FORMER PASTOR MIDLAND CHURCH IS BURIED TODAY

The Rev. O. J. Hill, 52, pastor of the First Baptist church at Tahoka, formerly pastor of the First Baptist church in Midland, and widely known in Texas Baptist circles, was found dead in his automobile about a mile and a half north of Tahoka Friday afternoon. Death was attributed to heart disease.

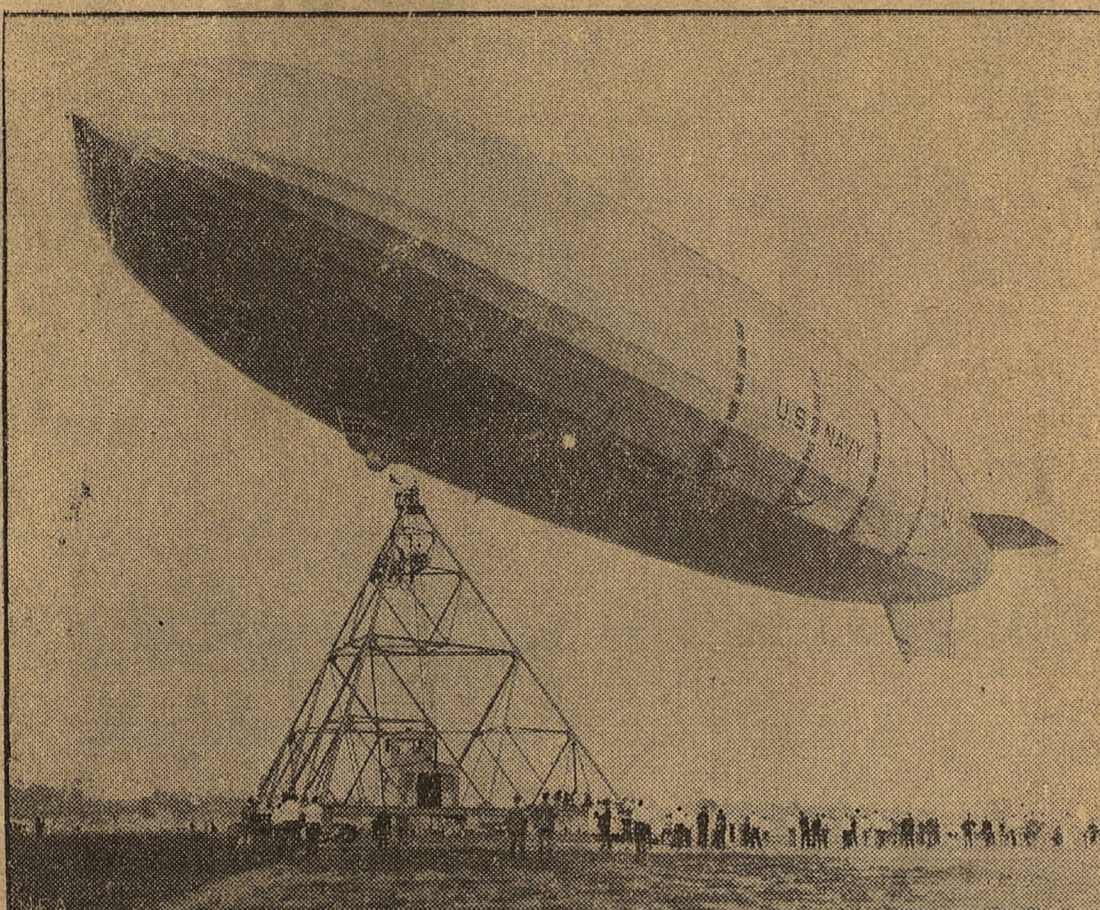

The funeral will be held at Tahoka at 10 o'clock this morning. Ray Hyatt of Midland will preside over a Masonic funeral service.

ABILENE, May 7.—Miss Doris Lynn Hill, a student in Simmons university, left Abilene late Friday for Tahoka, in response to a message that her father, the Rev. O. J. Hill, had died unexpectedly, the victim of a heart attack. Miss Hill was accompanied by W. C. Ribble and Ivan Flynn of Simmons, to Roscoe, where she was to be joined by relatives.

ECONOMIC IS SECOND; FIRST OFF

45,000 See Classic; Winner Takes $52,350

CHURCHILL DOWNS, May 7. (UP).—Burgoo King, Colonel E. R. Bradley's three year old, with jockey Laverne Fator up, carried the green and white silks to victory in the fifty-eighth running of the Kentucky derby Saturday, defeating eighteen other colts and geldings and one filly.

Economic was second and Stepenfitchit was third.

The race was worth $62,875 of which the winner took $52,350, the second horse $6,000, the third $3,000 and the fourth $1,000.

The crowd was estimated at 45,000. The track was fast and the weather good.

Burgoo King was four to one in the betting.

Time of Burgoo King over the mile and a quarter was 2:06 1/5.

Branden Mint, owned by Robert W. Daniel, was fourth and Whitney's Stepenfitchit by Earl Sande, was fifth.

The winner paid $13.24 and $5.09 as placer and $4.00 to show. Economic paid $15.62 as placer and $3.52 to show.

Twenty Start

With twenty horses lined up at the post, the Kentucky derby started with the second largest field in its 58 years of history.

Fourteen of the twenty starters behaved remarkably well at the post, while Tick On, favorite in the betting odds with 4-1 to 1, broke through the tape repeatedly and wore himself down somewhat before the start.

Although average starting line on American tracks is from one and a half to three and a half minutes, the derby Saturday required approximately 18 minutes before Starter Hamilton, weighing 220 pounds, quietly giving directions to the jockeys, could give the signal.

Besides Tick On, Cee Tee was a bad actor, and there was some difficulty in getting Callant, Sir Gallop, Hoops, Oscillation and Prince Potspur to stand quietly in their stalls.

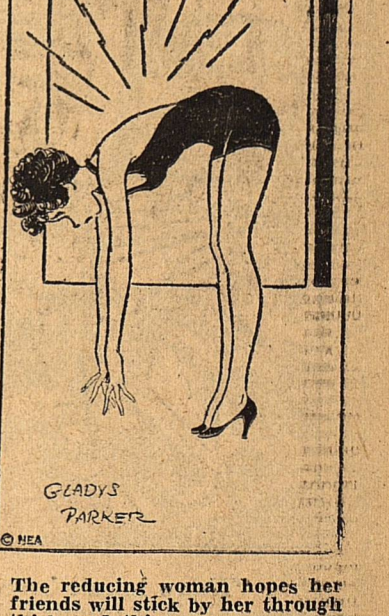

Liberty Limited broke through once, as did Brother Joe. Burgoo King made only one lunge, following Tick On, as he made one of his repeated mad sprints.

Overtime, ridden by Earl Sande, was quiet at the post.

Economic in Lead

Economic, owned by J. H. Jouchem, Jockey Horn up, broke first and was well in the lead as the quarter pole was reached.

THE WAY FAME WORKS

Edwin Markham, the poet, said recently that he wished people would forget, for a while at least, that he ever wrote a poem called "The Man With the Hoe."

This poem, which made him world-famous when he wrote it some three decades ago, and which is as much alive today as it ever was, follows him, he complains, like an evening ghost.

All of which, of course, is just another interesting little sidelight on the way fame works.

People like to couple a man's name with one outstanding feat. Once they do this the man's fame is secure, and he can bask in the knowledge that he won't be forgotten; but he may eventually find, as Mr. Markham has found, that he will never be given credit for doing anything else.

Consider, for instance, Richmond P. Hobson, whose long public career faded into nothing, in the public mind, beside the fact that he sank the Merrimac at the mouth of Santiago harbor during the Spanish war.

Then there are James Monroe, about whom the ordinary citizens knows absolutely nothing except that while president he formulated the Monroe doctrine; and Aaron Burr, remembered solely because he killed Alexander Hamilton in a duel; and Henry Clay, about whom we recall nothing except that he had a pleasing knack of devising compromises; and Stephen A. Douglas, who debated with Lincoln; and Benjamin Franklin, whom many remember only in connection with a certain kite-flying episode.

And so it goes. If you are ambitious, beware of a tag; it may make your fame endure, but it will also make it a bit lop-sided.

THOSE GOOD OLD DAYS

A New York hygienist the other day attained the front page by remarking that the good old days must have been pretty unhealthful. The old oaken bucket, the old swimming hole, the pies that mother used to bake—all of these, he said, may have been highly enjoyable, but they were "tawdry and unsanitary" and if modern life has got us away from them it is a good thing.

All of this may be quite true; but the gentleman really ought to pipe down before he raises a great prejudice against public hygiene. Most people, quite perversely, would rather be happy than hygienic; and if hygienists insist on pointing out the sanitary shortcomings in our most cherished old-time memories they are apt to persuade some of us that there can be things considerably more important than hygiene.

THE $2500 BORDER LINE

Action of the House of Representatives in exempting from the 11 per cent reduction in federal salaries all employees who earn less than $2500 a year will hardly call for any great protest from the general public, even if there is a crying demand for governmental economy.

After all, an income of $2500 is not exactly a luxurious one, even if there are several million unemployed men in the land today who would be tickled to death to be earning even half that much. When a man's pay is at that level, every dollar you take out of his weekly envelope is badly missed. Surely, it ought to be possible for Congress to reduce Uncle Sam's expenditures sufficiently in other ways to make it unnecessary to cut into the incomes of those employees who are below the $2500 line.

EDITORIAL NOTES

Congress, it seems, spends $800 a week printing speeches that were never delivered. A fact that will leave some persons speechless.

Evidently the bears who sell shares short are not the kind that hibernate during the winters of our economic discontent.

One Case Where It Would Pay to Carry All the Eggs in One Basket

$9 a Week Is the Average Salary of Hollywood Folk

By DAN THOMAS, NEA Service Writer

HOLLYWOOD, May 7.—So much has been said recently about the high salaries and the wage slashing in the movies, it seems only fair now to take a peek at a group that never has earned enough money to have its salaries cut—the extras—17,541 of them.

By far the largest individual group in the film industry, these extras always have presented a mystery to Hollywood: How do they live? For years I have heard the question asked. But never yet has anyone been found who could answer it.

Even the extras themselves don't know. They just seem to struggle along somehow, existing for days at a time on nothing but toast and coffee—without cream.

There was a time when the extra ranks were open to all comers. A boy or girl landed in town, started making the rounds of studio casting offices and that was all there was to it.

He or she got jobs—sometimes. That's the way a large percentage of our stars of the old silent days got into the movie game. Clara Bow, Janet Gaynor, Charles Farrell, Gloria Swanson, Norma Shearer, Richard Arlen, George O'Brien and a great many others all started that way.

But the extra ranks soon swelled to unmanageable proportions. Casting directors became so overwhelmed with jobseekers that they had time for nothing else. So the Central Casting bureau was organized.

announced since neither she nor Heath desired the publicity but it was a definite arrangement just the same. Aunt Jessie, home from the hospital, had been told of it. She had met Ernest Heath and had grudgingly liked him although she had grumbled at the idea of her marriage.

"I never expected to see you marry," she said, "Especially someone so much older. Not that he isn't a fine man. Anyone with half an eye can see that. It just don't seem right."

The starched nurse Heath had insisted upon providing for the convalescent husband into the room then and Aunt Jessie fell silent. The plan was that on the following day Aunt Jessie was to go to Florida in the nurse's charge. The marriage would take place the following morning.

"It don't seem right," Aunt Jessie went on when the nurse had disappeared, "to accept so much from a perfect stranger."

"He's not perfect stranger," Susan said, laughing, and then wondered if she had really spoken the truth. It had been strange and difficult for her to call her employer Ernest. She had finally managed it as she had learned also to like and admire the slim, quiet, aristocratic man she had promised to marry.

"Time for your nap," she reminded the invalid.

Aunt Jessie grumbled. "I declare I never expected to see the day when I'd sleep in the middle of the afternoon. I call it shiftless."

"You're a humbug. You really like it," Susan told her, leaving to get her wraps. Heath was calling to take her for a drive.

He looked at the girl with some dissatisfaction as she got into the car.

"What on earth's the matter?" Susan asked.

The Town Quack. (Reserves the right to "quack" about everything without taking a stand on anything.)

with the assertion that Columbus did not land at San Salvador. If the depression keeps up, we might decide the whole discovery was a mistake.

The Japanese government lost $200,000,000 on a single sale in its efforts to stabilize the price of silk, thereby proving that the nation is now 100 per cent westernized.

Hoover told the governors that they must cut down expenses. Now it's their turn.

An American delegate has informed the disarmament conference that the United States doesn't consider a battleship an offensive weapon. Again proving that it depends on whose foot the shoe is on.

Perhaps the stock market slump could be explained by stating that New York had such a mild winter the bears never were driven to cover.

Another historian comes forward arm hanging at his side, he managed to help Simon drag the limp figure of the boy into the car.

"Drive to Dr. Blake's in Bank street," he told Simon fiercely.

"You wait here!" Heath told Susan. "I don't want you mixed up in this."

"It's all right, Blake will attend to it in a few minutes. Don't worry. It's lucky this happened so near his office. I've known him for years."

Simon came out, waiting orders. Heath told him, "You're to take Miss Carey home and come back for me."

Susan asked timidly, "You'll telephone me later and let me know what happens?"

"Of course," she had never liked him as much as she did at that moment. She leaped toward him and said, "Softly and hurriedly, 'This boy hasn't any claim on me.'"

Heath shrugged.

"Blake says he doesn't know." (To Be Continued)

The Man Hunters. BY MABEL McELLIOTT. IFA Fiction. BEGIN HERE TODAY. Susan Carey is in love with Bob Dunbar, millionaire's son, Denise Akroyd, society girl, tries to break up the attachment and succeeds at a house party which she gives. Ernest Heath, Susan's employer, happens to be passing when Susan and Bob quarrel and takes her home. His wife threatens to sue for alienation of his affections but changes her mind when Jack Waring, assistant to Heath, produces an incriminating letter. Ray Flannery, stenographer in the next office, confides to Susan her distress on hearing that "sue" Webby has married another girl. Ben and Susan quarrel on Christmas eve over some flowers. Heath sent her. Waring, feeling Denise, leaves her of interference in Susan's affairs. Heath asks Susan to be his wife when his divorce becomes final. She hesitates. Her aunt undergoes a serious operation and Susan decides to marry him for the sake of security. NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY CHAPTER XXXIV Susan's engagement had not been the extra ranks. Joel McCrea, Betty Grable, and Lita Chevret were the only ones able to make the jump. All of the others, many of whom started on the legitimate stage, were given contracts before they ever stepped before a camera. For some inexplicable reason, stars don't work up from the bottom any longer. They start at the top, which might be cited as one reason for the industry's perilous condition today. Under the present system few new stars are being developed.

TWO BASEBALL GAMES; BUSHERS VS. P. V., ICEMEN VS. MEXICANS

BUSHERS TO PLAY AT BIZZELL DIAMOND

Two baseball games will be played in and near Midland this afternoon, beginning at 3 o'clock.

The Bushers will play Gilbert Brunson's Pleasant Valley nine at Bizzell park (which, incidentally, is nothing but a place where there is plenty of room since the windstorm blew down the park fence), and the Southern Ice club plays the Mexicans at the Mexican quarter.

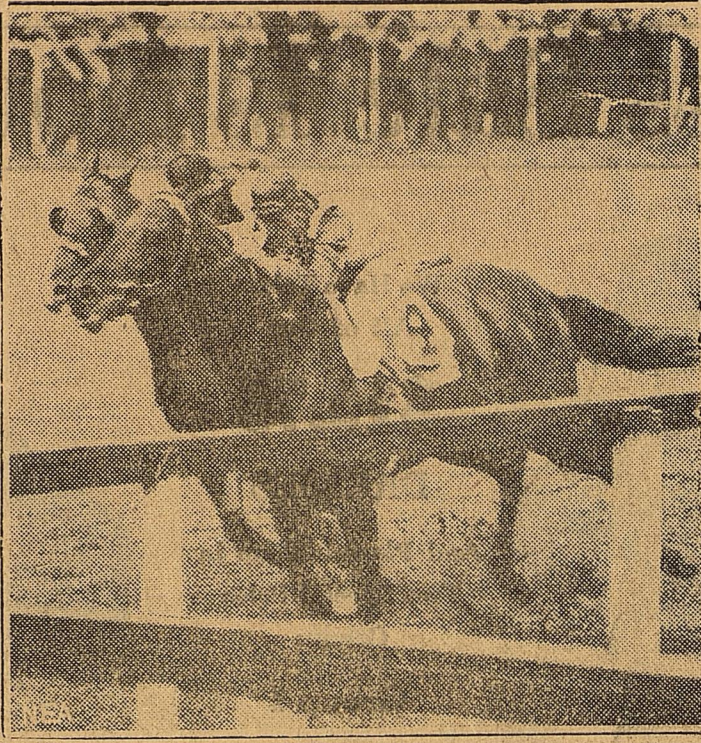

The Caballeros hold one decision over the Ice men this season, having defeated them 3-4 recently. The Bushers took the Mexicans to a royal drubbing last Sunday, the score being about 31-7.

For the next two or three Sundays the Bushers expect to be out of town, probably playing teams at Penwell, Wink and Pecos. Dr. David Ellis, team manager, has written each of those places for games.

Whitmore is likely to start on the mound for the Bushers, and likely will be relieved by Bill Howard. Joe Robinson will catch.

"Baker" Carroll, former Southwestern university baseball star, likely will be on the hill for the Ice men.

"Here's Mud in Your Eye, Top Flight"

It was a stunned racetrack throng that saw the scene pictured here—the victory of Universe, a 10-to-1 shot, in the eighth running of the Wood Memorial at Jamaica, Long Island. For Universe's triumph was accompanied by the calamitous defeat of Top Flight, the Kentucky Derby favorite, who came in a poor fourth. Universe, with jockey McAtee up, is seen finishing a winner, hard-pressed by Economic. Curacao was third.

Rubber Plantation On Amazon Gains

DETROIT. (UP).—More than 600 miles up the storied Amazon seed is being sown by between 2,000 and 3,000 men which Henry Ford hopes will mean the richest areas in the Western Hemisphere.

Since the first announcement by Ford that he would grow Para plantation rubber in the Amazon Valley four years ago, it is estimated that he has spent more than $8,000,000 on the project.

3,600 Miles from New York
Eoa Vista, just 610 miles from the port of Para and 3,600 miles from New York, is rapidly taking form in modern streets, homes and factories. But, it will be at least four years yet before any appreciable amount of rubber is produced.

For 100 years this province of Para was the chief source of the world's rubber supply. It reached the peak in 1908 when the Amazon Valley, including Para and other Brazilian states, as well as portions of Venezuela, Columbia, Ecuador, Peru and Bolivia, exported a total of 40,164 tons.

The crash in the South American market came in 1910. There suddenly appeared in the New York market clean, evenly graded cheaper Para rubber, taken from scientifically cultivated and operated plantations in Malaysia, 13,000 miles away. This was the beginning of the rubber monopoly

Stories Tell of Soviet Flights

MOSCOW. (UP).—Reports originating in Bucharest about starving Soviet peasants fleeing across the frontier to Rumania are matched perfectly by reports in Moscow about starving Rumanian peasants crossing the frontier for refuge in Russia.

The likelihood of the stories holds true down to the smaller details. If Bucharest is to be believed, Soviet soldiers are shooting down the oppressed peasants trying to cross the river Dniester into Rumania. If Moscow is to be believed, Rumanian soldiers are shooting down hungry peasants attempting to run away to Soviet territory.

It is not unlikely that there is a measure of truth in both stories. To some hard-pressed farmers in Bessarabia, under the Rumanian flag, Soviet Moldavia, on the other side of the river looks inviting. The Moldavians, on their side of the Dniester, have troubles, too—collectivization under direct or indirect pressure, grain quotas, collection of seed funds, etc. Some of them, no doubt, look longingly across the dividing line.

The Soviet press does not deny that some Russian peasants have fled to Rumania. It charges, however, that they are "kulaks" or peasants rich enough to own two cows and therefore unworthy of attention.

Hooks and Slides

The comeback vogue which Jack Dempsey seems to have started has spread afar. Now we have the spectacle of Johnny Dundee trying to call back the lost years.

The Dough Goes Home
Flyweight Babe Trisecaro, former amateur champion and winner of 13 straight fights since becoming a professional, has to borrow two bits from the folks when he wants to go to a movie. But that's his own wish, as he doesn't handle any of the money he earns by fighting, but lets his manager, Ollie Downes, take it home to the mama.

Carnera Loses
Primo Carnera was busted on the nose by a blond show-girl's straight left the other day, after which he took a right across to the chin. That probably puts him out of consideration for a bout with Jack Dempsey this summer.

Can't Miss Free Show
Jimmy Jennings, one of our New York operatives, sends along the information that the Schmeling-Sharkey fight scheduled for June 21 in New York will be postponed because a great many political big shots will be attending the national convention and would not be able to use their passes.

But He May Learn
This speaker offers the opinion that Stanley Hack, young third baseman of the Cubs, will be bunted out of the league unless he learns how to come in and get 'em with his throwing hand. It seems Mr. Hack likes to get both hands on the ball to be sure he has it before heaving to first, a delay that fast men in the National League would not be long in exploiting.

McGraw Changes Mind
John McGraw contributes the opinion that the three teams that will fight it out for the National League pennant this year are New York, Chicago and Cincinnati. Previously, Mr. McGraw had named as contenders New York, Chicago and St. Louis, so you may infer that he has changed his mind.

Youth and Age
Jerry Travers and Billy Howell will play "Bunny" and "Ducky" Corkran at Baltimore May 22 to help the Olympic fund along. Jerry won his first amateur golf championship six years before Billy Howell was born.

Not Enough Fish
Jack Sharkey begins his training campaign leading up to the Schmeling encounter by going fishing. He would have to fish a long while, however, to find enough to fill that stadium.

Frankie, Please Write
Frankie Frisch hasn't broken in to print lately. He is the second baseman of the world champion (1931) Cardinals and predicted in March that Dizzy Dean made the fans forget Burlleigh Grimes.

Paging Mr. Grimes
Meanwhile Mr. Grimes, who has been down with flu, has been of no help to the Cubs, but they have been winning without him. When Mr. Grimes gets going, Mr. McGraw might have something else to say about the pennant race, but it wouldn't be anything for print.

And Loudly, Too!
Floyd "Babe" Herman is not a radio broadcaster, but every time he makes a base hit in Cincinnati, it echoes all over Brooklyn.

Grapplers Get It
M. Jacques Curley, whose wrestlers are swarming all over the country, has been forced to move from his little office into a suite in the Times building. Maybe the wrestlers will bring back prosperity. At least they have brought it in certain quarters.

Bud Goes to Work
Bud Teachout's vacation is over. Bud is the pitcher sent from the Cubs to the Cardinals in the Grimes-Wilson deal. The Cards didn't have enough uniforms to go around, so Bud had to sit in the stands most of the time. Now, Bud has been sent to Rochester, Cardinal form. Maybe the Cardinals' front office figured that would be cheaper than acquiring another uniform.
