LEAGUE FINDS ITALY AGGRESSOR

Airliner Crash Fatal to Twelve Near Cheyenne Today

9 PASSENGERS AND SHIP CREW FALL TO DEATH

Pilot Had Inquired Of Ground Wind Before Fall

CHEYENNE, Wyo., Oct. 7. (P)—Twelve persons—nine passengers, two pilots and a stewardess were killed today when a California to New York United Airlines transport plane hit a knoll on the rolling plains 15 miles west of here.

Pilot H. A. Collison had started from a high altitude when the twin motored liner struck the hill, lost its propeller, and plummeted against another hillside. The plane did not burn.

Searchers found the wreckage near dawn.

About five minutes before the ship was due to land here Collison inquired about ground wind information.

The exact cause cannot be determined, airline officials said, until the Federal Department of Commerce finishes an investigation.

Throng Roars Faith in Il Duce

In this picture, taken in Rome as Premier Benito Mussolini staged his test mobilization and rushed to America for NEA Service, by telephone and radio, the enthusiasm of the tremendous crowds is portrayed. Yelling, cheering and singing, they hold aloft a huge portrait of the Italian dictator. The crowd's frenzy is inspired by his ringing pledge to expand Italy at Ethiopia's expense.

CASH PRIZES FOR PARADE ENTRIES OFFERED BY FAIR

Committees Called To Meet Tuesday At 7:30 p. m.

Posting $100 in cash prizes for the best decorated non-commercial automobiles to be entered in the Midland Fair parade October 19, Fair officials this morning expressed the hope that all citizens of Midland will take personal interest in that inaugural event.

Mrs. George T. Abell was placed in full charge of the parade. Floats of mercantile establishments, or any type of advertising cars, will not be eligible for the prizes which are $40 first prize, $30 second and three prizes of $10 each. Rotary and Lions club floats, and those of similar organizations, will be placed in the commercial division, parade committees said.

Parent-Teacher organizations and such clubs may compete for the prizes, however, it was announced. It was pointed out that the merchants with their floats, have the benefit of advertising; but the individual entries are put to expense without opportunity of revenue. For that reason, the prize money was confined to that division.

A meeting of the parade committee and the subcommittee has been called for Tuesday evening at 7:30 o'clock at which time specific details of the entries will be taken up.

J. E. Hill is general parade chairman, with W. B. Simpson and Marion Flynn on the committee with him. The latter committee members asked that their sub-chairmen attend the Tuesday evening meeting. Flynn is in general charge of merchants' floats or cars, with sub-committees as follows: E. W. Ticknor, dry goods, ladies' dress and gift shops, groceries, bakeries and tailor shops; J. T. Baker, hardware, furniture, variety drug and jewelry stores; E. Neely, boots, saddle shops, cafe, feed stores, barber shops, laundries, creameries.

Under Simpson's group are: Ralph Coelster, real estate, insurance, banks, office supply, hotels; Clint Lackey, garages, auto dealers and filling stations; Fred Hogan and A. B. Cook, oil supply and equipment outfits.

Those in charge of all other divisions of the parade were invited to attend the meeting Tuesday evening.

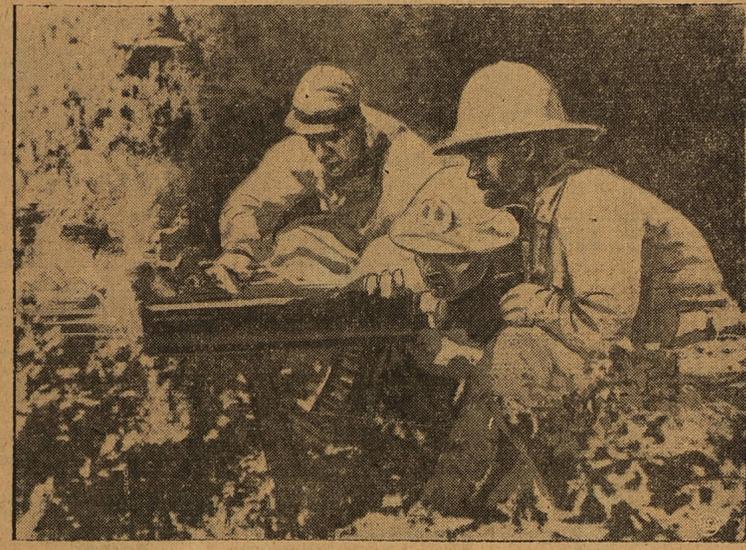

A representative of a Denver decorating firm met with the general committee this morning and will call on business houses to rent decorations and furnish them with such action to the individual merchant and business establishment.

We are anxious for the merchant to prepare their floats, and to exhibit their decorations, they said. "However, those desiring to buy such a service should use their own discretion."

Fair officials said that another firm previously had been allotted the privilege of selling decorations for street and store fronts, this too, being optional with the merchant and merely presented to them if wanted.

Local sign painters and decorators said today they would be glad to sell their services in decorating cars or floats either for commercial or individual entries.

Italian Machine Gun in War Sector

An Italian machine gun outpost on the Tigre front, near Aduwa, where the invaders encountered desperate resistance from the telephoned to London, and sent by radio to the United States.

RESORTED TO WAR IN DISREGARD OF LEAGUE COVENANT

Report Is Adopted Unanimously by Body Today

By Associated Press

The League of Nations council unanimously adopted the report declaring Italy "resorted to war in disregard of covenants."

The action immediately puts into effect Article Sixteen, providing for the application of sanctions against the aggressor nation.

The League of Nations council blocked the Italian request for more time and ordered a public session to decide whether Italy "resorted to war in disregard of covenants." The council's "committee of thirteen," representing every nation in the council except Italy, approved this allegation.

The adoption of the report means that Italy is deemed as committing an act of war against League members.

The Suez Canal company directors decided that the canal should remain open to all countries during hostilities.

Ethiopian sources said that Selassie plans to lead an army of 120,000 against Italy within the fortnight.

Selassie has massed his tribal warriors in the north and south and the first major battle is believed near, probably at Makale, 60 miles southeast of Aduwa, which the Italians have conquered.

The Italian army is split into two sections, one about Aduwa, the other at Adigrat.

It is reported that the Italians have occupied Tigre province.

The Italian advance through the north, and east is reported in accord with Ethiopia strategy. Selassie planned to fall back in the center, let Italians advance through the north, and then engulf the Italians with hundreds of thousands of black warriors.

Crimm Opens His Odessa Revival; Gets Three Wolves

Evangelist B. B. Crimm, who last night opened one of his famous revival meetings at Odessa, ministered the occasion properly by staging an all night coyote hunt at the South Curtis place, near Midland. The famous string of Walker dogs brought down three wolves.

The Rev. Winston F. Borum, Bill Forehand and other friends of the sport-loving evangelist joined in the chase, witnessing the last "kill" at midnight. The dogs will be kept at Forehand's through the period of the Odessa revival and the Rev. Crimm will make several night visits here for coyote hunts.

Accompanied by his music director and head of young peoples' activities, Harlan Powell, Evangelist Crimm drove from Dallas yesterday, preaching the evening. The dogs will be kept at Forehand's through the period of the Odessa revival and the Rev. Crimm will make several night visits here for coyote hunts.

Receive Casing For Yoakum Well

By PAUL OSBORNE

Monday morning reports indicated that casing for Davidson and Honolulu No. 1 Bennett, apparent new discovery producer in wildcat territory of southeastern Yoakum county, had arrived from Memphis, Tennessee, and had been transported to the lease.

However, actual running of casing has not yet begun, and it is believed that it will be the latter part of this week at least before operators will be able to electrically test the casings in the hole and determine the amount of oil actually in the hole.

Fiend Sought for Attack on Child

SEATTLE, Oct. 7. (P)—Posses today hunted the fiend who hanged Sally Kelley, 7, to the garage door behind an apartment building. Officers said the girl had been criminally attacked. Her head had been struck and she had been strangled. The main clue was a man's large handkerchief knotted around the child's neck. Police were called after she disappeared from the hallway of the apartment. One man had been arrested.

Beginning Tuesday, Oct. 8 The Reporter-Telegram will run a series of nine articles on safe and sensible driving. The series is based on the helpful hints of a great many experienced drivers, automotive engineers and mechanics and is called appropriately, "We Drivers." It has been widely commented upon by safety experts, police officials and motorvehicle commissions.

The Reporter-Telegram is carrying this series with the hope that it will be interesting to its car driving readers and as its contribution toward making our highways safer.

SERIES WON BY TIGERS

Behind the strong right arm of Tommy Bridges the Detroit Tigers today won the World Series when, with two out, Goose Goslin rapped a single to right field to score Manager Mickey Cochrane from second base and break a three and three tie.

Both pitchers, Bridges and French, were in trouble all through the game but Bridges proved to be more effective in the pinches. Both gave up 12 hits but each received sensational support to pull them out of several holes.

Illness Will Cause Revoking of Licenses

License of civil pilots who become ill and are unable to fly or follow their customary vocations for a period of 20 or more days, will be automatically suspended on the twentieth day, and the pilots will be required to be reexamined and pronounced fit by a Department of Commerce medical flight examiner if the examiner deems it necessary, before being allowed to resume flying, according to a new amendment to the Federal aviation regulations which will become effective November 1, 1935.

In an explanation of this amendment, Eugene L. Vidar, director of Air Commerce, stated that under the present regulations, the holder of a student, amateur, or private pilot's license could be in an automobile or any accident not associated with aviation, or suffer from an illness which may run as long as 23 months, and upon recovering resume flying on his license. Furthermore, a commercial pilot could be ill practically five months and an air line pilot for over two months without any change in his status as a licensed pilot.

The new amendment, which is effective at the end of the month of October, is set forth in chapter 5, Aeronautics Bulletin No. 7, "Air Commerce Regulations," follows:

If a person, to whom any form of pilot's license has been issued by the Secretary of Commerce, sustains an injury or suffers an illness which, for a period of twenty, or more, consecutive days, incapacitates such person from performing the normal duties for which licensed or from following his or her customary vocation or mode of life, the license of such person shall be automatically suspended on the twentieth day of such period, and if in the opinion of a medical flight examiner it is deemed necessary, such person shall be reexamined and pronounced fit for such license, the duties for which licensed.

SENATE ACTION ON LIQUOR BILL URGED BY SMALL

AUSTIN, Oct. 7. (P)—The senate today ordered a report filed tomorrow on the liquor regulatory bill, so it could begin debate without awaiting passage of the house bill. The action to speed liquor legislation was taken on motion of Senator Clint Small who asserted that "it is high time to bring this to the senate floor so we can settle at least one major issue this session."

The state affairs sub-committee, unreported for over two weeks, explained that it was awaiting action of the house before writing the bill. The house instructed the liquor traffic committee to report the senate bill defining the open saloon.

Debutantes Advised To Come To Midland If They Want Picture Made With Cowboy

Editor's Note: The following article, written by a staff member of the Fort Worth Star-Telegram and published in today's issue of that publication, was the outgrowth of a visit here recently of Bess Stephenson and Louise Cox who have contributed outstanding articles on pioneer residents of West Texas and on the development of horse breeding in the Midland area.

By STAFF WRITER

MIDLAND, Oct. 6.—If you run across an Eastern debutante looking for a cowboy, send her to Midland. Here is the one town left in West Texas whose streets fill up with lanky, low-waisted cowboys on Saturday afternoon exactly as they did 40 years ago, when pioneer ranch hands rode into town for a holiday.

There's a difference of course. It takes an old-timer to remember the last time the cowboys left in a cloud of dust when their money was gone, shooting their guns into the air to say "Good-by" until another payday came around.

But the flavor of the Old West is as strong in Midland on a Saturday afternoon as ever was. That's why the chamber of commerce will advise a young lady tourist who arrives on Wednesday to have her picture made with a cowboy to stay around until Saturday and have her picture made with a dozen cowboys.

Girls often do.

Girls frequently do that. Heads filled with glamorous ideas about a Western cowboy, they stay over three days in this ranch country headquarters for a chance to take a snapshot of boots, spurs, big hat and the blushing countenance of a young cowhand dragged out of a saddle shop to pose for his picture.

If she tries to make a picture on Thursday, it may be a mistake. She's liable to pick out what she thinks is a cowhand and find that he was once, but that he's now one of the town's wealthy citizens. She couldn't tell the difference and he would be flattered, so it wouldn't be a grievous error.

Ranch owners, many of them made rich by cattle and oil, hang around the Schreiber Hotel all hours of the day, all days of the week. This amazing institution is headquarters, office and second home to the ranchmen. Deals involving 100,000 cattle or 100 oil wells have been made over cups of coffee in the lunchroom or between well aimed shots at the cuspidor in the lobby.

Own Sunday School

Cowhands and ranchmen alike who don't care to get into fancy dress on Sunday have their own Sunday school class on the mezzanine floor. Boots, spurs, big hats and denim trousers are the uniform. No lady men who ride the range and feed at the chuck wagon almost as romantically as they ever did.

Few of them ride into town on horseback on Saturday afternoon. Most of the cowboys have automobiles. Even in this last outpost of the glamorous West there is some ranch work done now by auto instead of cowpony.

But, enough cowboys still come (See MIDLAND COWBOYS, page 4)

AGED TULSA MAN FOUND DEAD SUN.

LAWRENCEVILLE, Ill., Oct. 7. (P)—Redmond Pinkstaff, 81, of Tulsa, Okla., was found dead Sunday in a chartered bus, other groups making the trips Wednesday and Thursday.

In 1875 the sisters pledged they would never marry. The covenant was not broken.

Pinkstaff came to the family farm on the banks of the Wabash to attend the funerals last Sunday of Susie Ann, 86 and Clara Ann, 70. A third sister, Martha Ann, died 40 years ago.

Little hope was held by physicians for the surviving sister, Mary Ann, 73.

Without outside help, Susie Ann, Clara Ann and Mary Ann had operated the 180-acre farm for the past 25 years. Each divided the duties but when major harvest work came, all three went to the fields.

Exhaustion after a hard day's work in a hay field led indirectly to their illness and death. Heavy colds, followed and pneumonia quickly developed.

Two Lieutenants, Two Cadets Land

Four landings were reported at Midland airport for Sunday.

The pilots included two lieutenants and two cadets.

Lieut. M. Palmer landed here enroute from Randolph Field to El Paso. He was flying a BT2B.

Lieut. E. T. Neale, flying a navy ship, stopped here on the way from El Paso to Dallas and thence to Norfolk, Va.

The two cadets were from Barksdale Field, one going on to El Paso, the other, O. K. Lawing, returning to Randolph Field.

PUBLIC HOLDS THE BAG

The recent fight over the utilities holding company bill gave ordinary Americans a glimpse of the marvels that can be wrought through the judicious investments of a few dollars in the right kind of holding company.

Now the announced auctioning by the House of Morgan of the Van Sweringens' railroad securities is a reminder that the holding company is not a phenomenon peculiar to the utility field.

The securities which Morgan is putting on the block carry with them control of nine great railroads whose shares have an aggregate book value of some $3,000,000,000. This control lies chiefly in some 2,112,042 shares of Allegheny Corp., which today have a value of slightly better than $3,150,000.

The inner beauty of the holding company thus becomes clear. For a little more than $3,000,000, one can buy control of railroads worth $3,000,000,000!

FEMININE FANCIES

BY KATHLEEN EILAND

"Men like women best in red and second-best in an ugly light-blue that, left to themselves, women would never in the world wear. The male prefers himself in dark clothes but women take to him most when he dresses in gray."

So Henrietta Murdock, famous color adviser, told Mary Margaret McBride, New York writer. Through training and experience, Miss Murdock should speak with authority. Yet we wonder a little.

Red? We have a feeling that men like to see other women clothed in it more than they like to see the women of their own family.

At least Miss Murdock's statement chimes in with the advice a man once gave a young woman we know. "If you want to be popular at a dance," he said, "wear a red dress or a black one. I don't know why but a man notices a woman in red or black." (Girls, take heed.)

Concerning the perennial favorite, Miss Murdock says: "Black and white in dress is sophisticated, but not necessarily old. However, black worn alone adds years to anybody's age."

Sophisticated or not, black and white still has a touch of distinction that fits it for any company, no matter how aristocratic.

We agree with this expert's idea on men's clothing. Men, whether in blue or brunette, look good in gray.

And right here we want to hand a bouquet to those men who wear white in summer. The cool—shall we say beauty or just good looks?—of the blonde are set off by white just as they are by that peculiar shade of blue-gray which has no warmth in it. And the dark man looks more romantic in white.

Miss Murdock believes that knowledge of color will add about 100 per cent to a woman's joy in life and that anybody can teach herself to know color.

Memorize a tone and carry it in your mind as you would a melody," she advises.

We suppose that some of the popular plaids would have to be memorized as red-hot jazz.

Grammar Is Index Of Person's Training

By OLIVE ROBERTS BARTON

Waiting in a small hotel between trains, I noticed two fine-looking business men enter the lobby. In a few minutes a young fellow with whom they evidently had an appointment came in.

I could not help overhearing their conversation. The young man evidently was being interviewed for a job and he thought success depended on his knowledge of business, and upon this he concentrated. The bright young man knew the answers. They would nod gravely and occasionally there would be a laugh. It all seemed very friendly and cordial, and I am sure our hero thought he had something in the bag.

Taking up their hats finally, they said they would let him know. I think he expected another answer. After they left he was uneasy and preoccupied.

Speech Against Him He was a splendid looking chap, dressed carefully and in good taste. But I was sure he would never hear from that job. And of the reason, possibly, why he was not invited to the club for a cutlet and coffee.

He had said things in the way they should not have been said. Not only had he used a surplus of glib slang, but there were slips such as "I DON'T add up; 'I WAS to go to Chicago.'" "They told Bill and I to get that order because no one else had used THEIR heads."

I felt so bad for the witless young scamp who hadn't studied his English in school I could have wept.

"All wagers he majored in international law or history of art or something," I said to myself. "Or else started in sports. In high school very likely he read 'Sir Roger de Coverly' and 'The Merchant of Venice' and 'Macbeth' backward and 'The Merchant of Venice' too."

"Maybe he sweat blood over French verbs or German genders. Maybe he can recite two pages of Vergil without a stop. Maybe he took honors in original propositions. Maybe he did and maybe he didn't; but what he didn't do, and his parents did not make him do, was to get his grammar when the getting was good."

Good Grammar Is Reassuring "Perhaps his parents themselves never tried to master the fifteen 'don'ts' of correct English, and he fell into the habit of thinking that careful speech is not important in life."

The school child should be taught to realize that knowledge is only half of success. The other half involves people, and people watch for literacy.

We are a strange people, we Americans. Often those who are none too particular about their tense and relative pronouns demand more perfect speech of those who serve them.

It takes years to perfect syntax. It has to become a habit, without thought, part of self. My young friend could have felt his way more carefully, linguistically speaking if he had not been concentrating another subject. Too bad that most boys hate grammar so. Nothing gives more assurance to either a boy or a girl—than a feeling that he can speak with the best.

GARDEN GATE GOSSIP

There are two uses for annuals in the garden quite separate and distinct, one for cutting—to furnish bouquets for the house. The other is to figure in the color scheme of garden decorations. Many gardens make them serve the two purposes at once, but if cut freely for bouquets, naturally, the color effect in the garden is spoiled.

Gardeners have adopted the plan quite generally, when they have room to do so, of growing some of their annuals in rows like vegetables solely for cutting purposes and use others in the garden scheme. A large number of annuals may just as well be planted this fall as next spring, particularly the cutting garden.

Centauriums, which have little garden decorative value, are very valuable as cutting material. They will winter safely if they come up from seed this fall. The same is true of annual larkspur, pansy, snapdragons, alysium, nicotina (the flowering tobacco), gypsophila, Chinese forget-me-nots, calendulas and hosts of others. The tender annuals, such as marigolds and zinnias, should be held until spring, although occasionally marigolds self-sow.

Snapdragons which have bloomed this summer may be cut back and given a protective cover and come through for early bloom next spring. Experiment has shown that the California wax paper clothes will bring the snaps through the winter in fine shape. The cloche should have a small ventilating slit cut in its side.

The one factor in fall seed sowing to be attended to is mulch. Heavy rains will wash the seeds out of their regular rows unless a protection against the driving showers is given. Leaves, straw or stalks of the flower garden will give ample protection. If the seeds can be sown in a seed bed for transplanting in the spring, a wooden curb about the bed to prevent the washing of heavy rains is advisable.

Now is the time to get calla lilies going for early spring bloom. Save autumn leaves for the compost. It is a waste of good fertilizing material to burn them.

Divide and reset early spring blooming perennials such as bleeding hearts, peonies, leopard's bane, pyrethrums, Shasta daisies.

The Town Quack

(Reserves the right to "quack" about everything without taking a stand on anything).

Did you get a ticket on any of the bus trips before they were sold out? If you didn't, I hear they are working up a fourth trip for Friday, with Garden City, Sterling City, Water Valley, Carlsbad, San Angelo, Big Lake, Texon and Rankin as the route. That will be one of the best trips of all and you can have a lot of fun as well as to advertise the Fair in localities which are looking toward Midland.

The customary thing to do after your home football team loses a crucial game, is to throw up your hands and say you are through, but from what I hear the Bulldogs have only started. Just because Pecos beat them is no sign anybody else will do so. Get ready to see some good football emanating from Lackey Field.

Even Providence Can't Save Oats

These two stacks of oats ascending in flames prove that not even an act of Providence annuls the government's crop allotment rule. Simon Stuckey of Hutchinson, Kan., had received payment for not raising wheat, but was allowed to grow oats to be cut for feed before they were ripe. Rain prevented cutting until after they had ripened, so Stuckey was ordered to refund wheat payments or burn his oats on which he had been depending for feed.

377,339 Passengers In Air in Six Months

Scheduled air lines of the United States flew 28,729,128, carried 377,339 passengers on air journeys totaling 162,858,746 passenger miles.

The passenger, passenger miles and express totals were new records. In one previous six-month period the miles flown total was larger—28,780,426 in the last half of 1933.

Totals in the foregoing are for all routes, domestic and foreign extensions. The domestic routes flew 24,642,134 miles, carried 319,484 passengers, flew 139,436,311 passenger miles, and carried 1,412,969 pounds of express in the six-month period.

At the end of the six-month period the 22 companies operating on domestic routes and the 4 offering service to foreign nations were operating 464 airplanes. They had in their employ 571 pilots, 339 copilots, 2,637 mechanics and ground crew workers, 1,519 other hangar and field employees, 2,871 operations and office employees and 159 stewards and hostesses.

The average fare rate at the end of the period, for domestic lines only, was 5.89 cents per mile. The average length of a passenger's trip on the domestic lines in this period was 436 miles.

Of the seating space available in air line craft during scheduled trips, 56 per cent was occupied during the period. In the first half of 1934 the percentage of seats occupied was 48.

Manuscript Version Of Battle Is Found... DALLAS, (Sp.)—A document, thought to be the only existing manuscript version of the report of the battle of San Jacinto signed and inscribed by General Sam Houston, has been found here in the corporate records and archives of the Dallas News.

The document is of great historic value and of unusual interest as its discovery was made as the state of Texas is beginning the period of observance and celebration of the centennial year of her independence.

The 99 year old document was found in the News office recently during a search through old records and papers and announcement of its discovery was made in the golden anniversary edition of the newspaper by G. B. Dealey, president of the publishing company.

Scholars and other experts on Texas history long ago gave up as lost the original manuscript report by General Houston of the battle which freed Texas from Mexico.

This original has been missing three quarters of a century. The manuscript just found is addressed to the Louisiana Advertiser, a leading New Orleans journal favorable to the cause of Texas freedom and it is considered probable that it was delivered to the newspaper by the famous Texan to secure as early and as accurate publicity as possible in the American press for the decisive event across the border of Texas.

Our Modern Homes

Last week the argument went on and on into the night between the House that needed repairs and the Owner; now let's see what the morning following brings us.

(House): Good morning, Mr. Owner; sleep well? (Owner): Um. (House): That's what I thought. Well, I am not going to let you leave this property until you say that you love me enough to have the repairs done that are necessary to take me through the cold winter months. (Owner): Well, House, I have ordered out the carpenter and painter to start work at once and while I am gone to work this week, they will be dressing you up. (House): Well, how about my Plumbing, Heating and Sheet Metal Work? (Owner): I always leave that up to Neill. He certainly knows how to make old bathrooms look like new. That is all settled, and you, Miss House, will look like a different girl when I come back next week so, until I return, may all your troubles be little ones.

Well, folks, at last we have the work about to start on Miss House and next week we will wait and see the improvement. I bet she will look like a new five-dollar bill that we received at the window at the First National Bank last week; so stiff you couldn't get it into your pocket. Remember to call Neill's.
