All Electric Workers Strike In El Paso

ASSASSINS OF 3 JAP OFFICIALS GIVE SELVES UP

Leave Barricade at Request of the Government
BATTLE AVERTED
Surrender Leaves Authorities Confident

TOKYO, Feb. 27. (AP)—The capitulation of insurgent soldiers in an attempted coup Wednesday was officially revealed today. The soldiers acceded to a government request that they quit the police headquarters where they had barricaded themselves in defiance of loyal troops averting a threat of bloodshed in the capital's streets. Military authorities are confident that danger is past.

Martial law was declared in Tokyo and troops and warships were called on duty after militarists assassinated three government leaders in a bloody purge which may change vitally the course of the Empire.

Only a few minutes after he was designated as Premier by Emperor Hirohito, Fumio Goto, former Minister of the Home Office, resigned. He failed in an effort to form a new government.

Young army officers who attempted a swift coup during a swirling snowstorm at dawn Wednesday, explained they did so to remove corrupt influences from around the throne. Civilians who were comparatively liberal were their targets.

Martial law, more drastic than the previously declared state of emergency was proclaimed at 2:30 a. m.

Dispatches from various British news agencies said 3,000 Japanese insurgents held the Tokyo police headquarters against government troops.

The Imperial Guard of 12,000 men and marines were sent to hold the Navy Building and other centers after a defiant manifesto was issued by the rebels.

Secretary Dern Is Urged to Modify Action

WASHINGTON, Feb. 27. (AP)—Senator Byrnes, South Carolina, accompanied by two representatives, today asked Secretary Dern to set aside or modify his disciplinary action taken against Major-General Johnson Hagood.

Climaxing three days of caustic debate over the disciplining of Major Gen. Johnson Hagood for his criticism of New Deal spending, a republican effort was initiated Wednesday to determine whether his right of free speech had been abridged.

TALMADGE HOLDS NEW DEAL CAUSING TROUBLE IN STATE

Says Condition Is Caused by His Campaign

ATLANTA, Feb. 27. (AP)—Governor Talmadge charged today that the present situation in Georgia was "deliberately brought about by the New Deal to stomp Talmadge from campaigning a fourth President Roosevelt in the United States."

The governor and his aides are confronted with a problem of what to do for money to operate the state.

Depository banks, the United States Post Office and the State Attorney General struck Wednesday at the financial dictatorship set up by Gov. Eugene Talmadge of Georgia.

Mail addressed to the officers suspended Monday by Talmadge, Treasurer George B. Hamilton and Comptroller General William B. Harrison, was impounded, cutting off the flow of tax remittances.

Banks declined to honor State checks pending a court decision on the legal status of the facto officers, and suggested a special session of the Legislature be called to untangle the snarl by enactment of an appropriations bill.

ANOTHER STATE WITNESS FACING HOFFMAN TODAY

Testimony Given by Taxi-Cab Driver Questioned
ATTACKS TALK
Says Contradictory Statements Have Been Given

TRENTON, Feb. 27. (AP)—Governor Harold G. Hoffman today questioned the identification by Joseph Perrone, taxi driver, of Richard Hauptmann as the man who hired him to deliver a note to Dr. J. F. (Jafie) Condon prior to the ransom payment.

The governor said that Perrone on different occasions had identified persons he said resembled the man who gave him the note, and stated that in no case was the description similar to that of Hauptmann.

Late last week Governor Hoffman charged another of the state's witnesses, Millard Whitely, who placed Hauptmann near the Lindbergh estate about the time of the kidnaping, with lying and insinuated that perjury charges would be brought against him.

YOAKUM WILDCAT IS SCHEDULED TO START UP TODAY

Preparations Are Completed for Swabbing

By FRANK GARDNER
Swabbing was scheduled to start at noon today in the closely watched Yoakum wildcat, Honolulu Oil Corp., Ltd., and C. J. (Red) Davidson No. 1 Bennett. The test has been shut down for nearly six months, but preparations to resume activity are said to be completed.

The No. 1 Bennett attracted widespread interest when oil rose 4000 feet in the hole within a short time after drilling into a soft lime section from 5088 to 5090 feet, the total depth.

Four 500 barrel storage tanks have been connected and new engine has been moved in. The test will be swabbed dry before testing or drilling ahead, plans of operators being unannounced. It is southeast of Plains in the northeast quarter of section 678, block D, John H. Gibson survey.

Acidizing is under way today in Sinclair-Prairie and others No. 1. Public opinion concerning acidizing is said to be good for a small pumper on natural production but may be increased by the acid treatment. Gas is estimated to be produced from 2910-18 and 2980-90 feet.

Swabbed Dry
After reaching a total depth of 4230 feet in sand, Standino No. 1 E. W. Wicher, south offset to the discovery well in the Foster pool in Ector county, was swabbed dry. One barrel of salt water was recovered in addition to the oil and it is thought to be coming from a pocket up the hole and not from bottom.

There are unconfirmed reports of the other Gaines test, W. T. Walsh and Harry Adams No. 1 Avertit has lost a barrel and part of the sand line after drilling ahead to 3955 feet in anhydrite and sand. No increase in gas was reported. It is located three miles out of Seminole in section 228, block G, W. T. R. survey.

BOSTON, Feb. 27. (AP)—Police arrested 25 persons in two clashes with pickets today after union leaders had called greater Boston's 7,000 ladies' garment workers on a strike. Strike leaders said the workers wanted higher wages, shorter hours and the right to bargain collectively.

Censorship Brings New, Bloody Venezuela Revolt

An echo in the recent bloody uprisings in Venezuela, in which 50 were slain to mark the end of the iron reign of the late Dictator Juan Vicente Gomez, four persons were killed and many wounded when soldiers fired on the huge mob, shown at right, which stormed the government house in Caracas, demanding a free press and resignation of the city's governor, believed to have tried to establish newspaper censorship. The crimson "A" for Assassin, shown below at left, painted in victim's blood on a foreign office wall; the wounds he received when a chair, thrown by a rioter, struck Dr. Jose Gil Fortaud, left above, official during the Gomez regime, testify to the mobsters' fury.

Emma Willis Free On Murder Charge

BULLET WOUNDS PROVE FATAL TO BIG SPRING MAN

Will Be Committed To Hospital for Insane

ANADARKO, OKLA., Feb. 27. (AP)—Eighteen-year-old Emma Willis, found "insane" by a jury which acquitted her Wednesday of the shotgun slaying of her father, prepared for another legal fight today to gain freedom as soon as possible from a state hospital where she is scheduled to be committed.

The girl is expected to start today for the Western Oklahoma hospital for the insane at Sulphur, accompanied by Sheriff Elmer Finley, who until two weeks ago had served as a special watchman for the Mexican section, was fatally wounded by a pistol shot as he stepped from his car near the Kate Morrison school at 1 a. m. Wednesday.

"Dick Bryant, deputy constable who had been called to the scene by Winn, rushed him to a local hospital where he died two hours later.

Justice of the Peace J. H. Heffley indicated he would return a verdict of self-inflicted wounds.

Winn remained conscious until a few minutes before his death and talked freely with officers who rushed to his bedside. They said he appeared despondent, over being out of work and his father's recent serious illness.

Winn came here in 1926 in the employ of the Texas & Pacific railroad. Later he served as a deputy game warden and was active in wildlife conservation moves here, having raised pheasants for a number of years.

Until recently he had been working as a special officer in Mexican town for a number of Mexican merchants. Last week he had gone to Keene to be with his father, who was critically ill of pneumonia.

Relatives of Winn were due to arrive here Wednesday afternoon to accompany the body to Cleburne. Funeral services will be held there, Thursday.

CITY IS PLUNGED INTO DARKNESS BY ACTION OF UNION

Hundred-Mile Area Is Affected by the Walk-Out
CITY SUFFERING
Schools and Hospitals Hurt, Plants Are Picketed

EL PASO, Feb. 27. (AP)—Electrical power from Las Cruces, New Mexico, to Tornillo, Texas, embracing a hundred mile area including El Paso, was shut down today when several hundred workers struck for the second time within a year.

El Paso was plunged into darkness as all electrical devices were stopped. Hospitals, schools and homes suffered as pickets paced in front of two plants. The strike was called after the electrical union charged that the company broke an agreement with its workers.

The El Paso strike in 1935 lasted only a few hours, representatives of the company and union reaching an agreement that has caused bitter controversy since that time. Negotiations between officials and union men are expected to start immediately.

The power was shut off at 3:30 a. m., silencing the police broadcast and all street railways. An appeal has been sent to the governors of Texas and New Mexico asking their help in settling the strike. A request has also been sent the field department of Labor at Washington asking for mediation.

The population affected by the strike aggregates 150,000. Police have ordered all available officers on duty.

PENALTY FOR DISHONESTY

Col. Joseph I. McMullen, for 15 years legal adviser to the assistant secretary of war, suffers a severe penalty for having accepted $369.70 worth of railroad transportation from a New York business man.

At first glance, the sentence seems unduly severe. Surely, to accept two round-trip railroad tickets from New York to San Francisco is to sin only mildly.

But the point to remember is that an army officer must be like Caesar's wife—above the merest shadow of suspicion. The man who gave Colonel McMullen the tickets was in the market for huge quantities of surplus army supplies.

TRIUMPH IN HARD WORK

A cure for cancer may be found within three generations, according to Dr. Maude Slye, famous for her years of research work in Chicago. Dr. Slye believes that the solution may be found through exhaustive compilation and study of family medical records.

She herself has compiled thousands upon thousands of case histories of mice in her own laboratory. She can tell you exactly which mice in her group are susceptible to cancer and where such cancers will appear; it is reasonable to suppose that similar knowledge could be gained about human beings, if records were voluminous enough.

This simply illustrates the tremendous amount of unexciting detailed drudgery which is a part of scientific research. For many years Dr. Slye has been keeping records on cages full of mice. Out of this monotonous routine may come, in the end, one of science's most amazing victories.

WOMEN ALSO FACE LIFE

Out of the struggle for women's equality in the last 50 years has come the conception that women need higher education as much as do men. Contrast that with the old-fashioned belief that a girl had no use for higher learning, since she didn't have to earn a living.

But now, points out Dean Virginia Gildersleeve of Barnard College, women not only have achieved educational opportunity, but they generally have used it to the everlasting benefit of the American home.

Marriage and homemaking have become all the more significant in the light of better education for women, and women in turn have developed interests to raise the standards of living.

It is encouraging to note this because it presages a better type of citizenship for tomorrow. There's no reason why education for women should differ from education for men.

Snags Face Roosevelt In His Move For An All-America Peace Parley

BY WILLIS THORNTON NEA Service Staff Correspondent

President Roosevelt's proposal for an All-American conference to unite efforts at keeping the peace among the countries of the western hemisphere comes to a South America which has at the moment more than its usual generous share of upheaval.

Although the proposal has been greeted with applause from both the Americas, several things are believed to stand in the way of complete and immediate success. One is the devotion to the League of Nations by most of the countries south of the Panama Canal, and their feeling that this move may in some way supplant it.

The other bar is the ruffled state of many of the countries invited to take part. In recent months civil disturbances have been taking place at rather more than the usual Latin-American rate.

PARAGUAY VETERANS RISE Most recent of the post-war upheavals in Paraguay, just beginning to recover from the exhausting Chaco war, a nucleus of war veterans, disgusted at the conduct and outcome of the bloody jungle war, and backed by students and intellectuals, has overthrown the government and put to flight President Ayala and some of his cabinet members.

Chile and Ecuador both are having trouble with Communist agitation. Dictator Paez of Ecuador has been threatened by Communists, who feel they are not being given the consideration in the government their numbers deserve.

President Arturo Alessandri of Chile now rules his country under a "state of siege" without congressional approval, which means virtual dictatorship.

He engineered the coup after arresting 400 men during a revolutionary strike which, he claimed, was inspired by the Third International, world Communist organization.

Chile and Ecuador are probably the only South American countries in which there is widespread and genuine Communist agitation. Uruguay recently had a brush with Moscow, when it sent home Alexander Minkin, the Russian ambassador, who, President Terra claimed, had been involved in revolutionary activity. There is now not a single diplomatic representative of Moscow in all South America.

Venezuela was torn by rioting in which at least 100 died. It was brought on by restrictions on a free press imposed by President Eleazar Lopez Contreras. This dictator assumed the head man's role at Caracas when Dictator Gomez died. Contreras was forced to ditch several cabinet members, but is believed to be restoring order.

Brazil has had no formidable revolts since last November, when a widespread insurrection was suppressed. Honduras and Nicaragua recently have been involved in minor civil strife, while Guatemala and Salvador at present are ruled by the semi-military dictatorships which always follow a period of unrest in the small republics of Central America.

OLD DREAM IN BRAZIL Brazil was one of the first countries to accept the Roosevelt proposal, and is expected to recommend that the peace conference be held in Rio de Janeiro instead of Buenos Aires. The dream of all-American co-operation for peace is being out one in Brazil, and enthusiastic help from leaders is expected.

The American state department is represented as feeling that there is no reason why internal disturbances in several countries need interfere with the proposal to unite all for better international relationships.

But the confused state of several governments, and preoccupation with their own internal affairs, may tend to slow down negotiations leading to such a conference.

Several factors favor the proposal. Southern neighbors of the United States fear "The Colossus of the North" less today than they have for many years.

Recent policies have given good evidence that the United States has no intention of becoming the bully of the western hemisphere and there is unquestionably a better feeling than there was in the days of "dollar diplomacy."

Further, the settlement of the Chaco war brought several nations closer together than they recently have been. Argentina, in taking a leading role as peacemaker there, drew nearer to its traditional rival, Brazil.

The spirit of economic co-operation among the South American countries is growing. Thus, many of them are in a receptive mood for the president's proposal of closer co-operation for peace.

In New York City, the lower East Side is inhabited by the Jewish race, the Chinatown Square district by Chinese; lower West Side by Armenians; Yorkville by Germans; northeastern part of Manhattan by negroes; and the section from Park Row to East River by Spaniards.

Civil disturbances in many South and Central American countries may hinder, but are not expected to halt, President Roosevelt's plan for an All-American congress to unite efforts for peace throughout the Americas. Points of unrest are shown in the map above.

The Capitol at Washington, upper right, will be more closely linked with the Capitol at Buenos Aires, lower right, if the conference succeeds. Buenos Aires, Argentine capital city, is the most likely choice for a meeting place.

Tin Oil Drums Vital As Arms To The Soldiers of Ethiopia Needing Water

Djibouti, Feb. 26.—The American oil can and the British petrol tin, symbols of white man's civilization in the deserts of East Africa, are being smuggled into Ethiopia today to serve as water vessels for the troops of Haile Selassie.

Painted and used as flower pots, punched full of holes and transformed into shower baths by the natives of French and British Somaliland, these discarded receptacles suddenly have become of military importance. They are worth more today as canteens than the hundred and one things they can be made into by the blacks of the African coast.

Quick to exploit the demand, the natives have embarked on a profitable oil can business. Camel caravans and strings of mules are being utilized to transport this strange merchandise over ancient slave routes into Ethiopia. One empty tin sells for as high as one thaler.

Becomes Pipelines Thousands of five-gallon tins, carried on the shoulders of the women following the bearded warriors of Ethiopia, are as good as aqueducts or modern pipelines. They bring the life-saving contents of distant wells to the encampments in sun-parched deserts.

The oil can, joke of the slapstick vaudeville stage, has come into its own. It may prove to be one of the all-important factors in the Ethiopian's stand against the Italians.

For years Somaliland people have made use of these empty tins. All the flowers of Djibouti's Place Meneclik sprout from oil and gasoline

WPA Cancels All of Labor Requisitions

SAN ANTONIO.—With the state's quota of 120,000 persons on Works Progress Administration projects realized, State Administrator H. P. Drought today instructed the 20 district directors throughout Texas to cancel all outstanding requisitions for additional labor.

Tabulations of reports from the districts today revealed 123,041 employed as of the week ending February 15.

Although there still remain some unassigned workers, most, if not all, of them were expected to be absorbed by the transfer of WPA workers to non-WPA projects and by vacancies created through jobs provided for project workers by expanding private industry.

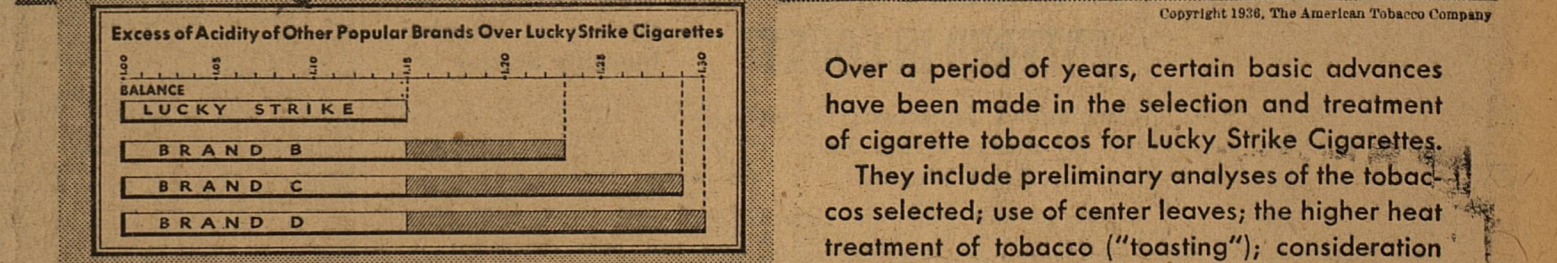

"You should release workers to other federal agencies operating work projects as rapidly as possible so as to take care of those awaiting assignment," Drought reminded district directors.

Individual districts will continue to work employables on the basis of the number currently employed in each of the 20 districts. Drought said. Vacancies may be filled by those not now assigned, but the total number of workers in a district may not exceed the number working. It was estimated that there are throughout the state 9,555 eligible workers who, for various reasons, have not been assigned.

FEMININE FANCIES

BY KATHLEEN EILAND

We note among inventions now being put into the bathroom is a rack to lean one's weary back against. About the only bather (or bathee) that is wearied by this rite, we think, is the small child whose mother scrubs him with a devastating zeal.

We also hear a reference to non-slip towel bars. But our special laurel wreath would go to the lover of humanity who invents a wire soap rack that won't fall into the tub at the most inopportune moments.

A physical instructor at an eastern university announces that "The broom is a homely thing, but it hides many a beauty secret" and that that instrument, the mop, and the duster are a trio of beauty aids. The blessings of beauty being won, of course, through the medium of exercise obtained through wielding these plebeian tools.

Can it be that this instructor (and she is a woman, too) is in league with those men who proclaim that woman's place is solely in the home? Anyway, we know of many more pleasant ways of taking exercise than through the medium of mopping floors, sweeping out corners, and flicking a dust rag.

Planning Breakfasts In Advance Is Easiest Routine for Housekeeper

BY MARY E. DAGUE

NEA Service Staff Writer

A few days ago I went to a luncheon given by the Dietetic Association of one of the mid-western states. There were interesting talks by well known dieticians from all over the country but my thrill came when, during the general discussion, they all agreed that breakfast is a very important meal and that it should be hearty enough to nourish the body, reducing diet or not. For years I have crusaded for adequate breakfasts for everybody. If one meal must be slighted, let it be luncheon; but let every man, woman and child eat enough breakfast to take him through the morning.

I'll grant that breakfast is difficult to plan. There's little opportunity for variety. It usually has to be prepared hurriedly and oftener than not eaten eaten at top speed. Then there's the morning lack of appetite to contend with.

Plan Far In Advance

But if breakfast menus were planned like the rest of the meals, several days or a week in advance, it would be much easier for the home maker to get completely away from

Tomorrow's Menu

BREAKFAST: Sliced pineapple, cereal, cream, toasted bacon and tomato sandwich, milk, coffee.

LUNCHEON: Cream of dried lima bean soup, bread sticks, spiced pears, snow pudding, milk, tea.

DINNER: English mutton chops, potatoes au gratin, buttered brussels sprouts, salad of mixed vegetables, cottage pudding, milk, coffee.

hackneyed combinations. The meal should be thought out so that a minimum of time will be required in its preparation, and plenty of time be allowed for serving and eating. Eating against time is no aid to digestion and may cause serious trouble, particularly for children.

The age, food habits and activities of each person have much to do with the type for breakfast required. Weather conditions also influence the menu.

With the coming of spring, pancakes lost some of their popularity although they still taste pretty good on raw spring mornings. Heavy cereals and hot muffins can be replaced by lighter cereals and toast. Rice with butter and cinnamon or sugar and cream make a very satisfactory cereal for an occasional breakfast. Eggs are specially suited to the spring breakfast, since they're less expensive at this season.

Fresh fish are plentiful during the spring months and are quickly cooked. Smoked and salted fish always are available and are savory and appetizing.

Fruits Taken For Granted

Most households take fruit for granted on the breakfast menu these days, so that the homemaker usually serves it to please individual tastes.

The early spring breakfast can be given interest by the introduction of certain salad vegetables. Curly endive served with crisp broiled bacon, water-cress with cured or fresh fish, spinach with poached egg, sliced tomatoes with crisp toast and bacon, breakfast radishes and carrot straws are a few suggestions for serving vegetables for breakfast.

THE PRISONER OF SHARK ISLAND

with WARNER BAXTER, GLORIA STUART and a cast of 1000 players

Just before dawn, one rainy morning in 1865 Dr. Samuel Mudd, was roused by the ringing of his doorbell. His visitors were two horsemen, one with a fractured leg. Dr. Mudd pitied the splints, but the sick man insisted on continuing his journey. Although the doctor's bill was only $2, the man gave him $50. Mrs. Mudd, in disposing of the boot which the doctor had cut from his patient's leg, did not notice the name—John Wilkes Booth—printed on the lining. Five hours earlier President Lincoln had been assassinated.

CHAPTER TWO

The rain stopped shortly before dawn. As the grey sky slowly reddened with the rising sun, and the peaceful Maryland hamlet gathered momentum for the new day with increasing activity, its calm was rudely shattered. A troop of cavalry horsemen and horses alike cov- through the puddled road into the tiny village.

With them came terrible news: The previous night, as he sat in the Presidential box at Ford's Theatre, Abraham Lincoln had been murdered. The slayer, John Wilkes Booth, half-crazed actor, had fled despite a serious injury to his leg. The cavalry, finally picking up the trail after hours of delay in the terror-stricken city of Washington, had been hot in pursuit of Booth and his accomplice.

In that inexplicable manner which which bad news always travels, the report spread throughout the near-by farm country. A crowd quickly gathered about where the cavalrymen picked their horses while Lieut. Lovett, youthful commander of the troop, set about to question possible witnesses.

"Sergeant Rankin," he called. "A tall, tough-looking trooper detached himself from the rest of the group, approached and saluted."

"There's a report that a carriage was stolen from the local blacksmith around two o'clock this morning," he said. "Rout out the smithy and let's hear what he has to say."

Rankin departed to return almost immediately with the burly village smithy.

"He says, Lieutenant," the sergeant reported, "that the buggy was stolen, and that footprints in the roadway show the thieves came from up the road." Rankin pointed toward the Mudd home.

The smithy started to add to the story, when he was interrupted by a small Negro boy, who detached himself from the gaping crowd.

"Gerul," he said, addressing Lt. Lovett. "I seed two men las' nite up yander on de road. One of dem he as me whine de doctah's house is, an' I sent dem to Dicut Mudd's house; yas sah."

"We're on the trail now," cried Lovett excitedly. "Put the smithy and this boy under guard, and come with me."

Sergeant Rankin detached a trooper to guard the two witnesses, and then, at the head of the cavalry detail, alongside Lt. Lovett, set off for the home of Dr. Mudd.

In the meantime at the shabby comfortable home of Dr. Mudd, Colonel Dyer, Mrs. Mudd's father, and Martha, his four-year old granddaughter, were having breakfast.

The Colonel, a choleric old fire-eating Southerner, bristling with indignation over his coffee cup, was addressing the wide-eyed little girl as though she were the whole of Congress.

"But I—Gad, I tell you, it is not a question of slavery," he orated. "And never was! It's a question of states' rights! The Constitution of the United States."

He paused to have his empty cup filled by Blanche, a thin, slovenly Negro woman who regarded him admiringly, but no more admiringly than the round-eyed child, who spooning her cereal, was lost under the spell of her grandfather's agitated wisecracks.

Feeling the need of a more mature audience, the Colonel snorted. "Where's your pa?"

"He's out."

"Who's sick now?"

"Rosabelle, I think."

"What ails Rosabelle?" suspiciously.

The colored woman, hovering near, cleared her throat loudly. Finally drawing the Colonel's beligerent gaze, she signalled that the question could not be answered in the child's presence.

When she had disappeared, the negro woman, conscious of the importance of such news, answered: "Baby! I—Gad, how many's that?"

"She say twelve," giggling.

"Twelve!" indignantly. "You tell Rosabelle I say she and Buck can't have any more children until they get married—you hear me?"

Overcome with mirth, the colored woman gurgled. "Yas, sah, but—"

"But Rosabelle—she say she don't know if she gwine like Buck 'nough to marry him!"

"Blanche! . . . Martha!" he called. "But Blanche didn't hear him and Martha was outside staring at the two men with shinning spuds and bright uniforms. So finally the Colonel had to answer the door himself in response to a ring."

"Yankees, I—Gad!" he roared in astonishment.

He tried to slam the door in their faces, but Sergeant Rankin had his foot against it and the two men entered, gently but firmly pressing the Colonel aside.

"Sorry, sir," said Lovett. "But is this Dr. Mudd's home?"

Without waiting to be asked the soldiers walked into the living room followed by the Colonel, fuming impotently.

"Where is Dr. Mudd?" Lovett asked.

"Who wants to know?" belligerently.

"Lieutenant Lovett, United States Army," was the quiet answer.

"I am Dr. Mudd's father-in-law," the Colonel said stiffly. Colonel Jeremiah Milford Dyer, Fourth Virginia Cavalry, Confederate States Army, sir!"

Concealing a smile Lovett snapped to attention and saluted. Something pathetic about the old duffer touched him.

But although the Colonel returned the salute, he wasn't mollified. He began to bridle again as he noticed the progress of Sergeant Rankin around the room. The latter was poking into every nook and cranny.

Lovett, still standing stiffly politely, "Maybe you can help us, sir. We're looking for two men who passed through this part of Maryland last night. One of them was hurt, had a bad leg, broken probably. Did you see or hear anything of them?"

Still watching Rankin, the Colonel answered angrily. "If you'll order that animal to keep his filthy Yankee nose out of my affairs, I may answer you!"

At this well calculated insult, Rankin halted in the survey of the room and stared angrily at the old man.

Turning to him Lovett said quietly. "Wait outside, Sergeant—in front."

Reluctantly, his face reddening, Rankin obeyed.

"Well, sir?" said Lovett when the door had closed after him.

"I've heard or seen of no such men," said the Colonel, glaring at the closed door.

"Have you ever heard of John Wilkes Booth?"

"Never."

"He's quite a well-known actor."

"I—Gad, sir, I leave actors to women."

Outside Rankin was seated on the top step of the porch, his back against a post. He was still angry at his summary dismissal by the Lieutenant. What he thought about West Point officers would fill a book.

Lost in his bitter reflections he did not at first notice Martha, the Colonel's granddaughter, who was pulling something around the yard by a string."

The little girl came closer to him, looking at him curiously and out of the tail of his eye, Rankin, saw that she was dragging a boot behind her—a muddy boot which looked as though it had been slashed with a knife, idly.

"What do you call that, Johnnie Reb?" he asked.

"That's my dolly's carriage."

"Want a push?" he asked.

"No, no, you can't play!"

But his foot had already upset the boot and the doll was broken.

Suddenly his eyes hardened, his mouth drew into a thin line. He had seen the name inside the book. Pushing the child out of the way, Rankin leaped up the steps and burst open the door.

"As for Abraham Lincoln, he has betrayed the north as well as the South," the Colonel was saying when Rankin in two strides crossed the floor and handed his find to the Lieutenant.

"It would be better for this whole country if Abe Lincoln had never lived—" continued the Colonel, turning to glare at Rankin.

Lovett, who had started upon seeing the name, "John Wilkes Booth," printed on the lining of the book, suddenly spoke in a loud, harsh voice.

"Are those the sentiments of your son-in-law?"

"My son-in-law, sir, is a Southerner," said the old man stiffly. Rankin, loosening the pistol in his holster, took a stand by the window. Lovett, shifting his holster to a more comfortable position, sat down.

In silence the three prepared to wait.

Outside on the lowest step of the porch the little girl was weeping over her broken doll. In the kitchen the negro woman, Blanche, done with her story telling was making a great clatter washing the dishes.

Is Dr. Mudd to be implicated in the murder of President Lincoln? Don't miss this tomorrow.

McCulloch County Terracing Advocate

BRADY, TEXAS. (U.P.)—More than 12,000 acres of McCulloch county farm lands have been terraced or contoured, the past seven years the program having been sponsored by J. D. Prewitt, county farm agent. Most of the terracing was done with county road machinery at an average cost of 75¢ per acre.

Leon Browning of the Pear Valley community, 15 miles northwest of Brady, who has been terraced or contoured his farm in 1929 demonstrated the value of saving the top soil for crop production. One wash several hundred feet long and so deep in places farm machinery could not cross today, hardly can be found even though rains have varied from showers to six inches during the past five years.

The McCulloch county farmer stated this year his upland terraced field yielded more cotton than the low flat land not terraced. In 1930, during the drought, one spring rain held in the large made one of the largest maize crops per acre in the county. Browning made more cotton on his farm in 1934 and 1935 than his allotment of exemption certificates, while both were considered dry years for that section of the county.

BIG SPRING, Feb. 27. (Sp.)—Sheriff Jess Slaughter of Howard county will go to Mangum, Okla., today to aid officers in efforts to identify a 30-year-old man whose bullet-riddled body was found beneath a bundle of feed beside a railroad track south of Mangum.

A search for a clue to the identity of the slayer turned to Howard county when Sheriff E. N. Glabau of Mangum asked officers at Big Spring to arrest a man whose name was scrawled on a piece of paper in a bloody coat found at Altus, January 22.

Panhandle Counties Wage War on Rabbits

DALLAM. (U.P.)—Wheat prospects being the brightest in several years, north Panhandle farmers are taking steps to prevent jackrabbits destroying their crops.

DALLAM, Hartley, Moore and Sherman counties have started campaigns to eradicate the pests.

Dallam county will distribute one ton of poisoned grain to farmers based on the amount of land and the degree of infestation by rabbits. The county also has posted $100 for bounties, one cent to be paid for each of the 10,000 pairs of rabbit ears brought to the county agent's office by Dallam county residents. The bounty offer did not restrict the means by which the rabbits may be killed.

AN ECHO IN THE VALLEY

Gas Bootlegging Ring Uncovered In 6 Southern States

One of the most spectacular gasoline bootlegging rings uncovered in recent years, centering in Tennessee, but also believed to be operating in five other southern states with high gasoline tax rates, Kentucky, Texas, Louisiana, Oklahoma, and Arkansas, is under investigation by Tennessee's state authorities.

Since the investigation started the State Supervisor of the Gasoline Tax has committed suicide, one of the firms allegedly involved in the "racket" has gone into bankruptcy, and Governor McAlister has ordered a sweeping investigation of the entire scandal.

"We are going to the bottom of the scheme, regardless of the consequences," the Governor declared, in ordering the investigation. "We will not hesitate at seeking indictments against anyone implicated in the conspiracy to defraud the state, including members of the Tennessee Petroleum Industries Committee, are cooperating with state authorities in their efforts to eliminate evasion."

Under the direction of Dancy Fort, Commissioner of Finance and Taxation, investigators discovered that gasoline was regularly being shipped into the state by railroad tank cars from Shreveport, Louisiana, and from Gladewater and Overton, Texas, mislabeled as kerosene, on which there is no tax, in this way avoiding the state's 7c per gallon gasoline levy.

Mortgage Loans by FHLB on Increase

No less than 55 per cent of the estimated $220,000,000 total mortgage loans made in 1935, for the building of new urban one-to-four-family homes by all classes of private financial institutions in the United States was made by member institutions of the Federal Home Loan Bank System, according to an analysis made public today by the board.

Loans made last year by these member associations for new homes aggregated about $121,000,000. The Home Loan Bank System, established late in 1932, now has 3,495 members, chiefly savings and building and loan associations. The large extent of their new financing in 1935 indicates the important part which these local, private thrift institutions are taking in the general recovery of small-home construction, through their new home-financing activities.

Including refinancing loans, the 1935 total of loans made by all members of the Home Loan Banks is estimated at $347,000,000, or 44 per cent of the estimated $776,000,000 total of home mortgages placed last year by all private institutions, including commercial and savings banks and life insurance companies. Approximately $110,000,000 was loaned on homes by 1935 by individual lenders, it is believed.

Of the $347,000,000 of loans made in 1935 by members of the Bank System, $122,000,000 was advanced to home owners by the 1000 Federal savings and loan associations, now operating in 44 states under supervision of the Federal Home Loan Bank Board, exceeding by 22 per cent the loans made in that year by the 6000 associations of the building and loan type which are not members of the Home Loan Bank System.

Loans by the Home Owners' Loan Corporation, wholly distinct from the Bank System, but also under supervision of the Federal Home Loan Bank Board, and restricted to refinancing existing mortgages, aggregated $816,000,000 during 1935.

LET KIDNEYS FLUSH OUT 3 LBS. A DAY
Clean Out 15 Miles of Kidney Tubes
Nature put over 15 miles of tiny tubes and filters in your kidneys to strain the waste matter out of the blood. Kidneys should pass 3 pints a day and so get rid of more than 3 pounds of waste matter.

When the passing of water is scanty, with smarting and burning, the 15 miles of kidney tubes may need flushing out. This danger signal may be the beginning of nagging backache, leg pains, loss of pep and energy, getting up nights, swelling, puffiness under the eyes and dizziness.

If kidneys don't empty 3 pints a day and so get rid of more than 3 pounds of waste matter, your body may take up some of these poisons causing serious trouble. Don't wait! Ask your druggist for Doan's Pills, which have been used successfully by millions of people for over 40 years. They give happy relief and help the kidneys to flush out 3 pounds a day. Insist on Doan's Pills.

Goliad Planning a Commemoration Day

GOLIAD. (U.P.)—A full day's program, including an address by Gov. James V. Allred and an out-door mass, will commemorate the Centennial here March 27, of the massacre of Pannin's men.

The mass, under the direction of Rev. H. F. Palmer, will be celebrated in the open at the two-century-old Mission La Bahia by the Most Rev. E. B. Ledvian, bishop of Corpus Christi. Eight bishops, ten missionaries, about 100 priests, a company of soldiers and two bands will be present. The service, lasting about two hours, will close with a sermon by Most Rev. Joseph Lynch, bishop of Dallas.

Gov. Allred will speak at 4 p. m. after the parade of floats entered from Goliad, San Antonio and surrounding cities and towns. A chorus of hundreds of school children from all parts of South Texas led by Miss Nell Parmlley, assistant state superintendent of public instruction in charge of music, will sing a number of songs.

The celebration will end with a night pageant by the school children of Goliad county. It will present the history of Goliad from the arrival of Cabeza de Vaca in 1535 to the present.
