DEWEY WISE MAN COULD COOLIDGE SAY NO?

In youth impressions are vivid and last into old age. Therefore the manuscript of "Alice in Wonderland" sells for $75,259, a record price, more than would have been paid for the manuscript of Dante's "Inferno," or of Voltaire's "Zadig," each word worth a thousand "Alice in Wonderland" manuscripts.

Years dull imagination. Millions that remember "Robinson Crusoe," "Swiss Family Robinson," "Gulliver's Travels" vividly have a faint impression of more important books read later.

Washington reporters say, probably inaccurately, that President Coolidge is "shocked" at the suggestion of $250,000,000 to make the Mississippi River safe.

A country that could give TEN THOUSAND MILLIONS TO EUROPE, add half a billion a year to railroad receipts, and plan, wisely, to cut $200,000,000 a year from corporation taxes, need not shudder at the thought of spending part of a billion to make the Mississippi safe.

CHAUNCEY M. DEWEY, dead in his ninety-fourth year, older than the Republican party, which he served long and faithfully, said: "I have lived long because I could laugh at anything."

Of Napoleon, it was said that in his youth "he once saw his own death." He didn't live ninety-three years, but he did live more in one day than any man, Mr. Dewey in all his ninety-four years.

Chauncey Dewey attended 8,000 funerals and never let boredom drive him into eating too much. That's wisdom.

He campaigned for Lincoln, got $25 for his first legal services, lived away twenty-four Presidents, from Andrew Jackson to Calvin Coolidge, and knew thirteen of them personally. How many can name the twenty-four from Jackson on?

Mr. Dawson of the House Naval Affairs Committee, told President Coolidge his friends "still hoped he would be a candidate." The President replied: "I am afraid they will have to be disappointed."

The hard Coolidge enthusiasts will find "SOS" in that word "afraid." A man cannot help being persuaded if arguments are good.

Suppose the President were convinced, as he may be, that his resignation and reelection a second time, would mean business, increase of government, stabilize prosperity, and bring the party from oil stain danger, could he continue to say no?

Aviation is a reality, says General Axtell, and railroads should know it. He is said to plan for the Pennsylvania a part railroad, part-flying machine service from the Atlantic to the Pacific.

The traveler would spend daylight in the flying machine, night hours on the train, cross the continent in forty-eight hours, avoiding mountain flying. This rumor is not guaranteed.

New York merchants report business excellent in women's apparel. They buy more of it and less of it, more garments, less material in them. Paper underwear for ladies makes its appearance in several stores.

Silk of wood, underwear of paper—not pleasant news for cotton growers.

Old British builders of wooden ships who said ships made of steel would sink in heavy storms would be interested in the Leviathan's latest trip.

She reached New York with her fore-castle deck smashed, deck structures badly twisted by a wave said to be 150 feet high, that dropped 1,000,000 pounds of water on her deck at once.

Men build ships that the ocean cannot sink. Water waves are heavier than air waves. Airships will soon be built that no air wave will worry.

In Seattle a tiny Pomeranian died too much. Its owner wanted the vocal chords removed, reducing the bark to a gesture, but humane societies said "No."

Dog Trainer Sanderlin removed the bark in two weeks by training "Obedience is the secret," says he. "I taught Darkie (the Pomeranian) the meaning of the words 'Shut up.'"

That trainer might make a fortune in politics.

BURIED TUES. 5 P.M.

In Crockett Co., Director Ozona Bank

John Moore Shannon, millionaire and pioneer West Texan builder and benefactor of hundreds of individuals and firms in West Texas, died at 5:25 o'clock Monday morning after an illness of several months. He was 79 years old.

Funeral services were held at 5 o'clock Tuesday afternoon from the home of Mr. and Mrs. Robt. Massie in San Angelo. Burial followed in Fairmount cemetery. Services were conducted by the Rev. Frank Eteson, pastor of the Episcopal Church at Plainview, a close friend of Mr. Shannon's for many years.

Mr. Shannon was in every sense a builder. He was intimately connected with the development of this entire section and many a West Texan man owes his success to the financial backing of Mr. Shannon at the start.

Mr. Shannon came to West Texas in the early eighties. In those trying days he was undaunted by poverty, just as in his later days he was unspoiled by wealth. His first job was working on a section at Big Spring. Later he obtained a contract to fence land for the Capital syndicate.

He combined the rare gift of visioning the possibilities of the future while keeping a firm grasp on the realities of the present. He was one of the first to visualize the possible scope of the sheep and wool industry, and his cool judgment, coupled with a deep understanding of every angle to the enterprise, was a valuable asset to the Wool Grower's Central Storage Company, of which he has long been a director.

In San Angelo Mr. Shannon was best known for his building and banking activities. He served as vice-president of two San Angelo banks, the Central National Bank and the Guaranty State Bank. He was president of the First State Bank of Big Lake, and director of the Ozona National Bank of Ozona.

He was president of the Western Reserve Life Insurance Company of San Angelo, an institution he was largely instrumental in organizing. It is said that he planned erecting a skyscraper in which to house the offices of the Western Reserve Life—a building more pretentious than any in San Angelo. Illness, it is claimed, is the only thing that prevented the realization of this desire.

Though owning several farms and ranches near San Angelo, his greatest land holdings were in Crockett County. All his enterprises will go on under the administration of the estate, it is predicted.

Mr. Shannon was born in New Orleans, May 15, 1849. As a youngster he made his way to California, remaining in the Golden State fifteen years. When the wanderlust came to him the second time he sailed for Australia and New Zealand. It was on a trip from New Zealand to Scotland that he met Miss Margaret Campbell, the girl he later married. It was soon after the wedding, 47 years ago, that Mr. and Mrs. Shannon came to West Texas.

All San Angelo banks closed Tuesday afternoon, a tribute to his memory and an expression of sorrow over a great loss. The Western Reserve Life was closed all day.

The Ozona National Bank closed at 12 o'clock Tuesday and remained closed throughout the afternoon out of respect for the memory of Mr. Shannon.

The pallbearers at the funeral were, Robert Massie, John M. Treadwell, J. Miles O'Daniel, L.

Hurt In Auto Crash

Mrs. E. E. Finegan of San Antonio, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. T. W. Patrick of Ozona, was badly shaken and bruised Tuesday afternoon when a car in which she was riding collided with a concrete culvert about 38 miles the other side of Sonora on the Sonora-Junction road. A man and his wife with whom Mrs. Finegan was riding and whose names were not learned here, were both badly hurt in the smash-up. The man, who was driving the car, suffered a deep gash across his chest and another on his arm and was otherwise cut and bruised. His wife suffered a deep gash on her leg and other injuries. They were rushed to a hospital at San Angelo for treatment.

Mrs. Finegan had been in Fort Stockton at the bedside of her sister, Mrs. John Cooke, who died Tuesday afternoon. She and her husband were on their way back to their home in San Antonio, responding to a message that Mr. Finegan's mother was seriously ill in San Antonio. They received a message at Junction informing them of the death of Mrs. Cooke and Mr. Finegan went on to San Antonio and Mrs. Finegan caught a ride at Junction back to Ozona. Greene Cooke and Vorgil Oden went to Junction and brought her on to Ozona.

Locals Play Airtight
Ball In Field And Get Ten Hits

The Giants, Ozona's fast diamond aggregation, had their best day of the season Sunday when Sam Cox, veteran hurler, with his teammates solidly behind him playing airtight baseball, trounced the Iraan Oilers 7-2 in the best game of the season on the local diamond.

Sunday was "Sam Cox Day" and the hoary haired veteran covered himself with glory in the box. In nine innings he allowed only five safeties while his teammates accounted for ten safe walops in their eight times at bat. Cox was never in serious trouble at any time during the game and his wing was in good enough shape to whiff seven of the opposing batsmen. He issued only two passes on balls during the contest.

The Giants were in the best batting form so far developed. Every member of the team, with the exception of Cox and Bill Grimmer was able to chalk up a safety off the Oiler's hurler, Frank Russell, Kelly King and Bob Weaver each got two hits, the others getting one each.

One of the features of the local fielding work was a triple play in the third inning, a neatly executed play which retired the side after the first two men up had hit safely into the outer gardens. Coleman and Sparks of the Iraan squad had both singled in this inning and Guest came up with a man on first and one on second. Guest attempted a sacrifice bunt and W. T. Childress, Ozona catcher, sacked the pop-up, shot it to Frank Russell, who covered second, caught Coleman off the sack and Russell then whipped the ball to first and caught Sparks off the bag. This demonstration of big league fielding sent Ozona fans into a frenzy and drew a big hand from the Iraan rooters and players, who, by the way, were among the best sports ever to play on the local diamond.

The Giants will again be seen in action on the local field next Sunday when they hook up with a fast team from Santa Rita. The game will be called at 3 o'clock Sunday afternoon. Bob Lockhart will probably be called upon for mound duty, according to Manager Jack Allen Kelly King, Ozona's ace hurler, is suffering from a sore arm and may not be able to go into the box Sunday.

The play by play report of the game furnished by John Barton, official scorer, follows:

FIRST INNING
IRAAN—Sparks was out, second to first, Guest fanned, Fuller flied to center. No runs, no hits, no errors.

OZONA—F. Russell singled to left, C. Russell forced F. Russell at second, short to second. Burke and King both fouled out to third. No runs, one hit, no errors.

SECOND INNING

IRAAN—Blanton tripled to center. Gay was out, pitcher to first. Van Cleve was safe and Blanton scored on Van Cleve's roller to first, which R. Russell threw home to get the runner. Clark fanned. Henry S. fanned. One run, one hit, no errors.

OZONA—Weaver was out, third to first. R. Russell was out, short to first. Grimmer struckout. No runs, no hits, no errors.

THIRD INNING

IRAAN—Coleman singled to center, Sparks singled to right, Coleman stopping at second. Guest hit into a triple play when he attempted to sacrifice. The play was catcher to short to first. No runs, two hits, no errors.

FULMER PRESIDES

Committee To Draw Up
Plans For "Charter Night" Named

The Ozona Lions Club combined business with pleasure at the regular luncheon hour Monday noon. At the close of a splendid musical program, several working committees were appointed and other business matters discussed.

President M. M. Fulmer was present for the first time since the organization meeting and he was given a rousing welcome by the Lions.

The entertainment program was in charge of Lee Wilson and Otho Drake. Dr. Cox again entertained the club with a few vocal numbers and Miss Vivian Baggett also sang two numbers which were greatly enjoyed. Miss Dixie Davidson, the club accompanist, played and sang two of her own compositions, songs composed to her father and mother while she was away at school, and these numbers also made a big hit.

President Fulmer gave a brief but interesting account of some of the things he saw on his trip to Tennessee. The president brought back a gift to the Lions Club, a gavel carved from mountain laurel wood which grew on Lookout Mountain. The gavel was presented to Mr. Fulmer by Mrs. Arthur Hoover and Mrs. Ira Carson who purchased it while in Tennessee.

At the end of the musical program the matter of naming some committees to look after various matters in connection with business of the club were named by President Fulmer. The committee to arrange the constitution and by-laws of the club is composed of the following: Nelson Hawkins, Chairman; Bill Grimmer and W. A. Kay.

The membership committee to pass on applications for membership in the club is composed of Evert White, chairman; Tom Onstott and A. W. Jones.

A committee to lay plans for the "Charter Night" program, an annual entertainment for Lions and their ladies was also named. This committee is composed of Dr. Gar-nett Miller, E. R. Lumpkin and Otho Drake.

Three new members have been received into the club since charter membership closed. They are W. R. Baggett, Kelly King and Roy Parker.

Red Hair and Blue Sea

her. He went on with his drama. Making again the sign of the scar, he pretended to awake. He looked around, said, "Olive?"; depicted surprise, anger. Drawing his knife ferociously, he kicked the imaginary sleepers into life, bel- lowed an order. He blew into his cupped hand, which was now suf- ficient to indicate the sail, per- formed the evolution of coming about; walked toward the girl, blowing in his hand and brandish- ing the knife. She held her ground, under- standing that the enraged pursuit returned her. Olive stopped pointed to the sun and to a spot spot somewhat further along in the luminary's course. A sweeping gesture, a grimace, a stamping of the foot upon the sand; and he had said, as plain as words, that here Burke would step within an interval appallingly brief. A Burke, far away and beyond call, might seem the lesser of two evils. But a Burke, rising over the horizon, as fast as a storm, regain- ed all his vile significance. This much was plain: here stood Olive and here, within two hours, would stand Burke. And that being so, what about the bird and its message! Again, all was inexplicable. With the white brute hot upon the heels of the brown brute, there could be no such waiting as she had assumed, while a bird irres- ponsibly delivered its summons and rescuing tribesmen came across sea. Then, why the mes- sage at all? He had sent that message as a forlorn hope. Yet he was show- ing none of the strain which should have gone with so desperate a race. Indeed, his very calm frightened her. It was unnatural. He must expect, with a knife, to fight for her possession against Burke, with the deadly revolvers, and backed by the crew. Facing such terrible odds, no white man could have been so unemotional. Could it be that he had come here to await Burke's arrival and then, almost within Ponape's grasp to plunge the knife into her breast and himself die? Was there that in his dark beliefs, traditions, to make such an act exquisitely worth the sacrifice; a supreme manifestation, say, of hate for his tyrant; a degradation in this is- land world eternally to make of the white man a mock?

Olive thrust out the square fore- finger toward the quarter whence the Pigeon of Noah would descend upon them, and then toward the sun to indicate the flight of time. Following which he crossed to the lee beach and stood in the brine. He beckoned to her. He pointed to himself and to her, and then off across the water, with the mo- tions of one who swims. The girl stared. For the first time she was utterly at fault. By his indication he and she were to swim away together into the thousand miles of ocean. That, however, could not be. He must have some other meaning. But the savage made plain he did mean just that. He held out his hand toward her invitingly. He waved her—at once an appeal and a command—into the sea. (Continued on page 7)

Red Hair and Blue Sea

Palmyra cowered before Olive. His meaning was plain, all too plain. But his purpose? There lay the terror.

"I tell you I can't swim," she cried out at last. "I can't swim!" For the first time his features offered a readable significance. He was perplexed. He fetched his coconuts. He sat down before her, indicated that she was the object of the play. He bound two of the dry nuts by their thong of husk to his ankle. Also others as he showed, about his waist. And then, then she understood.

The girl saw that Olive thus was saying "life preserver." He meant to make her into a sort of raft.

Her agitation diminished. This bespoke life, not death. The fanatic, about to drown one, did not provide a float.

With six of the nuts he buoyed her hips and with four her shoulders. With a length of fibre he wound her skirt tight round her knees. Then he fastened his knife securely but immediately at hand in the thongs that bound her waist.

For an interval he left her, lying with upturned face, her eyes closed against the glare. He threw into the sea, so it would drift clear or sink, the food and cask of water, the severed leaves, the opened nuts everything that spoke of his activity. Then, pausing for a last careful inspection, his glance lighted on the pink silk parasol. He examined it thoughtfully, raised it, offered it, with pleased look, to the tug of wind. Olive had a sail.

Thus did they depart into the thousand miles of empty ocean.

Olive swam briskly forward with her now. Exulting, she discovered that the sound which had mocked her, this time at last, was no cruel deception. It was the trample of surf on a reef.

One sharp struggle and those splendid muscles had carried them buffeted and breathless, through a cauldron of a cleft in the outer barrier. They came to rest in a shallow of spent surf on the reef between its higher rim and the nearby shore.

At first Palmyra was aware of nothing beyond the fact that she was all-sufficing. The island, by reason of her hours in the water, seemed to rise and fall as giddily as the sea itself. But she could cling to a pandanus and feel safe.

How many, many miles had they come? She recollected men had tried to swim the English channel. Was the channel twelve or twenty miles across? Something like that. But it was cold northern water and the swimmers merely European. Olive must have brought her infinitely further.

The island, plainly, was inhabited.

As Olive had written, why could not she?

But—what of paper? She paused confronted by the stonewall of circumstance. No need to cut her hand as the brown man had done, for bright drops of the pirate gore were already available. As she saw, the mosquitoes had been swarming round her.

While she puzzled, she felt reconnoitering for the hostile foliage. It proved to be a stiff sword-like leaf that thrust at her from the shadows.

The leaf, she found, was sur-facted by a thin transparent film. Lupe-a-Noa, from wrecked Yacht Rainbow, 4 days sail. His man, slowness. The pin work could not be hurried, the condensation of words took thought. Miss Palmyra Tree But, readably, the leaf said: Help! Abducted by Ponape (CONTINUED NEXT WEEK)

Ben Lemmons Moving To Ozona

From Rochester (Tex.) Reporter

Mr. Ben Lemmons left Monday for St. Louis to visit his mother a few days and also to make purchases of dry goods, clothing, etc. for his new store at Ozona, Texas. He will also visit New York and make some purchases there, using the best judgment in the selection of his stock and take advantage of the lowest prices so he can make attractive prices for his customers.

Mr. Lemmons will return to Rochester when he has completed his purchases and prepare to move to Ozona, hoping to reach the latter place and be ready for business by June 1st.

The regular meeting of the Ozona chapter of the Eastern Star will take place on the 3rd Tuesday night of each month.

The Reporter wishes to commend Mr. Lemmons and his good wife to the people of Ozona. Six years ago they came to Rochester strangers, but by their friendly attitude and square dealings have made many warm friends, who regret very much to see them leave, but physicians advise Mr. Lemmons to move to another climate, is the only reason for the move. They have built up a wonderful business here and were gaining new friends all the time, and it is not from a business reason that they move. We want to say further, that Mr. and Mrs. Lemmons were always ready to open their purse and contribute to any laudable enterprise that had for its object the upbuilding of Rochester and community, and contributed largely to charitable causes. Thus showing a liberality that is commendable. Not only this, instead of raising prices on goods, they always kept them down to rock bottom that the consumers might live. In other words, their motto in principle was "to live and to let live," and the large trade they built up here is evidence of the confidence of the people have in their word as business people and their methods of doing business. All will join the Reporter in hoping for them a full measure of success, and that Mr. Lemmons may find the climate in that section more salubrious than here.

CAPILLARY ART

Art is coming under the influence of democracy.

In former times the great artists painted pictures only for churches and rich men's palaces.

Statuary was intended to adorn royal courts and the mansions of the opulent and the private parks of the nobles.

Nowadays statues are being erected in public places where even the most humble and obscure person may admire them. Pictures are hung in museums which have their free days when the public is generously invited.

It is said that Michael Angelo and Raphael and the other artists of that time generally painted only saints or archbishops. Gradually artists discovered that the common life of the people contained subjects quite as interesting and picturesque as the lives of the more favored.

In literature Dickens made quite an innovation when he turned his pen toward the obscure and lowly.

We all want to be rich, of course and famous, but rich men are not as interesting as they used to be. The most noted monuments to the heroes of the late war were those to the unknown soldier. It was a war won, by the way, by the heroism of the common recruit and not by the startling genius of some Napoleon.

It is a question whether a rich man should build himself a fine house, from the windows of which he can only look out upon the abodes of the poor, or build better houses for the poor that he may regard them from his windows.

Men of wealth are gradually turning their attention toward replacing the slums by better habitations.

Altogether it looks as if art, if it is to have firm foundation, must rest upon the basis of the despised demos.

It is the fashion of the intellectuals to deride the public and to think that only a few chosen ones can appreciate or be benefited by the works of art.

SYNOPSIS

Palmyra Tree, aboard the yacht Rainbow, discovers a stowaway. She is disappointed in his mild appearance and tells him so. Obeying his command to glance at the door, she sees a huge, fierce, copper-hued man with a ten inch knife between his lips. The stowaway, Burke, and the brown man, Olive, go up on deck and tell stories of adventure which are not believed.

Palmyra decides she loves Van. The night the engagement is announced the Rainbow hits a reef. John Thurston rescues Van and Palmyra—but Palmyra thinks Van saved her.

A sail is sighted after three days on an island. It is Ponape Burke, the stowaway! Burke has to put her ashore on an island, as a Japanese man-of-war is sighted and it would be dangerous to have her aboard. Olive swims to the island and joins Palmyra. She is in fear of the brown man. Now read on—

CHAPTER VII

At snapping tension Palmyra strained to catch the sound again. Her eyes sought to weather and to lee. And then her gaze became fixed. For there, on the crossbar where Olive had fastened the fish, sat a large bird.

It was the sound of the bird's alighting that Palmyra had caught. The roost was now swaying under the impact, the newcomer shooting in and out its neck in a somewhat serpent-like concordance. The creature was black, its feet disproportionately small and the beak, strongly hooked at the end, a good five inches long.

The bird gazed back at the girl with some defiance of manner, as if it thought she might claim the fish. Then it lumbered along the pole and seized the victim, which sagged a final flop.

Could it be that Olive had known he could attract a bird down by baiting such a lighting place?

News of the arrival had, in some manner, communicated itself to the sleeper.

From his countenance she could not guess whether he had expected to find a bird on the crossbar, or whether he was pleased. Nor were his actions illuminating. With the leisured velocity that was so disturbing an attribute, he first cut from a small cane-like growth a section the length of a finger. Then he shaved another piece down to a point. She thought he might intend pinning something with it. But he turned to her stores and tore out some thin package paper. This he laid on a box. With the knife he pricked his left forearm so that the blood came. Then with the blood and the skewer he began to write, presumably to make some sort of hieroglyphics.

While Olive finished his composition the girl watched in a paralyzing anxiety. What did he write? What was in this message that meant more than life and death to her? She sprang up at once to demand a sight, then remembered she could not have understood.

The savage now folded his paper small, worked it into the hollow section of the cane, closed the opening with a wad of leaf. He went to the bird, which seemed not to object, and tied the missive under one of its wings. Then he lifted it from the roost and tossed it into the air. Instantly astonishing pinions flashed out, a spread of six or eight feet.

Burke had said this strange being's purpose was to demonstrate to all, by his courage, that he could live down the effeminate name of Olive.

In despoiling Burke of the red-haired goddess, Olive but reached the climax of his demonstration. He had chosen the one thing that would most enrage the white man; was, therefore, the most dangerous to attempt—and the most convincing.

All too plainly the message the man-of-war bird carried could have but one destination: Olive proclaiming his daring; demanded that his clansmen come to his aid.

The brown man Olive was unaware of, or unmoved by, Palmyra's misery. As soon as he had launched the bird, he pulled down its perch. Then, with one of the uprights, he marched to the lee beach and began marking on the tidal sands.

The girl watched tragically. Until now there had seemed hardly a choice of her fate. If she had, with a knife, succeeded in eliminating Olive, Burke would have returned to possess her. Or if disaster had eliminated Burke, then terrible solitude, with death from thirst.

But now, that messenger a mere speck in the sky, the highest thing as it seemed in the world, instinct within her had taken a stand. Best that Burke was, he was at least better than this savage. A man of her own race, there was always the chance some appeal might reach through.

When Olive, having finished his work, turned toward her, she gathered herself for flight. But he stopped, safely distant, and she divined that he meant to attempt an exchange of ideas.

First, he pointed in the direction the Lupe-a-Noa had gone. When Palmyra did not understand, he picked up a piece of the fabric, buckram-like, with which nature binds fast her palm leaves. He represented a sail; he referred to the schooner itself.

Once more Olive pointed to the scar on Burke's forehead. Again she nodded.

Next, Olive, grinning success fully at her perception, marked a semicircle on his forehead. She was puzzled until she recalled the scar to indicate that the white man was now the actor. As Burke he yawned drowsily, lay down and began to snore. The girl took it that Ponape had gone to sleep for the night. The islander next got up, pointed to the place he had lain as the white man, and then to six other places in a row, snoring reinforcingly as he made an inclusive gesture. All she saw, had been asleep.

Olive now indicated himself as the actor, by tapping his breast with a square forefinger. Cautiously, peering to this side and that, pausing to look back and listen, he tiptoed away. With a final furtive glance, he raised himself, jumped as one going over the vessel's side into the water, simulated the movements of a swimmer. Palmyra read that, as soon as Burke and the crew had turned in last night, Olive had eluded the vigilance of the man on duty, dropped overboard and swam back to

Coke Stevenson Of Junction Announces For Representative

Coke R. Stevenson, lawyer and stockman of Junction, has announced his candidacy for state representative from the 86th district to succeed Roscoe Runge of Mason, according to word received here the first of the week by friends of Mr. Stevenson.

Mr. Runge a few days ago announced that he would not be a candidate for re-election to the office because he is financially unable to make the sacrifice necessary. Holding the office requires the sacrifice of time and money that I can ill afford to lose," Mr. Runge wrote friends here.

Upon Mr. Runge's announcement that he would not be a candidate for re-election, friends besieged Mr. Stevenson and finally prevailed upon him to make the race. Mr. Stevenson was formerly county judge of Kimble County, is a member of the executive committee of the Sheep and Goat Raisers Association of Texas and is now engaged in the practice of law at Junction.

Mr. Runge had served two terms as representative from this district. In a letter announcing his decision to withdraw his candidacy, received by Houston Smith, he expressed regret that he would not be able to hold the office further.

"I desire to express my appreciation and thanks to a great number of worthy and loyal friends throughout the district to whom I am indebted for many and unusual acts of kindness and assistance I shall always cherish the association and friendship of the good men and women of this large district, in co-operation with whom it was my pleasure to serve during my tenure of office, and which was made possible to me by reason of the kindness of the people of the district.

"For more than one reason it has been a pleasure to serve the people of this district in the Legislature. No man ever had a more loyal and helpful citizenship behind him and co-operating with him than I have had during my two terms of office. What has been accomplished for the interest of this district has been accomplished more by the people than by myself."

10,000 Gather At Baptist Meeting

Great Southern Baptist Convention At Chattanooga Is Described

By M. M. Fulmer.

It is estimated that ten thousand messengers and visitors were in attendance at the Southern Baptist Convention which recently closed in Chattanooga, Tennessee. This was the 73rd annual session of the body which was organized in 1845. In its long and illustrious history Chattanooga has been the host of the convention on more than one occasion the last of which was 1921. The new Memorial Auditorium, erected by the city in honor of the soldiers and sailors who gave their lives in the World War, was taxed to capacity to care for the attending throngs. Every hotel in the city was full to overflowing and several hundred were entertained in the homes of the people. Friendliness and courtesy were the order of the day. Chattanooga knows how to receive her guests.

The convention was given a most hearty reception. Sam Whitaker brought words of welcome on behalf of the local Baptists. Mayor Bass brought the welcome of the city and the proverbial keys; while the Hon. Henry H. Horton, Governor of Tennessee and himself a Baptist Deacon, brought the greeting of the "Volunteer State." Response to these addresses was made by Dr. S. J. Porter, pastor of the First Baptist Church of Washington, D. C.

The Convention was characterized by its earnestness of purpose in the Lord's work and its zeal to find the Divine will. It was democratic throughout, "a people's convention." Matters of great moment were considered, discussed and decided; matters upon which differences of opinion existed, concerning which there was a sharp contention, yet when the majority spoke its voice the result was accepted with fine spirit and brotherhood.

From the standpoint of things to see Chattanooga is unsurpassed by any southern city, if indeed any city in America. Located in the midst of the Tennessee mountains on the famous Moccasin Bend of the Tennessee River. Chattanooga is indeed "a thing of beauty and a joy forever." Four great battlefields recall the stirring days of the Civil War. These fields have been purchased and restored as historic points to be constant reminders of those hectic days. The ancient cannon stand today just where they stood at the close of these engagements. Chickamauga "the bloodiest battle of the war," shows today just how the opposing armies stood at the surrender. Various state markers and monuments mark the paths of glory carved by their sons and perpetuate their memory. Well trained guides conduct the visitor through these scenes.

Lookout Mountain, the most famous point in the Eastern Highlands, is located in Chattanooga. On its lofty summit was fought the never to be forgotten "battle above the clouds." An inclined railway now ascends the mountain upon which are cars pulled by cables. The length of the incline is nearly five thousand feet and the grade in places is the steepest in the world, being 72 per cent. From Lookout Point on this venerable hill can be seen on clear days the outlines of seven states.

"It was a Great Convention, a wonderful trip, the inspiration of which shall long live in our thinking. The Ozona people attending, Mr. and Mrs. A. C. Hoover, Mr. and Mrs. Ira Carson and Mr. and Mrs. M. M. Fulmer, come back with new enthusiasm born of these experiences, and fully resolved to do better work for the Master this year than ever before."

The Southern Baptist Convention meets next year in Memphis, Tennessee.

SEVENTEEN YEARS AGO

All freight moving into Ozona from Barnhart and San Angelo was via freight wagons, requiring from three days to two weeks to complete the round trip. It was nothing unusual those days to see from eight to sixteen horse loads coming into Ozona.

Moving freight via truck in Barnhart territory begun about the latter part of the year 1916. The consumption of Gasoline and Oils in Barnhart Territory 17 years ago was comparatively small, notwithstanding this fact: In the year of 1911, the GULF REFINING COMPANY established a distributing station in Barnhart, erecting a small warehouse with a bulk storage of 9000 gallons, at this time being the only wholesale Oil Station between San Angelo and Alpine. Today we have a bulk storage of about 50,000 gallons and have doubled the capacity of our warehouse at Barnhart, thus proving that our faith and determination in entering the Barnhart territory 17 years ago was well founded.

We are operating three trucks into Ozona, giving you a service second to none, placing GULF PRODUCTS at your door at Barnhart schedule.

GOOD GULF GASOLINE AND SUPREME MOTOR OIL may be obtained at the ORANGE Pumps at the sign of the orange disc in most every village from the Great Lakes to the Gulf of Mexico. Demand GULF PRODUCTS, they have stood the test for almost a quarter of a century.
