Quiet Prevails on Lindbergh Estate; Search Continues

BAN PLACED BY POLICE ON WRITERS

Too Much Time Lost In Answering Questions

HOPEWELL, March 11. (UP)—Both Colonel and Mrs. Lindbergh slept well last night at their home and were both up and around early this morning. All the signs of brisk activity disappeared from the general atmosphere of the home. Quiet prevails. New Jersey police, in charge of the kidnaping investigation, today claimed strict censorship on all news of the progress of the hunt for the baby and criminals. Col. Norman Schwartzkopf, commanding the investigation, announced that hereafter no questions by newspaper men would be answered. Instead the police will issue two bulletins daily, one at 10 o'clock in the morning and the other at 11 o'clock in the evening, which he said would contain all news the police wished to be made known. Supplementary bulletins were promised the "moment anything happens." Too much time is spent answering questions which heretofore were given at 4-hour intervals.

Report Says Ransom Hiked

HOPEWELL, N. J., March 11.—A material increase in the ransom demanded by the kidnapers of Charles Augustus Lindbergh, Jr., was advanced early today as an explanation of the delay in the return of the child, as spectacular offer of assistance in the search came from "Scarface Al" Capone.

It was reported the original sum sought, $50,000, was jumped to $100,000. The ransom received by Colonel Lindbergh from the child-stealers, who have been keeping their identity and hiding place a close secret. While the famous flier was represented as willing to meet the new demands, it was learned in a reliable quarter the abductors had informed him they did not feel the time safe yet to conclude negotiations.

Capone made his offer to aid in Colonel Lindbergh's private hunt, from a cell in the Cook county (Chicago) jail. He agreed to post a $200,000 bond if the federal government would release him temporarily.

State police have said they had not considered the offer and did not contemplate considering it. They added it was a matter for the federal government, not the state police. It was impossible to learn the attitude of Colonel Lindbergh himself toward the suggestion for he remained on his hilltop estate, where he is directing his own negotiations, independent of the police investigation, but protected from questioning by troopers.

Gangsters' Children Are Threatened Now

NEW YORK.—The Evening Post says the two children of "Salvy" Spitalo, who was appointed to act as go-between for the possible return of the kidnaped Lindbergh baby, have been threatened with kidnaping as reprisal for Spitalo's efforts.

Windmill Theft Charges Filed

ODESSA, (UP)—A. R. Otterman, 62-year-old blacksmith, was held in jail here charged with "threatening to kill" Mrs. Ella McCracken, who had accused him of stealing two windmills from her.

He was unable to furnish $1,000 bond. The charge followed a report to authorities by the woman's husband that Otterman had visited her, and warned her that if her windmill theft charges were not withdrawn he would kill her. He claims false arrest. Witnesses are said to have overheard the conversation in which the threat was made.

Singing School Closes Tonight

A special program of quartets and children's choruses tonight will close the singing school conducted during the past two weeks at the Church of Christ by Professor Thomas S. Cobb of Fort Worth. Singers from Big Spring will also appear on the program and note practice will be conducted. Officials of the church have invited the entire public to attend. Cobb will go to Odessa Sunday to conduct a school there.

Germany's Aged President Strolls with Grandchildren

"The reproach of having abandoned my post at a difficult time will be spared me" . . . It was soon after writing these words, announcing that he would seek re-election as Chief Executive of Germany in the midst of unprecedented business depression, that President Paul von Hindenburg was photographed as you see him here with his three grandchildren in the gardens of the presidential palace in Berlin. The 84-year-old president decided to disregard the advice of friends that he not seek office again because of his advanced age.

MANGLED, FROZEN BODY FOUND

WETS HOLD 3 TO 1 LEAD IN DIGEST POLL

The wets continue to poll more than three to one over the dries with initial returns from 14 more states swelling the total vote to over two million in The Literary Digest's nationwide prohibition poll this week, according to figures tabulated in tomorrow's issue of the magazine. 2,063,111 ballots are reported received from 38 states and the District of Columbia of which 488,335, or 23.66 per cent, favor continuance of the Eighteenth amendment and 1,574,776, or 76.34 per cent, vote for repeal.

The dry vote records a third consecutive gain over the wet vote this week, from 22.61 per cent to 23.66 per cent, of the total. In the first returns of this "straw" referendum the dries polled 15.85 per cent.

Every southern state so far reported shows a wet majority. Kansas is the only state voting dry in this current report with a percentage of 52.58 for prohibition.

Fourteen states reported first returns this week, including Alabama, California, Colorado, Delaware, Florida, Kentucky, Minnesota, Missouri, Nebraska, Oklahoma, Oregon, Texas, Washington, and Wisconsin, besides the District of Columbia.

Of this new contingent, Oklahoma is the driest state tabulated with a 45.40 per cent sentiment for prohibition and Wisconsin registers the wettest returns with 82.94 per cent of its total vote for repeal.

Arkansas rises to second place in the dry column with a percentage of 48.67 in favor of the Eighteenth amendment and Tennessee drops to third place with a dry vote of 47.31 per cent.

New York and New Jersey continue to lead as first and second in the wet column but show a slight gain in dry sentiment. California has the largest wet vote of the Pacific coast states with 77.52 per cent for repeal, with Oregon voting 71.25 per cent and Washington 65.95 per cent against prohibition.

A "check-up" city poll by the Wichita Beacon, a reputedly dry newspaper, practically parallels The Literary Digest returns in this Kansas city, it is announced. Using the same questions, The Wichita Beacon's returns were announced as 42.79 per cent for prohibition and 57.21 per cent for repeal while the incomplete Literary Digest returns for the same city are given as 42.10 per cent for continuance and 57.90 for repeal.

Men's Class Will Get Publicity

The July issue of a magazine published at Chicago will carry an illustrated article about the Men's class of Hotel Schaubauer. The article was written by Mrs. Florence A. Richardson of Topeka, Kansas, formerly of Midland. The assistant editor of the magazine published by the David C. Cook Co., of Chicago said in a letter to officers of the class: "You are doing splendid work. Sunday morning the president of the Men's class will read a letter to the audience. The chamber of commerce has given wide publicity to the free show in Midland, Martin, Ector and Andrews counties. If the weather does not interfere, a large crowd is expected. The show will be given rain or shine, chamber officials said Friday.

Full Hour at Free Show Here

A full hour of instruction and entertainment is promised farmers and their families and others interested in agriculture and horticulture when they attend the chamber of commerce free show at the Elitz theater Saturday morning at 11 o'clock. The Ritz not only is donating this show house and all expense, but will show some of its own program films to entertain the audience.

Police Head in Search Is a Master Organizer

By PAUL HARRISON NEA Service Writer

TRENTON, N. J.—When the many high authorities concerned with solving the Lindbergh kidnaping case met to select a supreme authority to direct the investigation, they did not choose a master detective, but a master organizer. With the mystery involving wider territory, more persons and additional theories at every turn—with city, county, state and federal officers stumbling over each other—the situation required, after all, coordination.

So Col. H. Norman Schwarzkopf got the job. As superintendent of the New Jersey state police he is already, at 36, a veteran peace officer. But the prime reason for his appointment in the Lindbergh case is that his is the kind of unifying genius that allowed him at the age of 25 to create the famous organization he now heads.

Athlete at West Point He was born in Newark, N. J., of fighting ancestry, and he still believes that the greatest thrill of his life came on the day when he won an appointment to West Point. He was physically marked for an athlete as well as a soldier. For four years the line-ups of almost every academy team, from football to polo, swimming to track, bore the name of Henry Schwarzkopf.

He was barely old enough to be given a commission when he graduated, just in time to go overseas with the Third regular army division. Second Lieutenant Schwarzkopf soon became Captain Schwarzkopf, U. S. cavalry. It seems that the legislature had been asked by the rural districts for protection against criminal activities that were proving too much for village and county police. So the lawmakers created on paper, the department of state police, and the governor picked Schwarzkopf as its head.

Due to weather conditions, sufficient cars to transport the club had not been listed at noon, but school authorities were confident that places for 40 girls might be arranged. The club would not appear on the stage with a lesser number.

(According to a telegram from Head Coach L. K. Barry, who with his track and field team motored to Fort Worth today, snow is melting east of Big Spring and the road is drying fast. This should insure a maximum of safety for the motorcade that will be made up here, according to Supt. W. W. Lackey.

The motorcade will leave at 9 o'clock, returning in time for dinner. Miss Lena Solomon is in charge of the choral group, and Miss Elizabeth Lomax is accompanist.

A Moment Later the Steeple Fell

Its spire like a huge, flaming match, the century-old Baptist church at Hampden, Mass., was being consumed by fire when this remarkable night photograph was taken. A few seconds after the camera clicked the blazing steeple plunged into the smoking ruins of what had been the church's auditorium.

Former Members of Imperial Ballet Are Reunited Here; Czarina Drives from E. P.

When Boris Stanovitch got off a west bound bus this morning, a beautiful woman jumped out of an expensive coupe parked near the bus station and caught him in her arms, and began crying with sheer happiness—in the face of public amusement. "Carin!" the man's voice came, muffled against the woman's furs. They held each other at arm's length and looked long, searchingly at each other.

The woman's maid, smiling to herself in the big car, took a small handkerchief and dabbed at her eyes. At this inconsistency a reporter sensed something out of the ordinary and ventured a question.

"They danced in the Imperial Russian ballet in the earlier days of the war," she said. "He left to fight with the armies of the Little White Father. They became engaged through correspondence. Then he was reported missing. The revolution came to Russia, making it a horrible period. Carin, her professional name is Czarina now, did not always have enough to eat. She left Russia after the war as soon as the Soviet would allow and has danced in Paris, New York and Mexico City since. In Mexico City a young major wanted to marry her. He could give her a beautiful home at his hacienda, but she could not forget Boris. Two months ago she received a letter from an old retired maestro of Turin, who had spent his last days before a cello stand with the Philharmonic, wrote that Boris was in New York, that he had been dancing in a cheap cabaret. He gave the man's address, a mean sector of New York's East Side.

"Then Carin wrote. Boris wrote back that he had suffered amnesia after the war, that he had spent nearly two years in a prison camp in Germany, that he had hunted her after treatment had restored him to his mental health, but that the trace of her had vanished at New York. He was staying there, dancing, thinking he might find her again.

"She wired that she could get an engagement for the two of them in Mexico City, and for him to meet her in El Paso.

"But Carin could not wait for him to get to El Paso," the maid said. "She heard this town was half-way to Dallas, so she said we would drive here and wait for him. 'Shall we go?' she asked. The man smiled. 'Pardon.' He took his cheap bag, and climbing behind the wheel of the car, drove away with the woman's arms around him.

COUNTY ROUND UP SET; APRIL IS SELECTED

April 25 to 30 are the dates selected for the county-wide summer round-up of children who will attend public school for the first time next fall.

Mrs. E. C. Adams, general chairman representing the Midland County Health board, Mrs. Herbert King of the south ward P.-T. A. and Mrs. J. G. Gemmill of the North Ward association met this week with the county nurse and formulated plans for the program. The project is to enroll pre-school children for complete physical examinations for the purpose of finding defects which may be corrected before the fall term, thus allowing the children to enter school as physically perfect as possible.

Physicians and dentists have assured the committee their full cooperation in the project. April 25 and 26 have been set aside for examinations of north ward children; 27 and 28 for south ward children and 29 and 30 for rural residents.

Approximately 80 children were examined last summer and a larger number is expected this year since the age limit has been increased to include all children between two and six years while last year only six-year-old children were included.

DIRECTORS TO MEET

TRACK TEAM IS AWAY FOR FORT WORTH EVENTS

Minus their field star, Ham Pinnell, the track and field thinny clads of the Midland high school, left by automobile for Fort Worth today. They will enter competitive track and field events in the arena of the Fat Stock show.

Pinnell was ineligible in two school subjects, but, it was explained at the high school, has plenty of time to increase his scholastic rating in order to become eligible for the district meet to be held at San Angelo in April. His grades for the last semester are up to standard, this month only preventing his taking part in the Fort Worth events.

Those who made the trip, together with the events they will enter, follow: 120-yard high hurdles—H. L. Straughan, Bill Hogsett. 100-yard dash—Frank Midkiff, Loyd Burris.

VALLEY IS EXPECTING A FREEZE

Three Texas Deaths Reported; Damage Is $1,500,000

DALLAS, March 11. (UP)—Little relief was offered in a weather forecast today from the tardy winter storm sweeping Texas which has already been responsible for three deaths and an estimated $1,500,000 fruit damage.

Freezing weather is predicted for the Rio Grande valley tonight. Relief workers were swamped over the entire state. Great distress was reported among the unemployed and destitute.

Thousands of families in the East Texas oil fields suffered much in their inadequate squatter houses and tent camps. Snow was reported continuing this morning in the south, central and west portion.

Mercury Here Hits 18 Degrees

Again the mercury tumbled to the low mark of the season, when thermometers registered 18 degrees for more than an hour last night. The mark has been reached twice this week.

Snow of one and a half inches was reckoned at 11 o'clock. The highest temperature of the day was 24 degrees.

Snow and cloudy weather were reported at McCombs, Rankin, Fort Stockton, Wink and Big Spring. At 6 o'clock this morning, Amarillo reported 14 degrees, Canyon 13, Plainview 14, Lubbock 13. The highest temperature of the day on the plains was 17 degrees, at Lubbock.

A light snow from Midland to Lubbock was reported, with the fall north of Lubbock listed as two inches. Snow as far east as Tyler, heavy from Eastland to Sweetwater, and plenty of snow west, was reported by the Texas & Pacific railway company dispatchers.

Winter Everywhere Over the State

Winter reigned unchallenged in Texas Thursday and Friday from the Panhandle to the Gulf of Mexico and the Rio Grande.

After blanketing large areas of South Texas and many sections of West Texas with a fall ranging up to several inches, snow began whitening the countryside in the north-central and western parts of the state as intensity of the cold weather which has ravaged crops in the state the past three days.

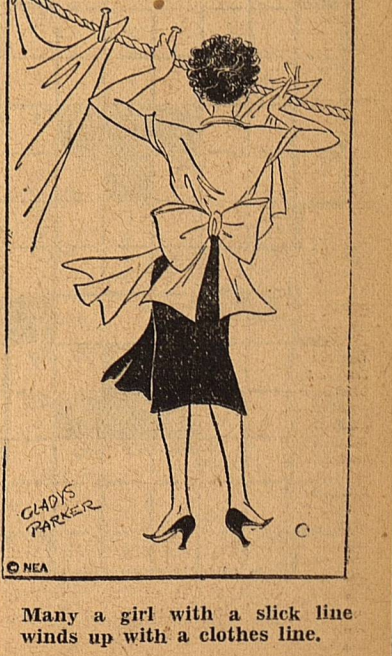

The snow fall at many points was the heaviest in years. Laredo was blanketed under nearly five inches. To thousands of children, many of whom had never before seen snow, the occasion was one for celebration.

Heavy Crop Loss But to agriculturist over much of the state the cold wave meant heavy crop losses. In East and North Texas, as well as part of the more southerly region, fruits and vegetables suffered damaging blows. Estimates placed the loss at hundreds of thousands of dollars.

Only the lower Rio Grande valley escaped. At Brownsville the mercury halted in its downward plunge at the 39-degree mark. Citrus groves and vegetable crops in the state section were unimpaired.

In the plains region of Northwest Texas snow fell intermittently during the day but rising temperatures gave promise of relief. The Panhandle reported the low. (See WEATHER page 4)

"CATERPILLAR" MEMBERS

It is interesting to observe that the latest figures show there are 440 members of the Caterpillar club in the United States. This "club," as you doubtless know, is composed of men and women who have saved their lives by making emergency jumps from disabled airplanes with parachutes.

The high value of the parachute was never better demonstrated. Without it, aviation's death roll would have been increased by 440 names during the past few years.

Incidentally, the number of "new members" received by this club diminished last year. In 1930 131 persons saved their lives by jumping; last year the total was only 85. Was there less flying last year—or are airplanes getting so much safer that aviators have fewer occasions to use their "chutes"?

Well, it's time for Johnny to make the annual search of the attic for what is left of last year's baseball equipment.

What the taxpayer is hoping now is that the increased taxes to balance the federal budget will not unbalance his budget.

The Dime-a-Dance Girl

BEGIN HERE TODAY

Ellen Rossiter, beautiful 20-year-old, falls in love with Larry Harrogate, young artist whom she met at Dreamland where she works as a dance hall hostess.

From a sense of gratitude Ellen agrees to marry Steven Barclay, a kind and wealthy man of 57, who has paid hospital expenses for her brother, Mike, injured in a street accident.

Barclay has been married and divorced. Scandal accompanied the divorce from Leda Grayson, dancer, and, fearing talk of the divorce may be revived, he and Ellen agree to keep their marriage secret.

Myra and Bert are to be married the same day as Ellen and Barclay. Barclay has been married and divorced. Scandal accompanied the divorce from Leda Grayson, dancer, and, fearing talk of the divorce may be revived, he and Ellen agree to keep their marriage secret.

NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY

CHAPTER XXXIII

The next two days passed at such a pace that Ellen felt guilty when she took time to snatch a few hours' sleep. There were so many, many things to do. Such things as trunks and laundry bags to think of. There was that hurried trip for a riding habit, when Steven told Ellen they would ride in London.

Oh, there were millions of things to do. The Rossiter household moved back and forth from the Brooklyn apartment to the hospital until Mike became feverish with excitement as his elders. Molly's suggestion that the ceremonies take place in the boy's hospital room was flatly vetoed.

There were hours spent in the cunning two rooms, kitchenette and bath where Myra and Bert were at last to begin the great adventure. Fortunately this was only two doors from the old apartment. Ellen and Myra were in and out of the place at all times of the day and night.

The girls sewed on chintz, draperies and slip-covers. They hemmed tea-towels by the dozen while Bert, humming in that tuneless way of his, laquered a bedroom suite he and Myra had bought for a song.

The living room furniture was overstuffed, a comfortable and ugly suite bought on the installment plan. Ellen was too wise to suggest that she be allowed to help. Myra was ecstatic at finding "the tawdry things that would fit her budget."

Late in the afternoon of the day before the wedding Ellen went out to buy tacks for Bert. She found them sooner than she expected and hurried back. The door had been left on the latch and she stepped into the disordered living room, then stepped out as quickly, her heart pounding and her face suffused with crimson. She waited outside, confused and feeling the beginning of a great fear.

Bert and Myra had stood in the middle of the small room, lips upon lips, bodies pressed together, clasped in each other's arms. They had been oblivious of her presence, oblivious of everything except the burning flame that enveloped them.

Was that what Myra had tried to tell her about so long ago when she had said that only love mattered? That embrace had nothing in common with the kisses Ellen had seen her sister and Bert exchange before.

She waited a long while before rapping on the door. When she entered Myra was sewing a towel and Bert had returned to his painting. Ellen glanced a little foolishly from one to the other.

Bert casually thanked her for the tacks, took them and went into the kitchenette. They heard him pounding with the hammer. Ellen picked up the chintz curtain she had been lining, hunted for her needle and set to work again. Unconsciously she avoided her sister's eyes.

"You came in on us, didn't you?" asked Myra after a pause. "Yes," admitted Ellen uncomfortably. "I didn't think you knew."

Myra did not appear to be particularly disturbed. A little smile played on her lips and touched her eyes. She was a trifle embarrassed but proud and thrilled, too, as she stumbingly tried to explain to Ellen that Bert's love was just as strong and as sure as it had ever been.

"It's all come back," Myra said. "And Ellen, I'm so happy I can hardly breathe. Just think tomorrow night I'll be Mrs. Bertrand B. Armstead!"

"Yes, that's right," said Ellen soberly, drawing her needle through the chintz. She pricked her finger and in the flurry that followed the conversation was abandoned.

Presently Ellen felt her fear subside. She had been filling her head with a lot of nonsense. People loved each other in all kinds of ways. Steven, with his infinite kindness would never demand anything she could not give. Myra and Bert—well, they were Myra and Bert.

Later after that strange embarrassment had worn away, Ellen talked with Bert. He was nailing bright red cloth on the kitchenette shelves and she went to wash her hands. He seemed entirely absorbed in his task, but Ellen sensed that he wanted to speak to her, so she dried her hands and waited.

"I haven't had a chance to tell you," he said presently, "what a boost you've given Myra and me—particularly me. I'm going to make

CHEAPER BY AIR

WASHINGTON. — According to the U. S. Post Office department, the government now spends $24,000,000 a year for transporting first class mail by train, and $15,000,000 for movement of air mail. This makes a total of $39,000,000 a year. The department believes this total could be reduced if all first class mail were carried by air.
