern auto, from smoke-houses to modern markets, is the order but the wild fruit of the prairies is cherished more to-
