PARKS CALVES CARLOT WINNERS AT EXPOSITION

Defeat Heavier Class For the Grand Championship

Grand championship in the feeder calf division was awarded to Roy Parks for his carlot entered at the Centennial Livestock Exposition, Fort Worth, yesterday.

Parks entered one load of steer calves there and reserved one for the Midland show and sale.

After taking first in the class for steer calves weighing 450 to 600 pounds, his load of Hereford calves defeated the first prize load weighing over 600 pounds, shown by the Spade Ranch, Colorado, the first prize load of steer calves weighing under 450 pounds, exhibited by Julian L. Bevins, Amarillo, and the first prize load of heifer calves belonging to F. M. Richards, Brady, E. C. Turkington, Leita, Iowa, was the judge. Premiums totaled $1,800.

A number of the cattle entered in the show did not arrive because of recent excessive rains in the range county.

The winners in the feeder cattle show by classes were as follows: Steers over 600 pounds—First, Spade Ranch; second, J. J. Koonsman, John H. Edwards, Ralph Geisler, O. C. Harper, J. B. Lacey, J. P. H. McMullan, R. L. Miller and C. W. Crowley.

Oil Tax Boost Proposed In House

Measure Will Come Before Members Thursday

May Bring Quiz

AUSTIN, Oct. 6 (AP)—The house set a proposed oil tax increase as a special order of business Thursday in a response to appeals for early floor consideration of new revenue-raising measures today.

The bill originally called for a levy to boost the tax from two to ten cents per barrel but the revenue committee changed the figures to two and three-fourths. Advocates said they wanted to rush the bill to the senate as soon as it is determined whether the rate is considered fair.

The special session for the purpose of raising revenue for old age pensions must end by constitutional limitation three weeks from today.

Floor consideration of the omnibus tax bill starts tomorrow.

PIPE DELIVERED TO COCHRAN WELL

Northern Pool Opener To Set 7-Inch Casing Near 4,930

By FRANK GARDNER

Seven inch casing has been delivered to the new discovery well in southeastern Cochran county, Honoluli, Cascade and Devonian No. 1. E. B. Duggan and operators will start running it today or tomorrow. It is their intention to set the oil string near 4,930 and cement it with 100 sacks. While waiting for the cement to set, they will erect storage and connect flow lines, and the well should be making new hole by the first of next week.

Estimated at 75 barrels daily as it stands, the No. 1 Duggan is thought to mean the opening of a new pool in an area over 25 miles north of any previous production in West Texas. It stopped drilling at 5,038 feet in lime, where oil rose 1,000 feet in nine hours. Gas volume was 1,000,000 cubic feet at that depth, but cavings have since killed the flow. The first showing of oil and gas is reported to have come in from 5,025 to 5,028, with increases from there to the present depth.

Location of the Cochran strike is in the center of labour 13, league 55, Oldham county school land.

Winkler Wildcat

K. D. No. 1 Mitchell, interesting southeastern Winkler wildcat in section 2, block B-10, public school land, is drilling lime below 2,172 feet.

Over four miles to the southeast, Read & Duffey No. 1 Sealey in section 8, block A. G. & M. M. B. & A. survey, is shut down in engine repairs at 1,130 feet in anhydrite.

Fields, Cherry & Finley No. 1 Lum Daugherty, prospective pool opener in northwest Winkler north of the Leck pool, according to late reports had nearly finished drilling plug from 5 1/2 inch casing set at 3,070, and will start washing hole late this afternoon. The well drilled broken pay from 3,120 to 3,157 before stopping to run pipe.

In the Sayre pool, Magnolia No. 33 Walton flowed 615 barrels in 24 hours after shooting with 200 quarts. It topped the pay sand at 2,824 and reached a total depth of 2,926.

Flows 303 Barrels

In the North Cowden pool of Ector, Alma Oil Co., No. 1-A T. P. Land Trust made a casing flow of 303 barrels in 24 hours after shooting with 440 quarts. Total depth is 4,210, with the pay section entered at 4,100.

A wildcat east of Penwell, York & Harper No. 1 R. L. York, is drilling with a dry hole below 3,991 feet in lime. It set 7-inch pipe at 3,904.

BEHIND THE SCENES IN WASHINGTON

By RODNEY DUTCHER
Reporter-Telegram Washington Correspondent

NEW YORK, Oct. 6.—Private polls and straw votes are the best available forecasts of election results, but this year members of both parties are finding comfort in them. That's because polls fail to agree. Out through the states Republican political workers are steamed up by substantial early returns from the Literary Digest poll which gave Landon a 3 to 1 lead over Roosevelt. Many Democratic politicians are correspondingly depressed. When they come in to campaign headquarters, however, the smaller fry are told in each case to keep their shirts on. Leaders who study the polls closely, and constantly check them with their own polls and other information, are not too deeply impressed. If the Literary Digest results are reasonably accurate as a forecast, this poll will have demonstrated its merit over all the others, but for various reasons the leaders in both parties are convinced that it isn't forecasting accurately, as it sometimes has in the past.

G. O. P. Cheered By Poll
Some Republican strategists who admit that Roosevelt may have a slight edge on Landon at this time insist that the poll is the finest type of propaganda for them and will inevitably have the effect of winning for Landon a major proportion of the vote now believed "on the fence."

The people, they say, believe in it more than the politicians do. Democratic computers admit that they may be true—but only in a small and inconsequential way, they say. Emil Hurja, their famous prophet, has told them that a poll wherein citizens are circled by mail, and there's only a maximum return of 15 or 20 per cent of ballots, is not as accurate as a smaller poll which gets returns from a much larger proportion of voters in a limited area.

His theory is that the first to reply in such polls are those who have a grudge and that no one can depend on a poll where the big majority of non-responders is an unknown quantity. Discrepancy Is Cited
Further, it is declared, there's a huge discrepancy in the numbers of Republicans and Democrats re-attending poll ballots. The recent Digest release showed about 247,000 of the 1932 Hoover voters reporting and 201,000 of the 1932 Roosevelt voters. The Democrats had a big majority of 1932 voters and it is argued that a poll to be accurate, should now show similar proportions among those who make up its "electorate."

And of course there's the familiar assertion that the Digest canvass, by taking names from telephone books and automobile registries, ignores millions of humbler citizens. Nevertheless, it will be recalled that this poll predicted a Roosevelt victory in 1932 and predicted Roosevelt would carry 41 states and possibly 46. Roosevelt actually won 42 states and the Digest was wrong by states only in giving him Pennsylvania and Delaware, and in giving Hoover Massachusetts, Rhode Island, and New Jersey.

F. R. Leads in Maryland
The most scientific poll this year is said to be that of the Baltimore Sun, which undertakes to cover every registered voter in Maryland and lately has been recording a 63 per cent vote for Roosevelt. Maryland has voted consistently for winners in national elections and an accurate poll there would be a truer barometer normally than a Maine September election. Recent polls in Ohio have pepped up the Democrats considerably. That of the Scripps-Howard Newspapers, which Hurja insists has a high degree of accuracy and intelligent operation, has been giving Roosevelt a higher percentage than he had in the 1932 election. Early reports in polls by the Cincinnati Enquirer and the Columbus Dispatch also give Roosevelt leads.

Close in Illinois
The Illinois State Journal at Springfield and the Chicago Tribune on the other hand show Landon with a small lead in polls of Illinois downstate area. But the lead is so narrow in normally heavy Republican territory that G. O. P. leaders are not getting any great thrill out of it. The Publishers' Autocaster Service polling through country newspapers, has shown a large Landon lead on 63,000 ballots. The American Institute of Public Opinion is giving Roosevelt 292 electoral votes and Landon 239. It will be worth while also to watch developments of the Hearst poll and the vote to be taken in New York state by the New York Daily News.

With polls differing as widely in their forecasts as some do now, it's probable that some agencies will get a high reputation for accuracy and others the reverse. It will be much easier to judge relative accuracy after election. The birch tree sheds its bark annually.

Some of These October Evenings Get Pretty Chilly

The Dry Issue Returns

The liquor question isn't settled yet, as the drys thought in 1920 and the wets in 1933. A vigorous battle again is raging to make the nation dry, starting in state, county and township contests. In a series of three articles, of which this is the second, the story of the fight is told from both the wet and dry viewpoints.

BY WILLIS THORNTON
NEA Service Staff Correspondent
More than three years of legal beer, and almost three years of legal liquor have produced results which wets and drys regard with different eyes. And when they come to interpreting those results, their conclusions are drawing farther apart every day.

Certain of the results are tangible. To supply legally the demand for both beer and liquors, an industry arose overnight. It employs today well over a million men. At least $90,000,000 has been invested in 287 distilleries and their distributing organizations, and 675 breweries are now turning out more beer each year than does Germany itself. Tax revenue to both federal and state governments has been immense, though smaller than some of the optimists estimates made by repeal advocates. By the end of the year, the best estimates are that it will be approaching a total of $2,000,000,000 collected by federal and state governments badly in need of it.

This tax yield is not, of course, a net gain. In Washington, for instance, there are nearly 4500 federal men engaged in collecting these taxes and suppressing bootlegging. However, less is being spent on this tax work than on prohibition enforcement at the end of that era. States, too, have regulatory forces whose cost must be charged against their income from beer and liquor taxes and license fees. That the net receipts to government through repeal are large, however, is pretty clear.

Bootlegger Still With Us
The federal government takes a tax of $2 on every gallon of hard liquor. The states add their tax, varying from 40 cents a gallon in Massachusetts to $1.10 a gallon in Maryland. Between 30 percent and 40 percent of the cost of a glass of beer is taxes, depending on your state. Experiment with these taxes has shown that when they are pushed too high they tend to put liquor prices up to the point where bootlegging begins to gain. For the bootlegger is still with us. In the early days of repeal, when stocks of aged liquor were small and high-priced, it was freely estimated that half the liquor consumed was bootlegged. Though there can be no accurate figures, it is now believed that it amounts to between 20 and 30 per cent. But "rum row," the fleet of boats waiting to land illegal liquor on American shores, is dead. The alcohol tax unit of the U. S. Treasury continues to raid stills a-bout 300 a week at present. A year ago it was 500 or 600. But the big-time violent beer and liquor racket which shook all the large cities before repeal seem to have definitely vanished. Today's bootlegger, while still prevalent, is not organized on a scale to challenge orderly government. No doubt it is this change that led John D. Rockefeller, Jr., to comment that "things are definitely better under repeal." Rockefeller whose money had been a strong support of dry organizations, was one of the last to leave the sinking ship of prohibition. Merging Tendency Noted

Even in the short three years since repeal, certain tendencies are seen in the resurrected "liquor business." Both brewing and distilling are tending to drift into fewer and fewer hands, like most businesses. Back in 1914 there were some 1200 breweries. In April of 1933 there were 177. That figure increased to 709 in June of 1934, and then dropped off to about 675. Where as in the "old days" only 25 per cent of beer was served in bottled form, now above 40 percent is so distributed. This and the general trend of business is tending to force consolidations and place the brewing business in fewer and larger hands. Brewing profits have not run to anything like the bloated figures of 1914. The evil of the "tied house" owned by the brewery and run simply as an outlet for as much of its beer as possible, has not reappeared as such, but drys contend that in disguised form it is again operating. One of the largest of U. S. breweries is now facing action in Michigan, charged with furnishing signs and buying licenses for beer gardens. The U. S. Brewers' Association, trade organization of the industry, is trying to aid in elimination of such devices, which both drys and thought ful wets recognize as an evil. There has even been talk in the industry of naming a "czar" to restrain practices that make it vulnerable to dry attacks.

Distillers Are Combining
The distilling interests, 90 percent of which are members of the Distilled Spirits Institute under direction of Dr. James Doran, the former prohibition administrator, are also tending to consolidate. Four large distilling combines now hold an impressive share in the liquor market. Dozens of small distilleries have been bought up or shaken out of the market since repeal. The race to build up stocks of whisky for aging is about over. There were only small stocks of legal whisky in storage when repeal came. All distillers started running full blast, to create reserves beyond the current demand for aging. A little later this year there will be stocks of around 300,000,000 gallons, more than at any time before prohibition. That is in the face of a demand for "hard liquor" that is far below the pre-prohibition average. In 1917 it was 1.62 gallons for each person in the country. Today it is just over a half gallon. This follows British experience, where the per capita consumption has fallen steadily for many years, being now about half the 1913 rate. What this means is that distilling may already have reached its quantity peak.

Beer Consumption Rises
Resuming the trend of many years before 1917, beer consumption has risen every year since repeal. But it is still so far below pre-war average to consolidate. Four large distilling combines now hold an impressive share in the liquor market. Dozens of small distilleries have been bought up or shaken out of the market since repeal. The race to build up stocks of whisky for aging is about over. There were only small stocks of legal whisky in storage when repeal came. All distillers started running full blast, to create reserves beyond the current demand for aging. A little later this year there will be stocks of around 300,000,000 gallons, more than at any time before prohibition. That is in the face of a demand for "hard liquor" that is far below the pre-prohibition average. In 1917 it was 1.62 gallons for each person in the country. Today it is just over a half gallon. This follows British experience, where the per capita consumption has fallen steadily for many years, being now about half the 1913 rate. What this means is that distilling may already have reached its quantity peak.

During 1935, the last year, for which figures are available, farmers sold 10,239,000 bushels of rye and 19,400,000 bushels of corn to distillers and 139,729,000 pounds of rice and 340,841,000 pounds of corn to brewers. How far this might be offset by a loss of dairy product markets is difficult to answer. Drys claim such losses are enormous, and more than balance the increased market created. This is the tangible, statistical side of repeal. But the growing fire of the drys is concentrated on the social effects, the intangible values.

Coal Mine Fire May Be Bridled After 52 Years
NEW STRATTSVILLE, O. (U.P.)—A smouldering coal mine fire that has burned for 52 years and destroyed millions of tons of "black gold" in this southeastern Ohio community soon may be extinguished. For the first time since 1884 there is promise that the malignant blaze will be blotted out by fire-fighters enlisted by the government. WPA engineers have surveyed the area, and found the fire-fighting project to be feasible from the standpoint of cost and available labor supply. Action on the undertaking depends on the response to the U. S. Bureau of Mines to a request for cooperation in supervision of the work by experienced mine engineers, according to Dr. Carl Watson, Ohio WPA administrator. The fire started during a mine strike in the Hocking Valley coal fields in 1884. Legend has it, infuriated miners loaded a barge with coal, poured kerosene over it, and sent the blazing mass hurtling into a mine shaft. The fire has burned an area of six square miles and destroyed coal estimated at $40,000,000. For long periods it is dormant and then suddenly bursts in a conflagration that threatens lives and homes.

The Town Quack

(Reserves the right to "quack" about everything without taking a stand on anything).

Herbert Spencer, who wrote his famous literature in the days when literature was appreciated for its worth, got off some philosophy which wouldn't be bad reading even in these days and times. For instance: "See, then, the extreme folly of clothing the young scantily. What father, full grown though he is losing heat less rapidly as he does, what father would think it salutary to go about with bare legs, bare arms and bare neck (in winter)? Yet this tax upon the system, from which he would shrink he inflicts upon his little ones, who are so much less able to bear it. Or, if he does not inflict it, see it inflicted without protest. Let him remember that every ounce of nutriment needlessly expended for the maintenance of (bodily) temperature is so much deducted from the nutriment needed to build up the frame and maintain the energies. The rule therefore to put on children clothing sufficient to protect the body effectually from the sensation of cold, however slight."

Spencer also wrote this: "An agreeable mental excitement has a highly invigorating influence on general health. See the effect produced upon an invalid by good news, or by the visit of an old friend. The truth is that happiness is the most powerful of tonics." "Success in the world depends much more upon energy than upon information; cramming with information undermines energy, and is self-defeating." "Men care little for erudition in women, but care very much for physical beauty, good nature and common sense."

New deposits during the Stakhanov year amounted to 1,158,000,000 rubles as against 668,000,000 rubles of new deposits during the corresponding year before Stakhanov. Moscow province, including the city of Moscow, registered the greatest increase of deposits, 684,000,000 rubles Sept. 1, 1936, as against 417,000,000 Sept. 1, 1935.

Alfonso Plans a Homecoming

Hints that former King Alfonso XIII plans to return to Spain if Rebels are victorious in the civil war there were given weight when Alfonso bought, at Milan, Italy, 10 road maps of northern Spain. He said he needed the maps to study his itinerary, but added he has not decided when he will start. Alfonso is sketched above from a recent photo. His estranged wife is in New York with their eldest son, who is ill.

Colored Nurse Talks To Christian Women

The members of the Missionary Society of the First Christian church met in their regular monthly meeting in the church Monday afternoon.

Mrs. Charles Brown, devotional leader, gave a splendid lesson on "Moving Forward Toward God Through Friendship," using as her Scripture, lesson 1, Cor. 13: 1-13; Samuel 13:1-4. Mrs. B. W. Stevens gave a solo at the conclusion of the worship period.

The society's theme for the year is "The Pageant of a Climbing Race," and at this meeting the guest speaker was Anna Mae Mathis, visiting nurse from the State Department of Health to the colored people of Midland county.

She spoke on the progress her people have made since the "gay nineties" and also on the needs of the negro race in our own community. Miss Mathis compared the situation here to the Macedonian call for help, saying her people are a weak race and need the help and moral support of the white races.

Her people in our midst are poorly housed, as many as eleven people living in a one room shack, with a lean-to; the water is scarce and has to be carried a great distance; they have no gas with which to keep warm; sanitary conditions are very bad, and the streets are almost impossible in bad weather. But conditions have improved greatly within the last few years, and are continuing to improve.

Wife Divorced After Second Set of Quads

FUKUOKA, Japan. (U.P.)—Women in other lands have won fame and fortune as the result of multiple births, but Mrs. Zenichi Sakata became the mother of two sets of quadruplets and was divorced. The Dionne quintuplet precedent and that of mothers who have borne four children at the same time did not hold true in the case of Mrs. Sakata.

In 1932 she gave birth to four children, but they died. This summer two boys and two girls were born at the same. All survived.

STORIES IN STAMPS

By I. S. Klein

FIGHTER FOR WOMEN'S RIGHTS

THE Sons of Temperance were meeting in Albany, in 1852. Men dominated the audience. Men dominated the platform. But one stern, determined woman of 32 demanded to speak. Howled down, Susan B. Anthony decided that henceforth she would devote her life to gaining equal rights for women.

In 1872, Miss Anthony walked into a polling place and demanded a ballot. She was arrested, tried, and fined $100. Defying the judge, she said she never would pay a cent of the fine. She never did.

These incidents characterize the woman who, more than any other in American history, fought unceasingly for women's suffrage and equality with men.

She organized the National Woman Suffrage Association in 1869 and became president of a reorganized suffrage society in 1892. She died in 1906, and it was not until 14 years later that her goal was reached in the form of the sixteenth amendment.

Now her picture appears on a new stamp, commemorating the sixteenth anniversary of the woman suffrage amendment.

Proper Leading of Ducks Problem That Puzzles Novice Nimrods

With ducks on their way south to wintering quarter, the outdoorsman sets aside his fishing rod, oils his shotgun, and prepares for a season of sport blasting away at waterfowl.

The biggest difficulty of the novice—and for some experienced nimrods, for that matter—is the amount of lead to use in various shooting situations. Another mistake some hunters make is shooting too soon.

Probably more birds are lost because hunters blast away before the birds are at least 25 yards from the blind than for any other reason. The nimrod shouldn't fire until he figuratively can see the whites of their eyes.

Don't Hurry Your Shot

Presuming you can refrain from shooting until the ducks are at least 25 yards from you, a lead of from two to three feet is about the average. In the accompanying diagram you can see just how to handle your birds as they swing into range for a shot.

Coming head on, lead the duck by aiming at his head—if a fast leader, aim a foot above the head.

In going away from a blind, the hunter should lead or aim at the duck's feet when it is not more than 15 yards away. Should the duck be rising, aim should be taken slightly above.

Direct shot at a duck crossing in front should be led about three feet ahead of the bird at a distance of 25 yards.

Flying in at a target, the lead on such a duck should be cut in half, or about a foot and a half ahead of the bird. The same applies in case of a duck going away at a tangent.

In shooting ducks leaving the water, hold fire until they begin to

Oilers Win Another From Southern Club

BIRMINGHAM, Ala., Oct. 6. (P)—The Tulsa Texas League Oilers went two up on the Birmingham Barons here Monday in their Dixie Series battle by overcoming the Southern Association champions 6 to 4 in a 14-inning thriller that was full of fast plays.

Ivan (Goober) Crawford lashed a single to open the 14th and Murray (Babe) Howell drew a pass. They attempted a double steal and Crawford was called out, but the umpires ruled Overman had balked, so both were safe. Bernie Cobb, bespectacled first basemen, then clouted a double to send them both home. The Oilers went into the ninth inning with a 4-2 lead, but the Barons chased Newell Kimball, Tulsa's ace and knotted the score at 4-4. Riggs Stephenson, former Chicago Cub start and now Birmingham manager, singled in the two tying tallies.

ESSO

Here's the motor fuel that delivers all the performance automotive engineers have built into that car of yours. Try it. Stop today at a Humble Service Station or at a Humble dealer's, tell the man at the pump to fill it up with Esso and—watch the difference. Test it in traffic and on the road; compare it with gasolines you've used. When you've tested a tankful, you'll be so pleased—you'll come back for more!

Esso is a premium motor fuel*, but if you're an average motorist, it will cost you only 5c a day more to get the benefit of Esso's superlatively fine performance. It's more powerful than any gasoline, accelerates faster, starts easier, has a higher anti-knock rating. Like all Humble products, it's continuously improved.

* In computing gasoline prices, don't forget that what you pay includes a State tax of 4c per gallon and a Federal tax of 1c per gallon. Gasoline is cheap, only the tax is high.

Like the proud cities of Texas, and the busy towns... Humble products are continuously improved

In 1836, Texas villages were scattered, homes were crude, population was scarce—in all not much to build on... These days, Texans are proud of their towns and cities. In neither will you find a placid contentment with things-as-they-are! New resources are being developed, new people are coming to town. The rat-tat-tat of a rivet gun signals new structures; the whine of a carpenter's saw indicates new homes a-building; industrial areas echo the clang and clamor of construction. Improvement is in the air!

HUMBLE KEEPS STEP with the continuous improvement of the towns and cities of Texas. It is a fundamental Humble policy to find new products for new needs, to conduct a never ceasing search for ways and means of giving the Texas motorist a better motor fuel, a more dependable motor oil, Humble technicians are ever alert to give you everything the automotive engineer asks of the petroleum industry. Continuous improvement is their slogan—and continuous improvement keeps Humble ahead.

When you drive through the proud cities of Texas and the busy towns, look for the Humble sign. Fill your tank with a Humble motor fuel, drain and refill with a Humble motor oil. Test both of them thoroughly, in your car... You'll come back for more.

Kept the Date —and Her Job

Because she kept a date with Rudy Vallee for a party at Rudy's Maine camp, Judy Stewart, above, was threatened with loss of her showgirl job in Boston. The manager of her troupe took her back after she had missed one performance, but Judy was still indignant over questions regarding a possible romance with Vallee. With two sisters, she once sang on Vallee's radio program.

INTEMPERANT MOUSE CAGED

COLUSA, Cal., Oct. 6 (U.P.)—Mice have need to learn of the pitfalls of intemperance. One slipped through the neck of a wine bottle here and drank the dregs. Then it puffed up so it couldn't get out. Two boys are keeping it alive by feeding it through the bottle neck.

RE FLAGS NOT "RED"

SANTA ROSA, Cal., Oct. 6 (U.P.)—County authorities have requested the public not to carry away red flags that are posted along the roadways. The authorities explain they are not signals for various communistic organizations, but merely markers for a statewide examination of secondary roads.

VEGETABLES PAINTED GREEN

ADELAIDE, Oct. 6 (U.P.)—Hugo Kuhlman, Adelaide, market gardener, was fined $80 for painting a yellow colored trombone green and selling it as a fresh and naturally green colored vegetable. Detectives said Kuhlman admitted spraying a number of trombones with green paint "to freshen them up."

Continued From Page One when they scored two runs in the first inning but their lead lasted only to the second inning when Powell hit a home run for the Yankees after Selkirk had tripped. They made one more in the third, two in the fourth, one in the eighth and seven in the ninth.

The Giants made one in the fifth, one in the seventh and one in the eighth to come within one run of the Yankees but blew up completely in the final frame. Moore's home run in the eighth with none on was the last Giant hit.

Fitzsimmons started on the mound for the losers but was relieved by Castleman at the end of the end of the fourth. Castleman lasted until the eighth, when he was relieved for a pinch hitter, Coffman started the ninth for the Giants but was taken out before he ever retired a man after four runs had scored.

Gimez started on the mound for the Yankees but was relieved in the seventh after one run had scored and the bases were loaded. Murphy retired the losers from that time on with Moore's home run as the only hit.
