Parents here are again at odds with movies. Many more were irate over the preview shown before a recent family movie.

I don't know how you avoid bringing your children to this of thing unless you keep away from the movies, is the best possible way.

However, one mother who suggested that parents to the movies and observe behavior of their young-uns, she said the bedlam created by kids made it almost impossible to see a show and utterly impossible to hear.

I am sort of impartial. Long I decided that the dirty movies pouring out of the film joints of the world bored me just don't go. I don't have ones to worry about anyone, so I can't feel a personal responsibility as I did years ago. However, when our son in his impressionable years read the reviews and a club put out a rating on movies scheduled for our town, I thought a movie was objectionable, it was simply off limits and that was that. Of course, I don't know how many previews were shown before Walt Disney movies. It never entered my mind. We didn't have the problem of smut that parents have. There are hundreds of dirty movies than clean in this day and age. Our went to the Saturday matinee and occasionally attend on Sunday afternoon. If misbehaved, the parents called and they got a thrashing and were not allowed to go to the movie until they mended their ways.

I don't know why kids are so noisy that cannot enjoy a movie if want to. Maybe they number the management. I don't know what I would do if I had some young ones. I do know that I would make it a point to know they were seeing at the movies as well as what they were doing.

I am too old and too tired to start a crusade against dirty movies and I am out numbered. I can't expect to see good movies again until the wierdos are bombing at the box office. As long as people pay money, they will make money and as long as they have money, they will keep it. This cycle will be broken until the American public decides to boycott movies.

Football finally faded the background for another year. Although the Super Bowl has been played over and over since Sunday, the outcome has remained the same. I don't know about you, but I got the feeling that I was watching a re-run.

I was surprised to see that of the players on both sides had several inches of hair hanging out from under their helmets. I think this is a sign that us old folks expect a return of crew cuts anytime soon, so we had to be tickled to death that kids are content to wear all hair styles instead of crew cuts for professional athletes and hippys as well.

When we played McCamey in the first district basketball game I thought they must have more school spirit than we in the district. In fact quite a few moments came when they sang their school song. However, after sitting through the hair-raiser with here Friday night I decided that Ozona definitely had the spirit stick. And I believe the student fans are much to do with the game as the players. The overtime was so exciting with cheering fans that we couldn't hear their under sponsorship of the Ozona United Methodist Church.

Lions Tied For Dist. Lead With Win Over Crane

Coach Charles Spieker's Ozona Lions beat Crane here Friday night 49-48 in a three-minute overtime after tying the game 48 all in the final frame. The win gives the Lions a 2-0 district record and a tie for the district lead with Coahoma.

The Lions jumped out ahead of the Golden Cranes 6-0 in the first two minutes of play, but were behind 9-8 at the end of the first quarter and trailed throughout the game. Trailing three points, the Lions managed to tie the game in the final 30 seconds as wildly cheering fans hoped for victory. The Cranes hit from the free-throw line during the overtime, but the Lions hit a field-goal in the final seconds.

Leading the Lions point-wise was David Pagan with 12, Jim Montgomery 11, Ruben Tambunga 8, David Sewell 6, (including the winning field goal) Will Collett 6 and Greg Stuart 6. Neal of Crane was overall high point man with 20.

Scoring for the junior varsity were Gary Whitley 12, Monty Peltto 7, Bill Edgerton 6, Ricky Webster 5 and Gerald Huff 4.

Oil Painting Of Mildred North To Hang In Library

Supt. of Schools L. B. T. Sikes announced this week that a painting of Miss Mildred North, longtime Ozona High School librarian, will be presented in assembly at the high school auditorium next Wednesday, Jan. 27 at 9:45 a.m.

Miss North was stricken at her post in the library Sept. 4, 1970 and died shortly afterward in the Crockett County Hospital. She had served in the Crockett County school system since 1931 with the exception of four years spent in defense work in Washington D. C. during World War II.

For many years she was editor of the high school annual. She, more than any other one person, was responsible for bringing public library service to Crockett County residents. She worked tirelessly to interest clubs and various organizations in public library service for Ozona.

JERRY MCKAY
Assistant Vice President of the Ozona National Bank comes from Texas National Bank of Commerce in Houston. Mr. McKay lives with his wife, Leatha, and their two small children in the Leath Apartments in North Ozona.

During her tenure with the school system, Miss North spent much of her time with the students, helping them with school work and giving her free time in counselling and guidance. Seldom has a community felt so keenly the loss of one of its members.

The public is invited to attend the presentation with a special welcome to Miss North's friends and her ex-students.

The painting will be furnished by the school board with art work done by Mrs. Cap (Celia) West. It will be hung in the library where Miss North spent most of her hours.

Seek Income Hike For Agriculture In Texas

A program to increase Texas agricultural income by more than a billion dollars by 1976 was announced by Dr. John E. Hutchinson, director of the Texas Agricultural Extension Service. This program calls for $3.76 billion in total cash receipts for Texas by the end of the 1976 crop year, thus the slogan of "3.76 in '76". In recognition of this program, Governor Preston Smith has proclaimed the week of January 25th through the 29th as "3.76 in '76 Week."

Both Davidson boys are seniors, while Tambunga, a sophomore, has two more years of eligibility.

Iowa Park, co-state champions with Refugio in Class AA, dominated the first team, landing six players on offense and defense. Charley Franklin of Haskell, responsible for the Haskell win over Ozona in the regional playoff, was the only Haskell player named to the first team offense. Haskell placed one lineman, Clifford Campbell, on the first team defensive unit.

The use of available research data and specialist assistance by producers should aid in production for the county, according to the county agent.

Sheep and goats and beef cattle contribute the major portion of the agricultural income for the county.

A benefit barbecue will be held at noon. Tickets may be purchased from FFA boys or at the Vocational Ag building. There will also be a concession stand open throughout the show.

Contract For New Jail Addition To Abilene Builder

Bids for the construction of new jail facilities and remodeling of the present structure were opened Friday afternoon at the courthouse by members of the Commissioners Court at 3 o'clock.

After the recent two sessions of court, 49 cases remain on the docket. This backlog could be increased by current activity of local law enforcement officers. During the two sessions a total of 15 cases were disposed of.

Judge Williams said that a jury will be impaneled to hear a case Feb. 15. County jury cases have been few and far between in the history of Crockett County, according to Judge Williams.

County Court Case Load Cut At Two Sessions

County Judge Troy Williams held county court the second consecutive Tuesday this week and says he plans to hold court weekly until all criminal cases on the docket are taken care of.

Out of 10 general contract bids, Gabbart Construction Co. of Abilene had the low bid with $74,889. Southern Steel Co. of San Antonio had the low steel bid with $41,000.

A MAN WELL QUALIFIED

Recently the Seniority system for the selection of Congressional committee chairmen has come under increasing attack, largely by newly elected, "maverick," junior members of our national legislative bodies. It is these same junior members who, during the last session of Congress, were the major obstructionists to legislation — any legislation, except that precisely in accord with their own whims. One of our better newspaper columnists, William S. White, reports that "these, the junior members, have been pursuing a policy of all or nothing, of rule or ruin, that is leaving a litter of smashed legislation. They are not wise enough, because they are not experienced enough, to understand that politics in a free society must rest at last upon civilized compromise. They are not industrious enough to work their way forward by merit, they want to run the show before they understand the script."

The altogether disgraceful record of the last Congress should, in itself, demonstrate the shallow and self-serving nature of the campaign against the seniority system. But William White points out another compelling reason why the seniority system should be retained. "Another term for seniority is 'know how,'" he writes, "and while undeniably the system occasionally produces a chairman of limited ability, it could also fairly be said that the seniority system in the professions occasionally produces a senior law partner who is no Blackstone or a senior medical partner who is no Lister. On the whole, however, a man becomes senior — in the professions and in Congress — mainly because he knows more about the matter in hand, having studied and practiced it longer."

A convincing argument in favor of the seniority system can be found in the automatic advancement of the very able and experienced F. Edward Hebert of Louisiana to the office of Chairman of the House Armed Services Committee, to succeed the late Representative Mendel Rivers. Congressman Hebert (pronounced "A-Bear") is the first Louisianian to serve 26 consecutive years in the U. S. House of Representatives. His background, training and long years of experience — plus the year-after-year "vote of confidence" by the people of his district attest his qualifications for the important post.

Officers Named For Historical Society In 1971

The Crockett County Historical Society held its Annual meeting in the auditorium at the Civic Center Monday evening. Twenty-six members were present.

Elected to serve as officers for the coming year were Mrs. Max Schneemann, president; Ted M. White, vice-president; Mrs. R. A. Harrell, Secretary, and Mrs. L. B. Cox Jr., Mrs. Joe Pierce, Mrs. Eldred Roach and C. O. Walker were elected to the board of directors. At a called meeting of the Executive Committee, Mrs. Dempster Jones was named Museum Board Chairman and Mrs. Joe Clayton was named Museum Library Chairman.

The program for the evening was presented by Mrs. L. B. Cox Jr., assisted by her mother, Mrs. John Bailey and her sisters, Mrs. Brock Jones and Mrs. Worth Odum of Sanderson. A brother, T. A. Bailey of San Angelo was unable to attend.

Mrs. Cox shared many interesting facts and stories from her extensive genealogical collection on the Bailey and Murchison families. Her grandfather, Robert Bailey, was born in 1879 on the family farm at Birdville Texas when that settlement was still the capital of Tarrant County. The family had moved there from Kentucky and Missouri bringing with them many slaves which were shortly set free at great financial loss to the family. They then began to deal in buying, raising and selling cattle and also had a mercantile business in Fort Worth for which merchandise was freighted from the early Texas port of Jefferson.

A son, John Bailey of Ozona, attended school at Birdville, Dublin and later Add-Ran College, now T. C. U. When he was 16 years of age, the family moved to Dublin where they bought steers for $7.50 per head, kept them a year and sold them for $15.00. It was while living in Dublin that Mr. Robert Bailey heard of cheap land for sale in West Texas and in 1898 moved his family to what is now Schleicher County. He brought with him cows and calves for which he had paid $16.00 and yearling heifers for which he had paid $4.00.

ARE YOU THE JUDGE? Two Hereford calves are fat and sassy at the junior livestock barn at the time approaches for the annual FFA commercial livestock show. The show is set for Saturday morning starting at 8 a. m.

He helped organize Schleicher County and the Eldorado Bank, serving as first president of the board. The ranch was about eight miles southwest of Eldorado and came to be known as the Bailey Community. After retiring from the ranching business, Mr. and Mrs. Bailey moved back to Fort Worth where they died and are buried in the family cemetery at Birdville.

October 29, 1889 John Bailey married Miss Robert Wilson Murchison, youngest daughter of neighboring rancher Murchison who had preceded the Baileys in that area a number of years.

Mrs. John Bailey was born December 25, 1879 in Concho County where Paint Rock now stands. Because Indians so frequently came to camp on the nearby river, Mr. Murchison feared for his family's safety and moved them nearer Fort Concho where Christoval is now located. Still later he bought the Point Pleasant ranch about halfway between Sonora and Eldorado. It was here that the young neighbor boy came courting and with success. In 1903 the young couple bought 1 land in eastern Crockett County paying $2.50 an acre for it, known as the Zeb Owens Ranch. They homesteaded an additional four sections. Mrs. Bailey told of moving her family into a very small two-room house on the homesteaded land in order to honestly fulfill the requirements of the homestead laws. She told Mr. Bailey to never ask her to sign a deed to this land and to this day she has not done so.

Mrs. Bailey tells many interesting stories of her life on the frontier—when her children were very small she contracted tuberculosis and remained in bed for many months but completely recovered in time. She remembers the enormous and numerous rattlesnakes which infested the area, but said that Mr. Bailey finally eliminated most of them by dynamiting their large den which was near their house. She tells the story of her mother's successful encounter with outlaw Bill Ike Babb when her husband was near Beaver Lake gathering cattle— one of very few successful outcomes with this character. And once her father won a horse race and the horses from Sam Bass—another notorious outlaw. But this time Mr. Bass came out ahead for he raided the camp at night and recovered all the horses except "Rattler," the favorite pony of Mr. Murchison which he had tied to his bedroll. She remembers when both Sonora and Eldorado were located and of how she and her sister would ride wildly down the main street of Eldorado in order to impress the "Eastemers." They became known as "those wild Murchison girls."

Mr. Bailey died in Ozona April 22, 1963 and almost to the time of his death remained active and interested in community affairs. He served as president of the School Board, director of the Fair Association, and member of many industry-related organizations. Mrs. Bailey continues to live in the home that she and Mr. Bailey bought from Mr. S. E. Couch and one gets the impression that, given a spirited cow pony, she could more than hold her own with her children, grandchildren and great grandchildren, who have inherited the family love of horses and ranching.

SENSING the NEWS

RELIGIOUS LIBERTY IMPERILED

The history of America is deeply involved with the struggle for religious liberty-- freedom to worship and to teach religious principles.

A number of independent, fundamentalist schools and colleges are in danger of losing the tax exemptions they have long enjoyed as part of religious liberty in the United States.

Indeed, churchmen with no sympathy for the beliefs of the fundamentalists should be keenly aware of the religious liberty issue at stake in the pressure on the independent religious schools and colleges.

Last fall, a number of small religious schools and colleges received notice from the Internal Revenue Service that they will be stripped of tax exempt

Copyrights And Copycats

To the would-be writer, few things are as precious as the words and ideas he has put together into a manuscript.

The trouble is, most kinds of literary material cannot be copyrighted in that manner. The only way to copyright a book or an article or a story is to actually publish it and to include, with that first publication, a "notice of copyright" (the kind of notice usually found on the back of the title page of a book).

Only after publication will the Copyright Office accept the material for registration. The registration, although not a copyright in itself, is useful in establishing the writer's rights in case of dispute.

Then what does protect his manuscript before it is published? It is protected, very effectively, by an ancient rule of law often called "common law copyright."

Under this rule, the writer owns his work automatically--just as he man who builds a bookcase owns it automatically. He need not go through any particular formalities in order to establish his rights.

Nor must he keep the manuscript secret to protect his "common law copyright." He may submit it to editors for possible sale. By doing so, he no more gives up his ownership than a person gives up ownership of a watch by submitting it to a jeweler for appraisal.

Furthermore, his ownership has a time limit. While an ordinary copyright cannot last more than 6 years, a "common law copyright" may last indefinitely--so long as the work remains unpublished.

In one famous case, an unpublished story of Mark Twain came into the possession of a collector. It was his plan to publish the story ere blocked in court.

The judge held that even though 3 years had gone by since it was written, and even though Twain had been dead for 38 years, his common law copyright "was ill good."

without any question by tax authorities. It would be absurd and unjust to compel it to admit quotas of Mexicans, Puerto Ricans and other minorities.

The public may well ask: Why this pressure on the small Bible schools and colleges? They train law-abiding citizens. No riots take place on their campuses. They aren't bomb factories. Moreover, tax authorities aren't bringing pressure on major universities which have given extremists free rein.

Something is wrong when small, fundamentalist schools and colleges are singled out for extraordinary pressure. Fair-minded citizens are likely to regard these threats of removal of tax exemption as a form of public pressure incompatible with American tradition.

It is tragic and shocking that the federal government would make such a demand of these religious institutions. These aren't public schools. The admissions standards aren't the product of secular views.

One may disagree with these convictions and regard them as incorrect or even hurtful. But the fact that they are religious in character should shield them from governmental pressure.

Religious educational institutions should not be required to submit to a political test. If a fundamentalist institution isn't allowed to keep its tax exemption, because it has its own admissions policy, how can a tax exemption be given to the schools and colleges of major religious groups which have special criteria for admission?

Certainly, no responsible citizen wants an Episcopal seminary to be compelled to prove that it is non-discriminatory by recruiting quotas of Baptists, Presbyterians and churchmen of other faiths, Roman Catholic institutions such as Notre Dame and Fordham should have an undisputed right to maintain admissions policies that favor Catholics.

Yeshiva University's right to continue to serve as a Jewish theological seminary should be maintained.

WASHINGTON NEWS LETTER

Cong. O. C. Fisher. THE 91st CONGRESS, as was true of previous sessions, was often prone to favor any legislation calculated to curtail minority bloc votes. Ignoring inflation and budget deficits, for example, the House in closing days of the session approved a $14-billion Administration measure, with few guidelines and controls, to be used on school integration projects. The Senate, fortunately, didn't reach it. But it'll be back next year. Another bill, also with Administration support, breezed through the Senate, then was okayed by a House committee but never cleared by the Rules committee, is considered extremely dangerous. Its disastrous effect has been under-publicized. This measure would give to the Great Society's Equal Employment Opportunity Commission (EEOC) cease-and-desist enforcement powers, whereas at present it investigates alleged discrimination in employment and seeks voluntary solutions by persuasion and mediation. But EEOC wants more authority, backed by full judicial and police enforcement powers of the government. Thus, if this proposal is enacted, this agency in dealing with private employment would become the investigator, prosecutor, judge and jury. Jury trials would be outlawed. Employees would be at the mercy of the mercy of the whims of biased bureaucrats. The employer could be told by EEOC whom to hire, fire, or promote - where to decide race, sex, or religion involved - and would have to back up its orders, with a wallop to free enterprise! Educational institutions, State and local officials, would also be covered. One big trouble would be the Commission and its staff, notoriously lacking in objectivity, with resulting harassment. WARNING: As the matter stands, unless the public becomes aroused and makes itself heard, loud and clear, this police state legislation may become the law of the land during the 92nd Congress.

Crockett Gains Location For 2 Wildcat Tests

Gulf Oil Corp., Crane, will drill an 8,200-foot wildcat in Crockett County, nine miles northwest of Iraan, one mile northeast of the Hanson (Grayburg) field and 3-3/8 miles northwest of the depleted Meek (Canyon and Strawn) field. It is the No. 1-1 Helen Carpenter.

Location, on a 351, 46-acre lease, is 5,730 feet from the north and 1,010 feet from the west lines of 85-1-1&GN.

It is also one mile northeast of Apache Corp. No. 1 Carpenter, a 7,850-foot failure, abandoned May 28, 1970. It flowed salt water on a drillstem test at 6,497-573 feet and recovered 705 feet of gas and 6,565 feet of slightly oil and gas-cut salt water on a drillstem test of the Ellenburger at 7,820-850 feet.

M. C. Vinson, Midland, will drill a 1,500 foot wildcat in Crockett County, 13 miles northwest of Ozona, 1/2 mile northwest of 1,445-foot production in the Vaughn multipay field, and is also 1/2 mile east northeast of a depleted Queen discovery. It is the No. 1-4 Shannon.

Location is 330 feet from the north and west lines of the southwest quarter of 4-UV-GC-8&SF.

The Davidson Ranch multipay field of Crockett County gained its seventh 7,890-foot Pennsylvanian producer and a 3/4 mile southeast extension to that pay with completion of Texaco, Inc., No. 2 C. E. Davidson, III, seven miles southeast of Ozona, for a calculated, absolute open flow of 8,435 million cubic feet of gas, with gas-liquid ratio of 65,832-1. Gravity of the condensate was 60.6 degrees.

Production was through perforations at 7,912-8,002 feet, which had been acidized with 2,000 gallons and fractured with 40,000 gallons and 145,000 pounds of sand.

Drilled to 8,055 feet, operator set 4 1/2-inch casing at total depth and plugged back to 8,011 feet.

Speaking of basketball, the game tonight between the seniors boys and the faculty should be something to behold. At any rate it will be well worth the price of admission and should be lots of fun. We will be without the tension of our first district games and it really won't matter if our boys have to come from behind in the final 30 seconds or so. So see you there.

Record Growth For Texas Hiway System In 1970

Joyce Kilmer once wrote that "life is a highway and its milestones are the years." The Texas Highway Department can claim many "milestones" for 1970.

The year was one of solid achievement for the State highway network. To begin with, the total designated mileage grew to 69,975 miles. About 700 of these miles were added during 1970.

The State blazed a trail for other states to follow in the Interstate Highway program. Texas has more designated interstate mileage than any other state, with a total of 3,179 miles.

At the end of the year, Texas had some 2,320 miles of Interstate open to traffic, with 329 miles under construction.

Another important highway system built, maintained and operated by the Department, matured during 1970. The Farm- and Ranch-to-Market road network grew to almost 40 thousand designated miles during the year.

This superb, all-paved system of secondary roads also grew in sophistication. Originally, the system was credited mainly with "getting the farmer out of the mud."

Now the FM system has taken on new roles in the economic life of Texas. FM roads provide access for industrialization in virtually every part of the state.

FM roads supported the recreational travel industry in a big way during 1970. FM roads provided primary or partial access to the State's nearly six thousand square miles of inland waters.

Mrs. O. D. West was transferred to the Crockett County Hospital Friday after being treated for a compound fracture of the ankle in a San Angelo hospital last week. She will be hospitalized here for at least three weeks.

Mrs. Joe Pierce returned to her home here Saturday after spending last week in a San Angelo hospital under medical treatment.

Emergency Care Training Program Set At Eldorado

Eldorado, Texas, has been selected as the site for a four-night training program designed to give emergency care personnel the knowledge to save lives and limbs during that critical period before a patient can reach the hospital. The program is headed by Doctor J. B. Brame of Eldorado. This training is offered by the Tom Green Eight County Medical Society and the Texas State Department of Health, Division of Civil Defense and Traffic Safety under the direction of Charles E. King.

Doctor Brame has voiced concern for the needless deaths and injuries caused by the lack of proper training of emergency personnel. The Eldorado physician points out that a fast ride to the hospital by ambulance or other means has practically never saved a life. A national study shows that 25-thousand persons were permanently disabled because emergency personnel were not trained in the techniques required and 20-thousand persons lost their lives because of inadequate care prior to reaching the hospital.

The emergency care personnel must be able to make a quick survey, determine medical priority, and take the necessary life-saving measures. The school now offered in Eldorado, free of charge, will provide an opportunity to learn those skills. Invited to attend this course are ambulance personnel, policemen, firemen, safety engineers, rescue squads members, nurses, public health and civil defense officials, and others who deal with the care of the sick and injured.

Students in this program will learn techniques in resuscitation, cardiac massage, splinting of fractures, burns and other medical emergencies. Aid to snake and spider bite victims, smoke and gas victims, handling of emotionally disturbed patients, emergency childbirth, and traffic control will also be covered.

The school will be held January 25, 26, 27, and 28 in the main room of the Memorial Building in Eldorado. This training is open to all emergency personnel in the Southwest Texas area.
