ONION NECKLACE

Wearing an onion around the neck used to be fashionable—at least for cold sufferers. It's easy to see why this old-time cold remedy has now been discarded. We can't cure colds, yet, but we can relieve their discomforts . . . and avoid more serious complications by using the effective medications available today. But don't use any medicines indiscriminately. When you're ill, be sensible. Let your physician do the diagnosing and prescribing. Then, if he recommends medication, see us for quality prescriptions.

40 Years Ago— IT HAPPENED HERE

Taken From the Files of The McLean News, 1918 With Mrs. W. B. Upham
One of the most enjoyable occasions that McLean has ever known took place Friday afternoon at the Upham home one mile west of town, in the form of a reception, given by Mrs. Upham in honor of her sisters, Mrs. S. L. Sages and Mrs. J. A. Herring of Houston.
The reception hours lasted from 2:30 to 6:30 and the majority of the guests took advantage of the hostess and enjoyed the full hours.
The spacious reception rooms were tastefully decorated with the red, white and blue, reminding us that along with pleasures come many duties and responsibilities at this time.
The ladies were requested to bring their knitting; as a consequence many sweaters, went to the party, but most of them returned the same length they went.
Contests, music, conversation, and a jolly good time for all were the entertainment for the afternoon.
All regretted that so many candidates missed the opportunity of making their wants known to the ladies.
Lovely refreshments of ice cream and cake were served to 55 ladies and 15 children.
Each guest departed, voting Mrs. Upham the honor of being a "first class hand" at entertaining.
Personals

Mr. and Mrs. V. O. Cook were in town Sunday from the W. P. Rogers ranch.
Sam Brown and family were visitors in our city Sunday.

HOUSE DOCTOR

FLOOR SHOW?

Easy Way To Make It Shine!

NEW YORK—The problem of keeping beautiful wood floor surfaces beautiful has plagued housekeepers for centuries. Grandma spent many busy days scrubbing, waxing and polishing her treasured parquet! With the advent of machines, the chore of maintaining charming wood floors became less laborious, but rarely as satisfying as our own handiwork.
If you maintain wood floor surfaces, and still appreciate their mirrored beauty, then you may be in for a pleasant surprise!

Floor beauty achieved with ease. New finish and roller application makes re-finishing easier than when grandma did it!

Bringin Brothers, Inc., of Hoboken, New Jersey, has just come up with a new clear sealer and wood finish for either old or new floors that will eliminate the hours of back-breaking activity. The new product is called Colonial Charm, and it can be applied with brush or paint roller extension in minutes. It dries quickly too, in a smooth, even finish.
In addition, this new finish is water-resistant and protects floors against moisture, dirt and stains. A tough, durable finish, it protects floors against extreme punishment and abuse too, even in heavy traffic area.

A quick flick of a mop (wet or dry) cleans the floor, and the lustrous gloss remains without waxing or polishing!
Grandma never had it so good!

TELEPHONE TALK

by Clyde Dickerson, Manager

NEW TELEPHONE BUILDING

Late this summer folks in McLean will see evidence of more telephone company expansion when construction starts on the new building. As most of you already know, we have purchased the property on the northeast corner of Railroad and Gray streets. Our present plans are to erect a one story, solid masonry building with a brick face exterior. The trim will be of attractive cut stone and marble.

With such a building we hope not only to adequately meet the ever increasing demand for telephone service in McLean by having room for new dial equipment, but also to meet the challenge set forth by our city officials and aggressive businessmen for all organizations and merchants to take part in making McLean a better and more prosperous place in which to live.

The building will be 55 feet wide and 34 feet deep. It will have a covered entrance landing, an entrance vestibule, ample room for mechanical equipment and a frame room. Parking facilities will be provided for at the rear with the asphalt topping of a six foot chain link fence enclosure.

We have invited several nearby contracting firms to bid on the job. Bids are to be received by July 3rd.

FOR PARENTS ONLY

Now that summer is here and the children are out of school, I imagine the family's telephone service is getting an extra-good workout.

I guess teenagers, and even the smaller fry need the telephone more often during vacation months. They use it to line-up sand lot ball games, swimming parties, movie dates, and a great many other things, as we all know.

It would be hard to find a better time than now to order an extension telephone. Put it in a room where it will be handiest for the youngsters. They'll enjoy the privacy and so will you. Best of all, you'll save yourself no telling how many dashes to answer incoming calls that always seem to be for them.

To order an extension, just call the telephone business office. The cost is only $1.05 a month for a residence extension, plus tax and installation.

MEMO TO BUSINESSMEN

I heard a businessman remark recently that he's going over his operations with a fine-tooth comb to trim unnecessary expenses. And one item he planned to cut was Long Distance.

I wonder if he wasn't making a mistake. I can understand the desire to cut costs. But, rather than cut Long Distance, he should use his telephone even MORE for out-of-town calling.

Many businessmen have proved it for themselves, and here's how: Instead of you or your salesman taking a day to visit several prospective customers in other cities, call them Long Distance. It saves travel-on the highway, and turns travel time into selling time. And a telephone call is almost as personal as a visit and just as appreciated.

Try it yourself and watch the results. I think in the end you'll agree with our belief that Long Distance doesn't cost, it pays.

IF THE BIBLE SAID

Concerning the dance—that in the days of Herod the king, it had an evil effect on the king. Who are we to not be equally affected by such evil practices if we sanction them or sponsor them? It is our sincere belief that the same thing that happened according to Matt. 14:6-8 will have the same effect on the present day people. Please notice in verse 9 of this same chapter, the king was sorry but it was too late. Let me appeal to you parents, don't let it be said of us we waited too long to speak out against such practices, and against the whisky bottles, the vodka bottles and beer cans that almost invariably are an expression of the mind of those having taken part in the dance.
Again, if the Bible said—Prov. ch. 20, verse 1, "Wine is a mocker, strong drink is raging, and whosoever is deceived thereby is not wise." Pick up your Bibles and read Hosea ch. 7, verses 1-9.
Let us parents keep in mind the commandments, the statutes, and the judgments which the Lord your God commanded to teach, Prov. 1:1. Notice also in verse 7 we are to teach them diligently into our children, in the daily activities, and at night, and again in the morning when we arise. We believe if we parents will practice this responsibility it will help our community.
Rev. Paul F. Cooper—passing on to you the sincere convictions of the people of the Pentecostal Holiness Church, Alanreed, Texas.

NEED FOR INVESTMENT EDUCATION

The investment picture has undergone a tremendous change in this country in recent times. Not so many years ago only a handful of people, relatively speaking, bought stocks and other obligations of corporations. Now the number of such shareholders runs far into the millions, and the bulk of them are men and women of moderate means.

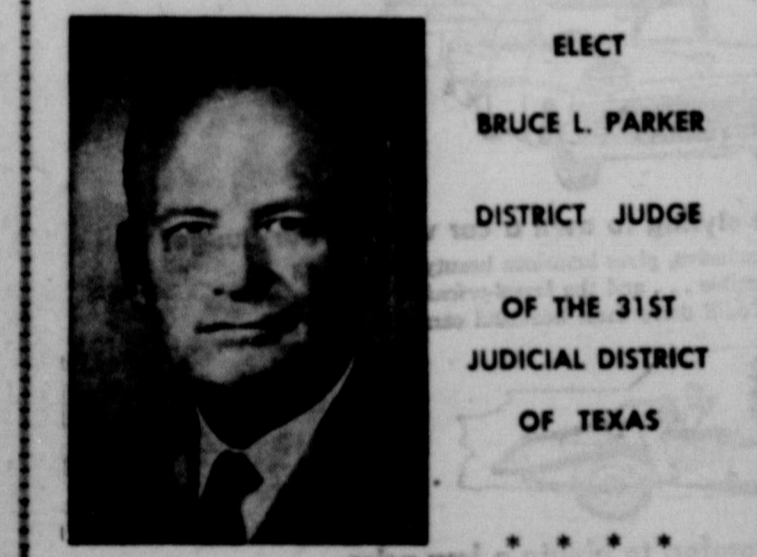

Yet there is a serious deficiency in the general public's knowledge of the investment process. As an example, an independent public opinion survey revealed that fewer than one adult out of five could define a common stock, or describe the functions of a stock exchange.

Consequently, it has long been believed that investment education in the nation's schools and colleges should be broadened. An important step in that direction has now been taken. Early in May the first of a series of conferences was held at the New York Stock Exchange. In attendance were 17 education leaders from 15 states, representing state departments of education, colleges and city school systems. The purpose of this meeting, and of others which will be scheduled in the future, is to generate some practical ideas that will lead to a new awareness of the importance of investment education. One of the areas for discussion was the "when and how" of incorporating such courses in school curricula.

This program has enormous potentialities. The American economic system of the present has been aptly described as a "people's capitalism." The need is to show more people—and especially young people—just how that kind of capitalism works.

Many people desire a long life when they have done little with a short one. Each man should want to live so long as his love is needed or his hand may help another.

We would probably live better lives, if we thought each day of our life was the last one. So live that none will believe anything ill that is spoken of you.

If you would lead a quiet life, do not hold public office.

commodities have soared by well over 200% in that same period of time.

How is this possible? One big reason is found in scientific progress. An interesting example of this lies in evaporation control.

Crude oil and gasoline stored above ground evaporate. The loss is absolute—fuel literally goes away into thin air. So oil scientists have long studied and applied various ways and means to curb evaporation. In one method, hollow plastic spheres can be floated on the surface of the stored fuel, forming a floating roof which cuts crude evaporation by as much as 95% in some cases. Another method, pressure vacuum vents are used as evaporation-reducing mechanism. In a third, central gathering tanks are installed and in one instance these have saved a daily loss by evaporation of 10,000 gallons of raw gasoline, butane and propane.

This simply illustrates the fact that research, science and experimentation are among the oil industry's most vital tools. They have produced outstanding achievements in a long list of fields—in better gasoline and lubricants; in techniques for getting more oil and gas out of wells and thus conserving this vital resource; in making possible the creation of valuable new articles through the miracle called petrochemistry. And last, but certainly not least from the consumer point of view, they have made it possible to hold prices far below what would have been the case otherwise.

CONSUMERS VOTE WITH DOLLARS

"Consumers, the people who vote with their dollars every time they enter a store, have been voting strongly of late in favor of livestock producers," says Farm Journal editorially. "Steer and hogs have been selling at higher prices than for several years."

And this, the magazine goes on, raises a potent question: "Will farmers make more money by dealing with people when they vote as consumers, or by dealing with them when they vote through their politicians and government? It is as simple as this: should prices—or politicians—guide farmers?"

The livestock people have always fought against government supports. They have had their troubles, including seriously depressed prices. But they have operated, with full willingness, in the free market. And now, as the Journal points out, they are receiving their reward in the form of higher values.

Then the magazine turns to the supported crops, taking corn as an example. This feed has been "running out of our ears and selling cheaper than it has for years." Moreover, the agricultural area that has prospered least this spring has been the Southeast. Weather was a factor in that. But weather to one side, the Southeast is also the region with the most price supports and controls, its principle crops being cotton, peanuts and tobacco.

The moral is summed up succinctly: "The farmers who are raising crops to attract the dollar votes of consumers in the market are doing much better than those who are raising crops for the government to store."

"The evidence, don't you think, is pretty convincing?"

and after being displayed at the January convention of Texas Soil Conservation District Supervisors at Abilene.

This is the second year of this awards program and Mr. Epperson is to be congratulated for being selected as one of the award winners. Selection of the 25 outstanding conservationists was made from nominations submitted by the 173 Texas Soil Conservation Districts. From this list of nominations the 25 directors of the Association of Texas Soil Conservation Districts then selected one farmer or rancher from his group of districts to receive this award. Selections were based on the progress made in applying sound soil and water conservation program on their farm or ranch lands.

Mr. Epperson is a cooperator of the Gray County Soil Conservation District which named him as their farmer or rancher doing the most outstanding soil and water conservation work in this district during 1957.

Howard and D. A. IT'S THE LAW
In Texas

Amateur Legal Advice Dangerous
 You do not have to be a lawyer in order to form an opinion on a legal subject. However, it is bad business for a layman to pass such an opinion on to others to guide their actions. He may cause them to suffer substantial losses.

Because of the vast intricacies of the law, a simple set of facts often gives rise to difficult legal problems. In spite of this, there are many persons who persist in passing out legal advice on all problems, pounding the table, quoting rules, and loudly expounding opinions. Beware of these persons, because their free opinions are usually worth what they cost, and often can be the unintended cause of harm to those who rely on them.

For example, George Jones owned a small drug store. He agreed to sell the store to Harry White at a time when he still owed $1,000 to various creditors for merchandise he had bought for the store. George and Harry were in the back room one night discussing who would pay these debts. George suggested that they talk to a lawyer.

Just then Wilbur Knowall came into the room, and heard the discussion. He assured them that there was no necessity to see a lawyer. He told George to keep the debts, to "avoid complications." As to telling George's creditors of the sale, Wilbur said that was unnecessary because George was still liable to pay them. George and Harry decided to follow Wilbur's advice.

Several weeks later, after Harry had taken over the store, a representative of one of George's creditors came in and demanded that Harry pay the debt that George had incurred. Harry refused, but went to see a lawyer to make certain. Harry was surprised to learn that he had failed to comply with a Texas statute in buying the store without giving notice of the sale to George's creditors. He further learned that the sale was void as to them, and that he was liable for George's debts.

This is a commonplace example of the trouble you can get into when toying with the law. Experienced lawyers often spend many hours researching a problem before advising their clients as to the best course of action to follow. It is therefore hazardous to rely on the legal advice of well-meaning friends. As in the case of Harry White, that is often the beginning of many headaches.
