BEAUTY

Beauty like morals, is a question of latitude; there is no rule of universal application.

Shakespeare is the one universal author because he never describes his heroines. Juliet was fourteen and beautiful; that is all the says about her looks. The Scandinavian can picture her as a majestic blonde, the Kaffir as a coal-black Venus. The Juliet of the Chinese has slanting eyes; to the Spaniard she must have the long black lashes of the cow-eyed Andalusian Moor.

It is a fortunate thing for humanity that tastes in beauty differ. Even the movies have not been able to standardize the feminine ideal.

STEAM

The U. S. Aircraft Carrier "Lexington" is tied up at a pier in Puget Sound, while her engines are turning the dynamos which generate electric current for the cities of Tacoma and Seattle. This is a good use for a ship of war. It suggests a way of making our Navy earn its keep.

It is also an illustration of what happens, sometimes, to water-power. Tacoma and Seattle get their normal municipal supply of current from hydro-electric plants which the cities own. The unusual drought in the Northwest reduced the flow of water and cut down the production of electricity. The great power companies regard waterpower as valuable only as an auxiliary to steam plants, which are already generating twice as much current in America as all the waterpower put together, in most cases more cheaply.

ALUMINUM

The commonest of all metals, more than twice as common as iron, aluminum was a curiosity at the Centennial of 1876 and only came into general commercial use when the harnessing of Niagara Falls made the electric furnace economical. Alloyed to give it strength, its light weight makes it more useful than steel in hundreds of applications. The largest airplanes are built of it.

Now a project is on foot to cast automobile bodies in one piece out of aluminum. That will still further reduce the cost and weight of cars. The lighter the car, the less gas, the less wear on tires. The time will come when a serviceable automobile will sell for not more than $250, and run 50 miles on a gallon of gas.

WAR

The only independent persons are those who own land. The only countries with people enough about them to fight for them are those made up largely of individual landowners. When the common people were peasants only the landowning nobles with their hired soldiers went to war.

In many states corporations are forbidden to own land except for their own business purposes. The Government is trying by every possible means to get all of the public lands into the hands of individual owners. That is the only safeguard for the nation's future. Land is the one commodity which is limited in supply and unlimited in demand. Sooner or later some other nation will try to take the land away from us. If we own it as individuals we will fight for it; if it mostly belongs to a few persons of wealth we will let them do the fighting and pay taxes to the new owners if the old ones are beaten.

Less Than Half Of Taxes Paid

Only 244 Autos Registered Wed., Only 7 More Days

"Somebody is going to have to stand in a line as long as from the courthouse to the postoffice if tax payments and automobile registrations do not pick up soon." Tom Casbeer, county treasurer, declared Wednesday in commenting on the apparent reluctance on the part of taxpayers and automobile owners to get this duty behind them.

Up to Wednesday noon only 244 automobiles out of a probable 700 had been registered, Mr. Casbeer said. All cars must be registered by January 31, Friday of next week. Beginning February 1, all motorists who have not registered their cars will be subject to a fine and penalty on the license fees.

Likewise, all taxes must be paid by February 1 or be subject to a penalty. In the case of poll taxes, there is no possibility of the right of franchise should a voter neglect to pay his poll taxes by February 1. Property taxpayers must pay a poll tax whether before or after February 1, but the only way they can have the right to vote on such payment is to pay the tax before February 1.

Forty Present For Interesting P.-T. A Program On Monday

Approximately 40 members of the Ozona Parent-Teachers Association were present for the regular monthly meeting of the organization held Monday afternoon at the school house. During the business meeting announcement was made of the purchase of twelve new records for the school Victrola, the money for this purchase being raised by subscription by the finance committee of which Mrs. Lee Childress is chairman.

The membership committee reported five new members secured since the last meeting. Mrs. Victor Pierce is chairman of the membership committee.

A very interesting program on "Thrift" was presented by the organization, consisting of a play and song by the pupils of the First grade, a reading by Howard Lemmons and "The Doctor" by Mary Bess Parker and Noma V. Miller.

"The Attitude and Functions of P.-T. A. Regarding Thrift" was the title of an interesting paper presented by the president, Mrs. Albert Kay. The program closed with three minute talks on "Thrift in General Education" by Elbert Sadler and "Thrift for Success and Happiness" by Rev. W. R. Swinney.

The club enjoyed a social half hour following completion of the program, refreshments being served by Mesdames Wm. Johnigan, Joe Davidson, Ray Dunlap and Bruce Drake.

BRIDE IS HONORED

Mr. and Mrs. Scott Peters entertained Friday night with eleven tables of bridge for Miss Vivian Baggett and Boyd Clayton who were married on the following Monday. The piano carried a miniature bride and groom. During the playing small bags of candy with whistles were distributed. Mince meat sundae and cake were served.

Those present besides the honorees were: Messers and Mesdames Ralph Meinecke, Chas. E. Davidson, Jr., Massie West, J. W. North, Marshall Montgomery, Evert White, T. A. COMMITTEE TO FORM PLAN OF CHARITY BODY

Union Of Forces In Relief Work Is Object Of Plan

$300 YEAR'S NEED

Fund May Be Solicited For General Charity Work

Definite steps toward formation of a central charity organization to handle all classes of calls for aid in the future in this community were taken this week by a committee appointed by President M. M. Fulmer of the Lions Club at the regular meeting of the club Monday.

This committee, composed of Rev. J. H. Meredith, chairman, Claude S. Denham and Evert White, met Tuesday and worked out a plan of action looking toward the establishment of such an organization, supported by public subscription after the fashion of the united charity bodies in cities, and this plan will be submitted to the Lions Club, parent of the centralized charity organization, at its next meeting Monday noon.

A board composed of five members, one of whom will act as treasurer, will administer funds collected by the organization under the plan to be recommended by the committee. This body, given its impetus by the Lions Club, is to become a separate organization with the sole purpose of administering charity and is to be self-perpetuating. In other words, the committee seeks to create a distinct charity organization in this community whereby the charity funds of the town may be pooled and dispensed under the direction of its officers. The committee will recommend that $300 be raised for charity work during the coming year and that the drive be made an annual affair and that the people of the town be urged in the future to refer all calls for charity to this organization.

The recommendations as contained in the written report to be handed the Lions Club follow:

"First, we recommend that the organization proposed herewith be made a permanent one and that a central charity body be created with power of raising a sufficient fund at the beginning of each year to adequately take care of the potential charity needs of the community for the year. This committee, with the assistance and backing of the Lions Club, should make an annual drive for funds for this purpose and that the community be adequately informed of this purpose and the added convenience of having the entire community charity work centralized under one head.

"Second, that this organization be given its initial impetus by the Lions Club, but that it thereafter function as a distinct organization with the sole purpose of looking after charity needs of the community. Further, that the organization select its own name if its directing heads see fit, and that it be self-perpetuating, i.e. that in the event of a vacancy in the membership of the committee that the remaining members have the privilege of choosing a successor.

Third, that the organization or committee mentioned above consist of five members, representing the churches, schools business interests and the county at large, this organization having as its purpose the soliciting and dispensing of funds in relief work in the town of Ozona.

Fourth, that one of said members should be the permanent treasurer of the organization, who shall have charge of these funds and disburse them upon recommendation of the balance of the committee. Provided, however, that the treasurer and two other members of the committee be sufficient to decide upon the merits of a request for aid.

"And fifth, your committee, above."

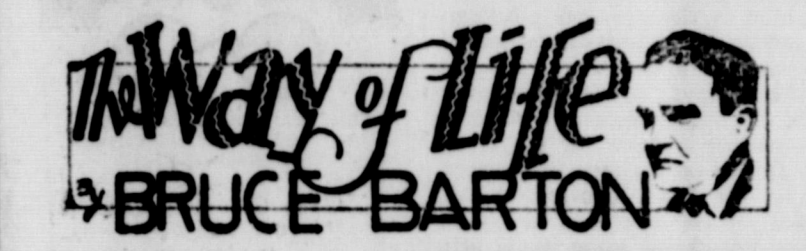

Bennett Buys Sorrels Shop

Former Barber Shop Owner Again In Business Here

A deal was completed Friday of last week whereby Raymond Bennett, former owner of the Ozona Barber Shop, located in the building now occupied by the Ozona Drug Company, became the sole owner of the Sanitary Barber Shop established about two years ago by A. J. Sorrels.

Mr. Bennett took charge of the shop at once. Mr. Sorrels will continue in charge of the Ozona Recreation Club in the rear of the building occupied by the barber shop and the beauty parlor operated by Mrs. Sorrels.

No change in the personnel of the shop is contemplated at present, Mr. Bennett said.

DO WE PUT TOO MUCH EMPHASIS ON HEALTH?

A man who knows Scotland told me of his experience with a Scotch shepherd.

The shepherd seemed to have an uncanny power over the sheep. When he sent out his peculiar call every one of them, no matter how distant, raised his head and started straight for home.

The visitor begged for a chance to try his calling powers. He cupped his hands over his mouth and emitted a noise which to his own ears sounded exactly like the shepherd's call.

Not a single sheep responded. "Don't get discouraged," said the shepherd. "Try again. Maybe there is a sick one in the flock and, if so, he will listen to you. When sheep are healthy they will follow only their own shepherd, but a sick one may go off after anybody."

Every once in a while somebody rises up to criticize us modern parents for devoting too much time and attention to our children's physical well-being.

Says such a critic: "Of course, the body is important, but it was given us not to be exalted but to be disciplined and put down. To lay so much emphasis on the physical is paganism. Our righteous ancestors disregarded the body and paid attention to their souls."

This is true, and it might be added that our ancestors, by neglecting their bodies in the interests of their souls, beat us to Heaven by an average of twenty years. They matured young, worried much, and died in what we now regard as early middle life.

Moreover, I have always questioned whether they were truly religious, whether it is possible to be religious in the best sense if one is sick and ruled by fears.

Old Simeon Stylites believed that it is the business of a saint to mortify the body. He chained himself to the top of a pillar, and became so loathsome that worms lived in his flesh, and he did not attempt to pick them out because he regarded his sufferings as a means of grace.

How such an idea could have been born out of the teachings of the healthy out-door Jesus is one of the mysteries of the ages. He mortified no bodies. He healed them, built them up, and sent their ter diligent inquiry and study of previous calls coming to the attention of the public has decided that the sum of $300 will be sufficient to take care of the local need for the coming year and recommend that the committee in charge be instructed to raise that amount after the method outlined above."

Clayton-Baggett Wedding Is Pretty Home Affair Mon.

Miss Vivian Baggett, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. E. B. Baggett, Jr., and popular in Ozona's younger social circle, became the bride of Boyd Clayton, Crockett and Pecos County rancher, at a quiet home wedding Monday afternoon at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Paul Ferner, uncle and aunt of the bride.

The wedding was performed at 3 o'clock Monday afternoon by the Rev. J. H. Meredith, pastor of the Methodist church, in the presence of a few close friends and members of the families. Dr. and Mrs. A. W. Clayton, parents of the groom, Mrs. John B. Hemphill, a sister, and Louis Hall, all of San Angelo, were among out-of-town guests.

The young couple left immediately after the ceremony for Fort Stockton. They will make their home on Mr. Clayton's ranch near Fort Stockton in Pecos County.

Another Crockett Well Hits Pay

Gap Between Powell And Young Extension Narrowed

Cushing Gasoline & Refining Co. No. 3 Powell indicated Friday a narrowing of the gap between the main Powell pool in Crockett county and its two-mile southern extension made last summer by Dr. J. D. Young's No. 1 Shannon. Drilling the pay at 2,520 feet and topping at 2,528 feet the well filled up with 1200 feet of oil in 10 hours.

The well is 330 feet from the south and east lines of section 53, block BB, GC&SF Ry. survey. It is about one-half mile southwest of McMan Oil & Gas Co. and Amerada Petroleum Corporation's No. 1 Powell and about three-quarters of a mile north of California Company's No. 1 Shannon, a new producer, offsetting Dr. Young's No. 1 Shannon, on the north. McMan and Amerada hold offset acreage to Cushing No. 3 Powell, on the east.

Mrs. Clay Adams entertained the Friday and Sunflower Bridge Clubs with a delightful luncheon last Thursday at the home of her mother, Mrs. Leila Phillips. The tables were so arranged that the members of each club contested with the other. The Sunflower club had the higher score and its president, Mrs. C. E. Davidson, Jr., was presented with a set of cards. Mrs. W. E. Smith and Mrs. Evert White won high score for the two clubs, small carved Chinese trinket boxes.

Mrs. Elmer Armentrout was taken to San Angelo Wednesday morning in the Jee Oberkamp ambulance for medical attention. She was reported seriously ill.

THURSDAY, JAN. 23, 1930.

Have you paid your poll tax?

Just seven more days left to qualify to vote in the many elections during 1930. First, there will be the road bond election on February 15th. You will need your poll tax receipt to vote in this election. Then will come the primaries and the general election and possibly others.

Poll taxes must be paid by Friday night of next week, January 31 is the last day—and there is no appeal. When January 31 is gone and you have not paid your poll tax you just don't get a vote for twelve months. This is election year, no foolin', and if you want to have a part, visit the tax collector's office now.

Crockett County voters registered their approval of an issue of $375,000 for the purpose of paving 80 miles of highway through the county at an election held December 21 by a majority of nine to one.

That election was held to be illegal by the attorney general's department at Austin for the reason that the rate of interest which the bonds were to bear and the maturity date of the issue was not stated in the election order.

An error was made, a technical error, and the bond issue would not pass the scrutiny of the legal department of the state. That, then must be considered as past history, except for the fact that the people of Crockett County are unmistakably in favor of issuing this $375,000 in road bonds to match state and federal funds to three times that figure for the purpose of paving the Old Spanish Trail from one edge of the county to the other and the Ozona-Barnhart road from Ozona to the Irion County line.

Voters who cast their ballots in the Ozona voting box registered a total of 252 votes for the issuance of bonds with only 19 against. Eight more votes in the Owens box against the issue made the final total 252 for to 27 against. Since the new election order was issued, several of the more prominent opponents of the issue have announced themselves as being for the issue.

The election February 15 should show not a single opposing vote. Unanimous support of the bond issue should be forthcoming, since the majority spoke in such decided fashion in the previous election.

But this factor must be guarded against in the coming election—the tendency of voters to overlook the importance of voting in the second election for the issue. An apathy on the part of supporters of the bond issue might still result in its defeat at the polls for a two-thirds majority is still required in the coming election to ratify the vote as expressed at the polls on December 21.

Don't get the idea that your vote doesn't make any difference or that there will be enough to carry the issue without your vote. Suppose everybody else did the same thing except the few who will vote against the issue in no matter what form it be nor how many times it is up for consideration. Your vote is just as big as anybody's in the county. True, it is a small part of the total vote, but so was everybody's else. It takes the small parts to make the big whole. And remember, too, that in this election the same as the other, it takes two votes for the issue a counteract one against it.

HERE, TOO, BROTHER

Bob Bennett, editor of the Kerrville Mountain Sun, deserves favorable mention for his daring act in inviting the readers of his paper to indulge in a "Cuss the Editor Week." We'll admit that the Sun is one of the best weekly news papers that comes to our exchange desk but why a newspaper man should invite trouble is more than we can figure out. And the main thing we want to know is why it is necessary for any editor to invite cussing when they come in such great profusion unsolicited.

At any rate it is an interesting experiment and we will look forward with a great deal of anxiety to the outcome. If the cussings the Sun editor gets should happen to be of a constructive nature, all will be well and he will have accomplished a great deal, but if it's the kind of cussings and criticisms this editor is accustomed to Brother Bennett will rue the day he made the rash proposition.

Real Values At A Real Store

When you think of women's wear, men's wear, childrens clothing, dry goods, etc., think of Lemmons—not some store in a far-away city, inaccessible and out of sympathy with you and your problems.

What you buy in any store is quality merchandise at a fair price. If a store gives you that, then you are satisfied no matter where it is, are you not? All you have to depend on for quality is the reliability of the maker of the merchandise and the retailer who sells it to you. Certain manufacturers have established a reputation for quality through years of fair dealing and these are the manufacturers whose product we sell.

Nationally advertised brands such as Hart Schaffner & Marx Clothing, Munsing, Carter, Bradley, Phoenix, Wilson Bros, and many others must have quality to bear the reputation they do. Compare our prices on these known quality brands! You will find none cheaper in even the largest city stores.

Buy Where You Live or Live Where You Buy

This is the Fifth of a series of ads on the subject of buying at home. We invite you to read them and consider with an open mind the facts presented.

It's not just another argument when we make the statement that you are helping yourself when you buy in Ozona. This is where you live and every line of business operating here adds to the fullness of your life. If you starve them out, then, by buying your necessities in the cities, you are robbing yourself and your community.

Suppose everybody went to San Angelo to do their banking business. We would soon be without a bank and it would be most difficult to transact business, to say nothing of reverting back to the "hick" town class.

Suppose everybody went to the city to buy their drugs and other lines handled by the drug stores. Our local drug stores would soon have to close their doors and you can imagine the suffering that would follow.

Suppose everybody went to the city to buy groceries, bread etc. Your grocery stores would soon be forced into bankruptcy and you would be without the convenience of a handy grocery store.

Suppose your garages were forced out of business the same way. Think of the difficulty of getting a "dead" motorcar to San Angelo to get it repaired.

Suppose everybody ordered printing and stationery from the mail order printing houses or gave orders to the printing salesmen who make such frequent trips through the town. our printer and newspaper edition would suffer and perhaps close his shop and the sole medium by which news is generally disseminated in the town and by which the outside world judges your town would be destroyed.

Suppose your purchases of dry goods and clothing in the distant city, which cares nothing about you except what you have to spend, drove your local merchants out of business. Wouldn't it be inconvenient to have to go to San Angelo for a spool of thread?

DEVIL-MAY-CARE

by ARTHUR SOMERS ROCHE
ILLUSTRATED BY DONALD RILEY

Synopsis

At a party in Palm Beach given by Mr. Cooper Clary, Leeson, an attorney, meets Lucy Harkness, known as Devil-May-Care, and she leaves a deep impression on him.

Aboard the Minerva Tim declares his love for Lucy but she replies with contempt, after which he tells her she is being kidnapped. She then jumps overboard.

Lucy reaches land and is taken care of by Dr. Faunce, who takes her home.

Later that day Leeson informs her Tim is to be arrested.

Lucy marries Tim Stevens, but leaves him immediately after the ceremony.

While Stevens is hunting his wife, Lucy and Dr. Faunce launch a new boat which is wrecked by a hurricane.

Faunce dived into his cabin; he returned carrying a double-barreled shotgun. And now Lucy noted a bulge in her husband's hip pocket; a delightful anticipatory shudder ran up and down her spine. This promised excitement. Well, she'd always thrived on it.

Over his shoulder, dog-trotting toward the waterway, Stevens called back to his two followers:

"They've probably blocked the roads leading down to the development, and we'd never get through their guard."

"If we sneak up in your row-boat, Fergus, old kid, we'll beat 'em to the punch."

What, thought Lucy, had inspired or caused, or aroused this apparent intimacy between Tim and Fergus? Was it money, the surest bond of all? Did Fergus accept Tim because he hoped to be made wealthy? But that didn't seem like Fergus.

Tim ceased rowing. Ahead could be heard the confused murmur of many voices.

"They're on the first bridge," whispered Tim.

"Then we're too late," she groaned.

She heard an inarticulate ejaculation from her husband. Then:

"Thought you wanted to see a fair fight, Lucy. Well be patient." He leaned toward Faunce, yet in the calm night she heard his words.

"If I can keep one bridge standing, I'm all right," he said. "So... we'll throw 'em off this first one. All set? Aw-right!"

He dug his oars into the water, and the skiff shot around a bend; it was beneath a bridge before the men on it realized what was in their midst. Stevens stood up; his big hands gripped a bridge timber and he had climbed, like any huge cat, upon the bridge itself. She heard his great booming voice:

"Welcome, friends! Didn't expect you or you'd have had a better reception. But, surprised as we are, we'll do the best we can. Do you prefer to be pushed off this bridge or thrown off? We aim to please."

The skiff had drifted under the bridge, and now Faunce was standing up, gripping at the timbers above. She would not be left alone; rising, she stepped the length of the boat, and placed her fingers upon the planking of the bridge. She was standing by her husband just as a voice cried:

"Knock him over; he's all alone."

"Oh, I wouldn't say that," commented Faunce. His shotgun was slung across one arm.

From the shore of the stream another voice called:

"Three of them. Well, there are twenty of us—"

Tiger-like her husband moved. There was a stifled cry, a choking protest, something whirled through the air, and a splash from the stream.

"Only nineteen now," his great voice boomed. "Who's next for the bath?"

There were four men upon the bridge, but as he moved closer, they shrank back.

"Wait a minute," cried a third voice. "I'm the sheriff of this county, and I came here to see that law and order is observed. These people expected trouble and called on me for aid. These men are all my deputies and I order you to cease resistin' their lawful occupations and consider yourself under arrest."

"No one could put it more beautifully," laughed Stevens. "Getting a nice fat bribe, sheriff?"

"By God, don't you hint at me doing anything crooked!" cried the sheriff.

"Was I hinting? Didn't mean to. Let me state it again. I accuse you of being bribed. You're a nasty fat crook, and if you don't take your men to hell off my property, I'll kill a few of you. Do you get me?"

The humor had died from his voice; it was menacing, ugly, full of deadly intent.

"Look here, Stevens. This is Clem Clary speaking." The copper magnat stood upon the bank, close to where the man hurled into the stream had clambered soggily ashore.

"Well, speak," said Stevens.

"The law's with us, Stevens," said Clary. "Better give in, or we'll rush you."

Stevens' answer was not made in words but in action. He leaped forward; his big fist thudded on the jaw of one of the men on the bridge. The man went down, rolled over, and fell into the water. The skirmish ended there. The other three fled. Stevens pursued to the end of the bridge.

With Faunce at his elbow, he addressed Clary:

"I'm armed; so is Dr. Faunce. If one man puts his foot on this bridge we'll shoot to kill. Got it?"

"You're under arrest," bawled the sheriff.

Stevens laughed.

"All right, come take me."

The sheriff moved toward the bridge, but stopped ten feet away.

"Go on, Maddox," cried Clary. "Going to let him bluff you out of it?"

"The only way to find out if a man's bluffing is to call him," said Stevens sweetly. "My chips are on the table. Who calls?"

"Resistin' arrest, breach of the peace—"

Stevens cut short the sheriff's cries.

"I haven't resisted arrest, Maddox. In fact, I've invited you to come over here and arrest me. But you're such a shy little crook—" his voice suddenly broke in rage: "Maddox, you're yellow! Your parents ran away from the Confederate Army and came down to the Florida swamps and spawned like the vermin they were. You'd lynch a nigger when you're a hundred to one, but one bandit laughs at a thousand like you. You shoot in the back and never face to face. You want to arrest me. Well, here I am."

He paused and turned to Lucy.

"Sorry; promised you a real fight, but it takes two to make one."

"You'll regret this, Stevens," said Clary.

"Not half so much as you're regretting it right now," retorted Stevens. "But you're not going to pull down this bridge this night old man. Nor any other night. You may buy a sheriff or a marshal, but a judge is something else again, old top. And say, I'm getting tired of all this. The land you're on is my property, just as this bridge is. Get off it."

"Don't overplay your hand, Stevens," advised Clary.

"No? Much obliged for the advice. But when I gamble I bet all I have. Now I'm betting that there isn't a man in your gang that has the real sand of a rat. . . . Fergus, let's clean 'em out. Shoot the first man that hesitates."

Lucy had read of men dominating a mob, frightening them, but this was no mob that Stevens and Fergus overawed. These were obviously hired bullies, and among them was an officer of the law.

Yet as Tim and Fergus advanced upon them the superior numbers retreated. Even old Clary, who stood ground until the last, suddenly turned and ran. What had promised great excitement, even tragedy, degenerated into farce, into burlesque.

And yet it had not been Tim's fault. The way he had tossed a man into the water, knocked another off the bridge. . . . And Fergus had shown gallantry. These were two magnificent men, no matter what else might be said about one of them. As fighting animals—

They returned to the bridge.

"This midnight stuff is my justification," Stevens was saying. "But when they come back, in daylight, with a proper warrant for my arrest, I sha'n't have the excuse that I didn't believe Maddox was the sheriff. Fergus, we must have an injunction by morning. Now, Judge Leaming is in Palm Beach. He has jurisdiction over this territory. He's at El Verano Hotel. Wake him out of bed, get him to issue an injunction against Clary, against the sheriff, against the town officials, against everybody, ordering them to restrain from destroying these bridges. We've saved the others, you'll notice. They're afraid we mean business and will start shooting. Come back here. Round up a few people to make it look better. They might back an injunction, you know."

He whistled gustily.

"Slip into the skiff; you'll have to wade or swim for it; see it down there against the bank? Row back to Mango Key, hop into your car and make your get-away. Of course they may be laying for you on the way, but show them the old shotgun."

"We'll hope you make it."

"Why couldn't I go, leaving you two to handle them if they decide to try again, if they summon up enough courage," suggested Lucy.

Stevens frowned.

"They won't rush us but they might try a surprise—block the way for a car, and when you stopped, jump you. I don't like the idea of my wife in the hands of that gang."

"Mr. Clary wouldn't let them actually harm me," said Lucy. "He's a wicked old devil, but, after all, I'm a friend of his wife—"

"She's right, Tim," said Fergus. "I ought to stay here with you."

"How in blazes is she going to find Mango Key?" objected Stevens.

"I can row a boat," said Lucy "and when I reach the mouth of

Complete Electrical Equipment

An analysis of electrification in West Texas shows a development startling in its completeness, and almost unbelievable in the brief span of time during which this electrical transformation has taken place.

And yet—the top has just been scratched!

Numberless small communities, and countless individual farmers and ranchers are just awakening to a realization of the extreme economy of electrical service.

They have come to realize that Electricity can perform the tasks at which they have been toiling in a fraction of the time, and at a fraction of the expense of old-time, old-fashioned methods.

Have you fully investigated the many electrical time and labor-saving devices which you can install at small expense, and operate for practically nothing? Come in, and let us talk things over—you will be surprised at the extreme economy of complete electrical equipment.

Spirit Of Youth Looks Forward, Says Swinney In Address

Editor's Note:—At the regular high school chapel period on January 3, Rev. Swinney addressed the students on the subject, "The Spirit of Youth." The following is the substance of the address as reported by Callie McKinney.

The Spirit Of Youth
The essential thing in the "Spirit of Youth" is to "Know Yourself". Life naturally falls into two phases, the mechanical and the artistic. By mechanical one does not necessarily mean that life is one long routine of labor or pleasure. Usually mechanical persons are the rudest ones. They outwardly profess to be having a good time. They think that being noisy and rude will overcome self-consciousness and that others will think their lives are full of pleasure. Inwardly, their lives are drab and colorless. They know that their lives are only a farce.

On the other hand, we do not necessarily mean by artistic one of those long-haired persons with a paint brush and palette in his hand, ready to transfer a picture from his mind to the canvas. An artist is one who dreams. He is sensitive to the sadness, joy and beauty in life. Whether he is young or old the artist's life reflects the spirit of youth.

Life is self-expression. The artist enjoys life. His life is expressed in the spirit of youth. He looks ahead, and is able to visualize things that are to come.

Coming events cast their shadows before as past events cast their shadows back. To illustrate this one may take the coming and the passing of day. When the sun comes up it casts shadows on events to happen that day. When the sun sets the shadows are cast back on the events that happened during the day. We find an illustration of the spirit of youth in the Bible. It tells us that "your old men will dream and your young men will visualize."

Abraham Lincoln was a great man of the North during the Civil War in whom the spirit of youth is reflected. He was an artist. He had power because of his dreams. He early said, "I will prepare, so when opportunity comes, I may take advantage of it." From his early youth we see him preparing. He never lost an opportunity to better himself. When the great opportunity came he was prepared.

Youth of today prepares. In youth one is merely learning to fly. To make one's life a success one should be able to combine the mechanical side of life with the artistic. Madame Curie is an artist who is great because of her ability to combine these two elements.

Some persons are naturally inclined to be mechanical. These are the individuals of the coarser brains. These persons should find out to what extent they are mechanical and should endeavor to develop a taste for the artistic.

Souls of artists go on. They are the leaders. They have creative power. Do not be like "dumb, driv en cattle."

Read shadows as they come before.

The regular meeting of the Ozona chapter of the Eastern Star will take place on the 3rd Tuesday night of each month.

the creek I simply turn north to the left, and when the waterway narrows, I'm opposite Mango Key. The moon's gone, but the stars give light enough. Of course I can do it, if you'll get the boat for me. I hate to be all muddy."

"She's right, Tim," said Faunce again.

Stevens shrugged then yielded. He fetched the boat, placing the oars carefully in Lucy's hands and shoved her off.

"I think I owe you a lot of thanks," he whispered. "You certainly saved my bacon."

"You owe me nothing," she replied. "I owed whatever I did to you."

"How do you figure that?" he inquired.

"Because I believed you were engaged in a swindle. It seems that you were not. One should make payment for unjust thoughts. I've tried to pay."

"This time, then, I'm not a thief?" he asked.

"This time, you're not," she answered.

"Much obliged," he said dryly. His body bent and the skiff went whirling out into the middle of the narrow stream; she bent to the oars.

Judge Leaming descended to the lobby of El Verano and heard Lucy's impassioned statement of the case. The judge, no cracker, but a Southern gentleman, smiled sleepily at the pretty girl.

"Any man that's wise enough to pick you for a wife, Mrs. Stevens, is bound to get an even break in anything, because he's no fool. And he'll get a fair break with this court. You go home and get some sleep and I'll attend to the rest of the matter."

She could trust him, and so she went home, wild though she was to return to Seminole Creek and learn how Tim—and Fergus; Fergus was an afterthought—were getting on.

Famous Medicine Rapidly Becoming Household Word Throughout America—24 Carloads Sold In 25 Days In 27 States—Overwhelming Demand The One Great Outstanding Proof Of Its Wonderful Merit.

Most medicines are sold by the dozen or by the gross. A few are sold in larger quantities, but think of a medicine that sells in such enormous quantities that wholesale dealers are forced to buy it in solid carload lots to supply a demand that has been phenomenal as to almost stagger the imagination.

That's just what has happened with Sargon, the celebrated new medicine that is now sweeping the country like a great tidal wave. Not only is the trade buying it in carload lots, but they are buying carload after carload, each car containing over 20,000 bottles of Sargon and Sargon Soft Mass Pills.

Twenty-four carloads in 25 days sold in only 27 states is the amazing record recently made by these wonderful medicines.

In the State of California where Sargon was introduced in April of last year, it has required 21 carloads to supply the ever increasing demand in this one state alone. Texas dealers required 9 carloads in only four months.

A single New York firm, with wholesale branches in leading cities, is selling at the rate of over a Million and a Quarter bottles a year.

"Phenomenal and bewildering" is the way one of the big drug jobbers of the country describes the marvelous demand for Sargon.

"It's the greatest seller within the memory of the oldest members of the organization," said another.

"We are selling more Sargon than any other ten medicines put together," said still another.

And so it is everywhere Sargon has been introduced. From Coast to Coast and from the Gulf to the Great Lakes, Sargon is known and honored.

Millions upon millions have used it and have told other millions what it has done for them. When suffering men and women find a medicine that helps them, they naturally want to tell their friends about it and in this way Sargon is fast becoming a household word throughout America. Ozona Drug Co., Agents.—Adv.

meat for many years. Except in certain types of disease, intelligent physicians tell their patients to eat meat freely, as nature intended they should. Even in cases of high blood-pressure, modern medical practice is not to cut out meat but to counteract it by the liberal drinking of the juice of oranges or grapefruit.

Stefansson, the Arctic explorer, lived for five years on an exclusive diet of meat, as the Eskimos do, without ill effects. The Smith Sound Eskimos, so Donald Mac-Millan reports, eat only meat and eat that raw, as they do not know how to make a fire!

Sensible people will continue to eat whatever they can digest and as a rule will live longer and happier lives than those who worry about their diet.

ANTIQUES

Almost any old piece of furniture, china, glass or junk, if it is battered enough, can be sold somewhere as an "antique." I attended several country auctions in New England last summer and saw absurd prices paid for trash to which most folks would not give house-room. Yet among them there was always a piece or two which was a real bargain. I bid on a Sheraton table, which might have been fifty years old or a hundred and fifty, but which was of value to me because it would fit my dining room, was beautiful in design and sturdy in construction, and a modern table equally good would cost more than $200. I stopped bidding at $175 and the table went to a dealer who bid $5 more.

Just before Christmas, rummaging through the antique furniture department of a New York store in search of a good mirror at a bargain, I saw this identical table. I asked the price, "Nineteen hundred dollars," said the saleswoman.

As time goes on, old furniture takes on increased value, provided it is well designed, well built and in good condition. The things that our grandmothers threw away are treasures today. Tomorrow much of the junk that we discard may be priceless.

A SMOOTHER, FASTER, BETTER SIX

TO MR. AND MRS. AVERAGE CITIZEN OF OZONA

Regardless of what I think irrespective of your opinion, there is indisputable proof that no individual, business, industry or community ever got any place doing the same old thing in the same old way.

We are all humans, subject to our own peculiarities. We object to change, and most of us detest preaching and dislike being told that every one of us wishes to be healthy, wealthy and wise. We all get in a rut more or less, and true it is that the only difference between a rut and the grave is the depth; and the longer we stay in it the deeper it gets. How readily we discard the old and accept the proven new depends on how deep we have sunk.

Great educators have said that the most difficult undertaking today is to get the people to think. He goes so far as to say that of every one hundred persons, two of them do all the thinking for the other 98. Maybe that's right, BUT maintain that you and I will do our share if we are shown and given a reason why we should think, especially about that which affects our fun and our pocket-books.

In sixteen years experience I have found that you are always willing to listen; and although you do not always act, I lay that to the fact that you have not been given the proper incentive. It is my further belief that you are willing to think about Ozona and willing to do something FOR Ozona if you are given good and sufficient proof that doing either or both will put money in YOUR pocket.

You and I—all of us—have been led by civic groups and through the columns of the papers we read, hundreds of times, that we should do this, and we shouldn't do something else, all for the vague reason that it's good for the community. But if I know you and know my own reactions to such, you are not "sold" on the idea that it's YOUR particular advantage always to practice what they preach. You cannot be sold on anything that you know nothing about—the only way to know about anything is to THINK about it. A cow in a pasture gazes at a speeding railroad train, but does not really see it; the alarm clock rings in the morning, but the house cat goes on sleeping; a crawfish feels and a billy goat smells, but because they never think about it, it does not mean anything. If you could ask them they'd tell you that they did not see why they should be any different.

If you have never got down to brass tacks and tried to think out where you'd get anything out of taking an active part in community affairs, you don't know whether or not there is anything in it for you. If you have never offered to do anything along with other fellows, you don't know whether you would get a kick out of it. The only way to find out is to try it.

You don't have to be one of the big toads in order to "do something". It isn't always money that counts, nor are days of time away from work necessary. The big thing is to get right mentally. THINK about Ozona as a business—YOUR business. Don't holler about it, just think about it as you go along doing whatever you do to make a living.

The fellow who never tries, never knows; and he is the fellow who misses the real fun and the good things of life.

Real Winter Driving Safety .. at no extra cost!

WHEN YOU TAKE TURNS OR CURVES

—the sharp-edged diamond blocks on the SIDES of the Goodyear All-Weather Tread take hold to prevent side-skidding.

SLIPPERY pavements ahead! The days when "Good brakes PLUS tires that slip EQUAL NO brakes."

Look at treads—NOW! If they're worn smooth or have nothing but slippery ribs (sled-runners) down the center, sell us the mileage left in them and let us put on new Goodyear All-Weathers.

More than 20 years have proved the Goodyear All-Weather to be the world's safest and best non-skid tread.

Yet you pay no premium for this protection. In fact, now Goodyears are lower-priced than in any previous winter. Their quality is the highest in tire history and each tire carries a GUARANTEE FOR LIFE against any and all defects—The Guarantee of the World's Largest Rubber Company.

That is why we take such great care to fill every prescription with scientific exactitude, and check up on our work several times before anything goes out of our laboratory. We are conscious of the trust imposed in us.

Business IS GOOD

The only thing that mars our happiness is this cold weather, but the ill wind, believe it or not, actually stimulates Grocery Sales.

1929 was one of the most successful years we have yet operated in, and we are driving into 1930 with the aim of being of still greater service, and so enhance our sales still more.

We are glad to announce that the index price figure of groceries, as compiled within the week at Washington, shows a 7.8 percent drop.

Coffee is at a new record low price. Maxwell House is going at the present at $1.43 for a 3lb can, or 6 of them for $8.25. Try our DeLuxe Asparagus pack string beans at 3 cans for $1. You can't tell they came from a can.

Above All—Don't forget that Phone 3 is the old standby when you really want the best.
