Matsudaira Talks Peace—Senate Rejects Warren—Jardine Appointed.

By EDWARD W. PICKARD

Tsuneko Matsudaira, the new Japanese ambassador to the United States, arrived in Washington Wednesday, "with gratitude in his heart" for the preliminary welcome he had received at San Francisco and at Chicago. His official welcome at the capital will be no less warm, for he is distinctly persona grata to the United States government. He comes of a great historical family of Japan, as does his wife, speaks English well, was secretary general of the Japanese delegation to the Washington arms conference; has held several important diplomatic posts in Europe, and was vice minister of foreign affairs in the Japanese cabinet at the time of appointment. In short, he is of the new school of Japanese statesmen. The ambassador's unofficial words are route across America explain why he is welcome at the capital:

"I bring greetings from across the Pacific to the people of America. I have had a splendid welcome to your shores. I am come on a mission of peace. I consider it a duty and a privilege to do all that I can to strengthen the bonds of friendship between the United States and Japan. There is no question or difference of opinion that it is not capable of amicable settlement if approached in the spirit of friendship. If the press of both nations will confine itself to facts—that will help."

MATSUDAIRA'S temper of mind is appreciated at Washington. For as the new ambassador neared the Golden Gate he may have had glimpse of the great American fleet now practicing in the Pacific, preparing to start for the much vexed Hawaiian maneuvers and a visit to Australia and New Zealand. And it will be remembered under what circumstances his predecessor, Masuzo Hanlra, departed from Washington. It is also easy to recall that Japan at one time strenuously protested against our Pacific naval program for this summer.

The main point of the great mind war in the Hawaiian islands between the attacking "Blue" fleet and the defending "Black" land forces is to decide whether the island of Oahu, our naval base in the Pacific, can be defended against enemy attack. With Oahu in our possession, our Pacific coast is safe from enemy attack, from the military viewpoint. Oahu can be defended against enemy attack, provided its defense is supplemented by an American fleet in the Pacific. But suppose an emergency keeps our fleet in the Atlantic—that's another and different story. Hence the importance of the coming Hawaiian maneuvers. Hence the importance of a Japanese ambassador who does not necessarily read into this minor war the inference that the hypothetical "enemy attack" is on the part of Japan and does not necessarily see in the "friendship visit" of the American fleet to Australia and New Zealand a combination and conspiracy against Japan by the English-speaking peoples of the Pacific.

DR. WILLIAM M. JARDINE has succeeded Edward M. Gorn as secretary of agriculture. There is naturally nationwide interest in the new Agriculture department head. Dr. Jardine is a Kansas farmer, Secretary of the National Agricultural Experiment Station, and has a practical background based on experience as cowboy, dairy farmer, ranch manager and man of affairs. At the same time his scientific attainments are high. When appointed he was head of the Kansas State Agricultural Experiment Station.

WASHINGTON gossip has it that Secretary Jardine will station himself in the department. His public utterances would indicate that he holds views harmonious with those of President Coolidge on the solution of the problems of the farmer, in 1924 he was opposed to the McNary-Haugen price fixing bill.

The ratifying of national park embankments is evidently awaiting a statement from the secretary of his department. His public utterances would indicate that he holds views harmonious with those of President Coolidge on the solution of the problems of the farmer, in 1924 he was opposed to the McNary-Haugen price fixing bill.

which $410,000 is to be spent on the Transmountain road. This road is being built across the Continental Divide and when completed will be the first means of access through the park from the east side to the west by motor car. In the Yosemite National park, California, $104,000 the next largest allotment, will be expended. Approximately half of these funds will be used in paving the El Portal road from the park boundary to Yosemite Village, connecting with the all-year highway which the state is building to El Portal and which is expected to double the automobile travel into Yosemite. The sum of $235,000 has been allotted to Mount Rainier National park and $106,000 has been allotted for road work in the Grand Canyon National park. The $140,500 allotted to Rocky Mountain National park, Colorado, will be divided between six different projects, all of them important. The famous Fall River road, the highest road in the national park system, reaching an altitude of 11,797 feet on the top of Rocky mountain, and the High drive from Fall River to Moraine park will get the larger share of these funds.

BARON AGO VON MALTZAN, the new German ambassador, was officially welcomed Thursday by President Coolidge. The new representative of Germany thanked the President for the work of American citizens in the economic and financial reconstruction of his country.

"I gratefully recall the generous activities of American citizens in social and cultural help, and the far-reaching work of financial and economic reconstruction, bearing an American stamp which has become historical," he said. "The last order of the deceased president of the Reich was to express to you, Mr. President, his feeling of high personal esteem and his sincere wish for the welfare of the United States of America."

"It is for you to interpret to America the just aspirations of your nation," said President Coolidge in reply. "It is for you to promote the understanding which is the only sound basis of lasting peace. We have had a long history as a republic, and we hope that you may profit by a study of our experience of a century and a half of democratic government."

BRIG. GEN. WILLIAM MITCHELL, storm center of the controversy over air power as a national defense, will be succeeded April 27 by Lieut. Col. James E. Fechet as assistant chief of the army air service. Colonel Fechet is now in command of the air service flying school at Kelly Field, Texas. The appointment is said to be satisfactory to both Maj. Gen. Mason N. Patrick, air service chief, and Maj. Gen. John L. Hines, chief of staff, though he has not publicly indicated his stand in the controversy. General Mitchell says that his efforts to secure a unified air service, distinct from both army and navy, will be continued. Incidentally Representative Florian Lampert of Wisconsin, chairman of the house committee on aircraft, issued a statement Wednesday that the investigation had vindicated the position taken by General Mitchell.

DR. WALTER SIMONS Thursday took the oath of President of the German republic before the various diplomatic corps and members of the reichstag in the reichstag. Doctor Simons will hold the office until the elections name a new chief. All attempts to bring about a coalition of the right parties failed with the refusal of the People's party to back Herr Gessler's candidacy for the presidency. Herr Stresemann's objections, based on the fears of foreign opinion, were supported by his party. Germany goes into the election campaign with five candidates, none of whom seems able to secure the election on the first ballot.

PRESIDENT COOLIDGE arbitrated in the historic Tacna-Arica dispute between Chile and Peru which has threatened the peace of South America for a generation, announced his decision Wednesday that the ultimate disposition of the contested provinces must be by popular vote. This is a preliminary victory for Chile. The decision fixes the conditions of the plebiscite and provides for a commission of three, of which the American member is to be president.

THE struggle in the senate over confirmation of the President's nomination of Charles B. Warren to be attorney general is still on at this writing. The senate is still on at this writing.

ing features, Thursday, while Vice President Dawes was "peacefully snoozing" at his hotel, the senate approached a vote. A desperate effort was made to get Vice President Dawes there in time to break it. As Dawes entered the chamber, Overman of North Carolina, the only Democrat who had voted for Warren, dramatically switched his vote. This destroyed the tie of 49 to 49, clinched Warren's defeat and made the automobile rush of Dawes more or less ridiculous. Whereupon the senate—at least the anti-Warren senators, if no others—gave Dawes the "ha, ha!" They had got even with him for roasting the riot act to them March 4.

President Coolidge Thursday surprised everyone, including the party leaders, by again sending the nomination of Warren to the senate. It was not made public whether the President had determined to force the fight or had acted in order to give Warren an opportunity to defend himself against senate charges. Incidentally, the Michigan home of representatives Wednesday endorsed Warren, as a reply to the statement of Cozens that nine-tenths of the people of that state were backing his opposition to the confirmation. A late statement issued by Secretary Sanders at the White House was this: "At the request of the President Mr. Warren consented to allow his name to be sent to the senate. The officials would not enlarge on the announcement, but some senators were of the opinion that Mr. Coolidge desired to assume full responsibility and draw a direct issue between himself and the senate on the question."

THIS emphatic utterance by President Coolidge in his inaugural address as to the necessity of party loyalty and regularity suits the regular Republicans in both house and senate. The respective committees on the subject have agreed in its support. The house denied followers of LaFollette on important committees. The senate, after long and bitter debate, in which the opposition was led by Borah of Idaho and Norris of Nebraska, demoted LaFollette senators, the whole slate being approved by a vote of 64 to 11. The test vote, 33 to 13, was on the effort of the opposition to substitute Ladd of North Dakota, a LaFollette follower, for Stanfield of Oregon as chairman of the public lands committee. Most of the Democrats here declined to mix in the party quarrel and voted "in the numerical strength of their followers."

APPORTIONMENT of funds amounting to $2,500,000, appropriated by congress for the construction of improved roads and trails in the various national parks and national monuments, is announced by the interior department. The interior department appropriation act for the fiscal year 1925 contains an appropriation of $1,500,000 to be expended for the building of these much-needed roads and trails in the national parks and monuments under the jurisdiction of the national parks service. An initial appropriation of $1,000,000 for this road and trail work was made available in the deficiency act which was signed by the President December 5, 1924, making in all $2,500,000 available. These appropriations were made under authority of the National Park Highways act of April 9, 1924.

CHANGE MADE IN OIL LEASE AND PERMIT LAW

Star-Telegram: Legislative bill permits the leasing of five-year commercial oil and gas leases on university lands is expected to stimulate interest and development in the Reagan county and neighboring territories where the university is the principal land owner. The bill, pending this has been signed by the Governor. Provision for competitive bidding on unsold acreage is expected to result in proper returns to the university bonus money for unleased lands on which future developments may bear. The fixed price for permits under the oil law was ten cents per acre with no competitive feature attached. This resulted in the taking out of permits to thousands of acres near the Reagan field at 10 cents per acre, even after nearly development gave them a value of many times that amount. Under the old system, the taking out of a permit—usually to four sections—required the completion of a well within eighteen months to which a lease. The transfer of subdivisions of the permit—2,500 acres—would not be recognized by the General Land Office. An annual rental of $2 per acre was required in the event of a completion of a well, and the payment of the customary one-eighth royalty. The drilling requirements and the necessity for operations in large blocks effectively closed development of the university land to any save the large companies and operators in position to make large investments. The new legislation allowing transfer of the commercial leases down to and including tracts of 40 acres opens the way to considerable drilling through sale of protection acreage in comparatively small amounts—the method by which most wildcatting is financed. The legislation providing for commercial leases applies to land already leased or held under permits as well as land to be leased.

ANOTHER AUTO ACCIDENT Ozona maintained its reputation of having had automobile accidents without serious consequences when the Ford touring car driven by Mrs. Lee Wilson turned over last Sunday afternoon, spilling the occupants and injuring none of them seriously. The Old Spanish Trail has only recently been graded, leaving soft dirt in the road. Mrs. Wilson was driving on the road to the west of town, when she lost control of the car in the dirt on the off dirt, causing it to turn completely over, throwing the occupants of the car out of the car as it tumbled. Only one child was left under the car, which was pulled from underneath, with no great hurt. Mrs. Lee Wilson, her two girls, Mrs. Horace Rogers, her two children, Ena Meinecke and Opal Robertson were the eight occupants of the car at the time of the accident. The car, which was owned by Lee Wilson, was considerably banged up, but not beyond repair. Broken top, broken spring, bent radius rod, busted radiator, bent body, broken steering wheel were some of the major injuries to the car. Medical aid was rendered to those of the occupants who were bruised and scratched, and the car was repaired.

J. R. Brooks of Merton was a visitor to Ozona early Monday.

authorized the appropriation of $7,000,000 for the carrying out of a three-year road and trail construction program. Of the $2,500,000 fund appropriated the sum of $483,000 has been allotted to Glacier National park, Montana, of in the future, as does the transfer of acreage in amounts in excess of 40 acres.

The minimum consideration for leasing of unleased acreage is ten cents per acre for the first year, with consideration as rental of 25 cent per acre for the second year and 50 cents per acre for each subsequent year.

The sales are to be made through sealed bids, at sales held by the General Land Office at least once per month. The bids are to be accompanied by the minimum first year's consideration of ten cents per acre, with what additional consideration is offered by the bidder. In case of a tie bid the tract is to be re-offered. Sales are to be offered in advance.

Offsets to producers must be drilled as near as 500 feet from lease property lines.

The Legislature's Record

The State has cause for no lit-tle gratification over the work of the Thirty-ninth Legislature which adjourned Thursday and the members themselves have good reason to be proud of its accomplishments.

The Thirty-ninth did many things that set it apart from the usual run of Texas Legislatures. It passed its appropriation bills within a few days over the 60-day limit, something no other Legislature has done for 60 years. It practiced the economy its members preached when campaigning during the Summer. It tried to keep appropriations within the revenues available, and its leaders believe that this has been done. It heeded the demands of the State for relief from growing taxation by passing not a single tax raising measure. These accomplishments—undoubtedly were due to the work of the officers and leaders of the body and to the splendid spirit of co-operation they received from the members.

Speaker Satterwhite in his campaign made the passage of the appropriation bills within the 60-day period one of his promises. Lieutenant Governor Barry Miller was committed to the same policy, and when the session met they appointed men as chairmen of the important committees who were in sympathy with their ideas. Eugene Blount, a Nacogdoches banker, was chairman of the appropriations committee of the House, and John Davis of Dallas of the important committee of finance of the Senate. Both went about their tasks as business propositions, to cut their expenditures to the revenues that would be available and to provide for the needs of the State to the fullest of the State's ability to pay. Blount even engaged a certified public accountant at his own expense to assist him in his work.

It is true that the work of the House appropriation committee and the Senate finance committee was simplified by the previous work of the State Board of Control, but nevertheless both faced an enormous task in meeting the demands of the State and at the same time holding these demands within the State's available revenue. That this was done and the appropriations gotten out of the way within the 60-day period is to the credit of the respective chairmen of these committees and the presiding officers of the two houses who insisted that it be done.

Taken as a whole, the Thirty-ninth was one of the best Legislatures the State has had for many years. It was free from strife; there was less bickering, less time wasting, more effort to treat the State's business as a business proposition, more determination to get the job in hand, more than the State has seen for many years. Truly, these are the things for which the taxpayers of the have reason to be thankful.

MANY ARE TRAVELING

When it was officially announced that the Tompat Dome case would be vigorously prosecuted by the Government, large numbers of witnesses discovered that they had important business to transact on the high seas and in foreign countries. One after another of the important witnesses in these case are said to be in England or some other country. Probably some of the witnesses have failed to tell all of the truth on the witness stand, but those who had departed show that they have enough decency to get out of the country and not perjure themselves. Others have hidden behind the cloak of "I refuse to answer, I might incriminate myself." That is usually the refuge of cowards.

Those who fail to testify are simply encouraging the violation of the laws of the land and cannot be classed among the best people. A full investigation and punishment of the guilty in this case may have a tendency to discourage others in standing up in lawfully disposing of the property of the people—Val Verde County Herald.

SENATOR CULBERSON DEAD

Former Senator Charles A. Culberson, for many years one of the most prominent Democrats in the State of Texas, and identified with every political affair in the State for the past three decades, died early Thursday of last week at his home in Washington, D. C., death resulting from "flu" and attending complications. The funeral was held Tuesday afternoon at Fort Worth, at which place it was his request to be buried.

The present Governor of the State, Mrs. Miriam A. Ferguson, and five ex-governors acted as pall-bearers. The five ex-governors were Joseph D. Sayers, O. B. Colquitt, James E. Ferguson, W. P. Hobby, and Pat M. Neff.

For several years Mr. Culberson had been practically an invalid, and prior to his resignation from the United States Senate in 1922, had been compelled to go about in a wheel chair, and transact much of his business from his home.

Senator Culberson was a candidate for re-election to the Senate in 1922, but did not survive the first primary, being surpassed by both James E. Ferguson and Earle B. Mayfield, the present incumbent. Culberson's defeat was due primarily to the state of his health, his constituents being of the opinion that he was not physically able to properly attend to the duties of the office.

CONGRESS HAS NOW AUTHORIZED A PROJECT THAT HAS BEEN LONG URGED BY CITIZENS OF THE NORTH AND SOUTH AS A SYMBOL OF NATIONAL UNITY, AND BY ARTISTS AND ARCHITECTS AS WELL. IT IS THE ARLINGTON MEMORIAL BRIDGE TO LINK THE LINCOLN MEMORIAL ON THE NORTH SHORE OF THE POTOMAC WITH THE ARLINGTON NATIONAL CEMETERY AND THE OLD HOME OF GEN. ROBERT E. LEE ON THE SOUTH SIDE. THE BRIDGE IS TO COST $14,750,000 AND IS TO BE THE MOST BEAUTIFUL STRUCTURE OF THE KIND IN THE WORLD. IT WILL BE COMPLETED WITHIN THE NEXT SIX YEARS.

IF THE senate has its way, the salaries of members of both houses will be raised from $7,500 a year to $10,000, and those of cabinet members from $12,000 to $15,000. This was provided for by a senate amendment to the legislative appropriation bill which was adopted without a record vote, despite the warm opposition of Senator Willis of Ohio and some others. It was considered likely the amendment would be approved in conference and accepted by the house.

DR. MARION LE ROY BURTON, president of the University of Michigan and one of the country's leading educators, died at Ann Arbor after several months of illness. He was a native of Iowa and was only fifty years old. Before going to Michigan in 1920 he had been president of Smith college and of the University of Minnesota. In the Republican national convention last June he made the speech placing Calvin Coolidge in nomination.

Frederic W. Upham, for years until last June the national treasurer of the Republican party and one of the leading business men of Chicago, died at Palm Beach, Fla., where he had gone in the hope of regaining his health. He was national committeeman from Illinois.

M. H. De Young, founder and publisher of the San Francisco Chronicle and one of the Golden Gate city's most notable figures, passed away rather suddenly after an emergency operation.

Another death of note was that of Addison G. Proctor of St. Joseph, Mich., who was the last surviving member of the Republican convention of 1860 in Chicago that nominated Abraham Lincoln for the presidency.

Last Sunday the Ozona Baptist Church gave her pastor the privilege of holding some revival meetings through the summer. Bro. Slaughter has had several invitations to return to the evangelistic field this summer. His experience in this field has given him a wide acquaintance in several States. But he here states that his present field of labor and its success are his highest aims just now.

Next Sunday, the Baptist pastor will preach on the advantage of advertising what you have to sell or give away, and he requests that if there be any grousches in Ozona, they will please remain at home or bring the necessary fee for a back seat. The annual protracted meeting at the Baptist church is set to begin the Fourth Sunday in August. The best help obtainable will be secured. Both in evangelistic and singing talents.

Funny Association of Ideas in Child Mind

Prof. John J. Appleton was discussing the child mind. "I often wonder," he said, "what goes on in the mind of a small child when it is forced to sit through a 'sex problem' motion picture. Inasmuch as the child does not know what it's all about, I wonder what it imagines it's about."
 "Probably the idea gained is about as hazy and as far from the truth as was the little girl's whose father was in the blanket business. This little girl came running home one day all out of breath, crying:
 "Oh, daddy, the minister preached all about what a fine business you got."
 "How is that?" demanded her father. "What was the text of the sermon?"
 "It was: "Don't be scared, you'll get the blanket."
 "The father, in some doubt, took the trouble to find out what the text of the sermon really was and found that it ran: "Be not afraid, the Comforter will come to you."

Pest of Worms Demands Attention for Control

More than one breeder has had to go out of sheep because they did not do well on his pastures and were troubled with worms. With sheep, as at present, one of the most valuable animals on the farm, this pest of worms demands attention, for they can be controlled. For the removal of these pests, the copper sulphate (bluestone or blue vitriol) treatment has proved effective in tests made on infested flocks. Two ounces of freshly powdered crystals of copper sulphate are thoroughly dissolved in one gallon of water and administered as follows: For a lamb three months old, two-thirds fluid ounce or 20 cc.; for a lamb six months old twice this amount; for a sheep one year old two fluid ounces or 60 cc., and for a sheep two years old or over three fluid ounces. The solution should be prepared in a glass, wooden or earthenware vessel and must be kept thoroughly mixed while in use. It is important that the dose be accurately measured, using a glass graduate or graduated drenching bottle.
 In tests made at experiment stations 80 per cent of the stomach worms have been removed by treatment. However, in order that it may be effective, directions must be followed carefully and the sheep and lambs kept away from feed and water for 18 hours before and six hours after treatment. The experiments also show that rotation of pastures aids materially in reducing infestation.

For Scientific Food Study

The opening of the Pan-Pacific Research Institute, which is to be an international establishment for the scientific study of food resources in the Pacific area, has been made possible by the gift to the institution of the Castle home, one of the largest residences in Honolulu, together with four acres of adjacent land. It is expected that this will be the nucleus of a Pan-Pacific university, which has been planned for several years. It will be neither American, nor Hawaiian, nor Japanese, nor the property of any other single nationality, but will be governed by scientists from all the countries of the Pacific. The directorship of the institution has been offered to Dr. David Starr Jordan, chancellor emeritus of Stanford university, once president of Indiana university.

ONE of the greatest disasters in German mining history occurred in the Steins mine at Dortmund where 144 men were entombed by an explosion, and at least 138 of them perished. The tragedy aroused the people to a state of anger that threatened revolution, for the mine owners were accused of failing to safeguard their employees and also of paying them starvation wages while selling coal at higher prices than the British and Americans.

PRESIDENT COOLIDGE, it was admitted last week, is sounding out the powers on the advisability of calling another naval disarmament conference to extend the Washington treaty limitations to auxiliary craft. Our ambassadors have been carrying on preliminary conversations in London, Tokyo and Rome and are said to have met with considerable encouragement there. France also, of course, has been consulted but her attitude is not yet revealed. Her assent is necessary. A London paper says Mr. Kellogg, the retiring ambassador, is bringing to the President a message from Foreign Secretary Chamberlain stating that Great Britain would welcome American initiative in the calling of such a conference, which probably means that the British government recognizes that the Geneva peace protocol is practically dead. In Tokyo it was said Foreign Minister Shidehara would insist on preliminary conversations in that city to fix the agenda of the meeting.

When Sheep Lose Teeth

There is great variation in the age that sheep begin to lose their teeth. Sometimes some of the teeth will be lost as early as three years of age but, ordinarily a sheep will reach the age of seven or eight years before it begins to lose the teeth. A sheep that has been liberally fed will usually lose its teeth earlier than when fed moderately. Some of the breeds such as the Merinos, live to a greater age than other breeds and they keep their teeth much longer.

REPORT OF SCHOOL SUPERVISOR FOR OZONA SCHOOLS

Supervisor R. W. Fowler The work of classifying and accrediting the public schools of Texas is under the direction of the State committee composed of six members chosen by the public schools and six by the colleges. This committee determines the conditions upon which high schools are classified and accredited for the purpose of establishing educational standards, encouraging schools to attain these standards, and certifying those that have attained them so as to facilitate the transfer of students to any other school or college. The regulations as prescribed by this Committee are administered by the State Department of Education through high school supervisors. In the visits of the supervisors and in their reports to school authorities, recommendations are offered in the spirit of cooperation and helpful suggestion, with the earnest desire that all school authorities will join with the State Department of Education in their efforts to maintain the necessary standards of secondary education in Texas.

In order that the schools may be properly certified it is essential that minimum requirements be met. To that end, the supervisor who recently visited your school makes the following recommendations:

1. That better room be provided, if possible, for the fifth grade.
2. That better libraries be provided for the grade rooms, books approved by schools and public libraries as popular with children of the ages in the particular grades for which they are intended. The school has been doing fairly well in this matter, but the opportunity for education in this way is not fully utilized.
3. That accrediting be asked for the fourth unit in English and for two units in Spanish. Spanish should be made the language of the recitation in Spanish classes.
4. That the third unit of accrediting in Latin be dropped, since Latin 3 was not given last year and is not given this year. The school should try to develop Spanish so as to gain accrediting, and should then drop Latin. Both Latin and Spanish classes are now small.
5. That the school try further to find play ground for all students.

The teaching observed by the supervisor was in general quite worthy. With exception of small classes in Latin and Spanish, making it doubtful whether both should be given, the course of study and the daily schedule are excellent. American history might better be made a full year's work, and economics might be given with civics to make a full year.

Grade rooms are attractive. None are crowded with large numbers. The fifth is in a small and unsatisfactory room.

Definite Constructive National Program for the Elimination of Waste

By HERBERT HOOVER, U. S. Secretary of Commerce.

A DEFINITE constructive national program has been developed for the elimination of waste in our economic system. The need is plain. The American standard of living is the product of high wages to producers and low prices to consumers. The road to national progress lies in increasing real wages through proportionately lower prices. The one and only way is to improve methods and processes eliminating waste.

Just as several years ago we undertook nation-wide conservation of natural resources, so now we must undertake nation-wide elimination of waste. Regulations and laws are of but minor effect on these fundamental things. But by well directed economic forces, by co-operation in the community, we can not only maintain American standards of living—we can raise them.

We have the highest ingenuity and efficiency in the operation of our industry and commerce of any nation in the world. Yet our economic machine is far from perfect. Wastes are legion. There are wastes which arise from widespread unemployment during depressions, and from speculation and overproduction in booms; wastes attributable to labor turnover and labor conflicts; wastes due to intermittent and seasonal production, as in the coal and construction industries; vast wastes from stragglers in commerce due to inadequate transportation, such as insufficient terminals; wastes caused by excessive variations in products; wastes in materials, arising from inefficient processes; wastes by fires; and wastes in human life.

Against these and other wastes the department, acting always in cooperation with the industries, has for three years developed an increasing definite program. As these manifold activities of the department are based upon co-operation with industry and commerce, none of them leads to paternalistic ends.

Women to Be Heads of Their Families and Marriage to Be Eliminated

By CLARENCE DARBOW, Chicago Lawyer.

Society eventually will work out a system whereby women will be the heads of their families and the practice of marriage will be eliminated. It is only preachers and religions which say the family is the foundation of society.

What is a family? Whether children of the same mother have the same father is not an important matter, so long as they are of the right kind of fathers. Heredity and environment make the child, and the latter is most important, to my mind. Mating is no less right because words are said by a preacher. In time children will come to be looked upon as assets, rather than liabilities.

Certainly birth control should be a part of woman's knowledge, but as a solution of crime it could be used only as a temporary and local remedy. Probably the practice would eliminate some causes of crime, as it is the poor that have the large families, and it is poverty that is one of the causes of crime.

THE BRIDAL TOUR

On the morning of their wedding, Jack and Jill started on their honeymoon to the land of the Golden Gate.

They reached the Grand Canyon after traveling several days over salt deserts and every other disagreeable kind of country imaginable. But when Jack and Jill stood on the rim of the canyon, looking into the "divine abyss," at the pain and misery of the journey was forgotten. Instead of the steep-sided, narrow valley which they expected to see, before them lay a valley several miles wide, and over a mile deep. Its stupendous size, its beautiful coloring and majestic form were unexpressible. It was as one writer said, "When the Creator made it, he made no adjective to go with it."

After Jack had recovered from his first amazement, he decided to follow the Hermit trail to the bottom of the canyon. It took them four hours to reach the river. When they had explored the valley, they started for San Francisco. After seeing the Golden Gate and other interesting places, they went to the Palace Hotel where they spent the night. By nine o'clock the next morning, they were on the Pacific Highway. They went through Oregon and Wyoming and stopped at the Yellowstone National Park in the northwestern part of Wyoming. When they had seen everything of interest in the Park, they took the Yellowstone Highway through Minnesota and Wisconsin, and stopped over a few days in Chicago, where they visited the great Museum of Natural History and several of the great libraries. They also went on a yachting party on Lake Michigan.

From Chicago, Jack and Jill went to Niagara Falls. They found the fall to be most fascinating. Jill was very anxious to go behind the Fall, so, of course, she had her way. To her disappointment, she found the thrill to be not nearly so pleasant as she expected. The wind blew so hard that she was almost swept from her feet, and the water from the Falls got them quite wet.

Jack intended to make his next stop with a friend in New York, but he took the wrong road and landed in Montreal at about eleven o'clock one night. He began to look for a hotel as soon as he arrived. Being unable to locate one, he stopped and asked an old man to direct him to the hotel. He said something to Jack in a foreign language and pointed to the next block. Jack found the hotel and got a room for the night. The one porter in the hotel was sitting asleep in a corner, so the clerk, who spoke very little English, showed them to their room. Jack and Jill were so tired that they did not notice that the clerk did not leave a key.

It was nine o'clock when they awoke the next morning. They packed their suitcases and started to leave, but found the door locked. Jack started to ring for a clerk, but there wasn't a telephone in the room. He banged on the door and called as loud as he could, but no one answered. He looked out at the window, and saw only a few men walking about the dirty street.

After calling down into the street until he was breathless, Jack finally attracted an old fellow's attention. He waved at the old man and told him what the trouble was. When he had finished, the old man smiled, waved back at Jack and went on his way. When the old fellow paid no attention to Jack, he became furious and began banging on the door again. The clerk finally awoke from his morning nap and came clambering up the stairs. As soon as he saw what the trouble was, he remembered having put the key to the door in his pocket.

The next place at which Jack and Jill stopped was New York City. They spent a week in New York seeing the wonders of the city; such as the statue of liberty, Brooklyn bridge, and many of the cathedrals.

Jack and Jill, after leaving New York, next stopped over in Kentucky to explore the Mammoth Cave. Of all the wonders, this was the most fascinating and the most wonderful they had ever seen. They took the ride on the Hoop River, which is several thousand feet below the level of the land. They also saw the Acute Angle, the Bridal Veil, and the Statue of Martha Washington. Jack and Jill found the exploration of Mammoth Cave to be the most thrilling experience they had throughout their tour. From Kentucky, Jack and Jill started on the road home. They took the Southern Highway thru Missouri and Tennessee; they arrived at their home in Dallas exactly two months after their wedding.

Ozona High School Enters Interscholastic Contest

The students of the Ozona High School have taken more interest than usual in the Interscholastic Contests this year. For the first time in several years there were a number of entries in the contests of strictly literary nature. Declamation, essay writing, and extemporaneous speaking. The entries in the declamation contests in the different divisions were as follows:

Senior Girls: Beulah Baggett, Montie Sapp, Mildred North, Elizabeth Davidson.

Junior Boys: P. C. Coates, Edward Burke.

The program of the Crockett Literary Club Wednesday morning of last week consisted for the most part of original stories and poems written by members of the Senior Class. We are publishing the program in full, as it was written by the students. The poems and stories are absolutely original and were written with no assistance of any kind. One of the stories, "The Making of an Artist," by Gussie Watson, was published last week.

Thoughts for a High School Senior

Lucile Ingham
Just like the sun sinks behind the hills,

So our High School career ends
And our real life begins.

The days of responsibility seem far away until we realize that we are not children still.

For the past mistakes, we need make no amends.

We have only to do what he wills.

The future may not seem bright.

Yet it may seem only too fair. Only let unselfish ambition be our guide.

And we can only do what is right.

The cross may sometimes seem hard to bear.

Yet remember Christ willingly walks by our side.

A West Texas Snipe Hunt

Marshall Montgomery.

The owner of the large ranch had received a letter which informed him that relatives from an eastern city were coming to the ranch for a visit. They admitted that they were "tenderfeet," but that they wanted to learn. The "Boss" handed the letter to Jack and Bill, two cowpunchers who were known for their ability to entertain "greenhorns."

Two days later the Easterners arrived at the ranch. Blake was a poet and Wallace Simpson a novelist. When they came, just before sundown, Jack and Bill were found very busy. Naturally, one of the first questions the strangers asked was what were those clouds making. Bill informed the questioners that it was the trap to catch the snipe in that night. This statement held for move explanation, and Jack told how he and Bill, being hungry for snipe, had planned to catch a few that night. He explained that the trap could be set with one or more on to watch it while others drove the snipe into it. He said that it took no experience to watch the traps, but the driving could be done only by experienced men. Of course, Blake and Wallace wanted to go, so it was decided that they should watch the trap while Jack and Bill drove the snipe in.

As dusk began to gather, the four men started out. They rode four miles to the head of a deep canyon. Leaving the horses at the foot of the hill, they climbed a cattle trail to the top of the mountain. Here the trap was set and the final instructions were given by Jack: "Don't get impatient—we may be back in a few minutes, and it may be a few hours, be still, don't move or make any noise, don't go to sleep on the job." After these suggestions, he and Bill left, going the way they had come. When they had gone a short distance, Blake and Wallace heard a ringing lugh from the cowboys. It was then ten o'clock.

Eleven o'clock came and went. Twelve passed. For two hours the watchers' eyes had been glued on the trap but—no snipe.

The roar of Devils River could be heard intermingled with the call of the whippoorwill. And an inquisitive owl wanted to know "Hoo-hoo-hoo-hoo?" The howl of a pack of coyotes did not help the feelings of the literary men. But they were doing their best to follow the instructions of their friends.

One o'clock. They heard a pat, pat, pat, and they knew at once that it was snipe coming. But a second later a cotton-tail rabbit leaped past them and it didn't help their good nature any when they realized it was the rabbit, not snipe, that they had heard.

Wallace was smoking his one hundred and forty-second cigarette when he suddenly bit into it and yelled "Blake!"

"U-huh," was the answer, for Blake was about to violate the last order—not to go to sleep on the job.

"Didn't those fellows laugh sound rather funny to you, and didn't they go toward the ranch?"

"Well—what of it?" Blake's poetical politeness had left him at twelve o'clock and it was now two. "Aren't we supposed to be the victims of tricks since we are 'tenderfeet?'" continued Wallace. He in his mind saw what Wallace saw, that was Jack and Bill at home asleep dreaming of two "tenderfeet" a long way off waiting for snipe that would never come. "Well, I'll be—" Blake began. "Yea, and I'll be the same thing," cut in Wallace, "for if I'm any judge of distance it's about fifteen miles back to the ranch and if we want to get back in time for dinner tomorrow, we'd better be walking."

Owing to length of the remaining article of this program, and to lack of space, we are compelled to wait until next week for its publication.—Editor.
