Serving McLean and the Area Since 1903

Kathy's
Korner

This issue marks the second week of our change from an eight-column format to a six-column one. We were not sure how the change was going to affect our looks, but after last week's publication, we liked what we saw.

We hope you will too.

The wider columns, standard throughout the nation effective July 1, 1984, was suggested by the American Newspaper Publishers Association and the National Advertisement Bureau to make it easier for advertising agencies to standardize material with other ones.

kk

Many, many thanks go out to the friends and relatives who gathered on the creek this year for our annual "firecracker bust". WE had a great time... and are looking forward to next year.

We had one small burn - son Charlie decided to see how hot the end of a sparkler could get, and is now suffering the consequences. He escaped any major burn - and with a little ice and a lot of sympathy, he's recovering fine.

Permit me a small, personal get-well not to little Sy Brown, who recently broke his collar bone. Sy melts my heart when he says my name - and I think the little stinker knows it!

kk

Paul Harvey is one of the highest-revered columnists in our family. Wayne tries not to miss his daily quips, and often quotes Harvey (whether I want him to or not!).

I heard one of his programs recently that really disturbed me - when I considered the results of his program.

It seems that some time ago, he requested information from people who had once tried to commit suicide, but were either prevented or stopped themselves. He wanted to know what led to the attempt, and what they had done in their lives to change.

97% of the letters that came in stated depression as their main reason for attempting to end their lives. But what scares me so was the cure most of them had found.

Of those 97%, as a cure, everyone of them has sugar taken out of their diets.

Many gave up junk foods along with the sugar, but others did not. The demoninating factor in the case seemed to be sugar.

Some of the letter-writers noted that as soon as two days after they had given up sugar, they felt better - their spirits began to lift, and they could see a way out of some of the problems they had.

One of the main results was the subsiding of anger and tiredness - things I find myself experiencing after a "sugar overdose".

In most of the cases, patients were not put on strict "health food only" diets, but simply three decent square meals a day - balanced nutrition.

ANB To Host Free Seminar

American National Bank will host its second free seminar at 7:30 p.m. July 19 in the Lions Club Building.

This month's seminar will deal with Estate Planning - and when it needs to be done.

According to bank president Lloyd Kurtz, Richard L. Fannin, Tax Attorney from Arlington and Fred Beatty and Mike Bradley of Prudential Insurance of Amarillo will present the seminar.

"The object of the seminar will not be how to do estate planning, but when estate planning needs to be done," explained Kurtz. "We hope that anyone who has estate problems, will come to the seminar," he stated.

There will be no charge for the seminar and coffee and doughnuts will be available.

"We would like to know ahead of time how many people expect so we can make proper seating arrangements," said Kurtz. "Those planning to attend might call Laverne Back or myself at the bank (779-2461) and let us know. However, if they have not called, and still wish to attend, we hope they will come anyway."

The bank previously hosted a free seminar dealing with hedging and new hedging possibilities available.

Blood Drive Begins Today

Representatives from Coffee's Memorial Blood Bank of Amarillo are in town today (Thursday) for their blood drive campaign.

Donors are being asked to go to the Church of Christ Annex to donate for this worthy cause.

More than 63 citizens donated blood at the drive in January, and the blood bank has expressed its gratitude to the people of McLean for the large showing.

An article released by blood bank stated that less than 5% of Americans are blood donors.

Blood given during the drive may be credited to individual accounts, donated to specific accounts already established and needing blood, or just to the general good.

Local citizens are urged to take out a small part of their day to give blood.

The annex will be open from 4 p.m. to 7 p.m. today.

MISD Trustees Hire Two; Approve Appraisal Budget

Trustees of MISD gathered for their monthly meeting at 5 p.m., July 9 in the school business office.

Trustees present were John Holland, James Hefley, Thacker Haynes, Joe Magee, Darryell Herndon, and Lloyd Hunt. Others present were superintendent Jim Rutherford; principals Ron Cummings and Dorman Thomas; business manager Shirley Johnson; and Cathy Spaulding.

The trustees approved the June minutes, June checks, June Financial Report, and the June Tax-Assessor's Report.

They also approved Gordon Maddox, CPA as auditor for 1983-84.

The board decided to advertise for bids for lights on the football field to be opened July 27.

They reviewed the annual evaluation of the five-year accreditation plan, and were told by superintendent Rutherford that they had been an overall gain of achievement.

The Gray County District Appraiser's Budget for 1985 was discussed and approved.

Changes in the school's budget amendments were approved.

Trustees then went into executive session to discuss personnel.

The meeting was re-opened at 6:40. The resignation of Carl Robertson, junior high science teacher, and Marty McClintock, junior high math teacher, were accepted.

In further action, board members decided to employ Cynthia Simmons, special education, due to Eastern Panhandle Co-op Funding; and Monta Jean Smitherman, math.

Ms. Simmons will replace Mr. Christian, and Mrs. Smitherman will replace Mr. McClintock.

The meeting was adjourned at 7 p.m.

Former McLean Teacher Discovers Body Of Woman

A former McLean teacher discovered the body of a kidnapping victim in a Wheeler County pasture, July 4.

Former Vocational-Agriculture teacher Gerald Russell, discovered the body about 1:30 p.m. July 4 on the Gaston Harbor farm 15 miles from Shamrock.

The body was identified as that of Alma Hall, 46, of Clinton, Okla.

Mrs. Hall apparently was abducted between 1:30 a.m. and 2 a.m. June 28 from Love's Country Store in Clinton, where she was employed.

Approximately $200 was also taken.

Mrs. Hall was born in Elk City, Okla., and attended Clinton High School. She had lived in Lone Wolf for several years. She was married to Ralph Hall in 1956 and they moved to Clinton in 1958.

Survivors include her husband, Ralph; a son, Dale Hall of Clinton; a daughter, Kim Hall of Clinton; her mother, Mrs. Ivan R. Wheeler of Lone Wolf; two sisters, Mrs. John Keese of Hobart, and Mrs. Tony Hendrick of Oklahoma City; and two grandchildren.

Investigating the murder were the Oklahoma State Bureau of Investigation; Wheeler County Sheriff's Department; and Texas Ranger Bill Baten of Pampa.

As of this paper's deadline date, authorities had no suspects in the case.

Whittler's Bench

By Sam Haynes

Watched the "Miss Universe" contest last night (Monday) on T.V. Miss Sweden won, and I picked her among my four or five favorites when they showed all the girls at the beginning of the show. Miss U.S.A. was no slouch either, and she was from New Mexico.

They said that 700 million people would watch the show here and in foreign countries. Guess the World Series, the Super Bowl and even "Dallas" will have to take a back seat to that.

Looks like the world's favorite sport is girl watching. That is almost in a category with making sun tea as far as getting you in shape.

I have decided San Francisco is not the place I would want to go if I ever decided to move from McLean. Seems as if every "unusual" group (not including the upcoming democratic convention) in the world chooses to congregate there. Thousands and thousands of homosexuals and lesbians had a parade there recently, and the group called C-O-Y-O-T-E, (Call of your old tired ethics) met for a secret four day hooker's convention in order to work up a code of ethics and a Bill of Rights for prostitutes, and to work for legitimization of the world's oldest profession. They said the reason it was being secret was that all the women "weren't out" yet and chose to remain anonymous.

Was just reflecting on how society has changed for my 12 year-old-daughter compared to what it was when I was 12. I certainly wouldn't be one to say it has changed for the better. What in the world has happened to us in 45 years?

Forty five years ago folks from other parts of the country would get together and talk about good years and bad years and of course, they took them all in stride as part of life. Nowadays our governors, senators, and representatives holler to the president and feds to declare a particular area a disaster because it rained too much, didn't rain enough, hailed, had a tornado, a hurricane, an earthquake or suffered from hot-air dehydration when all the politicians were in town.

Maybe we ask so much of the government because it has imposed so many regulations and restrictions on us in recent years. Of course, no federal program would ever have started unless we folks at home had defaulted on some of our own problems and turned them over to Uncle Sam, where we spend about three to get the good out of one dollar. It is now going to be hard to turn the process around, but some generation somewhere down the line is going to have to do it.

Letters To The Editor

Dear Editor;
I would like to write my opinion as a taxpayer concerning the rules the mayor and city fathers presented to the city employees.
Some of the rules are fine, but rule Number 5 concerning taking a break at the same time is a little far-fetched. Rule Number 22 - I have lived in McLean all of my life and I have never had an employee to be anything but courteous and helpful.

I didn't notice any rule concerning the control of stray dogs, which has been tabled so many times - we get tired of reading about it.
Martha Jo Bailey

Dear Editor;
Please enter my subscription for McLean News for one year period.
My family and I live there from 1929 through 1941, so you can see we really enjoy reading "Down Memory Lane", also the other editorials and news from all around.
We also lived in Alanreed a couple of years before moving to McLean.

Not too many of the old timers left that we knew. My mother will be 85 the 23rd day of October. Her name is now Mrs. Niomi Chance.
That is why I am living with her now, my home is in Pasadena, TX., also my bank.
I was the former Earnestine Braxton.
Thanking you,
Sylvia B. Thompson

I kept wondering during this broadcast if this type of survey had been done on teenagers - where we seem to have a fastly growing epidemic of suicides.
Could it be that we are killing our society - our teenagers - our children with sugar?
We feed our children sugar when they're good - sugar when they've been hurt - physically and mentally...and perhaps, we're depressing and depriving them beyond repair.

Perhaps we should all take a minute and check the sugar consumed by ourselves and our children.
We could be a lot healthier and happier because of it.

Cooking With...

Summer not only brings about picnics, reunions, and good times, but the best in fresh garden produce.

One of the earliest bearers is the squash plant, and when it begins to bear...there sometimes seems to be no end to it.
My family loves it just about anyway I fix it, but their favorite way is fried.

Here are two recipes that are nice for a change. The first was one I ran across in some literature we had at the news-office. The other was fixed for us Sunday by good friend, Ida Hess. She claims her recipe came from Zelda McClellan - who is known in our parts to be able to cook just about anything and make it taste wonderful.
I hope you and your family will enjoy these two recipes as much as we have.

Crunchy Carrot-Zucchini Salad
2 medium zucchini, cut into julienne strips
2 medium carrots, cut into julienne strips

1/2 cup coarsely chopped walnuts
3 tablespoons oil
2 tablespoons lemon juice
1 tablespoon chopped chives
2 teaspoons Dijon-style

mustard
2 teaspoons sugar
1/2 teaspoon dill weed
1/4 teaspoon salt
1/8 teaspoon pepper
Place zucchini, carrots and walnuts in medium-sized bowl. Thoroughly combine oil, lemon juice, chives, mustard, sugar, dill weed, salt and pepper. Add dressing to vegetables, stirring to coat. Cover and refrigerate about 2 hours before serving.

Zelda's Squash Casserole
6 or 7 medium size yellow squash
1 can cream of chicken soup
1-8oz. carton of sour cream
8 oz. grated American cheese
1-4 oz. can of chopped green chilies salt and pepper to taste
1 pkg. of Stove Top Cornbread Stuffing
Saute squash in pan of butter until tender. Mix soup, squash, sour cream, cheese, and chilies together.

In separate bowl, mix both sacks of cornbread mix together (leave dry)
Grease baking dish. Put a little over half of dry cornbread stuffing in bottom of pan.
Pour in squash mixture on top of that - sprinkle rest of dry stuffing on top.
Bake at 350 for 30 minutes.

LOOSE MARBLES

LISA PATMAN

Sunday afternoon a very nice lady stopped me in a local restaurant and said, "We think you're Loose Marbles. Are You?" When I admitted that I was indeed Miss Marbles, she then asked if the two young men and the one old man with me were the family I write about. When I replied that the boys were my sons Wacko and Mumbles the Obstinate, and that the old man was Old Dad, she looked us over for a bit and, in a strange voice, said that she read the column quite often and that she enjoyed it very much.

"Thank you!" I said in my most humble-but-I-need-every-word-of-praise-I-can-get voice. Unfortunately, before I could get the lady's name and a notarized copy of her compliment, she had bolted for the door, afraid, I assume, that marbles are contagious.

Even so, I was very pleased and proud to be complimented. "How," I asked my family, "do you suppose she recognized me? Could it have been the look of extreme intelligence on my face? Perhaps she overheard some terribly witty remark in my conversation. Maybe, unbeknownst to me, I have been listed in Who's Who and while she was thumbing through a copy she happened upon my biography. It even could be my sophisticated, career woman of the world attitude that clued her in. What do you guys think?"

"I think it is because you are fat and your hair is stringy," remarked Wacko.

"I think it was because you were talking with your mouth full--of my food," said Old Dad.

"I could just die of embarrassment," stuttered Mumbles.

"Maybe it was the chenille marks on your face, or the fact that you're still wearing your bathrobe even though it is afternoon and you are at a fancy restaurant," remarked Wacko.

"Get your hands off my dessert," said Old Dad.

"I hope none of my friends sees me," said Mumbles.

"Of course, it could be the fact that you have spinach on your chin, or the way you tripped and knocked over the waitress when you came in," added Wacko.

"Leave the boys' food alone!" shouted Old Dad.

"I'm going to crawl under the table until you're gone," whispered Mumbles.

"Maybe it's the way you waddle, or that you're wearing high topped tennis shoes, and rollers in your hair," offered Wacko.

"Get the french fries out of your pockets," Old Dad ordered.

"Is there any legal way a kid can divorce his mother?" asked a voice from underneath the table.

"Perhaps it's the way you have 'Loose Marbles' embroidered on the back of that shower cap you're wearing," mused Wacko.

"Wait a minute, fellows," I interrupted. "It could be that she is a woman of extreme intelligence who is sensitive enough to know true talent when she sees it."

"I don't know why she would be talking to you then," replied Wacko. "Dad's the one who has the talent to support us."

"Right, my darling son," added Old Dad. "Lisa, try to get the catsup smeared off your face, tie your shoes--no, not to each other, dummy--and let's get out of here before anyone else recognizes us."

"Do you think anyone will know who I am if I wear the tablecloth over my body until we get home?" mumbled Mumbles.

"Never mind," I said, "let's go."

Western Artist, Howard Suttle Schedules Art Show At American National Bank, July 26 and 27

By the time western artist Howard Suttle decided to devote full time to his art work, he had studied his subject for 28 years and had driven across it to the tune of two-and-a-half million miles.

Suttle was a bus driver for Greyhound, and while he made his runs across the vast stretches of Texas and New Mexico, he was gathering material and salting away observations of a West that was changing rapidly.

"The cowboys of the Old West are gone," says the self-taught artist from Amarillo, Texas. "My painting is just a way of keeping alive the Old West."

Suttle started drawing as a child and sometimes got into trouble from his teachers for drawing instead of doing his schoolwork. Then in 1970 he decided to get serious about his art work. "All my life I'd been piddling and painting. I liked to sit around and draw, but there was no time."

But he made the time, working in oils, his favorite medium, but also in acrylics and bronze.

In the 1970's, while he lived in Capitan, New Mexico, he did a twelve-painting series on the life of Billy the Kid.

In 1982 the series was exhibited in Ft. Sumner, New Mexico, and at the National Cowgirl Hall of Fame in Hereford, Texas.

His paintings have been exhibited widely in galleries and in other public and private institutions in Texas and New Mexico, and are in numerous collections throughout the United States and West Germany.

In December 1983 his work was featured in the "Gallery" section of WESTERN HORSEMAN magazine.

Since his retirement from Greyhound in 1979, Suttle has devoted full time to his art work, and he is presently on a tour to promote a series of three prints he painted on the famous Vermejo Ranch in northeastern New Mexico.

These prints, which are reproduced on good paper and offered at a reasonable price, give the average person the opportunity to buy attractive western art without paying collectors' prices. Suttle is also handling the books of his Texas Panhandle neighbor, cowboy-author John Erickson. "John and I come from the same part of the country," Suttle notes. "We share a love of the West and its people and we admire each other's work. His books and my prints compliment each other."

The artist handles the complete line of Erickson's books, including the newest titles Cowboys are Partly Human and The Further Adventures of Hand the Cowdog.

While he's in town, Suttle will be at the American National Bank from July 26 and 27, selling originals, prints and books, and talking to the public about his favorite subjects, art and the West.

Since many of his customers buy prints as gifts, he will be glad to autograph and personalize them.

"That adds a special touch," says Suttle, "a kind of warmth that museum art doesn't have. I enjoy meeting the public and bringing art down to the person-to-person level."

No One's Buried In Austin's Tomb!

[Editor's Note: The following information and picture was provided by A.G. Kesterson. Kesterson visited Austin's tomb recently and took the picture while on his trip. The article originally appeared in the Houston Chronicle, and was reprinted in the Amarillo Globe News recently.]

By John Toth, Houston Chronicle
JONES CREEK, Tx. - The brick and stone tomb lies empty in the shady family cemetery in Brazoria County. It has been 147 years since Stephen F. Austin was lowered into the tomb intended to be his final resting place.

Austin died on Dec. 27, 1836, approximately two months after being named secretary of state by the Texas republic's first president, Sam Houston. Austin caught a cold - which developed into pneumonia - while working in a damp, unheated room in Columbia, the Republic of Texas' first permanent seat of government.

At the age of 43 Austin was laid to rest at Peach Point Plantation, owned by his sister, Emily Austin Bryan Perry, and brother-in-law, James Franklin Perry. The cotton and sugar plantation, located in what is now southern Brazoria County is still being ranched by the Perry family.

Austin's tomb remains where it was in 1836. What's missing is Austin's body. It was disinterred in 1910 and taken to the State Cemetery in the Texas capital. The empty tomb lies behind the Gulf Prairie Presbyterian Church in Jones Creek, organized in 1877, where many Perry and Bryan family members still worship.

"Sometimes I work the tomb into my sermon. Both Austin's and Jesus Christ's tombs are empty - except Austin was moved," says the Rev. Dennis Winzenried, Gulf Prairie's minister.

Austin's remains were moved because the Perrys and Bryans could not assure that the family cemetery would be preserved and didn't want to risk losing such a historical site to progress or decay.

"The family was afraid that maybe everybody would leave, which they could have well done. They were afraid the cemetery wouldn't be honored," says Mary Alice Perry, whose husband, Stephen S. Perry Jr., is the fifth generation Perry to live at Peach Point.

Henry Austin Perry witnessed the 1910 disinterment of Austin, his great uncle, and described it to his daughter, Mildred, who was 14 at the time.

"I don't know why they opened the casket, but they did. My father was astounded when he saw the body," recounts 88-year-old Mildred Billingsley of Clute.

Austin's body looked petrified, Perry told his daughter.

The remains were moved on a sunny October morning, remembers Mrs. Billingsley. Ausin's Brazos and Colorado river banks.

Emily and James Perry moved to the colony in 1832. They began a new life on a parcel of land now located in Jones Creek, naming the property Peach Point Plantation.

Austin moved to Peach Point shortly before his death, after requesting that a small office be built onto the family homestead where he could attend to business when he returned from Columbia.

body arrived in Angleton, the county seat, around 2 p.m. School let out early that day, and a simple ceremony was planned. "We sang a little, and we prayed a little," she recalls.

Mrs. Billingsley is the oldest living descendant of Moses Austin, a Connecticut-born lead mine operator in Virginia who received permission from the Spanish government in 1820 to settle 300 families in Texas.

Moses Austin died before the venture began, and his 27-year-old son, Stephen, renegotiated the deal with a new, independent Mexican government. By 1822 the Austin Colony began to form along the Today, a short dist the small office and what was once a family room. Until the 1900 storm the rooms are attached to the house James Perry built.

"The office had a separate outside entrance. Austin was secretary of state at the time. Well, he could come down here at night and not bother the rest of the family," notes Mrs. Perry.

The office and the family room were spared by the high winds, only to be dilapidated by neglect. It wasn't until 1949 when Stephen S. Perry, a Freeport postmaster and fourth-generation Peach Point resident, restored the historical structure and turned it into a museum.

Coronado Community Hospital Begins New Surgery

In response to a nationwide trend, Coronado Community Hospital in Pampa opened a One-Day Surgery program July 2.

"A few years ago, any surgery would have meant days away from home and family for the patient, but now, more than 30 percent of all surgeries are performed on an out-patient basis," Norman Knox, administrator, said.

The one-day surgery program - where the patient comes to the hospital the day of surgery and is discharged later the same day - will result in cost savings to the patient, Knox said.

The physicians on the staff at CCH have been given a rate sheet that gives a flat charge to patients for the various procedures. The rate does not include doctor bills from the surgeon, anesthesiologist, radiologist, or pathologist. The basic fee does include the use of CCH's facilities, most supplies, drugs, and materials needed.

"The patient will save the cost of the hospital room and other charges which normally result when he is admitted as a patient in the hospital," Knox said.

One reason for the growing popularity of one-day surgery is that insurance companies and Medicare will now pay for out-patient procedures when done in a licensed facility. In the past, third-party payors (insurance companies and Medicare) required an 18-24 hour hospital stay before they would pay for the procedure.

Knox emphasized that many procedures will require hospitalization. "The physician will still decide what is best for his patient," he said. "This program is designed for the healthy patient who simply needs routine surgery."

CCH chose to develop the one-day surgery service within the hospital, not only because of the cost factor, but also for the greater safety for the patient. Hospital-based professionals, who staff the operating room on a regular basis, will be used for the one-day surgeries also. The rooms are already equipped with the latest advances in technology. "To duplicate those services in a free-standing facility is expensive and can only add to the overall cost of health care," Knox said.

Using the existing operating room allows for the most cost-effective use of both staff and equipment, while providing for the maximum safety for the patient. Since surgery is performed in the hospital itself, emergency care is immediately available should anything unexpected occur.

If a physician decides to use the one-day surgery for his patient, he will send the patient to the hospital the day before surgery for pre-admission and for lab work. The patient returns the day of surgery, one hour before the scheduled time, and goes to the Emergency Room for admission. The patient's family waits in the lobby waiting room while the procedure is done and should be available to drive the patient home after the doctor has dismissed him.
