Teachers from Hawaii Visit Mother Here

Mr. and Mrs. W. A. McCartney of Hamakua, island of Maui, Hawaii, and Miss Eloise Midkiff of Colorado Springs, Colo., are the guests of Mrs. McCartney's and Mr. Midkiff's mother, Mrs. Jean Midkiff.

Mr. and Mrs. McCartney have been in Hawaii for five years, where he is coach in high school and she teaches Latin and French. Since Christmas he has been in the United States doing graduate work at the University of Chicago.

Mrs. McCartney arrived in America June 20 and since that time has been visiting in Colorado and Oklahoma before coming to Midland. They plan to be here about a week. They will sail from San Francisco on their return trip in August.

Students in the high school in which the couple teach represent a confusion of races such as Korean, Portuguese, Porto Rican, white, and Hawaiian.

"But human nature is just about the same the world over," Mrs. McCartney laughed. "There are some brilliant students, a few are hopelessly dull, and the majority are 'just average,' she said.

Discipline as a problem in teaching is practically non-existent among the pupils, leaving the teacher free to concentrate upon her job of actual teaching.

Despite the prevalent belief that the tropical climate is enervating, Hawaiian high school and college athletic activities are on a par with those on the mainland, the couple said. In fact, teams have defeated United States teams in several instances.

Hamakua is about 90 miles from Honolulu, the capital of Hawaii, by plane in about an hour. Boats also ply between the two places.

There are many white people on "islands" as they are called in the Islands, but "haole" formerly meaning "stranger" has come to mean "white people" in popular usage and is used to differentiate them from Koreans, or those of other blood.

Mrs. McCartney formerly attended Midland High School.

WITNESS SAYS UTILITY BILL WIRES TOOK NAMES FROM CITY DIRECTORY

WASHINGTON, July 17. (P.)—Additional testimony that R. P. Herron, bond salesman for the Associated Gas and Electric company, corroborated the testimony given yesterday by Jack Fisher, manager of the Warren Western Union office.

Miss Gladys E. Loding, Western Union clerk at Warren, said she destroyed all papers that might prove damaging in a congressional investigation into their activity for and against the utility bill.

(By The Associated Press)—WASHINGTON, July 17.—A tale of anti-utility bill telegrams, dictated by a power company representative, signed with names from a city directory, and then mysteriously burned was unfolded Tuesday before the senate lobby committee.

Nervous but never hesitant, Jack A. Fisher, Western Union office manager at Warren, Pa., now suspended from duty, related the story to the committee in an effort, he said, to clear himself of suspicion that he was involved in the destruction of the messages.

POPULAR VOTE OPPOSES STATESMEN'S WARS

Once in a blue moon, someone takes the unprecedented step of trying to find out what the ordinary man in the street thinks about his country's foreign policy.

When this is done the results are apt to be surprising.

Some 40 organizations recently undertook a great poll of British citizens to see what sentiment might be in regard to the League of Nations, disarmament, and similar issues.

All in all, they collected more than 11,000,000 votes, slightly less than 40 per cent of the entire British electorate. If the 11,000,000 people who voted represent a fair cross-section of British opinion—and there is good reason to suppose that they do—here is what the average Briton wants done:

He is overwhelmingly in favor of British adherence to the League of Nations.

He is almost equally overwhelmingly in favor of arms reduction.

He favors international agreement to abolish military and naval aircraft and to prohibit the manufacture and sale of weapons for private profit.

He favors the use of economic sanctions, such as the boycott, against aggressor nations which make war in violation of such agreements as the Kellogg treaty. By a lesser majority, he even favors the use of military measures against such nations.

Add all of this together and you discover that the war-weary Briton not only wants peace, but is willing to take some risks and do some unorthodox things in order to get it. That isn't surprising. He lived through four and one-half years of war that almost wrecked his nation; he isn't keen to get another dose of the same.

Statesmen are fond of saying that wars come as a result of irresistible popular clamor; that the various treaties, agreements and leagues to preserve peace are all right in theory but do not command the popular support which they must have in order to succeed; and that a statesman who proposed outright disarmament, or tried to put real teeth in such a thing as the Kellogg treaty, would immediately be disowned by his own voters.

This British poll would seem to give the lie to those claims. It shows that the people of at least one great nation—a nation which lives under the shadow of war, has enemies at its very frontiers and can look back on a long and proud tradition of military success—are ready, even eager, to go to almost any length to keep another war from overwhelming the world.

ITALY'S AFRICAN AFFAIR MAY BE NO PICNIC

The very old and somewhat out-of-date empire of Abyssinia is about to fight with streamlined, modernized Italy, and if the sports fraternity were making book on the affair the odds would be at least 10 to 1, with practically no takers.

Yet the long shot does have a way of galloping home, occasionally, and if the views of an anonymous military expert writing in the London Spectator recently are correct, Italy stands a very broad chance of coming an inglorious cropper in the fighting in Africa.

This writer makes the point that Abyssinia is apt to be an easy place to get into, but a hard one to get out of. The Italian army, he says, ought to be able to drive its way into Addis Ababa, Abyssinian capital, without trouble; once there, however, its troubles would begin.

All the Abyssinians need to do, he continues, is to retreat. To catch and defeat them the Italians would have to cross a rugged mountainous country larger than Morocco—and it took most of France's great colonial army many years to make the Moroccans knuckle under.

Meanwhile, Italian communications would be in danger, and the upshot of it all might well be the starvation and slow disintegration of the entire Italian expeditionary force.

All this is interesting chiefly as a reminder that wars are seldom fought according to the textbooks. On paper, a modernized and well-disciplined army like that of Mussolini's should have no trouble at all with a horde of semi-savage levies such as Haile Selassie can muster. In actual fact, such encounters often turn out differently.

Augustus Caesar of Rome discovered this 1900 years ago, when Varus got the flower of the Roman army entangled in the Teutoburger forest in Germany, where the barbaric tribesmen annihilated it. Cortez nearly met the same fate in his first drive at the Aztec empire.

The British regulars were no match for the Pennsylvania Indians when Braddock was trapped near Fort Duquesne. The crack cavalry regiment of the U. S. army was overwhelmed when the plains Indians got it in a blind alley at the Little Big Horn.

You could cull a column or so of similar instances from the military histories, but the examples that have been given so far are enough to make the point—which is that making war on a horde of poorly equipped barbarians is a much riskier business than it appears on the surface.

Mussolini's troopers will need all the good generalship and the good luck they can command, if the African campaign is to be the triumphal procession it is expected to be.

Children of the North are named for the first object the mother sees after the child is born. If that custom was general, there'd be a lot of men called Hospital Bill.

Italian flame throwers leave for Abyssinia. When they begin throwing jets of flame in that climate, the natives will probably complain of the draft.

The Town Quack

of an additional loan of about $24,000 for the project. And, more marvelous still, the schools have about $15,000 cash set aside to bring the total up to a $70,000 job. Work might start almost any time.

There is a secret among the oil men and business men here which may come out in a few weeks, but it represents something that bigger or Midland than any of the above projects. And it was another case where Midland people cracked down in a few hours with about $25,000 to aid the town.

We criticized ourselves a great deal during the years 1931 to 1934, for the investments made during 1928 and 1929. But the way this 12-story office building and our other important sky-line buildings are filling up, as well as all available houses and apartments, shows that those investments made it possible for Midland to come back strong.

If you don't feel optimistic, drive out a certain of which approximately 12 per cent is suitable for tactical operation of large mechanized units. It is evident that in order to perform all types of Cavalry missions by day or night, in all kinds of weather and over all types of terrain, there must be a large proportion of horsed Cavalry to mechanization. There are many other reasons for a large proportion of horsed Cavalry, not the least of which are initial expense and maintenance and supply in the field.

All signs point to the better in Midland. Just because there were a few lean years in which people business investments had a hard time making a living is no reason why conditions can't get good again.

There have been rains. Some ranges are not tip-top yet, but most of them have some grass and the cattle are fat. Some pastures have green grass which is knee high and headed out, and the stock are so fat that they lie down right in the middle of the grass like they have actually had enough.

A few days ago some men decided Midland ought to have a fair grounds and race track. It took them a very short time to get about $25,000 in cash together, and they are out after another $5,000. It isn't too late to get some stock in that very worthy enterprise.

And on another day, President Roosevelt signed his name approving a grant of about $31,000 for a gymnasium, or physical education building, here for the schools. Yesterday, Secretary Ickes signed his approval

Horse Does Not Lose Value to Cavalry

Maj. Gen. Leon E. Kromer, Chief of Cavalry, U. S. Army, in answer to an inquiry as to whether or not horse cavalry is obsolete and should be replaced by mechanized cavalry stated:

"In reply to your letter regarding the necessity for horsed Cavalry in future wars, I am very glad indeed to give you my views on this subject. As chief of Cavalry I am, of course, vitally interested in both types of Cavalry. The entire Cavalry, Army and Navy, have the objective of incorporating in the Cavalry all means made available by modern science and engineering, that will enable the Cavalry to perform its mission for and with the other combat Arms with the greatest efficiency. In order to view the question you have raised with the proper perspective, it may be well to quote the War Department policy in regard to mechanization of Cavalry.

"Mechanization. (1) To mechanize one brigade of two regiments out of the fifteen active Cavalry Regiments. (2) To mechanize seven separate Armored Car Troops for use with three Regular and four National Guard Divisions. (3) To provide a mechanized platoon (scout car) for each of the thirteen regular horse regiments.

"As may be deduced from Official Registers of Regular Army, National Guard and Organized Reserves, this country contemplates mobilization of approximately fifty-seven regiments of Cavalry in a major national emergency. From the above facts, you may draw pertinent conclusions as to the attitude of the War Department toward horsed Cavalry in future wars. Nor does this attitude vary materially from that of other great nations in the world, whose military policy is determined by the terrain, probable theatres of war, the enemy to be encountered and the resources of the country.

"In this connection it is interesting to note that the ultra-modern Army of Russia includes 125,000 of Cavalry, approximately 20 per cent of the total army and that Germany has 16,000 Cavalry, which constitutes 16 per cent of the Reichwehr. Leading military authorities of the world expect future wars to be wars of movement. In this country, because of its size, this expectation is more than a surmise, it is a certainty. War of movement calls for mobile troops. New threats in depth, from the air, from fast moving vehicles and from long range artillery, render all around security of Cavalry vital. This security of necessity calls for troops possessing more inherent all around mobility than marching men. It follows, therefore, that the armies of the present and future must have a proper proportion of Cavalry.

"Because of the nature of average terrain of which approximately 12 per cent is suitable for tactical operation of large mechanized units, it is evident that in order to perform all types of Cavalry missions by day or night, in all kinds of weather and over all types of terrain, there must be a large proportion of horsed Cavalry to mechanization. There are many other reasons for a large proportion of horsed Cavalry, not the least of which are initial expense and maintenance and supply in the field.

"For the past five years we of the Cavalry have been experimenting, developing and testing in the field new armament, fighting vehicles, new means of communication and motor transportation of supply. During the same period we have been enthusiastically engaged in improving the type and breeding of our Cavalry horse, improving our marching technique, increasing our fire power, and adopting our fighting tactics to meet the demands of modern war.

"As a result our present horsed Cavalry regiments respect the machine gun, the airplane and the armored fighting vehicles in enemy hands, but do not fear these implements of modern battle and are prepared to cope with them.

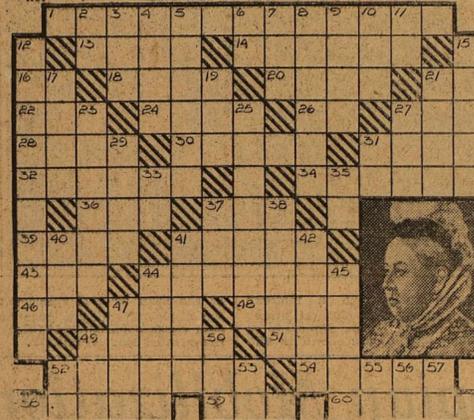

"Our work to date has shown that mechanized cavalry works best in cooperation with horsed cavalry in the field and it has also shown that a proper proportion of mechan-

Letters to the Editor

Editor, Reporter-Telegram: Over and above all material things that you may acquire, the Understanding that you come to possess will stand as a fortress for your protection and a refuge in times of great stress. Thieves may break in and steal and moths and rust may corrupt what you may gain in material things but not so with the Understanding that you get. When all else has been lost or destroyed, your good Understanding will enable you to recoup your material losses. To get Understanding is hard mental work; therefore, the mentally lazy person never gets it. To get anything of importance in life one must first get Understanding. Not to understand is to misunderstand. Inability to comprehend or misattention on your part or misinformation imparted to you through inaccurate or incorrect statement or description made to you by one who is supposed to know the facts and who is supposed to be inclined to tell the truth give rise to misunderstanding on your own part. That which you do not understand you cannot clearly explain to another. Misunderstanding either upon your own part or that of another with whom you may be dealing leads to dissatisfaction, to confusion, and to loss to all concerned, therefore "with all of thy getting get understanding". You may then discern the truth in all things and you may clearly convey the truth to others so that they may also understand as you understand. The most mischievous "Miss" abroad today in our land is "Miss Understanding". She is the eldest daughter of the former "Miss Information" who was a notoriously well known character about town. This obnoxious old lady and her undesirable daughter may be found always together. Wherever they go and in all that they do they create confusion and loss. They may be truthfully classified as Public Enemy No. 1 and Public Enemy No. 2. You should act as a self appointed vigilance committee of one to apprehend, to detain and to banish these two Public Enemies from society. Seek first to know the truth and then to understand it. Be alive, awake, and alert in your own search after truth to be garnered as a store of knowledge producing wisdom in your conduct. To understand a matter perfectly requires that you must first consider it studiously, thoughtfully and reflectively. Learn to study and then study to learn in order that "With all of thy getting" you may "get Understanding". —G. H. Driggers.

Orderliness Saves Time in Dressing For Evening

By ALICIA HART NEA Service Staff Writer

By having her evening accessories in order and by budgeting her time, the business girl who leaves her office at five can look as nice for dinner at seven as other women who have been home all afternoon.

She simply must learn to make every minute count, meanwhile managing to keep calm. A f i t e r all, to look poised and at ease with the world is as necessary to beauty as neat clothes and the right cosmetics, skillfully applied.

The first step, of course, is a warm bath. While the water is running into the tub, get out stockings, shoes, gloves, fresh underwear and the gown you intend to wear. At this point, you shouldn't have to spend time changing cosmetics from your street purse to your evening bag.

Keeping Cosmetics for Evening Use The ideal system is to leave evening lipstick, powder, rouge and comb right in the bag where they belong, never taking them out for daytime use. See that you always have clean evening hose and handkerchiefs on hand.

Clean face and neck with cleansing cream or soap and water and smooth on a layer of nourishing cream before you get into the tub. This way, the dis-sue cream has a chance to absorb while you are busily using a long-handled bath brush on arms, shoulders and back.

If your nails need a bit of attention, give it to them while you are sitting in the warm water. However, if you need a weekly manicure, and go over them yourself twice a week, there's no reason why you should have to waste time on them in the rush of dressing.

When Ready, Relax When you have finished your bath, apply cologne in a scent to match the perfume you intend to wear, slip into your lingerie, stockings and shoes, and then make up your face, neck and shoulders and arrange your coiffure before you put on your gown. Give your hair a final pat, dab perfume on your skin—never on clothes—and then sit down calmly to wait until your escort rings the doorbell.

All of this shouldn't have taken more than forty-five minutes. Whatever time is left should be devoted to reading or just plain sitting. Once you're ready, resist the temptation to keep on putting and fussing. Sit down and relax.

Young People Hold Cloverdale Picnic

Following the good old custom of picnicking in the cool of the evening a group of young people motored out to Cloverdale for a picnic lunch Tuesday evening.

In the number were: Freddie Lou Barber, Kathryn Beauchamp, Bessie Flournoy, Dorothy Hines, John Rhoden, V. T. Fyiant, Jesse Lee Barber, Clifton Haynie, and Marvin Douglas.

Only four women have been honored on American postage stamps: Martha Washington, Pocahontas, Queen Isabella of Spain, and Molly Pitcher.

Money Saving Purse

The reversible purse of linen is the new delight for women who have only limited funds to spend for summer costumes. This young lady carries one in brown to match her hat, but if need be could convert it into a white purse for wear with white accessories. Even the fastenings are reversible and can be reversed, too. (From Jack Israel, New York)

FEMINE FANCIES

One of the families that went out as colonists to the Matanuska Valley in Alaska has returned to the United States. That is just additional proof that those who "put their hands to the plow and then turn back" were not confined to Biblical lands and Biblical times only.

A very pretty and bright summer suit is made of red, white-dotted Swiss trimmed in white. The jacket is made with puffed three-quarter length sleeves and the dress has large white, crocheted-covered buttons. The revers of the collar are of white pique. Worn with a red hat and white shoes, the costume is designed to perk up the spirits of any woman who has been depressed by

House Party Group Plans to Leave Midland Today

Miss Jewell Midkiff and her house guests, Misses Syntha Edwards, La Vene Powell, Marion Meaders, and Elaine Meaders will leave today for Fort Worth and CIA after spending several days with Miss Midkiff's parents, Mr. and Mrs. T. O. Midkiff, here.

Typical summer sports of swimming, riding, and informal parties have featured the entertainment for the group, ending with a sunrise breakfast and swim this morning. Miss Midkiff entertained informally Tuesday evening at her home, 1002 S. Marienfeld, as one of the courtesies shown her guests. Present were: Misses Edwards, Powell, Marion and Elaine Meaders, the hostess, and Messrs. Strothers Summers and Roy Baines of Odessa, Henson Alagood, Nick Carter, and Collin Flagg.

Entertained with Picnic Party on Ninth Birthday

Norma Jean Stice was honored on her ninth birthday with a picnic party given by her mother, Mrs. O. W. Stice, at Cloverdale Monday.

After the gifts had been viewed, various games were played. Later the birthday cake was cut and refreshments were served.

Present were: Janice Pope, Elaine Hedrick, Dorothy Bewley, Louise Cox, Frances Palmer, Howard Palmer, Alberta Smith, Colleen Oates, Lou Nelle Hudman, Orville Dale Stice and the honoree.

The hostess was assisted in entertaining by Mrs. H. A. Palmer and Mrs. Frank Smith Jr.

weather or worry. It is always curious to us why we can always eat so much more at a party than at any ordinary meal. Surely a party is the proper place to replay the "birdlike" appetite that the Victorians thought suitable to a woman. Just another reason why we're glad that we live in this advanced age instead of the days of our grandmothers.

Seriously speaking, we do think that these present days offer more chance for happiness to all classes of humanity than any other era ever has. Especially does it offer happiness, we think, to women, offering them both the old traditional career of marriage and home making and to those who do not care for that, a wide variety of other careers. A woman's happiness is no longer so narrowly bounded as it once was.

She'll Take Own Name, Thanks!

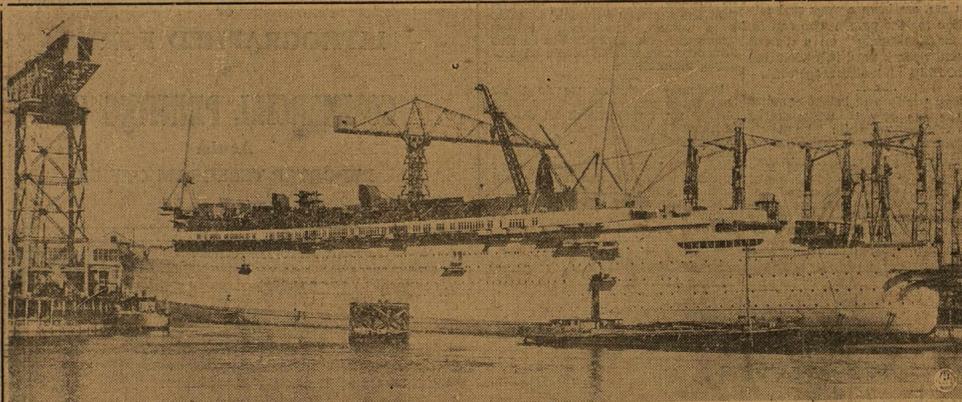

The name, "Jack Dempsey," may be a very famous one in the sports world, but that of "Estelle Taylor" is by no means an obscure one in the cinema realm. All of which accounts for the charming actress' seeming nonchalance as she tears up her ex-champion ex-husband's name card, after Los Angeles court permitted Estelle to doff the title of "Mrs. Jack Dempsey."

Tent City Houses Pioneers Building Alaska Homes

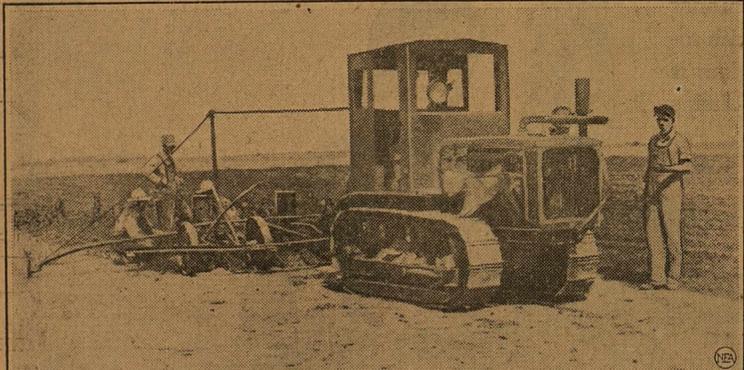

Housing the 500 midwest families colonizing the Matanuska valley in Alaska, this tent city teems with activity as the pioneers, aided by details of transient workers, build their homes, clear the timber, and prepare the land for their first crop next year. Soaring back of the picturesque town of canvas are the snowcaps of the Chugach mountain range, a vivid contrast to the fertile valley where the sun now shines until nearly midnight.

"Queen Mary" Gets Decked Out for Ocean Supremacy Race

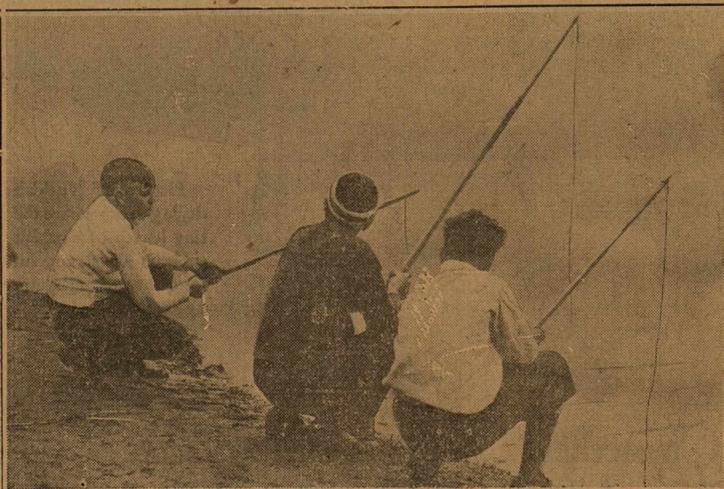

A true queen of the seas in size and speed as well as name, the British super-liner "Queen Mary," rival of the Rex, Normandie and Europa, nears completion at her fitting out basin at Clydebank, Scotland. The superstructure, with its public rooms and first class passenger accommodations, rises slowly above the gleaming white hull. The liner may vie with the Normandie for the trans-Atlantic speed record when it goes into service next year.

Anchoring Soil in Dust Storm Area's 'Comeback'

During winter and early spring everything looked pretty hopeless in the "dust bowl" of Oklahoma, Kansas and eastern Colorado. But recent rains have revived hope, and many of the desolate acres of last winter are being sowed to cropland crops with the hope that wheat again may be planted in the fall. Here are the sons of W. D. Brown, using a tractor to pull a lister drill planter on their father's farm near Springfield, Colo., in the heart of the dust-storm area. Note the hard, wind-swept soil in the foreground.

'Hopping to It' for Nation's Beer

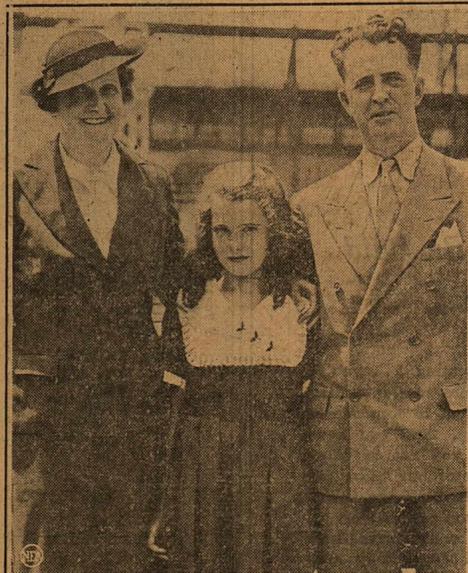

A sight to gladden the heart of the beer drinker on these torrid summer days is this—though he'd probably be in a fog to understand why until he was told. On this maze of wire and string will grow part of the mammoth hop crop that helps put the tingle in the nation's brew. The scene is in one of the vast hopyards of the Sacramento valley in California, during the "stringing" operation. The men working between the rows of poles use miles of cord, which is strung to the ground from the 20-foot posts. Up these strings the hop vines climb until the crop is ready to be harvested.

Discontinuance of Bureau Is Protested

COLLEGE STATION, (AP)—Regret has been voiced by various officials of Texas A. & M. College over the discontinuance of the Federal transient bureau division located at the college during the past year.

The idea behind the move, as expressed by one of the transient bureau officials, was that the men could not live by bread alone but should have an opportunity to develop themselves while receiving their daily sustenance.

President T. O. Walton of the college, in reviewing the operation of the division, said the academic records of the men were generally good and in some cases unusually so.

belief that the men had benefited materially through the experiment. "Not all the men sent here responded to the treatment," said Prof. Daniel Russell, head of the department of rural sociology, who played a large part in inaugurating the plan.

"However, a majority responded in an excellent manner. Overcoming tremendous handicaps they got accustomed to the quiet life, gained confidence in themselves and got their heads in the air again. Many of them are finding places in the regular walks of life as a result of their training at A. & M. I believe all of them could have been adjusted back into life had the project continued longer.

COX MOTOR UPSETS DOPE BUCKET BY OVERPOWERING GULF TEAM BY 13-10

The Cox Motor club showed no respect whatever for the lofty position that the Gulf team has in the league and when the game was over a very much surprised and disgusted Gulf team found themselves on the short end of a 13-10 score.

The Hughes team made a stout uphill fight all the way but the whole club appeared to be just a bit too overconfident, and coupled with the fact that Adamson did not have near his usual amount of stuff on the ball, they were never able to catch up.

Girl From Tenth Avenue Will Open At The Yucca Today

"The Girl From 10th Avenue," a First National picture with Bette Davis in the stellar role, comes to the Yucca Theatre today.

Bette makes a man of him and is smart enough to separate him from the woman he formerly loved, and who had married a rich man for his money, thinking that she could continue to flirt with the man of her choice.

"Acute Indigestion"

Dallas man says Gordon's gave him immediate relief; "It's magical!" he says. You suffer with that stomach for five or ten years, and nothing anyone tells you does any good. You try everything you hear of. No improvement. Then you find GORDON'S COMPOUND, and presto! No wonder it seems like magic. Read this: "For many years I suffered with indigestion, sometimes acute indigestion. I suppose I have tried every remedy known to the medical profession without results. A short time ago, had an attack of acute indigestion, began taking GORDON'S COMPOUND, and it completely relieved me. I never felt better in my life. Can't fully express my confidence in GORDON'S—it is magical." G. Thompson, Dallas Nat. Bank Bldg., Dallas.
