

OFFICERS PRESS HUNT AS MEXICAN YOUTH NOT FOUND

Escape Apparently Complete By Slayer

FOLLOW CLUES

All Leads Traced In Efforts to Find Fugitive

Midland county officers today are continuing to press their hunt for Ramon Navarrete, 16-year-old Mexican youth, who Wednesday flew Juan Martinez, 17, Mexican, and fled the country.

All leads so far gained by officers have been proven fruitless as no direct evidence can be gained as to what way the boy took after leaving the scene of the crime.

It is believed that the boy departed to the east, possibly catching a freight train before going very far and thereby effecting his escape.

Officers in all counties to the east and west of here are on close lookouts for the youth, and according to authoritative reports, Mexican transients in all towns in this area are being given strict scrutiny.

Efforts to follow footprints left by Navarrete in his dash to freedom proved a failure after they had been traced for about a half-mile. Wind had completely erased them from that point.

The "close-mouth" policy adopted by persons working in the field where the tragedy occurred is proving a handicap to the officers, all those questioned denying that they saw or heard anything to indicate the cause of the death blow or anything that would indicate where the boy could have gone after leaving.

Mahan has been held secretly since August 17. The plot to gain the money failed when federal men lit up the area with a flare so the money was tossed out at a spot near Cisco after Butler had been told by an unidentified man to throw it.

Cattle organizations officials expressed pleasure at the results accomplished in the face of drought, Canadian imports and Argentine canned meat, as the increased consumption was expected to lead to better markets for the local producers.

NEW YORK, Aug. 28.—Political headquarters in national campaigns are queer hodgepodes of extreme optimism, sporadic pessimism, nerves, jealousies, strokes of genius, prima donnas, sprinters racing in circles, overworked competent employees assisted by many folk who "had to be taken care of," rumors, and almost uncanny absences of coordination.

But the democratic general staff seems at least equally far from efficiency. Personalities enter in when it appears sometimes difficult to get good men to work there because of a belief that when you work under Jim Farley you tend to become a sort of glorified office boy, with little or no authority.

G. O. P. Counts on Digest Poll
One rumor, accepted in both camps, is that tabulation of the first 50,000 votes in the Literary Digest's presidential poll will show Landon leading Roosevelt by a much more substantial majority than in any other sizable poll thus far.

Republican leaders greet this report with delight, especially because they are sure that a strong Landon showing in a major poll will have a valuable psychological effect. They are preparing to ballyhoo such figures.

The democratic staff, on the other hand, is pooh-poohing the Digest poll results in advance and will present various purported reasons why the G. O. P. implications should not be accepted.

Secretly, the democrats rely heavily upon the theory that none of the polls accurately covers a certain

10 Year Army Dictatorship, British Treaty Make Portugal Key to Crisis

BY MILTON BRONNER
NEA Service Staff Correspondent
LONDON, Aug. 28.—The little nation of Portugal has taken on, in the minds of European diplomats, the shape of a key—a key to the world crisis precipitated by the current Spanish revolt.

For, with the sanguinary struggle between Rightism and Leftism in Spain threatening to draw the militant attention of other Fascist and Red powers in Europe, it is of high significance that:

(1) The neighboring country of Portugal at the moment is celebrating the tenth year of its own existence under a dictatorship;
(2) Great Britain is under ancient treaty obligations to defend Portugal against foreign invaders—a little publicized fact which would make Britain's neutrality difficult or impossible if Portugal should become embroiled in Spain's Fascist-Red strife;

(3) The Portuguese government, strongly dictatorial and strongly Catholic, naturally is sympathetic toward the Spanish rebels; and
(4) The Spanish Fascist rebel forces now are occupying strategic areas along the Portuguese-Spanish border where the running of arms and munitions would be comparatively easy.

Portugal Has Two Bosses
In Italy Fascism means very largely Mussolini and the will of Mussolini. In Germany, Nazidom means very largely Hitler and the power and prestige of Hitler. But in Portugal there are two demigods. . . The President, General Antonio Carmona, who has been a soldier all his adult life, and the Prime Minister, Oliveira Salazar who for most of his working years was a Professor of Economics at the University of Coimbra. The President, who is 67 and older than his years, leans heavily upon his Prime Minister, who is 57. And back of both of them is the army which trusts them, supports them and probably is ready to fight for them if necessary.

Prior to the army finding in Carmona a chief after its own heart, Portugal had been a land in which revolutions bloomed as regularly as flowers. A republican revolution turned the late King Manuel off his throne in 1910. The republic had nearly two dozen revolutions until the final one which was led by Carmona. He found in Salazar his ideal Finance Minister and since 1932 his ideal Premier as well. The pair have made of Portugal a sort of corporative state, but differing in many essentials from the Fascist and Nazi regimes in Italy and Germany respectively. It resembles them in permitting the people to vote for only one list of parliamentary candidates—that drawn up by the dictatorship. But a marked difference from Italian and German methods is the fact that the Portuguese Assembly may actually override a presidential veto by a two-thirds vote—something that would shock a good group of voters in the very low income groups, which should be expected to vote heavily for the New Deal.

Polls have transformed political campaign thinking. They are mentioned, usually "off the record," at practically every press conference held by Martin or Farley.

Bank On Hurja's Poll
They are watched closely by Emil Hurja, assistant to Farley, who keeps a private poll for the democratic committee and whose associates think his survey is the most accurate of the lot.

In 1932 and 1934 Hurja established a reputation for accuracy in vote forecasts, right down into the individual congressional districts. This year, with the contest now apparently close, his unique reputation as a scientific political prophet is at stake.

The Hurja poll is highly confidential, but it is reported that it now gives Roosevelt a slight edge with indications of a future trend which should produce a substantial electoral college majority.

Even democratic leaders privately admit that Roosevelt's big 1932 majority will be materially cut.

Another 'Fear Campaign'
Watch out for a new organization which will profess to have sprung up spontaneously and which will announce it has been formed to defend the federal deposit guarantee system.

This will simply be part of a new democratic effort to meet the "fear campaign" of the republicans (taxes, preservation of the constitution, personal liberties, and so on) with another "fear campaign."

It seems that in 1933 Landon denounced the deposit guarantee proposal before the American Bankers' Association as "a greater blow to the ultimate welfare of the American people than the wildest inflation of the currency could possibly be." He wired Senator Capper, urging him to fight the measure.

So there will be a democratic effort to build up a bogey to the effect that Landon would seek abolition of the FDIC and presumably cause a great national run on the banks in so doing.

System in No Peril
This, of course, is just as cockeyed as some of the republican bogies. The plain fact is that Roosevelt himself opposed deposit insurance, but didn't feel up to vetoing it when congress insisted on it.

Neither he nor Landon nor anyone else in his right mind would dare try to get rid of the system now.

The democratic "scare campaign," however, may become so formidable as to force Landon to declare himself. Republican strategists (each side always seems to know what the other is going to do) have discussed the best way to bang it down.

Nazi or Fascist. In the main the endeavor of Carmona and Salazar has been to make Portugal a nationalistic rather than really totalitarian state.

See Era of Improvement
Salazar has set a record for his country in giving it new roads, schools and hospitals and as Finance Minister has shown himself something of a wizard.

The public debt has been reduced from $90 per head as it was in 1913 to $50. This has been brought about by paying off many of the debts due to the World War and the succession of revolutions from which the country suffered. Even more striking is the fact that the national budget has been balanced for the past seven years and with a small surplus on hand. The colonial budget has also been balanced.

Salazar has shown his confidence in the stability of the regime by granting celebration annuities to many political offenders, including two former powerful politicians. In fact, they had both been Premiers of Portugal. In the anniversary speech which Salazar made at Braga in the presence of President Carmona and many detachments of the army, he said the greatest achievements of the regime were peace inside the country, a cessation of bitter political rivalries and an honest administration of the public services and an equally honest expenditure of the public money.

"These ten years in the history of our country have been only one era of our restoration. The ten other years which are now commencing, will constitute an era of agrandissement built upon the hardest sacrifices, the highest heroism and the surest devotion."

He did not say so in so many words, but one of the things in the back of his mind was the uncertainty of the future, due to the hunger of nations like Germany and Italy for colonies. Portugal is still a great colonial power. Angola in West Africa has an area of 484,800 square miles. Both are rich in mineral and vegetable products.

Excursion Fares In West Get Extension
CHICAGO, Aug. 27.—Unprecedented extension of excursion fares for winter travel to and from the Pacific Coast were announced today by Hugh W. Siddall, Chairman of the Trans-Continental and Western Passenger Associations. For the first time in history, beginning October 1st, first class tickets on a basis of 2 cents per mile with a thirty day limit as to return in either direction may be purchased up to May 14 of next year. For tourist sleepers at the rate of 1.8 cents per mile and coach travel at the rate of 1.35 cents per mile, the final date of purchase will be May 14, but a six months' return limit will be allowed. These low fares covering all three classes of travel will be effective as of October 1. This means extraordinary inducements for rail travel will be held out to tourists during the expected winter and far into the spring of 1937.

The Western Railroads with their drastic cut in fares in December, 1933, carrying with it the elimination of the sleeping car surcharge, found a quick response from the traveling public, demonstrating that the bargain idea has a universal appeal including transportation as well as all forms of merchandise.

Last fall an experiment in the matter of low fare time extension was tried with the result that traffic to and from the Pacific Coast showed a 50 percent increase. Surveys also demonstrated that in 1935 more people took winter vacations than in any one of the previous several years, indicating that big corporations were balancing vacation time where employees showed a preference for a rest period other than during the mid-summer months. In discussing the liberal policy of the Western Railroads in this greater latitude on low fare extensions, Mr. Siddall said:

"The Western Railroads have found that married employees who have no children frequently would rather take their vacations during the winter season than during the summer months. This is especially true of localities near the Great Lakes and certain sections of the far west, where it is desired especially to have vacations in the southern sections of the country. We have found instances too where a divided vacation has been taken by many people, a part of the time being allotted in the summer and the remainder in the winter. Those traveling by train have found scenic attractions just as alluring in the winter as in the summer, and frequently folks going by train would like to contrast their recollections of such interesting spots during the opposite seasons of the year."

"These long periods for low cost vacations in the winter time provide a balancing factor for the railroads, and with this new arrangement make it possible for people to go by rail at practically the same cost in winter as in summer."

"Figures just received on Pacific Coast travel show that during the first 75 days of the low fares for the summer period, an increase of 43 per cent was registered over 1935. In fact, statistics show that during that limited period, the total number of travelers by train approximated the high figures of 1930, which was one of the major western rail travel years of the decade. The lower fares and the extension period for their purchase will apply eastbound as well as westbound."

All Retail Stores Are Showing Gains
Retail sales in the Gulf southwest as reflected by reports from 994 independent stores in Texas, Oklahoma, and New Mexico, increased about 19 percent in dollar volume for July 1936 as compared with July 1935. This report covers the larger independent stores, in 21 kinds of business, 8 of which, due to an insufficient number of reports, are included in miscellaneous or group totals. This preliminary estimate is based on figures collected by the Bureau of Foreign and Domestic Commerce, Department of Commerce, in cooperation with the Bureau of Business Research, University of Texas.

The greatest increase was shown for New Mexico where reported sales for 52 stores were 29 per cent above July a year ago. The sales of 729 Texas merchants showed a 20 per cent increase and 213 firms in Oklahoma recorded a gain of about 9 per cent.

Without adjustment for seasonal influences, July sales for the 3 states showed a decrease of about 12 per cent from June 1936. There were a like number of working days in both months.

All of the kinds of business represented registered gains from last year. The greatest increase was shown by Women's Specialty shops, with a 35 per cent gain. This was followed by family clothing stores times will be over. When your kids get back to school you can't have much loafing around the house and the whole town gets the spirit of it.

Trying to raise your kids to be goody-goodies doesn't always mean that they will turn out to be sissies.

Kids surely do have ways of learning for themselves these days. Their folks might as well tell them all they know.

and furniture stores both with gains of about 30 per cent. Of the 994 firms reporting for July, 653 (65.7 per cent) reported an increase over July a year ago; 309 (31.1 per cent) reported declines; and 32 (3.2 per cent) had less than one per cent change in sales volume.

Miss McClintic Becomes Bride of Mr. Bryce Rea

In a quiet but impressive dawn ceremony at the First Presbyterian church this morning, Miss Isabel McClintic, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Chas. A. McClintic became the bride of Bryce Rea Jr., son of Mr. and Mrs. Bryce Rea Sr., of Little Neck, Long Island, New York.

Only members of the bride's family and a quartet of her girl friends witnessed the ceremony which was read by Rev. W. J. Coleman. The single ring service was used.

Miss Lydia G. Watson and Ned Watson presented two violin and piano numbers, "Traumerl" by Schumann and "Believe Me If All Those Endearing Young Charms" before the entrance of the couple.

Miss McClintic and Mr. Rea entered together unattended to the strains of Lohengrin's Wedding March played by Mrs. W. J. Coleman at the organ. During the ceremony she played softly "I Love You Truly" and Mendelssohn's Wedding March as the recessional.

The bride wore a two-piece model of rust-colored crepe, with yoke and soft collar of silver fishnet. Godets lent width to the skirt and fullness was concentrated at the top of the sleeves. Her veiled hat and other accessories were black.

No reception was held, the couple leaving on the early morning train for a visit to the Centennial at Dallas and Fort Worth before going on to New York to visit his family. After this wedding trip of about two weeks they will be at home at 148 Nelson St., Kingston, Ontario, Canada.

Mrs. Rea is well-known in Midland where she was reared. She is a member of a pioneer ranch family of this area, her father being a member of McClintic Bros., known as ranchers and oil men of Midland, Crane, and Upton counties for about 35 years. She attended the Midland schools, graduating from High School here with the class of 1935. She was ranked as one of Midland's most promising young piano students.

Following graduation she attended Mary Baldwin college at Staunton, Virginia, majoring in music. The bridegroom is a former student of Washington and Lee university at Lexington, carrying a law course in that historic institution.

FEMININE FANCIES

By KATHLEEN EILAND

More and more cleanliness and neatness are being stressed in beauty advice columns. We estimate that at least one out of four issues of such columns repeat, just as teachers repeat the multiplication tables or rules of grammar for their students, the necessity of bathing, hair brushing, teeth cleaning and nail grooming.

Concerning beauty routines of college girls, a well-known beauty article writer says: "To form the habits of being absolutely clean and dainty from head to foot, of wearing carefully pressed clothes, of using non-perspirants, of keeping nails tidy and of using the right amount of makeup are just as necessary to a college girl's success in later life as getting A pluses in Greek, Latin or chemistry."

Such advice appeals to us as extremely sound. We wonder if it does not strike the keynote of the modern trend—beauty but intelligent beauty.

DOG ESCAPES IN 5 STORY FALL. SACRAMENTO, Cal. (U.P.)—A five-story dive from the roof of an apartment building was the boast of Tippy, year-old fox terrier, who emerged from his experience with wagging tail and frightened eyes but hardly a scratch.

The Roman emperor, Caligula, provided his favorite horse with an ivory manger and a golden drinking goblet.

Tiny Perfume Vials Perfect Coed Gift

By ALICIA HART NEA Staff Writer

A perfect present for the girl who is going back to college this fall is a perfume case containing two or three diminutive flacons of really expensive scents. Since no co-ed uses perfume regularly, these are better than one big bottle that is likely to get stale before it is used up. Besides it's fun to have a special perfume for daytime, another for evening and perhaps a third for the sake of variety.

One nice perfume set, in a gay red leather case which looks like a jewel box, contains a dram of light gardenia for informal occasions, one of a spicy, carnation-like scent for campus and classroom, and a third dram in mixed floral odors. This can be saved for important teas and such. Incidentally the set makes a sweet little remembrance for your week-end hostess.

Also handy for the college girl or, for that matter, anyone else who can't bear oily spots or perspiration stains across the backs of soft woolen and suave silk dresses are dress shields to be used across the backs of your frocks. These are shaped like the between-shoulders area of your back and are to be fastened to waistline and shoulder seams. They are not made of rubber. They are absorbent and easy to wash. You can get them in all sizes and in several colors.

If you want to give a useful present to a shower addict, why not bath salts in smooth powder form? This product was designed to be used in the tub but research shows that it can be sifted on a rough washcloth and rubbed on the body.

Use of Motors for Surf Boards Believed Near

HONOLULU. (U.P.)—Aluminum surfboards with outboard motors and a "tail" will help popularize Hawaii's famed sport of surfing in other parts of the world, according to Tom Blake, expert surfer and member of the Waikiki beach patrol. Blake has perfected a new hollow surfboard, constructed of Georgia cypress wood, which he says is particularly adapted for big waves. It weighs 116 pounds and can be ridden in 30-foot waves.

But for localities where there is no surf, Blake predicts that a motorized surfboard with a protected propeller, now being developed will give swimmers on lakes an inland waterfronts a chance to use a board. Blake has introduced another innovation in attaching a fin or stabilizer to the bottom of the board at the stern to help steering.

Hold-The-Bag Phrase Traced to Jefferson

CHICAGO. (U.P.)—Americans may be "left holding the bag" today, but it's nothing new—it happened in Thomas Jefferson's time, too. University of Chicago scholars, preparing a "Dictionary of American English," found that Jefferson wrote a letter in 1793 in which he said: "If the bankruptcies of England proceed to the length of an universal crush of their paper—she will leave Spain the bag to hold."

Old Precedent Than Nomination Equals Election to A Democrat May Be Broken In Arizona Soon

PHOENIX, Ariz. Aug. 28. (U.P.)—Arizona voters will go to the polls on Sept. 8 at the end of what is expected will be one of the bitterest fought primary campaigns in the history of this state—where political shenanigans have been developed to a high art.

Headlining the Democratic battle—and this state is very largely of that party—is the fight of Gov. B. B. Moer for his party's nomination for a third term. Opposing him is former Superior Judge R. C. Stanford of Phoenix, the governor's unsuccessful opponent in the 1934 primary.

Opinions as to their chances for nomination are numerous and vociferous. Adherents of each man claim victory, and offer to prove their assertions by theoretical divisions of the vote. Both have strong organizations.

Two Seek Governorship

The Republicans, for the first time in years, have two men seeking nomination for the governorship, former Gov. Thomas E. Campbell, Prescott mining man, and Mayor John H. Udall of Phoenix. In the early campaign betting, Campbell is supposed to have very strong support in Phoenix and Tucson, the state's two largest cities, and some support in the northern and eastern parts of the state.

Many political observers profess to believe the Democratic nomination this year may not be, as it usually is, almost the same thing as a certain election. They declare a large part of either Moer's or Stanford's primary support will turn to the successful Republican as result of th bitterness expected to develop during the Democratic fight.

Ten In Running

The Democratic races for nomination to the congressional post relinquished by Congresswoman Isabella Greenway has been practically a "track meet," with 10 men and one woman running.

Mrs. Nellie T. Bush of Parker, only woman state senator in Arizona, practicing attorney, landowner, airplane pilot, and a host of other things, is conceded a fairly good chance to win. She has been well publicized and is personally popular over most of the state.

Among her male opponents are Brig. Gen. Pelham D. Glassford, Phoenix, police chief of Washington D. C. during the bonus riots; Joe C. Haldiman, Phoenix, president of the state senate; Frank H. Hilde-

Teacher Candidate

Seriously regarded in the race are Murdock, a professor at the State Teachers College; Phelps, Whitney, Haldiman and Glassford. Others in the race are not as widely known to local politicians. The fight of the 11 aspirants for the nomination is expected to be bitterly waged, but without the acrimonious personal exchanges of the Democratic gubernatorial fight.

Hot Fight

Another Democratic fight which promises to provide fireworks is that between Atty. Gen. John L. Sullivan, seeking a second term, and Joe Conway, Phoenix and Clarence E. Houston, Tucson. Both Conway and Sullivan were expected to wage bitter before the campaign ends.

Secretary of States James H. Kerby, holder of one state office or another for nearly 20 years, and State Treasurer Mit Simms, barred by law from seeking another consecutive term as treasurer, promise a hard and acrimonious fight for Kerby's job.

Henry E. Miller, Phoenix, was unopposed for the Republican nomination for attorney general, and the party had no entry for secretary of state.

Woman Favored

State Auditor Ana Frohmler is expected to have little difficulty in securing the Democratic nomination for another term. She was opposed by George A. Fleming, Flagstaff. No Republicans have sought the post.

Seeking the Democratic nomination for treasurer are Harry M. Moore, Glendale, Maricopa county treasurer for two terms, and Kirby L. Vidrine, Phoenix.

Herman E. Hendrix, state superintendent of public instruction, and Chief Justice Alfred C. Lockwood of the supreme court, are unopposed for renomination on the Democratic ticket.

No Republicans are entered for the treasurer, public instruction or supreme court posts.

HE MADE A TEN-YEAR TEST WITH ALL-BRAN

Say good-bye to the headaches, the low spirits, the sleeplessness that often follow common constipation. Just read this letter: "In 1926, I started using ALL-BRAN. And now, after ten years, during which I have put Kellogg's ALL-BRAN to a long, hard test, I am writing you this letter. It is better to eat this food and be in condition, than to resort to laxatives."

—Bernard Altman, 63 Goodale Road, Mattapan, Mass.

Kellogg's ALL-BRAN will help you too. Its "bulk" absorbs moisture within the body, forms a soft mass, gently cleanses the system. Tests prove it is safe and effective.

ALL-BRAN is guaranteed. Try it a week. If not satisfactory, your money will be refunded by the Kellogg Company.

Just eat two tablespoonfuls daily. Either as a cereal, or in recipes. How much better to use this food than to take patent medicines. Buy ALL-BRAN at your grocer's. Made by Kellogg in Battle Creek.

Shining Cleanliness Is Substitute For Pretty Features

By ALICIA HART NEA Service Staff Writer

Shining eyes, clear skin, glossy hair, a well-developed figure, a clean body and a pleasant smile—these are the things that make for true beauty. It matters not that your nose is crooked or your chin too short if you radiate health, are good tempered and keep yourself immaculately groomed. You can be beautiful in spite of any minor facial or figure defect.

One of the most attractive girls I ever have known is too short to be called pretty. And I shouldn't be surprised if, according to the general conception of beauty, her mouth is too large. She definitely is not a beauty, but she is beautiful. She brushes her hair until it gleams in the sunshine. She wears the average amount of makeup, but she puts it on over carefully scrubbed skin so it looks luminous instead of pasty. Her eyes always seem to sparkle, partly because she has serene enough to get adequate sleep and partly because she sees the bright side of every situation and the best characteristics in everybody.

Even really beautiful women simply can't afford to go around looking glum, finding fault with this and that and frowning constantly. They may get by with such behavior during their very young years, but, later on, they will pay. They'll pay for it with ugly frown lines, disagreeable crows' feet and a loney existence.

Age doesn't matter if you grow old charmingly. Lines count for nothing if they are laugh wrinkles. Lines aren't worth a second minute of worry if they have been etched in by a tolerant smile. Maybe this does sound like a lecture by Pollyanna, but it is true that real beauty is something quite different from prettiness that is attained only through use of cosmetics or brittle smartness that is sure to fade with the years.

STORIES IN STAMPS By I. S. Klein WOMAN'S ISLAND OF GOLD

LONG ago people of Spain were entranced by the legend of an island of gold where women reigned and where they went into battle wearing golden armor studded with precious stones. To seek this mythical land, 400 years ago, came Francisco Vasquez de Coronado, Spanish conquistadore. Through what is now Mexico and southwestern United States he traveled, but nowhere could he find that fabulous land.

After him came Juan Rodriguez Cabrillo, Portuguese explorer, crossing the perilous Isthmus of Panama, trailing the coast of Mexico until he arrived, in 1542, in the bay that now bears the name of San Diego. It was not until 1769 that the first European settlement was established at this spot. But the first arrival of white men in this area was occasion in 1935 for San Diego's colorful quadri-centennial exposition and for the issuance of a U. S. stamp commemorating this event.

Wednesday of next week. J. L. Green and family have gone to Dallas and Ft. Worth to visit the Centennial.

LOWER RIO GRANDE VALLEY FISHING RODEO IS ASSURED

PORT ISABEL, Texas.—The Lower Rio Grande Valley Fishing Rodeo for 1936 is now an assured proposition. It will be held Oct. 8, 9 and 10th and plans have been completed for making the 1936 Rodeo a bigger and better event than either the 1934 or 1935 contests which have proven to be the outstanding fishing tournaments of the Gulf Coast. The record of our catch of 83 Tarpon in 1934 in 4 1/2 days and 33 in 2 1/2 days in 1935 has never been even closely approximated in any similar contest anywhere, not to mention the hundreds of other choice fish taken.

Rodeo activities will be ushered in with a general social meeting Wednesday Oct. 7th, a get-together and get-acquainted gathering with a few short talks and introduction of our contestants, with an informal dance beginning at daylight Thursday Oct. 8th and closing at dark Saturday, Oct. 10th.

Sunday Oct. 11th will be a full day of entertainment with the grand finale. The program of awarding prizes at 2 p. m. The morning hours will be taken up with a general program carrying out with each number the fishin' idea. Of particular interest from the angler's standpoint will be the amateur and professional bait and fly contests, the professional exhibitions of bait casting for which we expect to have some of the Nation's best known talent, the human fishing contest and many other numbers of the like nature.

This part of the program has been placed entirely in the hands of three widely known anglers of Texas—

George Parker, Charley Gray and Bill Logan.

Special inducements will be made as in the past to create added interest of lady anglers from two in 1934 to eight in 1935. We hope to further increase this year. Many of them prove to be as worthy disciples as Isaac Walton in deep-sea angling. Another feature for the lady visitors who do not take an active interest in fishing will be a three-day bridge tournament. Bridge has no connection with fishing, except the kind that water runs under, but here I refer to the kind played with cards. The general plans of the contest, the rules and regulations governing the fishing scoring points, etc. will be along the same lines as in previous contests with a few minor changes designed to improve the event.

A list of prizes will be given in the twenty or more separate contests. The most sought after being the Grand Prize Trophy of the Missouri Pacific Lines, won by I. Henry Smith of Shreveport, La., in 1934 and in 1935 by R. J. Montgomery of Rio Hondo, Texas. The annual trophy is awarded upon a basis of the greatest number of points scored in the three-day contest. The $150.00 E. H. McReynolds trophy, a silver and mahogany plaque awarded for the most Tarpon caught, will probably be the second in importance in the prize list. Other prizes will be merchandise awards, chiefly of standard fishing tackle and cash prizes.

We have been assured that several private sea-going yachts specially rigged for sail fishing will be here. The catching of a number of sailfish on the South Texas Coast during the past few years has created considerable interest in this deluxe angling, one 6 foot 9 inch sailfish being taken early this season and the

The SPORTS HORN

BY JESS RODGERS

Here's what Tony Slaughter, San Angelo sports scribe, has to say about the Bulldogs this year.

MIDLAND, Aug. 27—Forty-five young football aspirants reported this week to Coach Maurice "Dutch" Baumgarten, coach of Midland high school. Out of these 45 young Americans, the former all-Southwestern Conference guard from the University of Texas will mold a team of 11 players to rough it through a hard 10 game schedule in one of the toughest Class B Districts in the state.

The Bulldogs open the season Sept. 18 with Bob Nails' Big Lake Owls here under the lights on Lackey Field. The Midland card shows seven home games, six at night and the other on Thanksgiving. The remainder of the schedule is on foreign soil, Colorado, Crane and Monahans.

Outstanding in the squad of candidates is big David Wafford, 195 pounder, stripped, who will be back for Baumgarten to build a team around. Wafford has one year of fire to his credit. He reaches up well over six feet and was outstanding in basketball on a team that didn't have a gymnasium and in track he carried to Midland's first district championship. During the 1935 season Wafford carried the ball 126 times to average 6 1/2 yards.

To aid Wafford will be Marion Taylor, 178 pound blocking and running back, Jay Francis, another back that should go places. He scales better than 150 pounds. Other backs who should prove to be good ball carriers and blockers are Barber, Rettig, Roberts, McMullan, Wheeler, and Leggett, all squadmen from last year.

Woodrow Adams, another one of Baumgarten's giants is back for another season of play and still has another year left after the present season. He's only a junior and carries two years of experience with him. An idea of his size can be learned on figures that show his weight at 206 pounds and a height of 6 feet and 2 inches, just a few inches under Wafford. Frederick Mitchell, another mainstay and a junior is back for his old position at guard with a year's experience. At the center position the Midland mentor has Bryant, a letterman from last year that has shown plenty on the offense and defense.

Others Show Promise
Other candidates that show promise of developing into good men are: Ends, Lawson, Dean, Hart, Van Dyke, and Roundtree; tackles, Miller, Pace, Miles, Harris, English and Taylor; guards, Mitchell, Klebold, Klatt, Edison, Wilson and Dean. Two candidates from the junior high squad, Lloyd Wimberly and Thurman Whittaker are due to see service at the center position to relieve the more experienced Bryant.

As for picking a winner in the district this season Coach Baumgarten says "As all coaches state, we won't have a thing, but we might win a game here and there. The Midland skipper had rather try picking a winner in the American or National league baseball race, or in the southwest conference than try to pick a winner out here where the oil field schools grow 'em big and stout."

With one of the best lighted fields in West Texas, fans this year will see an offense built around a double wing back, modified punt reverse T and a Notre Dame. The Midland defense will be baffling to the opposition, the Bulldogs will be drilled to change at any time the offense changes their attack with six different formations ready at any time.

Where War Birds Flap Wings in Italy

Poised for instant flight if the Spanish spark sets off the European powder keg, Italy's air force was reported held in a suddenly ordered "state of readiness" to offset any aid the socialist French government might offer radical Spanish authorities. This airview of the Littoria airport near Rome gives a remarkable glimpse of Italy's air power said to total nearly 4000 planes.

Drama Unfolds in Trans-Andean Flight

By HARRY W. FRANTZ
United Press Staff Correspondent

SANTIAGO, Chile (U.P.—By Mail)—The drama in a trans-Andean flight as jotted down by the correspondent:

At Mendoza, Argentine, rain clouds lift at 10:30 a. m. and the motors of an amazing Douglas two-motored plane are warmed. Into the air at 11:52 with a last look at the San Martin monument on the hill.

By 12:03 p. m. the plane is above the foothills and a great snow peak appears. Patches of blue appear through the clouds. The cabin windows begin to gather frost.

12:10—Sharp crags appear through the clouds and the Cordillera looms ahead. Across the aisle, a neighbor says, "It's wonderful!" Another warns the steward that he surely must see the Christ of the Andes at the summit.

12:15—The emergency landing field far below in the Uspallata Pass is visible. The agent's words are recalled, that the plane could fly the Andes with only one of its two engines; that if either should stop it could safely glide to a landing place.

12:17—The steward clears the window again. There is a black river winding through a snow field. The plane is flying at 13,500 feet; mountains off to the left, snow white, stretch an infinite distance in a jagged saw-tooth line. The temperature is 5 degrees above zero, but the Douglas cabin is as warm as toast.

12:22—Try a whiff of oxygen from the tube by the seat. There seems to be no effect. Attention quickly returns to the scene through the window. Snow-plumes blowing off castled crags.

12:15—The first spell of the sublime wears off, and passengers start joking.

"Nearest to heaven I'll ever get," says one.

The plane bumps a little, and the steward says, "Belts on, please."

12:27—Half the passengers peering ahead at Aconcagua; others impressed by the steward's reminder that this is his 250th trip across.

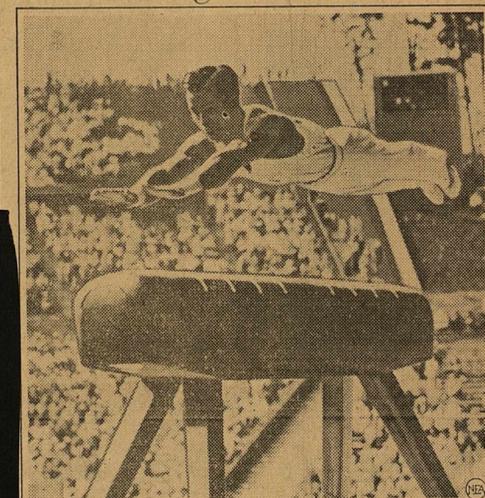

12:28—Eight degrees below zero outside now, the pilot room reports; some bumps and a slight rocking. An ex-Westerner shouts, "Ride 'em, cowboy!"

12:30—Company officer reports, "You're right over the Christ of the Andes, on the left"; but it cannot be seen through the cloud. Disappointment is countered by satisfaction that plane is safely over the backbone of the greatest mountain out to meet them—Dizzy or anybody else."

"I'm still trying to find out why Dizzy calls Tex 'bootblack.' Certainly, Carleton doesn't seem to take a shine to that appellation.

No Strings to This Stunt

By Harry Grayson

If Jerome Hamner Dean paid less attention to riding from the dug-out he'd never lose a ball game. This is the opinion of James Otto Carleton, who wishes he had the stuff that of Diz has in his right arm.

"Dizzy is the finest pitcher in 7 foot 2 inch specimen in 1934 within an hour's run of Port Isabel, has centered the attention of our Gulf Coast sportsmen upon this section as the potential sailfish territory of Texas.

baseball," says Carleton of the other half of the game's bitterest feud between individual players.

"Dizzy likes to dish it out, but he can't take it," asserts Carleton in discussing the trouble that burst into flame in the form of a fist fight at Sportsman's Park, St. Louis, the other afternoon.

The vendetta between Dean and Carleton dates back to a mid-September afternoon in 1934, when the Cardinals were battling down the stretch in a historic drive for the National League flag, which they captured on the final day of the campaign.

Carleton, who had been listening to Dean's chatter since 1931, finally grew tired of the former cotton picker's constant pluming of himself and his brother, Paul. He gave Dizzy a verbal dressing down which he suspects that the Great One has not forgotten.

"You know how it is when an organ grinder stands under your window and constantly plays those rusty tunes," explains Tex. "It gets on your nerves. You feel like pitching a brick out the window."

Dean and Carleton were the star slingers of the pennant-winning Houston club of the Texas League in 1931. They came to the Red Birds together the following spring.

"Dizzy is full of life, pep, and conversation," relates Carleton. "He's always on the go and his mouth keeps pace with his movements."

"I had a pretty fair season with Houston in 1931. I won 20 games and lost seven, and kept up with Dizzy, who won 26 and lost 10, until I hurt my arm about a month before the close of the season. I was unable to pitch for the last four weeks."

"Dizzy bragged when he won.
