FRAUDS

The Federal Government has begun an active campaign against false, fraudulent and misleading advertising. The Federal Trade Commission has announced a policy of holding newspapers and magazines responsible equally with the advertisers.

One result has been the cleaning up of the advertising columns of the less responsible publications in the past few months. Another result has been to send advertising frauds, especially medical quacks, into radio broadcasting.

Sooner or later broadcasting will have to be regulated, too.

CIGARETTES

The prejudice against cigarettes seems to have practically disappeared. The report of the Bureau of Internal Revenue for the year which ended on June 30th last, shows the largest consumption of cigarettes in history, nearly one hundred and twenty billion of them having been sold during the year. That is an average of 1,000 cigarettes a year for every man, woman and child in the United States!

The idea that cigarette smoking is more injurious to health than the use of tobacco in other forms is still held in some quarters, but medical men generally do not take it very seriously.

Cigarette smoking by women is now commonplace, though until the war there was only one restaurant in New York that permitted women to smoke within its walls.

POLITICS

After all the sound and fury over the ratification of the Naval Reduction Treaty, just nine Senators voted against it.

By the noise they made, and the amount of space which the newspapers gave to the opponents of the treaty, most people were expecting, if not defeat of the treaty, at least a very close vote. In Washington everybody knew better. There never was any real doubt that the treaty would be ratified. All the uproar was merely personal and partisan politics.

The trouble with two-thirds of the so-called "news" that comes out of Washington is that it is misleading. It gives the impression that little men are big men, that their words are intended to be taken seriously.

CREDIT

A few years ago the principal grocer in the suburban town where I was living began to raise his prices. After a few months my family found it so much cheaper to go across the railroad to the "cash and carry" store that they transferred all their trade there. Our old grocer stopped me on the street one day and asked whether he had failed to give satisfaction. I told him I was satisfied with everything but his prices.

He explained that so many rich people had moved to the suburb that he had to charge more, because, as he explained it, the rich took so long to pay their bills! My next door neighbor, reputed a millionaire, had not settled his grocery bill for three years. Instead of refusing to sell him, the grocer was so afraid of losing the "millionaire trade" that he tried to make me, and others like me, who bought for cash, pay interest on the debts of the wealthy.

I was reminded of this by seeing a report of the Department of Commerce on retail store failures, in which it is stated that the principal cause is the extension of credit. It seems incredible that there are people who do not pay for the food they eat, but apparently there are a good many of them.

PLANS READY FOR RUN-OFF PRIMARY HERE

Heated Drive For Governor Expected To Bring Out Vote

ONE LOCAL RACE First Run-Off For Co. Office In History Of Crockett

One of the hottest political campaigns in Texas history will come to a close next Saturday when the voters go to the polls to express their choice for the office of governor and five other state offices. Spirited campaigning by Ross S. Sterling of Houston and Jim Ferguson on behalf of his wife all over the state is expected to result in an unusually heavy run-off vote next Saturday.

Everything is in readiness for the run-off balloting in Crockett County, according to Houston S. Smith, county democratic chairman, and the polls will open in all voting places in this county at 7 o'clock Saturday morning. The polls will remain open until 1 o'clock in the evening.

For the first time in Crockett County history, according to old timers, a run-off is necessary this year to decide the nominee for a county office. O. W. Smith, county tax assessor, is being opposed for re-election to that office by W. M. Johnigan. Mr. Smith was high man in the first primary but failed to get a majority over his two opponents, Mr. Johnigan and Rusty Smith. The two survivors have been conducting an active campaign since the first primary and the influence of this race is expected to stimulate voting in this county in the run-off.

Following is the form of the ballot upon which voters will express their choice in the run-off primary here next Saturday:

For Governor:
MIRIAM A. FERGUSON of Travis County,
R. S. STERLING of Harris County.

For Lieutenant Governor:
STERLING P. STRONG, of Dallas County,
EDGAR WITT of McLennan County.

For Attorney General:
JAMES V. ALLRED of Wichita County,
ROBERT LEE BOBBITT of Webb County.

For State Treasurer:
CHARLEY LOCKHART of Travis County,
JOHN E. DAVIS of Dallas County.

For Commissioner of Agriculture:
J. E. McDONALD of Ellis County,
A. H. KING of Throckmorton County.

For State Railroad Commissioner:
PAT M. NEFF of McLennan County,
W. GREGORY HATCHER of Dallas County.

For Tax Assessor:
O. W. SMITH
W. M. JOHNIGAN

Maggie Mae Kay Becomes Bride Of San Angelo Rancher

Miss Maggie Mae Kay, daughter of W. A. Kay of Ozona, became the bride of Alton Hall of San Angelo at a simple but beautiful church wedding at the Methodist Church here last Thursday evening at 6 o'clock.

The church was decorated with baskets of pink gladioli and the wedding arch was entwined with fern. The bride's only attendant was Miss Beulah Baggett who stood with the couple during the ceremony. Immediately after the ceremony the young couple left for a wedding trip to Colorado Spring, Colo. Mr. Hall is the son of J. E. Hall, stockman of San Angelo. They will make their home on a ranch near Water Valley.

Mr. and Mrs. R. L. Flowers made a trip to San Angelo Tuesday.

Ozona Schools To Open Sept. 1

Opening Exercises To Be Held At Methodist Church

Another week and nine months more of school!

On Monday, September 1, Ozona and Crockett County Schools will get under way for the 1930-1931 session, according to announcement made this week by Supt. John L. Bishop.

Opening exercises will be held at the Methodist Church starting promptly at 9 o'clock on that date, Mr. Bishop said. The exercises will last about 45 minutes. The program for the opening exercises will be announced later.

Following is a list of teachers for the coming term as announced by the superintendent:

Kindergarten, Miss Myla Bohmert of Dallas; First grade, Miss Elizabeth Fussell; Second Grade, Mrs. R. O. Smith; third grade, Miss Norene Allison of Menard; Fourth Grade, Mrs. C. S. Denham; Fifth Grade, Miss Catherine Chapman; Sixth Grade, Mrs. Lowell Littleton; Seventh Grade, Mrs. Tommy Hunter.

High School teachers are: English, Miss Lucile Williamson of Moody, Texas; Math and Coach, O. G. Lewis; Home Economics, Miss Ada Moss of San Angelo; Manual Training and Science, Elbert Sadler; Principal and History, C. S. Denham.

The County school teachers are: Mexican school, Mrs. Rusty Smith and Miss Helen Chapman; Powell Field, Miss Tella Cooke and Miss Mildred Cooke. Teachers for the Pecos Valley and Fort Lancaster schools will be announced in a short time, Mr. Bishop said.

Murphy Assails Ferguson Record

Angelo Attorney Spoke Here In Interest Of Sterling Drive

E. E. (Pat) Murphy of San Angelo, a recent candidate for Congress to succeed Claude B. Hudspeth, spoke to a fair sized crowd at the Crockett County courthouse Wednesday night in the interest of the candidacy of Ross S. Sterling of Houston for governor of Texas. Mr. Murphy dwelt on the life history of Mr. Sterling, his successful business operations and his administrative qualifications that fit him to fill the office of governor of Texas with credit. After citing the untarnished record of Mr. Sterling, the speaker delved into a recitation of the innumerable blots on the black record of Jim Ferguson in Texas politics.

Among other things, Mr. Murphy recalled the scandals of the Ferguson administration which resulted in Ferguson's impeachment from the office of governor and his perpetual disqualification to hold public office in this state. He pointed to Ferguson's juggling of state funds which should have been placed in the state treasury under the law but which were placed on deposit in Jim's Temple bank. He also recalled the fact that Ferguson never accounted for the source of $156,000 in cash which he received while governor, the source of which he refused to divulge.

Mr. Murphy closed with a spirited attack on the pardon records of Jim and Ma Ferguson, calling attention to the sworn statement of Mrs. Jane Y. McCallum, secretary of state, giving the number of clemency proclamations issued by Mrs. Ferguson and reciting the number of robbers, bootleggers, murderers and rapists to whom the doors of the Texas penitentiary were opened by this "good woman."

One case in particular received Mr. Murphy's attention in his recitation of Ma Ferguson's pardon record. This was the case of William Langhorn, Jr., who on Feb-

HELEN CHAPMAN TO GET SUL ROSS CERTIFICATE

ALPINE, Aug. 19.—Miss Helen Chapman of Ozona will be among the 113 students who are to receive degrees, certificates, and diplomas at the summer quarter commencement held at the Sul Ross State Teachers College here Saturday, August 23. Miss Chapman is to be awarded a Permanent Elementary Certificate.

Twenty-eight will receive bachelors degrees and the balance will be awarded diplomas and certificates allowing them to teach in the public schools of Texas. This summer graduating class is the largest in the history of the College. Each year the classes have grown larger.

A. H. Hughey, superintendent of schools at El Paso, will deliver the commencement address.

Edward Jones Death Victim

Brother Of A. W. Jones Succumbs To Heart Attack Tuesday

Edward Jones, 52, a brother of A. W. Jones, proprietor of the Jones Saddlery Company of Ozona, died suddenly at his home here about 3 o'clock Tuesday morning as a result of an acute attack of heart disease.

Mr. Jones had complained of experiencing difficulty in breathing and had moved on the front porch of his home to sleep the rest of the night. Mrs. Jones heard him struggling a short time later and running to him found him dying.

Funeral services were held at Fairmount Cemetery in San Angelo at 5 o'clock Tuesday afternoon. Rev. Elmer Ridgeway, pastor of the First Baptist Church, officiating. The body was buried beside those of other members of the family there. The body was taken to San Angelo in the Joe Oberkamp hearse.

Mr. Jones had lived in Ozona but a short time, coming here from New Mexico. He was a baker at the Flowers Bakery for a time. He is survived by his widow and three children, one brother, A. W. Jones of Ozona, and three sisters, Mrs. Wren Jackson of Best, Mrs. M. C. Ragsdale and Miss Effie Jones of San Angelo.

Among Ozona men who acted as pallbearers were W. S. Willis, J. T. Keeton, O. W. Smith, L. L. Bewley and Tommy Hunter.

22 Ozona Baptists Surprise Pastor In Visit To Del Rio

Twenty-two members of the Ozona Baptist Church surprised their pastor, Rev. M. M. Fulmer, with a "pop call" on him while he was conducting services in the Del Rio Baptist Church Sunday evening.

Rev. Fulmer is in Del Rio with Mrs. Fulmer, who is ill, and since the Del Rio church is without a pastor, he has been conducting services there when he has the opportunity.

The big Ozona delegation marched into the Del Rio church just as services were getting under way and when the pastor had recovered from his surprise he asked the Ozona crowd to stand up and introduced them to the Del Rio congregation.

Following are those who composed the party: Mr. and Mrs. O. W. Smith, Mr. and Mrs. A. W. Jones, Mr. and Mrs. A. C. Hoover, Mr. and Mrs. A. E. Deland, Mr. and Mrs. L. L. Bewley, Mr. and Mrs. George Atkins, Mr. and Mrs. Ernest Dunlap and daughter, Mr. and Mrs. H. O. Word, Mrs. C. J. Watts, Mrs. D. B. Dunlap, Mrs. W. A. Kay, W. L. Rogers and J. T. Keeton.

Lions In Body To Sonora Meet

Group Session Will Be Held In Neighboring Town Mon.

Between 20 and 30 Ozona Lions will leave here about 10:30 next Monday morning to attend a group meeting of Lions Clubs to be held in Sonora beginning at noon.

The Ozona Lions will go in cars and will return as soon as the meeting is over.

Members of the Sonora Lions Club had planned to observe their annual "Pajama Day" with a parade of Lions dressed in pajamas. The Ozona club was invited to join in the parade, but later advices from the neighboring club indicated that the parade had been called off and local club members will go in their usual modest daytime dress. Lions will meet at 10:30 in front of Smith's Drug Store.

Miss Eleanor Ingham entertained members of the club at the regular luncheon Monday with several piano numbers. Miss Gracia Swanson was also a guest for the day and made a brief talk.

18,000 HEAD LAMBS SENT TO FEED LOT

Santa Fe Takes Crockett County Product For Feeding

TO FEED IN KANSAS

Animals To Be Marketed When Fat On Kansas Market

OZONA, Texas, Aug. 20.—Refusing to take the market prices now quoted for range lambs, Crockett County ranchmen have decided to take their chance with the feed lots.

Approximately 18,000 head of Crockett County lambs are now being shipped to Emporia, Kansas, where they will be placed in feed lots by the Santa Fe railroad, fed and later marketed as fat lambs on the Kansas markets.

The Santa Fe has agreed to ship the lambs, feed them and market them as fat lambs, remitting to the growers what is left after the freight and feed bills have been paid.

Among local ranchmen who have agreed to ship their lambs to the feed lots are Joe Pierce, Jr., Vic Pierce, Massie and Wayne West, Ralph Watson and Ad Harvick. Joe Pierce recently purchased about 1400 head of lambs from Alvin Harrell and these will also be shipped.

Ferguson's Brother Denounces Him In A Published Letter

The News has received the following from A. M. Ferguson of Sherman, president of the Ferguson Seed Farms, Inc., and brother of James E. Ferguson, whose wife, Mrs. Miriam A. (Ma) Ferguson, is a candidate for governor in the run-off campaign with Ross Sterling of Houston.

Your report in Sunday's News of Jim Ferguson's harangue at Whiteboro Saturday night, about his personal and political honesty and sacrificing public service, was incorrect in stating that "A. M. Ferguson was on the platform with his brother."

I was present out in the shirt-sleeved crowd to listen, but not to countenance or encourage Jim Ferguson in his race for a proxy governorship of the great State of Texas. I was not on the pine platform at the speaking. Neither am I supporting the claptrap sophistries in his vote-getting political platform. The real Jim Ferguson that I have known from childhood has no more interest in the "common people" than a hog has in a rockpile or a "bee course." His whole life has been centered in "me and my wife, Ma," and those who can be induced to kick in.

The Jim Ferguson I know has at times risen to the highest of real statesmanship. He has met powerful opposition from unworthy but otherwise supposedly respectable influences. The trouble has been that he has not always kept his everyday clothes clean and ready to meet these attacks. He is quite resourceful in pressing out his "Sunday clothes" for campaign Sundays.

In the first primary I announced a willingness to accept Young, Small, Miller or Sterling to beat Ma Ferguson or Tom Love, the Ku Klux first aid to Hoover prosperity. In this run-off primary I expect to vote for Ross Sterling. His home people, down where Jim alleges all of his bad conduct has taken place, are strong for him. I will rely on the report of his neighbors rather than Jim Ferguson.

THURSDAY, AUG. 21, 1930.

FERGUSON AGAIN? HEAVEN FORBID!

Next Saturday the voters of Texas must decide between right and wrong, between honesty and dishonesty, between a man whose record of public service is without blemish and a man who wantonly betrayed a public trust, who was convicted of high crimes in office, who was thrown out of the governor's chair for official misconduct, and forever barred from holding an office of public trust and remuneration in this state, who brought this state into shame and disgrace before the eyes of the rest of the world by the disgusting spectacle of a governor in name holding ready the rubber stamp awaiting the command of the governor in fact who dodged official responsibility behind his wife's petticoat.

To the intelligent, right-thinking voter a choice between these two is absurdly simple. To such a voter there is nothing to recommend Ferguson as qualified for the governor's office. His campaign methods and utterances are repulsive in the extreme and the thought of his return to power without responsibility is repugnant beyond expression.

"Ma" Ferguson has steadfastly remained aloof from the campaign. It is not her campaign, it's Jim's and it is not she that running for governor it's Jim. She won't BE governor, Jim will. She'll sign on the line Jim dots, grant those 2,000 pardons as Jim recommends, at so much per recommend, and Jim will again "sit in" on the Highway Commission sessions.

Some 225,000 voters in Texas expressed a liking for this sort of malodorous proxy government at the polls in July. But more than twice as many more turned thumbs down on it. Every Ferguson supporter will be at the polls next Saturday, and it is up to those who are for honest and responsible government to turn out in full strength to once again squelch this perennial political threat.

THUMBS DOWN

To the half million voters who turned thumbs down on the candidacy of Miriam A. Ferguson in the first primary, there has now come the rejection of Jim Ferguson's own brother. A letter from A. M. Ferguson, brother at Sherman, published throughout Texas this week indicates that those who know Farmer Jim the best respect him the least.

That letter confesses to swallowing personal pride to stay by his brother in the days of impeachment, and then explains ideals of citizenship and recognition of Texas problems that will not admit of "claptrap sophistries" which Jim's platform of promises contains.

"The real Jim Ferguson I have known since childhood," the letter said, "has no more interest in the common people than a hog in a rock pile or a bee course." It continued: "His whole life has been centered in 'me and my wife, Ma,' and those who can be induced to kick in."

Well, it is a terrible indictment of a man when a brother kicks out on a candidate.

It has been said and generally recognized that where there's smoke there is bound to be fire. Jim's brother has seen the fire and knows enough not to be scorched. That letter ought to be one of the convincing arguments of the campaign. Jim's tied up in a family argument of some kind, let's keep it from growing by turning thumbs down on a man who can't maintain his standing among his own kin. —S. A. Times.

JUSTICE TO THE INDIAN

The situation of the Indian in the United States has long been one of the curiosities of our system, in the eyes of foreigners. They can not understand, in the first place, how we ever took this vast continent away from its original inhabitants; least of all can they understand how, having once conquered the Indians, we have kept them as wards of the Nation instead of compelling them to take their chances with white folks.

The answer, of course, as every American knows, is that the Indians were never fit to control or develop the resources of the country, and the natural law of the survival of the fittest operated to give the white man control. From the beginning, American settlers tried to befriend the Indians, and in the main our relations with them have been peaceable. We have felt rather sorry for them in these recent years, and few have begrudged the comparatively small cost of maintaining them on reservations and giving them as much education as they were willing or able to assimilate.

Now Mr. Charles J. Rhoads, United States Commissioner of Indian Affairs, thinks the time has come to get the Indians off the reservations and into the ranks of industry and agriculture as independent citizens. We think nobody will object very much to that except the Indians themselves. Why should they enter into the fierce competition of civilization, struggle for a living, when Uncle Sam can support them?

The older ones on the reservations will not relish being thrust out into the cold, cold world. They have been pauperized so long that they probably could not make a living independently. But if Mr. Rhoads' plan is carried out for improved Indian schools, which will teach the young ones the useful arts, especially encouraging the development of their native handicrafts, in so far as they have any, and will hold up before each Indian child the understanding that eventually he or she will have to take the same chances that white folks take, it may be that in another generation the Indian problem will have been solved because it will have disappeared.

Endurance Gives Out—On One Side—

By Albert T. Reid

After all, it hardly seems fair to have enfranchised the Negro without conferring the same more or less doubtful benefit upon the Indian.

THE TEN MONTHS YEAR

The latest development of the new economics is the proposal by Henry Ford to make the working year only ten months long, giving everybody in industry a two-months vacation in Summer.

Summer, as Mr. Ford so truthfully says, is no time to work in a factory. There are certain times in every industry when a shut-down for overhauling plant, repairs, additions etc., is necessary. Mr. Ford shut down his Dearborn works for a month this Summer, keeping only 30,000 men at work making improvements.

Coming from anybody else it might be laughed off, but when Henry Ford seriously proposes a ten-months year he is to be listened to. First thing anybody knows he will put it into effect in his plant, and then the others will have to follow suit. He doesn't have to go to a Board of Directors to get authority to try experiments he is his own Board. When he put the eight-hour day into effect curses both loud and deep rained upon him from everybody else in the automobile industry, where the nine-hour day was the rule. Nobody would go back to nine hours now. He was the first to establish a minimum wage high enough to enable the worker to spend something for luxuries. Now all great industries run on something like the Ford wage scale. He put the five-hour day into effect, and others had to follow.

One great advantage of the ten-month year, Mr. Ford believes, will be a further reduction of unemployment. Forward-looking men in economics and statesmanship now hold that we shall not achieve complete economic independence for everybody until all workers, at least all whose work is of a nature which can be carried on the year around, are employed on a yearly basis. Few manufacturers are as yet prepared to hire factory workers by the year, but if the commitment is only for ten months it may come easier.

The average man would rather be assured of ten months work than to take his chance on twelve, with the constant risk of being laid off on any payday. With ten months' work at good wages assured, he would welcome the two months' Summer layoff, as a school teacher does. He would not be afraid to make commitments based upon future earnings, for he would know that as long as he did his job he could count on getting his pay for forty-three or forty-four weeks.

From the point of view of democracy, Mr. Ford's project looks like a long step towards giving the wage-earner the same security that the farmer or salaried office worker has.

SHEEPMEN ARE IN FAIR SHAPE

F. J. Hagenbarth, president of the National Wool Growers Association and a recent visitor to Texas, finds the sheepmen of America in a fair condition, with the banks and the loan companies staying with their customers all over the nation.

Says Mr. Hagenbarth: "It appears as if the whole country is on a lower commodity basis, and lambs naturally will be lower but not so low as to 50 per cent off last year's prices. It seems to me that feeder lambs ought to bring seven cents a pound in West Texas under present conditions and not be high at all.

"If we sell off our lambs it means a decrease in the wool production and will increase wool prices.

"I have found in the conventions that I attended that the sheepman isn't to give up but is to stick to the job though they all say they won't make any money this year. It is only a question of how much they can keep from losing.

"There is no room for sheep expansion now and the only way the sheepman can get rid of his surplus is through the channel of consumption. I do not think that many of the sheepmen will go broke. Money is cheap and if the personal equation is all right there should be no trouble in getting loans.

"I think that the country will straighten out soon. People are still living, eating, wearing clothes and the only trouble is that confidence is dead. Personally I have never lost confidence. America is too fine a country to harbor a nation of 125,000,000 folk all thinking they are going to Hell."

"SELLS FOR CASH — SELLS FOR LESS"

Miss Nobody from Nowhere

BY ELIZABETH JORDAN

They were in her sitting-room, and now she rose and walked to the window, where she stood for a moment with her back to him, looking out. Something in her manner made him feel that he could follow her. He did so, and stood beside her as he had done their first evening together in that room. The same memory rose in the minds of both, and under the force of it she turned to face him.

"You're right," she said quietly. "I love you. I didn't realize it till this week. I didn't want you to know it now. But I suppose I've been showing it every time I looked at you or spoke to you."

"Eve!" Her expression stopped his speech and held him motionless.

"I love you," she repeated. "But I'll never marry you, really, till I'm absolutely myself again."

"And when you're absolutely yourself again," he almost groaned, "you won't know me at all. My God, Eve! Think what you're condemning us to, if this thing lasts!"

"And think what I'd condemn us to if I married you while I'm like this and then—" she felt for the right words and verbally underlined them—"come back to find myself the wife of a stranger. That is the way it's said to be, you know in these cases."

"But you love me now," he cried. "You've said so! I can't take it in yet, but you've said so."

"Oh, yes, I love you now," she added slowly. "And I'm depending on you to keep me from making any mistake in that, just as I am depending on you in everything else."

There was a moment's silence while the full significance of the admission came to him, and the earth rocked. The combined love and pity he felt for her in that moment was the most snattering emotion he had ever known. He wanted to seize her and hold her; he wanted to kneel at her feet. He took her hands and looked down at her.

"Eve," he said, as steadily as she had spoken, "if I've won you once, and—thank God!—you say I have, I can do it again! And in the meantime I'll be the happiest and the most patient lover you can imagine."

She continued to look up at him, and he bent with an inarticulate murmur and laid his cheek against hers.

For an instant they clung together, while he felt her tears on his face. Then she sopeked.

"Now I have done it!" she brought out with a childish gulp of contrition. "Now I've dragged you into the heart of this hideous tangle. I hate myself for doing it—for letting you know that I care. But oh, Eric, how could I help it!"

He released her and stood back, steady-eyed but trembling under his apparent calmness.

"That's that," he cheerfully announced. "Now, we'll go down to luncheon. And tonight we'll take in a musical comedy and drop in at Jake's afterward."

"And I'll have to put on the same dancing frock I wore there every night," she smiled gallantly playing up, "because I haven't anything else."

"But what about the dyed hair? You certainly don't have to go around now with it looking this way!" he pointed out.

They stared at each other in consternation.

"After lunch I'll go up to the beauty parlor," she decided, "and ask them to get rid of it for me. That will give you an afternoon off duty."

As the visit to Jake's drew nearer she found herself growing nervous.

"Perhaps he won't even speak to me," she told Hamilton when they were entering the big dancing-room toward midnight.

"Oh, I guess he will," Hamilton spoke soothingly, but it was clear that the matter of Jake's reception was not burdening him mind. Nor did the place disturb him, as he had expected it to. He was now in a state of well-being nothing could ruffle. Eve loved him. Incidentally, he played the game as she would wish him to play it. Looking very handsome in his evening-clothes, he followed the waiter to the table he had reserved, and consulted Eve at every stage of an elaborate supper order.

She, however, found it hard to fix her mind on that vital interest. Her eyes were busy. She saw Maizie and Stella at the far end of the dancing floor, but apparently neither saw her. Queenie and Ivy were not in the room. However, the night was young and they would surely appear later.

She stared around her, intrigued by the chance to study as an observer the scene in which she had so often taken a professional part. In all her nights there she had never been able to sit at a table and really give her eyes to the tableau as a whole, and she did it now, while Eric and the waiter, the latter a man she had not seen before, continued to concentrate their thoughts on the supper problem.

It was met at last and as Eric straightened, preparatory to giving his attention to his companion a familiar voice spoke to Eve. It was Jake's and the new-comers were now subjected to the effulgence of his best professional manner.

"Good evening, sir. Good evening, madam. Is everything all right?"

He recalled the departing waiter, gave him instructions for very special service, and, as the man departed, turned away, making it plain to Eve that no intimation of their former acquaintance would come from him.

"One moment, please," Eve said; and as he stopped she added quickly: "I came in to apologise again for leaving you so suddenly; and I've brought my husband with me. We were married the day after I left here."

She had never before seen Jake smile. The phenomenon was worth witnessing, for it made Jake's cold mask suddenly and warmly human. The two men measured each other with a friendly glance.

"That's all right," Jake said. "I knew there was some good reason."

A little later Ivy and Queenie presented themselves with beaming friendliness and promptly accepted Eric's invitation to supper. Miss Morris refused to be greatly impressed by the marriage, but Ivy's unwinking blue eyes never left the bridegroom.

"Any chance of coming back?" Queenie asked nonchalantly.

"Not the least," Eric said before she could speak.

"I s'pose you know your gentleman friend from Chicago's been blowing in and out since you faded away," Queenie went on thoughtfully stirring an oyster in its tomato bath. "But don't worry, dearie, for he didn't get a thing on you here."

"We didn't know a thing to give him," Ivy tactlessly contributed.

"We wouldn't of told if we had," Queenie austere pointed out, and with a disgusted glance at her friend swallowed the oyster.

Jake reappeared when Eve and Hamilton were leaving and gave them another excellent imitation of his great cabaret model. He also offered Eve a newspaper cutting and watched her face as she read it. It was Henderson's advertisement. She looked up, startled, and handed it to Hamilton.

"Has any one else seen this?" the latter asked quickly.

"Nope. Wasn't sure the lady herself seen it. Thought I better put her wise."

"Thank you," Eve said. "How long have you known about me?" "Saw it the day it came out. Recognized you from it the first night you blew in here," Jake admitted.

"And you haven't spoken of it to any one else?" Eric asked.

"Certainly not. Nobody's business but the lady's."

"You're even kinder than I thought you were," Eve said gratefully, and to Jake's surprise offered him her hand at parting. Eric, too, gave his hand a firm grip.

"Sometime, perhaps, I'll be able to explain," Eve went on. "I can't yet."

Jake shook his shining black head and smiled his rare smile.

"No explanations necessary," he gallantly told the lady. "But I'm sure glad to know everything's all right now." His black eyes were very human. "Glad someone's looking after her," he brought out in a rush. "Waskinda worried."

It was his exit line from their lives.

"And yet some people think this is a hard world," Eve told Hamilton as their taxicab made its slow way through the Tenderloin's congested traffic. "I've had nothing but kindness. If I hadn't . . . I wonder what would have become of me if I'd met the sort of experience one often reads about?"

"It doesn't bear thing of," Hamilton recalled his thoughts on the night of Eve's disappearance and added hastily: "I'm glad we went to that place. Seeing it, and meeting that chap Jake, have changed my feelings about it."

"I thought they would," Eve smiled. He glanced at her quickly.

The Chicago agency's reply to Eric's telegram had promised a full report by mail. The document itself came on the morning of the fourth day. It was a complete report. It even included the names and addresses of Eve's Chicago physicians and of the nurse who had attended her. Out of it, however, Henderson rose in triumphant vindication.

Hamilton telephoned Carrick the confirmation of the manager's

NO ANSWER

The traffic light flashed red, and a big car stopped short. The car behind it brushed the front car's fender. Nothing of any importance. Just a bump.

Instantly, the driver of the first car was on the pavement. No one could bump him with impunity. He'd show the world.

I stopped to watch the performance, and the action of the other driver gave me a smile. Mild and innocent, he sat. He did not turn his head. He never said a word.

When the traffic light flashed green he stepped on the gas and moved away. His angry accuser had to climb back into his driver's seat, and before he could get going angry horns were blowing all around him.

He had had the satisfaction of his outburst, but the silent man won.

Years ago I received a very bitter letter. The writer was wrong in his facts and unjustified in his tone.

I carried the letter around in my pocket. Several times I started to dictate a hot reply. Then I would think of something meaner and decide to wait and try again.

On the third morning I had an inspiration. "The most paralyzing answer I can send to this man is no answer at all," I said to myself. "What is he doing all this time? Looking eagerly in every mail to find my letter. Planning out in his mind the things he will say in reply. Mentally lashing me to the mast."

"And I am going to disappoint him. I'm going to leave him there, all bottled up, stewing in his own juice."

Peace came over me. I never thought of the man again.

It's not an original idea. John D. Rockefeller, in his younger days was working away at his desk one afternoon when a man rushed in to his office and began to denounce him in violent terms.

Mr. Rockefeller leaned back and listened as if to a story of fascinating interest. He did not utter a word.

Presently the man exhausted himself, and walked out, looking rather foolish. Mr. Rockefeller quietly picked up his pen and went on with his work.

There is a very wise old verse which reads: "The meek shall inherit the earth."

Is it true? Look around you. The meek do not make a spectacular showing. They lose many opportunities to announce their rights, and defend their honor, and show what tough fellows they are.

But they certainly do inherit.

Discoverer Of Carlsbad Caverns In El Paso; Out Of Work

By L. C. TOWNSEND
El Paso Herald Staff

Jim White is out of a job.

The man who discovered the Carlsbad Caverns in 1901 and who fought for their development as a government park; the man who risked his life to traverse unexplored crevices; the man who led the first party of sightseers thru the winding trails—now watches the thousands of tourists go thru the entrance of the cave and wonders when a government which made possible the popularity of his discovery will keep its word.

When Jim White turned the caverns over to the government in 1926 it was with the understanding that he would be named chief explorer and allowed to continue his explorations of the underground empire, with a salary which would compensate him to some extent for the work he had done in developing the caverns.

When the matter was taken up with Washington it was found that no such position as chief explorer was on the lists of the park service. It was then proposed to create the office in order that Jim White might have a job—a job which is dear to his heart and which would enable him to go on with the work he loves.

The matter apparently was tabled, and now prominent El Pasoans are working on behalf of Jim to get him a job which will allow him to keep up his explorations. Jim isn't broke, but he finds it mighty hard to sit with his hands folded after the strenuous life he has lived. He wants to get back down in the caves, with the bats, and perhaps uncover marvels of nature which will crowd out the present caverns as puny and insignificant.

Jim was building a drift fence in 1901 when his horse sidestepped a big hole in the ground. Jim was curious about that hole and finally decided to see what was inside. He spent an entire day making a limited exploration covering perhaps a mile of territory.

He went back to Carlsbad and told of the wonderful discovery he had made. People laughed at him then, the same as they have laughed at other pioneers. Jim, however, was confident there was much more to that underground cavern so, with a young Mexican boy as a companion, he made another trip into the cavern preparing beforehand with lanterns and torches, food and blankets. They spent three days in the caverns, making an extensive survey.

Jim went back to Carlsbad and called for volunteers to accompany him into the caves. Sixteen men responded and he took them thru the giant room he had discovered. From then until he turned the caverns over to the government for a national monument, Jim White led tourists through the caverns. Much of the money he collected as guide fee went back into the building of roads and trails.

Jim is modest about his work so far underground. However, he braved dangers which would test the mettle of many younger men. Once, for instance, he found himself far from his source of supplies, with but one tiny gas mantle on his gas torch to lead him back over treacherous trail. Most of the way he "straddled" a deep crevasse; had his one remaining light failed, Jim White would never have come out alive.

"The caverns are more and more popular every day," Jim said in El Paso a few days ago. "There is one of the greatest wonders of nature in the world. You could put Mammoth Cave right in the middle of the back cave and not know it was there. Modern engineering has added much to the comfort of the tourist, and it is a far cry from the crude torch I used back in 1901 to the electric light system now in use. An elevator might be all right to bring folk out, but if an elevator was used in going down, much of the natural beauty of the caves would be missed."

Ranchman Solves Water Problem

BRADY, Aug. 9.—E. B. Deland, who has been in the trucking business at Ozona for eighteen years, has solved the problem of getting water on his place on Calf Creek near here after thirty years. He dug a water well to 652 feet at a cost of $1,400 before getting water. He has a 320 acre place there which he rents out. For thirty years water has been hauled to the place.

Chevrolet Announces Reduction Of Prices

DETROIT, Mich., Aug. 14.—Price reductions of $40 on all sport models in the Chevrolet Six passenger car line were announced here today by H. J. Klingler, vice-president and general sales manager of the Chevrolet Motor Company.

The models affected are the Sport Roadster, which is now priced at $515; the Sport Coupe, reduced to $615; the Club Sedan, now $625, and the Special Sedan, $685. All models formerly were priced $40 higher.

This latest move of the company brings the price range of the Chevrolet Six to less than the range of the four cylinder Chevrolet at the time of the changeover at the close of 1928. At that time the four was priced from $495 to $715, while the nine different passenger models in the six cylinder line today range from $495 to only $685, following this latest reduction.

METHODIST NOTES

Preaching Sunday morning at 11 a.m. Last Sunday we preached on "What is God Like?" Next Sunday we will consider how much of the Godlikeness man has.

On Sunday, September 21st, Bishop Sam B. Hay will dedicate the Methodist church. We trust that every member will now plan to be present on that occasion. Further announcements will follow as our plans are completed. There will be an official board meeting at the Methodist church Sunday afternoon at 9:30.

J. H. Meredith, pastor.

SPECIALS

Needless to say, they are a bid for your business. You will, each of you, get a "Special Sheet" thru the mail each week. They last one day only. The idea that "Up Town Fixins" have to be high priced is wrong. They do not, but they do have to sell merchandise in volume.

The fact that we have the volume, allows the most reasonable "Service Prices in Town." We are next to the oldest Grocery Firm in Ozona, operating under the same name. Our prices are a little better, our service—with good will, our weights 16 oz to the pound, our packages are not flimsy, and our merchandise the best money can buy.

IT'S WISE TO  CHOOSE A SIX

Announcing a new production record

2,000,000 Chevrolet Sixes now on the road

Since January, 1929, Chevrolet has produced and sold over 2,000,000 six-cylinder automobiles—nearly five times as many as any other manufacturer has ever built in an equal length of time.

These 2,000,000 buyers have chosen Chevrolet because it offers many desirable qualities not obtainable in any other car so low in price—

—the smoothness, silence and flexibility of a modern six-cylinder engine—the comfort and roadability of a modern, full-length chassis—and the style, safety and distinction of bodies by Fisher.

Yet, despite these fine car advantages, the Chevrolet Six is unusually economical. Its gas, oil, tire and upkeep economy is unsurpassed. And

Biggest Lamb Crop In 3 Years

Texas Alone Of Range States Shows Decrease Over 1929

DENVER—The United States has the heaviest crop of lambs in three years and the largest part of the increase is in the 13 western range states, according to estimates compiled by the regional office of the Bureau of Agricultural Economics, Department of Agriculture here.

The percentage of increase in these western states—Texas, Montana, Wyoming, Colorado, New Mexico, Arizona, Utah, Nevada, Idaho, Washington, Oregon, California and South Dakota—9.5 over 1929 as against an 8 per cent increase for the nation and amounts to approximately 1,600,000 head and was due both to a larger number of ewes and to higher percentage lamb crops in most states. All of the western states show more lambs than in 1929 except Texas, in which there is a slight decrease.

Texas stands first in the number of breeding ewes with 3,163,000 as against Montana's 3,011,000, the next largest number. However, Texas had only a 62 per cent lamb crop as against an average of 81 per cent with the result that the estimated number of lambs docked in Texas is but 1,961,000. This puts Texas fourth in number of lambs. California is first with 2,471,000; Montana second, 2,433,000; Wyoming third, 2,050,000.

The 1930 crop of lambs in the western states is 7.5 per cent larger than the 1928 crop, and about 20 per cent larger than the crop of 1927.

The estimated number of lambs docked in this area this season was 18,724,000; in 1928, 17,433,000; and in 1927, 15,278,000. It will be noted that the current lamb crop is nearly 3,500,000 head larger than that three years ago.

The average percentage lambing for this group of states in 1930 was 81 per cent, compared with 77 per cent last year, 84 per cent in 1928, and 79 per cent in 1927.

With the beginning of 1930 there were about 23,157,000 ewes one year old and over in this group of states. This was about 800,000 more than inventories showed a year earlier. During the last three years the number of breeding ewes in the range sheep states has increased about 3,800,000 head or nearly 20 per cent. Present holdings of yearling ewes are more than ample to fill normal replacement needs in flocks this fall, but further immediate expansion in breeding stock is not expected.

Of the 18,724,000 lambs docked in western states this season over 22 per cent can be classed as "early lambs." This is the same percentage as last year. The rate of increase was practically the same for both early and late lambs. Included in this early lamb classification are all of those moving into market channels prior to September 1. Most of the early lambs are produced in California, Idaho, Oregon, Washington and in Arizona.

THE FAMILY DOCTOR

By JOHN JOSEPH GAINES, M.D.

WARNINGS

No—your backache is not an indication of kidney disease, or, it's the poorest, to say the most for it as a symptom. Let me enumerate several points however, that should send you to the doctor post-haste, if you have been uneasy about this particular set of eliminative organs:

—First, a progressively-increasing shortness of breath, that you just can't account for; this will with increasing weakness and rapid heart that interferes with your ability to do your ordinary work.

—Second, you notice a puffiness under the eyes—and maybe you have noticed black spots when looking at white surfaces; just tiny dots they are, and might escape your notice. With the puffiness of the lower eyelids, you may observe a decided swelling of the hands—not painful—just a "bloat."

Third, and getting more alert, you may notice a getting up from bed to relieve the kidneys—so many times that it really interferes with sleep; the amount may not be considerable, but it is the frequency of voiding that counts as a symptom. Even if you abstain from drinking water evenings you get up just as often. The appearance of the fluid voided is of little value to you as an indication of disease; it may be clear and innocent-looking—or dark-red and scalding. It is your physician's business to determine the real condition.

Fourth—look with suspicion on headaches that occur mainly at night—along toward morning worst. Those that are a frequent thing—persistent—and do not yield to your taking liver medicine.

These symptoms are usually concurrent, that is all work together—it your kidneys are out of order; the more severe they are, the worse neglected your kidneys have been. Go to the doctor at once.

story and added a breathless question:

"How much can I tell her?" "Nothing," Carrick ruled.

"But—" "Not one word. I've felt sure the story was straight, just as you did, so I've been getting ready. We'll make our experiment in a day or two, and I'll give you the details in an hour if you'll drop into my office. Can you get away from Miss Carrington long enough for that?"

This was Carrick's idea of a joke and Hamilton ignored it. But he was on time for the appointment, and the psychiatrist, after greeting him exuberantly, talked for an hour.

"I think it's an awful risk," Hamilton muttered.

"Are you setting up your judgment against mine?"

"Yes."

Carrick laughed. "Well, don't," he advised. "But I'll come down to the Garland during the morning and put Miss Carrington through some more tests." He added, reëntering. "They've sent the anxious bridegroom out of his office with a friendly push on the shoulder."

Hamilton was not an easy man to deceive. At five that afternoon he was again in Carrick's consulting room, expressing the additional doubts that had come to him after the unsatisfactory results of the tests. At last Carrick, despite long experience with the anxious friends of patients, lost his temper.

"You realized, didn't you, that she didn't respond to any of the tests I made this morning?" he snapped.

"You bet I did."

"Not even the piano meant anything to her, did it?"

"It didn't seem to."

"And she's still afraid—paranoid at times?"

"Yes. She says she has even given up the notes she made and carried around with her. They end the day she left Jake's."

"All right, then. Do you want her to remain in this state indefinitely?"

"God knows I don't."

"Then prove it. Open your mind and take in the fact that sterner measures are necessary. The important thing now isn't what you think, but what you've done. Have you done what I told you to do?"

That on or about June 1st, A. D. 1930, plaintiffs were lawfully seized and possessed of the following tract of land situated in Crockett County, Texas, and being all of Crockett County abstract No. 264, Certificate 4883, Block MN, Survey, S. G.C.&S.F. E. Co. survey containing 666.4 acres of land, patented to George E. Clymer, May 12th, 1882, patent No. 346, Volume 79; that on the day and year aforesaid defendants unlawfully entered upon said land and premises and ejected plaintiffs therefrom and unlawfully withheld from plaintiffs the possession thereof to their damage Five Thousand and No-346 Dollars; that the annual rental value of said land is Four Hundred Dollars; that for more than ten years last past plaintiffs and their predecessors in title have had and held peaceable and adverse possession of said land, cultivating, using and enjoying the same, rendering and paying taxes thereon each year as they accrued, and claiming same under deeds duly recorded in Crockett County, Texas; wherefore, plaintiffs pray judgment of the Court that defendants be cited to appear and answer this petition, that plaintiffs have judgment for the title and possession of the above described land, that writ of restitution issue, and for rents, damage, and costs of suit, and for such other and further relief, special and general, in law and in equity, that they may be justly entitled to.

Heretofore, plaintiffs have before said Court, at its next regular term, this writ with your return thereon, showing how you have executed the same.

Given under my hand and seal of said Court, at office in Ozona, Texas, On this the 25th day of July A.

UNDERCONSUMPTION MEAT GROWERS' GREAT PROBLEM

The meat trade is susceptible to conditions of underconsumption declares the Dallas News editorially in agreeing with views recently expressed by T. A. Kincaid, president of the Sheep & Goat Raisers' Association. Mr. Kincaid had voiced a protest that the retail price of meat was high in comparison to that received by the producer. Comments the News:

"The president of the Texas Sheep and Goat Raisers Association thinks that the retail price of meat is too high. The Dallas housewife frequently has the same thought. But Mr. Kincaid is speaking in comparison with the price paid for the animal on the hoof. Usually low prices to the producer are the result of overproduction. As Mr. Kincaid views a disagreeable situation, the producer gets a small price because he raises a bigger supply than the retailer can absorb under present conditions, and the retailer receives a high price for his wares because the demand is slack. Underconsumption, not overproduction, is the trouble with the meat industry."

"Unquestionably, this particular branch of the food trade is susceptible to conditions of underconsumption. It is a foregone conclusion that the world will use a normal supply of grains and vegetables. But meat has been made the target of dietary thought, and some students of the human machine urge no meat at all, others only a restricted use of it. Between vegetarians and patients put on a dietary basis to an exclusion of meat foods, the industry has seen the demand for its output curtailed."

"It is still a phenomenon of trade that retail prices seldom decline as sharply as wholesale. In spite of low wheat prices, bread is still holding its pre-decline level. Baking products seem to reflect the same condition. It pleases neither the consumer nor the producer, but perhaps there is joy in the situation somewhere between the two."

"Yes, granny, I'm to be married in June."

"But, my dear," said Grandma,

"you are very young. Do you feel you are fitted for married life?"

"I am being fitted now," exclaimed the prospective bride.

"Seventeen new gowns."

Is Santa Claus in the Tire Business?

We lose a sale occasionally because of a long trade, and we always ask the buyer if his old tires were worth what he got for them.

Invariably he says, no. We ask you—what's the answer? Is Santa Claus in the tire business? Is the dealer merely practicing? Or did his big, tender, overflowing heart just get the best of him?

No foolin', now—what's the answer? Is Christmas a continuous event, or is someone keeping the doughnut and selling the hole?

We allow you for your old tires only what they're worth. We charge you for our fine new Goodyears only what they're worth. You get a square deal and so do we. And as long as we are in our right minds nobody'll get anything different.

To The Voters

Rotation in office is a Democratic principle well established in both state and national governments. Long tenure of office tends toward destruction of the principle of "government of the people, for the people and by the people"—tends to lessen the responsibility of officers.

It is upon this issue that I submit my candidacy for the office of TAX ASSESSOR of Crockett County in the run-off primary to be held in Crockett County on August 23.

My ability to serve the people of this county in the capacity of tax assessor has prompted my entry in the race to re-establish the Democratic principle enunciated above and I am giving the best of my ability in making the campaign as I will in performing the duties of the office if I am elected to serve.

My record as a citizen of Crockett County for 23 years is well known and I am willing to leave the issues involved to a decision of the voters on August 23.

Utilities Co. To Adopt New Plan

Residences To Be Operated On one Meter In Future

ABILENE, August 20.—A new system of domestic electric rates, measuring all service through one meter and affecting a 20 per cent reduction on the second and third blocks, has been announced from the General office of the West Texas Utilities Company at Abilene. The new rate schedule is effective on current billings.

With the object of encouraging a greater use of electric current service, the new rate schedule allows a premium to those domestic customers taking fuller advantage of the conveniences of electric service.

The new schedule makes it possible to use all household appliances including electric refrigerators and ranges on one-meter service. The company has been working the last two years adjusting its rate schedules through the properties so as to be able to perfect a plan allowing one-meter service and at the same time have a rate with a strong incentive for a customer to use several times as much service as under the old rate without materially increasing his total bill.

This is in line with long-established policies of the West Texas Utilities Company to lower rates as economies and increased business will permit.

It was pointed out that "costs are established by the customer's acts; by the amount of electricity he elects to use; by the time and place at which he chooses to use it; and by the duration of his use."

The consuming habits of the Company's patrons—and principally those patrons who comprise the domestic market—really control the cost of providing electric service."

The Company plans to release, through the local newspapers in the towns served, a series of educational advertisements explaining the new rate schedule and enlarging upon the economical conveniences of increased electric service.

January 3, 1925, committed one of the most shocking crimes in Texas criminal annals. Out on a lonely road near LaGrange, in the dead of night, Langhorn shot one young girl companion to death and violently assaulted another, choking, cutting and beating her nearly to death. All of this he confessed in detail.

After a fair and impartial trial, Langhorn was sentenced to death by a jury at LaGrange, sentence being deferred until the case had been reviewed by the higher court on appeal. It was two years later when the higher court finally affirmed the verdict of the LaGrange jury and Langhorn was haled into court for sentence to death. Before sentence could be pronounced by the court, Langhorn's attorney, T. H. McGregor of Austin, waived a paper which proved to be a commutation of death sentence to life imprisonment signed by Mrs. Miriam A. Ferguson as governor of Texas. This commutation of sentence was issued by Mrs. Ferguson before she left office in January, 1927, while the case was still pending before the higher court, a case unparalleled in Texas history.

Several days before the sentence was finally passed on, Mr. Murphy quoted from the records, a deed of trust was executed by young Langhorn's parents to a party for the benefit of Jim Ferguson and T. H. McGregor to about 3,000 acres of valuable land in Washington County, valued at about $90,000.

Mr. Murphy closed his address with a plea to the people of Crockett County to vote solid for Ross S. Sterling for governor and predicted that the Ferrisons would be snowed under in the vote in the run-off primary in Texas next Saturday.

Mr. and Mrs. R. L. Flowers returned from their honeymoon Friday night and are now at their new home in the south of town.

Mr. and Mrs. Bascomb Cox and children, Ora Louise and L. B. Cox, Jr., went to San Antonio Tuesday.

Biggest Lamb Crop

Summer ranges are now generally satisfactory, exceptions being noted in portions of Montana and other spots in the Great Plains area further south. In most sections, however, water and moisture reserves are rather short so that prospects for range feed and water later in the season on the whole are none too good. Indications now are that dry ranges will result in forced shipments from some Montana districts and possibly from a few other scattered localities. Present conditions point to about average development of the late lamb crop, better lambs than in 1929 being expected from the Great Basin area and surrounding ranges, while lambs will probably average below normal in many localities through the Great Plains section and in portions of the northwest. Losses of sheep and lambs through the range area since last winter have been much lighter than during 1929, and can be considered about average.

Contrary to the situation that has prevailed in recent years, there are very few lambs under contract for late summer and fall deliveries, and there is practically no activity in the way of contracting lambs at the present time.

The United States lamb crop of 1930 is about 8 per cent larger than the crops of 1929 and 1928 and about 18 per cent larger than the 1927 crop. The indicated lamb crop for 1930 is 28,458,000 compared with 26,441,000 in 1929; 26,363,000 in 1928; and 24,133,000 in 1927. The number of lambs saved per 100 ewes one year old or over on January 1 was 87.3 in 1930; 83.9 in 1929; 89.1 in 1928; and 87.2 in 1927.

The larger lamb crop this year was due to increases in both the native and western lamb states. The crop in the native lamb states this year was about 4 per cent or 400,000 head larger than in 1929. This increase was due to an increase in the number of breeding ewes and a slightly larger number of lambs saved per 100 ewes. The native lamb crop was 9,734,000 in 1930; 9,326,000 in 1929; 8,930,000 in 1928; and 8,875,000 in 1927.

The number of breeding ewes in the United States on January 1 was 32,602,000, an increase of about 3.5 per cent over the previous year and 10 per cent larger than on January 1, 1925. The number of breeding ewes in the 13 western states on January 1 was 23,157,000 head compared with 22,350,000 the previous year and 20,820,000 in January, 1928. On January 1, 1925, the 13 western states had 18,130,000 breeding ewes and have shown a 28 per cent increase during the last five years.—S. A. Times.

The Value Of EXPERIENCE

In governmental positions as well as in the realm of business experience is a valuable asset. And if that governmental position is itself a business, then experience is all the more to be desired. The cumulative value to the people of years of service is hard to overestimate. Hence a qualified, experienced official should not be lightly laid aside.

I am making the run-off campaign for re-election as TAX ASSESSOR of this county on the record that I have made during the years that I have served you and presenting my claims for your support in this primary on the basis of my qualification and experience. So long as a public servant is true to the trust placed in him, gives the best that he has in serving the county, and has the experience and ability to continue to render satisfactory service, why not keep him in office?
