A WONDERFUL MOTOR.
NO JUMPING.
LUNGS TOO GOOD.

By the way, fathers and mothers, sad because their sons lack college education, will observe that Lindbergh went to no university, and his "prep school" was a plow on his father's farm. It was a solitary boy, thinking, enjoying danger and new things. Robert Westover, a garage owner in Montana, who once hired Lindbergh to make parachute jumps, says, "I don't think he was lonesome on that trip. Sim Lindbergh was a peculiar guy. He did not care for company or any excitement, except daring stuff. Everything he had he carried with him, helmet, goggles and toothbrush stuffed in the big pockets of his overalls."

Lindbergh's difficulty now will be to find something worth doing that will not kill him.

Lindbergh proves that deeds of daring "mad-cap audacity," seeming reckless at the time, are of great permanent value. It was called reckless folly when Columbus made his transatlantic "hop" in the opposite direction. Cool heads told him he would fall over the edge of the ocean, and his crew wanted to turn back.

Fulton's experiment with steam, and Franklin's with the kite, seemed foolish. Congressmen that voted to spend money on Government experiments with telegraph messages were beaten for re-election. The voters "had no use" for a Congressman that would vote to waste money.

Lindbergh's feat will find an echo in the next Congress. It will occur to some Congressmen that if one man, all alone, could fly from here to Europe, some thousands might fly from Europe or Asia here, and be less welcome than Lindbergh was in Paris.

The record shows that Lindbergh's Wright motor used less than twelve gallons of gasoline per hour of flying and did better than 100 miles to the hour. At twenty cents a gallon that means about $81 worth of gasoline, plus twenty gallons of oil. Not expensive for a trip to Paris.

Anybody who doubts that airplanes will carry passengers across the ocean for less than $50, "all daylight route," has little confidence in human ingenuity.

Statistics show this country's income in 1926 totaled seventy-eight billion, six hundred and forty-nine million dollars, from all sources—the ditch digger's wages, the coupon cutter's toil.

That means $671 for every man, woman and child, or $1,805.37 for every person engaged in earning money.

Professor Nash, teacher of physical education in New York University, justly criticizes violent exercise for young girls.

To permit competition for girls in hurdle races, high jumping, broad jumping, etc., is a crime against the girls now, and against the future generation.

Girls were not made to JUMP. They were made for motherhood, and should be taught to respect and protect their complicated machinery.

In the Fall "medicinal whiskey" bourbon and rye, made of corn and rye, will be manufactured under supervision of the Treasury Department.

No whiskey should be suggested for medicinal purposes. If doctors say alcohol is necessary, they should use brandy made of grapes. Many poisons are in grain whiskey, even carefully made. Real brandy is free of poisonous oils and other poisons, unless you call pure alcohol a poison. Wood alcohol is deadly, potato alcohol is very poisonous, grain alcohol less poisonous, grape alcohol safest.

Those that sent threatening letters, concerning the Sacco and Vanzetti case, to Governor Fuller did not frighten the Governor. He rejects the suggestion of a commission to review the Sacco and Vanzetti case, saying that the responsibility is his. The Governor cannot delegate his authority. The law provides that the decision must be made by him.

Governor Fuller will do his own investigating and his own deciding.

Consumptives will be interested to learn that physical work, even "hard work" in reason, is beneficial, not harmful, except in extreme cases.

Consumptives often have lungs that might be called "too good," the lung area being so great that the heart finds difficulty in pumping an adequate blood supply.

Laundry Ready
By Last Of July

Bennett To Install Modern Machinery In Adams Bldg.

Ozona's latest enterprise, a modern laundry, to be installed by Mr. and Mrs. Will Bennett, will probably be ready for operation by the last of July, Mr. Bennett announced this week.

The rear of the Ozona Mercantile building, which L. B. Adams and family have been using as living quarters, has been rented for the laundry and machinery has already been ordered, Mr. Bennett said.

Mr. Adams has purchased the Roy Parker home and will move it to his lot in the south part of town where he and his family will occupy it.

The most modern and up-to-date machinery obtainable will be installed in the Ozona Laundry, Mr. Bennett said, and first class service will be maintained for local patrons.

Mrs. Powell Will Turn Over Business In September

Mrs. C. C. Powell, who has operated the only beauty parlor in Ozona for two years, has sold her shop, now located in the Hotel Ozona building, to Mrs. I. E. Cross, and will relinquish control in September, it was announced this week.

Mrs. Powell's plans for the future have not yet been decided, she says. She is considering, however, opening a shop in a larger town where more help will be available. Since opening up here her business has grown so much that it has required her time almost night and day and she plans to rest for a time before going in business again.

Mrs. Cross is now in Fort Worth attending a beauty culture school and will be equipped to take over the business in September.

Mrs. Powell opened her shop in Ozona in 1925. She operated at her residence in the Homer Smith home for a time and later moved into the Coates house, now occupied by W. D. Barton and family. Upon completion of the new hotel she rented office quarters there and now has one of the best equipped shops in this section.

Mother Of M. C.
Couch Is Dead

Heart Disease Is Fatal
To Tennessee Woman
74 Years Old

Mrs. Sarah Couch, mother of M. C. Couch, Ozona grocer and baker, died at five o'clock Monday afternoon at her home in Jackson, Tenn. according to word received by Mr. Couch Monday night. An acute attack of heart disease was given as the cause of death.

Mr. Couch received a telegram shortly after 3 o'clock Monday afternoon advising that his mother had been stricken and that there was little hope for her recovery. News of her death came about 5 o'clock.

Mrs. Couch was well known in Ozona, having visited her son several months in 1924. She made many friends during her stay here and will regret to learn of her death.

Mr. Couch will not be able to go to Jackson to attend the funeral, he said. On account of the great distance he could not get there in time for the funeral. Jesse Couch, district clerk and United States commissioner at San Angelo, another son, left early Tuesday morning in an effort to reach Jackson in time to attend his mother's funeral.

Mrs. Couch was 74 years old at the time of her death. She was born in Lee County, Mississippi, January 25, 1853. After her marriage, she moved to Jackson, Tenn. where she reared her family. Her husband died in 1890 and she remained a widow 3 years. She had been a devout member of the Baptist church practically all her life.

Surviving are six children, five sons, Mike Couch of Ozona, Jesse Couch of San Angelo, J. W. and W. A. Couch of Jackson, Tenn., and W. M. Couch, superintendent of the Baptist Orphanage at Portales, N. M., and one daughter, Mrs. Nettie Rutherford of Pawhuska, Okla.

San Angelo Votes Over Million In Improvement Bonds

San Angelo, June 22.—Bond issues totaling more than a million dollars have been voted by San Angelo and Tom Green County for a five year period of development and expansion, keeping in step with the growth of West Texas.

A $250,000 city hall auditorium is included in the bond issues. It will provide seats for 1500 persons. Funds will be ready immediately to start construction of the building.

The best entertainment possible will be brought to West Texas and shown in the auditorium, including musical concerts, the appearance of outstanding artists and speakers and other attractions of various kinds. With such a meeting place, West Texas is going to be able to care for large attractions which, previously have been impossible.

San Angelo is matching the county road building program, so that not only will West Texas people have splendid roads over which to drive to San Angelo, but will have well improved streets after they arrive. Of the $355,000 for paving, $65,000 will be available for the city's share in the first year's paving program. The project provides for 250 blocks, or twenty miles of streets.

Another measure included in the bonds recently voted is for the construction of a $294,000 courthouse to take place of the old structure which is not meeting present needs. A library will be included in the new building, giving West Texas people, on their visits to San Angelo, an opportunity to satisfy their desires for literature.

W. M. S. DONATES TO ROBT.
LEE CHURCH BUILDING

The Missionary Society of the Ozona Methodist Church this week forwarded a check for $35.89 to the Robert Lee Methodist church as a contribution from the local organization toward the rebuilding of the church at that place, recently destroyed by a cyclone.

The amount represented a free will offering taken among members of the local society.

Mrs. Reba Simmons and son, James, of Dallas arrived Wednesday to visit relatives. She will remain until after the celebration the Fourth.

Palace Coffee

Aaron Cummings And

Rogers' Cafe

A deal was closed Saturday whereby Will Bennett and Aaron Cummings became owners of the Palace Coffee Shop, adjoining the postoffice, it was announced by the purchasers.

The new owners took charge of the establishment immediately and operated it Saturday. It was closed, however, the first of the week while workmen were engaged in making a twelve foot extension to the rear to provide more room and making other repairs and renovations on the inside.

Mr. Bennett and Mr. Cummings announce that the additional space will be occupied with tables for diners while the counter will be retained as it is. An expert cook has been employed and the new owners promise patrons first class, well cooked foods and the best of service. A modern restaurant where both men and women may eat is contemplated by the new owners, it was declared.

The Palace Coffee Shop was established several months ago by R. A. Rogers, who has enjoyed a good patronage during that time.

Committees in charge of arrangements for the Crockett County Fair Association rodeo, race meet and stock show here July 4, 5 and 6 have divided duties and outlined their work so that everything now is practically in readiness for the opening of the three-days entertainment program.

With the event a little over a week off, heads of the association are calling upon all committee workers to whip everything into shape in readiness for one of the largest crowd sin the history of Ozona.

More than a thousand of the 116 page programs of the celebration have already been mailed out to all parts of the country and all of West Texas has been advised of the entertainment deluxe that Ozona is prepared to offer on the occasion of its rodeo and race meet. Several thousand dollars have been spent by the association in improving the fair grounds and the grand stand, show rings, auction pits, pens, stables etc. are declared adequate to take care of demands.

In order to complete the work and allow time for the seasoning of the concrete, a big corps of workers has been kept on the job night and day on the concrete dance platform being built at the fair grounds at the northwest corner of the grandstand. More than half of the concrete has already been laid and all of the base was expected to be in this week, ready for the top finishing glaze next week.

The concrete platform is being constructed by the Ozona Dance Club at a cost of more than $1200. It will be used each of the three nights during the celebration when dances will be staged under the auspices of the club, with the Lone Star Entertainers of San Angelo furnishing the music.

The barbecue committee has divided its work among its five members and is getting everything lined up before the opening date. W. R. Baggett will be in charge of killing the animals for barbecue. P. T. Robinson will be in charge furnishing bread for the tables and wood for the barbecue pits. Chris Meinecke will have charge of securing plates, beans, pickles, coffee and tea. Joe Oberkamp will supervise the cooking of the beans and coffee and R. J. Cooke will barbecue the meat.

Between 8,000 and 9,000 pounds of meat will be needed to feed the crowds expected to be on hand for the rodeo, Mr. Cooke says. The meat will be cooked each morning and served piping hot at noon.

Scott Peters, chairman of the housing committee, says that several rooms have been listed but that many others are needed. Many residents are planning to have guests during the affair and many visitors will be cared for in this way. All available rooms, however should be listed at once, he said. Mike Couch has just completed his campouse and will take care of many visitors there, Mr. Peters said. He will also have several tents for visitors who can not find quarters.

The finance and meat committee has completed its active canvass in an effort to raise $2,000 in cash for the barbecue and as much meat donated as possible. Good progress has been made but the drive is not yet complete, it was announced. The list is at Smith's Drug Store No. 1.

THE OZONA STOCKMAN

Published Every Thursday Morning at Ozona, Texas, County Seat of Crockett County by W. EVART WHITE, EDITOR and PUBLISHER

Ozona, Texas, Thursday June 23, 1927

Ozona is planning to entertain one of the largest crowds in her history July 4, 5, and 6 when visitors are expected to be here from all over the state for the annual summer rodeo and celebration.

One of the most pretentious programs ever attempted by a small town is planned for the three-days entertainment. Crowds here for the celebration will find every minute taken up with some kind of entertainment, horse races, rodeo stunts, stock show, dancing—the card is full from early morning to early evening and it is our guess that if visitors come here craving entertainment they will go away completely satisfied.

Also there will be no scarcity of eats during the three days. A free barbecue dinner will be served to visitors and home folks each of the three days. There will be plenty of barbecue, pickles, bread, coffee, iced tea and water.

Not only will every visitor have plenty to eat but also will have a place to sleep. The housing committee reports that many have listed rooms during the celebration, but many more are needed. That committee is at work, however, and will have everything lined up to take care of visitors by the opening day.

But Ozona people who have spare bedrooms that they will turn over to visitors for one, two, or three days during the celebration can help things along considerably by communicating with Scott Peters, chairman of the housing committee, and listing available rooms with him. If the crowd is up to expectations, and past affairs indicate that it will be, every available room in town will be needed and tents will have to be provided in addition.

That's the line-up. Ozona has made herself a reputation for taking care of her visitors in royal fashion and she must stretch herself this year to live up to it. She will, of course, but let's stretch and get it over.

Just reading where two fellows walked into a deep pit just to see what was at the bottom. About the time they got to the bottom, seismograph operators for an oil company making tests in the territory touched off a charge of 375 pounds of dynamite buried in the hole. They are now mostly missing. And they probably never did know what was in the hole.

"Lucky Lindbergh, say United States revenue officials, must pay a tax of around $1200 on the $25,000 prize he won for his history making flight across the Atlantic ocean. "It's the law," they say, "and it can't be dodged." Law or no law, it seems that the least his government could do would be to let him have the $25,000 prize money intact.

Londos Tackles Turk Saturday

Kala Pasha, Simmons Athletic Coach Is "Tough Hombre"

Billy Londos, the Grecian whirlwind, who has thrilled Ozona mat fans with his prowess at the game in many appearances here, will meet a foe who is new to local spectators in a finish bout Saturday night at the Ozona Theater, according to announcement by Sam W. Faust, matchmaker.

Kala Pasha, another "Turbible Turk," athletic director of Simmons University at Abilene, and one of the cleverest wrestlers in this part of the state, will take on Londos for a finish match, best two falls out of three.

Londos' methods are well known to Ozona fans. The Turk, however, is said to be just as clever, just as strong and just as tough as the Greek and local followers of the mat contests are looking forward to one of the best matches of the season.

A match between Matty Matsuda, welter-weight champion of the world, and Mike Reid, Chicago iron man, was scheduled for last Saturday night but Matsuda went on an automobile trip to the west coast and on account of car trouble was unable to get back in time to appear in the local match. A match between these two men may be arranged to take place during the rodeo here. Mr. Faust declared

OWN YOUR HOME

The Pride Of Owing Your Home

Life can be made a very pleasant experience or it can be made a sordid existence. To get the most out of life, one must capitalize every opportunity to make the way a little more pleasant.

The pleasure one gets out of owning his own home is worth ten times the cost of building. Rent houses are necessary, of course, they fill a need that is present in any community.

But where one is an established factor in a community when one has found the place he intends calling home, then it is time to begin planning on owning a home. And the way to begin is to commence. Life is short at its longest and the sooner you build the more time you will have to enjoy it. See us now, get our plan books and let us advise you about building materials, cost, etc.

FOOLIN'

The fight for business leadership is no monkey business in this day and age, as is evidenced by the latest report from commercial centers — which has to do directly with the future of towns exactly the size of Ozona.

It has been learned that the big mail-order houses now maintain a department, the duty of whose staff is to read weekly newspapers from all over the country and continually make a survey of the different districts to learn of mail-order selling possibilities.

And, it is a fact—that immediately that department finds a town or county wherein the local merchants are not using the local paper to advertise their merchandise to the trade—that district is immediately flooded with catalogues—because it is virgin territory and the mail-order houses have learned that they can do GOOD business there.

We pass this information along to business leaders of Ozona and assure them that all of our support is of course with them. We maintain a local advertising service which can be used to advantage—and for such service we make no extra charge. Come in or phone and we will call. Business goes to those who go after it.

About Your Health

Things You Should Know

by John Joseph Giesea, M. D.

HARDENED ARTERIES

Many people make inquiries about their blood vessels, which they believe are becoming "hardened." Of course, in the great majority of instances, they are wrong, as most non-professional diagnoses are.

Hardenened arteries are almost as common to advanced age as is gray hair. When I discover hardening of the arteries in a patient over sixty-five years of age, and of normal build, I advise him to forget it. By "normal build" I mean one who has not accumulated abnormal weight, with consequently hardened heart. Fat old customers do not need treatment for the arteries, but need advice in diet and exercise. It is only in the comparatively young patient, that I look on hardened arteries as a diseased condition.

In such cases, violations of the law of right living make up the chief causes of arteriosclerosis. Too much tobacco, tea, coffee, alcohol, and highly-seasoned foods, poison the blood vessels, either hardening them, or literally roasting them out—if they give way under the strain, instead of becoming hard in an effort to resist the overloading—just as the blacksmith's right arm grows harder from its increased labor. In such a case, I'd rather have the vessels harden than to become soft and more liable to rupture under strain.

The treatment must depend upon the judgment of the experienced physician. A case of syphilis demands specific treatment, the alcoholic must change his habit, or pay the extreme penalty; remember, alcohol is a good servant, but a dangerous master. I am convinced that there has never been a time in the history of mankind, when perfect elimination and strict temperance in eating are so essential as now! Blood pressures should be astiduously watched.

WHO'O WHO

Jeanne Beaufort, beautiful daughter of a Virginia tobacco planter, brave and daring, has lost her father and two brothers in the Civil War. She swears to get revenge. At the time she is living with her aunt.

Mrs. Wetmore, in the South. Jeanne lays her plans and goes to her Aunt Delier's in Richmond, Va.

Henry Morgan a debonaire young officer, who falls in love with her. She repels his advances. She is engaged as a spy for the Confederate government and urged to use all the wiles and power of her sex to find one.

Parson Kennedy and bring him within the Southern lines. It is planned to have her make headquarters with a family of southern sympathers in Washington. Jeanne learns telegraphy and other technical branches of her new calling. And clad as a boy often in the Blue of the North, she makes her way through the lines. She learns of an organization of eleven Union spies and of their meeting place in a Richmond loft. As she overhears the leaders address the masked men seated about a table Jeanne is discovered and dragged into the room. The leader unmasks as he threatens her with death, but is dissuaded from shooting her by the suggestion from one of the men that one of their number marry her. She consents and when one of the masked men volunteers to marry she refuses and claims the right to choose.

She rejects the volunteer and selects the one who suggested the marriage. Him she names "Irony." To her surprise the leader is no other than Parson John Kennedy.

He performs the ceremony. "Irony" says his name is among those who sign as witnesses. (just before leaving her bound), in the following code form:

- John Kennedy, D. D.
- C-WG-L H-RD-M
- A-NK-S P-PA-G
- G-RD-A J-NK-F
- J-WG-A F-BN-S
- F-WG-S W-BE-H

Later Jeanne learns that Morgan is a spy.

CHAPTER IX

That fiber which holds the stout heart impervious to ordinary perils, and Kennedy and Armitage were men of the stoutest of hearts—began to disintegrate in the face of this horror.

To die in the fury of physical contest is nothing; indeed, death is forgotten.

But to sit still, to reach out mentally and anticipate, is a thousand times to die! Armitage closed his eyes. It is a strange fact that, when confronted by immediate death of the catastrophic order, instinctively we close our eyes.

Perhaps Kennedy closed his eyes too mayhap he took sardonic pleasure in eyeing the dancing sparks. There might have been a prayer on his lips.

An unexpected gust of cold air striking Armitage's forehead, caused him to open his eyes. The door of the cabin was open. He saw a slender youth enter and step up to the fuse.

"Is it you, Jeanne Beaufort?" asked Kennedy.

"Yes, Parson Kennedy, it is Jeanne Beaufort. It is the woman upon whose head you set a price, dead or alive. It is the woman you broke and dishonored for doing for her cause what you were doing for yours."

She gazed down somberly at the cropped gray head so near her feet.

"Have you a prayer you can recall?"

She then ran over to Armitage and fought the knots with her fingers and teeth. When she had done he was free to walk, but his hands were still tied behind his back.

"You are free, Captain Armitage. You are not here through any act of mine. You saved my life once; I pay the debt. A life for a life; we are quits."

"You are a woman, and you would let this man die horribly?" he asked incredulously.

"For the evil he has done me yes."

"I too was guilty."

"In what way?"

"I was there—that night."

The dark eyes merely rose to the level of his own. Everything was perfectly clear now. The eyes of Jeanne Beaufort and Alice Trent were exactly alike.

"Hurry!" she cried impatiently. "They will be returning if we wait too long."

"I saved your life that night in the hills."

"Hurry!" was all she said.

"We were madmen. We were none of us accountable for what we did."

"I was," interposed the Parson.

"So be off son. She will blow me up—and see me forever in her dreams! Let her go ahead, then; and always at side will be my shadow. Be off."

Armitage backed toward the chair and sat down on the edge of it. "Both of us or neither of us."

TO OUR FRIENDS—

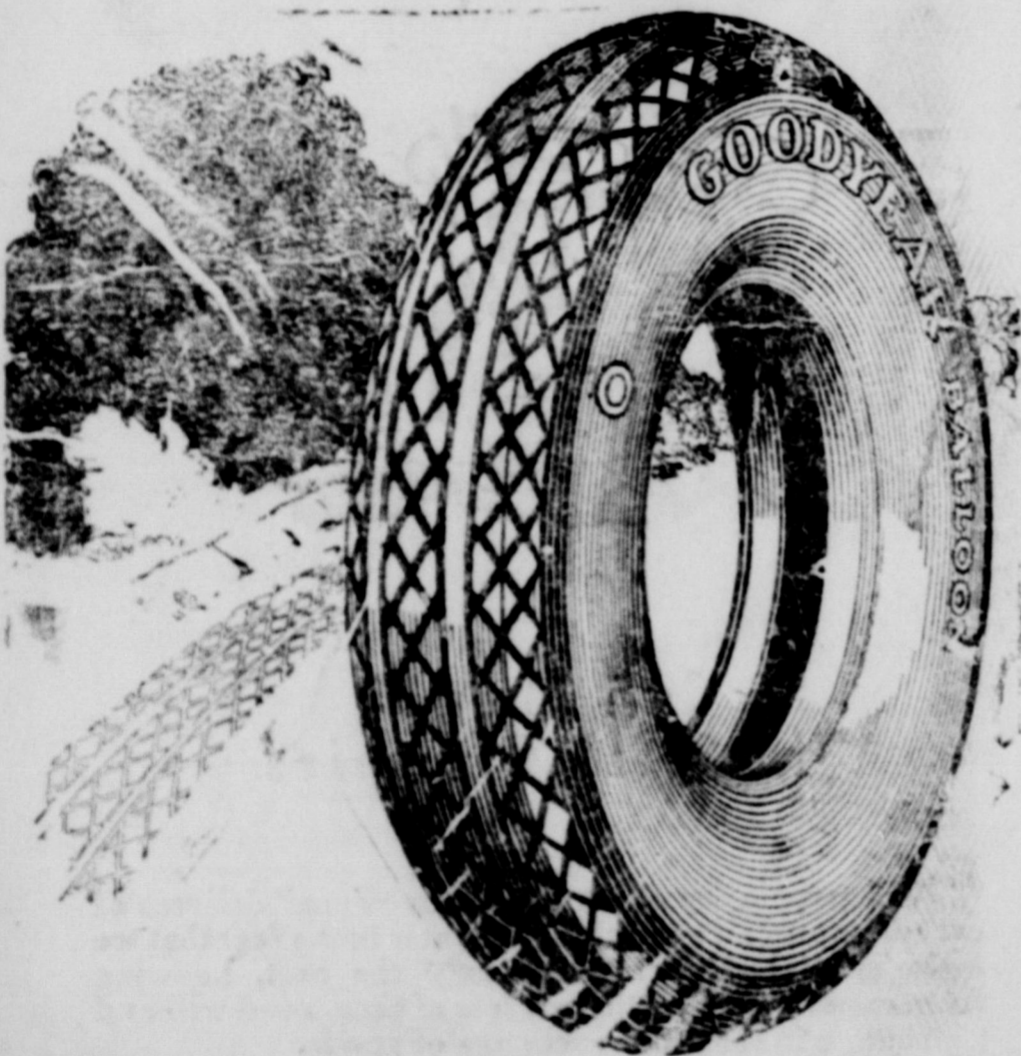

We have just closed a deal for the purchase of the PALACE COFFEE SHOP adjoining the postoffice and have closed the business temporarily while an addition is being built at the rear and the place cleaned up and made more attractive.

The building will be extended back twelve feet to make room for several tables and additional fixtures are being added to make it a first class cafe.

The business will be continued under the name of Palace Coffee Shop. We intend to conduct the business in such manner that it will become a popular dining place for both men and women. We have already made arrangements for an expert cook who will be on the job when we open for business the last of this week. Plate lunches, regular meals and short orders will be served. The ladies are especially invited to try our service and good eats.

Respectfully,

WILL BENNETT

Buying Tires At A Junk Shop?

People who wouldn't think of going to any but a good, reputable dealer for food, clothing, or furniture, patronize the worst kind of "dumps" when it comes time to buy a tire.

They do this thinking it is necessary in order to get a tire bargain.

We'll sell you the best tire made—a Goodyear at a prices as low as you can get anywhere.

Oh! The Deliciousness of Butter - Bread

Mother remembers the deliciousness of butterbread when she was a little girl—and she knows the satisfying qualities in good bread and butter. These wonder spring days whet the childish appetites for a small "snack" between meals—and without impairing the desire for regular meals.

Mike's bread is baked fresh every day in our model sanitary oven and may be had at our shop. A full line of bakery goods is always available and it costs much less than to bake at home—aside from the work, muss and the time it takes.

Decide now to let us do all of your baking through the hot summer months.

he said.
 "Oh!" That monosyllable expressed anger, impatience, impotence, and despair. Jeanne clenched her hands fiercely.
 "Fool," growled Kennedy. "Have I not often told you that I'd rather die than live? Haven't I called to Death a thousand times, to see him mock me?"
 Jeanne looked down at her enemy with reluctant admiration. This gray man who had called to Death a thousand times and been denied awakened the old inherent sense of chivalry. She turned to Armitage.
 "Your word of honor not to touch me."
 "I give it."
 "I will let him go. Let him remember that it was I that gave him his life, even as I would have taken it, indifferently."
 She untied Armitage's hands. He felt the tremor of her fingers but in no wise comprehended its origin. As for Jeanne, since this was to be the last time she was ever to see this man, a terrible, almost irresistible desire seized her to throw her arms around his neck and tell him she loved him, loved him!

 Armitage rubbed his wrists energetically to take away the sting of the hemp. Then he freed Kennedy, who was really helpless, and dragged him outside the cabin. Jeanne broke off the fuse half a foot from the keg, applied the flame of the candle, and darted from the cabin.
 As Armitage led Kennedy out of the danger zone he was thrown violently to the ground. The earth had opened up, and hades had stretched a fiery arm toward heaven to withdraw it in a cascade of sparks and flaming debris.
 In the meantime Morgan, prey to singular emotion, waited impatiently for Jeanne. What had become of her? Where had she gone? Had she any idea that two men instead of one were in that cabin? Came the thud of hoofs. The rider was Jeanne. She drew up at his side.
 "Where have you been?" What has delayed you? Why did you come from that direction?" he demanded suspiciously.

 "You lied to me, Morgan."
 "I?"
 "Yes. You lured Armitage into this without warning me."
 "Good riddance!"—all his old jealousy rising.
 "Well, you overshot the mark, thank God! I let them both go."
 "You—what?"
 "They are free."
 "But the cabin?"
 "Oh you were waiting to see the spectacle, and I did not wish to disappoint you wholly."
 "You love Armitage!" He leaned over to seize her wrist, but she swerved her horse.
 "Yes, I love him. What then?"
 "Well, before God, you're unlucky! You can never marry John Armitage. You are mine, mine."
 Quickly and cruelly he dug his spurs into his horse and fled to avoid the breaking of the verbal dam, the ruination of all his carefully laid plans.
 In another moment he would have told her everything for the sake of making that upright figure droop.

 Armitage, restored to his father's division at President Lincoln's intercession, plunged eagerly into his work.
 Shortly after his arrival the entire army began its historic movement southward toward Richmond and incidentally John Armitage entered a danger zone of a different sort. A detachment of Federal troops moved out to intercept a train of munitions. They captured it near a small station.
 On the rear platform of the station stood a number of cottonbales. From under the newly arrived freight cars a boyish figure came forth cautiously, crept toward the bales and dodged in among them, wriggling close to the window, which was open.
 At the same time, under Armitage's order, a new Federal operator took the key and hammered out a few friendly greetings to the man at headquarters to prove that he could send tolerably well.

The office was now deserted except for himself. He slouched in the chair and lighted his pipe.
 "If you move or utter a sound, I'll shoot!" said a quiet voice over his shoulder. "Right about face! Now march to that clothes press, and remember that it is death if you speak."
 A woman's voice! It was only when the operator felt himself propelled forcibly into the stuffy clothes press that he realized this was no unsubstantial night mare.
 Jeanne, for it was she, wrenched the clacking key from the screws. Next she smashed the battery jars. She arose and glanced out of the east window—and beheld Captain Armitage! He was coming along the platform scribbling as he walked.
 Armitage, Armitage of all men! From the door of the baggage station the spy saw the unmanned engine stood a dozen feet beyond the first coach.
 Armitage briskly entered the station and made for the door of the operator's room. Locked! He shook the handle violently.
 "Hey, there, Clark; unlock the door!" he cried impatiently.
 No one replied. Armitage vaguely alarmed, smashed a panel and burst into the office.
 He ran to the clothes press and swung back the door. The operator lurched into his arms gasping.
 Then came a fusillade of musket shots. Armitage let go the operator and ran outside.
 He grasped the situation instantly. The engine was running away. He saw the head and shoulders of the spy who had accomplished this amazing coup in the midst of fifteen hundred men. He fired three shots from his revolver.
 One struck the steam gauge above Jeanne Beaufort's head; the second shattered the forward cab window. The third lodged in her arm. She sank with a stifled cry to the metal flooring.
 Twenty miles to go! For half an hour to fight off this faintness this horrible pain! Could she do it? She would do it.
 In despair Armitage returned to the station. The telegraph out of commission, the engine gone—they were trapped.
 How Jeanne rose above pain and faintness during that twenty miles she never could explain. She just did it; that was all. The final wrench between sensibility and insensibility came when she was forced to stand up to close the throttle.

 From the bushes at the left of the embankment rose a score or more of Confederates, headed by Morgan himself.
 "Boys, she's done it!" he cried. "Fifteen hundred Yankees trapped like rats in a hole."
 But Morgan's jubilation was greatly dampened when he beheld the huddled figure on the floor of the cab, the drenched sleeve, the bloody hand.
 "Jeanne? My God, they've shot her! A stretcher."
 Morgan lifted her again and laid her gently upon the improvised stretcher and ordered the bearers to carry her to the knoll where the horses were tethered.
 As Morgan walked beside her Jeanne began to babble murmurously. Morgan bent his head and caught an intelligible sentence. It straightened his spine and wiped out the tenderness in his face instantly.
 "John—you shot me! How could you!" Immediately the low babble of incoherent phrases began again. Armitage back yonder, and his bullet had done this work! Always that man was crossing his path. Oh, they must meet some day, in true colors, face to face; and then God help Armitage.
 One day as she lay recuperating Morgan gave her a piece of paper. "I had hard work getting this—it is what you asked for," he said.
 When he had left she opened the sheet. It was the list of the names of the eleven!

River Bed Test Flows 35 Bbls

Increase In Oil Caused By Deepening Test To 1,055 Feet

Deepened from 1,036 feet to a new total depth of 1,055 feet Monday morning, the Allsman and Bell No. 1 River bed test in the Pecos river one mile east of the J-Kansas-Transcontinental No. 1 Yates discovery well, made a flow of 35 barrels in five hours. The well was swabbed Sunday afternoon, resulting in 50 barrels of oil being brought to the top.

Following a 35 barrel head Thursday afternoon after the bailer had been run, the well was deepened five feet Saturday, with oil slapping over the top of the casing from the pay at 995 to 990 feet.

Pending examination and classification of samples of the formation from the bottom of the hole, decision as to whether the well is now in the main Yates pay is being withheld. The easternmost of any of the Pecos County tests, the Allsman and Bell No. 1 river bed has held the spotlight for the last week with its strong indication of either extending the Yates field a mile east or opening a new pool.

Dr. Frank Crane Says

The other evening I ran across this human paragraph in a volume otherwise largely technical:

"A man as he walks in the crowd feels himself to be an ordinary individual. But in the back of his mind is a more than half-formed phantasy: 'I seem to be an ordinary man, but I am really a man of great importance. People take me for just one of themselves; dressed like anyone else, they do not realize what an extraordinary man they have in their midst. But let an emergency arise—a crisis, an accident to the king—I spring to the rescue and everyone exclaims, 'Who is this? A prince in disguise! A genius in rags!' At last I come into my own." This is as true to human nature as scratching a mosquito bite. Everyone has enacted such beguiling fancies of the mind in which he plays the hero and "comes into his own".

Every crowd of people is a stage whereon meek homeward bound clerks are enacting in their minds just what they would do if a burly rowdy should insult a beautiful girl, or an insane man run amuck with a razor.

They strike the villain down, "come into their own."

"On all sides we catch glimpses and flashes of what people imagine their own to be like. 'I've played golf for thirty years and have never been on my game yet,' a man is quoted saying. His idea of what 'his game' was like was something superlatively unattainable. The actual game he played was merely a failure to come upto "his own."

When a woman says, "I have had dozens of photographs taken and have never had a good picture yet," it indicates that her conception of "her own" includes an idea of personal pulchritude that her features, struggle as they will can't live up to.

It is a truism in this world, sooner or later we get about what we deserve. We really come into our own.

The reason we so rarely realize that what we get is our own is that our conception of what it is like is based on our desires instead of our deserts.

POINTS--

Lacking three months we have been here two years
During that time we have supplied Ozona and its surrounding territory with something like $150,000.00 worth of merchandise.
Supplied it honestly - fairly - and with consideration to the changing business conditions.

No man, woman or child has received short weight from us so far as it has come to our knowledge. Our policy has always been—"Give the customer benefit of a doubt." On a credit basis our prices were under current Ozona rates, & on a cash basis they are at par, to say the least, with any.

We lead the way to cleaner business conditions—cleaner places to trade—more pleasant in every respect. If we have made mistakes, and we have, barrels of them, it was because we lacked the fifty years experience. Mistakes are 90 per cent fewer now than a year ago.

During the short space of two years we have put Bakery products in homes where they were hardly ever used before. We thank you for your past business and good will. We wish to serve you to the best of our ability.

Things You Should Know

"GREENS"

At this wonderful spring season, tender plants are springing up everywhere. Our ancestors, those long-lived fellows, welcomed the spring-time that brought the "wild greens." The home-cured bacon made ideal seasoning for them; in food-values they were one hundred per cent. Young, tender plants are rich in vitamins, readily adaptable to the human system. Necessary minerals for blood-making are here to be taken, not as medicine, but as palatable, satisfying food. If we only could realize all that Mother Nature does for us, and how human greed is striving to take over her processes and sell the manufactured stuff as a better article—for cash!

"Greens" are within reach of every one. Our gardens are better than ever before; let's not ignore the fragrant spring onion. Why can't Dame Fashion decree that, only select circles can afford the exquisite "onion-breath"—and note her devotees in the rush to acquire one? In the country the fence-corners are literally alive with "dock," "dandelion" and other edible wild plants. Mustard, as grown in our back-yards, horse-radish tops, turnip-tops—O, there's no end of the health-giving diet, right from nature's pantry.

Brown breads, a minimum of meats, buttermilk, early strawberries, new string-beans, lettuce, cottage cheese, fresh eggs once daily, with plenty of pure drinking-water, with abundant out-door exercise in the way of useful employment—tell me, ye wise men, what's the idea of anybody getting sick?

I cannot think of any sub-acute or chronic condition that the above dietary, moderately indulged, can aggravate in the least. On the contrary, getting away from the tin can and the copyrighted menu, is a blessing for which we cannot render enough thanks. Now laugh, you!

Sheriff W. H. Augustine and Tom Casbeer leave Thursday for Lockhart to bring back a Mexican in custody there and wanted in this county for burglary and theft. The Mexican is accused of breaking into a Mexican woman's house here and stealing approximately $70 in cash.

The regular meeting of the O. E. S. will take place on the 3rd Tuesday night of each month instead of the Tuesday night on or before the full moon as formerly.

82 Baptists Enjoy Picnic At Live Oak

Baptists of Ozona held their annual picnic on Live Oak Creek thirty-five miles west of town last Friday. The crowd met at the church and, getting everything ready left about nine o'clock. There were eighty-two in the crowd and all went determined to have a good time.

All sorts of games were played. There were swings for the children, horse shoes for the middle-aged and nothing for the old ones for nobody was old.

The cats made an old fashioned spread, every body contributing the contents of their baskets to the table. The fried chicken wasn't forgotten and it disappeared as if it were revival time. The preacher was not responsible because the pastor, Rev. Fulmer was ill and could not be present which was greatly regretted by all.

J. T. Keeton was in charge of the picnic with efficient committees on the grounds to see that everybody had a good time.
