A MOTHER'S DAY EDITORIAL

"While we are indulging in public and private recognition of Mother's Day, it would be well if we refreshed our memories with certain important facts having to do with thousands of mothers and children in this country," says Clara Savage Littledale, editor of a popular magazine for parents.

"Childbirth is the second most important cause of death among women between the age of twenty-five and forty-five in the United States.

"More than 15,000 mothers die every year in this country in childbirth.

"More than 85,000 babies die each year in this country on the day they are born.

"Among twenty-two nations the maternity death rate in the United States stands highest."

Some of those who read these facts will console themselves with the fact that such figures do not apply to Midland and other small towns, but only to the big cities where there are slums and very bad economic conditions.

Most of these deaths could have been prevented by adequate maternity care, but unless the family knows the need for securing such care they will not consider it worth the time and expense of asking for it.

It is in this work of educating the public on the need for adequate maternal care that the state department of health with its public health staff is going to spend a large part of the $200,000 received from the federal government for carrying out the National Social Security Act.

BEHIND THE SCENES

-IN-

WASHINGTON

By RODNEY DUTCHER

Reporter-Telegram Washington Correspondent

WASHINGTON, May 9—Some heed finally has been paid to frequent complaints that it has become relatively unsafe to go to sea or up in the air under the administration of shipping and aviation by Secretary of Commerce Dan Roper.

Legislation providing for 17 new supervising inspectors and traveling inspectors for the bureau of navigation and steamship inspection has been so revamped that these officials will be under civil service.

They will have to pass examinations to show that they're qualified.

The commerce department had insisted that the jobs be exempted from civil service. The only apparent reason for that was that the salaries involved ran up to $5,000 and $6,000, which comes into the class of desirable political patronage. Without the protection of civil service, it would have been easy later to fire any of the 17 officials in case they became "too severe" in enforcing safety regulations.

One of the latest New Deal stories, passed around during the recent meeting of the U. S. Chamber of Commerce, was about a young fellow who was ribbing his father, a dyed-in-the-wool democrat.

"Have you heard the way those fools in Washington have decided to spend money now?" he asked. "They're going to paint the Grand Canyon!"

Fervently came the reply: "By gawd, it needs it!"

Some of its members described lifeboats with holes in them; fire and lifeboat drills held for the benefit of inspectors, with members of the "shore gang" participating instead of the crew which would take the ship to sea; departing ships so undermanned that there weren't enough able-bodied seamen to handle all lifeboats in case of disasters; and operation of ships by alien and inexperienced crews.

This was part of their answer to

Error in Time Is Made Smaller by New Clock

SYDNEY, N. S. (UP)—Father W. O'Leary, director of the Riverview Jesuit college observatory, has completed an astronomical clock which, according to experts, is nearer perfection in time-keeping than any other yet invented.

With the discovery of a score of new stars already to his credit, Father O'Leary spent 11 years on research work for the new clock and another year on its construction.

The new principle of absolutely free pendulum movement which he has adopted is believed to be an improvement on that employed by Short, whose clock is in standard use in the world's leading observatories.

Electrically driven, the new clock will not need the slightest regulation and, according to Father O'Leary, one day not even touch it. It is so sensitive that an earth movement two or three thousand miles away will cause slight variation in its accuracy.

Child Portrait Believed To Be Work of Da Vinci

LYONS (UP)—A portrait of a red haired child, recently discovered in a private collection here, is believed by experts to be a painting by Leonardo da Vinci. There is no signature on the painting, which obviously dates back to the 15th or 16th century but it is known that the great Italian painter used to mark his paintings by tucking his initials away in some obscure portion of the canvas.

To prove authenticity of the painting, it will be subjected to various experiments in micro-photography. Dr. J. Locard, head of the laboratory of the Lyons police department, which is equipped to make micro-photographs, has been engaged in this sort of detective work in regard to crime and counterfeiting. This time, however, he will use his apparatus to detect the presence of the two microscopic letters, L. V., which will give practical proof that da Vinci was the original artist.

Of course, there are those who prefer to station themselves with backs to the wall, placing heels and soles to the wall (thereby blackening same) and reading their mail in more comfortable position. Although they do not take up so much room which is needed by other mail-goers, they detract from the appearance of the postoffice wall.

Perhaps the new federal building architects may be able to inculcate (wasn't that a good one) some means of curbing both type of post office pests. I've done what I can.

A teacher with a record of long years of service in the grade schools was driving her car when the traffic cop raised his arm in a vain attempt to halt her progress. By means of repeated blasts on his whistle he finally halted her a half block from the scene of her misdemeanor.

"I ought to," she answered, "I've taught school long enough."

The plates were made by the Southwestern Engraving Company, and the printing is being done by the Hill Printing Company of Waco.

CONVICT LABOR CAUSE OF ISSUE IN STATE RACES

A new issue in state politics is seen by W. H. (Bill) McDonald of Eastland county, candidate for state land commissioner—the question of whether gangs of convicts shall be sent into numerous West Texas counties to drill for oil on state lands.

McDonald visited Midland late Friday.

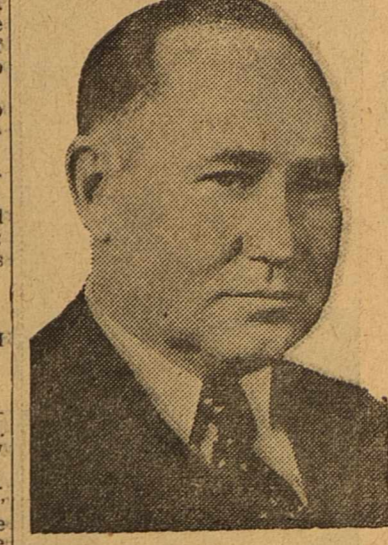

"I am emphatically opposed to such a course," McDonald declared Friday afternoon here. "The policy would throw many oil field workers out of jobs and there are many already who are employed. They are law-abiding citizens and taxpayers, and they have wives and children dependent upon them."

Not only does the matter bid fair to be an issue in the contest for state land commissioner but in legislative races as well—in fact several candidates already have expressed opposition to such use of convict labor.

"I would not be surprised to see the various aspirants for governor discuss the question before the campaign is very old," he said.

On a whirlwind campaign through much of West Texas the Walls May Hold Secrets But The Doors Sure Can't

Have you noticed the new doors on the J. V. Pliska blacksmith shop? There's a story back of them.

Prophets, they say, are not without honor save in their own countries. This abundantly-proved theory apparently works for inanimate objects, too.

Who, for instance, in Midland ever paid tribute to the doors of Pliska's blacksmith shop? Nobody, probably except school boys who puzzled over the numerous cattle brands burned upon them during their 30 years of sojourn here.

Came the Centennial, as the dramatists would say, and with it fame for the sturdy doors.

J. Everts Haley, thought of them. Now when Haley, who is a former Midland boy, thinks of something concerned with the cow country there are generally results. There were in this instance.

He wrote back to Midland and asked that the old doors which he had viewed during boyhood be sent to him as an exhibit for the Centennial display in the University of Texas museum of which he is director.

So after some conversation on the part of his mother, Mrs. John A. Haley, who received the request, new doors were installed at the Pliska shop and the old ones set out on a trek for the University at Austin. Just another door to learning!

Soviet Orders Purge To End Sale of Land

MOSCOW (U.P.)—The Soviet government has begun a nationwide drive against peasants, kulaks and merchants accused of buying, selling or leasing land.

The second congress of Soviets, Nov. 8, 1917, on the second day of the October revolution decreed the nationalization of land throughout Russia. A second decree on socialization of land was issued Feb. 19, 1918, to "put an end to the sale of land and give all land to labor communities."

A year ago, by resolution, the government gave the land of each kolkhoz (collective farm) to the farms in permanent possession. It is apparently this order which has been most abused.

Peasants Sell Land

Such violations of the nationalization laws occurred simultaneously in several parts of the U. S. S. R. Thus in the western region, Izotov Feodor, a peasant, sold his house with 70 of an acre of land for $900, registering the deal at the village Soviet. Another peasant, Ovsianikov Alexei, sold 90 of an acre, with buildings, for $80, also with approval of the local authorities.

Andrei Vishinsky, prosecutor of the U. S. S. R., ordered all prosecuting organizations to bring all violators to trial and to cancel all deals which have been closed. There followed immediately at Belashov, Saratov region, trial of seven alleged offenders in the Saratov district court.

Most prominent of the defendants was Feodor Burminov, president of a collective farm.

Sale Money Converted

He received a sentence of two years in prison, as did a co-conspirator, Michael Dobrinin, president of a revision commission of the same collective farm. They were convicted of systematically renting kolkhoz land and using the money for their own needs.

It was charged they rented the land to anyone who had the price—to kolkhoz peasants, individual peasants, kulaks, disfranchised persons, tradesmen and organizations of the neighboring town of Belashov.

The rate which they established was 50 kopeks a "sajen" (7 feet) for kolkhoz members; from 150 rubles to 3 rubles a sajen for individual peasants; and 4 rubles a sajen for village organizations. (A paper ruble is valued at 20 cents).

Addition of a few spoons of milk or a little butter will reclaim foods that are too salty.

The Friendliest Kind of Banking

—is that which sticks closest to sound banking principles.

SOUND banking protects depositors' money, safeguards stockholders' interests and encourages borrowing customers to enter upon only such undertakings as contain the elements of success. Each one of these considerations is the truest form of friendship a bank can offer.

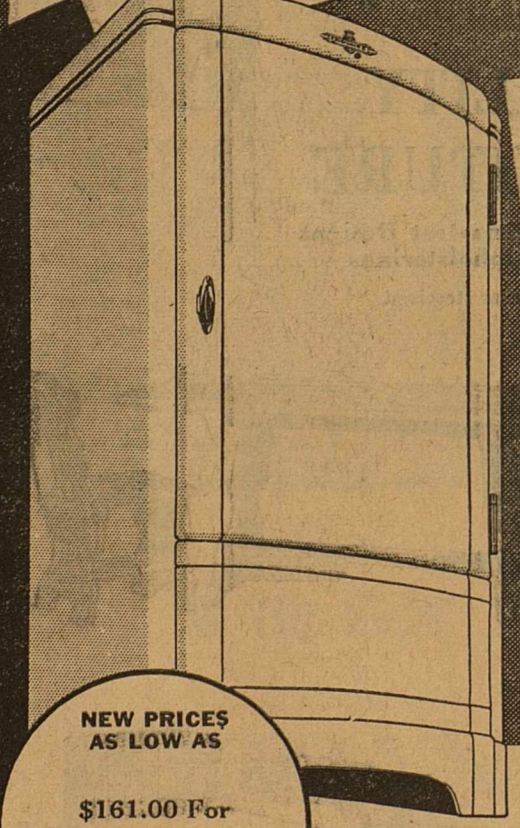

Sound banking principles permit only safe, profitable operations which return a fair yield on invested capital. They enable the bank to maintain an efficient organization and build up ample reserves and surplus to fortify the protection of depositors' money.

In our next advertisement we shall point out some practices which are not acts of true banking friendship, no matter how pleasantly and courteously performed.

What Has Gone Before: Martha and Karen, who run a private boarding school in New England, are both in love with Dr. Cardin. But he loves Karen and they are engaged to be married. Mrs. Mortar, Martha's aunt, puts a bad interpretation on an innocent scene between Dr. Cardin and Martha. The quarrel that ensues is overheard by the pupils. Mary Tilford, a vicious child who is bored with school, spreads and ugly rumor and terrorizes one of the other children to support her charges.

are they doing to us? We're being kicked around by crazy people!" Dr. Cardin straightened up. We've got a fight on our hands," he said. "And it's got to be the best fight we know how to make. Come on!" And together with him the two girls went to Mrs. Tilford's home to demand an explanation. Mrs. Tilford received them politely but coldly.

"I don't think you should come here, Miss Wright. I was going to see you tomorrow to explain my position in all this. I am deeply sorry that you had to be involved."

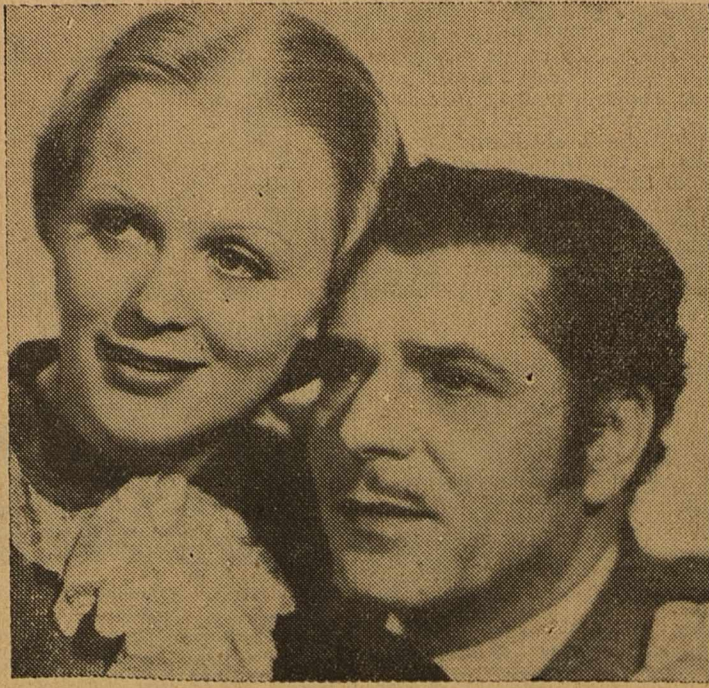

"I think we had better understand each other," Karen quietly. "There is nothing for us to explain"—she made a gesture that included the three of them—and I very much dislike your sympathy."

Dr. Cardin, too, was indignant. "What were we expected to do, Mrs. Tilford? Were we supposed to lie down and grin until you finished kicking us around with these lies?"

Mrs. Tilford refused to be moved either by their threats or entreaties. She believed the rumor and she had her duties toward innocent children. But Dr. Cardin persisted.

"When three people come to you with their lives spread on a table for you to cut to pieces, then the only honest thing to do is to give them one last chance to come out alive. We want that last change. If you are honest, you'll give it to us."

Flaming Drama From History

Torn from the arms of those he loved, hated by his countrymen, he suffers a living death in a burning island hell for a crime he had never committed. Starring WALTER BAXTER and featuring GLORIA STUART, 20th Century's "The Prisoner of Shark Island" tells the amazing true story of the most tragic figure in American history. It is now showing for two days at the Ritz Theatre.

Mrs. Tilford pursed her lips, but then nodded. "Very well," she said slowly, and ordered Mary brought into the room. Mary faced the cross examination boldly at first, answering the questions in a sweet clear and innocent voice that drew poor Martha almost insane.

But as Dr. Cardin persisted in his questioning certain discrepancies appeared in her stories. Mary was unable to explain definitely some of the vague hints that had worked so well with her grandmother. And once she was tripped up badly. Pressed closely for the truth, she was forced to say that she had seen certain things peering through a keyhole, the keyhole to Martha's room.

Martha rose to her feet. "There is no keyhole in my room!" she said.

Mary tried to remedy her error. "It wasn't her room. It was the other room, I guess. She was out and . . ."

And how did you know anybody was in Miss Wright's room," Cardin demanded.

"Cause we heard you. I heard you and . . ."

"My room is on the first floor at the other end of the house," Karen explained to Mrs. Tilford. "It's impossible for anybody to hear anything from there."

Cardin turned to leave. "We are finished here," he said. "We can go home now." But Mrs. Tilford stopped him.

"Please," she begged. "Wait a minute." And she turned angrily to Mary.

"Stop that crying. I want the truth!"

Mary, at bay, became a dangerous person. "All right," she said and her face was bright and earnest once more. "It was Rosalie who saw them. I just said it was me so I wouldn't have to tattle on Rosalie. You just ask Rosalie. She said it was when the door was open and she told us all about it."

They all stared at Mary. But Mrs. Tilford crossed the room and called Rosalie.

"Mrs. Tilford," Karen said softly. "You deserve whatever you get."

"I don't know," said Mrs. Tilford brokenly, "maybe it's what I do deserve."

Rosalie proved a reluctant witness. She had seen nothing, she had never said she had seen anything. And when she was about to explain the whole thing, Mary cut in abruptly.

"You're trying to get out of it. I remember the day Helen Burton's bracelet was stolen and nobody knew who had it and Helen said if her mother found out she'd have the thief put in jail."

Rosalie's manner changed suddenly and fearfully at Mary like a small wild animal hypnotized by a cobra. Mary moved quickly to her grandmother.

"Grandma," she said. "There's something I've got to tell you about that bracelet that . . ."

Rosalie threw herself on the couch with a shrill cry and began to weep hysterically. "Yes, yes, I did see it. I told Mary. What Mary told was right. I said it. I said it!"

Mary patted down her dress with smug satisfaction. Martha was stupefied. Karen moved towards Cardin and stood holding his arm very tightly. Mrs. Tilford viewed them all gravely regretfully justified.

It was the day of the slander suit brought by Karen and Martha against Mrs. Tilford. The jury composed of solid New England citizens had just brought in its verdict. The judge leaned forward and spoke in gold measured terms. "I cannot, but agree," he said, "with the verdict that the jury has brought in and to add here a few words of my own. I feel strongly that this case should never have been brought into court. At best, slander cases are slim and dangerous. But in this instance, it has been shameless to witness a spectacle of two innocent children, dragged day after day, through a story that they should never have known at all. Slander suit against Amelia Tilford brought by Joseph Cardin, Karen Wright, Martha Dobie is dismissed. Plaintiffs to pay costs!"

Interpretation of Old Tale Features The Story Hour

"Little Red Riding Hood" as told in story and interpreted in music was a feature of the story hour in the children's library at the courthouse Saturday morning.

Lillie Jean Vaughan told the story which has become a classic of childhood, universally beloved.

Betty Jo Greene then played a series of attractive and novel musical numbers interpreting the chief characters of the story. The first was descriptive of Little Red Riding Hood herself tripping through the woods to visit her grandmother.

The second portrayed the sweet old lady. The big bad wolf growled his way through the third piece. The fourth selection pictured the wood cutter at their work and then their rescue of the little girl and grandmother and the happy ending.

Jimmie Jo Purzer also told a story. Mrs. J. R. Ashley, who was in charge of the hour, included among her stories a child's version of Shakespeare's "Romeo and Juliet."

Watch the Poundage When Buying Food For Family Group

By MARY E. DAGUE
NEA Service Staff Writer

The custom of selling fruits and vegetables by the pound is becoming nation-wide. For some time the Western states have found this method of marketing to be most practical.

The weight of many fruits and vegetables is an aid in determining the quality of the commodity, too. Small heads of lettuce or cabbage are heavy if solid and firm through the center. Heavy oranges and grapefruit are sure to be juicy. Fresh products are heavier than wilted ones. Also fewer large apples and potatoes fit into a measure than small ones, often making half a bushel of potatoes weigh less than its prescribed number of pounds.

The following list will help you in calculating the amounts needed when buying the pound:

One pound of asparagus will serve three persons.

One pound of green beans (about one quart) will serve four persons generously and can be made into six average servings.

One pound of shelled lima beans (less than a quart), four persons. A medium sized head of solid cabbage weighs about three pounds and serves six or seven persons.

One pound brussels sprouts, six persons.

One pound broccoli, four persons. One medium sized, well trimmed head of cauliflower weighs about one and one-half pounds and will serve four persons.

Four rather small tomatoes weigh one pound and will serve four persons.

One pound of fresh spinach should serve three persons but if the stems are heavy two pounds may be needed.

One pound of peas in the pod (about one quart) yields about one cup, shelled—if the pods are well

Covers Are Laid for Twenty-Eight Women At Gulf Luncheon

Twenty-eight women attended the Gulf luncheon at the Country club Friday, a weekly event sponsored by the Women's Golf association.

Mrs. Russell Barbour and Mrs. Walter Henderson were hostesses. Cornflowers and bachelor buttons were the old-fashioned favorites used in decorations for the two long tables at which the meal was served.

Mrs. E. W. Anguish and Mrs. Kelly were new members present. Mrs. Jas. S. Maxwell Jr. had as her guest, Mrs. Rankin.

Covers were laid for: Mmes: Anguish, Kelly, D. J. Finley, D. S. Googins, R. W. Hamilton, Harvey Hardison, W. B. Harkrider, D. C. Hemsell, Frank Johnson, Paul Oles, E. H. Ellison, Paul Osborne, O. C. Harper, J. M. Armstrong, M. D. Self, W. R. Bowden, J. W. Rettig, Maxwell Rankin, Steve Hazlip, Walter Sealey, and the hostesses.

Mrs. Walter Sealey and Mrs. Paul Osborne will be the hosts for the luncheon on Friday of the week.

filled. Allow two pounds for four persons.

Mushrooms and Potatoes
One pound of mushrooms will serve six persons if the mushrooms are served on toast.

Three or four potatoes of average size weigh one pound.

One peck of potatoes weighs 15 pounds.

If asparagus and beets and broccoli and rhubarb are bunched for marketing, it's an easy matter to have the market man weigh the bunches. Then you can reckon quite accurately just how much you should be provided. The method of cooking and serving has much to do with the amount purchased, too. Creamed vegetables go further than plain buttered ones and fruits put into puddings will make more servings than the fruit as is.

AT THE GRAVE OF AN OLD MAN AND HIS WIFE

By Helen Welshimer

Now side by side they rest in that good earth
Which knew their labors when they walked this way.
They feel the rich turn of the year give birth
To planted things . . . they sense the autumn day
When soil, too thin for any flowering,
Surrenders to the season's rhythmic sweep,
As they have done; in peace they wait for spring.
Heart close to heart, contentedly they sleep.

NOR do they mind if skies are overcast,
Or if the sun shines brightly on the land.
It is enough to prove that love will last,
Though 'tis deprived of eye and lip and hand—
Nor shall I fear death's solitude, my dear,
If I but know that you are sleeping near.

FEMINE FANCIES

BY KATHLEEN EILAND

Notes on the Legion convention: No. 1—The queer smothering catch at one's emotions when a band plays the old loved tunes of the World War—"Till We Meet Again" and "Over There."

Note No. 2—A Midland veteran watches from his place on the mezzanine a band of youngsters in the lobby of the Hotel Scharbauer playing war tunes. His face, that is usually youthful and smiling has suddenly aged years.

Note No. 3—The lure of uniforms. We look with scorn upon that unfortunate tendency of women to be fascinated by a uniform—any kind, but Khaki preferred—.

Note No. 4—The effectiveness of white as convention attire for women. Most people would condemn it as being impractical and perhaps it is. Nevertheless, we have yet to see a costume at a convention which is as effective for a woman as an all-white suit relieved with touches of color.

Rains fall only once in about 30 years on long stretches along the coast of Chile.

Auxiliary Leader Combines Femininity With Business Air

Feminine in dress and appearance but business-like in ideas—that is the impression one receives after a few minutes spent in conversation with Mrs. Edith Hopson of Alpine district committeewoman of the Legion Auxiliary, meeting here in joint session with the sixteenth district American Legion.

"We're having a meeting to organize this afternoon," she says matter-of-factly to a reporter in discussing Auxiliary plans only a few hours after her arrival. Some three hours later the same reporter is informed by telephone that the organization meeting is in progress.

The Auxiliary is a working organization, Mrs. Hopson has stressed in a former visit to Midland. This month she said in an interview Saturday, is community service month and also on May 23, the Auxiliary is to sponsor its annual poppy sale. These blossoms are made by disabled veterans and are sold at varying prices.

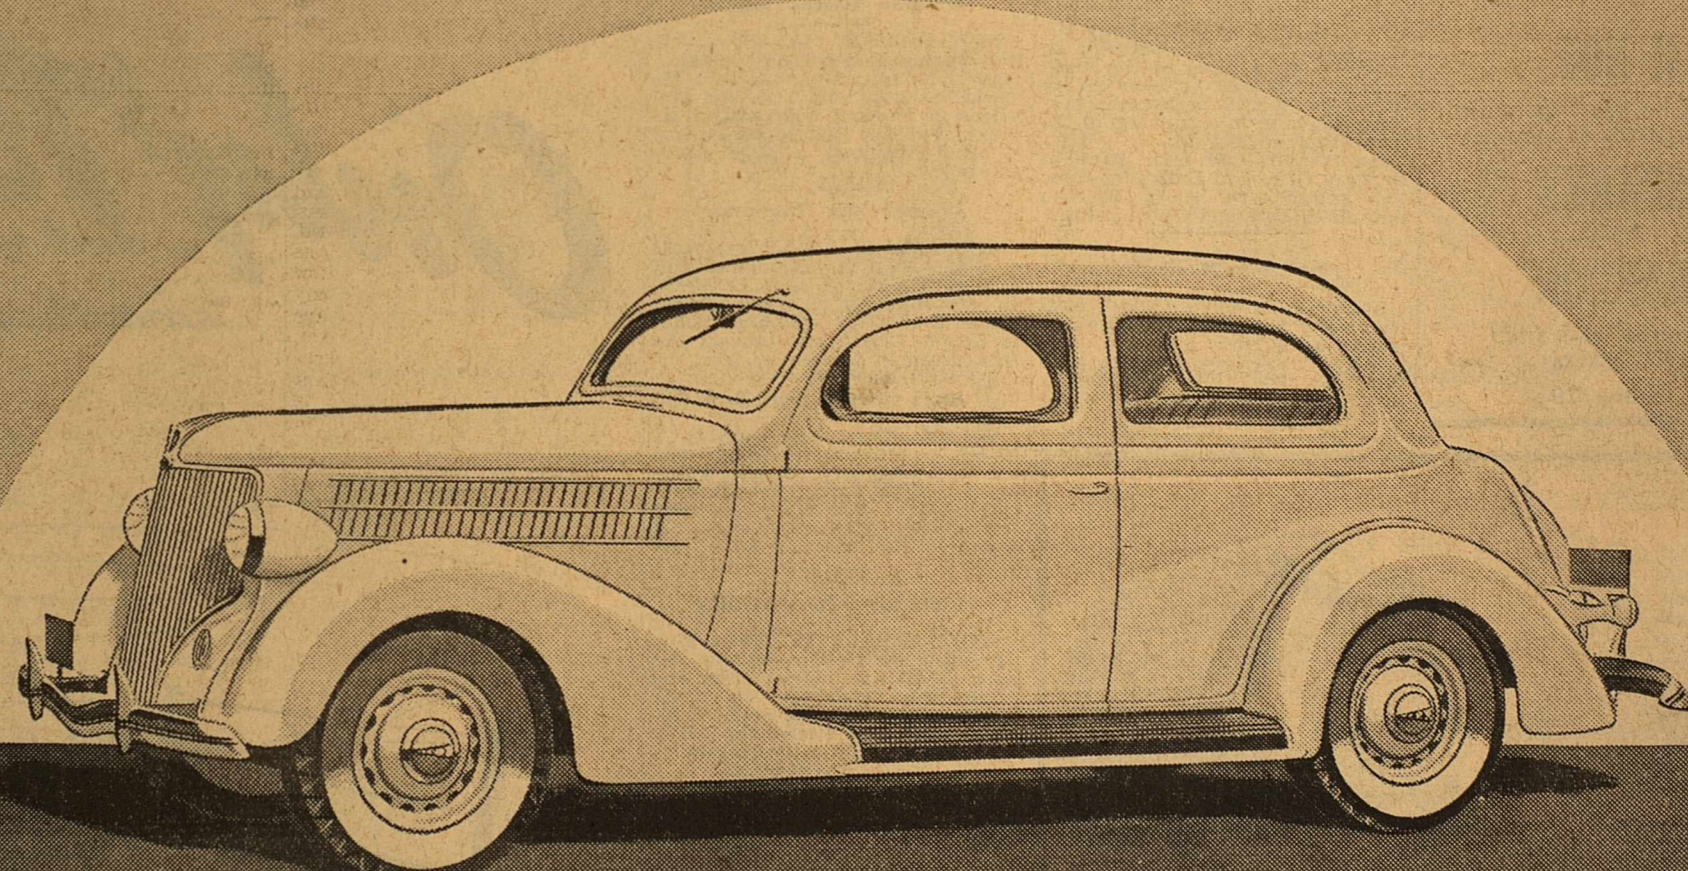

The general session of the Sixteenth district at 10:15 o'clock this morning and the business session at 2 o'clock, this afternoon are open to the public, she said and anyone interested is invited to attend them.

Auxiliary members had registered from Alpine, Crane, Fort Stockton, Traan and Odessa as well as Midland, by mid-afternoon Saturday with others expected to arrive later.

The class will meet with Mrs. Herbert King at her home a mile west of the hatchery Friday afternoon at 3:30 o'clock.

Members present were Mmes. H. H. Nicholson, Jimmie Gee, Herbert

Ford - FOR ECONOMY

MORE MILES PER GALLON IS GOOD . . . MORE MILES PER DOLLAR IS BETTER

ENTHUSIASTIC sales talk often begins and ends with gasoline mileage. Some salesmen would like you to believe it is the whole story of automobile economy. But drivers ought to know better.

The big items of car economy are low first cost, low up-keep cost, and low depreciation. Savings here can make a great deal of difference in cost per mile.

Gasoline mileage is more of a talking point than an economy factor.

Here are the big items that make the Ford an economical car:

- More value for every dollar you pay.
- Lower cost for repairs and service.
- Long life. Slow depreciation.
- The up-keep cost of today's Ford V-8 is the lowest of any Ford ever built.
- Quality means economy and the 1936 Ford V-8 gives you more real quality than any other low-price car. Made to closer precision limits and of better materials, there is no waste anywhere. Many dollars are saved by Ford production methods and low-profit policy. Those savings are put back into the car.

You pay a thousand dollars more for any other car with the power and performance of a V-8 cylinder engine. No other low-price car gives you modern Center-Poise Riding, safe, sure, dependable mechanical brakes with 186 square inches of braking surface and Safety Glass all around at no extra cost.

SCIMITAR, FAMED THOROUGHBRED NOW STABLED AT DOWNS

APPROXIMATELY 25 HORSES NOW IN TRAINING FOR OPENING DAY OF RACES: MAY 22

Record-Breaking Number Will Be Entered In $1,000 Added Merchants Day Handicap To Be Run May 30

Four years ago a big, brownish bay horse ran third in the internationally famous Phar Lap in the $100,000 mile-and-a-quarter Santa Anita Handicap. Today he is stabled at Midland Downs and will sit his aging speed against any or all of the 250 thoroughbreds here for the spring meet, May 22-30.

The horse is Scimitar, now twelve years old, showing the results of much knocking about, but a tower of strength withal. Owned by the Gulf Coast Stables, he is here in charge of his owners and trainers, F. C. Briggs and Bill Shelov.

Also in the stable is a black mare, Betty Wee, 5, to be nominated in the $1,000 added Merchants Handicap to be run May 30 for one mile. A third race horse for the stable is Winged Wind, 6-year-old gelding which set the track record for a mile-and-an-eighth at Kansas City with time of 1:52 1-5, the record still standing.

The three horses were raced recently at Rusk and prior to that at Houston and San Antonio. Scimitar is sired by Hourless, out of Bayonette she by Darwood. Betty Wee is by Crusader, out of Dorothy Kendle, by Wildair. Winged Wind is by Emissary, out of Dial, by Zeus.

Three well bred horses from Goldthwaite were stabled at Midland Downs late in the week, racing under the colors of their owner-trainer, Millard Cockrum. Gold Rose, a 5-year old bay mare, has been

The Sports Horn

By Jess Rodgers

"The Sport of Kings!"... Where did that appellation come from? ... Maybe a king could follow the ponies and wager on the outcome of the various and sundry races, but no one else could... What a crowd of kings the ordinary race crowd is... Baying tips, selling tips, showing, pushing, crying, laughing and otherwise conducting themselves as no ruler ever did... Withal, there is a fascination about watching them, with or without having anything bet on them, that is not equalled by any other sport... There is probably more money bet on races each day than all other things combined... Money is wagered each day on horses running hundreds of miles away... Horses that the bettors have never seen, and in all probabilities, will never see... Jockeys and trainers are in a class to themselves... To stand around and watch them pet and talk baby talk to a horse makes one wonder just what kind of a breed they really are... To most persons a horse is a horse, but to a jockey or trainer they are their "children." They will sleep with them or even go hungry for them... It is hard to find a bunch of men anywhere else in the world that give as much time and devotion to animals as they do... They have the name of being hard drinking, hard fighting, and generally on a lower social stratum, but they will treat a horse better than many of their critics treat children... They are prouder when "their" horse wins a race than a father is of a new-born son... Perhaps it is right that they have their own circle that no outsider can ever crash, for no one could ever understand them... It is something born into them.

ODESSA TO PLAY COAHOMA TODAY

The Odessa Oilers will play the Coahoma club in the Handicap, in Odessa at three o'clock this afternoon. Hambright, one-armed left hand pitcher will be on the mound for Odessa, but the Coahoma batsmen are unknown.

The Coahoma club holds a victory over the strong Big Spring club, winners of five of the seven games they have played this season.

The Odessa team has shown improvement with each successive game. They lost their last start better than many of their critics would expect. They were defeated by the Crane Permian Basin League entry one to nothing, twice failing to score when they got men on third base.

NUMBER MIDLAND GEOLOGISTS WILL MAKE FIELD TRIP THIS WEEK-END

A number of Midland geologists are among those making the field trip this week-end in the Marathon uplift. For the benefit of those laymen who might be unfamiliar with the area being studied and the procedure of a fieldtrip, a paper on the region by Philip B. King, of the United States Geological Survey is reprinted here as well as the road log prepared for the expedition.

GENERAL FEATURES OF PRE-CARBONIFEROUS PALEOZOIC FORMATIONS
By P. B. KING

The pre-carboniferous strata of the Marathon uplift, with an exposed thickness of about 2,500 feet, are brought to the surface in the Marathon and Dagger Flat anticlinoria, in the central part of the Marathon basin. The higher members of the succession also appear in anticlines of less height between the two anticlinoria, and south of them. The uplifted areas are surrounded by synclinalia of carboniferous sandstones and shales. All the strata are intensely deformed by late Pennsylvania orogeny, though they are only slightly metamorphosed.

Rocks of Upper Cambrian, Lower Middle, and Upper Ordovician, and probably Devonian age are present with the base of the Paleozoic not exposed. All the formations contain fossils in greater or less quantity, but collecting is nearly always difficult, as it entails the splitting of great quantities of slaty shales and thin-bedded limestones, which bear little or no surface indication of the presence of organic remains. The best fossils are obtainable in finely granular limestones, where there has been little compression of the fragile remains of the brachiopods, trilobites, and graptolites which they enclose.

The Marathon section is composed of relatively thick pods of shale, muddy limestone, and chert, with intercalated layers of conglomerate, boulder beds, and sandstone. The faunas are mostly of a specialized facies, with plentiful floating and attached graptolites, associated with linguloid and oboloid brachiopods, peronids, and trilobites. A very different contemporaneous facies is found 100 miles northwest, at Van Horn and El Paso, where the rocks are nearly all dolomitic limestones, which contain faunas characterized by orthoid brachiopods, copolopods, gastropods, corals and sponges. The differences between the two sections have, however, been emphasized at the expense of the resemblances, for several fossils and a few faunal groups are found in both regions, and there is no suggestion that the strata were deposited in separated basins. It is very probable that the more or less clastic pre-carboniferous strata at Marathon were formed on or near muddy shores, in agitated waters above the level of

New Idea Junks Hand-Crank Farm Telephones In The U.S.

ROCHESTER, N. Y. (U.P.)—The old hand-crank telephone on the farm house parlor wall—with its disturbing jangle of shorts and longs—is on the way out.

With a device perfected by William J. Vincent, rural subscribers are promised the same type service as urban users. Vincent's invention is a neon relay tube that eliminates the hand crank and the old code ringing system, under which every telephone on the party line jingled. Now, only the party wanted is summoned by the bell.

The tube is being installed on all rural lines served by the Rochester company. Officials predict it will be in general use throughout the country soon.

New peaks of performance, economy and distinction in the new Pontiac Eight

WHAT do you look for in an eight? THE GREATEST POSSIBLE SMOOTHNESS! What's behind the fame of the Pontiac Eight? It's a miracle of smoothness! Put these two facts together and you'll know what eight to buy. You'll pick a Pontiac. Because Pontiac's smoothness is built-in smoothness. Thanks to a big, short-stroke crankshaft with overlapping bearings—to the harmonic balancer, introduced by Pontiac—and to the super-precision balance of rotating parts, the Pontiac engine has no vibration point at any speed!

You'll have to go to twice as many cylinders to match that kind of performance! Just as you must climb the price scale to approach Pontiac's overall quality. Every Pontiac feature is the finest money can buy! Moreover, under official supervision, this big car averaged 22 miles per gallon! These facts will be enough for the motor-wise. If you want the greatest, smoothest eight you'll buy a Pontiac!

List prices at Pontiac, Mich., begin at $615 for the Six and $730 for the Eight (subject to change without notice). Safety glass standard on De Luxe Six and Eight. Standard group of accessories extra. Monthly payments to suit your purse on the General Motors Installment Plan. A General Motors Value.

Japan's Policy In North China Under Revision

PEIPING (UP).—North China, despite uncertainties of the future, is more tranquil now than Major-Gen. Kenji Doihara, chief of the special section of the Kwangtung Army, has returned to Japan.

Widely known as the "Lawrence of Manchuria," Doihara said as he departed that he would not be back for a "long time." His promise was reassuring. He generally is credited with engineering the flight of ex-Emperor Pu-II, last of the Manchus to rule in Peking, to Hsinking, where he now rules, in name at least, the new state of Manchukuo. Doihara has been promoted to the rank of Lieutenant-General and assumed a new post on the general staff in Tokyo.

Paradoxically, Doihara is the most bitterly hated and one of the best beloved men in North China. Patriotic factions such as the students have branded him as an arch-fiend whose sole motive is the destruction of China as a nation. Yet a high official has said that he "has more personal acquaintances in China than any living Chinese engaged in the most alert political activity."

Moves About Mysteriously.

His modest demeanor, engaging personality and vast knowledge of Chinese culture have beguiled many a Chinese official. But his mysterious comings and goings have ever presaged events of great political significance.

Doihara is vicariously credited with having arranged the payment of 200,000,000 yen to the corrupt and pro-Japanese Anfu Clique which ruled China in the early '20s; with rescuing its president by sending him from Peking to Tientsin in a laundry basket with implication in the murder of the late Manchurian warlord, Chang Tso-lin, whose train was bombed en route to Mukden in 1928; and with instigating and financing the revolt of Gens. Shih Yu-san and Yen Hzi-shan against Gen. Chiang Kai-shek in 1931.

After the occupation of Manchuria by the Kwangtung Army, Doihara wore the uncomfortable shoes of the mayor of Mukden. In November of the same year amid the confusion of riots instigated for the purpose, he is said to have spirited away the young emperor Pu Yi from his retirement in Tientsin to Mukden.

Tricked by Gen. Ma

Doihara's only flagrant failure is believed to have been his inability to comprehend the patriot,

Gen. Ma Chan-shan, who accepted 200,000,000 yen to ally himself with the Manchukuo authorities and to serve as minister of war, only to turn about face a few weeks later, reveal all the wily conspirator's confidences and actually engage in armed revolt, fighting until his last man was cut down and he escaped to Russia.

Of late Doihara's movements have been closely associated with the so-called autonomy movements in North China. Developments here bespeak milder methods than those employed in Manchukuo and Jehol. No shot has been fired and the gradual severance from the Nanking government has been conducted through what may best be described as local diplomatic channels.

Without specific authority to negotiate and in no official capacity, the general arrived in Tientsin early in November, 1935. Trading solely upon his personal reputation, as has since been revealed, he attempted to threaten and cajole North China authorities into establishing an autonomous government in the five northern provinces, Hopei, Chahar, Shantung, Suiyuan and Shansi.

But just as the negotiations were on the verge of completion, the Chinese learned that Doihara's capacity was unofficial—that single-handed he was attempting to lop off an empire as large as Germany and France combined—so they called his bluff. Filled in his major purpose, Doihara nevertheless has obtained virtual autonomy in Hopei and Chahar and complete autonomy of the Demilitarized Zone.

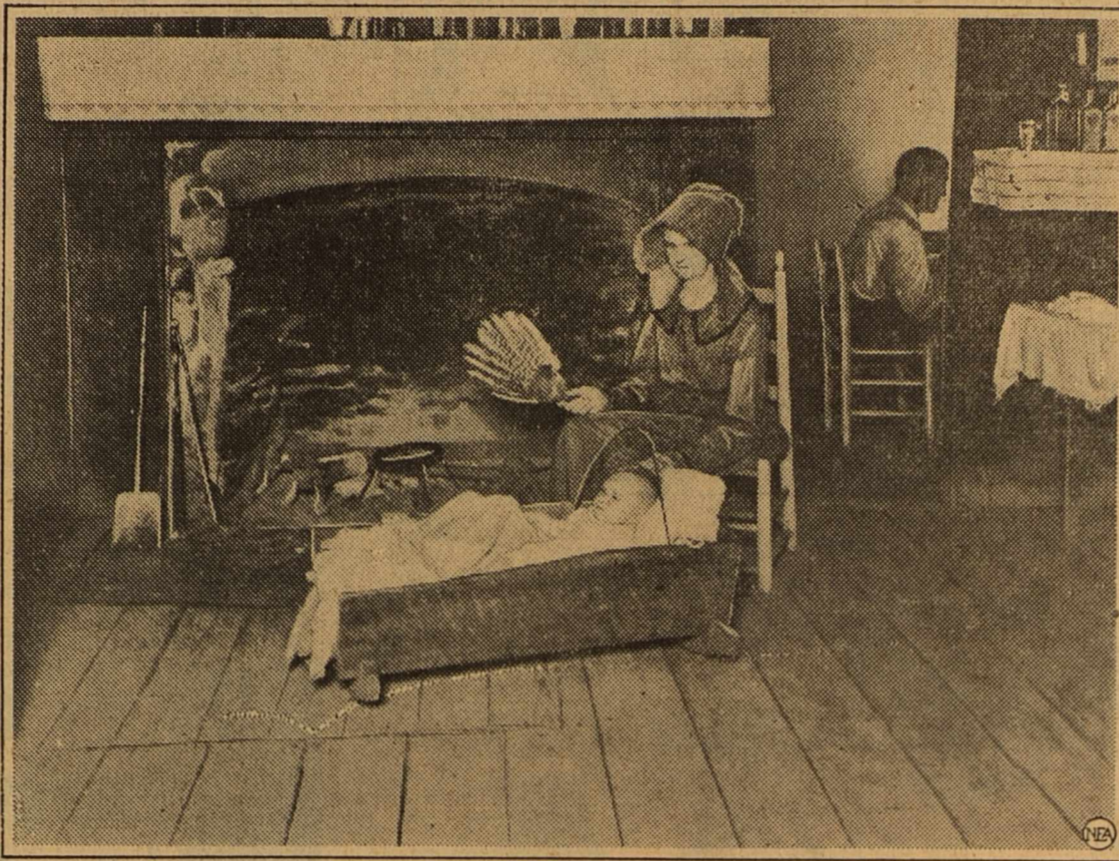

Successor in New Role

Whether the Japanese military feels that Doihara's great ability best will serve the Emperor Hirohito at work on some soil, or whether they believe that now a younger man with an even more stringent policy is needed in North China, remains to be seen.

At any rate, Major-Gen. T. Matsumuro, one time Foreign Advisor to the "Christian General" Feng Yu-hsiang during the heyday of the Kuomintang, has been named as Doihara's successor. However, the new officer will be attached to the Japanese Military Headquarters in North China, instead of the Kwangtung Army. His work will be concerned chiefly with political negotiations.

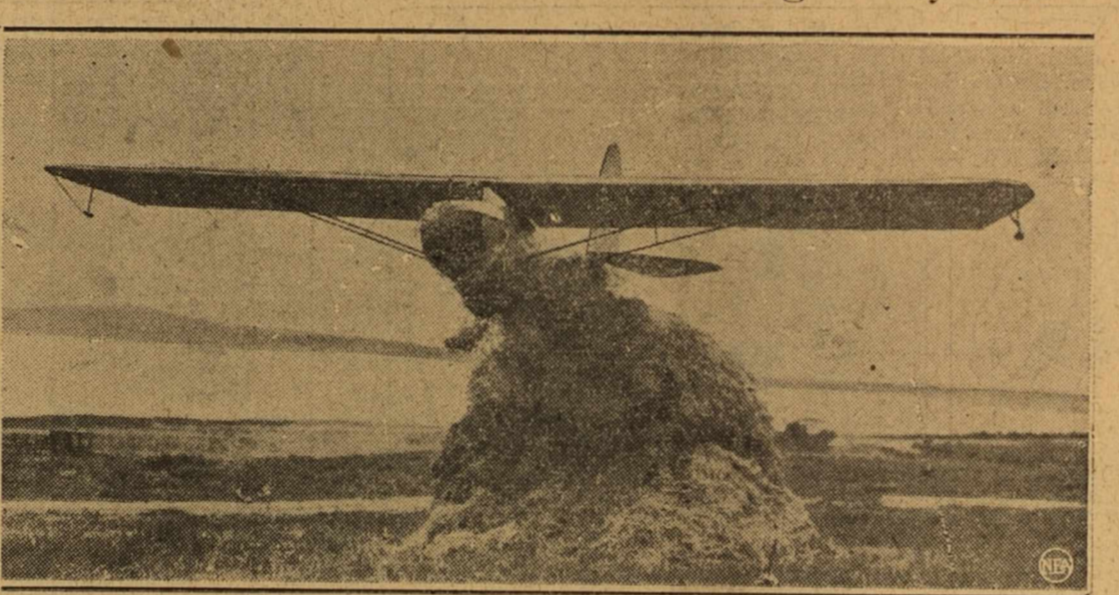

Significantly, the Kwangtung Army no longer will maintain the active participation in North China affairs after the forthcoming increase in the North China Garrison strength. Japanese officials reveal. Previously, no step was taken by the Japanese Army in China without first consulting the Kwangtung Army and virtually all the political machinations of Japan in this section were undertaken by Kwangtung officers.

A Primitive Nursery in Baby-Minded America!

In a dark, ill-ventilated cabin, this backwoods grandmother fans away flies from a baby, as she rocks his crude, wooden cradle. Not a phase of pioneer life, but a glimpse into a present-day home near Sheffield, Ala., this scene affords a striking contrast to the healthful environment and scientific care to which National Baby Week and Child Health Day are dedicated. Primitive homes such as this rapidly are being supplanted by modern ones, as the Tennessee Valley project develops.

"Hey, There! Look Out! You're Hitting a Haystack"

It looks like Don C. Stevens, noted glider pilot, was in an accident. But don't believe your eyes—he's only demonstrating the stability of his ship and testing his skill at spot landings in preparation for the National Glider Meet in Elmira, N. Y., in June. At 70-mile an hour speed, he clipped two feet off the haystack near Venice, Cal., and landed immediately.

gas. The No. 1 Kirk is in the southwest corner of section 22, block A-21, and is particularly interesting as it lies in territory halfway between the Means pool of northern Andrews County and the Walsir and Adams No. 1 Avenitt, gasser rated at 12,000,000 cubic feet, at Semi-proclaiming the empire.

The empire plans he sent to the recognized heads of every government in the world of which he could find record. To assure the delivery of the documents, Pedro said, they sent them by registered mail.

Saves Idea Accepted

The "emperor" thinks that the League of Nations has accepted some of his ideas. He cites international troops that were sent to the Sarré district as "in a certain manner inspired by my ideas." Pedro always is pleased to explain his plan for a world empire. The possible linguistic difficulties he solves by saying:

"It would be more sensible to adopt a universal language. That universal language of course, shall be Spanish."

Pedro the Pacifier hesitated a moment. "I choose this language because 20 nations in America now use it, and also because it is such a beautiful language."

The "emperor" exhibited a declaration that he will proclaim the first day of the new empire. It reads:

"In accord with my constitution of the world empire and other related documents, I declare the following: Article 1. Manifestations shall be formed in all countries at an hour to be fixed by their respective governments. The manifestations shall pass down the central streets. In the first line there shall be men carrying white flags and each manifestant shall carry in his hand a white handkerchief, symbol of peace. Signed in Madrid by Pedro the Pacifier, the only emperor of the world."

Plans Another Article

When it was pointed out to Pedro that the proclamation only contained one article, he stated that a second article was being prepared and would no doubt be ready in time.

The "emperor" also declared "the center of the world empire shall be in Spain somewhere between Madrid and Toledo. I have decided on this location for the capital by coordinated strategic and political lines drawn upon a map of the universe. I think the capital will be near Illescas in the province of Teruel."

Pedro indicated that he was now preparing a new series of documents to be sent to the heads of all nations.

"It seems to me they need my advice now," the pacifier declared. These new plans would be in the mails soon, he intimated.
