Junction Swamps Ozona Grid Squad

Last Pennant Hope Is Blasted By 31-0 Defeat Monday

The Junction Eagles, strong contenders for District 12 championship honors, trampled the Ozona Lions underfoot on the Eagle gridiron Monday afternoon to the tune of 31 to 0, the second defeat in a row for the Lions at the hands of heavier teams, the first at Kerrville the preceding week-end.

Although the Ozona lads played one of the best games of the season they were so far outclassed in weight and wealth of material that their chances were practically nil from the start. They made one serious threat, however, at the Eagle goal, advancing the ball to within three yards of the goal line. An incomplete pass over the goal line, however, gave the ball to Junction on their own 20-yard line.

The Eagles displayed nothing but straight football, with a few passes attempted, but most of the gains were on line plays and end runs. The Eagles will have to show their metal on Thanksgiving Day when they meet the Kerrville Antlers in the deciding game of the championship race in the west half of District 12.

Nearly a hundred Ozona rooters attended the Armistice Day game in Junction. Following are some of the local fans who were seen at the game: Mr. and Mrs. John Bailey and Miss Bernice Bailey, Mr. and Mrs. Monroe Baggett, Mr. and Mrs. Wescott Cox, Mr. and Mrs. O. G. Lions Observe Armistice Day

Ex-Service Men Recall Their Experiences In World War

Armistice Day was fittingly observed by the Ozona Lions Club in its regular Monday luncheon at the Hotel Ozona this week.

Talks on their World War experiences were given by J. T. Keeton, who was with the motor transport corps in France, John L. Bishop, United States Marines, who was in a hospital suffering from an attack of the flu when the Armistice was signed, and Rev. J. H. Meredith, who did work in the Army Y. M. C. A. in Texas and Oklahoma during the time America was in the war. Tribute to the war dead and wounded was given by Rev. M. M. Fulmer and the club stood for a moment in silent tribute to those who sacrificed their lives or health for the Allied cause.

Guests of the club for the day were Rev. J. Ed. Morgan, Methodist evangelist, and Walter Willis, song leader, who are conducting a revival meeting at the Ozona Methodist Church, both of whom made short talks to the club.

Woman's Club Will Observe Federation Day On November 26

The luncheon will be a club affair for active, associate and honorary members, the refreshments to be contributed by club members. A special program for the hour will be worked out by Mrs. Vic Pierce, chairman of the entertainment committee.

The regular literary program, a study of the Eugene O'Neill play "Strange Interlude", was carried out in the Tuesday meeting. Mrs. Elvert White was leader. Mrs. Vic Pierce hostess and Mrs. R. R. Dudley presented a review of the early life of O'Neill.

Mrs. Floyd Henderson is in a San Angelo hospital where she is recovering from a recent operation.

Baptists To Observe Thanksgiving With Sunrise Services

In accordance with the custom inaugurated two years ago, the Thanksgiving Services at the First Baptist Church will be Sunrise Services.

"We trust that this service will be community wide in its nature and blessings," Rev. M. M. Fulmer, Pastor, said. "Start Thanksgiving off right by coming to the house of God and rendering thanks. The service will begin promptly at 7 a.m. Be on hand for a blessing. The offering of the morning will go to the relief of local poor."

Baptist Revival To Start Dec. 1

Strong Evangelist Team Secured For 2 Weeks Meeting Here

The annual revival meeting of the First Baptist Church is scheduled to begin December 1st and continue two weeks, the pastor, Rev. M. M. Fulmer, announced this week. The church has been fortunate in securing the services of two exceptionally fine men to lead the work this year. Pastor C. R. Shirar of the First Baptist Church, Temple, will do the preaching and Evangelist Joe Canzoneri of Jackson, Mississippi, will lead the singing.

These men make a strong team. Rev. Fulmer declared. Rev. Shirar is a young man, a successful revivalist and outstanding pastor. He has been with the First Baptist Church for about a year, going there from Breckenridge. While at Breckenridge that church was one of the ten in Texas to lead in number of Baptisms. Rev. Canzoneri (Brother Joe, he is familiarly called) stands in a class to himself, the pastor says. An Italian by birth, converted from Roman Catholicism, he has a genuine experience. A feature of the meeting will be his recounting his experience. For a number of years Brother Joe was associated with Evangelist Perry Evans, well known in Ozona.

Pastor Fulmer is well acquainted with the lives and gifts of these men. He was in College and Seminary with Brother Shirar and has had Brother Joe in meetings in Mississippi. The whole community ought to get a blessing out of this meeting and are cordially invited and urged to attend. "Come thou with us and we will do thee good."

$375,000 ROAD BOND ELECTION SET FOR DEC. 21

Commissioners Act On Petition Of Citizens Presented Monday

110 SIGN PETITION

Approval Of Voters Would Provide $1,500,000 In Roads

Saturday, December 21, is the day fixed by the Commissioners' Court, in session late Wednesday afternoon, when the property tax-paying voters of Crockett County will decide at the polls whether or not they will issue bonds in the sum of $375,000 for the purpose of matching state and federal funds for the construction of $1,500,000 worth of good roads through this county.

The election date was fixed by the Commissioners' Court by unanimous decision in response to a petition signed by 110 property tax-paying voters of the county, some of them the largest taxpayers in the county, asking that the election be called for the purpose of voting on the proposed bond issue.

The proposed bond issue is for the purpose of applying on construction, maintenance and operation of "macadamized, graveled or paved roads and turnpikes or in aid thereof within the said county, to-wit:

"Highway No. 27 (Old Spanish Trail) through said Crockett County, from the Sutton County line via Ozona to the Pecos River, and also from said Highway No. 27, at Ozona to the Irion County line. (Ozona-Barnhart road.) Such bonds to bear interest at a rate and mature at such time as may be fixed by the Commissioners' Court, such election to be held and returns made as in general elections. All qualified voters who are property taxpayers may vote at said election. All voters desiring to support the proposition shall have written or printed upon their ballots the words 'For Issuance of Bonds,' and those opposed the words 'Against the Issuance of Bonds.'"

Confirmation of the action of the State Highway Department in granting three-to-one state and federal aid on the Crockett County project was obtained by members of the Commissioners' Court in a long distance telephone conversation with Judge W. R. Ely of Abilene, a member of the Highway Commission.

Judge Ely declared that the state would designate the Barnhart road as a state highway and would grant state aid on that part of the project and take over the road for maintenance.

A two-thirds majority of all votes cast is necessary to carry the bond issue, it was pointed out by officials Wednesday. All qualified voters who pay a property tax of any kind are qualified to vote in the election.

THURSDAY, NOV. 14, 1929.

An encouraging note comes from the State Highway Department in Austin relative to the proposed highway construction program in Crockett County, not only bolstering up the report of the Crockett County representatives who appeared before the Commission on behalf of this county's road needs, but promised even better consideration to this county in the way of highway needs.

Recent news dispatches from Austin, in the state papers, carried the views of the Highway Department and of the state Highway Engineer, Gibb Gilchrist on highway building projects in West Texas, speaking particularly of the Petroleum Highway from San Angelo to Fort Stockton.

In that article, the highway engineer was quoted as saying that the highway commission had promised to build $1,560,000 worth of highways in Crockett County if this county would put up only $375,000. This is $60,000 more than three to one for this county, added consideration extended by the state and federal governments to this county by reason of the fact that much of the proposed highway building would be done through University lands which are tax-free.

The fact that the state highway department has made public pronouncement of its promise to Crockett County in another connection entirely from that concerning the actual visit of the Crockett County delegation to Austin bears evidence that the commission's promise is a serious one and that that body intends to meet this county's $375,000 with the liberal three-to-one aid or better. With this public acknowledgement on the part of the highway department authorities, the project is lifted from the realm of dreams and placed on the level of actuality. It is convincing now that all Crockett County has to do to get a million and a half dollars or more worth of improved highways is to vote only $375,000 in bonds to meet federal and state aid.

No county in the state was ever offered a more liberal proposition than Crockett County has received from the highway department. If Crockett County ever intends to build roads, if it ever hopes to get out of the mud and join in the march of progress being staged by its neighbor counties all over West Texas, now is the time to do it when a proposition as attractive as that made by the highway department is before it.

Before a disgusted Texas had had time to wipe out the unpleasant memory of the verdict of a jury of farmers at Weatherford recently freeing a man, once high in public esteem, who shot down a boy barely above his teens because the lad had the audacity to marry the defendant's daughter, comes another shocking crime wherein another man, lawyer too, by the way, and once high in public esteem, with those who had no personal acquaintance with him at any rate, lashes a girl to death in the very shadow of the state capitol.

There being but two defense pleas to murder in Texas, insanity and self-defense, this latest prominent offender has announced that his plea will be insanity, self-defense against a slip of a girl being slightly more absurd. There will be alienists who will say he is sane, others who will say he is insane. A jury composed of men who have never read a line about the case in the newspapers, have not been to town enough to hear the case discussed and know nothing whatever about it will be selected to hear the evidence, weigh and sift it in the light of the law of the land and render a verdict justified by the evidence and required by the law after careful scrutiny of testimony, judging the true and false so far as is possible for an intelligent mind to judge.

This overworked insanity plea—'twere better that the few of unsound mind be put where they will never again be a menace to society than the many perfectly rational criminals be turned scot free under the vague plea of temporary insanity, dementia prae cox or what have you.

While stocks "law down and go boom" and a multitude of speculators find themselves the victims of our national prosperity continues on an even keel. During the height of the Wall Street slump public officials as well as business leaders have come forth to reassure the public that the slump in the market should have no great effect on our national prosperity.

Level headed government, a sound banking system, and above all good business organization, keeps the indisposition of Wall Street from throwing the entire nation out of whack.

At the same time, we are confronted by a statement by Alexander Legge, Chairman of the Farm Board, that the shrinkage in stock values has had a very deteriorating effect on the prices of wheat. This only goes to show that other industries, because they are organized, and work cooperatively, are safer than the farm industry from the effects of a Stock Exchange slump. When the good work being done by the Farm Board and other agencies finds fruition in a thorough organization of the farm industry, farmers will have less to fear from irregularities in Wall Street.

"LET US ALONE. . . . WE WANT STAY DEAD!"

Henry Ford, "the upstart," certainly raised Ned with the carriage business. The carriage-makers had no use for him. Let's see, can you remember the name of a carriage-maker? Yet you know Ford.

Thomas Edison certainly raised Ned with the gas jet business. The gas jettors had no use for him whatever. Whom do you know among the big gas-jet men? Nary a one.

On the other hand, we see the railroads starting bus lines, and supplying fast trans-continental passenger service by combining rail and airplane. The railroads can absorb new ideas. We see the Victor Talking Machine Co. accepting radio into its bosom rather than not have any bosom. Victor says, "Come over and bother us, but don't leave us dead!"

Sam Houston Home In Danger Of Fire

Protection For Texas Historical Shrine Is Urged

Dallas, Texas, Nov. 13—A plan for preserving the old homestead of General Sam Houston against ravages of time and fire is under consideration by the officials of the Texas Historical Society. Judge Tom L. McCullough, well known Texas jurist and member of the Board of Directors of the Historical Society, said here this week.

Houston's home at Huntsville, one of the state's most cherished shrines and model of early Texas architecture, is now owned by the state. To protect this structure which has played such an important part in Texas history, it must be guarded day and night, Judge McCullough said.

"And even then it is not safe," he pointed out. "A small spark fanned into a flame and one of our most invaluable contacts with the early life of the state would go up in smoke."

Judge McCullough said that few if any of the old landmarks of Texas are safe from fire. Most of them are constructed of wood which has dried out with years of use. Fear has been expressed by historians in various parts of the state over and over that these shrines might be consumed by fire because they are tinder dry.

"It is my opinion," Judge McCullough said, "that steps be taken to fireproof General Houston's homestead with an effective fire proofing material. The cost would be small and this historically valuable structure would be preserved for all time. We owe it to the children to protect these glorious reminders of our history."

"We Go The Limit To Please"

He was so thwarted and rejected that he sent her home alone. She was grateful for that.

She toiled all the while at her own technic. When she finished the short comedy with Ned Ling she was drawn back to the Bermond studio for the principal role in a big picture. She was not yet to be starred, but she was to be "featured" with a young man, Clive Cleland, who was spoken of as Tom Holby's successor.

Young Cleland fell prey to her growing fascinations, but he was so much her business rival and their professional love scenes were such duels for points, that she could not think of him as an amateur in love. Besides, an unsuspected loyalty to Tom Holby was awakened in her heart by the pretense that this raw youth was Tom's successor.

Holby was out in the Mojave Desert on location, and his absence pleaded for him like a still, small voice that interfered with the murmur of nearer lovers.

She was full of impatience of every sort.

She had fallen out of love with herself.

Mannerisms that directors or critics pointed out, or that she discovered for herself, vexed her to distraction. It was a strange thing to recognize in herself a fault that she detested in others and was yet unable to eradicate. Striving to avoid these recurrent tricks, she grew self-conscious, and people said that she was getting a swelled head when she most in a panic. What they took for conceit was the bluff of a rabbit at bay.

And all the while the longing for a home, a single love, a normal average life, alternated with onsets of cynical defiance for the conventions.

She was in a marriage, and her conflicting counsel: Don't marry an actor! Don't marry an actor! Don't marry a business man! Do not marry anybody!

Ned Ling was one of Mem's most ardent worshippers. He had taught her the mechanics of comedy, and helped her tragedy thereby. Without being able to laugh at himself, he taught her to laugh at herself and at him.

He grew morbid for her. He cast away his fears of love, and his horror of marriage and his sense of humor at the same time. He flew into tempers of anger at her unresponsiveness and became a tragic clown at whom she could not help smiling.

He made comic exits from her presence, swearing he would never see her again, and come returns. But Mem would only flirt with him and with anyone else who amused her.

Tom Holby came back from the desert browner than ever, less subtle, more undeniable than ever. He fought hard for her in the spirit of the hero he was playing at the time, a man who acted on the theory that the cave man is woman's ideal and that she prefers above all things to be caressed with a club.

But these highly advertised tactics were not to Mem's liking, at least at the moment. When he grew too fierce she struck him in the mouth with a fist that had stout muscles for a driving bar, and she brought the blood to his nose with a slash of her elbow.

She railed at his awkward confusion, but thereafter she was out when he called.

Eventually she met him again at the golden wedding anniversary of an old actor and accepted his a-logies and his company home.

"How wonderful," she said on the palm-gloomed way, "to be loved by one man for fifty years!"

"I could love you for a hundred," Tom groaned. "Let's get married and quit wasting so much time."

"I wouldn't give up my career for all the happiness in the world."

"I don't suppose any woman ever gave up her career when she got married."

"How do you mean?"

"Most women have been brought up for a career of housekeeping."

A father or mother told them what to do, and scolded them when they did something else. They learned how to make dresses and sew and cook, and that was their business. When they married they just moved their shop over to their husband's home, and expected him to provide the raw stock and tell them what to do and scold 'em if they didn't do it, or spank them."

"But you'd be hugging other girls before the camera—and other men would be hugging me."

"As long as it didn't mean anything."

"But it might come to—"

"Well, for the matter of that, a lot of hugging goes on in a lot of homes—outside of them. No guaranty ever went with marriage that was good for anything, and there's none now. We've got as good a chance as anybody."

"But what if we should fall out? Divorces are so loathsome."

"They're pretty popular, tho'. They're more decent than the old way—divorces are as ancient as the world. Moses brought down from heaven the easiest system."

"Yes, but Christ said—"

"Christ never said anything about a woman getting a divorce at all. He only allowed a man to get it on one ground."

He took her in his arms, but Mem was not in a gambling mood, and withdrew herself. She wanted to ponder a while longer.

When she was under Tom Holby's spell, she was easily convinced that the ideal partnership was an actor and an actress. She had been of a mind that actress and director made the perfect combination. Claymore had left his autograph on her soul.

Then a rich man fell into her orbit and wanted to put "big money" back of her, organize The Remember Steddon Productions, Inc., and make pictures exclusively for her. But he talked so large that he frightened off her love.

This love business was driving Mem frantic. In all the pictures she had played, as in the traditions of her girlhood, love was a thing that came once and never came again. Good women knew their true fate-mates at once and never swerved in their devotion.

Yet here she was, passionately interested in several gentlemen, finding each of them fascinating just so far, and faithful thereafter. Instead of giving herself meekly to the bliss of matrimony she was debating its advisability, practicability, and profit. She must be at heart a bad woman; one of the adventuresses.

Then came The Pause. Hard times struck the movies so hard that in the studios they became no times at all.

Most of the motion picture factories disarmed entirely, and the rest of them nearly. The Bermond Studios kept one company at work and it was not Mem's company.

She was stricken with terror as she confronted her problems.

What could she do now—not to perfect her shame but to make a living? She would be poorer than her father. She would have to discontinue the installments of that "conscience fund" which she had learned to expect from Doctor Bretherick. She could not even pay the installments on numerous vanities she had bought for herself at the shops.

Her lovers were as defutured as herself. Authors, actors, directors—all—instead of marriage they talked poverty.

No one had talked hard times longer or louder than Bermond. Having heard him croak of disaster so long, Mem assumed her contract would be canceled. Bermond sent for her and she went prepared for the guillotine. He said:

"I like you Miss Steddon. You've worked hard. I find that the exhibitors are wiring in: 'Give us more Steddon stuff. Why don't you star her?' What the exhibitors say goes—as far as it can."

"We can't star you now. But I believe in you. I want people to know you. And when the good times come again you must be ready for them. So I'll go on paying you your salary and send you out on a tour of personal appearances."

"Your last picture looks like a knock-out. I'm going to take down Clive Cleland's name and feature yours alone. I want you to go East—to New York and Boston, Philly, Chi., all the big cities, and let the people see you when they see the picture."

"We'll pay your traveling expenses and so your mother can go along as our guest."

"Of course!" Mem cried. "And it's ever so kind of you."

The abandoned suitors of Mem made a sorry squad at the Santa Fe station. They stared at her in humiliated devotion. Bermond sent a bushel of flowers and fruit to her dressing room. He saw to it that there were reporters to give her a good send-off.

Soon after her arrival in New York the papers were publishing her engaging eyes, the billboards all about town were announcing her, and in paragraph and advertisement she was celebrated. But so many others were also claiming the public eye! Other newcomers and favorites in impregnable esteem.

People who had come from Calverly were claiming Mem as a fellow citizen and feeling that they gained some mystic authority from mere vicinage. Some of them called upon her in person or by telephone and set her heart agog.

The night her picture was shown she stepped out before what seemed to be the world in convention assembled. She felt as tiny as she looked to the farthest girl in the ultimate seat up under the back rafters.

She parroted the little speech that Bermond's publicity man had written for her and afterward

GUIDEPOSTS TO Health & Happiness

By Bernarr Macfadden

FASHION AND HEALTH

To be healthy should be fashionable. To be bouyant and vitally vigorous should be the mode. Short skirts have greatly added to the freedom that femininity is enjoying more and more every year.

Let us hope that the long skirts that are now coming in style will be used mostly during the evening attractions; but just to what extent fashionable attire accomplishes this object can be clearly seen by studying the styles of former years; the baggy sleeves, high collars, and many of the unseemly and inartistic products of those oldtime fashions carry a meaning all their own.

Then there were the bustle, the hoop skirts of more than a generation ago, not to mention the corsets, which devitalized woman-kind for several centuries. The great desire of every woman should be to appear alluringly feminine. Aping the apparel of masculinity is always censurable and when fashion experts recognize these truths their activities should be more distinctly constructive. To make woman-kind more beautiful to look upon should be their one outstanding object. Modern fashions should not restrict bodily movements. They should accentuate and not destroy beautiful outlines.

And in no case should they interfere with the fundamental requirements in the building of buoyant health and all-round vitality and vigor.

Ozona Music Club Studies "Bohemian Girl" in Nov. Meet

The regular November meeting of the Ozona Music Club will be held at 3:15 Thursday afternoon with Mrs. Max Schneemann and Mrs. Joe Oberkamp as hostesses. The meeting to be at Mrs. Schneemann's home.

The program for this meeting will be that outlined for the meeting of December 12, a study of the opera "The Bohemian Girl." It was necessary to switch these programs on account of the absence of several members of the club from the city, according to Mrs. Bascomb Cox, president.

Mrs. Joe Pierce is leader. The story of opera will be given by Mrs. Royce Smith and Mrs. Hugh Childress will give the life of Balfe, the composer. Mrs. Bryan McDonald will sing. Mrs. Joe Davidson will present a violin solo and Mrs. L. L. Bewley a piano solo.

As Alike As Peas

Four queens in the same hand are, left to right, June, Joan, Jeanne and Jane Gilmartin, local society girls of Oakland, Cal., who are said to be the most beautiful quadruplets in America. They are to go to Paris for a theatrical engagement, and the making of passport photos showing distinctive differences of each will be difficult.

Milk Pail Results--

Not Low Cost Per Bag

We realize that cotton seed meal has its part in the making of a dairy ration, but it must be used properly to obtain the best results and should not be used in excessive amounts. You will find that RED CHAIN Dairy Ration contains less cotton seed meal than any other 24 per cent dairy feed on the market today. We derive our protein from soybean meal, linseed oil meal, gluten feed, gluten meal and cotton seed meal, giving you a variety of protein and a well balanced ration that is very palatable and digestible.

If the average dairyman will figure the cost of his home mixture, the amount he is having to feed, then figure the cost of RED CHAIN Dairy Ration, the amount he will have to feed for milk production in comparison to his home mixture, he will soon see that the cost of RED CHAIN Dairy Ration is so small that he can well afford to feed it.

Just remember! It is the milk you want, so forget the price per sack and figure the cost per gallon of milk produced.

New Film Shows More To Lamb Than Legs And Chops

There is a lot more to a lamb than just legs and chops. "Lamb—More than Legs and Chops" is the title of a U. S. Department of Agriculture motion-picture film just released by the department which seems to knock the props out from under the old saying that there is nothing new under the sun. The picture shows thirteen new lamb cuts, and many people have been thinking all the while that legs and chops were about all the good meat there was in a lamb. "Mock duck," "shoulder steak," "Saratoga chops," "rolled breast," "rolled shoulder," "crown rib roast," "neck slices," "center leg steaks," "English lamb chops,"—these are a few of the new cuts that have been worked out by the Bureau of Agricultural Economics of the Department of Agriculture in co-operation with The National Live Stock and Meat Board, and are now being brought to the attention of the consuming public.

This film is designed to show retail meat cutters just how to make these new cuts and profit from the sale of parts which hitherto have been slow to move or impossible to sell at all. Every movement of the knife in the demonstration scenes in this picture can easily be followed and understood by the experienced meat cutter. Explanatory titles and slow-motion cinematography make clear the procedure to follow in cutting the carcass.

This film may be borrowed from the Office of Motion Pictures U. S. Department of Agriculture, Washington, D. C., the user paying transportation charges both ways.

Miss Mildred Davis was home from Abilene for the week-end.

Mrs. Roy Henderson entertained the Friday Club and the Sunflower Club and a few guests Friday afternoon with a beautiful Thanks giving party. The house was profusely decorated with chrysanthemums. wondered what she had said. There was a cloudburst of handclapping and as a salvo from the orchestra that swept her from the stage into the wings.

And that was that! She did not know that one of the town's wealthiest men was lolling in a faulou down front and that her beauty and her terror smote him.

His motto had been, "Go after what you want and bring it home!" He prided himself on being a gorgetter, who had not often come back folded. He wanted Mem and he went after her. He was willing even to bring her home.

There was no difficulty about meeting Mem for a man whose name spelled of millions honestly amassed and gracefully dispersed.

Austin Boas came humbly to Mem to pay his respects, and his enormous name made her tremble as her blisque daintiness set him agog. He was shy, ashamed of his own lack of heroic beauty; and Mem was dazed to find herself feeling sorry for him. Pity was a dangerous mood for her.

He might have won Mem via pity, if he had not tried to win her from her career. He was a monopolist by inheritance, and he had one terrific rival, the many-headed monster.

It is not hard to seduce an actress from the stage, but it is hard to keep her off. There is a courtship that the public alone can offer, and no one man can give her as much applause as a nightly throng's. That form of polyandry is irresistible to most of the women who have been lucky enough to get on the stage or the screen and to win success there.

One day Bermond summoned her to his New York office and said: "How about getting to work again? I've got a great story for you and they need you at the studio. On your way back you can make personal appearances at four or five cities, but it's back on the job for you, eh? That's right! That's a good girl!"

Bermond offered Mem neither ease nor devotion—except devotion to her public. He offered her toil and wages, hardships and discontent, sleepless malaise and bad press notices.

And she could have flung her arms about him and kissed him.

Austin Boas was at the station to see Mem off. For his last fling he filled her drawing-room with flowers—poor things that drooped and died and were flung from the platform by the porter.

Long after their spell had been forgotten, the sad gaze of Boas as he cried good-bye haunted her.

She had murmured to him, "When I make another picture or two I may decide to be sensible, and then—if you are still—"

"I shall be waiting," said Boas. And he gave up with a groan: "Marry me anyway and have your career, too. I'll put my money into your company. I'll back you to the limit."

At Buffalo and at Cleveland she paused to come before huge audiences, and prattle her little piece. When she reached Chicago she found awaiting her a long letter from the manager of the moving-picture house in Calverly. He implored her to visit her old home town and make an appearance at his theatre. He promised that everybody would be there.

This was success indeed! To appear in New York was triumph, but to appear in her native village was almost divine vengeance.

HUMBLE FLASHLIKE GASOLINE

What Happens

when you step on the gas?

To most people, all gasolines look very much alike. It is only when you call on your motor for its best performance that you discover the difference between them.

Then—those cars which have Humble Flashlike Gasoline in their fuel tanks are away in a flash! No need to bother with starting in "low"—powerful Humble Flashlike Gasoline shoots you ahead in "second"—a quick shift to "high" gives you added speed—then—you slip into the coveted position—out ahead—the open road before you!

There's no sputtering or choking. You enjoy a smooth, resistless thrust which leaves other cars behind—sputtering and fuming to a jerky start—like race horses left at the post.

Study the specifications of Humble Flashlike Gasoline given below. You will readily see why this superior-made gasoline gives such out-of-the-ordinary results. Humble Flashlike Gasoline may be bought at stations wherever you see the Humble Signs.

Here's How

BY E. W. HOWE
"The Sage of Polkato Hill"

GOOD BEHAVIOR STRANGE HABITS SHAKESPEARE

Old Silius, the Roman who wrote his memoirs so candidly, said: "In early youth I was ordered to behave, and this command was enforced in manhood, I was resentful until I discovered there was reason in command, and that I could, in considerable measure, obey to my profit. As Common soldier and officer I early discovered that the best behaved armies were most efficient; most frequently victorious. This was the rule, likewise, in households, neighborhoods, commonwealths, senates, individuals. So thereafter I did not resent the command, as many do; my observation has been that the ill-behaved are usually so because of rebellion; they do not understand that good behavior is for their interest as well as for the interest of the commonwealth. . . . I as sincerely believe in good behavior as I believe in any other human policy that has turned out to be better than a bad one.

The delays, quibbles, expense, and corruption in our courts is disgraceful, compared with the courts of other countries; yet the people have taken no steps to reform the courts and the lawyers. . . . On the other hand, our railroads are better in every way than the railroads abroad. Our service is better, and charges lower, our privately owned railroads are better than the government managed railways elsewhere. Yet our attempts to reform the railroads amount to persecution; we are even willing to damage ourselves that we may cripple the railroads. . . . Of course we are the greatest and noblest people ever known, but I am coming to believe that even we have a lot of strange habits that need doctoring.

If Shakespeare's writings could be simplified, probably it would be found he originated more wit, more original and agreeable forms of expression, than any other hundred men of ancient or modern times. This man deserves his literary reputation; many others do not. But his writing is cast in such an ancient and difficult form that comparatively few are able to read him. With all his greatness, Shakespeare has been of little use to me; reading him gives me a headache. We all say Shakespeare's collected works is a Great Book. It is useful to only a few. A really great book should appeal to practically everybody. No such book has been written.

50 BUSINESS FAILURES RECORDED IN OCTOBER

Austin, Texas, Nov. 3.—Commercial failures in Texas during October numbered 50 firms, having liabilities of $630,000, according to Bervard Nichols, editor of the Texas Business Review, issued monthly by the Bureau of Business Research at the University of Texas.

"This compares with 29 failures with liabilities of $128,000 in September, and 39 insolvencies having liabilities of $407,000 in October, 1928. Normally, a seasonal increase in the number of failures occurs from September to October but the gain this year of nearly 75 per cent is the largest on record," Mr. Nichols said.

Albie Booth of Yale Sensation in Football

Scoring a victory over the Army hero Cagle put Albie Booth of Yale in the limelight as a football star. He is shorter and not so heavy as the usual college football man, but his brilliant playing as a quarterback has given him the title of "Yale's Immortal Midget."

CIVIC LOYALTY IS A FINE- SOUNDING PHRASE

It is a fine, high-sounding phrase—Civic Loyalty; it makes a good text for a lot of oratory and columns upon columns of newspaper editorials, but after all, there is no difference between Civic Loyalty and any other kind of loyalty.

Whole books have been written on the subject; any number of sermons preached on and about it; hundreds of speakers have put thousands of people to sleep talking about it. Still, what is it—or perhaps it is better to say: "What isn't it?"

The city in which you live is your city; its institutions are yours; its life your family's and your children's; and besides, you are a part of it, in fact, you are the city. Such being the case, you naturally do not want to be disloyal to it, for the worst of all is disloyalty to one's self. The man who is disloyal to his town is disloyal to himself and to all that is best in him. He is his own worst enemy, for he undermines his character and thus deprives his efforts of that incentive which is the most powerful of all factors.

Your loyalty or disloyalty makes the place where you live what it is or what it is not, and you can not pass the buck to "George", the weather or prohibition.

You expect your city to be a good place in which to live—in fact you sometimes get "het-up" and demand that it be such a place. But it is a good place, only if you yourself do that which is necessary to make it so, and to do that you have to be loyal to it, stick up for it, boost it, and if necessary, fight for it.

Loyalty reproduces a reciprocal effect in all with whom a loyal person comes in contact. A man who is loyal to his friends, family, town country and loyal to his God will never be troubled with disloyalty on the part of others. There is no real success without loyalty.

Whatever Civic Loyalty is, it isn't knocking your town, buying mail order, or going to the next nearest town to purchase when you can buy the same things at home, and usually for less money.

Spending your money with out-of-town peddlers is not only disloyalty but downright foolhardiness, if you value your money.

Bragging that you bought it in the city and that, therefore, it is better, when you could have purchased it from a local dealer, is not only disloyalty, but it is flaunting your lack of loyalty, besides taking a chance on being laughed at behind your back by people who know. When a stranger says: "Oh, yes, it's all right, if you like it," or some other derogatory remark; or when you hear some unthinking ridicule your community, and you turn it off as a joke, that is not only disloyalty, but darned poor business.

Preaching to others what they should do and then doing the opposite yourself is disloyalty, so "Try The Home Folks First."

proposed to be issued, with rate of interest thereon and date of maturity. (art. 628.)

And said petition being apparently regular on its face, and it appearing that under the law it is mandatory on this Court to order such an election, it is therefore the order of this Court that an election be held throughout Crockett County, in the several election precincts thereof on the 21st day of December A. D. 1929, to determine whether or not the bonds of Crockett County, in the Amount of Three Hundred Seventy Five Thousand Dollars ($375,000) be issued for the purpose of constructing, maintaining and operating macadamized, graveled or paved road and turnpikes or in aid thereof within said County, to-wit:

Highway No. 27 through said Crockett County, from the Sutton County line via Ozona to the Pecos River, and also, from said Highway No. 27 at Ozona to the Irion County line, such bonds to bear interest at a rate and mature at such time as may be fixed by the Commissioners Court, such election to be held and returns made as in general elections and notice of the election shall be given by publication in a newspaper published in Crockett County, for four successive weeks and in addition thereto for three weeks prior to said election notice shall be posted at at least three public places in Crockett County, one of which shall be at the Courthouse door thereof. All qualified voters who are property tax paying may vote at said election. All voters desiring to support the proposition shall have written or printed upon the ballot the words "for the issuance of bonds" and those opposed the words "against the issuance of bonds."

It is further ordered that the foregoing be published in the Ozona Stockman for four successive weeks beginning with this week and that the Clerk of this Court issue the notices and see that same are properly published and posted as above ordered.

Interest Increases
In Methodist Meet;
Ed Morgan Preaches

Increasing interest is being shown in the revival meeting now in progress at the Methodist church under the direction of Rev. J. Ed. Morgan of Texarkana and Walter Willis as song leader.

Two services are being held daily, morning and evening, and good crowds are attending each service. Rev. Morgan preaches the "old time gospel" according to those who have heard him, and his sermons are filled with the meat of the old time religion.

Another Oil Strike

Cushing Refining & Gasoline Co. is reported to have made a location for No. 3 Powell 330 feet out of the southeast corner of section 53, block BB, ELARR Ry. Co. survey, on its 240-acre lease. The test will be about equidistant from Taylor-Link's No. 3 Powell in the main field and Dr. J. D. Young's No. 1 Shannon estate, which several weeks ago effected a two-mile south extension. Empire Gas & Fuel Co. is rigging up for a west offset to Young No. 1 Shannon and the California Company is rigging up for a north offset to Young No. 1 Shannon. —S. A. Times.
