Gov. Ben Barnes frankly admits that a "major" tax bill -- unless the federal government agrees to some form of revenue sharing -- is not a state or federal welfare aid. Barnes acknowledged that he is optimistic about prospects for a federal rescue in the nick of time. This view was heartily shared by Atwell.

JUST ONE YEAR AGO THE ALANREED-MCLEAN MUSEUM WAS OFFICIALLY OPENED-- As Miss Joellene Vannoy, just back from India, cut the ribbon officially opening the museum. The museum has had many additions to it through the year and will have open house this weekend.

LOOKIN' BACK

by Vera Featherston Bark

Happy Birthday to the Alanreed-McLean Area Museum? Saturday, Sept. 12, the local museum will be one year old. Laverne Back is "baking" the cake.

Jerry Jansa will bring the High School Tiger Band down to live up things at 117 North Main at 9:30 Saturday morning.

It will be just a year ago that this band played "The Star Spangled Banner" while members of the Jaycees and Veterans of Foreign Wars raised the Stars and Stripes and Joellene Vannoy cut the ribbon to officially open the museum and welcome the visiting ex-students gathered for their reunion. Joellene will not be there, nor will the out-of-town exes (as a group, that is), but we hope many local people and friends from both towns and those nearby will help us in beginning a two-day celebration. Some say the museum is the best thing that ever happened to McLean. While we are too modest to say that, we do think-and many people from all over the nation and 18 foreign countries tell us so-that we have something worth seeing.

A "lot of water has run under the bridge" and over 200 families have brought their treasures and keepsakes of historical value for your viewing. Just yesterday a visitor said, "I'd just like to write a book about this museum" (We gave our permission.) At first many thought we'd never find enough to fill our building. Now we are wondering where we will put the next items to come in and come they will and are almost daily.

Tuesday we received a rare display of rattlesnakes killed on the Webb Taylor Ranch near Quitaque. Sunday Nita and Buzz Cash filled the entire showcase with meaningful relics of the W. J. Ball family who so long was an integral part in the life of Alanreed. And Juanita Smith brought in some rare medicine bottles plowed up by Raymond Coppedge once he had his office in Alanreed. Saturday Jesse Roberts added to the farm and ranch tools by bringing a tenon-a tool for building and fitting buggy and wagon spokes used by his father at Mobeetie for a long time. Boyd Reeves added a Japanese sniper rifle to our gun collection - a loan from his son Joe.

And so it goes! "Stay away a week or so, and it's like going in to a new place!" says Jimmie Allison - and he's just about right. Visitors from Denver, a city with two of the most interesting museums one could imagine, said they liked the friendliness, the personal attention, and the enthusiasm of the hostesses much better than the commercial atmosphere of the larger museums. They stayed a long time and seem to enjoy every minute.

Workshop participants will discuss ways in which libraries can strengthen their services through cooperative ventures with other libraries.

The most familiar form of sharing to many of those who will be attending is through the Texas State Library Communications Network. Last year, thousands of Texans obtained answers to reference questions and materials through this state network.

Austin Hoover, field consultant for the Texas State Library, will conduct the session at Amarillo, one of a series of workshops conducted by field consultants throughout the state during September.

The public is invited to a showing of tote painting and decoupage by Mrs. James Lantz on Sunday, Sept. 13 from 2 to 5 p.m. at 612 W. 4th street. Everyone is invited to come by and view this work and also may inquire about taking lessons

Meat Inspection Should Not Cause Plants To Close

This Friday night begins the season for the 1970 McLean Tigers. As is the annual tradition the first game of the season will be against the Shamrock Irish.

The Tigers have been overtaken by the Irish the past three years, but the Tigers are going to fight their hardest this year to break that record. The support of all the Tiger fans will be greatly appreciated by the boys so be sure and attend this opening game. Game time is 8:00 p.m. at Shamrock.

Some counties in Texas are having slaughter plants closed by owners that have been serving a substantial number of people as their only source of animal slaughter and processing, Bailey said. Some plant owners when contacted by the local inspectors, have just decided to go out of business when they were told about the provisions of the new Texas Meat Inspection Law, he added, noting, however, that in most cases, plant owners should find that that regulations can be followed without hardships.

Bailey urged plant owners, thinking of closing plants, to thoroughly investigate the new law before making a final decision. He also added that there are definite advantages in having meat inspection.

The public will have more confidence in the packing plants products, and criticism and complaints will be reduced," he said. "Products will have a longer shelf and storage life, and by observing label requirements, there will be a tendency toward a more uniform product."

It also furnishes a lever to keep employees following a set procedure, in other words, a supervisor of sorts.

The plant owner will have more pride in his plants and products and will welcome visitors, Bailey said, adding that an inspected plant also attracts better type employees.

Better products will come out of inspected plants causing more meat and meat products to be consumed; thereby, benefiting the whole livestock and meat industry. "It also gives a good operator a better chance by eliminating shoddy practices of his competition."

Bailey also noted that if there are several small packing plants in a relatively small area, the plant owners might consider the idea of all joining together in a cooperative venture to build one large plant.

"This would enable them to buy and use modern equipment which would not be economically feasible in the smaller plants," he said.

New small packing house plans which meet state requirements, will soon be available for packing house owners who might wish to use them as a guide in modifying their present plants, or as a guide for a commercial architect in developing plants for new slaughter facilities, Bailey said. These plans may be obtained by writing to Bailey at Room 217, Animal Industries Building, Texas A&M University, College Station 77843. All plants he reminded, must be approved by the Meat Inspection Division of the Texas Public Health Department in Austin.

September Eventful Month For Texas Press Group

Texas Press Association's Central Office in Austin completed its 22nd year of operation on September 1, growing from a two-person staff to 22 in a like number of years.

September is an eventful month in the history of TPA. It was September, 1947 when the TPA Board voted to establish a Central Office in Dallas and to employ a full-time general manager.

A contract was signed with the then Secretary-Manager of the Oklahoma Press Association, Vem Sanford, to establish the office. Headquarters were set up in the "Big D" Hotel. In September, of 1948 the office was moved to Austin and has remained in the Capital City ever since.

This month, September of course, TPA's own 12,000 sq. ft. office building, located at Fifth Street and West Avenue in Austin, will be completed and ready for occupancy.

Sanford has employed an assistant who will report to work on September 15. He is Bill Boykin of the Florida Press Association. Boykin has been the Executive Director of the FPA for the past year. From 1966-69 he was Secretary-Manager of the Allied Daily Newspapers of Washington; and, from 1963-65, Assistant Manager of the Oklahoma Press Association.

Sanford plans other additions to the staff "as soon as we get settled in our new quarters."

First will be a full-time editor for the Association's Members' Service Bulletin and increased secretarial help.

New small packing house plans which meet State requirements, will soon be available for packing house owners who might wish to use them as a guide in modifying their present plants, or as a guide for a commercial architect in developing plants for new slaughter facilities, Bailey said.

These plans may be obtained by writing to Bailey at Room 217, Animal Industries Building, Texas A&M University, College Station 77843. All plans he reminded, must be approved by the Meat Inspection Division of the Texas Public Health Department in Austin.

U.S. Treasury Announces Bonus On Savings Bonds

Secretary of the Treasury David M. Kennedy, acting in implementation a law signed last night by President Nixon, announced that a 1/2 percent bonus will be added to the interest rate paid to longer term holders of United States Savings Bonds.

This bonus will raise the effective interest rate on new bonds, when held to maturity, from 5 to 5 1/2 percent.

The increase, which is retroactive to June 1, 1970, will also result in improved yields on outstanding Series E and Series H Bonds.

The millions of Americans who own Savings Bonds—including those 10 million persons who purchase them regularly through Payroll Savings Plans—will now have an extra incentive to hold onto them. For those who have not yet purchased Savings Bonds, the increase provides the added attraction of a bonus on their savings, savings that make an important contribution to the sound financing of our nation's government, Secretary Kennedy said.

Mr. and Mrs. Luthert Petty were in Shamrock Saturday and visited Mrs. Pearl Matthews in the hospital. Mrs. Petty also has clippings from the McLean News that date back to 1941, also Baptist periodicals. Anyone wishing to look at them may contact Mrs. Luthert Petty.

Meat Inspection Should Not Cause Plants To Close

As the enactment date of the slaughter plants are going out of business, Woodrow W. Bailey, Extension Livestock and meat specialist, reports.

"In December, 1967, Congress passed the Wholesome Meat Act, an amendment to the Meat Inspection Act of 1906," Bailey said. "It provided that within two years from passage, each State must furnish inspection equal to the Federal program in intrastate plants, but the enactment date was extended until Dec. 15, 1970."

Some counties in Texas are having slaughter plants closed by owners that have been serving a substantial number of people as their only source of animal slaughter and processing, Bailey said. Some plant owners when contacted by the local inspectors, have just decided to go out of business when they were told about the provisions of the new Texas Meat Inspection Law, he added, noting, however, that in most cases, plant owners should find that that regulations can be followed without hardships.

Bailey urged plant owners, thinking of closing plants, to thoroughly investigate the new law before making a final decision. He also added that there are definite advantages in having meat inspection.

"The public will have more confidence in the packing plants products, and criticism and complaints will be reduced," he said. "Products will have a longer shelf and storage life, and by observing label requirements, there will be a tendency toward a more uniform product."

"It also furnishes a lever to keep employees following a set procedure, in other words, a supervisor of sorts."

The plant owner will have more pride in his plants and products and will welcome visitors, Bailey said, adding that an inspected plant also attracts better type employees.

"Better products will come out of inspected plants causing more meat and meat products to be consumed; thereby, benefiting the whole livestock and meat industry."

It also gives a good operator a better chance by eliminating shoddy practices of his competition."

Bailey also noted that if there are several small packing plants in a relatively small area, the plant owners might consider the idea of all joining together in a cooperative venture to build one large plant.

This would enable them to buy and use modern equipment which would not be economically feasible in the smaller plants," he said.

New small packing house plans which meet State requirements, will soon be available for packing house owners who might wish to use them as a guide in modifying their present plants, or as a guide for a commercial architect in developing plants for new slaughter facilities, Bailey said.

These plans may be obtained by writing to Bailey at Room 217, Animal Industries Building, Texas A&M University, College Station 77843. All plans he reminded, must be approved by the Meat Inspection Division of the Texas Public Health Department in Austin.

Texas Prison Rodeo Set For October

There's never a dull moment during the Annual Texas Prison Rodeo held here each Sunday in October in the Texas Department of Corrections' 25,000-seat stadium.

Although the main attraction begins at 2 p.m., when the prison's toughest convicts cowboy match their skills against bruising rodeo stock, there are all sorts of extras for visitors to what has been termed the world's wildest rodeo.

Beginning at 9 a.m. each Sunday in October, selected inmates entertain visitors on the Midway in front of the Huntsville Prison until noon. Then from 1 to 2 p.m., a host of variety acts are presented inside the stadium.

To round out the well-balanced, fast-moving, two-hour Rodeo, Prison Rodeo officials have booked four of the nation's top-flight country recording stars as added attractions.

The guest stars for this year's Prison Rodeo series include Conway Twitty on October 4; Willie Nelson on October 11; Jerry Lee Lewis on October 18 and Faron Young on October 25. Another added attraction each Sunday will be thrilling Chuck Wagon Races, featuring the same group that proved to be so popular at this year's Houston Fat Stock Show Rodeo.

Reserved seat tickets are now on sale and may be obtained by writing Prison Rodeo, Box 99 Huntsville, Texas 77340.

Keep Calm In Bad Weather

A sudden change in the weather could spell trouble for unlucky boatmen, according to George Cook, director of Water Safety Services, Texas Parks and Wildlife Department.

"The best thing for boatmen to do in case of bad weather is stay in port," said Cook, "but if he does get caught out, there are a few things the boatman can do to save himself and his passengers."

First, he should head for the nearest sheltered shore. If the weather is very choppy, passengers should be seated on the lowest part of the vessel, keeping them as close to the centerline as possible.

The boat should be headed into the waves at a reduced speed.

Should the motor fail, or if the sea is so strong that headway cannot be made, a sea anchor should be attached from the bow to keep the boat headed into the wind. In an emergency this can be a bucket or a shirt with the sleeves knotted together and attached to a line.

It is important to keep calm, since panic spreads easily.

New Point System Brings Questions From Hunters

Announcement of a point system which will allow hunters from two to 10 ducks in the daily bag limit this coming waterfowl season has brought numerous requests for duck identification material to the Texas Parks and Wildlife Department.

Executive Director J. R. Singleton said that educational aids are now being prepared, including a chart for newspaper reproduction which shows the 11 ducks of 90 and 20 point values on the wing. The same chart will appear in full color in the October issue of Texas Parks and Wildlife Magazine and single sheet reprints will be available free in mid-October at Department regional, district and field offices as well as from firms where hunting and fishing licenses are sold.

The Department's Information and Education Division is also preparing a 60-second motion picture spot for television and a longer film on duck identification for use on local outdoors, sports and farm television programs.

As materials are ready for distribution, announcements will be made to the Texas press through the Department's weekly news service.

Early Cotton Stalks Destruction Urged

Stalk destruction will prove extremely important in areas of Texas where diapause boll weevil control programs are conducted and in the areas where a short crop is anticipated, he said. Such an area can be found in San Patricio and Nueces counties where Celia recently dealt extensive damage to the cotton crop, he added.

"Where harvest is not anticipated growers are encouraged to shred stalks and plow them under to a depth of at least six inches as soon as possible," he said. "In other areas of the state, growers should shred stalks and plow them under debris as harvest is completed."

Where desiccants or defoliant are used in preparing the crop for harvest, Thomas urged adding an insecticide to kill weevils before they enter their overwintering sites, and added that growers should check with the county agent on the insecticide to use.

"Stalk destruction and plowing under the stubble deprives insects of the food supply which is necessary for obtaining sufficient fat reserves to enter winter diapause and successfully survive," he said. "This practice is most effective in reducing populations of pink bollworm, boll weevil, cotton bollworm and tobacco budworm in the following growing season."

And, concludes the entomologist, the most effective program is the one in which producers over a wide area participate.

Shredding cotton stalks and plowing them under immediately following harvest has been recognized by cotton producers as extremely important in combating the pink bollworm.

This practice is also most effective in reducing the potential dispausing boll weevil population, John G. Thomas Extension entomologist, notes.

"Total stalk destruction immediately following harvest is not only extremely devastating to the bollweevil population, but also adds little, if any, to the cotton production cost," Thomas said. "Properly timing these operations consistently makes the difference in effective weevil suppression and results in reduced weevil numbers of the following year."

Perils Of DDT Suspected In 1945

Although the publicity surrounding the use and misuse of pesticides makes it appear that problems are just now being recognized, dangers were recognized at least as far back as 1945.

In the Oct. 1945 issue of Nature magazine, E. Laurence Palmer wrote:

"Gas Warfare. We might say that World War II is fought on a higher ethical plane than was World War I, since gas warfare, as this is written, is not so common in practice. No doubt fear of reprisal has been more effective deterrent than has ethics, but we are fighting a gas warfare even now when we consider the use made of DDT bombs in driving mosquitoes and other pests from the tents and barracks of our fighting men."

"We hope that when the war is over the surplus grenades and bombs are not turned over to our children for playthings. Similarly, it may be unwise to free for general use some of the effective gases and sprays we have found satisfactory in ridding puppets of annoying malaria carrying mosquitos. We can't have too much of a good thing, and any gas or spray that will kill all or most insects is potentially dangerous to thousands of useful invertebrates that are essential to the production of many of our food supplies and that serve as natural checks on many of our enemies. If these natural checks are destroyed, we will only be making ourselves more work than less by wholesale destruction of all insects in the vicinity."

Now, in 1970, we know not only that DDT kills beneficial insects such as honey bees, but also may spell doom for several species of birds such as bald eagle and peregrine falcon. And Texas Parks and Wildlife Department marine biologists say one of our most popular sports fish on the coast, the speckled trout, may disappear from the Lower Laguna Madre, a possible victim of DDT.

Paleolithic drawings of archers indicate that bows and arrows are an invention of at least 20,000 years ago.

Shrews Are Busybodies Of Animal World

It's funny—they don't look shrewish.

Any animal that stays awake around the clock digging underground tunnels and eating its weight in food each day is bound to be too busy to develop bad habits.

Nevertheless, the term "shrewish" is traditionally applied to a person who is ill-tempered, intractable or otherwise unpleasant.

Shrews—at least the varieties of shrews found in Texas—aren't all that bad, Texas Parks and Wildlife Department biologists say.

They are given to occasional hunger tantrums, but they are a threat only to grasshoppers, crickets, earthworms, and other tiny morsels such as pill bugs. One variety found in Texas has a venomous bite, but the venom is lethal only to very small animals and is not considered a threat to man.

The three species of shrew found in Texas are the short-tailed shrew (Blarina brevicauda), which has the venomous bite, the little short-tailed shrew (Cryptotis parva), and the Crawford shrew (Notiosorex crawfordi).

The latter is fairly rare in the State, and its range is not clearly defined. The two types of short-tailed shrew, however, are fairly common in East Texas and along the Coastal Plains.

Shrews are fascinating to observe, but their demanding appetites make them difficult to keep as pets. A little short-tailed shrew being studied at the Department's Austin quarters greedily accepts of crickets and pill bugs shows a typically shrewish talent for staying contented motion.

The little fellows have a number of natural enemies in the so their reproductive potential is almost as remarkable as their appetites.

The breeding season of short-tailed shrew extends February through September with females producing three litters of five to seven young in underground during that time.

Similarly, the little short-tailed shrew breeds from March to late November produces litters of three to young about twice a year.

CHEVY'S NEW LITTLE CAR IS OPEN FOR BUSINESS.

We call it Vega.
We also call it "the little car that does everything well."
Because it does.

Everything? Everything.

Vega moves well, stops well, steers well, rides well, handles well, responds well, passes well, travels well, parks well, wears well, and is priced well under what you'd expect to pay for such a talented little car.

In our highway tests, Vega has been getting gas mileage in the neighborhood of the little imports, which isn't a bad neighborhood.

Yet unlike your average little car, ours steps right out when you step on the gas.

The engine is a specially designed overhead cam four with a lightweight aluminum alloy block. It turns slowly and quietly at turnpike speeds, with power to spare.

Disc brakes are standard in the front. So are bucket seats, except on the truck.

How we doing so far?

Numbers speak louder than words.

The wheelbase is 97 inches.
Total length is just under 170 inches, or nearly four feet shorter than a full-size Chevrolet.

Height of the coupe is just 50 inches, nine inches lower than the leading import.

Width: a nice stable 5 1/2 feet.
Weight: 2,190 lbs. for the sedan.
Engine displacement: 140 cubic inches.

Fuel economy: about 25 mpg, with the standard engine and transmission, in our highway tests.

Horsepower: 90. You can order 110. (80 and 93 hp, SAE Net.)

Seating capacity: 4 adults.
What it all adds up to is a lot of little car.

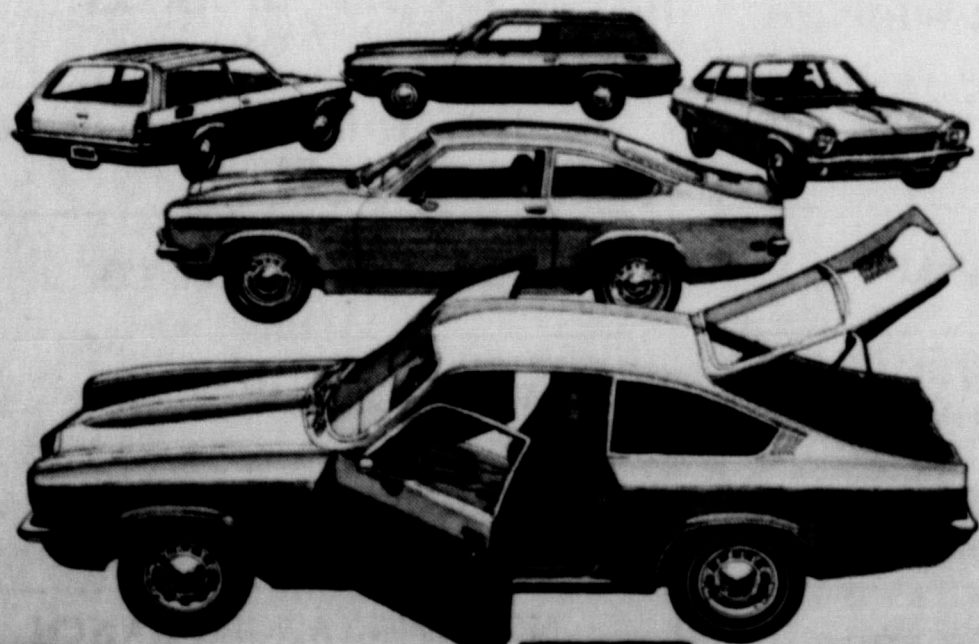

Three cars and a truck.
Vega turned out so well that we couldn't turn out just one.

So we're turning out four: the sporty little hatchback coupe shown open and closed in the foreground below; the sedan, on the right; the Kamback wagon, on the left; and the little panel truck, in the rear.

Oh, and a special GT version of the coupe and wagon which we'll show you later on.

September 10th is Opening Day.
All 6,300 Chevrolet dealers are handling Vega, so you shouldn't have to go very far to see and drive one.

Chevy's new little car is open for business. Look into it.

Annual Conference Of Ag Workers Set For Huntsville

A look at ways to rebuild land and human resources will feature the meeting of the 44th meeting of the Professional Agricultural Workers of Texas. The conference is scheduled for Huntsville's Holiday Inn, October 25-27.

Byron Frierson, Sugar Land, president of the 650-member organization and assistant director for agriculture for the Texas Department of Corrections, said "theme for the conference You Need To Know, and in pursuit of the answers the conference participants would be on the move."

"We hope to acquaint a group of workers with the program of inmate rehabilitation through vocational training in many fields as well as through our agricultural production program," he said.

In addition to tours of several prison units in the Huntsville area. Sam Houston State University is growing very rapidly and is an important source of Behavioral Science and its agricultural complex will also be visited.

The meeting will begin on October 25 at the final performance of the 1970 Texas Prison Rodeo. Dr. George J. Beito, director, Texas Department of Corrections, will be the featured speaker at the Monday evening banquet and the conference will adjourn after the annual business session on Tuesday afternoon, Frierson said.

Frierson noted that mixed in between would be sessions and tours focusing upon the conference theme. He said, "Sam Houston State University is growing very rapidly and is an important source of agricultural graduates. The Department of Corrections likewise has made changes in the past two decades which have raised its rating to one of the best in the nation. All in attendance will have the Sept. 20-26 is Young Farmers Week. September 20-26 has been officially proclaimed Young Farmer Week in Texas by Governor Preston Smith. The proclamation signed recently give additional recognition to this rapidly growing farm group. The State Association of Young Farmers of Texas is sponsored by the vocational agriculture departments in Texas high schools and by the Texas Education Agency. Over 260 Young Farmer chapters have been organized on local school district of county-wide basis to carry out educational activities which help members keep abreast of technological advancements in the field of agriculture and to develop greater efficiency in management, production, and marketing. Governor Smith points out in the proclamation that Young Farmers also incorporate in their planned chapter programs civic and community service projects and leadership activities designed to improve their communities, State, and Nation, and to promote good citizenship. President of the Young Farmers of Texas, which has a membership of over 4600, is James Beaver. A rare opportunity to see the inside operation of the correctional institutions and visit a rapidly expanding university. Officials of both institutions, Frierson said, "will participate on the program and be present for the tours." The Professional Agricultural Workers of Texas was organized in 1928 and its membership comes from every segment of the state's agricultural industry.

HOW LONG DID IT TAKE YOU TO COURT YOUR WIFE?

Did you happen to see her... walk up to her... ask her to marry you... call in the minister... right on the spot?

Certainly Not

It probably took a lot of calls and trips, movies, flowers, candies, and a lot of putting your-best-foot-forward tactics. You had to sell yourself. She had to know all about you.

It's the Same with Advertising

You can't "woo" customers with one ad... you've got to "call on them" over a period of time... you've got to win their confidence and be convincing.

Constant Advertising

Wouldn't it be a shame if you saved a pile of money for retirement and there was nothing to retire to?

There's only one way to save money that helps insure your country's future at the same time. That's U.S. Savings Bonds.

With U.S. Savings Bonds, you're simply helping your country make the future a little better than the present.

Also, Savings Bonds are easy and automatic. All you do is fill out a little card through a Payroll Savings Plan where you work. And then you sit back and forget 'em while the money piles up.

You don't have to muster up any will-power to save every payday, because your boss does it for you. It's something like setting up extra paydays for the future.

Think about Savings Bonds for your retirement.

It's not only a way to insure money for retirement. It's a way to insure retirement.

The challenge of being the only.

As any wise husband knows, no woman likes to be taken for granted. It's the little things that count, like remembering anniversaries, or bringing home flowers for no particular reason. Like the wise husband we try not to take you, our customer, for granted. Being the only phone company in town, we make a special effort to be courteous, kind, considerate, and understanding. The fact that we are the only phone company in town is a challenge. The challenge is "not to act like it."
