Softball Makes Its Bow Here

T DIST. MEET City League May Be Formed For Play Popular Game

The nucleus of what leaders hope will become an active Softball League for Ozona was formed Tuesday afternoon when an impromptu game was staged between teams of business men representing the north and south sides of town, This first game of the sport locally was played in the publicity book of the O- Powell athletic field, the northenders taking the contest with a comfortable margin.

Softball baseball, a sport which has been popular in towns all over West Texas for the past several years, offers a period of relaxation and play for men after business hours, and from four to six teams are expected to be organized here for the formation of a city league. The Lions Club, Sheep Herders, Clerks, Business Men and various other groups have indicated that they will have teams launched in combat and a schedule will be worked out for the season. Another game of independents has been arranged for Friday afternoon at

THE FORGOTTEN LAND

In West Texas there are seventeen counties that comprise the "forgotten land." It is a country that somebody thought would always be valueless. Hence it was deeded to the State University. It is the land known as a barren plains country, a land of cactus, greasewood, the yucca plant and rolling sands.

It was a land where man found life hard where only half a dozen ranchmen lived to the county. It was the land of last romance, that land through which wind the alkalied waters of the Pecos. In this forgotten land, cities and towns were unknown. Even late as ten years ago, some of the counties new boasting a population of twenty to thirty thousand people, had a population of two and three hundred. Crane county, with its present population of around five or six thousand people, ten years ago was unorganized as a county and had a total population of less than fifty persons.

Nobody wanted this "forgotten land." The University had no use for it, but by leasing the wide sections of land to local ranchmen, a steady income was provided to the University, and yet, the rancher could lease cheaper than to pay taxes on the property. As originally planned, this system of giving to the University about half the land in the area, worked out very well to all concerned.

Then came a change Landhungry people drifted westward. Irrigated farms, and dry farmers invaded this land, where the more timid had feared to tread. They prospered. Beend sections of ranches were cut up into small tracts, and two, three and half a dozen families lived where formerly there was only one. Even the very elements seemed to favor this forgotten land, for the rainfall increased, and the landscape became beautiful in the spring time with a riot of wild flowers, of every hue and color. The former barren plains took on a vesture of green and fatted cows and sheep roamed this land of West Texas.

Counties became organized. Schools were established. It was the pride of these West Texans that their children, even though some times they journeyed far to school, they were provided with a school system equal to the best anywhere.

And then came oil. A mad rush followed. Thousands of people swarmed to this forgotten land, and cities and towns came into being. Wealth, hitherto unthought of came to the land owners. But behind the scene in all this new development, there remained one in- the richest educational institustitution, silent, though with a tion in the world. DO YOUR SHOES FIT?

The condition of the feet may bear an important relationship to one's health and efficiency. In an article in the Illinois Medical Journal, Dr. S. C. vicious of the rattlesnake species, is fast losing its fight against civilization in this section.

This territory with its vast ranches and remote canyons and hills used to be infested with numerous rattlesnake dens and caves but today most of these canyon crevices are empty and silent. The greatest factor in decimating these most feared reptiles has been by dynamiting the dens in which they hibernated during the winter months. Many of these caves contained 25 to 50 and in some instances as many as 100 rattlers.

The effective use of guns during the warm months by ranchmen and their employes has been another reason for the decline of this poison-fanged species, H. R. Morrell, local game warden, and one of the best rattlesnake hunters in this section, whose favorite pastime was to sit out in front of a rattlesnake den and shoot them as they came rattling out into the sunshine, reports that he will soon have to look for some other type of amusement .- Brady Standard.
