HEALTH & PHYSICAL EDUCATION IN THE SCHOOLS

The Forty-first Legislature passed a bill, House Bill No. 309, which goes into effect as a law September 1, 1930. The bill reads as follows:

House Bill No. 309

"An Act prescribing that physical education courses approved by the State Department of Education shall be taught in the public schools of Texas; and declaring an emergency.

"Be it enacted by the Legislature of the State of Texas:

Section 1. That instruction in physical education shall be established and made part of the course of instruction and training in the public elementary and secondary schools of the State by September first, nineteen hundred and thirty.

Section 2. The State Superintendent of Public Instruction shall prepare courses of instruction for the public schools of the state for the purpose of carrying out this act.

Section 3. The importance of the provisions of this act, and the necessity of its early enactment, and the crowded condition of the legislative calendar create an emergency and an imperative public necessity requiring the suspension of the constitutional rule requiring bills to be read on three several days in each house and said rule is hereby suspended, and it is so enacted."

There are thirty-five other states of the United States that have laws requiring the teaching of physical education in the public schools.

We find that in the past thirty or forty years there has been quite a revolution in public sentiment in the field of education. Education has been considered as a part of the functions of the government and for a number of years the training of mind only was taken into consideration. Physical fitness was not given a place in judging a man or woman as a good citizen. Now every student is taught that to be a good citizen he must be clean physically. We have it pointed out to us that Greece believed and put into practice that "a sound mind can dwell only in a sound body." Sound minds are necessary if we are good citizens.

Mr. Marrs in his discussion of physical education in the schools of the state gives some very interesting facts. He states that due to physical unfitness the nation does not have its maximum efficiency. More than one-third of the approximately 6,000,000 young men who were candidates for military service in the World War were unfit either physically or mentally. About 1,200,000 of the people die each year and it is estimated that forty-two per cent of the deaths are due to preventable causes. About 3,000,000 of the people of this nation are constantly ill and these deaths and this sickness are estimated to cause an economic loss of at least $2,000,000 annually.

The above figures are an indication that something should be done. An effort is being directed through Health and Physical Education in the schools to eliminate as far as possible some of the conditions named. States having had Health and Physical Education in the schools have proven that beyond a doubt great benefit has been derived. Texas has taken up such a program as the other states and is making every effort to accomplish the aims as outlined.

In the course of study outlined and sent out to the schools of Texas by Mr. Marrs, there are two phases of the work to be considered. First comes the Health program or Health education. Second Physical education.

It would be impossible to give an outline of every thing that is to be accomplished in the prescribed work. Health education can be summed up with the following. "Health education is the

LOCATIONS OF TWO HIGHWAYS NOT SETTLED

Choice Of Engineers Believed Made For Both Projects

SURVEY FINISHED

Generous Attitude Is Shown By Land Owners In Conference

Locations for routes of the two highways through Crockett County, the Old Spanish Trail and the Ozona-Barnhart road, paving of which was provided for in a $375,000 bond issue voted by this county recently, have virtually been agreed upon by federal and state engineers, it became known here this week.

As soon as the routes are definitely approved by state and federal highway departments, securing the right-of-way by the county will be the only thing standing in the way of letting of contracts by the State Highway Department.

The Ozona-Barnhart road will probably be located on the divide east of the present road beyond the four-mile hill, taking almost an airline into Barnhart, it was concluded from an examination of surveys submitted by Edwin P. Arneson of the engineering firm of Walton and Arneson, employed in making surveys for the two highways in this county, at a meeting with interested citizens here last Friday.

This route shows so many advantages over any other survey, it was pointed out, that it will likely be the choice of state highway engineers. The route will eliminate every crossing of Johnson's Draw between here and Barnhart it was pointed out by Mr. Arneson, and will shorten the distance by nearly two miles. This will result in a saving of approximately $100,000 in construction of the road, it was declared. This survey provides for the road to follow Powell Avenue or the main business street of Ozona straight north and essentially following the old road to the four mile hill where it takes to the divide and stays east of the draw from there to Barnhart. Landowners whose holdings will be traversed by the new route are showing a generous attitude toward the project after Mr. Arneson's explanation and no difficulty is expected in securing right-of-way.

The route of the Old Spanish Trail across the county has also virtually been agreed upon, it was learned. Official designation of the route has not been made, however, but information here is to the effect that federal engineers who have examined the surveys have indicated that the route south of the present road, crossing Live Oak about a half mile south of a line with the old Fort Lancaster ruins, will likely be the choice for this road. This route will eliminate Sheffield hill and will go down what is known as government hill south of the old fort ruins. This descent is to be made about a 6 per cent grade, it was indicated, an immense fill to be made in the canyon below, the walls of which are to be of solid masonry and the grade to be some two miles long. If this plan is adopted, that road will make one of the prettiest drives in West Texas, it is declared.

Both highways in this county are to have a 34-foot road bed, 24 feet of which will be paving, with five-foot shoulders on each side. State highway department officials have indicated that they plan to let contract on the Barnhart road this month if possible. Beginning of actual construction work on the road will depend upon how soon the county is able to provide the right-of-way.

Turn-Key Job On School Bldg. Is Board's Plan

"The rumor, report or conjecture that the proposed new school building will be built with day labor is wholly without foundation," C. C. Montgomery, a member of the school board declared Thursday morning when questioned on the matter.

"The school board will insist on a turn-key contract job on the building, believing that this will be the best policy and one that will meet with the wishes of the people. Every dollar of the people's money will be strictly accounted for and the construction will be strictly supervised to see that the county get a dollar's worth for every dollar spent."

Members of the school board are W. W. West, chairman, C. C. Montgomery, Chas. Coates, Max Schneemann and Jeff Owens. An advisory board working with the school board includes Paul Perner, Scott Peters, Pon Seaborn, Walton Bunger and Ira Carson.

Mildred Miller Weds Angelo Man

Impressive Ceremony At Arthur Hoover Home Wed. Night

On Wednesday evening, Oct. 1, at 7 o'clock, a very pretty wedding was solemnized at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Hoover, when their niece, Miss Mildred Miller became the bride of M. D. Crowder of San Angelo, a son of W. E. Crowder of Ozona.

Mrs. Royce Smith sang "I Love You Truly," with Mrs. W. J. Grimmer accompanying.

To the strains of the wedding march from Lohengrin, the bride, accompanied by Miss Louise Crowder, a sister of the groom, descended the stairway. Met at the foot of the stairs by the groom and his best man, Vestal Hodges of San Angelo, they entered the beautiful living room where Rev. M. M. Fulmer, pastor of the Baptist Church, performed the impressive wedding ceremony in the presence of relatives and a few friends.

After congratulations, the wedding party and guests retired to the dining room where they cut the wedding cake and were served fruit punch by Miss Margaret DeLand, a cousin of the bride.

Baskets of antigonon and fern were used as decorations in the beautiful new home. The two-tiered wedding cake was held in a centerpiece of sweetheart roses, lilies of the valley and fern.

The bride wore a becoming gown of brown chiffon velvet, with accessories to match, and carried an arm bouquet of delicate pink carnations. She is the second daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Will Miller, prominent ranch people of Crockett County.

The groom, a promising young business man of San Angelo, is the son of W. E. Crowder, a blacksmith of this city.

Amid copious showers of rice and good wishes, the happy couple departed for San Angelo, where they will make their home.

20 PRESENT FOR WOMAN'S MISSIONARY SOCIETY MEET

The Methodist Woman's Missionary Society held a splendid meeting Wednesday afternoon with twenty members present. Two new members were enrolled at the meeting.

The Society will not meet in regular session here next Wednesday on account of the zone meeting to be held in Sonora. All members are urged to attend the Sonora meeting if possible.

M. C. Davidson, Jr., and his wife, Edna Beth, are in town on a visiting trip.

$170,000 GAIN SHOWN IN TAX VALUES HERE

Total Valuation Nearing 6 Million Mark In '30 Renditions

TAX IS $144,414

319,035 Head of Sheep Rendered; 28,010 Goats, 25,578 Cattle

Taxable property valuations in Crockett County for the current year show a gain of approximately $170,000 over valuations a year ago, according to figures from the 1930 rolls announced this week by County Tax Assessor O. W. Smith.

Total valuation of taxable property in the county for this year is $5,786,790, against a total of $5,616,854 last year, a gain of $169,936, the figures show.

Land values, personal property and pipelines constitute the bulk of valuations. A total of 1,427,772.18 acres of land were rendered for taxation at a total value of $2,511,620. Personal property was rendered at a total value of $1,741,280, while the pipelines contributed a total of $1,035,480 to the total valuations of the county.

City property was listed at a total of $353,950, railroad property at $2,900, telegraph and telephone properties at $21,560, and banks at $120,000.

Sheep rendered for taxation totaled 319,035, and goats 28,010. There are a total of 25,578 cattle on the rolls, 1,569 horses and mules, and three dogs.

The 1930 renditions will bring in a total of $144,414.61 in taxes, of which the state will receive $39,929.65, the county $72,913.55 and the schools $31,571.41.

Mexican Found Hanging To Post

Unidentified Man Buried Here; Declared Suicide

The body of an unidentified Mexican, found hanging to a telephone pole near Girvin Saturday morning, was buried in the local Mexican cemetery by county authorities.

Sheriff W. S. Willis and W. M. Johnigan, justice of the peace, went to the scene upon notification from officers at Crane. An inquest was held there by Mr. Johnigan and a verdict of suicide was rendered. The body was then brought here in the Joe Oberkamp hearse for burial.

The Mexican was apparently about 35 years old and of about normal build. There were no marks of identification about the body or clothing. His hat, found near the scene, bore the name of a San Francisco dealer but the inside pocket of his coat had been cut away.

Persons in the neighborhood reported having seen the Mexican the day before, and a storekeeper nearby reported that he had given the man something to eat and a small sack of coffee and another of sugar. These were found in his pockets unopened. Mexicans who were questioned said the dead man told them he was trying to get to where he could get work picking cotton.

Misses Mary Childress, Lucille and Eleanor Ingham, and Mrs. Hugh Childress, Jr., were in San Angelo Tuesday. Mrs. Mary Perner accompanied them as far as Eldorado where she spent the day at the home of Mr. and Mrs. C. C. Doty visiting her infant grandson Samuel Stephens Perner, Jr.

Mr. and Mrs. C. J. Watts returned from San Anelo Saturday with their small son, C. J., Jr., who is recovering rapidly from the effects of an accidental shooting in the structure. If the build-

FATE OF $170,000 SCHOOL BOND ISSUE TO BE DECIDED BY VOTERS HERE SATURDAY

Construction Of Modern, Fireproof Building Would Be Provided By Approval Of Voters Of Issue In Election Saturday; Details Of Project Are Announced.

Crockett County voters will be asked to decide at the polls next Saturday whether or not bonds in the sum of $170,000 shall be issued for the purpose of constructing a modern, fireproof high school building in Ozona to take care of growing school needs here. The election is to be county-wide, a simple majority being necessary to decide the election.

All available information concerning details of the proposed building and the plan of construction were given by Supt. John L. Bishop in a talk before the Lions Club at its regular luncheon Monday noon.

In addition to this explanation of the plan, an architect's drawing of the building was placed on display the first of the week in the window of the Smith Drug Store in order that voters might have an opportunity to examine the plan of the building before election day.

Mr. Bishop in his talk before the Lions Club declared at the outset that he intended to give all the information he had on the bond issue and the building plan. The proposed building, he pointed out, is to be located, according to present plans, on the lot just south of the present building, formerly occupied by the old Baptist Church. This lot fronts 175 feet on Powell Avenue and extends back 200 feet on the street.

There will be three entrances to the building, Mr. Bishop said, the gymnasium entrance to be on the east, the auditorium entrance on the west or Powell Avenue, and the school building proper on the north.

The school building proper will be three stories in height, the first floor providing class rooms for manual training, typewriting and similar courses. The second or middle floor will be devoted to classrooms and a study hall to accommodate 100 pupils. On the third floor will be located most of the laboratories, the home economics department, etc.

"There may be some who think the proposed building too large for Ozona's needs, but I want to assure you that such is not the case, Mr. Bishop declared. "The fact is that Ozona schools could use even more space, the building could be larger and still not be too large. We need every bit of space that the new building will provide; certainly it is not too large. The school board cut out everything that could be cut out in the original plans and the present plans include only that which is necessary."

Mr. Bishop called attention to the fact that the new building will meet the local need for an auditorium, a place for general assembly of the schools and public meetings. It is now necessary to hold all public gatherings and general school assemblies in the churches, he pointed out, but if the new school building is built, such gatherings can be held in the school auditorium. The auditorium will have a total seating capacity of 750, the lower floor seating 500 and the balcony 250.

"The gymnasium is also a necessary part of the new building," Mr. Bishop declared. "We now have compulsory physical education in public schools of this state. Credits are given for this work the same as in academic courses. To give this work adequately we must have a gymnasium. The gym will provide for a basketball court, handball, volley ball or tennis courts as well as for the regular physical education classes."

Mr. Bishop said that the school board had not yet definitely settled on what material would be used in the structure. If the building can be made of native stone for the estimated cost, that will be the material used, but otherwise it will probably be of brick and tile. The building will be absolutely fireproof and all equipment will be the most modern available. The proposed bond issue would pay for the building and complete equipment.

Asked what plan would be followed in letting contracts, Mr. Bishop declared that the school board had expressed itself in favor of a turn-key job, the contract to be let to the lowest responsible bidder.

Peters, Strange and Bradshaw of Lubbock are the architects, and this firm will have a man on the ground all during construction of the building to see that it is done properly, the speaker said.

Two Mexicans Die In Auto Accident

Another Hurt In Crash Of Car And Truck South Of Town

Pilar Najar, 42, and Cipriano Perez, 22, both Ozona Mexicans, residents of the Mexican suburb here, were instantly killed, and another, Enrique Perez, brother of Cipriano, was seriously injured shortly after 6 o'clock Saturday morning when a small car which they were driving collided with a trailer loaded with wool being towed behind a truck driven by Jim Chapman.

The accident occurred about two miles south of Ozona on the Juno road. The Mexicans were members of a shearing crew and were on their way to work when the crash occurred. The road is rough at the point where the cars collided and the lights on the small car driven by the Mexicans are thought to have gone out just as they were about to meet the truck. Mr. Chapman was traveling toward Ozona and the Mexicans were going in the opposite direction. The Mexicans were traveling at a high rate of speed, he said, and when he saw the car approaching he slowed his truck down.

The small car struck the left rear wheel of the truck and ploughed into the corner of the big trailer. The trailer was just high enough to scrape the radiator of the car and sheared off the windshield, top and all as it crashed into it. The bodies of both the dead Mexicans were badly mangled. Cipriano Perez was driving, according to available information, Najar was seated in the center and Enrique Perez on the outside. Enrique Perez was thrown out when the cars crashed and escaped with cuts and bruises. The small car was completely demolished and the truck was slightly damaged.

The bodies of Najar and Perez were buried Sunday in the Mexican Cemetery. Najar leaves several children, his wife having died about a year ago. Perez is survived by his father and several brothers and sisters.

Albert Kay returned Tuesday from Hubbard City where he had gone to take his father, J. E. Kay to his home after a visit in Ozona.

THE BOND ISSUE

Speaking by authority of the school board, Superintendent John L. Bishop gave a running summary at the Lions Club meeting Monday of all available information with reference to the $170,000 bond issue to be voted on by Crockett County voters next Saturday, which, if approved, will provide for the construction and equipping of a modern school building.

Mr. Bishop explained in detail the arrangement of the building, the location of classrooms, laboratories, auditorium, gymnasium, etc., and gave as clear a word picture of the appearance and plan of the building as was possible without an architect's drawing.

In brief, Mr. Bishop gave information regarding the location of the building, its estimated total cost, the seating capacity of the various rooms, pointed out present crowded conditions and called attention to the pressing need for enlarged facilities in the local schools.

This was certainly timely information for voters, since the election is so near. The superintendent advised that architect's drawings of the building were to arrive early this week and would be placed on display in a downtown center, so that voters could inspect them between now and election day.

Little enough information and little enough discussions has been forthcoming on this issue, but the superintendent has announced through the Lions Club and the press all the information that he has at his command and it is likely that nearly all voters have by this time a clear idea of all the issues to be considered in the project.

Now, this is a matter of vital importance to every resident of the county and one that demands a full vote at the polls next Saturday. There has not been quite the full and frank discussion of this issue as was the case of road bonds, but it is just as important and should bring out just a heavy vote. Whatever your view of the matter is, whether you are for or against the issue, cast your ballot Saturday and let the result be a majority opinion of the people. Let there be no regrets.

A GREAT OLD SPORTSMAN

For the fifth time in thirty-two years Sir Thomas Lipton has tried and failed to "lift" the America's cup, the world's most famous yachting trophy, which has been on this side of the Atlantic ever since the "America" won it from the yachts of all the world in 1852. Now eighty years old, Sir Thomas will hardly be able to build another "Shamrock" to contest for the cup which Harold Vanderbilt defended this year with his "Enterprise."

For once, the general sentiment of the people of America in an international sporting event was a hope that the other side would win. Sir Thomas has won the respect and admiration of every true sportsman by the persistence with which he has tried for the trophy and the smiling good nature with which he has welcomed defeat after defeat. Everywhere before the races people were saying: "I hope the old man wins it this time; he deserves it."

It was a sporting gesture on the part of Will Rogers, the cowboy humorist, when he suggested that Mayor "Jimmy" Walker of New York receive contributions of a dollar each from the American people to buy Sir Thomas a cup inscribed "To the World's Greatest Loser." The response was instantaneous. In one day more than $1,000 in dollar bills flowed in to Mayor Walker's office. Sir Thomas will go back to Europe with something more valuable than the America's cup would have been to him, the knowledge that he has won the affection and esteem of the people of a whole nation.

SAVING BY SPENDING

Savings bank deposits are growing again. They were drawn down all over the country, for a while after the business slump last Fall. Now they are coming up again, indicating that the American people as a whole have not lost the habit of laying something aside for a rainy day.

A considerable part of the recent withdrawals from savings banks, the officials of the national association of such institutions report, was to take advantage of opportunities offered to buy property of different kinds at bargain prices. The unthrifty had to sell, the thrifty had the wherewithal to buy.

Much of the money withdrawn from the savings banks has been for the purpose of making first payments on homes. Home building in most parts of the country is not reviving as fast as had been anticipated, but there has been an active business in the purchase and sale of houses already built.

Probably the first long step toward getting ahead in the world, that is taken by the majority of Americans, is when a man and his wife go into debt to buy a home. There are unfortunate ones who never have the grit and moral courage to save up the first ten or twenty percent of the cost of a home. There are others who are so afraid of owing something that they won't buy a home until they have money to pay for it in full, in cash. But in between there is the great average group who do not hesitate to borrow as much as one or two years' income, on the security of a house and lot, and then put their noses to the grindstone to pay off the debt.

It is so much easier to save when one has a definite objective. When there are monthly installments of principal and interest to be met, even the most frivolous and easy-spending individuals usually find some way to meet them, whereas merely putting money into a bank to accumulate at interest does not seem so important. And when the money is put into a home, it is surprising how soon the sense of ownership of property tends to make the home-buyer more careful about other expenditures.

Our advice to every young couple who do not own their own home is to buy a home and buy it now. There never was a more favorable time to build or to buy improved real estate. Building materials are lower than they have been in years, money can be borrowed on easier terms than for years, and labor is abundant at normal wages. In almost every community in the United States the man with $500 in hand or that he can get hold of within a short time, can buy or build a $5,000 home, as good as one for which he would have paid probably $6,500 a year ago, and which will probably be worth $6,500 in another year or two from now. The man with $1,000 can have a $12,000 to $15,000 home — if his income justifies such a house.

If everybody who needs a home started to build now, the business depression would come to an end within six months.

RUSSIA IN THE WHEAT MARKET

The theory of the Soviet government of Russia seems to be that if every economic institution in the world can be destroyed, in some mysterious way the "common people" will be benefitted thereby. It is based on the old Marxian Socialist idea that human nature is essentially honest, capable and industrious and that, given a chance at his own share of the world's wealth, every man would keep his hands off the other fellow's share, do his own share of the world's work, and all would be happy.

The theory is as wrong-headed as its author. Everybody who knows anything about human nature knows that is not the way humanity is constituted. Everybody who knows anything about economics knows that the way to build up prosperity is not to begin by tearing down the foundations of industry and business. But the little Socialist clique which just now dominates the millions of unintelligent Russian peasants — dominates them by force — is trying to tear down the world's economic foundations in the hope of making everybody who works so dissatisfied that they will all become revolutionists and communists.

That is clearly the motive behind the Russian government's effort to depress the price of wheat in the United States. By "short selling" in the Chicago market, the Secretary of Agriculture states, the Soviet government has "beared" the wheat market to the financial detriment of every wheat grower. But we have no idea that this will accomplish its apparent purpose, that of turning American farmers into Bolsheviks.

GOT HIM AT LAST

After several years of unsuccessful efforts to get a local hardware merchant to advertise, the publisher of a Kansas weekly newspaper recently was surprised to receive an order for a full page advertisement from the former non-advertiser.

Glancing at the copy of the publisher saw that it advertised a "closing out sale." The hardware man was going out of business. His advertising competitors had taken his trade and there was nothing left for him to do but quit. So the newspaper man had landed his prospect at last.

The merchant recognized the power of advertising to help him to get out of business, but had never tried to use it as a means of staying in business. There are a good many merchants like that.

WHAT HAS GONE BEFORE

Giles Chittenham, distressed over the suicide of his younger half-brother Rodney, returns to Europe from America, where he had made an unhappy marriage. Rodney had killed himself because a notorious woman, Julie Farrow, threw him over. Giles is introduced to Julie Farrow by his friend Lombard, in Switzerland. He resolves to make her fall in love with him, then throw her over as she threw Rodney. She tells him she has made a bet with her friend "Bim" Lennox that she can drive her car to the top of the St. Bernard Pass and back. Giles challenges her to take him with her and she accepts. They start out in the face of a gathering snow-storm.

Chittenham discovers, to his amazement, that the girl beside him in the car appeals to him as no other woman has ever appealed. And something intangible convinces him that her feeling toward him is similar to his own toward her. "Do you believe in love at first sight?" he asks her, as the car toils up the mountain toward the hotel.

At the hotel, after refreshment, Chittenham and Julie found their mutual attraction so strong as to be irresistible. In the morning they returned to the town below, Julie apparently jubilantly happy. Lombard tells Chittenham that he has made a mistake, that this Julie Farrow is not the one who ruined Rodney, but her cousin of the same name. Chittenham is horrified. He calls at Julie's hotel and confesses that he had tried to win her love for purposes of revenge, believing her to be the other Julie.

NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY

"I know it sounds a damnable insult . . . but you mustn't forget who I thought you were. A notorious woman—a woman who counted one man more or less as nothing. I wanted to make you more—to see if I could make you care for me and then treat you as you had treated my brother. You told me you had never really cared for any man and so . . . last night . . ."

He felt her sway beneath his hands.

"You mean . . . it was all just a game?" she asked dazedly. Her eyes never left his flushed, agitated face.

Chittenham watched her, white faced, tense.

Suddenly he found himself beside her, holding her unresponsive hand, pleading with her.

"Forgive me. For God's sake, say you forgive me. I shall never forgive myself. I'd give ten years of my life to wipe out the ghastly mistake. But it wasn't altogether my fault, Lombard—"

She turned her head and looked at him.

"Can you blame Mr. Lombard because you wished to behave like a cad to a woman who never had done you any harm?"

Chittenham flushed crimson. "She sent my brother to his death. I had a right to make her pay."

"Your brother was as much of a coward as you are." The very stillness of her voice was like a knife-cut. "Brave gentlemen both of you! The one to die and leave the stigma of his death upon a woman who never wanted him and had often told him so and the other to break a woman's whole life in order to satisfy his petty pride and the thing I suppose he calls his honour. . ."

"Julie!" Chittenham said passionately. And then somehow without either of them being conscious of having moved, she was in his arms sobbing, her face buried on his shoulder, her arms about his neck.

"Oh, say you love me. . . say you really love me—" she pleaded wildly. "Oh, do you really love me after all?" Chittenham answered between clenched teeth: "I do, God help me."

It was the truth; a truth of which he had never dreamed.

He turned her face up to him and kissed her lips.

"I love you—whatever happens, always remember that I love you—" he said hoarsely.

She freed herself from his arms wiped her eyes, and pushed back her hair.

"I hope nothing else is going to happen," she said, half sobbing still. "I think I've had enough for one day. I'm not used to crying . . . it doesn't suit me. . ."

He caught her hand, holding her fast.

"Wait . . . Julie, there's something else; something . . ."

He drew her into his arms again, holding her fast for yet another moment, then he gently released her.

"I love you with all my heart and soul—" he said hoarsely. "But you will hate me when you know all the truth—hate me more than I can ever hate myself, Julie" ly married, and ask me to be sorry for you? Perhaps you will even offer to divorce her?"

"She would be as glad of her freedom as I should," Chittenham said curtly.

Julie laughed in his face.

"Julie. . . ." He caught hold of her so roughly that she cried out. "Do you think you're going to be the only one to suffer?" he asked savagely. "Do you think it does not rebound on me too? Do you think I wanted to care for you, or for any woman? I set a trap for you and I've been caught in it myself."

She flung back her head and looked at him with blazing eyes.

"I wish I could kill you. I wish I could kill you," she panted desperately and was gone.

Giles Chittenham's mother leaned back in her chair and applied an absurd lace handkerchief to her eyes.

Giles frowned and moved restlessly over to the window.

He had all a man's dislike for a scene, and for the past three days he had been treated to one every time he was in his mother's presence.

He found himself remembering the barely-furnished room at the hotel on the heights of St. Bernard—the isolated top-of-the-world room in which he had held Julie in his arms.

He had been forced to leave Switzerland without seeing her again, although he had made several attempts.

He had wired Sadie the name of the hotel at which he intended to stay, the day following his arrival a letter came from her.

She did not even sign her name and Chittenham burnt the letter as soon as he had read it.

A thousand times since he left Switzerland he had thought of asking Sadie to divorce him, but Chittenham knew her well enough to guess that if she thought he wished to get rid of her she would never allow him to do so.

All these thoughts were passing through his mind as his mother went on wailing and complaining.

Giles turned round. "I thought you were too miserable to wish to go anywhere," he said harshly. "I'm hanged if I know what the devil you do want—"

Then as she burst into tears he repented, and apologized remorsefully.

His mother dried her eyes and smiled faintly.

"I daresay you will be shocked, she said almost coquettishly. "But I should love to go out to dinner and then to a dance somewhere."

"Very well, we'll go out to dinner and a dance," he agreed. "Where would you like to go? The Savoy . . ."

MAIN STREET LOOKS AT BROADWAY BY ERNEST CAMP JR

NEW YORK—Cigar Clerk: Behind a counter, dark and sleek. From spectacles he mildly peers. The long day through . . . But in his veins There flows the blood of buccaneers!

—Ann Howe

Push-button living does not sit well with the average inlander transplanted to this crowded isle. Accustomed to more space and light and air, he soon finds the cramped, mechanical life of Manhattan unbearable.

The Hunt Believing it better to For Air be a cliff-dweller than a sardine, he dashes to the suburbs. Here, he says to himself, I will find a quiet little apartment, a blade of grass, a tree. . . Like looking for the pork in "pork and beans."

He doesn't find it. But, taking the lesser of two evils, he selects something and moves in, arguing that while it isn't any better than Manhattan, it certainly can't be any worse.

I was apartment hunting over in Long Island.

"Manhattan is clawing my nerves," I complained to the realtor. "Can you show me something large and airy—something like a telephonebooth?"

He informed me that ninety per cent of the persons moving into the community were others like myself — yaps from the red hill country who had tried Manhattan living and retreated in a rout. The town has grown 1200 per cent in population in ten years.

The result is that many New Yorkers—both native and transplanted — live so far away from the city that they must ride incredible distances to work.

A train ride of fifty miles every morning is not uncommon—and fifty miles more returning home that night.

I know several people who spend nearly four hours a day on trains, just shuttling back and forth between the grindstone and the roost in the suburbs.

To Work Among wealthy New By Water Yorkers the present rage is going to work in speed boats that skim the Hudson, the East river, and Long Island Sound. Others travel in what are known as "commuters."

A typical commuter is the embodiment of swank. Costing from $150,000 to $300,000, it is maintained—together with a waiter, cook, and crew of three—for the sole purpose of hauling the owner to work, and home again.

Your Soap Magnate arises in the suburbs, has his morning shower, dresses, and steps aboard the boat. He takes his place in a dining room of teakwood and mahogany.

Speeding along at 30 or 40 miles an hour, he gulps his orange juice, bacon, eggs, and coffee, and scans the morning paper. Then steps ashore—ready for the daily grind.

Air-minded millionaires have gone a step farther. They ride to labor in amphibian planes. Taking off from a private airport, the plane alights a few minutes later near a wharf on the waterfront, putting the owner on land a few blocks from his office. Tough life!

At an early hour of morning, a New Yorker on his way home spied a drunk wandering aimlessly up and down Broadway.

Sympathetically, he asked, "Why don't you take a trolley home, my man?"

"Shno use," the wobby one replied, "—if I did th' w ife would not let me keep it."

Gunman's One of the most desolate of East Side gangsters had finally been traced to his lair. Guns drawn, policemen smashed the door and climbed the crazy old stair to the attic where the outlaw was thought to be hiding.

There, they had been told, they would find a bristling arsenal—pistols, blackjacks, dynamite, "pineapples." A very devil of a place . . .

They reached the attic. They opened the door, and the bright sunlight streamed in. They stepped out upon a roof—into the midst of thousands of fluttering white wings. Here was the Bad Man's only stronghold, here where he raised and loved pigeons. . .

I was eating in an Amsterdam Avenue restaurant.

"What kind of a pie is that?" I asked a waiter.

"It's peach, sir," he replied.

"Do you suppose it will hurt me?" I playfully inquired.

"No sir," came the quick reply, "—not until you hit the pavement." Oop!

Lions Drop Game To Rocksprings

Hard-Luck Dogs High Eleven To Lose 18 To 13

A heart-breaking hard luck story was all the Ozona Lions. Coach O. G. Lewis' High School gridiron squad, had to tell after an encounter on the local grid last Saturday afternoon with the Rocksprings High eleven.

Hard luck dogged the locals through every quarter of the game, breaks of the game some call it, but the Ozona lads called it a jinx before Saturday's game was over. It came in the form of fumbles, the first of which came in the opening minute of play when George Vic Montgomery fumbled a kick to near his own goal line, allowing a few minutes after the first touchdown of the game by the visiting eleven.

Then it came play after play. The locals were able to gain almost at will over the opposing squad, but intercepted passes, fumbled balls etc., kept the wind out of their sails.

But even against the jinx, the Lions made a serious threat in the last few minutes of play to take the game. Opening up with an aerial attack, with Walter Kyle doing the heaving and Con Cox, Jones Miller, George Vic Montgomery and others of the backfield the receiving, the locals pushed over two touchdowns, making one point after touchdown with one of the cleverest fake passes ever witnessed here. They were charging down the field for the third and winning touchdown when the timekeeper's whistle ended the game.

The Ozona squad clearly had the upperhand in the game, but a butter-fingered backfield counted them out in the final totalling of scores. The squad is showing up with better team-work, cleverly executed plays and as the first-of-the-season newness wears off, they promise some keen competition to district aggregations.

T. C. U. TO DEDICATE NEW STADIUM ON OCT. 11th

FORT WORTH, Oct. 1.—Texas Christian University's new stadium will be formally dedicated when the champion Frogs meet the Arkansas Razorbacks on the new field on Oct. 11. The stadium will be officially dedicated to the Southwest Conference Champions of 1929.

"The section now completed will seat approximately 20,000 persons," says L. C. Wright, T. C. U. athletic director. "When the complete stadium is built it will seat 60,000. The structure to date has cost about $350,000, and when completed will represent an investment of a little more than $1,000,000."

SOPHS ENTERTAINED

The Sophomore Class was entertained with a barbecue supper at Eacondida water hole, given by the Senior Class, on Friday, September 26. The eats consisted of barbecue; donated by R. J. Cooke, frijoles, potato salad, buns, pickles, olives, punch and ice-cream. There were thirty-six pupils in line for supper, with Mr. and Mrs. C. S. Denham, John L. Bishop, Miss Ada Moss, O. G. Lewis, sophomore sponsor and Miss Lucille Williamson, Senior sponsor, present.

We came back to town in time to attend the "Young People's Service" at the Methodist Church with Rev. Reid preaching. The high school was well represented at this service.

Urges Freedom Of U. T. Investments

Amend'ent To Remove Restrictions To Be Voted On In Nov.

Austin, Texas, Oct. 1.—Judge R. L. Batts of Austin, chairman of the Board of Regents of the University of Texas, in a statement in regard to the permanent fund of the University, urged that the pending amendment to the Constitution of Texas regarding the investment of this fund should be approved at the coming election.

"At present, the investment of the University permanent fund is restricted by constitutional provision to bonds of the State of Texas or bonds of the United States," Judge Batts said. "Since there are practically no bonds of the State of Texas outstanding, this amounts to limiting the investment of the University permanent fund to bonds of the United States. The holdings of this fund in United States bonds was on September 1, 1930, as follows: Treasury, 3 3/4 per cent, $2,687,500; Treasury, 4 per cent, $250,000; Treasury, 3 1/2 per cent, $1,332,250; Fourth Liberty Bonds, 4 1/4 per cent, $11,792,900.

"The first three of these issues are callable from 1943 to 1946. The Fourth Liberty Bonds are callable October 15, 1933.

"It follows from what these figures show that in 1933 the Regents will be faced with the necessity of reinvesting about $12,000,000, even if no more of the Fourth Liberty Bonds are bought. Unless State bonds are at that time available, as does not now seem likely, it will mean that the reinvestment must be in United States securities. These securities are now available at the following prices: Treasury 4's, due 1944, cost 1.0831, yield 3 1/4 per cent; Treasury 3 3/4's, due 1946, cost 1.0620, yield 3 1/4 per cent; Treasury 3 1/2's, due 1943, cost 1.0117, yield 3 1/4 per cent; Fourth Liberties, 4 1/4's, due 1933, cost 1.0313, yield 3 1/4 per cent.

"During most of the time that these bonds have been purchased, it has been necessary to buy them at a premium. But during a large part of 1929, this was not true. In October, 1929, Fourth Liberty Bonds were bought on a basis to yield 4.60 per cent. This has now been reduced to 3.25 per cent, a loss of 1.35 per cent, or a 30 per cent reduction in income. If anything like the present tendency continues until 1933, it is easy to see that the hope of securing even 2 1/2 per cent interest from the United States Government is perhaps over-optimistic and that although the endowment is increasing substantially, the income from it will be sharply reduced. It therefore becomes imperative that some more profitable form of investment be provided in the not distant future, unless the University and the Agricultural and Mechanical College are to have their building funds seriously impaired by being forced to loan to the United States Government which can borrow money at a lower rate of interest than any other Government or organization in the whole world."

The Electric Man Recommends Safety and Convenience Lighting

"Do you know, I think one of the most convenient uses of lighting is the garage light, the driveway light and the yard light.

"More than likely you've noticed this type of lighting equipment, and have made up your mind to install it at some future date.

"Don't deny yourself such an important convenience—when it costs so little. Under the new rate system, this lighting is possible at a cost of only 4c per kilowatt-hour—3c where service is also used for heating or cooking—and will increase your monthly bill only a few cents; not enough to counterbalance the advantages of good lighting.

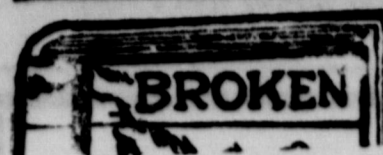

"With the new Home Comfort rate, your normal use of service should absorb the first two rates, placing all additional consumption on the low rate.

"You are sure to appreciate the many advantages that Safety and Convenience Lighting will bring you—and now at such low cost, you cannot afford to be without these advantages."

And Remember—You Can Make Your Own Average Rate

"Oh, no! . . ." She was looking quite eager. "To a night club. I've never been to a night club, Giles, not to a real one that is open all night, and where you eat eggs and bacon at three o'clock in the morning. It would be quite all right with you, wouldn't it?"

"It would be quite all right anyway," he answered amusedly. "These places are only what you choose to make them. Very well, what time do we start?"

"What time is it now?"

"Seven o'clock."

"Call for me at nine."

So he arrived in the dull, highly expensive street where his mother lived, punctually at nine o'clock.

The door opened behind him, and his mother came in.

"I haven't kept you waiting, have I?" she asked gaily.

Giles turned round, then he rose slowly to his feet. He felt as if he was in the presence of a perfect stranger.

"It's . . . well, it's amazing!" he said at last. "You don't look a day more than thirty-five."

"You dear thing!" She stood on tip-toe and kissed him gratefully. "So you won't mind dancing with your old mother to-night, Giles?"

"And where are we going?" Mrs. Ardron asked, as they drove away.

"I'm told the Faun is the place to go to," Giles said. "If you don't like it we can go on somewhere else." But Mrs. Ardron adored it, and told him so every few minutes during the evening with varied extravagance.

Presently she saw some people she knew.

"Darling! you simply must be introduced! They're such sweet people. Doris Gardener is the girl—no, the one in the black frock and the scarlet shoes. She's twenty-two, and she's just got divorced from her husband."

Giles looked at the girl with the scarlet shoes.

"Do you dance, Mr. Chittenham?" Doris asked.

"Yes, May I have the pleasure . . . ?"

They went away together through the pillared partition to the room where the jazz band played. A sudden scream rose shrilly above the noise, followed by a burst of hysterical laughter and the clatter of breaking glass.

"What on earth—" Chittenham began.

Doris Gardener laughed.

"It's only Julie Farrow. I don't know what's happened to her lately. She was quite drunk here the other night. I wonder they didn't turn her out."

"Julie Farrow!" Chittenham's voice was calm and indifferent, but he felt as if some one had tugged at his heart.

"Yes, do you know her? She used to be rather a friend of mine but one has to draw the line somewhere."

Just lately she seems to have an leave of her senses."

Chittenham's eyes were straining across the room in the direction from which the noise had arisen, but there was too much of a crowd for him to distinguish any one face.

"You mean the famous Julie Farrow, I suppose," he submitted laconically.

Doris glanced across the room. "There she is—" she said. "In the green frock. No—over the other side, sitting on the arm of the chair laughing. . . . That's what I call a cocktail laugh. Come along, I'm sure Essen and your mother are bored to tears with one another by this time."

But Chittenham did not move. He was looking at the girl in the green frock—a green frock of which there seemed to be so very little with which to cover her white neck and arms. Her lips were painted a vivid red, and she was laughing noisily—immoderately—laughter which died away suddenly as she met his gaze across the room, and it was his Julie—the woman who had said she loved him, and with whom he had spent that never to be forgotten night on the top of the world.

Doris Gardener tugged at Giles Chittenham's arm.

"Come along! If Julie sees me she'll want to join our party and I'm not anxious to have her. Oh, damn—I knew it would happen—"

She shrugged her shoulders resignedly as Julie suddenly detached herself from the noisy group she was with and threaded her way across the room.

Doris glanced at Chittenham. "Do you know Mr. Chittenham, Julie?" She made the introduction with obvious reluctance.

Julie had returned Chittenham's formal bow with a careless nod.

"How are you? I've heard of you," she said casually. "Rodney Ardron's half brother, aren't you? Delighted to meet you."

Chittenham's face hardened beneath its pallor. He felt as if he were in the presence of a stranger who yet looked at him with well-beloved eyes.

"I think we have met before," he said with cool deliberation.

Julie raised her brows.

"Have we? Oh, surely not. I'm so good at remembering faces. Perhaps you are mistaking me for my cousin—the other Julie!"

She laughed insolently. "That does happen sometimes I assure you," he said, turning to Doris.

"Julie probably wouldn't be flattered if she knew, but all the same it happens occasionally. You may not believe me, Mr. Chittenham, if you know my cousin that is—but a man once kissed me in the most impassioned manner thinking I was the other Julie! So very awkward, especially as he was a man whom I very much dislike."

"A disappointment to the man also perhaps," Chittenham said bitterly, but she only laughed.

THE FAMILY DOCTOR

By JOHN JOSEPH GAINES, M.D.

LAND-MARKS OF THE BODY

Four points about the pelvis should be kept in mind by women: the sacrum, the summit and the hip-bones, the pubis, or arch in front, and the low inguinal regions between the abdomen and thigh. If persistent pain is in the sacrum, its origin may be in the uterus, rectum or bladder, and disorders of either organ should be corrected.

A sudden attack in the inguinal region may mean an ovary, especially if the time of its occurrence adds testimony! Or, it may mean appendicitis, or impacted colon above the appendix if on right side. (Don't take purgative unless ordered by your physician after careful examination.) Pain in left low inguinal region may be due to inflamed ovary, or, if slightly higher up, an impacted colon at the narrow space known as the "sigmoid flexure."

Patients familiar with themselves as far as possible, are better able to describe their symptoms to the doctor intelligently—thus enabling him to prescribe more effectually, that relief may be obtained earlier. Remember, the ignorant one will tell you he has "a pain in the side," which may mean in the lung, the liver, the colon or the appendix—and, which makes all the difference in the world when it comes to treatment.

The spleen occupies a space to the left of the greater portion of the stomach, and is not usual as the site of severe pain. Sometimes a dull, throbbing means enlargement or congestion of the spleen. Between the ribs all over the chest are the "intercostal spaces." These are occupied by small blood vessels and nerve-trunks. "Intercostal neuralgia" is met with quite often. The relation of the heart to the left nipple is pretty well known. Pain in that locality, keen, persistent or intermittent, should be investigated promptly to determine its origin—it may be serious.

Trapping Wolves Coyotes Described In New Leaflet

Wolves and coyotes, still a source of worry and serious loss to stockmen and sportsmen of the West because of destructiveness to livestock and game animals, are uncanny in their ability to avoid man's efforts to keep them under control. To capture these animals man must match with strategy their cleverness in avoiding capture. Trapping has been found by experts of the Bureau of Biological Survey, U. S. Department of Agriculture, to be one of the most effective methods. Leaflet 49-L, entitled "Hints on Coyote and Wolf Trapping," just issued by the department, describes the successful methods of Federal trappers.

The areas most heavily infested with wolves are in Alaska, eastern Texas, Oklahoma, Arkansas, Missouri, Wisconsin, Minnesota, and Michigan. Coyotes also exist in all the Western States. "The coyote," according to the leaflet, "is by far the most persistent of the predators of the western range country, and is a carrier of rabies, or hydrophobia, and tularaemia, a disease of wild rabbits and other rodents that is transmissible and sometimes fatal to human beings."

"Much of the country inhabited by coyotes and wolves is purely agricultural and contains vast grazing areas, and a large part of the food of the animals in those areas consists of mutton, beef, pork, and poultry produced by the stockmen and the farmer, and of the wild game that should be conserved. It is a matter of great importance, therefore, to the Nation's livestock-producing sections as well as to the conservationist's plan of game protection or game propagation, that coyotes and wolves be controlled in areas where they are destructive."

The new leaflet tells how best to take advantage of some of the habits of the animals in order to overcome their natural caution and their highly developed defense against danger, and so to lure them to the traps. It gives detailed information on how and where to set the traps and how to prepare scents to be placed as lures on weeds, clusters of grass, or stubble near the traps and along the animal's travelways.

HUMORETTES

Visitor: "Where's the other windmill gone?"
Native: "We only had wind enough for one, so we took the other one down."

Kitty: Jack says he can read me like a book.

Phyllis: You mustn't take Jack too literally, dear. He probably means that you are a very plain type.

Broker: I put a friend of mine on his feet three times in the last three years.
Jones: That's nothing! I put a friend of mine on his feet 14 times last night.

Apartment Owner (a stout gentleman): "This, sir, is one of our finest kitchenette apartments."

Prospective Tenant: "Well, come out a minute and let me inside!"

DIRECTNESS

Years ago it became necessary to discharge a man from a certain company with which I happened to be associated. His short-comings did not reflect upon his character or ability; he was just temperamentally out of place.

Everybody liked him. Nobody wanted to hurt his feelings. Hence many conferences were held.

It was suggested that we might get some other company to offer him a position. Or he might be given a year's leave of absence, on the hope that he would not come back. Or we might persuade some one to speak to some one else who could suggest to him a round-about way that he might resign.

Meanwhile, time drifted on. Finally it occurred to us that in scheming around to find a way to be kind to this man we were actually being very cruel. We were allowing him to waste precious days in a position where he could have no future. Whereupon we sent for him, drew a long breath, and spoke as follows:

"Joe it is necessary to tell you that you are through. . . Now that's over, and we don't need to talk about it any more. Let us, therefore, sit down to a serious discussion about your future plans, because every man in the company wants to see you happy and successful."

We helped him find the proper environment; he is today prosperous and contented, and I believe that he counts us all as among his very good friends.

The incident was recalled the other day by a conference in aid of an important charity. The question was how to obtain a large donation from a certain rich man. All the usual expedients were suggested. We might "approach" him through his bankers. Perhaps some one could induce some one to speak to his wife. It might be possible to have a good friend in Los Angeles put us in touch with a friend of his in Chicago.

Finally a large and restless member of the committee rose. "This makes me tired," he exclaimed. "I know this fellow. He gets to his office every morning at eight o'clock. I'll go in tomorrow morning and tell him I have come to ask for a million dollars. And I think he'll like it."

Said Wal: Whitman, speaking of Sheridan. "Genius is ninety per cent directness, and Phil Sheridan was a genius."

If one could gather up all the time that is wasted annually in scheming how to do the clever or polite thing, he would have hours enough to relieve all the farmers, kill each fruit fly individually, dig the canal from the ocean to the lakes.

The Commodity People Buy When They Wish To Save Money

And people now, wish to save money. Economy is no longer the butt of the wisecracker. It is back as a real factor in the lives of millions. Two and two again make four. The idea that a "New Era" had abolished old time values has gone the way of the bull market that gave it birth. Millions of American Housewives are again watching the household budget.

The foods they will buy this year are those that give the most value. The wise housewife is the one who will use those commodities that offer a hundred cents on the dollar value, and we know of no other part of our stock that gives more than our dried fruits. We have specialized in them for the last several months. You may get the widest variety from us that the market offers. Prunes—largest packed. Apples—that are delicious. Peaches—the choicest. Apricots—that make you want more. Black Smyrna Figs—Seedless Raisins—from California. GOOD, NUTRITIOUS, TASTY—REASONABLY PRICED.

Eat More LAMB

Lamb meat is recognized by experts as one of the most delicious meats on the market, and physicians recommend it as one of the most digestible.

We buy lambs from Crockett county ranchmen and will have all kinds of choice cuts at most reasonable prices. Lamb raising is one of the chief industries of our county, and we should strive to help the ranchmen by eating their product.

We are co-operating with the national educational campaign to induce people to eat more lamb. If you have never tried this tender and delicious meat you should let us send you an order today.

Blind Whistler To Give Performance Here On Oct. 17

Fred Lowry, blind whistler, will give a concert program at the Ozona Baptist Church on Friday evening, October 17, under the auspices of the Ozona Lions Club according to advice received this week by club officials from Miss Marguerite Richter, accompanist and manager.

Mr. Lowry is what is known as a throat whistler, a rare art mastered by only three or four persons in this country. He is a graduate of the Blind Institute at Austin and has been heard in radio broadcasts frequently.

Work with the blind being one of the major activities of Lions Clubs all over the country, Lions Clubs of Texas have taken a great interest in Mr. Lowry's accomplishments and the Austin Lions Club has done much in this artist's behalf.

There will be no admission charge for the concert here. A free-will offering will be taken in the auditorium, all of this going to Mr. Lowry. The local Lions Club is making no guarantee to the whistler nor is it sharing in any manner in any of the fund to be collected. The club is merely sponsoring the whistler's appearance here to lend whatever aid it can to the success of the blind artist.

Delay Seen In O. S. T. Paving In Sutton Co. Pending Designation

The matter of a paved road to the Crockett county line on the O. S. T. and a like road to the Edwards county line was discussed by Sonora Lions at their Monday luncheon. A former committee composed of Roy Aldwell, W. E. Caldwell and R. Halbert appointed to meet with the county commissioners on road matters, was instructed to hold together until the question in hand had been settled. Lion Cusenbary, one of the county commissioners, stated that that body was awaiting an official designation on the part of the state highway commission on the Rooksprings road. Road matters are now at a standstill awaiting action of the road committee referred to above.

Lion H. L. Taylor, highway maintenance man for this district reported that an order had gone out from the commission that no new road designation would be made for at least a year. This action will likely delay a move for a road bond issue in this county. —Sonora News.

KNOW YOUR SCHOOL

sum of experiences in the school and elsewhere which favorably influence habits, attitudes, and knowledge related to individual, racial, and community health. "In the program of the public schools, health education is the process of developing ideals, habits, and knowledge conducive to the maintenance or improvement of such physical, mental, emotional, and social well-being as results in a normal, happy, and useful life."

Physical education might be summed up as, "That phase of education which is concerned, first, with the organization and leadership of children in big-muscle activities, to gain the development and the adjustment inherent in the activities according to the social standards; and, second, with the control of health or growth conditions naturally associated with the leadership of the activities so that the educational process may go on without growth handicap."

The minimum amount of time to be spent in the elementary grades in Health and Physical education per week is 150 minutes. During this time the children are given general health rules to follow and are taught how to play certain games, to go through health exercises, etc.

The minimum amount of time to be spent in high school is 120 minutes per week. Thirty minutes of the time to be in theory and the rest in practice. In practice all of the major sports are counted, football, basketball, soccer, volley, etc. Two credits in Physical education are required before graduation. Not more than one-half credit can be made in one year. This requires that all students take the work for the full four years in high school.

It might appear that the above is an argument for Health and Physical education in the schools rather than a statement of what the Ozona School is doing. In a brief way the things that are to be done and are being done have been mentioned. It can also be used as an argument. It can readily be seen what the program is that is to be followed. Naturally it can be seen that to get the best results a place and equipment must be had for the various games and exercises. If the bond issue carries on Saturday Oct. 4, then the school will be equipped with the place, the equipment can be secured later.

The Department of Education at the present time does not require that the school have a gymnasium, but it recommends that there be one. In a very few years it will be almost necessary that there be a gymnasium. All of the new buildings that are modern over the country have them and when the time comes to vote it is certain that the people of Ozona are not going to be found wanting, they are going to have a building that is modern in every respect.

Be a patriotic citizen and vote Saturday. For or against the issue, it is the duty of every taxpayer to vote.
