BEHIND THE SCENES IN WASHINGTON

By RODNEY DUTCHER Reporter-Telegram Washington Correspondent

WASHINGTON, Aug. 8.—One of the big laughs of the summer in Washington is the way the radical boys and girls in the new deal ranks have taken Mr. Roosevelt to their bosoms and proclaimed him as their hero and sole hope of salvation. What I mean is the rather large sprinkling of minor officials and rank and file employees making from $2,200 to $4,600 a year—and in some cases a little more—who were hired for the new agencies through their views were more socialistic than otherwise. They owed their jobs to friends higher up in the new deal who considered them relatively brilliant or able and took them in without regard to their politics. A year or two ago most of them were damning Roosevelt all over the place, accusing him in their private sessions of being a stooge for big business, of being a hypocrite masquerading as a true liberal, of taking the conservative path rather than the road to the left in all major pinches. Today the very same crowd is almost unanimously acclaiming that Roosevelt is the only alternative to stark reaction and early Fascism; that he is carrying the torch of progressivism with a vigorous stride; and that Governor Landon is a tool of Wall Street and Hearst. Their vicious verbal attacks have been transferred from one man to the other. They're Thinking of Jobs Most of this amusing conversation probably can be attributed to a desire to hold onto jobs. Federal employes outside civil service who once affected an air of non-partisan aloofness are practically as anxious about their future employment as those who landed on

Fate of Ohio Women's Wage Act Of Vital Import in Many States

Far-Reaching Effect To Follow Ruling Of 3 Judges

COLUMBUS, O., Aug. 8.—More than 1,000,000 women employed in industry, together with labor officials of 14 states, have their eyes on Ohio, where a federal three-judge statutory court is weighing its ruling on constitutionality of the Ohio minimum wage law for women. A woman is among the judicial trio. She is Judge Florence Allen of the Sixth district circuit court of appeals. The others are Mell G. Underwood and Robert R. Nelvin, federal district judges.

On the decision of these three jurists, who have heard evidence in two cases, may hang all efforts to protect women from wage exploitation by unscrupulous employers. Two months ago the U. S. Supreme Court knocked out a New York law regulating hours and wages of women in industry. The law was considered by many legal experts as the minimum wage act most likely to stand the steepest constitutional test. But it failed by a 5 to 4 vote. Ink on the majority opinion was hardly dry when the constitutionality of the Ohio act was challenged. Since it is virtually identical with the New York act, many believed a court order declaring it a dead letter would be a mere formality. NEW HOPE STIRRED More careful readings of the majority and minority opinions on the New York act, however, raised a new hope for the Ohio act—and with it hope for the minimum wage legislation of 14 other states. States besides Ohio and New York having minimum wage laws for women and vitally interested in the outcome of the Ohio constitutional test are California, Connecticut, Illinois, Massachusetts, New Hampshire, New Jersey, North Dakota, Oregon, Rhode Island, South Dakota, Utah, Washington and Wisconsin. Some legal authorities, among them Attorney General John W. Bricker of Ohio, point out that the U. S. Supreme Court, in passing on the New York act, was bound by a peculiar construction placed upon that law by the New York Court of Appeals. In view of that construction, it is argued, the Supreme Court was bound to hold that the New York law was no different than a District of Columbia law declared invalid in 1923. Meanwhile, in the hope that the highest court might be prevailed upon to make a broader ruling on the constitutional questions, or even reverse its decision in the District of Columbia case, New York officials have petitioned for rehearing. COURT MAY SIDESTEP The Supreme Court may temporarily sidestep the issue by refusing the rehearing when the petition is heard next October, on the ground that the New York case does not properly present the differences between the New York act and the old invalidated District of Columbia law, inasmuch as the highest court of New York state ruled that identical objectionable features were in both acts. Such a stand of the Supreme Court would delay a clear decision on the minimum wage question until a new case could be brought before it. The Ohio act will probably bring that decision. Promise that, if the statutory federal court declares the Ohio act invalid, the fight to preserve it will be carried to the U. S. Supreme Court is made by O. B. Chapman, director of the Department of Industrial Relations, charged with enforcement of the law. DOUBTFUL OF REVERSAL Further indication that the Ohio law will be the basis of a clear decision on minimum wage legislation is seen in the opinion of Henry Epstein, solicitor general of New York. Epstein, who argued the New York case before the U. S. Supreme Court believes that the tribunal will not change its views in that case, even if the rehearing is granted. Ohio's attorney general is confident that the Ohio act will favorably stand its court test, declaring it his "earnest belief that a minimum wage law which provides that the minimum wages shall bear a relationship to the value of the services rendered is constitutional." Ohio officials are continuing enforcement of their act. Thirteen other states, as well, are continuing enforcement of their minimum wage regulations—with one eye directed toward the Ohio cases and the other open for possible court actions in their own states. Only one state—Utah—has voluntarily abandoned its minimum wage act as a result of the decision in the New York case. BAY STATE REVISES ACT Massachusetts last month found itself with a law practically identical to the invalidated New York act. With the legislature in session, immediate steps were taken to revise the act in an effort to meet the objections of the Supreme Court. Whether the new law meets these objections still must be determined. Strong minimum wage laws, rigidly enforced, are considered the only effective weapons against sweat shop employers. Conditions such as were revealed by the labor department of Connecticut in Willimantic only a few weeks ago, of women paid $1, $1.25 $2 a week, exist in practically every state. Doubts as to whether Ohio could write a minimum wage law that would stand a constitutional test if the present one fails are expressed by Chapman. A similar opinion is expressed by the legal department of the state of California and T. A. Thompson, assistant attorney general of North Dakota, declares: "I have yet to hear any plan to write an act that in my opinion would pass the test under the constitution as it now stands." LAW DEFEAT FEARED Fear that minimum wage legislation cannot be upheld in Rhode Island expressed by L. Metcalfe Walling, director of that state's department of labor, because of the "very sweeping language of the majority opinion" in the New York case. Morgan R. Mooney, Connecticut deputy labor commissioner, believes that "at present it does not seem possible to write such a law to protect women in industry from wage exploitation as would overcome the objections expressed by the Supreme Court and be approved by the state legislature." Legal authorities of other states privately express similar misgivings. Enforcement officials of several states declare they will not force compliance upon unwilling employers, but will attempt to obtain voluntary co-operation of industry. While a favorable ruling on the Ohio act will point the way for other states desirous of protecting women in industry, an unfavorable ruling will not necessarily end legislation in this direction. Federal labor officials, under direction of Secretary Frances Perkins, are searching for a plan based on a theory differing from that on which the Ohio act is written.

The SPORTS HORN

BY JESS RODGERS
Johnny Smith, famous? Monahans sports scribe, has already started his annual ballyhoo of the Monahans club. It can be remembered in certain parts of the district that Smith proclaimed all kinds of great things for the Lobos last season. Unless we are wrong the only conference game they won was from the pet Buffaloes of Stanton.

According to Smith, the consensus of opinion of the majority of coaches and sports writers over this district gives coaches Thomas and Greer and the Lobos the inside track on the road to the coveted championship. Yeah? Well, Smith, a lot of people picked SMU to defeat Stanton.
We can already see that we will have to make Smith another wager this year on the outcome of the game. Last year Smith, with the aid of some remarkable jumbling, stumbling, falling playing by the Midland club, managed to win the bet. But Midland had to play their rottenest game of the year for him to cash in.
After Monahans Johnny fails to list the order in which the clubs will come, giving all of them credit for being tougher than last year. However, he does say that the Midland-Monahans game might decide the championship. Nuts. By that time Monahans will be so far out of the running that the game won't mean a darn thing.

Here is what he says of the Bulldogs. "Midland comes over for a 115 baking in the mid-afternoon sun (unless lights are installed here) on November 21. The Bulldogs are rated high (they were rated the same last year) and this year they have the best chance in history to cop the district cup. They have lettermen lots of material and a good coach in Dutch Baumgarten." And on November 21 he will find out that Midland is just as tough as they claim to be.
Our feud with Smith is like that of Winchell and Bernie. It allows each of us to mention ourselves. The truth of the matter is that we are very, very close friends. Right now the two of us are working on a "brain-child" that should prove a lot of help to all concerned this football season if we are able to get a little cooperation from other sports and from some school officials in the district.
But it is too darn early to be talking football. How about a little baseball?
It looks like the Cardinals and the Yankees in the World Series this year. The Cubs and Giants are still in the race and making it a hot one at that, but we believe that the Cardinals have so much more fight in them than the other two clubs that they will start building up a lead once they start getting the breaks. Any club that can hang on with in a couple of games of the top in the face of all the hard luck they have had should really step out when they are able to put their "first" team on the field.
At the start of the season we picked Cleveland and the Cards to meet in the series. At that time we didn't know that the Indians were going to fold up every time they faced a first division club. If they had some of the guts of the Cards they would be a dozen games in the lead instead of the Yanks.

We'd like to see the Cards and Yanks in the series. They are by far the two most colorful clubs in the leagues and have proven a dozen times they have what it takes in a series that means anything.

The "MODERN WAY"
YES, SIR! JUST PHONE 89 For The Modern Dri-Sheen Process CITY CLEANERS

By Harry Grayson
NEW YORK, Aug. 8—New York Yankees lengthening their pronounced lead almost daily and apparently having clinched the American League pennant, leave only a five-club scramble for second place and the dismal prospect of wanting patronage for the remaining seven weeks of the schedule.
Flag gathering clubs in the junior circuit make a habit of lapping their field a time or two some time before the finish.
Meanwhile, more fortunate National league owners gather in the shekels as four or more arrays fight it out all the way to the wire. This year is no exception in the older loop, with the St. Louis Cardinals and Chicago Cubs again at each other's throats, and the New York Giants making a determined effort to hang on.
There have been finer all-around championship outfits than the Yankees of 1936, but the Bronx bombers fastened a strangle hold on the gonfalon in the most satisfactory way. They overpowered each challenger in turn.
First it was Washington, returning home after bagging 11 of 16 games on the road. The Ruppert Rifles marched into Griffith Stadium and twice bumped off the Senators in a Fourth of July double-header.
End Excitement in Chicago And Cleveland
Detroit Tigers roared into Yankee Stadium, July 15, with a record of 14 victories in their last 16 starts. It looked as though the 1935 champions might get some place despite injuries and illness, but the Yanks sent them away doctoring the wounds of three reverses in four appearances.
Catastrophed by splendid pitching, the Chicago White Sox rose from comparative obscurity under the miracle man, Jimmy Dykes. They returned to Comiskey Park with a road record of 17 triumphs in 21 engagements, mainly at the expense of eastern teams.
"Bring on those Yanks!" shouted a highly enthused baseball population.
Joe McCarthy's stalwarts came on all right, July 24. There was much excitement. Bottles were hurled from grandstands packed with 50,000 rabid rooters. One of them struck and incapacitated Umpire Bill Summers.
But the Yankees left Chicago with three consecutive victories and another prominent rival crushed.
In Cleveland, the Indians were whooping it up on the strength of copping 19 out of 23 games and rising from fifth to second place.
But the big guns of DiMaggio, Gehrig, Dickey, Selkirk & Co., and pitching that was plenty good enough accounted for two games and squelched the Redmen's uprising. The Tribe had worked up its followers to such a pitch that the third game was switched to Cleveland's beautiful lake front stadium, where 65,342 persons saw the clubs battle 16 thrilling innings to a 4 to 4 tie.

Play to 216,842 on Western Trip
Colonel Jacob Ruppert's club would have a highly satisfactory season financially if it didn't play to another customer. The Cleveland crowd was the second largest that had paid to see murderer's row this year. The Yankees battled the Senators before 71,754 paying guests in New York on Memorial Day.
The big gathering in the Cleveland Stadium boosted the total attendance for the Yankees' swing through the west to the surprising total of 216,842. The three games the league leaders played in St. Louis to start the tour drew only 45,000 paid admissions. Oddly enough, that was the only spot where they were knocked off, the lowly Browns taking two out of three.
The three contests played in Chicago in two days were good for 65,000 customers, and in Detroit four games in as many days brought out 59,000.
The latter stressed the Detroit fans' loyalty to their club. The Yanks performed at Navin Field the first four days of the week, and after the Boston Red Sox had run up large scores in sweeping a three-game set with the Bengals. School-boy Rowe took two games from the Yanks in three days.

In Cleveland the first two contests were played at League Park, where the paid attendance totaled 23,000.
So it is that affluent Yankees can stand a lewdton, but its representatives' unconditional surrender certainly won't tend to increase the trade's interest elsewhere. Even the more violent addicts can't get heated up over a club fighting for second place.

Model Of Deep Big Lake Pool On Exhibition

AUSTIN, Aug. 7.—A model of the deepest producing oil field in the world is now on exhibit in the Division of Geology in Gregory Gymnasium, main exhibit hall of the University Centennial Exposition.

The field is the one operated by the Big Lake Oil Company and the Continental Oil Company in Reagan County. The land that the wells are on belongs to The University of Texas.

The field is shown on this model by pegs which represent the wells and colored strings running from peg to peg represent the strata. With such a model the visitors to the exhibit may look through the strings from the side and so get a view of the formation of the strata. The oil bearing strata is curved into a dome shape.

The deepest well in the field is 9,562 feet below the surface of the earth—lacking only 98 feet of being two miles deep. The wells range from 5,500 to 6,300 feet below sea level.

Colors on the pegs represent the different types of formations through which the wells have been drilled. There are the permian black shale, the upper blue crinoidal limestone formation, the Simpson formation, and the Ellenburg formation.

Oil was first discovered on the field November 28, 1928.

of the fifteen districts will join the dealer group at the Friday luncheon in Dallas, cast their 'electoral votes' President and Vice-President of the 'Maytag Texas Empire' then adjourn to the Exposition grounds where they will spend the weekend taking in exhibits."

MELBOURNE, (U.P.)—After thirty years of experiments, a local inventor claims to have discovered at last the secret of making synthetic wood. The Ford V-8 tells its own story

WE DEPEND on the Ford car to tell its own story of value and service. For if the people who use our cars every day are not praising them, it matters little what we may say.

The last word must be spoken by the car itself. The owner who tells his next-door neighbor how his car behaves in actual service is the most effective advertiser.

A great many Fords are being bought these days on the recommendation of present owners.

Attention of Mr. Henry Ford

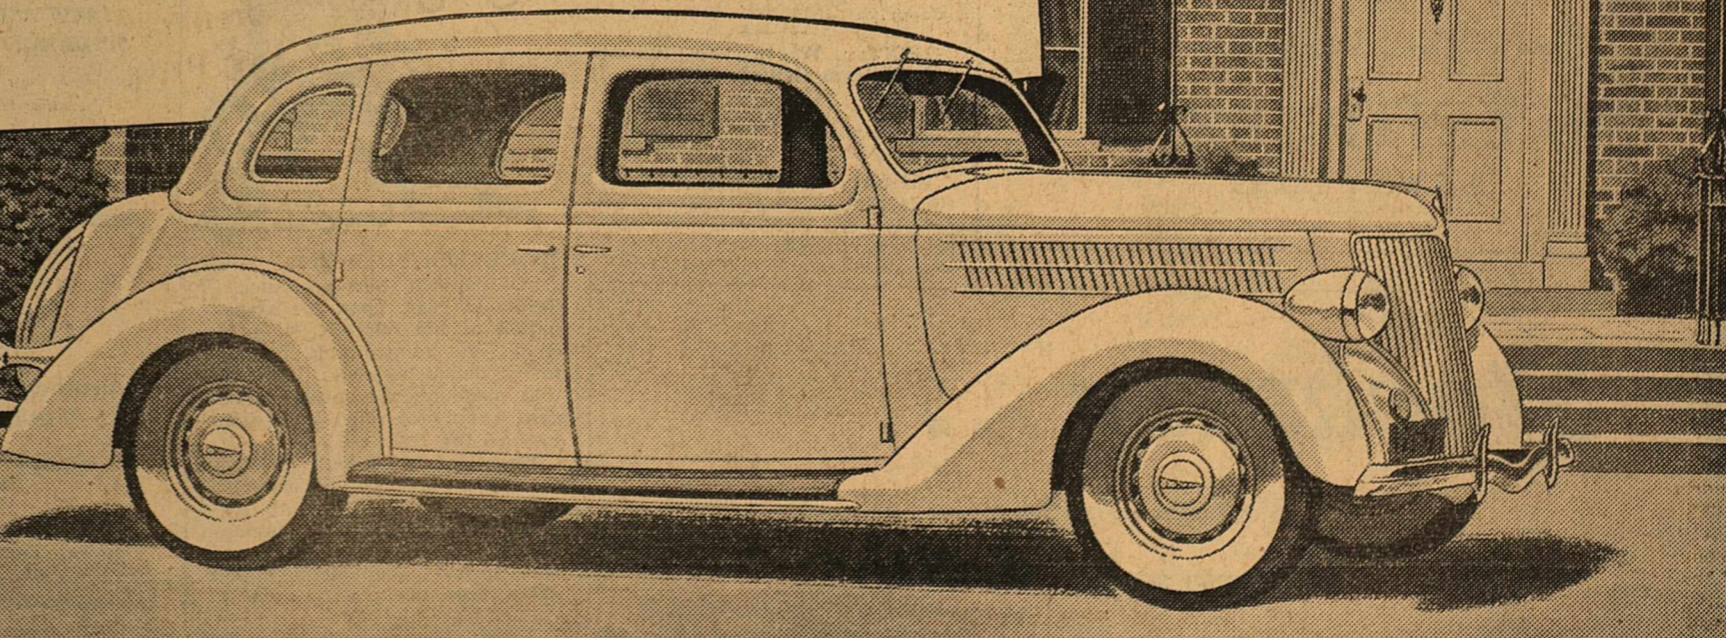

Gentlemen:

After driving one of your Model A cars for six years and getting exceptionally fine service from it, I purchased a V-8 which I have driven a small mileage and find it to be a very satisfactory car.

Both the Model A and the V-8 appeal greatly to what little I know about mechanical design. However, the greatest pleasure I get from driving my Ford is due to my respect for the general policies of your company, and the belief that the method of making and distributing the product is a beneficial one for the people of America.

Yours very truly,

Both From the Same Plant
For Farm and Ranch Use

The Fairbanks-Morse Model "A" light plant, which we have on display, is a simple, dependable electric generating unit of the "double-duty" type originated and successfully pioneered by FAIRBANKS-MORSE. Not only will it supply electric power to operate light, appliances, charge storage batteries, etc., but it will also supply mechanical power direct from the engine pulley to operate a deep well pump, a milking machine or other heavy power consuming device that otherwise would require the purchase of an expensive electric motor as well as perhaps introduce operating difficulties when such large size electric motors are operated from a light plant or storage battery of relatively small capacity.

UNEASY DENMARK STRIVES TO AVOID BECOMING GERMANY'S WAR PANTRY

COPENHAGEN, (U.P.)—Reports not official—German suggestion that a representative section of the German people is getting tired of the government's theory that it is more important to have guns than to have butter, and therefore Denmark is uneasy.

Denmark has plenty of butter—and plenty of other food products which Germany needs—and it fears that some day it may become Germany's pantry.

After the big European countries where the specter of war is hovering, Denmark seems a haven of peace—until the name of Germany is mentioned. Then the shadow falls. It is not the question of Schleswig that worries most informed Danes. It is true that German infiltration in Schleswig has been systematic, that German-owned banks have carried on methodical campaigns to assist Germans to take over the land, but it is not simply the possibility that Germany will one day take back the part of Bismarck's conquest which the Allies returned that preoccupies Denmark. They fear that if Germany ever moves in their direction, it will be to take all the country, not part of it.

Recent German fleet movements about the northern tip of Denmark led to reports here that the ships were engaged in considering the possibilities of North Jutland, with its long sandy beaches, as emergency airplane bases for action against England. But even these reports did not consider that this was Germany's prime interest in Denmark, particularly as in the island of Syll, just off the Danish coast, Germany already has an ideal airplane base, recently already provided with excellent flying fields, hangars and defense armaments.

It is the country between Schleswig and the strategic northern tip of the country that Denmark considers its most tempting bait for Germany, the rich agricultural regions which produce such quantities of pork and dairy products.

FLYING HOTEL

Twice a month across the Atlantic, and again across the South Atlantic, Germany's newest airship, the Hindenburg, flies passengers and mail between Europe and America. In less than three days, as many as 50 passengers can enjoy the luxury of a smooth flight in comfort equaling that of any fine steamer or hotel. From a windowed promenade, 160 feet long, they can look down upon land and sea, while four powerful Diesel motors propel the big brother to the Graf Zeppelin through the air at 80 miles an hour.

Inaugural flight of this immense airship, recently, was the occasion for the issue by Germany of a set of special stamps, to be used for mail carried by the Hindenburg. The same occasion also gave the little principality of Liechtenstein, below Lake Constance, where the ship was built, reason to issue a commemorative set of its own. One of the two values of this set is shown below.

PLAYBOY RULER OF SERBIA

(Copyright, 1936, NEA Service, Inc.)

FOURTEEN-YEAR-OLD Milan Obrenovich became ruler of Serbia in 1868, upon the assassination of his relative, King Michael, and immediately began a life of debauchery and dissipation that made him the most extravagant and cruel reign in the history of the Balkans.

He raised taxes, only to spend the income lavishly and wantonly. He allied his country with Austria, while his young wife opposed him by her intrigues with Russia. He spread scandalous stories about the queen, and then divorced her.

When his son, Alexander, was 15, Milan renounced the throne and went to Paris. Then began an even more lascivious existence—champagne and perfume baths for the ladies, frozen precious Burgundy for a skating rink, a retinue of unconscious women, retinue of gambling, and Milan returned to Belgrade to restore his fortune on the taxes of the Serbs. Back to Paris, in 1900, then Vienna, he continued his drinking and gambling until he died in 1901, at the age of 47.

His portrait appears on stamps of 1869 to 1881.

English Hobo Philosopher Urges One-Day Work Week; Blames The Americans "General Foolishness" For Woes

OKLAHOMA CITY, (U.P.)—Roger Payne, the "hobo philosopher," offers a four-point program for America that easily takes top place among any of the movements to the left.

He proposes:
A one-day work week.
A minimum wage of $50 a week.
Travel and study for leisure time.
Payne, holder of two degrees from Cambridge College, England, cites himself as an example of what a man can do by working no more than 50 days a year.

He points out that for many years as a gentleman farmer in England he worked 50 days each year, and kept his books balanced.

The trouble with the present system, as he sees it, is that Americans are work crazy.

"All we know is work. All we do is work." And with that he advances his plan for a one-day work week.

He figures that two days of the workers' week go to pay profits, interest and rent of those who own land and machines.

Another two days are taken up by waste. The waste is accounted for in inefficient machinery, idle machinery, crime, harmful drugs and general foolishness, Payne argues.

Under his heading of "general foolishness" come those persons engaged in such occupations as packing bird seed for canaries.

His statistics show one-fifth of the population unemployed.

Thus, if the worker could rid himself of the two days he works for the capitalist, two days for waste, and share his work with those who are unable to find employment, then the one-day work week would result as Payne theorizes.

The $50-a-week wage scale was selected arbitrarily, Payne says a workman needs that much money to fit into the new scheme properly.

Payne himself works a few days at farming or berry picking to defray his expenses. He carries a pack on his back with bed clothing and cooking utensils.

He is not and does not intend to be a candidate for public office.

Letters to the Editor

The future of agriculture in Texas is at stake. Regardless of the merits or demerits of personal plans that have been devised and offered, it is a well known fact that the President, his Cabinet Members and Members of Congress, and other Agricultural leaders of the nation have counseled together in an effort to put over some program for relief for the great Agricultural Industry of the nation.

The records will show that I have given my wholehearted co-operation to the President, to Secretary Wallace, to Members of our National Congress and to our agricultural leaders in these efforts.

For ten long years George B. Terrell was Commissioner of Agriculture and his record was left in the reports of the Department that were made to the Governor and the Legislature of Texas. His parting words were—"I can not have the co-operation of our agricultural agencies and of the Legislature in helping me to put over my agricultural program."

He went to Washington as a Member of Congress, and there opposed the Farm Relief Program, the Home Mortgage Refinancing Bill and other relief measures that were calculated to bring relief to our debt ridden farmers and others.

Perfect 'Love Team' Title Given 'Private Number'

Taylor and Young Co-Star at Yucca

Robert Taylor And Loretta Young In New Show

What is acclaimed the screen's "perfect love-team" comes to the Yucca Theatre Sunday, Monday, and Tuesday in the Fox picture, "Private Number." Handsome Robert Taylor and lovely Loretta Young are co-starred and the combination is said to be the outstanding film romantic union since Janet Gaynor and Charles Farrell were first cast together.

Romance in fact, is the keynote of "Private Number," although comedy, drama and suspense are interwoven in the plot.

Robert Taylor falls in love with his mother's personal maid while on a summer vacation in Maine. The girl is convinced that nothing permanent can possibly come to such a social mixture but she loves Taylor so much that she accedes to his wishes and marries him.

Taylor wants to inform his family immediately but Loretta persuades him that it will be better to wait until he completes his college course. Loretta stays on in her position and Taylor returns to school.

His mother discovers that Loretta is going to have a baby. When Loretta refuses to reveal her husband's name, Patsy Kelly blurts out the truth.

Loretta's forebodings are realized and she is treated so cruelly by Taylor's family that she runs away and has her baby secretly. Taylor returns home and finds that his wife has disappeared. The family conceal the fact that they practically drove the girl away and attempt to persuade Taylor that she was only a gold digger.

Taylor and Miss Young are said to reach a new top in romance before the picture concludes with a thrilling climax.

Education Comm. to Enter Controversy Over "Daily Texan"

WASHINGTON, Aug. 8 (AP)—John W. Stuchaker, United States commissioner of education, said Saturday that he planned to ask Representative Maury Maverick and University of Texas authorities for "complete information" about their dispute over the university publication, The Daily Texan. He said that he did not plan on expressing an opinion on the subject until he had received the desired information.

OIL NEWS

& Hunter No. 1 R. B. Cowden, a mile and a half to the east. Both wildcats will hold the interest of West Texas oil men as they near verdict.

The No. 1 R. B. Cowden was scheduled to start up at midnight to drill plug from 7-inch casing set at 4,110 feet. Located in section 10, block 45, township 2 north, T. & P. survey, it is a mile and a half north of "Red" Davidson and Atlantic No. 1 Cummins, a well completed two years ago for 25 barrels of oil per day with high gas volume.

Sinclair-Pratt No. 1-A Johnson, Ector wildcat, five miles north of the Foster pool, is drilling sand and anhydrite below 2,867 feet. It topped anhydrite at 1,760. Location is in section 42, block 42, township 1 south, T. & P. survey.

Flows 108 Barrels
Extending the Emperor pool of southern Winkler a half-mile to the north, Phillips Petroleum company No. 1 McCabe completed 24-hour test of natural production, flowing 108 barrels by heads during that time. It is now shut in for pipe-line connection but will be given a nitro shot next week. The well logged first pay in sand from 2,745 to 2,765, then drilled lime without increases to 2,836 where it found more oil in sand to 2,849, the total depth. It is 330 feet from the south and 990 feet from the east line of section 1, block B-12, public school land.

Shut down for several weeks awaiting orders to deepen, the important northeast Winkler wildcat test of Joiner Oil corporation No. 1 Evans-Cowden resumed drilling early Saturday at 5,005, five feet below the old contract depth. The new contract calls for carrying it 500 feet deeper unless oil, gas or water is encountered at lesser depth. It is in the northwest quarter of section 46, block 73, public school land.

Magnolia No. 27 Walton, Sayre pool well 330 feet from the north and 990 feet from the west line of section 1, block 26, public school land, was shot with 190 quarts from 2,817 to 2,925, one foot off bottom, and flowed 128 barrels the first nine hours. At the end of that time it started sanding up, and operators are now engaged in cleaning out.

High Price Paid
Two tracts southeast of the Dunning Cummins pool in Ector county brought the high price of $50,000 cash and $50,000 out of oil in a deal made this week, it is reported. Atlantic Oil Producing company is said to have bought the tracts, totalling 240 acres, from Northrup & Carr, San Angelo oil operators. The acreage comprises the north half of the northwest quarter and the southeast quarter of section 35, block 45, township 1 north, T. & P. survey. The most northerly tract is less than one-half mile southeast of the Dunning No. 1 Cummins discovery well.

Famous Will Rogers Picture Now at Ritz For Second Showing

In days of old, when knights were bold—is when the action of "A Connecticut Yankee," starring Will Rogers and coming today to the Ritz Theatre, is set.

Brought back in response to the request of millions of Will Rogers fans who considered it his greatest picture, "A Connecticut Yankee" is a droll, fanciful story, full of riotous comedy and adventure.

The plot of the story begins when Rogers goes back to the days of King Arthur in a dream. Just as much surprised by the knights as they are by him, Rogers gets the upper hand when he starts showing a little modern magic.

There are some hilarious episodes as Rogers conquers villainous opponents, installs bathtubs in merry England. But the punch of the picture is reserved for the close when Rogers rides off to save a damsel fair from the clutches of Queen Morgan Le Fay, played by Myrna Loy.

Joe E. Brown Coming To Yucca In Comedy

Joe is supported by a notable cast. He has two leading ladies, June Travis and Carol Hughes, and such talented players as Guy Kibbee, Dick Foran, Gene Lockhart, Olin Howland, Joseph Chehan, Sara Edwards, Charles Wilson, William Davidson, Irving Bacon and Stuart Holmes.
