ANTI-THIRD TERM.
ULTRA, SIMPLE DIVORCE.
MUSCOLINI'S—"I WILL"

Secretary of State Kellogg has been in Canada, will receive, and heard Canadian statesmen say there is no danger of our country trying to annex Canada. That annexation idea is old and foolish. The United States is glad to have a good peacemaker and finds it in the people of Canada.

Also, Canada is our best customer, buying here more than the British mother country buys. For several months in 1927 Canada was the best customer we had in the world.

We helped the Canadian Northwest, as we did all countries, by supplying a short cut through the Panama Canal. Canada reciprocates by buying of us.

When the St. Lawrence Canal goes through, both nations will be better off. Friendship, co-operation, constructive competition should be the programme.

The Senate will pass some kind of anti-third-term bill, making two terms the law, instead of a tradition. It should be two ELECTIONS terms. A man elected once should have a second term in mind. No matter how good he is, that makes him a better President.

Gratitude is a sense of favors to come.

Senator Borah advocates only one term, a mistake.

It takes a President one term to get over the excitement of being President and get down to real work.

Two terms by election of the people would be a good rule.

Germany proposes a law to make "a simple wish" sufficient ground for divorce.

It would not be necessary to prove guilt. Wife or husband can say, "A continuation of my married life has become impossible." That will end it.

The couple must live apart one year before getting the divorce. When no guilt is proved, there will be noimony. The racket of the two will be expected to keep the courts.

That makes our "companionate" marriage quite conservative.

Mussolini continues simplifying Italy's government which in substance is the expression of Mussolini's "I will." Only one political party is to exist. Only those will vote who contribute to the progress of the nation.

The number of deputies will be reduced from 550 to 400. It would be simpler to let Mussolini cast one vote for the whole nation. That is what happens in reality.

If a dog bites a man we ignore it. If a man bites a dog that's news. Amos Cummings said it long ago and Dr. Wood said it before Cummings did.

Often you read of a dog killed, defending his master, shot by a burglar, etc. That is hardly news. Now you read that Vincent J. McCarthy was killed by stab wounds while defending his dog. That is news.

At Rockville, Conn., a white girl, sixteen years old, descendant of a general on the Southern side in the Civil War, also claiming ancestors on the Mayflower, secures a license to marry a mulatto. The girl's mother consents because she thinks it is "for the best interest of the couple."

Intelligent men, white and black, will agree that that is decidedly AGAINST the interest of both the man and the woman, and all of both races.

The poor Heine felt differently about it long ago. Shocked to hear that a white clergyman was to be tarred and feathered because he allowed his daughter to marry a negro, Heine exclaimed: "Oh Freiheit, du boeser Traum!" "O, Freedom, thou wicked dream."

A young woman, well educated, married to a scoundrel, followed him and his fortunes, and will soon be hanged with him in Canada. She was with him when he murdered a taxicab driver.

An effort is made to save her from the gallows and the girl amazes her friends, saying she does not want to be saved. "If he hangs, I want to hang with him." That should amaze nobody. It might be amazing if a man said it.

A woman is willing to be burned with her children, or hanged with her husband, when she lives him. It is part of the female disposition.

Crash Of Electric Sign Ruins Awning

Cornice Bricks On New Perner Building Give Way Under Strain

A weak spot in construction of the new Perner Building is believed to have been responsible for the collapse of cornice brick at the southwest corner of the Flowers Grocery store Thursday following the hanging of a new electric sign.

Falling brick and the electric sign landing on top of the awning of the grocery store resulted in its collapse for a distance of half the front of the store. Jack Phillips, who was assisting H. W. Ellis, local electric contractor, in installing the sign, narrowly escaped injury in the collapse of the brick wall and the crash of the sign. Phillips was standing on a step ladder perched on the awning making a final inspection of the sign and gathering up tools after completing the job when the crash came. The gradual slipping of the ladder and of the awning, however, saved him from injury.

The big sign, one of ten recently ordered by local business houses, was swung from the corner of the building and held by cables secured by bolts at the base of the cornice brick. The whole tier of brick at the corner gave way, allowing the sign to drop to the awning. The sign was badly damaged in the fall and had to be sent back for repair. The awning was repaired immediately.

Lee Wilson Takes Airplane Agency

Licensed Pilot Coming From Dallas For Commercial Flying

Lee Wilson of the Wilson Motor Company, local Buick dealers, has purchased the airplane owned by Vernon Cox, "The Flying Ranch man," and has also assumed a part interest in the agency for distribution of the machines in this territory.

Mr. Wilson has engaged Emory Hunt of Dallas, a licensed commercial and transport pilot, to come to Ozona to pilot the plane in commercial flying. Mr. Hunt is now an instructor at Love Field, Dallas, and is one of the best pilots in the service. He will take up passengers here for short joy rides, give instructions in flying or make out-of-town trips with passengers.

Mr. Cox will place an order in the next few days for another plane similar to the one sold to Mr. Wilson. The plane which Mr. Wilson takes is practically new, having been flown less than 2,000 miles. It was the second purchased by Mr. Cox, the first having been damaged in landing on the field here in a high wind.

Start Foundation For Couch Bldgs.

Material Being Unloaded; Smith Building Nears Completion

Construction work on the new buildings being erected on the corner across the street from the Hotel Ozona by S. E. Couch got off to a flying start this week.

Excavation for the foundation of pouring of concrete started the first of the week and will probably be almost completed by the end of the week. Tile and brick and other materials for the new buildings have already arrived and construction work is to be rushed.

The new Smith building on the corner across from the square is nearing completion. The concrete floor was being laid this week and the walls were being stuccoed. This building will be completed by the first of April if nothing happens to slow down the work.

Seniors Take Play To Rocksprings For Performance Friday

The Senior Class play, "Oh Kay" which made such a hit with the local audience two weeks ago, will be presented at the Rocksprings High School auditorium Friday night of this week, it has been announced. The play was presented to a packed house at the Ozona Theatre and netted the class approximately $100, according to report.

The same cast will appear in the play at Rocksprings. J. A. Floyd, class sponsor and director of the play, will probably accompany the players to the neighboring town. Those in the cast are Ethel Bennett, Eleanor Ingham, Johnny Cross, Arthur Kyle, Kathryn Baggett, Clara Patrick, Cam Longley, Mary Childress, Velma Richardson, Pauline Perner and Mildred Davis.

W.T.U. To Have New Two-Tone Frigidaire Cabinets Here Soon

Manufacturers of household appliances are fast coming to realize that appearance counts just the same as efficiency so far as pleasing the housewife is concerned. This point is well illustrated by the new model household Frigidaire cabinets to be placed on display soon by Otto Drake, local commercial manager for the West Texas Utilities Company.

"Beauty is unquestionably the outstanding feature of the new cabinets, although they possess many improvements not apparent at casual inspection," declared Mr. Drake. "They have heavier insulation, a new type of compressor suspension, stronger food shelves and a hinged compartment which can be used for vegetable storage, if desired."

The new cabinets, which have already created a great deal of interest are finished in porcelain enamel, inside and out, with a two tone color effect given by gleaming white exteriors with cool gray trimming. Ornamental clasps and hinges contribute to the appeal they make to the woman who wants to beautify her kitchen.

"The kitchen has its claim to beauty, just the same as the rest of the house," said Mr. Drake. "Women are becoming more and more insistent upon nice appearing kitchens. The new cabinets would be an ornament in any home. They are handsome enough to go into the living room."

Kiowa Jones Found Dead Near Kerrville, Wes Well Known Here

According to a special telegram received from the Kerrville MOUNTAIN SUN, Body of Nat B. (Kiowa) Jones was found early Monday morning seated in his car a few miles from Kerrville. He had been shot through the heart and was holding a thirty-three rifle. A number of notes were found on his body, directing the disposal of his body and effects.

Kiowa had been in poor health for a number of years. He had been ill for the past several days and had made remarks to friends indicating that he planned to take his life. The inquest returned a verdict of suicide.

In a diary he had made several entries, one showing that he was in Del Rio on February 27th. It read: "In Del Rio and had a fine time. Think I will start out next week." Other entries told of intense suffering and expressed doubt that he would live long.

He was 58 years old, was a former State Ranger, Inspector for the Sheep and Goat Raisers Association of Texas and at the time of his death a salesman for the Uncle Sam Stock Medicine Company. He was well known throughout the sheep and goat raising district.

He leaves a sister, Mrs. Fannie Campbell, living in Barstow, California. The body was shipped Wednesday to Athens, Texas.

May Eliminate Sheffield Hill

Highway Dept. Working On Play To Re-Route O.S.T. West

"Sheffield Hill" the long and treacherous grade on the Old Spanish Trail about 25 miles west of Ozona, may soon cease to be the bane of motorists.

The winding hill, one of the steepest and most dangerous along the whole route of the O. S. T., will be eliminated and the Trail routed another way to make a grade that will not only be less dangerous but also less difficult for the ordinary car to negotiate, if plans now being considered by Highway Department engineers in this district are carried out.

Announcement of plans to eliminate the steep hill were made this week by Division Engineer Wynn of San Angelo. The route of the proposed detour has not been announced, but it was declared that the feasibility of such a plan is now being studied and if it is found practicable the road will be changed.

The Bachelor Hill, another mean stretch on the O. S. T. between Ozona and Sheffield, is also being worked over this week by a crew of workmen under Maintenance Engineer H. L. Taylor of Sonora. The grades are being lowered and the road straightened over that hill.

Pouring Concrete Bases For Lights

Ditching For Cables Of White Way Is Under Way Here

Pouring of concrete for the foundations of fourteen decorative light standards to be placed in the downtown section as a part of Ozona's White Way was begun this week by a crew of workmen under the direction of the West Texas Utilities Company.

The foundations for eight light standards around the park are being laid first, following the running of grades over the whole town last week by a crew of engineers. All material for the white way has arrived and no further hitch in the work of installing it is expected to be encountered. The White Way will be completed within four to six weeks, Utilities Company officials said.

Most of the electric signs ordered recently by Ozona business firms are expected to be installed by the end of the week, according to H. W. Ellis, electric contractor who has charge of the installation work, and these will add to the general lighting of the town.

Sustain Demurrer In 2 1/2 Million Dollar Suit On River Well

Judge C. R. Sutton sustained the defendant's demurrer in the case of William Little against the Ozona Development Co., P. L. Childress and others, when the suit was called to trial in district court at Fort Stockton Tuesday. Little claimed two and a half million dollars damages as a result of the alleged failure of the development company to carry out the terms of a contract to let him drill the Ails man-Bell test in the Pecos River bed.

The suit was directed against the development company and eighteen stockholders. Attorneys representing Little gave notice of appeal from the decision of Judge Sutton. Among those from Ozona attending court as witnesses in the case were P. L. Childress, Judge Chas. E. Davidson, Joe T. Davidson, Charley Davidson, Houston Smith and Mr. and Mrs. Grady Mitcham of San Angelo.

Mr. and Mrs. Albert Bailey and J. R. Kersey have returned from Fort Worth where they attended the Rodeo and Fat Stock Show.

THE GOAT

(From Big Lake Wildcat)
For some three or four weeks there has been a billy goat running at large in the city. This billy is plenty old to go by himself and under ordinary circumstances take care of himself. He has already eaten enough shrubbery to have purchased two or three better goats than he. It is a crying disgrace to the town of Big Lake that such an animal should be permitted to run at large within the city limits. The goat is probably worth six bits and he has, only yesterday, destroyed twenty dollars worth of shrubbery in one yard. It would cost $1,000 to fence against this animal and the people will not do it—they will not have to do it.

There is a reward offered by the State Banker's Association of $5,000 for every dead bank robber. The Wildcat is going to offer a reward of $5 for every dead billy or nannie goat killed in the act of destroying shrubbery or flowers in the town of Big Lake. Bring the proof and get the money.

The Wildcat does not know to whom this goat belongs but it does know that he does not belong to run at large and destroy the shrubbery of those who are endeavoring to beautify their homes. Whoever lays claim to this "angory" with long horns had better take him off the streets today—early this morning while he is yet alive—and save the Wildcat this $5 reward and to themselves a perfectly good goat—alive.

It is the honest opinion of the Wildcat that the city should tax the owner of this billy goat one hundred dollars for pasturage and if not paid at once take up said billy goat and slaughter him at once—before this day is gone. Let's encourage the planting of trees and flowers—not for feed for goats, but to beautify the landscape.

Don't get alarmed if you hear a cannon go off in the West part of town—it will not mean that a man has paid the penalty of wrong doing but that a goat has departed this life to destroy shrubbery else where than in Big Lake.

Our heart goes out to fellow sufferers in Big Lake. Although their troubles, being confined to a single "angory," are as naught compared to those of the people of Ozona, where both sheep and goats, not singly but in droves, roam the streets and alleys and front and back yards of homes constantly, we have the deepest sympathy for Bee'r Hibdon and his fellow citizens with their marauding billy.

And just to show that we feel as strongly on the subject as does the Wildcat, the Stockman is going to offer a similar reward for dead goats or sheep slain in the act of masticating expensive shrubbery and flowers in Ozona yards. And we are going to give a few $5 promissory notes from one pocket to another at the next invasion as payment of the rewards.

Another old timer, another builder has passed on, has answered the call that all of us must answer sometime. Though death is inevitable and faith holds the reward of after life constantly before us, we can not but be sorrowful at the passing of a friend and relative and the community as a whole feels keenly its loss at the death of each builder, each member of the big community family, each friend of us all. Though there be others coming on who will in a measure take their places still there's a vacancy that can never be completely filled. Time will heal the wounds of sorrow, their work will be done, but the loss and despair will never overtake the living so long as their presence is in the life everlasting.

Announcement has been made that the county court will meet the rounds of Ozona the first week in April to gather up the trash and rubbish accumulated since the last clean-up campaign. All trash will be hauled at free of charge by these trucks and every resident should see to it that a thorough clean-up is made of his premises. Especially do we urge these birds who haul trash a mile or so out of town and dump it along the public highways to turn it over to the county trucks now and thus save themselves some trouble and the road leading into town much unsightliness.

It's fine to have the reputation of being an entertaining dinner companion but not when it comes to missing any of the dinner.

Loud speakers are being played all over the auditorium in a London theatre, but in this country they usually sit just behind us.

Kansas City, after checking up on hotel rooms, reports it will be able to accommodate all the guests and the elephant's trunk.

The loco weed grows down Texas way, and it may be a pretty good idea to keep a close watch on the democratic donkey next June.

Dark patches under the eyes, according to a medical theory, may be due to defective teeth, but probably more of them are caused by a moment's delay in dodging.

Asking a proud young mother if her first baby is healthy and bright is just about as sensible as giving a college boy a pair of hose supporters for a birthday present.

CHAPTER XII

"The royalty idea appeals to me," answered Davenport. "For I certainly do not want to get mixed up in affairs unless I have to. But I do feel responsibility in turning a thing like this loose without trying to do my part."

"You'll find the business part of it in pretty competent hands," Grimstead assured him.

"I do not doubt that for a moment," said Davenport. "I shouldn't have a moment's uneasiness on that score. I'm thinking of the world at large."

"World at large?" repeated Grimstead, a little blankly.

"Yes. You, of course, have not thought of this as much as I have, for it is a new proposition. But I have been pondering on it for a very long while. It's the terrific upset in industry that must come from this."

"Of course there will be readjustments," agreed Grimstead.

"But just stop to follow this out. Let's suppose for the sake of argument, that this battery is all it might be; that it is a genuine short cut to electric power. The gas and electric companies would simply have to go out of business. Why should anybody buy anything of them? Reaching out from that, think of the correlated industries that would be more or less affected—"

"I've got that kind of imagination, young man," interrupted Grimstead drily. "I'd already considered all that."

"Of course," smiled Davenport, relapsing from his tense eagerness. "And besides there are hundreds of thousands of workmen who would be thrown out of employment for a time until a readjustment had been made."

"Why, it sounds terrible," cried Burton.

"That's why I say there's a responsibility connected with it. All this capital and these works of various kinds and these workmen will find other and more useful things to do after a time. It should not be sprung on them all at once."

"What would be your suggestion?" asked Grimstead.

Davenport laughed boisterously.

"My goodness! That's a large order! But I suppose it might be fed out through a single industry at first—say, motorboat engines, or something of the kind. If we held the patents, we could regulate that exactly."

"Then you finally prefer the stock proposition?"

"I guess it's what I ought to have," said Davenport.

"Very well," returned Grimstead. "Gardiner, get your notebook and take this."

Gardiner had risen from the post of private secretary and so took shorthand.

"Draw me up a proper contract embodying these points," Grimstead instructed him. "Patents in name of Universal Power Corporation. Capital stock 100,000 shares no par value, non-assessable. Forty per cent to Mr. Davenport. Sixty per cent to me. I to furnish all working capital. Manufacture to commence within three months. One hundred thousand dollars to be paid Mr. Davenport as bonus cash payment on the conclusion of the first 1000 bona fide sales. That satisfactory as far as it goes?"

The attentive youth nodded.

"As right. Now just to cover the point you brought up, add this: That for the first five years Mr. Davenport has the veto right as to any contemplated extensions of business. That suit you, Davenport?"

"That's fine!" cried the young man.

Gardiner disappeared with a flashlight in the direction of the car, to return a few moments later carrying a portable typewriter. Grimstead met him just at the circle of firelight.

"No shenanigan about this, Ross," he warned in a low voice. "I want this contract drawn absolutely fairly, so that any lawyer he may consult will approve of it. I don't want a chance for an objection once we leave this place."

"I understand that part of it, but—"

"He's one of those lily-whites," growled Grimstead. "I've got him located now. Full of uplift and shy of horse sense. I know 'em; and they've got to be handled. He's cuckoo on the service-to-humanity stuff. The chances are that he won't sign any contract without seeing a lawyer. So draw up a subsidiary agreement on his part to sign the contract provided his lawyer—get his name—pronounce it technically correct. We'll get him to sign that anyway; and that will tie him up."

It was near 10 o'clock before the little typewriter ceased clicking, and about 11 when Davenport affixed his signature to the agreement to sign. As Grimstead had foreseen, he did not want to sign the contract itself without expert advice as to its terms; but, being satisfied with its substance, he was willing to agree to that.

"Water, lemons, sugar!" Grimstead then called to Simmins, and set out on the ground before him four tumblers, pouring into each a generous measure from a bottle.

The drinks mixed, Simmins handed one to each. Grimstead arose.

"Here's to the Universal Power Corporation!" he proposed.

They drank. Larry saw the toil-driven millions and the lifting of yet another of the great pressures of life. Burton saw confusedly an angel with a flaming sword somehow reopening by a crack the gates of Eden. Gardiner contemplated a vision of great activity and great wealth. Grimstead was smiling. What he saw the great invisible intelligences too were perceiving through the lenses of his soul. They did not smile. They did not smile.

CHAPTER XIII

"Go to the Ant"

Then next morning a corduroy road across the meadows was made and a road around the fallen redwood was begun.

Then Grimstead decided to go fishing and received some information from Davenport about the lurking places of rainbow trout.

"There's one thing; be sure you get the most northerly swale," concluded Larry. "The country starfishes up there, and if you get to following the wrong canyon you'll end lost."

"You better come along, Ross," said Grimstead. "Go get your tackle."

Gardiner disappeared in the direction of the car, and was gone so long that Grimstead became fidgety. Gardiner seemed to have a great deal of tackle to rig and clothes to put on.

"Here," called Grimstead at last. "I'm going to make a start. You'll follow along when you get ready. I'll strike the stream and fish down and you keep going until you find me."

He tramped off sturdily, and 10 minutes later, after vexatious delays having to do with leaders and the disentangling thereof, Gardiner followed. Simmins approached. "There would seem to be no occasion for my further presence, sir?" he suggested, indicating with a turn of the head the direction of the actively laboring self-starter.

"We seem to be safe for the present," agreed Davenport. "Why? What's on your mind?"

"I thought I would like to try my luck, sir."

"Sure. Go to it! Better go downstream, though."

In five minutes Simmins departed blissfully. Already he had a complete drama in cold storage having to do with his return at eventide carrying a long string of shining beauties to find that Grimstead and Gardiner, for all their fancy tackle, had succeeded in landing only four, and they rather small.

Plunketty-Snivvles and Rapscaillon followed Simmins.

Burton, coming from her tent a few minutes later, found Larry smoking his pipe alone.

"ON TIPTOE"

"Deserted. Everybody. Even the dogs," he answered her inquiry. "Like to go walking?"

"Surely!" she cried eagerly. They headed straight up the stream, coming at length to a narrow gorge at the entrance to which stood detached a fragment of rock big as a summer cottage, square as a cube of sugar. A jagged heap of talus and debris gave a rather rough passage to the top.

"Pretty scrambly," said Davenport. Think you can make it?" She scorned reply, but began at once to scramble over the jagged talus. Davenport watched the poise of her light and graceful figure for a moment, then followed. The top of the rock was perfectly flat, but at two elevations, one two feet higher than the other it was carpeted deep with moss.

"Hop down," advised Larry, himself descending to the lower of the two depressions. "Now sit down and lean back. Can you beat this?"

The natural seat thus formed and cushioned commanded to the right a view up the stream which at this point ran straight and wide for some distance. Birds flitted and midges hovered in the sun.

"I want to know more about these gifts of yours," demanded Burton after a time. "I want to know how you knew so accurately about the rain?"

"I don't know very clearly, myself," Larry answered. "I've never tried to express it."

He hesitated; seeking for an opening.

"Did you ever read Maeterlinck's 'Life of the Bee'?" he inquired. "Or any of Fabre's insect books?"

"I've read the 'Bee' and one of Fabre's—the one where the Emperor moth—"

"Yes, I know. Well, that gives us a start. Now bees, and especially ants, have what you might call a co-operative government that is as complicated and a lot more intelligent and efficient than any human government. You would hardly go so far as to say that an ant is an intellectual creature; that he, or any of his ancestors or fellows, has a brain that could think out and put in operation a system of government. Yet he acts with a heap more intelligence than most men do—on the average. How come?"

"I don't know."

"Neither do I; but I surmise. Suppose, for the sake of argument, that in the void all about and through us is a saturate solution of all possible knowledge and wisdom. The things we call living creatures live in this; it is all around us; but we are more or less cut off from it by the fact that we are individual and imperfect beings. We are in shells, let us say; particular wisdom or knowledge gets to us only through special cracks. A perfect being would have a point of contact for every possible knowledge or wisdom.

But in our finite world every individual, whether it is a rock or a tree or an ant, is so built that he can come in contact only with the particular little piece of wisdom or intelligence from the great store that he needs in his business. All the rest of the points of contact are blocked by his individual structure. Thus within his limits he has perfect knowledge. It's the same all through nature. How do you suppose quail know ahead of time whether the season is to be dry or wet, and breed accordingly? The more you think of it the more instances you will perceive."

CHAPTER XIV
Burton Finds it Curious

"That is the most interesting thing I have ever heard!" breathed Burton. "And it sounds so reasonable! But you know we started to talk about you, not about quails and ants. I believe you are a crafty sidestepper."

"We're headed toward me. If things were all working along the way they should, man would have this same access to universal wisdom that the lower creatures have. As respects all the things he would normally run against in his everyday normal life he would see, or feel—perceive is a better word—the causes and effects and results because the stream of life would flow through him by certain channels turning certain wheels."

"That's what you do!" she cried excitedly. "I see!"

"In a very small and practical way; a little more than the average. People have just about lost that power. They have little remnants of it. You've heard of 'premonitions' that have worked out; or a 'feeling' that some one was in the room; or experienced some one of the numerous 'coincidences' such as receiving a letter right on top of some special thought of the person who wrote it. You may have had dreams that came true."

"Yes," she said, "what about it?"

"You probably thought of all as 'uncanny.' It wasn't uncanny at all. Simply old, choked channels letting through a trickle."

She pondered this a moment, her brows puckered prettily.

"Is it our fault this choking?" she asked. "How did it happen?"

"I don't know, of course; but I surmise," he repeated. "It is the intervention of mind, of intellect. Man's intelligence is a fine tool, and complicated. But it was supposed to be only a tool for the purpose of examining and making practical what came to it by direct channel. Mankind got so tickled with it that he began to run all his affairs by it alone. That blocked the channel. The mind took control. Instead of playing with a fresh supply on first hand—well, call it inspiration; that's what it is—we make over and refashion old stuff. If it weren't for the fact that some people's channels are not completely blocked, so that a kind of trickle does get through; and if it wasn't for an occasional crazy genius who busts out, we'd tie ourselves up in our minds and dry up and blow away."

"Then," she summed up slowly, "you could tell about the rain and the tree falling, because this current flowed through you?"

"That's roughly it."

"How do you do it?"

"It's hard to say. I set my mind aside and take what comes to it. I turn my attention to the type of thing that is useful for me to know."

"Do you think everybody ought to have this power?"

"Yes, it belongs normally to the race."

"Could I do it—with practice?"

"I'm certain of it."

"Oh!" she cried. "I want to try! How do you start?"

He smiled.

"This is no conjuring trick to be learned; it's a good healthy faculty to be developed. You've got to relax something inside of you that you hold tight together for everyday life—something in your consciousness. Then things just float in and you leave them alone for future reference."

"I'm going to begin now," she announced.

She laid aside her hat, and the cool air current was stirring the hair at her temples. Little by little her form fell into the simple, restful curves of relaxation; one by one even the smaller muscles relinquished their guard. Her face took on the dreamy and far-away peacefulness of a sleeping child's.

Thus 15 minutes passed. Then she stirred slightly.

"Well?" asked Davenport at last. "It certainly was very curious," she confessed. "I can't make it out."

He hesitated, and the sunburn on his cheeks seemed to deepen a little.

"Are we going to waste time?" he asked gently.

She did not reply. After waiting a moment he reached out and took her hand.

CHAPTER XV
The Mystery

"You did see," Davenport went on. "You saw what I saw yesterday when we were in the old orchard, what I have felt from the very first instant I saw you standing in the firelight—beautiful as the night!"

Some are made with skimpy, short staple cotton. Some have an overdose of "filler" in the rubber of the tread. Some are long on looks and short on quality.

She turned on him troubled eyes

"I don't know why I talk and act this way. It seems almost shameless. I do not understand it. But somehow I cannot hide and dodge and retreat and flirt as I—It is impossible. I do not know what it is that has come into me, Larry, and you must wait until I find out. I have been made love to before and—from the first I have been attracted to you. Just now when I tried to set my mind aside, as you call it, just one idea, one impression came to me, and that was of nearness to you—I don't mean physical nearness—I don't know what I mean or what I'm talking about—"

"I do," he assured her.

"I am shaken, and I don't know; I can't tell what it means."

"It is the answer to my love for you!" he breathed.

She turned her clear eyes on him again.

"I do not know," she repeated, "and I must know. I might allow you to keep my hand and to—and to go on, and there is something leaping within me that tells me I would be swept away by your love. But I must not; and you must not. If it were not so serious to me, that might happen. I am talking in what my mother would have called a most unmaidenly manner," she ended wistfully.

He gently restored her hand to her lap.

"I understand," said he, "but it will come. I am on air! It can no more help coming than the poppy can help unfolding in the sun."

"I hope not," she breathed, but so low that he did not catch the syllables.

At this moment, just when some obvious change of subject seemed most desirable, Grimstead appeared wading down the middle of the stream.

"Keep quiet!" Burton adjured him. "Let's surprise him!"

The fisherman was having a fine time, splashing down the long straghnivista, casting his fly right left and straight ahead as he advanced. Larry watched him critically for a few moments.

"He knows the job," he told Burton. "Did you see him make that fly cast to the pool behind the cedar root."

HIGHWAY CREW IN CROCKETT COUNTY

H. L. Taylor, who is in charge of the State Highway Maintenance Department for this district, spent the week-end with his family in Sonora. Mr. Taylor has his crew in Crockett County near the Pecos River at work. It will require several weeks to place that part of the O. S. T. in good condition, he said. Much blasting is being done on that part of the road, due to a slight change in the course of the Highway.

Mr. Taylor is doing all in his power to get the O. S. T. tarviated, and is of the opinion that the Highway Department will commence this work sometime this year. Also the highway between here and San Angelo has a chance to be topped with asphalt.—Devil's River News.

Pneumatic Pneumonia

THIS time of year smooth tires are doubly dangerous—not only the chance of skidding, but the possibility of flat tires that come when least expected, regardless of the weather or inconvenience of the place.

No one likes to get out of the car, because of tire trouble, when the wind is raw and blowing, and rain, sleet or snow beating a fast tattoo on slippery pavements. Why be exposed—pneumatic pneumonia takes too great a toll in health and comfort—and it can be so easily avoided.

Trade in your smooth, doubtful tires now for new Dual Grip Generals. Our special winter driving allowance will save you all the mileage left in the old ones. In addition you can figure that you get the benefit of free non-skid mileage all winter. The new tires will wear so slowly in winter weather that they will still be practically new when summer comes.

With tire prices now down so far, and crude rubber already considerably higher than when the present price of tires was set, this is the ideal time to purchase for next year.

The GENERAL TIRE

In Buying Generals now they will cost you less than ordinary tires will cost six months from now.
