

SALESMANSHIP

The Prince of Wales is starting for South America to represent British industry at the British Trade Exhibition in Buenos Aires. This young man has developed into a sort of supersalesman for British-made goods. There is an atmosphere of "go-getting" about British manufacturers today which is quite a new thing, and the Prince is regarded as the best go-getter of all.

What makes this important to Americans is that up to now we have had almost a monopoly of the automobile business in South America. Now English cars are to be shown, and the Prince of Wales is taking five British cars along for his personal use on a tour through South America.

WAR

Every European of intelligence who comes to America—and I meet a great many of them every week—brings a shadow of war with him. Europe is living under a war cloud, its people shuddering with dread that the crisis may occur at any time which will plunge them into a more terrible conflict than ever before.

It is very hard for us on this side of the ocean to understand that feeling. It is hard for us to understand why France, for example, maintains today an army greater than that of any other two nations, equipped and ready for immediate war.

One of my European visitors was quite certain that the line-up in the next war would be Germany, Russia and Japan combined against Great Britain, France and the United States. That doesn't sound like some view from this side of the ocean, but many people believe that something like that is coming and coming soon.

RUSSIA

I dined the other night with a brilliant woman of European birth, who lives most of her time in America because she likes it better than Europe, but who frequently travels all over the world. She speaks six languages, but is going to add another to her list.

"I'm studying Russian," she told me. "I'm going to need it. So is everybody else who has interests outside of America—and perhaps in America. Who knows? Russia is a nation of 175,000,000 people, working together to a common end, which is to impose a new social philosophy on the whole world, by force if necessary. Don't tell me there is nothing to worry about. I think the time is closer than anyone imagines when Russia will become a menace to the peace not only of Europe but of America as well. And if not that, certainly Russia will be an important factor in international trade before long. People who can talk and read Russian will have a great advantage over those who cannot."

I have heard others, who have been in Russia lately, express the same or similar views. Russia is a good place to watch.

Nearly five billion dollars will be spent in 1931 for new buildings, according to a careful survey of the outlook by the editors of The Architectural Forum. That will be about two thousand million dollars more than was spent in 1930. The principal increase is expected to be in public buildings, in which class there will be three times as much money spent as last year.

Building costs are cheaper now than they were a year ago, in every particular. Mortgage money is easy—for well-planned, well-built structures for which there is a definite need. And there is a great scarcity of proper buildings in

$14,430 FOR RIGHT-OF-WAY FOR OST EAST

Jury Waiting For Field Notes To Fix Damages On West End

PRESS RTE CHANGE

Cost Speeds Up Work Contract May Be Let In Feb.

Damages amounting to a total of $14,430.50 were assessed against the county for right-of-way for Highway 27-290, the Old Spanish Trail, from the Sutton County line to the intersection of this highway with the Barnhart road in the town of Ozona, according to the report of the jury of view, appointed by the Commissioners Court, filed with the court this week.

The jury was unable to fix damages to landowners along the west end of the road because of the fact that it was not in possession of field notes of the survey made by Walton and Arneson. As soon as these field notes are placed in the hands of the jury, damages on the west end of the highway will be fixed.

The jury also recommended the change in route of the highway just out of the town of Ozona on the east. This change would eliminate a curve in the road to the north at the edge of the town and would prevent a crossing of the paved highway by the drovers lane, which is to be left open. Two new routes were proposed by the jury, one going due east out Broadway to intersect the Arneson survey and the other between this and the present Arneson route, each of the proposed new routes being south of the surveyed line, and keeping south of the drovers lane.

Both of these lines have been run by Tot Grimmer, county surveyor, and elevations, field notes, etc are in the hands of the highway department, with arguments of the Commissioners Court and the jury of view in favor of the change. Highway officials who were here recently have looked over the proposed route and it is believed that the Highway Commission and federal engineers will agree to the change.

Judge Chas. E. Davidson and Scott Peters are in Austin this week and while there Judge Davidson said that he would interview highway officials with reference to this change and would also urge upon the commission the importance of awarding contracts on the local highway projects at the earliest moment.

If the proposed change in routing can be settled with dispatch, the Commissioners Court plans to have everything in readiness for awarding contracts on the east end of the Old Spanish Trail Highway and the Ozona-Barnhart road at the regular meeting of the commission in February. It has been announced that approximately $5,000,000 worth of contracts will be awarded at the February meeting and it is hoped that the Crockett County projects will be included in the list.

Damages were assessed by the jury of view to property owners on the east end of the highway as follows: Mrs. W. D. Jones, $3,618; Dr. A. W. Clayton, $2,412.50; Chas. E. Davidson, $3,400; T. A. Kincaid, $5,000. The jury also specified that if any of the land of Mrs. C. L. Williams is appropriated that she be allowed $100 an acre. The jury also suggested that "if for any reason the new road takes any of the Kincaid land north of the old road, we would allow him $25 an acre for each acre so taken."

Rev. M. M. Fulmer, pastor of the Ozona Baptist Church, filled the pulpit at both the morning and evening services at the First Baptist Church in San Angelo Sunday, preaching to a big congregation at each service.

Campfire Girls Plan Tag Sale

Hike Planned For Saturday Afternoon By Both Groups

Plans for a tag sale in the morning and a hike in the afternoon next Saturday were perfected at meetings of the two local Campfire groups, the Lawesi group and the Tulamin group, held Tuesday afternoon. Proceeds from the tag sale will go into a fund to be used in promoting the Campfire work here under the direction of Miss Gracia Swanson.

The following members of the Tulamin group were present at the meeting: Marjorie Sparkman, Mary Louise Harvick, Aleta Casbeer, Alleane Couch, Maude Mae Couch, Kathryn Word, Mary Alice Smith, Janice Watts and Adella Willis.

Members of the Lawesi group present for the meeting were Ernest B. Sparkman, Dorothy Henderson, Cristell Brock, Alberta Kay, Jennetta Mae Willis, Esther Kate Pierce, Vickey Pierce, Ernestine Watts, Ora Ray Word, Maggie Seahorn, Ed Schneemann, Florence Adams, Ella Louise Casbeer and Catherine Childress.

Appreciation for the co-operation that is being given the Campfire movement by the people of Ozona was expressed by Miss Swanson in a statement prepared for The Stockman.

"Camp Fire wants to thank everyone for the co-operation in our cake and pie sale Saturday," Miss Swanson said. "We made $8.50 and still have several sales not reported. For our first attempt we are elated over the results."

"Saturday morning we are going to have a tag sale. We are not giving value received in this but feel that everyone buying a tag will understand the cause for which the sale is being promoted. Campfire is growing by leaps and bounds in Ozona, with new members coming in at every meeting."

"Ozona will have an opportunity very soon to see just what the girls are accomplishing."

Miss Louise Coates Weds F. B. Pyle In Impressive Ceremony At Fort Stockton

By Miss Lenore Milam

FORT STOCKTON, TEXAS.—The Pecos County ranch home of Mr. and Mrs. Collins Coates was the scene of a beautiful wedding Thursday, January 15th, when their daughter, Miss Louise Coates, became the bride of F. B. Pyle, Rev. C. R. Hooton, pastor of the First Methodist Church of Fort Stockton, read the impressive ring ceremony.

The bridal party presented a lovely tableau in the spacious living room, grouped around the improvised altar, the background, a mass of greenery, combining with the flower-decked arch, to form a bower of loveliness pink carnations and a cluster of miniature wedding bells further enhanced the beauty of the arch, before which the wedding vows were said. The room was profusely decorated with smilax, which with tall baskets filled with flowers in a variety of colors presented a charming setting.

Preceding the ceremony, Miss Floy Friend of San Angelo accompanied by Mrs. Paul Wiloughby at the piano sang, "Oh, Promise Me," and "At Dawning" by Cadman. Miss Friend was attired in ivory satin and Mrs. Wiloughby wore yellow chiffon, each wore a corsage of violets and pink rose buds. Mrs. Vance McClymont of Sanderson and Mrs. Otho Adams, of Fort Stockton, violinist, played Lohengrin's Wedding March as a processional. During the ceremony they played "Serenade" from Schubert. They each wore evening gowns of pastel shades and a corsage of pink rosebuds and violets.

Miss Geraldine Coates of Rankin, cousin of the bride, and Scott Kirchville, cousin of the groom were the first to enter. Miss

Miss Lipscomb Urges "Life Situation" In Primary Class Rooms

Informal teaching and the creation of a life situation in the class room was the formula for successful conduct of kindergarten and primary classes in the public schools given by Miss Julia Lipscomb, former teacher in the Ozona schools, now head of the primary and kindergarten work at C. I. A., in an address to a group of teachers and parents here last Thursday.

Miss Lipscomb urged that children in these grades never be placed in a formal situation, pointing out that freedom is the first requisite of successful primary and kindergarten work. She urged particularly that the children be directed into purposeful activity, which would result in what she termed a "life situation" in the class room. Children in kindergarten and primary grades should be taught use of their hands rather than their heads, she declared.

School officials were gratified to hear this expert discussion and to find that the system in use in the local schools follows almost to the letter the recommendations carried in Miss Lipscomb's address.

Charity Body Gets $128 From Sale Of Will Rogers Tickets

The Associated Charities of Ozona will realize a total of $128 from the sale of tickets here for the Will Rogers benefit performance at the Municipal Auditorium in San Angelo Tuesday night. This was the total amount of tickets sold through the local charity organization, all of which will be returned for local relief work under the direction of a committee in San Angelo in charge of the benefit.

Total sales of tickets amounted to $123, but W. R. Baggett was unable to use the tickets he bought and returned them to the charity body to be sold. One of them was sold for $5 and this amount was turned back into the charity fund by Mr. Baggett.

A total of approximately $6,500 was taken in for the benefit performance. This fund will be distributed among communities in this section, each community being returned the amount of its ticket purchases for charity purposes.

EL PASO FIRM GETS GENERAL BUILDING JOB

Anderson Bros. Awarded Contract On Bid Of $132,000

MAY START MON.

Total Of $167,000 For Building And Equipment Contracts

With the general contract for construction of the new Ozona High School building awarded and contracts for the plumbing, heating, wiring and equipping awarded or agreed upon, the local school board is still more than $3,000 short of using the total of the $170,000 bond issue voted here for the purpose of erecting and equipping a modern school building.

General contract for construction of the building was awarded Thursday afternoon to Anderson Brothers Construction Company of El Paso at a total figure of approximately $132,000, it was announced by Paul Perner, president of the board. The building is to be of brick and hollow tile, with cut stone trimming. It will be one of the most modern and most beautiful high school buildings of its size in the state, according to contractors and architects who have examined the plans.

Anderson Bros. Construction Company have erected two buildings in Ozona in recent years, the new Perner buildings in the business section and the Methodist Church.

At the same time the general contract was awarded, the school board received bids for the plumbing and heating and wiring of the building. The contract for wiring the building went to the W. W. Electric Company of Lubbock whose bid was approximately $8,000.

The contract for plumbing and heating has been held up temporarily pending an investigation into a new type burner, it was announced. Low bidders on this job were the Vickers Plumbing and Heating Company of Sweetwater and the C. E. Wallace Plumbing and Heating Company of Stamford. Information is now being gathered by the school board and architects relative to the new burner and these two firms will be asked to bid on new specifications in the next ten days or two weeks.

Opening the session Saturday afternoon, the school board began consideration of bids for sale of equipment for the new building. The session was continued into the present week, winding up with the award of contracts Tuesday for the purchase of furnishings for the new structure from two Texas firms.

Contract for supplying opera chairs for the big auditorium was awarded to the G. E. Chambers Company of Waco while contract for most of the other furnishings of the building, including pupils desks, teachers desks, laboratory furniture, etc. went to Bickley Brothers of Houston. The total cost of equipment purchased in these two contracts will amount to approximately $14,000, it was announced.

Except for more elaborate scenery for the stage in the auditorium and physical training equipment for the gymnasium, contracts awarded this week will completely furnish the building ready for use when it is completed. It is understood that the school board does not contemplate purchase of other equipment.

ORGANIZED CHARITY

A general charity organization to take care of all emergency charity calls here has at last become a reality through the success that has already been met by committee soliciting funds for the Associated Charities of Ozona.

A fund of more than $500 has been built up through donations
from citizens and from benefactors.
Committees named by Chairman
M. M. Fulmer of the charity body have not yet completed their work of giving everybody an opportunity to contribute to the fund to meet charity calls for the next twelve months and it is believed that the total will reach near the $1,000 mark when the drive is completed.

Funds gathered in this manner will be dispensed in a systematic manner for the relief of emergency charity cases. Every call for help will be investigated by a committee representing the charity body. This committee will make a thorough study of each case and decide whether or not aid should be given. This method has been adopted in order that all worthy cases might receive needed assistance and the unworthy refused.

Since this organization has been perfected and funds are now available for relief work, every call for charity here should be referred to the charity body. The principal purpose in perfecting the organization, of course, was to relieve worthy persons in need,
but of almost equal importance it was to prevent the unworthy from preying on the generosity of the people. In order that one of the main purposes of the charity organization might not be defeated it is necessary that everybody cooperate in the handling of all charity calls.

By soliciting small contributions from the people at large, the charity organization sought to distribute the burden of relief work among all the people and to relieve the few who have carried the load in years past. It was the understanding of all who contributed to this fund that they were to be relieved thereby of making contributions in a haphazard manner to the many who come through the city each year seeking aid.

That is exactly the purpose of the organization. Every call that is made on an individual or business house should at once be referred to a member of the investigating committee or to some official of the organization.

The professional beggar who covers the country from year to year knows what it means to be probed by a charity organization's investigating committee and he will no doubt "blow on" when he learns that the city has a united charities and that he cannot hope to receive small contributions from a number of soft-hearted individuals on his well-rehearsed plea.

The men and women who have been selected to act on the investigating committee from the Associated Charities have had considerable experience in this work and are qualified to make a thorough investigation into each call.
Members of this committee will gather all information available and make their decision on the basis of the facts they learn about each case. They will decide to what extent aid should be given and will give that and no more.
Through such a systematic method, contributors to the fund
may feel confident that the money

they have put into the hands of the organization will be used to do the greatest amount of good and that the town is not being "bled" of money by unscrupulous beggars who make their own unsupervised canvasses.

If you receive a call for assistance it is important that you refer the call to the charity organization. You will save yourself and others time and money and you may be assured that if the case is worthy that prompt relief will be given and if not it will be dismissed, and if there is 100 percent co-operation among the people the unworthy ones will have no alternative but to leave.

MUST AMERICA RESORT TO THE DOLE?

Two million able-bodied Englishmen are "on the dole." That is they are living at the expense of the taxpayers of Great Britain, being allowed enough money from the public treasury every week to keep them and their families in idleness.

That the dole has produced a new class of paupers is the testimony of every impartial observer.
Once a man goes "on the dole" he becomes unwilling to work, even if work is offered. The excuse for the dole which is offered by the Labor government of England is that the government must support these unemployed men or face a revolution. That may be true in England, but it is certainly not the case in America.

That there is much suffering
among the people of certain parts of Arkansas and other regions
which were ruined by the drought of last year is undeniable. Every good American wants to do what he can to help relieve this distress. And, fortunately, we have a great national organization already set up and trained in the work of relieving human suffering, already actively on the job of providing food, clothing and shelter for those in the stricken regions who are unable to fend for themselves at the present time.

That organization is the American Red Cross. Its officials have surveyed the need and report that ten million dollars is needed at once for this work of mercy.
President Hoover has appointed a distinguished committee of private citizens, headed by Calvin Coolidge and Alfred E. Smith, to help raise the money. The American people will give the Red Cross the ten million dollars, and as much more money as may be needed, if the politicians in Congress who are trying to make political capital out of human misery will keep their hands off.

What is being proposed in Congress is that the United States Government—that is to say, the taxpayers of the United States—shall contribute the money with which to feed those who need it this Winter and Spring. In other words, those members of Congress who advocate this would establish the British dole system in this country. That is a British system, but it is not, as President Hoover points out, an American system. The American principle of government is to give to every man, so far as possible, the opportunity to work out his own salvation, to protect him in his rights

as an individual, but not to feed or clothe him at public expense
except as payment for services performed.

Never in our history has the Federal Government assessed the taxpayers for such a purpose. It has, however, authorized the Red Cross to carry out the American method of poor relief, by means of voluntary contributions. If Congress votes money for this purpose, either directly or as a gift to the Red Cross, it will be more than an imposition upon the taxpayers. It will be the beginning of the breakdown of the American system of government, reducing us to the level of Great Britain and our citizens to the pauper level of the beneficiaries of the dole. Moreover, it will deprive millions of generous-hearted Americans of the privilege of contributing to the relief of their suffering fellow-citizens.

HARD TIMES A MYTH?

What's all this talk of "hard times" that is on nearly every one's tongue? It is a myth, a mob delusion, or is it an actuality?

Most of the complaining is done by the regular merchants and stable business men. Maybe they have cause for complaint. Why?

However, on the other hand, we have not noticed that the theatres in this territory have closed for lack of patronage. Dance halls seem to attract the usual crowd
at the standard admission price.
Service oil stations have increased supposedly because people are buying more gasoline than formerly. Amusement centers are not by any means deserted on Saturday or Sunday nights.

In the basis of this observation,
why the holler of money conditions being "tight?" Let us examine a few factors which seem on the face of it to be fundamental in contributing to this so-called economic depression.

Buying power of the mass has not decreased noticeably, but it seems that people spend money differently today than in yesteryears. More automobiles are used, one to every five people, statistics say, necessarily a greater amount of money is spent for gasoline, oils, tires, accessories, and other incidentals connected with or as a result of being speed-minded.
This is not saying either for or against than formerly, which may be bearing upon present conditions.

It seems that people are more pleasure-bent than formerly, consequently, many legitimate articles are done without in order to "get more out of life." There has been a tendency to eat less,
to cut down "living expenses," while spending the sum saved for the divers form of entertainment and incidental pleasure excusions.

As a result the grocer, the baker and the merchant has felt his usual volume of trade reduced to some extent, which is attributed to "hard times." In course of this tendency to avoid "necessary obligations" to take advantage of the "unnecessary expenses" we as a nation have developed the characteristic symptoms of the spendthrift.

Are we becoming a nation of pleasure-bent, work-shirking night-clubites?

People talk, and what people talk of is infectious. We also like to believe what is being talked about, be it "hard times," economic depression or what not.
Sometimes we believe until it hurts, and then we wish to forget about it. The reality seems painful, boring and cruel. How to escape it? Go to a movie. Forget the 18th Amendment. Indulge in the frivolity of a night club.
Dance to captivating music. In this manner we shove reality aside. Momentarily, we have forgotten about the rent being due,
the demands of the grocer, the doctor's bill, the merchant's reminder, and we are happy.

Let's quit living a world of make-believe, face facts and struggle with realities.—Gazette,
Redwood Falls, Minn.

Word comes from F. E. Finley, livestock statistician, Bureau of Agricultural Economics of the United States Department of Agriculture, as follows:

We have completed the compilation of the interstate sheep movement from Texas for September and October and I was surprised to find out that only 126,000 head of sheep and lambs moved out of the state during these two months.
Last year 229,000 head moved to interstate points during October and 130,000 head in September, a total of 359,000 head for the period. In November of last year 40, 000 head of sheep was shipped and it is noted that the shipments for November 1930 were very light. What do the Texas raisers intend to do with their sheep?

FORD SMOOTHNESS

The new Ford has more than twenty ball and roller bearings

EVIDENCE of the high quality built into the new Ford is the extensive use of ball and roller bearings. There are more than twenty in all—an unusually large number. Each bearing is adequate in size and carefully selected for the work it has to do.

At some points in the Ford chassis you will find ball bearings. At others, roller bearings are used regardless of their higher cost. The deciding factor is the performance of the car.

The extensive use of ball and roller bearings in the new Ford insures smoother operation, saves gasoline, increases speed and power, gives quicker pick-up, decreases noise, and gives greater reliability and longer life to vital moving parts.

Other outstanding features that make the new Ford
a value far above the price are the Triplex shatter-proof glass windshield, silent, fully enclosed four-wheel brakes,
four Houdaille double-acting hydraulic shock absorbers,
aluminum pistons, chrome silicon alloy valves,
three-quarter floating rear axle, Rustless Steel, the extensive use of fine steel forgings, and unusual accuracy in manufacturing.

THE STORY SO FAR

Maggie Johnson, whose father is a letter-carrier, is the domestic drudge of the humble home where her mother does little except bemoan the fact that she has "seen better days" and her sister Liz, who works in a beauty shop, lies abed late. Maggie has to get the family breakfast before she starts out to her job in the Five-and-Ten-Cent Store.

There's a new boy at the Five-and-Ten, Joe Grant. He tells Maggie that he has been assigned to work as her helper in the stock room. He seems rather dumb, but Maggie helps him through his first day at the store and shares her lunch with him in a cubby-hole of a place that belongs to a mattress factory next door to the Five-and-Ten.

They are looking over some cheap picture cards. One of them has a motto that strikes Maggie's fancy. "The way to begin the ideal life is to begin." She and Joe talk about that and Joe is surprised that the girl has higher standards than he had suspected. When he goes home that night he is thinking about Maggie. And his home is the home of the owner of the Mack Five and Ten-Cent Stores, though Maggie does not suspect that he is the boss' son.

THE STORY

"What—with Uncle Tom?"

"With Uncle Nobody! It's a sort of—of underworld investigation. I got it on my own hook."

"Well, but that's nonsense," the woman said after a pause, somewhat at a loss. "Your father won't permit you for one instant to give up college and work! He—"

"My father told me he wasn't going to back me financially any more," Joe interrupted hotly. "Meanwhile, I'm done with college and I'm working, and he can make what he likes of it!"

"Why, he'll not endure it one instant!" the woman said. "Meanwhile, aren't you going to the Russells? It's Millicent's coming-out party—she'll certainly expect you."

"I think I'll let Millicent cry herself to sleep tonight," the boy said lazily. "My job has sapped my energies—what with cologne and postcards and tinsel and vegetable knives."

"What are you talking about!" "Nothing. Nothing. But I'm a working-man now, no time for frivolities. Leave me be, Mother. I'm dead."

There was a silence. The woman sat puzzled and disapproving, thinking.

"Listen, Joe. You do like Millicent, don't you? She's such a dear little thing," his mother presently began sentimentally, "and she likes you so much!"

"Give her my love and tell her I'm trying to get together enough money for our little nest," said Joe. "I'll see her at the club tomorrow, anyway — she always plays golf Sunday mornings."

"I don't understand you, Joe," his mother said in cold disapproval. "You went out of the house yesterday morning wild because your father had said he'd take you out of college if this spending of money went on. Now you say you have got a job and don't want to go!"

"I'm reformed!" Joe said jocosely. "The old man called me names this morning." It's just possible—it's just possible that some day I'll have the laugh on the old man!"

"I wish you'd stop talking nonsense, and follow me over to the Russells," his mother said impatiently. "I don't know what they will think if you don't come."

"Tell them I've had a change of heart—I've got religion," Joe said indifferently. "Tell them that the way to begin the ideal life is to begin."

"To begin what?" sharply asked Lillian Spencer Merrill, wife of the owner of the Mack Merrill Chain Stores.

"Just that, darling. The way to begin living the ideal life is—to begin," said Joseph Grant Mackenzie Merrill mildly.

Mrs. Johnson, born Petheridge, cherished in herself, and planted in her daughters, an unbounded sense of righteous pride. The Johnsons had not pride, and no particular cause for pride, she said.

But the Petheridges and their collateral lines of Larkins and Lawrences! Ma told them thrilling tales of Gran'ma Larkin's sampler, hung above the Petheridge fireplace in the magnificent Petheridge home "down South," and about the Johnny Yanks mashing up all Gran'ma Larkin's out glass, and about the slaves—hundreds of them, thousands of them, all singing and dancing and happy, and not any more wanting to be freed than so many irresponsible sparrows!

Pop, meanwhile miserably represented not only the low-born Johnsons, but the entire ranks of the Johnny Yanks as well. He would cringe while Ma was enlarging upon this topic, and nervously clear his throat. And whenever he spoke of Vermont families Ma said with her rich, unctuous laugh, "Makin' wooden nutmegs, I suppose?" and the girls had to laugh, too.

Not that Maggie was not loyal to her father; she had no heart in the laughter Ma so often directed against him. But it was simpler all round to laugh.

No use going against that particular, current, there were too many others to struggle with, if one were to struggle at all!

Often, when Maggie and her father were alone, he would give her a fairer idea of the case.

"You see, dearie," Len would explain in his mild, uncomplaining voice, "Ma's just quotin' things she heard when she was a little girl. She never saw your great-grandmother's house, with those samplers and things." Your mother can't remember nothing about slaves and all that. I don't know as her folks ever had slaves, anyway. They lived right in East St. Louis, and they had a drug store—I don't know just what they would have done with the slaves!"

Sometimes, Pa would ramble on to the other side of the ancestral picture, to his own boyhood on a Vermont farm.

"I surely would like you to see the place, some day, Maggie. There was eight of us boys, and my sister Margaret—you're named for her, and for my mother too. There's some of them there still. I daresay—I haven't heard for twenty years. You'd like your grandmother's kitchen—winter or summer, that was the place us boys liked to be! I remember when a big storm would be comin' up-trees bendin' over, and planks rattlin' in the yard, and the old well-sweep creakin'—how we loved the kitchen then! There was a big open fireplace on one side, but she had her range built right across it, and there wasn't never a drop of anythin' spilled on that range—she kep' it like black glass."

"Oh, Pop! But why did you ever come away?"

"I do no, Maggie. Just got restless, I guess."

"Look here, Pop. If my grandmother Johnson had nine children and no servants, how could she manage to keep the place so clean, and the stove shining so, and everything? Ma says that no lady ought ever to do her own work, and she says it can't be done!"

"Well, maybe your grandmother Johnson wasn't a lady, Maggie."

"Pop, do you think there's any hope I'm not a lady? Not like my grandmother Petheridge, I mean? Because," Maggie would rush on eagerly, "I'd love to have my kitchen always clean and orderly, and pies cooling on the windowsill, and jam all put up, and me in a nice clean gingham dress—and a big stiff white apron, sitting down on the side porch, rocking, like you said Gran'ma Johnson always did! And I'd like to believe in all those newspaper budgets, and system and having a regular hour for everything." Maggie would conclude, expectant eyes on his face.

"Well—I don't know, dearie. Your mother hasn't real good health, you know. And your sister has to keep her hands nice."

And then, of course, we're poor folks, Maggie. When you have to do without things—"

"Pop, we're not poor! Why, you and I—make more than two hundred a month, Pa. And there's budgets as low as one hundred!"

"Two hundred a month for four folks ain't much in these days, Maggie, when everything's gone up so high!" It was the automatic protest.

"But, Pop—those budgets, and the lists the government sends out and the newspapers and the magazines know how things have gone up don't they?"

"Dearie, your Pop ain't much on mathematics," Len would say, passing a weary hand over his troubled forehead, shaking his meek, gray little head.

Ma, approached on the subject of household reform, had much to say and very, very little to do.

"When I and your pop was married, beef was fifteen cents a pound! I remember that, because I said to the butcher, 'Ain't that a lot?' I wasn't nothin' but an innocent child—I'd never done any work with my own hands before. 'Keep them little hands like flowers!' our old doctor, Dr. Lovejoy, use' to say. He was a Southerner, too—" many classes. Those factors combined make it seem probable that 1931 will be the heaviest building year in recent history.

STRAUS

The late President Taft said once: "Nathan Straus is a great Jew and the greatest Christian of us all." The venerable merchant who died the other day at the age of 83 did not quite succeed in his desire to die poor, but he gave away millions upon millions to help others. His philanthropies were not limited to any sect, religion or country, though his chief enthusiasm in his later years was in the restoration of Palestine as a Jewish nation.

Born in Germany, Nathan Straus was brought to America as a child by his father, who ran a store in Talbotton, Ga. The only Jew in the community, the family attended the Baptist church, and the elder Straus would amaze the circuit-riding ministers who made his home their headquarters by his ability to read the Old Testament in the Original Hebrew. Ruined by the Civil War, the father took his family to New York and started anew as an importer of pottery. From the openings of china departments in other men's stores the sons became eventually the owners of two of New York's greatest department stores.

Nathan Straus was not the only immigrant boy, nor the only Jew, to win fame, respect and fortune in America. Similar careers have been so frequent in this country that we forget that they are almost impossible anywhere else in the world.

INHERITANCE

The estate of Thomas Fortune Ryan will pay $17,379,291 to the State of New York and $4,382,072 to the Federal Government. There will still be left somewhat more than a hundred million dollars, which is enough for several heirs to struggle along on.

No tax can be fairer than the tax on large inherited estates. All states exempt small estates from this tax. When a man dies his property has no owner. In the absence of heirs it all belongs to the state. The right to pass it on by will is a privilege granted by the state, and not an inherent right. Most states prescribe what a man may do by will. The heirs are entitled, by custom, to reasonable participation, but have no right to complain if the state steps in and takes a large share out first for the benefit of all the people. For no great fortune is accumulated except by the participation, directly or indirectly, of all the people.

PROHIBITION

Stanley High, the editor of the Christian Herald, says it is time that the leadership of those who wish to retain Prohibition in the Constitution and the law of the land was taken over by somebody besides the church people and ministers.

Mr. High is right. One of the reasons why so many people who regard themselves as moral Christians are opposed to Prohibition is that they do not believe that it is a question of morals or religion. They resent the effort to make it appear that drinking is sinful.

So far as our Government and the law are concerned, the question of whether it is sinful to drink does not enter into the question at all. Prohibition is an economic movement, not a moral one. If it is to have anything like whole-hearted support from the people of the United States, that support must be sought on economic and social grounds and not on grounds with which probably the majority of truly religious people cannot agree.

HOLDS 13 SPADES BUT FAILS TO TAKE A TRICK

ST. LOUIS, Jan. 20 (AP).—Mrs. Fred Meyer last night held 13 spades in a bridge game, but failed to take a single trick.

It happened this way:

Mr. and Mrs. Meyer were playing at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Preston Johns. Mrs. Meyer was the partner of Johns; Mrs. Johns was paired with Meyer.

Throughout the evening the bidding had been conservative. Suddenly it leaped up. Starting with one spade, a bid by Mrs. Meyer, it mounted to 6 clubs, the offer of Mrs. Johns.

It was Mrs. Meyer's turn to bid. "Darling," she turned to her opponent husband, "what does one do when one has 13 spades?"

And that broke up the bridge game.

"We are continuing to use the radio and the screen to supplement and buttress our newspaper campaigns just as we have always used national magazines, outdoor boards, direct mail and other media for the same purpose.

"The newspaper, however, continues to form the backbone of our campaigns, and for the present will continue to do so. It, in the parlance of the gridiron, carries the ball and the rest run interference."

LOWERING FIRST COSTS

FORT WORTH, Jan. 28.—No longer need the price of an engagement ring hold back the young swain. It seems that in the old days all one needed was an old button and a little courage.

Miss Patsy McCord, instructor in French in Texas Christian University, had a grandfather away back in 1865 who not only had the button and courage, but the girl as well.

While a prisoner in Camp Douglas, O., with other members of Morgan's Raiders, Miss McCord's grandfather made a ring from a button of his coat. Miss McCord now wears the ring, which was fashioned from a hard black fibre button. It has a mother-of-pearl setting in the design of two hearts set point to point. The fibre surface is polished to the smoothness of jade.

DO YOU KNOW HOW TO BREATHE?

I once had the misfortune to know a pessimist. There was some excuse for his pessimism. He was a narrow-chested chap threatened with tuberculosis.

He had given himself up for lost.

One night somebody induced him to go to a singing school.

A year later his chest was filled out; there was a sparkle in his eye his laugh could be heard a city block away.

He had learned how to breathe.

Even when you practice deep breathing exercises you probably do not fill your entire lung capacity. You expand your chest; but the really important part of your breathing is done with your diaphragm—a big flat muscle that forms the floor of your chest.

And the abdominal muscles are the boys you need to train if you are to get the most out of your diaphragm.

Fill your lungs until you feel your stomach muscles hard against your belt.

That means that your diaphragm has straightened down and is massaging the top of your stomach and intestines—helping along with the process of elimination.

When you breathe out, do it forcibly, with the stomach muscles; like a horse snorting—but without the snort.

Your stomach and intestines will be forced up against the diaphragm again and given another massage.

Breathing in is important, but breathing out is much more important.

Read sometime a book by a man like Thoreau, or John Burroughs, or Steward Edward White—one of the great open-air writers.

Then, while the impression of its rich, bounding optimism is still strong upon you, pick up a book written by one of the Russian novelists, or by one of our modern longhaired writers who believe that realism necessarily means murder and drunkenness and prostitution.

What a difference! And what makes the difference?

The realist will tell you that it is because he thinks deeply, while the optimistic writer thinks superficially.

As a matter of fact, the difference is not in the brains of the two men, but in their livers.

It is not the depth of their thinking so much as the depths of their lungs.

The corpuscles of the one are red and fed with oxygen; the corpuscles of the other are pale and fed with cigarette smoke and germs.

"For what, after all, is Life?" asks an old Sanskrit quotation.

And answers:

"Life is the interval between one breath and another—he who only half breathes only half lives."

CHEVROLET INCREASES NEWSPAPER ADVERTISING CAMPAIGN FOR NEW YEAR

Another aggressive advertising campaign, with newspaper display columns carrying the brunt of the attack, is promised for this year by R. K. White, advertising manager of the Chevrolet Motor Company.

Long one of the nation's leading advertisers, the Chevrolet organization lent its endorsement to the pulling power of the newspaper by using 6,700 dailies and weeklies to announce its new 1931 car in November, the largest newspaper schedule ever used by Chevrolet in one campaign since the inception of the company. This move was made despite sub-normal business conditions and the generally slackened promotional activities of manufacturers in and out of the automobile industry.

"We made this move," Mr. White explained, "because we are in direct accord with the frequently expressed view that the only way to make bad business good and good business better is to put abnormal effort into your activities when you face sub-normal conditions."

"Not only did we carry the largest newspaper schedule we ever used, but we enlisted new forms of advertising to put our new car message across. Both the radio and the motion picture screen were added this year. Both are new media in our program, and both were added because a manufacturer with a national market intensively cultivated cannot af-

"However It Be"
Mr. Whosit Says

It seems to me—that we ought not to "crab" about prices in Ozona as compared to some other places, and I'll tell you the reason why.

Rents are a lot higher in Ozona than they are in San Angelo. If you don't believe that—ask some of 'em what they are paying. All right, Ozona rent goes to Ozona people, and whether you are getting it or not—your neighbor is. Do you "hate" to see your neighbor prosper?

Salaries in Ozona are higher than they are anywhere around in the country. Why? Because you merchants are public spirited enough to try to keep a decent bunch of men working and pay them a living wage. So they can go to your picture show, so they can buy your second-hand cars, so they can burn your gasoline, eat the meat you produce, wear the clothes you help make, so they can belong to your churches and be a credit in general to the town.

With hardly an exception the CHEAP merchandising establishments of the city are BARELY getting by. They don't pay their men, they drive rents down, and they go Broke. Yea, BROKE-BUSTED.

Why not long ago I was lounging around Flowers Grocery, eating a bunch of their peanuts that I didn't have to pay for, and I heard a man say—we have been buying in Angelo lately and you have no idea how much cheaper I have been buying—I got this article 15 cents a can cheaper.

Well sir, I had to get out of the place to keep from laughing out loud. There that fellow had driven about 200 miles at a cost of about $12.00 (wear, tear, gas and oil and depreciation) to get a dab of grub, and he figured he had made money. Well, maybe you can if you are as near broke as that fellow is—spend $12.00 to lose $8.00 on a bill, but I'm hanged if I can. So, I just buy at Flowers Grocery and save the difference.

"My Best Girl"

Maggie only listened respectfully, feeling that if beef would only go down to fifteen cents a pound again, everything might yet be well. Meanwhile, the kitchen grew shabbier and shabbier, and water and grease and ashes darkened the chipped floor, and the plates were piled in the sink, and the faucets dripped on them unavailingly.

She had found room for the ideal leaflet that Joe had given her on the crowded shelf above the sink, and sometimes she looked up from the dishpan at it, with wondering eyes. "The way to begin living the ideal life is—to begin."

Her mother said that it didn't seem to her to make sense. "Elizabeth read it once, suspiciously, and then forgot all about it. But Len and Maggie discussed it more than once, in some bewilderment. Len said frankly that he didn't 'get it.'"

There was no hot water, and nobody in the world could wash the plates after a lamb stew dinner in cold. She piled them and scraped them while she waited for some water to boil.

"Maggie!" This was her mother from bed. "Liz go out?"

"Ten minutes ago, Ma."

"Well, here's all there is to it," said Mrs. Johnson. "I'm at the end of my green, and I can't do no more leaves until I get some. I guess you're tired, ain't you?"

"Not so very."

"You'll have to get the money from your father, Maggie!"

"Pop, have you thirty cents?"

"I guess so." He counted it out—dimes, pennies.

"Will two be enough, Ma?"

"How much did your father give you? Thirty cents—yes, that'll be enough, but I would like to know what Len Johnson does with his money! Shut that door."

Dishes waiting, kettle so slow to heat, crumbs on the floor, batter spilled and dried on the stove, the red tablecloth rumped, the sugar bowl upset, dish towels stiff with grease and water—no matter, the inspiration of it went before her like a banner, as she ran down the dark street.

"The way to begin living the ideal life is—to begin."

"Joe," Maggie asked, a day or two later, "how could you live the ideal life if nothin' in your life was ideal?"

"Ah, there's the catch!" Joe answered airily.

"The meaning of that ideal life thing, is this: You're—you're all in your own mind, do you see? What you have doesn't matter. What you think you are is everything—and what bunk it all is!" he added sneeringly to himself.

"Do you get me?" he asked aloud.

She did not get him at all, but she nodded.

"You must make everything beautiful in your life," Joe said, encouraged by her attention. "An old plate, for instance, an old stain on the wall. Why, Maggie, the museums of Europe are full of them—old plates and ragged clothes and worn-out rugs and water stains, and everyone thinks they're beautiful! The ceiling of the Sistine Chapel, for instance. Did you ever hear of that?"

"Michelangelo did it," Maggie said, nodding.

"And how did you know that?"

"Oh, we had it in school, an'

then we have 'em here, among the fifteen-cent classic colored reproductions," Maggie replied.

"Well, All those old pictures are dirty and worn, mouldering away—all the old palaces are, lots of the books, all the furniture—and yet persons swarm over there every year and admire them," said Joe. "Now, the point is, suppose you had to live with a lot of rotting furniture, and chipped plates and you just said to yourself: 'These are beautiful and valuable relics—'

"You mean that cups an' chairs an' being poor an' tired really have nothin' to do with the way you live?" she asked, coming nearer to it than he had, as he recognized somewhat to his surprise.

"You've got it," he said. "There was vision in her uplifted eyes, as if the walls of the mattress factory, where they were sitting, had faded away, and new dreams of beauty and fitness and purity had risen before her inner sight.

"Joe, nothing could stop that if you once got it!" she said in a whisper. And then, half to herself "I can't wait to get home and begin!" And after a while she said wistfully: "Joe, I wish I knew as much as you know."

SEA SICKNESS? NOT MUCH

Let the thermometer rise to within a fractional point near spring or summer warmth and New Yorkers by the thousands will flock down to "dat ol' debbil sea."—10,000 of them in fact.

Last Sunday, crowds, attracted by the warm sun (52 degrees warm) strolled on the boardwalk or beach at Coney Island. They began to arrive early in the day, and concession owners opened their restaurants or oiled wheels of merry-go-rounds as each train and trolley brought more.

Several clubs of winter bathers, who make regular pilgrimages to the surf, welcomed others who braved the cold water for a few moments.

Fifty patrolmen from nearby precincts aided in handling the unexpected crowd.

CHECK AND RUBBER CHECK

Standing on the busiest corners these days are men selling checks—rubber ones. They hold them high in the air, stretch them back and forth, and cry: "Buy a check of the Bank of United States. Five cents! They always bounce back." Thus a bank failure has by so much decreased the ranks of the unemployed.

AQUARIUM

A sign displayed on a compartment containing live specimens of fish at the aquarium in Battery Park reads:

"These fish are capable of changing color eight times in as many minutes."

We shudder to think what would happen if they tried out some of the modern dances.

CHAMELEON CANINE

New York is fast stealing Pittsburgh's shady reputation as the smokiest city if you ask Mr. A. Townsend Kaplan.

He recently brought a complaint against the Washington Square extension of New York University charging the university with emitting such dense clouds of smoke that it was impossible for his dog to take his usual outing on the roof without changing color. His white dog turned coal black every time he was taken out, says Mr. Kaplan. He understands that dogs get dirty, yes, but questions the need of a dog turning from white to black in five minutes.

"If I had wanted a black dog, I would have brought a black dog," he says bitterly.

MAXIM SILENCER

The rumbling of an elevated train going past a pawnshop drowned out the noise of shattering glass when a gem thief heaved a brick through the window some days ago. The proprietor didn't know it had happened until he went to the window to point out some jewelry to a customer. But the jewelry was gone, and so was the brick-thrower, together with three bracelets, one of them set with 148 diamonds, valued at $2,000.

TRAFICALITIES

Here are some statistics for you "busiest corner in the world" fans

Figures supplied by the deputy police commissioner show that the busiest traffic corner in New York now is Park Avenue and 57th Street, where 42,377 automobiles pass every twelve hours. The junction of Fifth Avenue and 42nd Street, heretofore the "busiest corner," now stands fourth in the list of police traffic tallies.

In the height of the summer season, Ocean and Fort Hamilton Parkways, Brooklyn, is the most heavily traveled, 57,896 cars having been counted in twelve hours, due to the Coney Island rush. In fall and winter the total is cut in half.

WHY PAY MORE?

His store sells cigarettes, cigars, candy and refreshments at cut-rate prices. It is about 6 feet wide and 25 feet deep. While buying some articles there, we remarked that he must do a pretty good business at such a good location.

"We have to," he replied, "to pay the rent. How much is it? $8,000 a year." (Yes, thank you, I think I'll stick to batting out a column). W. K.

VACCINES

ago I attended a my medical society, the being a sort of symposium at I Know About Vaccines members were to participate in the discussion. After interesting talks, one physician for his terseness and expression, arose and said you in very short time how about vaccines—noting!

less the vaccines have ay. With their judicious use, typhoid fever has become a thing of the past. learned to depend upon the effects of certain vaccines prevent colds and respiratory infections. It is that we can immunize influenza, and I am persuaded that I have done so in success. Just how long immunity holds good we do not know very definitely.

to be wondered at that I know a very great number of immunities, such as the invincible immunity; but we do not know certain vaccines keep us from contracting diseases; the principle is proven in our rather method of vaccinating against smallpox. With diligent use we have almost banished scourge from our individuals have come to me that, "as soon as I get a cold that kills me till warm weather again," and this very season vaccinated several that their "colds" this year so far own physician, if you tell him about it, will do his utmost to prevent your getting sick; you will know the best preparation to employ in your case. Of course there are many worthless preparations made to sell; that is why with every branch of the game. A vaccine, or immunizing preparation, made by a well-known manufacturer is dependable.

HUMORETTES

Hubby: "Dearest, what do you do with that rubber plant you bought at the store?"
 Wife: "I put it upstairs."
 Hubby: "Why do you ask?"
 Wife: "Oh, for no particular reason. I was just wondering what kind of salad this is."
 Lawyer: "The words the defendant said," said the lawyer.
 Witness: "Rather not," said the witness.
 Attorney: "They were hardly worth telling a gentleman," said the attorney.
 Judge: "Then tell them to the judge."
 Landlady: "My lady inquired of the bride how she and her husband proposed to spend their plans so far," replied the bride.
 Bride: "How tentative!" exclaimed the landlady.
 Bride: "I'm sure you'll be camping out more than anywhere else you could do."

Miss Peachblow: I hope you won't feel hurt because I refused you.

Mr. Breaker: "Not at all! Not at all! I assure you. I feel honored, positively honored. I'd rather be rejected by you than anyone I know."

"I've found a dandy parking space."

"Yeah?"

"It has only one drawback."

"What's that?"

"There's a car in it!"

First One: "Yesterday I stepped into the middle of the street, held up my arms, and stopped a runaway horse."

Second One: "That's nothing. Today I held up two fingers and stopped a taxi."

Harry, wearing his first pair of pants, went down town to see his father. After daddy had told him what a big man he was, he asked him if he would like a nickel. Harry replied:

"Well, it makes a feller feel better to have a little money in his pockets."

"Oh, save my hair! Save my hair!" she cried, pointing to a wig rapidly drifting out to sea.

"Madam," replied the gallant life guard, as he took a firm grip on her shoulder. "I'm only a lifesaver, not a hair restorer."

HINTS FOR THE HOME

Coffee Roll

Make a dough of three cups of flour, sifted with one teaspoon each of salt and ground mace, and one-half cup of sugar. Add one cup of milk, in which one compressed yeast cake has been blended, and work in one-half cup of softened butter. Knead, let rise in a warm place, roll out to one-fourth inch thick, cut into long strips, and twist these around the outside of a well greased pan, cylindrical in form, joining the strips where necessary by moistening the edges. Let rise again; bake in a moderate oven, and when nearly done brush over with sugar and water and sprinkle the top with fine-chopped almonds, mixed with dry sugar and cinnamon.

Hot Water Sponge Cake

Beat three egg yolks light and add one cup of sugar and continue beating until well mixed. Now add one cup of flour that has been sifted with one teaspoon of baking powder and a quarter teaspoon salt. Add two tablespoons of very hot water, then the whites of three eggs beaten stiff and a tablespoon of lemon juice. Bake in patty tins.

Japanese Lemon Pie

Just why Japanese, we don't know. But that is the name of it, and it is the delicious specialty of a friend. Boil together the juice of a small lemon, the grated rind, four tablespoons of water and four of sugar. Cool and add the yolks of three eggs, well beaten. Cook in double boiler until creamy stirring constantly. Beat the egg whites, three of them, and beat in sweetened whites. Have ready a baked crust. Pour in the filling and brown in the oven. This makes a nine-inch pie.

The Electric Man Diagnoses Your Household Budget

"The economy of additional electric service under the schedule of the new Home Comfort rate should influence you to take a far greater advantage of the many uses of electrical energy—especially as it applies to the comfort and happiness of your home life.

"The above chart shows how your average expenditure for electric service compares with expenditures for other commodities and services. In it you will notice that everything takes rank above electricity—and yet there are few things more important than electric service.

"In the face of ever-mounting overhead, increased taxes, increased cost of manufacturing commodities, and increased expense of distribution—the cost to the consumer of electric service has consistently decreased. At the present time it shows a national average 28 per cent below the 1914 level, and a considerably greater reduction below that level for the West Texas territory.

"And withal this effort to place the benefits of electric service within reach of all, comparatively few are taking the fullest advantage of this invaluable service. According to a report from the statistical department of the N. E. L. A.—less than 5 per cent of the electrically equipped homes are using more than 26 per cent of the total service used! And even then—electric service remains the smallest item of expense in their household budget.

"When such a little of your income goes for improving the comfort and convenience of your home through the application of electric service to your domestic problems—don't you think it would be wise to investigate more thoroughly the many advantages of additional electric service made possible so inexpensively under this new Home Comfort rate schedule?"

daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Othro Adams of Fort Stockton, as ring-bearer was a picture in a dress of yellow tulle, with shoes and socks of the same hue.

The bride entered on the arm of her father, who gave her in marriage. She was awaited at the altar by the bride-groom and best man, his brother, Horace Pyle of Van Horn, Texas.

The bride was exceedingly lovely in a Vionnet model of white chiffon with effective designs of white satin bands. French flowers ornamented the streamers of satin which emphasized the fashionable decollete. She wore white crepe slippers, her veil, of tulle and real lace, was held close to her head by bands of pearls. She carried a shower bouquet of white rosebuds and lilies of the valley.

The bride and groom knelt on a white satin pillow to receive the benediction, after which they received the felicitations of their friends.

An informal reception was held after the wedding, a pink and green color note being featured. The exquisitely decorated wedding cake, centered the table, covered with an elaborately embroidered dinner cloth. A wedding bell encircled with fern fronds, hung from the chandelier. Pink tapers burned in silver holders and all silver appointments were used.

The couple departed immediately after the reception on a wedding trip, which will include San Antonio, New Orleans and other points. The bride's going away costume was an attractive jacket suit in bottle green Felga cloth, with shawl collar of galyc and black accessories.

The bride is the only daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Collins Coates, one of Pecos County's most prominent ranchmen. She was reared in Ozona and moved to Fort Stockton with her parents in 1928. She graduated from Ozona High school in 1927 and attended Southern Methodist University.

The groom is the son of Mr. and Mrs. T. M. Pyle and a member of West-Pyle Cattle Company with headquarters at Longfellow. He is Commissioner of Pecos County Precinct No. 2. The couple will make their home on the Longfellow ranch near Fort Stockton.
