Each day these dishes will be cooked while you are comfortably seated, perhaps notebook in hand. And Mrs. Howard will tell you how best to arrange and serve the meals that are discussed. A feature of the school will be "The Question Box," which will answer your questions effectively. You do not even have to sign your name.

ANOTHER CURIO ADDED TO JONES COLLECTION

J. T. Patrick of Ozona has presented to the A. W. Jones curio collection here a unique form of a knife found last summer near Fort Lancaster.

The knife has two blades with points jutting vertically on the ends, the only parts of the knife which cut. Neither the finder nor collector have determined the uses for which the knife was made.

Mrs. O. W. Smith and Mrs. R. O. Smith spent the first part of the week in Miles visiting Mr. and Mrs. Jesse Williams.

New Ambulance Is Installed Here By Oberkamp

Handsomeness Placed In Service Wednesday

A handsome new combination ambulance and hearse, just driven through from the factory at Cincinnati, Ohio, was placed in service here yesterday by Joe Oberkamp.

The new ambulance is a custom-built machine by Sayers & Scoville, powered with a Buick straight-eight motor of 120 horsepower. It is capable of a speed of 100 miles an hour and is one of the most complete and up-to-date machines of its kind in the nation. Equipped with hot water heating system, complete medical and surgical equipment, electric fans, elaborate interior fittings, streamlined body, extra long springs for comfort in riding, and an exclusive safety feature, an extension floor brace for ease and safety in loading and unloading patients, the new ambulance is one of the most complete units ever produced by the makers.

Mr. and Mrs. Oberkamp left last week for Cincinnati to receive the machine. They started on the 1500-mile return trip Saturday, taking it in easy stages to "break-in" the motor. Mr. Oberkamp was impressed by the apparent improved business conditions in the north and east. On the long bus ride to Cincinnati, Mr. Oberkamp said that he heard not one person mention "hard times" and during his travels he was "touched" by only one "panhandler" and that a drug addict.

Lions Give New Members a Ride On Club's Goat

First Formal Initiation Celebrates Recent Growth

Caged under padlock and log chain upon arrival, served raw meat at the table and otherwise daintily dealt with, a dozen members of the Ozona Lions Club were formally initiated at a night meeting of the club at the Hotel Ozona Tuesday evening. The elaborate initiation ceremonies, a new departure in club conduct, was staged as a program feature and as a means of celebrating the recent growth of the club's membership.

Seven visiting Lions, two from Junction and five from Sonora, were in attendance at the meeting, the visitors being assigned the task of enlightening the new Lions on their duties and responsibilities as members of the service club.

Blackstone Smith, Junction ranchman, chairman of Lions Clubs in this group, and A. I. Davidson of Junction, and Rex Cusenberry, Mayor Bill Gilmore, Buzzy Stokes, School Supt. M. L. Covey, and Homer Jennings of Sonora were the visitors. Lions Smith, Gilmore, Stokes and Covey all made interesting talks on Lions Clubs and the work they are doing. Mr. Jennings entertained the group with a selection on the "jawbone," an instrument peculiar to him.

Musical entertainment for the evening consisted of a group of violin selections presented by Joe Haddon, with Bryan McDonald accompanying on the piano.

Crockett County Is Given Quota Of Four In Junior C. C. Corps

Each year the contest will be held among the four classes and the winning staff will have the class name engraved on the cup. ## Curios And Odd Creations Of Master Collector Found In Museum Pieces Of Collection Left By The Late L. B. Cox

By Bill Gray
Fascination that drives the collector of rare and obsolete tid bits holds the spectator in silent admiration as he views the odd creations and gatherings left by a master collector and creator of the unique.

In the assortment left by the late L. B. Cox of Ozona, part of which rests in a glass case and the remainder in a near room in the Ozona High School auditorium one finds an interest in the variety and unorthodox nature of the curios.

Wood carvings that intrigue the mind in search for analysis—quaint old guns that set one musing—war relics which bring to mind shrapnel filled battlefields—odd freaks of natural growth—an assortment of coins that instigate wanderlust and numerous other bits, all lead the mind in fanciful meanderings.

Although the exhibition case at present does not hold all the curios, plans are underway in the high school manual training department for preparing the case for complete exhibition of the collection.

Ancient Treasures

In the assortment are nineteen rifles and among them are to be found an odd Kax 88, bolt action, the cap and ball rifle of Squire S. W. McClure of Louisiana, loaned by McClure H. Parker and an antiquated 44 calibre rifle with side plunger. Twelve pistols, all worn or deteriorated and ranging from a duelling piece to Colt .44 calibres found along the Old Spanish Trail, are also part of the collection. The original Cox collection has been augmented by pistols and rifles loaned by other Ozonians among which are Max Schneemans, Mrs. F. A. Gray and McClure H. Parker.

Days of the ball and cap firing pieces are re-told in rusty bullet molds which are in the collection. But the collection is an assortment and takes the eye to new interest as it scans the array. From bullet mold, spurs, harness bits, toy boots, an old cattle brand of "The Hat Ranch" the eye moves on to view battlefield relics (unexploded shells, a hand grenade, sabers, a shrapnel torn helmet) and finds fixed interest in a German officer's dress helmet bearing the insignia, "Mit Gott Fur Koenig Und Vaterland."

And then one's eyes alight upon long, keen daggers, dull now but yet arousing the question: Were any owned by a Cassius? A particularly striking (two meanings) dagger is one with the rabbit's foot for a handle. There are six daggers (machettes, knives and corkscrew daggers).

Leaving the murderous array, the spectator is to be intrigued by less sanguinary curios. Found at Fort Lancaster and donated by J. H. Meredith, a large crumpled cup bears the name of John T. Borston Com. A 8 Infantry, C. H. T. The date is May 17, 1859. The cup has outlived the drinker.

Master Carvings

Javelina hogs are not inviting, even mounted or in a curio collection but the tiny one in the Cox collection reveals not only the native animal in a harmless pose, but indicates expert taxidermy.

On into the varied curio group one picks up coral formation, platted limbs from a tree, odd rocks, and numerous "this-and-thats" until alighting upon the closet shelves containing the most interesting pieces in the collection. Here are the works of the collector, perhaps an unsurpassed group of wood carvings.

When the new shelving has been provided for better exhibition, the wood creations will present a more elaborate display of the art work of the creator. But even by the disheveled arrangement, the visitor is provoked into wonderment and the hands can not keep from lifting each and scrutinizing the fanciful object.

There are scissors that work up and down although they can not be expected to cut, plyers that clamp down and release, a drinking cup that is most practically suited for drinking, a carpenter's compass, every tool for the garden (in relative miniature) perfect steer horns, and puzzle blocks galore. One wonders if the cork-screw will work, if the snake is only of wood, and if the "sword fish" is a baby one or also of wood.

Chair In Bottle

The real master creations of the late collector are found in the bottle chair and the merry-go-round. A quart bottle of square dimensions contains in it the miniature chair made by the wood carver which fits the bottle exactly. The spectator wonders how the chair could be made inside the container. A special tool for working with the wood pieces is first made and then the bottle is filled to an appropriate level as each piece is assembled inside the bottle. The water is then emptied out and a wooden "cork" is placed in the neck of the bottle and locked FROM THE INSIDE. Wood carvers are not common minded people.

The genius collector has also left another enigma for the layman to wonder about. The wooden merry-go-round is made of about six pieces of wood, the swinging "ropes" being made of wood chains and the ends holding hollowed cubes in which wooden balls roll unattached.

In a nearby case one finds the picture of former President Wilson embellished with a frame of interlocking and "keyed" blocks of wood, that leave the picture in obscurity because of the artistry of the frame.

Below are coins from twenty-two nations and bills from several of the world's dominions. Square money, money with holes in the center and money of almost every ore and from little more than the size of a match head to bills that would furl appropriately on celebration days, quaint and far-away monetary mediums are to be found in the Cox coin collection.

Quaint and fanciful lore gath-

Rout Of Diphtheria Most Spectacular Of Medical Conquest

AUSTIN, Texas, March 26— "Few conquests of science have been so spectacular and complete as the rout of diphtheria. And this victory has most firmly established the value of serum treatment both in its preventive and curative phases. However, toxin-antitoxin of its successor toxoid for immunization, and antitoxin for timely cure, are brilliant achievements of which the general public even yet are not fully aware," states Dr. John W. Brown, State Health Officer.

"As indicated, toxoid is the immunizing or preventive agent now usually employed. Only one injection of this serum is necessary. However, three to four months are required for the body to develop immunity. At that time the Schick test is applied to determine the results of this preventative treatment. This harmless and painless procedure is performed by injecting into the upper layers of the skin a minute drop of the diphtheria toxin. If within 48 to 72 hours there is no redness at the place where the toxin was injected, or perhaps a small blister and some hardness of the skin, immunity has been definitely established.

"However, when a case of diphtheria exists antitoxin is the only treatment that will save life. Also, to be effective, it must be given early and in large doses. Delay is usually caused by parents failing to realize that any sore throat may actually be diphtheria.

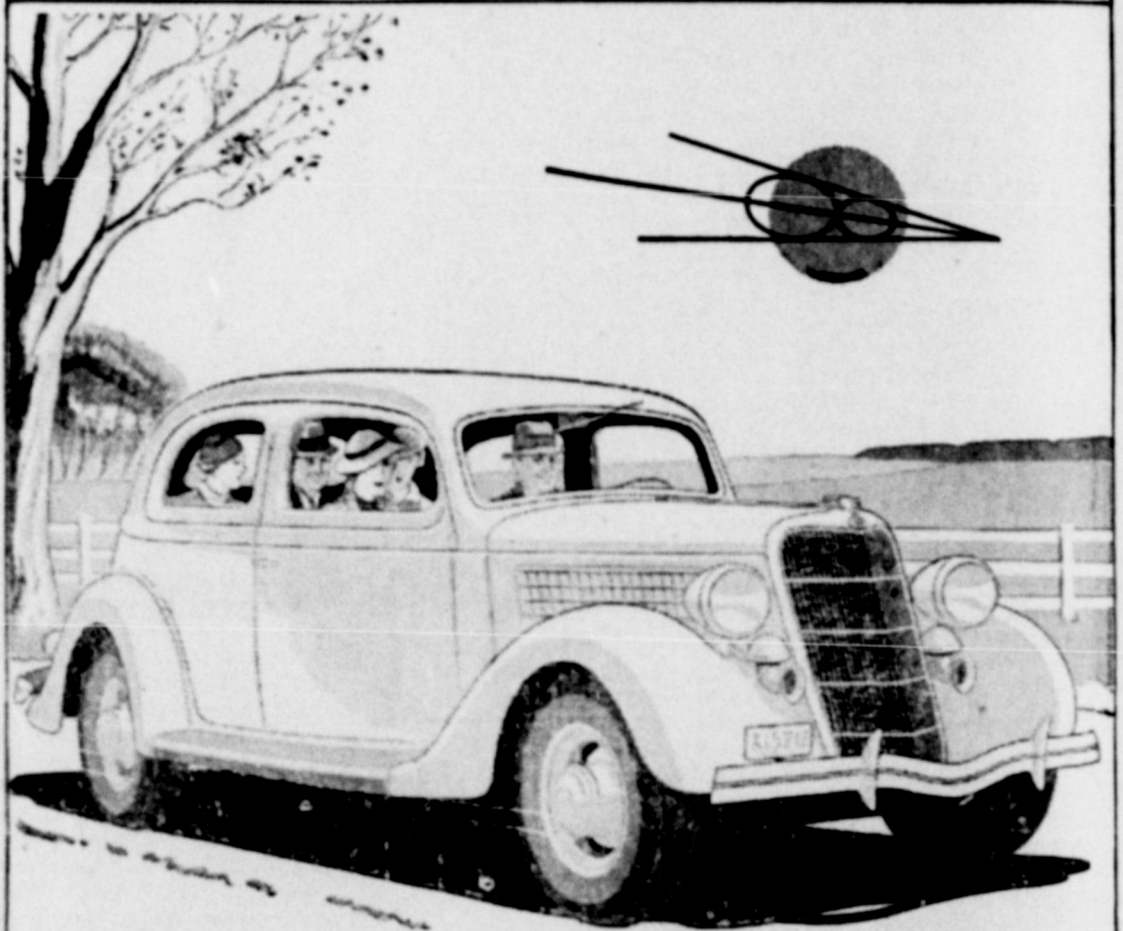

"The means are at hand to fight diphtheria to the death, but it cannot be done without a hundred per cent cooperation of parents. May Day, the Child's Health Day, will soon be here and one of the best ways to observe it would be for parents to have their children immunized against diphtheria.

First Texas Colonists Found It Very Expensive To Keep Savage Redmen In Good Humor, Ancient Documents Show

AUSTIN, Texas, March 26—During the Spanish regime in Texas, the history of the country was practically decided by the character, distribution and interrelation of the native Indian tribes. As if this were not enough to paralyze the arm of the government in far-away Mexico City, the presence of French traders and land-hungry Anglo-Americans on the Louisiana border and the activities of revolutionary agents and highly excited Creoles in the very heart of the section still further complicated in extremely dangerous situation.

To the viceroy, nearly a thousand miles away, and to the Commandant General, far across the Rio Grande, the conflicting reports submitted by the military commander at Nacogdoches on the far eastern frontier, by the priests at Bahia on the Gulf of Mexico, and by the civil authorities at Bexar on the westernmost fringe of settlements were absolutely irreconcilable, it is evident from the copies of these documents in the official Bexar Archives, now deposited in the University of Texas library. One set of reports seemed to demand peace, the next seemed to require war. What to do in any given crisis was the ever recurring question. Neither peace nor war seemed to solve the problem, for one party of Indians would "play good" and beg the government to protect them against "a bad bunch"—any action, or no action, would inevitably bring trouble.

Then it was that a new compromise measure was tried—a system that had enabled the French to hold the good will of the savages and to maneuver themselves into a position of "arbiters" between the Spaniards and their wards, the Redmen, who, like spoiled children were always pouting, always begging for more.

The Spaniards, like indulgent fathers, were willing to go to the bottom of their pocket books. But when the bottom was reached, only trouble could ensue. Things went round in a vicious circle. What the end was to be only time could tell.

What it must have cost the Spanish to meet these demands of the Redmen for "gifts," can be roughly estimated from one annual report. It included the distribution of articles to 1,225 friendly Indians, including the following items: Three rifles, 1,345 knives, 269 small knives, 506 scissors, 69 axes, 49 hoes, 478 combs, 19 varas of wire, 4,182 pounds of glass beads, 46 pounds of vermilion, 281 mirrors, 3 awls, 589 varas of ribbon, 66 copper pots, 10 canes, 35 coats, 33 jackets, 33 trousers, 2,766 hawkbells, 14 plain shirts, 80 shirts with ruffles, 121 shirts with stiff bosoms, 617 varas of woolen cloth, 49 hats 24 iron pots, 20 gorgets or decorations for the head, 24 flags, 458 ramrods, 365 leaf rolls of tobacco, 612 steel links, 43 small bells, and 35 pair of buckles. These gifts, itemized by the month, were distributed principally to the Comanches, Tahuacanas, Lipanes, and Carancahuas, with occasional gifts being made to the Huichitas, Yancahuas, Cacos, Atacapas and the Tejas tribes. It was noteworthy that the Comanches received presents every month except one, with the Lipanes running a close second.

The trickery of the Indians can be seen from a communication from the governor of Texas, Domingo Cabello to Jacovo de Ugarte y Loyola, the advocate of war: "On the 30th of last month six Indians of the Taboayazes tribe came to this Presidio. They were anxious to be the first to bring news of the success of the 200 Tahuacanes (Tahuacanas) Icañis and Flechazos who had a battle with the Lipanes (or Lipans) on May 22 about which I have already informed Your Lordship in my letter number 217.

"These six Indians have added little to the facts I knew already and their object was solely to get here ahead of the others, and tell about the fight. This was an excuse to eat in abundance during the days they spent here. I have already told them to go back to their tribe, for they do not deserve a reward—none of them nor any of the Guachitas. (Huichitas) went to the other three tribes to carry out the commands I had given all of them. I mention this so Your Lordship will keep it in mind when I send the statement of the expenses.

"Miguel Perez, a Ynjuan Indian, the one I know more about than any of the others, when he was eight years old he was captured by the Lipanes, who went along as auxiliaries in the expedition of 1759 against the Taboayazes led by Colonel Diego Ortis Parrilla, captain of the Presidio of San Saba. The only rancherías of the Lipanes was located on the Rio del Fierro that runs between the said Presidio of San Saba and the village of the Taboayazes. They attacked this village, captured some Indians and killed others, while the rest fled, taking refuge with the Tancagues (Yancahuas). The said Miguel Perez was among the first group, and was brought to this Presidio where Baltazar Perez, Alferes in command of the old men, who is a Christian, reared him and bestowed his name upon him. He has been very faithful to his master and helps him in everything. Notwithstanding being married to an Indian woman from one of the missions, he conducts himself very well.

"The father and the oldest brother of the said Miguel Perez were among those who suffered the fate mentioned above. They have lived among the Tancagues with a good reputation, so much so, that after the death of El Mocho, they made the aforesaid Miguel Perez's brother chief. Before this he came here very often with his father, to visit his brother, who could not will himself to live among the Indians, and never went to pay back their visit. Last February, heeding the pleas of his father and his brother, he asked my permission to go and visit them. I gladly gave it, so that he would take a message to his brother, letting him know how displeased I was with him for the great friendship and treaty he had formed with the Lipanes. I mentioned that if that was the reason why he had had El Mocho killed, he himself might meet with the same fate. Because of all this I would not remember either him or his people.

"While they were wondering what to do, 200 Indians of the Tahuacanes, Icañis and Flechazos arrived and invited them to go with them on an expedition against the Lipanes. As the Tancagues saw a chance to give me satisfaction by becoming enemies of the Lipanes, they accepted the invitation and armed 150 men. Thereupon the four tribes set out to attack the Lipanes.

"The chief of the Tahuacanes, the son of Siscat Gaynon, prepared a very good plan of attack. He proposed to attack the enemy through the wooded section on the banks of the Colorado River and along a canyon where the ranch of Cuernitos was located. But the Tancagues, who now have confessed their mistake, were anxious to capture the caballada which was on the other side of the river, and wanted to attack the Lipanes from that side. They did so and succeeded in capturing the caballada which consisted of 600 head of horses. However, the attack was not successful because, as soon as the Lipanes heard of the approach of the enemy, they took refuge in the woods and were not killed, which would have happened if the plan of the chief of the Tahuacanes had been followed.

"The Indians were satisfied with the booty of the caballada and everything they found on the ranch. They returned to the village of the Tancagues where they distributed the booty and the captives. Twelve of the Tahuacanes returned to their own village, and the Tancagues remained in their village dancing the mitote, according to their custom. The others have been doing the same thing, according to a report of the Taboayazes.

"When the Tahuacanes, Ycañis and Flechazos took leave, they promised to unite again and continue their war on the Lipanes. They promised that they would keep each other informed of the time in which they would meet again.

"Among the Tancagues was Miguel Perez. Since he was an eye witness to the battle, he gave me a report of it.

"After the battle, his brother sent him to report the affair to me and at the same time to give me satisfaction in reply to the note that I sent him. He told him to take back a reply from me in order to call the tribes to the North together so that they can go in search of the Lipanes to see if they can exterminate them.

"Miguel Perez returned from the village of the Tancagues on June 22. I was very much pleased to learn the turn matters had taken, and that the Lipanes have lost the favor of the Tancagues. Their friendship had made it possible for the Lipanes to have access to the territory below the Guadalupe river, and cause us great troubles."

The rulings of the bewildered viceroy and the Commandant General indicate that the treasury was exhausted, that it was impossible to tell a good Indian from a bad Indian and that even the good ones were beginning to think that presents grew on trees. For instance the Indians were asking for things never given them before—such as tobacco, fire, water, guns, bullets and gunpowder, gold banded hats, gold beaded jackets and greatly increased numbers of glass beads and little metal bells; as the viceroy remarked, this request, if granted, would lay an intolerable burden upon the treasury and, in addition, would substitute for the former policy of bestowing rewards upon the friendly Indians, a system of tribute to the Redmen, who were merely waiting an opportunity to go on the warpath. This situation was entirely to the liking of the French and the Anglo-Americans on the border.

Couldn't Stand For That
Russia has resorted to the plan of shooting its reckless drivers. That's all right, if Russia wants to do it that way. But it would never work out over here, for the simple reason that there are too many such drivers, and shooting them would only mean bigger munitions profits.—Kansas City Times.

Fresh, pure air... constantly circulated at just the right temperature and humidity to keep your food in perfect condition. That's modern air-conditioned refrigeration with ice!

Odorless, Tasteless Refrigeration!

Odorless... because the constantly changing air freshens the interior of the modern ice refrigerator, thus removing strong odors. This air-conditioning process makes it possible to place, in open space, butter or milk, in the same storage space with onions, cabbage, or other foods with a distinctive odor. The air-washing effect of the melting ice carries all odors out of your refrigerator. Each food retains its own individual flavor. THE CRITICS OF ADVERTISING

Our national sense of humor permits us to poke fun at anything even at our most highly regarded institutions. We love wise-cracks at the expense of our best friends. We laugh out loud when George Bernard Shaw tells us that all Americans are boobies. We get a great kick reading those humorous magazines which make fun of certain types of advertising, although we know that advertising performs an indispensable service. It is all good natured.

But it is different when our critics get serious. We object to accusations based on ignorance or prejudice. Most of us resent being influenced by advertising, for we know that this same influence has led us to the enjoyment of many things which make life better.

One objection often made by glib critics is that advertising makes people buy things they don't need. As if advertising could possibly force anyone to buy! Anyway, who is competent to judge what people need? Perhaps an occasional high pressure salesman has wheeled you into buying something you don't want, but advertising simply cannot use high pressure methods. All it can possibly do is to lay before you information about a product. You can take it or leave it. There will be no come-back. Advertising is the perfect low pressure salesman.

Advertising is sometimes condemned because a dishonest vendor occasionally misuses it. It would be just as logical to condemn all grocery stores because the grocer on the side street once sold you a bad egg. By its very nature, advertising is always open to inspection. One of the best reasons why it is usually kept clean is that it must be approved by the public in order to be profitable. If you should run across some advertisement which does not seem to be in good taste, it is up to you to discourage that sort of thing by refusing to buy that particular advertised product. Just watch how quickly the advertiser changes his tactics the moment he learns the public does not like his advertising.

Advertising is not an extra expense at all. It is part of a complete selling plan and the company which does not advertise must substitute some other form of selling, usually more costly. Properly used, advertising reduces the cost of distributing goods and makes possible a lower selling price.

After all is said, the most important aspect of advertising is its contribution to social progress. Even the most vocal critics of advertising owe much of their well-being to its efficient service in business and to its influence in raising standards of living—Sterling (Colo.) Farm Journal.

If France and England are drifting apart, what will the channel swimmers do?—The Omaha World Herald.

LARGEST PRINTING JOB

What is perhaps the largest single order of printed matter ever produced began rolling out of Chicago a few days ago, being the spring and summer catalogue of a large mail order house.

The first shipment to be distributed, which was only one-third of the total, filled 102 freight cars and consisted of 3,000 tons of catalogues. The entire issue will weigh approximately 9,000 tons or 18 million pounds.

This supreme advertising effort, which is being imitated on a somewhat smaller scale by other mail order houses, is directed largely to prospective customers in the smaller towns and rural sections. It means that there is trade to be had, and that the way to get it is through advertising.

In combating the encroachments of the mail order houses, local merchants have many advantages. The customer can see the goods before he buys, there are no long waits for delivery, no disappointments or dissatisfaction over goods which do not come up to fancy catalogue descriptions. Quality considered, the local merchant's prices are usually as reasonable as those of the mail order house.

The average local merchant's handicap consists chiefly in his own failure to go after trade thru persistent and adequate advertising, and the mail order houses take advantage of his failure to use this effective defensive and offensive weapon.

'KEEP IT OUT OF THE PAPER'

It seems to be the lot of the country editor to make more enemies than friends. The reason is easy to explain. The country editor conducts a small newspaper that in a large sense, is quite insignificant—until something of unusual interest occurs within the community. The country editor is compelled to record the happenings, and no matter how careful he is with his descriptions and opinions, he is sure to tramp on somebody's toes. I've done a lot of "keeping things out of the paper." I have refrained from writing up certain sensational news events because the story would add to the pain already nearly unbearable. Yet, I caught hell from certain people because I didn't narrate the lurid details.—Everett A. Place, editor, Dexter (Iowa) Sentinel.

HAPPY KITCHEN CHATS

By Mrs. Johnetta Howard

Everyone knows that the person with lots of vitality gets ahead faster—has more fun out of life. What we eat has a great deal to do with the vitality we enjoy! Here's an interesting fact; the largest need of our diet is for endurance energy and science now reveals that bread is our outstanding food.

Bread is economical. It furnishes necessary energy at low cost. It is such an important food that it can well supply from 25% to 50% of the total energy needs of the body, and still permit a well balanced diet for good nutrition. Beauty, and the capacity to enjoy life, are not possible without abundant energy. Bread is an important food for meeting this essential body need, efficiently. Instead of being avoided, bread should be the prominent energy food of the diet for that endurance energy so essential to vitality.

Bread contains from fifty to fifty-five percent of carbohydrates, which supply energy mainly. Bread also includes proteins, used for building muscle and helping daily repair of body tissue. Everyone needs energy food. Women, especially should remember that; for no one can enjoy the full flow of health and beauty without proper energy nourishment. The strictest program of weight control requires energy food, as does the hardest kind of physical effort—the only difference is in the quantity of energy food needed. So bread, being our outstanding energy food, should not be avoided—but should serve as the prominent energy food of the diet.

These are facts verified by noted scientists and every statement made in the foregoing remarks has been accepted by the Committee on Foods of the American Medical Association.

NOBODY'S BUSINESS

BY JULIAN CAPERS JR.

Austin, March 25—The raiding rangers and Gov. Jimmie Allred's policy of using them to close open saloons and gambling houses in the state's principal cities has temporarily diverted public attention from the legislature. The first reaction from the large cities was rather severe criticism of the governor.

But the secondary reaction has proved again that Jimmie Allred is perhaps the keenest judge of what is going on in the minds of the majority of people of Texas who sat in the governor's chair in many years. It also proved the governor makes few political mistakes.

The governor has talked rather freely about his action. He has pointed out that law enforcement was one of the principal planks in his platform, and his friends say he warned the saloonkeepers and gambling house operators from every platform in Texas last summer that he intended to enforce the law.

Actually, the governor has no idea or intention of trying to enforce the laws with the handful of rangers at the disposal of Adjt. Gen. Carl Nesbitt. But already, sheriffs and district attorneys have been falling all over themselves to assure the governor it isn't necessary to send rangers to their communities, and begging for a chance to enforce the law in their own counties and districts. All the governor ever intended to do was "turn the heat" on these derelict local officials. The spectacular raids in Galveston, San Antonio, Fort Worth and Houston and elsewhere have sent the criminals who have defied the law openly scurrying for cover. The rangers were criticized by some well-meaning citizens for smashing the expensive furnishings of the gambling houses. But the governor, in his radio talk, quickly pointed out they were directed by the law to do just that.

There is a good story going the rounds in Austin which may or may not be entirely true, but it is given wide credence. It is said that the proprietor of one of the smashed night clubs in a south Texas city sent a check for $25,000 as a contribution to Allred's campaign fund during the campaign last summer. The check, so the story goes, was promptly returned from the Allred headquarters. The club operator, loudly bewailing his smashed night club, is said to have cursed Allred loudly for his "ingratitude." The ease with which certain local enforcement officials have been persuaded to ignore open saloons and gambling houses makes it difficult for their operators to understand a governor who makes campaign pledges and then goes right out and fulfills them.

These are strange times, but occasionally a peep into the pages of history reveals a perfect answer to some of the troublesome questions that present-day officials think are entirely new. To the question of whether Texas should surrender control of her oil industry to Washington bureaucrats, James Stephen Hogg, one of Texas' greatest chief executives, once gave a perfect answer. It was contained in a veto message, when he killed a bill the legislature passed authorizing the state prison system to accept a bounty from the federal government for raising sugar on prison lands. He said: "In the management of her affairs, she (Texas) is sovereign, supreme, subject only to the control of the people within her dominion. To accept this bounty for sugar, she would surrender the supervision and inspection of one of her most important industries from the federal government for spoils she would open the way for the invasion and final destruction of her independent autonomy. For a mess of pottage, seasoned with the sacrifice of principle, she would surrender her birthright." He might have been talking to the boys who want to accept federal control and "aid" for a Texas oil industry that is returning more than $45,000,000 in state taxes alone to Texas.

The hearing before a senate committee on the proposed constitutional amendment to exempt homesteads up to $3000 assessed valuation from all except school taxes was a remarkable session in several respects. There was virtually no "opposition" to the plan, altho a score of city officials appeared as nominal opponents, they were for relief for the small home owners, on a practicable basis, and merely cited figures to show what would happen to the cities and towns if the amendment should be adopted in its present form. Bailey Jones of New Braunfels, Mayor Tom Miller of Austin City Manager Bill Taylor of Longview, Mayor Pete Renfro of Beaumont, and others all pointed out that exemption of $3000 homes would halve their cities' revenue, cripple municipal services and force many to default on bonds heretofore issued in good faith.

"I don't believe that we ought to carry the man who owns a $3000 homestead for a free ride on municipal service," said Mayor Tom Miller. "I believe any good American wants to pay, and ought to pay, a little something for what he gets from his community. I think the idea of this exemption originated in the minds of members of the legislature, and not with the people. Nobody has come to my office and asked for it—and if the people of Austin demanded it some of them would have been in to see me."

New Corporations Show Increase In Texas In February

AUSTIN, Texas, March 26—New charters granted to Texas Corporations during February increased in comparison with the corresponding month last year, both in number and capitalization, according to the University of Texas Bureau of Business Research. There was, however, a sharp drop from the previous month.

"Reports from the office of Secretary of State give a total of 143 new corporations, a decline of 23 per cent from the previous month but an increase of 10 per cent over February last year, while total capitalization of $1,569,000 was 48 per cent below that of January but 22 per cent above February a year ago," the Bureau's report said. "All classes of corporations showed a decline in the number of new charters granted as compared with January. But in comparison with February last year, there was a sharp increase in the number granted manufacturing, banking, finance, and real estate-building concerns.

Mrs. Tucker's Texas Made Shortening Is Chosen For School

Mrs. Tucker's Shortening was chosen for the cooking school primarily because it is a 100% cotton seed oil product.

Being made exclusively from choice cotton seed oil, Mrs. Tucker's Shortening serves the southwestern housewives in two distinct ways. First, cotton seed oil has been proven by government and scientific tests to be the best shortening agent known; also the most digestible. Second, every pound of cotton seed oil consumed helps the market for cotton and cotton seed produced in the southwest.

As it takes the cotton seed from about one tenth of an acre to produce a four pound pail or carton of Mrs. Tucker's Shortening housewives in this section can readily understand the importance of Mrs. Tucker's Shortening to the southwest which produces more cotton than any other section of the world its size.

The Interstate Cotton Oil Refining Company of Sherman, Texas, buys the choicest cotton seed oil from all parts of the southwest; refines it and super-refines it; then creams and triple creams it into pure, white and fluffy Mrs. Tucker's Shortening, which is easy to use in the kitchen and easy to digest. The triple creaming process appeals to housewives because it delivers Mrs. Tucker's Shortening so finely textured and silky smooth that it does not have to be creamed unless the housewife desires. Other qualities of this shortening which appeal to good cooks are the facts that its cartons are air-tight inner sealed with "Cellophane," it will not pop nor spatter when used for frying; and it is economical because it goes farther. Mrs. Tucker says that no matter how cheap inferior oils and fats may become, her shortening will never be adulterated—it will always be pure cotton seed oil.

U. S. Agents To Study Cause Of Sheep 'Bighead'

Coal Oil Weed, Horsebrush Suspected As Disease Cause

WASHINGTON, D. C., March 26—Further proof that the sheep disease, "bighead" is caused by "coal oil weeds" or "spineless horsebrush" will be sought this summer by Arthur B. Clawson of the U. S. Department of Agriculture who leaves today for the livestock range in Utah, Idaho and neighboring States. He will be assisted by E. A. Moran and W. T. Huffman of the Bureau of Animal Industry and Milton A. Madsen of Salt Lake, Utah. His headquarters will be at Salina, Utah. Definite study of bighead began a year ago.

For at least 50 years, bighead has brought heavy losses to western sheepmen, many of whom have accepted it as something which could not be avoided. The most serious outbreaks occur in fairly definite places along the trails or on the bed grounds while sheep are being moved from winter ranges to lambing grounds. In April and May, 1934, Mr. Clawson located many of these places on western Utah trails and contrasted them with trails where bighead does not occur. Later a similar comparison was made in Idaho.

It was found that either "coal oil weed" or "spineless horsebrush" is abundant in every area where bighead is particularly dangerous, but they are found only in small isolated patches on other ranges. The period when the plants are poisonous coincides with the season when bighead occurs. The conclusion is that these plants, botanically known as Tetradyia glabrata and Tetradyia canescens variety inermis, may be the cause of bighead.

Coal oil weed obviously is not palatable to sheep and herders commonly state that it is never eaten, but close observation shows that sheep will graze it at times. Spineless horsebrush often is closely grazed along the trails and on the bed grounds. Although related, the two plants are different in appearance. Horsebrush resembles sagebrush and often is called by that name.

Many sheepmen have said bighead is caused by weather conditions, because it seems most prevalent on hot, sunny days following cold, stormy periods. But such weather conditions do not produce bighead in all areas. The belief that bighead is caused by weeds fits in with the weather theory, however, because it is known that when animals eat some plants, they become extremely sensitive to sunlight.

Sheepmen have observed that, in some outbreaks of bighead, a considerable proportion of the sick sheep show little, if any, swelling about the head, and that the fatalities among such animals are much higher than among the cases which have given the disease its name. This suggests that swelling around the head and ears is a secondary manifestation of a more fundamental difficulty. In all postmortem injury to the liver was apparent. It also is known that the bile sometimes contains substances which make animals particularly sensitive to sunlight.

Many cases of bighead occur around Clear Lake in Utah. It was found that sheep most seriously affected usually had been driven along the foot of Sugar Loaf butte where coal oil weed constitutes a large proportion of the vegetation. It is said bighead also invariably develops in bands of sheep allowed to graze a definite area in

JAP FINANCE MINISTER

The swish, eighty-three-year-old patriarch and veteran of Japanese finance, Korekiyo Takahashi, poses for this picture in his Tokyo office, after approving the governmental budget for 1935. He is the finance minister of the Okada government now in power.

Buckskin Valley, about midway between Panguitch and Beaver, Utah, although the disease does not occur after grazing in other parts of the valley Spineless horsebrush is found in Buckskin Valley, only in this area where it is particularly abundant. The conditions found on these two areas apply almost equally as well to other bighead areas examined. On some particularly bad spots in Idaho, 75 per cent or more of the vegetation was found to be spineless horsebrush.

The close correlation between these plants and cases of bighead, does not immediately prove them to be the cause, says Mr. Clawson, but does show that they may be. After the investigations last spring, definite feeding tests with these plants were begun, but the season was so far advanced that plants were difficult to obtain. No definite proof that coal oil weed and spineless horsebrush cause bighead was obtained, but tests early this spring are expected to be more conclusive.

The program opened with an athletic show staged by the athletic department of the schools. The Senior Epworth League followed with the clever "Newspaper Wedding" skit, and the Junior Leaguers next produced their winning stunt. The Ozona Music Club sponsored "Hero Enters," a burlesque on the melodramatic offerings of road shows of a quarter century ago, with Bryan McDonald, Miss Dixie Davidson and Mrs. Mark Garver taking the roles of Nell, the wronged girl, Pinchpenny, the villain, and Jack Dalton, the hero, respectively.

Beauty in stage setting and serious drama, with a whipcracker laugh for a denouement, were combined in "Not Yet, Marie," the stunt sponsored by the Ozona Lions Club. Ora Louise Cox, Mary Bess Parker, Dorothy Hannah and Mary Louise Harvick in beautiful dance costumes furnished the beautiful setting of nymphs dancing in the ancestral garden, visited daily by the old man, played by Hugh Childress, Jr. Mrs. Boyd Clayton as a strolling singer, sang "When You and I Were Young Maggie," with Mrs. Neal Hannah accompanying at the piano. Mrs. Hannah also furnished music for the dance and the soft music background for the production. Willie Joe Hubbard was the "bird" heard singing at sunrise in the garden, the lad producing an almost professionally finished exhibition of bird whistling. Mrs. A. W. Jones assisted in producing the skit.

V. VanZandt, in the soft, melodious voice of Mrs. Boyd Clayton sang and acted, "The Man on the Flying Trapeze" under the sponsorship of the Young Women's Missionary Society of the Methodist Church, and Athleen and Betty Dudley portrayed "The Dark Town Strutters," a blackface singing number for the Junior Woman's Club. Little Jo Nell Coose, in cowboy costume, contributed a cowboy song. "The Flivver Family" was the next offering followed by that of the Baptist Missionary Society, a reading, "When Mother Had the Ladies Aid," by Adele Keeton. The evening's performance closed with a group of shadow pictures furnished by the Ozona Woman's Club.

L. N. Moody, Church of Christ minister, was ill the first part of the week, being unable to fill the pulpit last Sunday evening. He is up again.

Mrs. Clinton Glover and daughter, Joanne, of Abilene are visiting Mrs. Glover's parents, Mr. and Mrs. N. W. Graham.

Mrs. Lowell Littleton, who has been in Lubbock for the past two weeks at the bed side of a brother who is seriously ill, will remain a few weeks longer.

Annual Senior Play Tonight At Auditorium

"Once In Lifetime" Is Title Of Three-Act Romantic Comedy

"Once In a Lifetime," a romantic comedy in three acts and an epilogue, by Charles Quimby Burdette, will be the dramatic offering of the Ozona High School senior class tonight for dramatic enthusiasts of Ozona.

Under the directorship of Miss Nita Nelson, the cast personnel has been working on production for more than a month and tonight the presentation is offered with a characterization including every member of the senior class.

The play offers a delightful vehicle for high school actors, laying down a romantic plot, an unusually nice stage setting and offering well defined roles giving opportunity for achieving realism in portraying a people clad in romantic fancy, the gypsy tribe.

Having to do with the old question of heredity and environment, the story presents Konrad (Ray Boyd), born of gypsy parents and adopted as a baby by Jeff Ross (Sam Glover) and his wife, Emily (Vicky Pierce). The young gypsy grows to maturity under the influence of his foster parents but in him springs a longing for the trail. Laurie York (Willie V. Coose), niece of Mrs. Ross, loves Konrad but the gypsy looks upon her as a sister.

Romantic Plot

An eventful day arrives when the old Days (Esther Kate Pierce) of a wandering gypsy tribe, accompanied by Zara (Eda Schneemann), her coquettish daughter, and Stan (Batts Friend), Zara's jealous sweetheart, arrives in the village. Konrad, one night, slips off to the gypsy camp after all are asleep and there he falls under the influence of entrancing gypsy music and finds the Day's brew, a mystic concoction. Carmena (Ernestine Watts), and Katrinka (Willena Wyatt), sisters of Zara, offer the spirited concoction to the stranger and zest is added to the action of the story. Zara, by foul or fair means, decides to beguile the newcomer into parting with his money.

Into the play is brought the story of Centuria, a fabled city which was thought to have disappeared from the earth but which was supposed to come to earth for twenty-four hours each century. In this place is the setting of the final act. Here, the author has built foundation for skillful blending of the supernatural with the actual in the fast moving climatic scene.

The main plot has to do with real people and real situations. The dream episode is used to create atmosphere and largely to influence Konrad's musing. His decision furnishes climax for the story. In eccentric parts are Stella (Alberta Kay), Halsted Dinsmore (Max Eppler) and Rodney (Cleophus Cooke). The Boy is played by Miles Pierce.

The play includes an epilogue at the finish. Back stage music is to be produced by Miss Ellitabel Tillory.

The staff assisting the director in managerial and property capacity is made up of Ray Boyd, Vicky Pierce and Max Eppler. Admission will be twenty cents for school children and thirty-five cents for adults. The curtain rises at 8 o'clock.

Dramatic Company In One-Night Show At Ozona Theatre

Phil Duncan Players, a dramatic and vaudeville company, will present a full evening's entertainment at the Ozona Theatre Friday evening, their performance to take the place of the regularly scheduled motion picture.

The Duncan players are a talented group of entertainers, presenting a late three-act comedy drama and music and comedy features between the acts.

This week's stage entertainment will be the first of a proposed weekly appearance. Efforts are being made to work out a circuit for the players in this section and if a satisfactory schedule can be arranged, the stage productions will be a weekly feature at the Ozona Theatre, J. R. Kersey, manager, announced.

Mr. and Mrs. Warren Clayton returned from a short visit in San Angelo Wednesday.

Baseball Season Opener Postponed To Sunday, April 7

The season opener on the local baseball field which had been scheduled to take place between the Ozona Giants and the Station A nine from near Sonora Sunday has been postponed until the following Sunday, according to Manager Carl Dorley of the Ozona Giants.

To fill in the date left vacant by pushing the date up another week, Dorley had been trying to match a game with the Texon Oilers but the petroleum club will be engaging the Iraan nine on that date.

Vic Montgomery, former member of the Giant aggregation is now occupied at center field on the T.C.U. varsity. He probably will be with the Giants this season and may recommend other varsity members for enlistment.

Trip Around World With Eats Feature Jr. League Supper

"A Trip Around the World," with appropriate eats from each country furnished entertainment and gastronomic satisfaction to a large number of customers of the Junior Epworth League at its supper provided at the church Wednesday evening.

"Tourists" boarded a transcontinental bus for Mexico to get hot tamales, to Africa for deviled eggs, to Poland for bread, to Japan for hot tea, to China for rice, to Brazil for beans and back to the good old U.S.A. for fried apple pies.

Members of the league, dressed in appropriate costumes, served the food of each country from booths. Mrs. H. B. Tandy taught the tourists a song, "World Children for Jesus," before they embarked on the tour.

Mrs. B. E. Ingham returned home Friday from Fort Worth where she had been at the bed side of her mother, Mrs. Elam Dudley. Mrs. Dudley is much improved.

Mrs. Lee Childress entertained the Friday bridge club at her home last week.
