ODESSA, May 10.—Hal Racanier, proprietor of the Midget cafe in Odessa, was indicted today by the grand jury for murder with malice aforethought in connection with the fatal shooting of Lucien "Lam" Dunne, well known West Texas rodeo star.

The shooting occurred April 23. District Attorney W. R. Smith, Jr., will try the case Monday, May 16. J. Howell Kirby, Odessa attorney, formerly of Ft. Smith, Ark., will defend Racanier.

High School Play Is Well Attended

One of the largest casts of a high school production presented the comedy, "A Lucky Break," to an appreciative audience of more than 350 Monday evening at the high school auditorium.

Many declared the play to be highly entertaining and well directed.

Almost 50 members of the senior class had roles in the production.

The Catalco staff, sponsor of the play, received $132 from ticket sales.

"Bottle" Revenue Assists Welfare

"Bottle banks" of the Welfare association were opened Monday and a revenue of $3.04 was realized.

The Midland Mercantile bank had the most money, 71 cents. That of the City Drug company was second with 62 cents and M System third with 31 cents.

Goodman Cattle Top L. A. Market

Cattle raised in the Midland country recently topped the market at Los Angeles. The calves were sold by Leon Goodman to Furneaux Bros., Panhandle cattlemen. The Midland rancher sold 700 head to Furneaux, who later shipped them to Los Angeles. Following is a livestock journal report:

A new high top for the year was established in the cattle division at the Los Angeles Union Stock yards when Frank M. Hauser, president of the Hauser Packing company, sold $150 a cow for two carloads of choice fed Texas baby beefs, fed by Furneaux Bros., extensive feeders in the Texas Panhandle. Hauser stated the calves were from the Gateway stores. The two carloads of steers were evenly covered and full of real quality, carrying remarkable fleshing for young animals. They were Hereford for two carloads and value of using registered Hereford bulls in a commercial cattle herd.

The cattle averaged 728 pounds.

Although the price paid was the highest since last November, Hauser, who has a keen appreciation of good quality beef, could not resist buying these cattle. For more than 50 years the Hauser Packing company has handled prime beef and under the direction of the son of Julius Hauser, founder of the pioneer Los Angeles meat packing company have been carried on.

"The best way to increase meat consumption is to offer consumers the best quality meat possible to produce," remarked Hauser. "We have endeavored to demonstrate in a practical way that we want to encourage the production of choice beef. Just as in any other business, we are in business to make money. We have found that the most money is to be made in handling good quality meats. For that reason, we have been glad to pay premium prices at the Great Western Livestock show. I believe the records show that we were the largest buyers at the 1931 show."

Furneaux Bros. have been regular shippers to the Los Angeles market. The firm is one of the largest cattle feeding outfits in the Southwest.

New Orchestra Pleases Public

Midland's newest orchestra, the Prairie Nightingales, met with much favor at its first dance engagement last week, and couples from Big Spring and Odessa plan to be here for the dance this Saturday night.

Harmony of orchestration of the new group which is made up of five members, is outstanding, and there are several clever novelties. Thomas Inman plays two clarinets, Ed Watts and Miss Mae Moyer are featured in vocal choruses, and Miss Moyer and Walter Elkin do instrumental solo choruses.

The orchestra will play dances each Saturday night except the last Saturday of each month.

Bellowing Huey a Thorn In Side of Senate Dems

By NEA Service

WASHINGTON, May 10. (UP)—Senator Huey P. Long, the celebrated "Kingfish" from Louisiana, is likely to worry the Democratic party more than it will be able to worry him if he persists in trying to act his self-appointed role as its bellowing conscience.

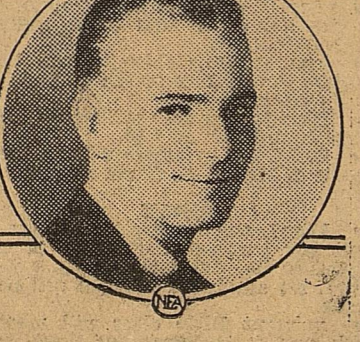

They haven't been able to sit on Huey yet and they probably can't. He has served notice on the party leadership to go chase itself, to the great mortification of some Democrats and the secret delight of others.

There is reason to believe that Huey nurses presidential aspirations which may blossom four years hence (and, as the most radical champion of the "underdog" now doing business on the Senate soundings board, it is not unlikely that he will accumulate a popular following in the next few years).

Rattles Skeletons

Most folks here don't believe that Huey is anyone to take very seriously, but he seems bent on rattling what are often considered skeletons in the Democratic closet and there

To Wed Soon

Martha Martha Fall, 18, granddaughter of Albert B. Fall, former secretary of the interior, gave up a movie career to become a reporter and now is going to give up reporting to become the bride of Allen M. Hunter, shown with her above. Both work on El Paso papers. "I may continue to work after I'm married," she says. "I won't take me long to cook all I know about." She expects her grandfather to attend the wedding if his health permits.

SOVIET REVEALS BAD FAILURES IN ITS PROGRAM

MOSCOW, May 10. (UP)—Soon after disclosing the temporary break down of production at the Nichino-Novorod "Ford" factory, government and Communist Party organs also revealed serious failures at other plants and on construction jobs.

"For a just appraisal of the gigantic work under way here, it is essential to view it as a whole. If attention is focussed only on some striking example of failure—like the stoppage of the conveyor at the Nichino-Novorod plant—a one-sided understanding of the situation is the result. The focussing of attention only on the outstanding achievements brought losses estimated at 10 million rubles in the zinc combine work at the Anzob automobile factory in Moscow—is equally misleading.

"Russians do not use the words 'failures' and 'successes' at all. They talk in terms of 'defects' and 'victories.' The language of war best expresses the country's mood in its final year of the Five Year Plan.

Zinc Combine

Following close upon the Central Committee's sharp attack on mismanagement, which resulted in the cessation of production at the Soviet "Ford" plant, came a report by the government on similar failures at the Constantinovka zinc combine. The facts set down in the report are striking enough.

The zinc enterprise was opened permanently on November 1, 1930, when it was less than half ready for operation. The attempt to operate under those circumstances brought losses estimated at 10 million rubles. The production program of the establishment for 1931 was carried out by only 18 per cent. The chief reason for the trouble was that the plant was not ready.

RAINFALL OVER AREA IS HEAVY

Total Rainfall Here
Since April 22
5.98 Inches

Two rains, each of which measured more than half an inch, fell in Midland Monday night and on Tuesday morning, bringing the total precipitation for this "rainy spell" to 5.75 inches. Another rain of .23 inch fell later today.

The rains did a slight amount of damage, according to reports here, it being said two automobiles were damaged. Stanton suffered a heavy hail storm.

Trains from the east were held up several hours by washouts east of Big Spring, and traffic was delayed west of that place by high water rushing over the Broadway of America.

The morning mail train from the east did not arrive until 11:30, about three hours late.

The mail planes did not arrive from either direction.

Many pastures and farms were dotted with large lakes. Ranchmen said so much rain had been absorbed by the ground before the downpours of Sunday, Monday and today that lakes will hold water for long periods.

The rain in Iran, McCamey, Big Spring, Florey and Seminole reported heavy rains but Fort Stockton and Lovington apparently received no precipitation.

Since April 22 there have been six good days of rain in Midland, the least precipitation being slightly less than half an inch. The following table shows how the fall has been secured:

April 22	.21
April 26	1.53
April 27	1.33
May 6	.43
May 9	1.50
May 10	.98
Total	5.98

Estes' Ankle Is Getting Better

Ed Estes, Midland rookie with the Pine Bluff, Ark., baseball club, seems destined to "stick" if his ankle mends, judging from a letter to Dr. David M. Ellis from Dr. J. H. Deegan, Pine Bluff, one of the doctors of the club, and an old friend of Ellis.

"The letter says, in part: 'We have kept our eyes on Estes and he surely looks good. I had one of the boys bring him up to the office last week, and found him a good boy.'

"I developed a sprained ligament in his left ankle, but he has been given a contract in spite of his failure lately to work out. He signed with the club owners May 2. Keeping of Estes, however, is with the proviso that his ankle heals right away. We must start the season. I have worked on his ankle every day and I believe it will be in shape."

"Tell the Midland ball fans to write Estes. He will do better in case support is given him, I'm sure."

Fuhrman Boner Test Unchanged

Fuhrman Petroleum corporation's No. 1 F. Boner and others in Andrews county had drilled to 4,494 feet in brown lime this morning unchanged. The test continued making about one barrel of fluid hourly, most of the oil coming from 4,310-15 feet and a small amount of salt water through the 6 1/2 inch casing, which was cemented to 934 feet.

According to some correlations, No. 1 Boner was due at around 4,465-80 feet to reach the horizon in permanent limestone. The test of five Andrews county wells, three-quarters of a mile to the northwest, obtained its first increase and best pay from 4,387-96 feet. With an elevation of 1,195 feet, compared to No. 1 Ford's 3,186, No. 1 Boner has been running lower structurally than No. 1 Ford, generally reported from 85 to 100 feet or more lower.

Howard County Rig Is Destroyed

While swabbing at the rate of 35 barrels daily, natural rig of the H. J. Wallace and others' No. 1 Bell, important eastern Howard county oil test, was destroyed by fire at 10 o'clock Sunday night.

The fire started when gas was ignited from an electric light wire from which a light bulb had been broken by a part blown from the casing head by gas.

The Wallace test appeared to be one of the best of the best yet drilled in the Denman-Dodge area. It had tested 15 barrels daily from the upper pay, 2,480-3,520 feet. The second pay, found at 2,760-2,800 feet, brought 710 feet of oil into the hole in 12 hours.

An increase in oil was found at 2,820-28 feet. Total depth is 2,855 feet.

The well is 1,960 feet from the south and 2,320 feet from the east lines of section 12, block 30, township 1 south, Texas & Pacific railway company survey.

Burgoo King Flashes Down the Stretch to Victory With the Pack at His Heels

The smashing victory scored by Burgoo King in the 53th Kentucky Derby at Churchill Downs, is shown above. Burgoo King, with an impressive five-length lead, is pictured at the top flashing across the finish line to score for his owner, Col. E. R. Bradley. This was the third Bradley Derby by victory, an unsurpassed record for a horseman. Economic, which placed after leading the field for nearly all the way around, is shown slightly in front of the pack. Below, Burgoo King is shown wearing the floral wreath of triumph as he poses in front of the judges' stand. At the right, a mounted policeman is pictured escorting "the king" to that exclusive spot, the winner's circle. The jockey is Eugene James, and his skillful ride on the winner made it a clean sweep for the Blue Grass country, since owner, jockey and horse are "Kentucky bred."

Currie's Old Lawsuit to Be Continued Thursday

Another chapter to a long-drawn-out law suit will be drafted Thursday when Frank Stubbeman, of the law firm of Haag and Stubbeman, goes to El Paso to appear in the case of Henry Currie vs. The Home Insurance company.

Since Currie's home burned here in October, 1929, there has been a steady legal controversy. The total loss of property was in excess of $3,000 and the plaintiff alleges he did not recover. The house was insured by two policies, aggregating more than $3,000, and counsel for the plaintiff filed a blanket charge. The amount being over $3,000 and the insurance company having headquarters out of Texas resulted in the case and it was tried at Pecos in early 1930. Judgment was found for plaintiff, but the defendant appealed, the case going to the circuit court of appeals which sits at Fort Worth once a year. Plaintiff's counsel cited presidential decisions in like cases as made by the Texas supreme court, but the circuit court held against the plaintiff, reversed the case and remanded it to Pecos for trial.

In order not to have the same procedure result, plaintiff through counsel dismissed the case against defendant, intending to file anew in a state court, bringing action in two charges, feeling he had two definite causes of action inasmuch as he had two insurance policies on which to sue. Defendant, in the meantime, went before the federal court at San Antonio and petitioned for a temporary injunction against refusal of the case until it could be reviewed, and it is expected that defendant will ask a permanent injunction Thursday.

Plaintiff feels certain he has two causes of action in the case and, that because of this, the state court has jurisdiction. District Judge Charles L. Klapproth gave an opinion on the case during the last term of district court and passed on the law without touching on the facts, favoring the plaintiff's contention.

SAN ANGELO, May 10. (UP)—The storm, which threatened the Akron, caused several houses here and caused minor damage to automobiles.

The Akron passed during a terrific hail and thunder storm.

Prepare for Thousands To See Ship at "Frisco"

SUNNYVALE, Calif.—As the U. S. navy's Akron drove westward today, activity was increased here in preparation for receiving the giant craft at this new Pacific-coast dirigible base.

While navy officials worked out plans for safely tying the world's largest lighter-than-air craft to a temporary mooring stand, highway patrol officers turned to the task of handling the crowd of 200,000 who expect to gather here.

Acres of orchard land in the vicinity have been graded and cut into space for automobiles. Approach roads have been oiled, smoothed and surfaced. Food stands and refreshment booths have sprung up.

Seventy traffic officers of the state highway patrol have been assigned to the area.

The ship sent flashlight signals. (See AKRON page 4)

DIRIGIBLE AT ANGELO FOR HOURS

Heavy Winds Buffet Craft, Lightning Streaks Path

Various unofficial reports received here during the day informed Midland the dirigible was headed this direction. The U. S. army radio station at Sloan field was unable to establish contact with the ship, although Big Spring's American Airways radio station received word from a radio operator aboard the Akron that she was headed for Midland or Pecos. At 2:20 unofficial word was received at Sloan field that the ship was over Big Spring and was headed west.

SAN FRANCISCO, May 10. (UP)—The Akron expects to reach San Antonio this afternoon, the naval radio station said this afternoon.

Spends Several Hours Soaring Over Southwest

The Akron circled several hours over southwest Texas early today receiving weather reports, then soared westward toward the Davis mountains 8,000 feet high. The ceiling was 805 feet.

The ship was over Dryden the second time at 8:30 and later at Sanderson, 20 miles west. An hour later it was back over Langtry, 45 miles east of Dryden.

The ship radioed it planned a course to Van Horn, via Alpine and Marfa.

The craft can remain in the air a week and no concern was felt for the exhaustion of fuel.

The Akron was safe over the Rio Grande valley and turned northeast after a night in storms in southwest Texas.

The head of the principal women's organization against prohibition asserts the Eighteenth amendment is "poisoning the national life." the man HUNTERS BY MABEL McELLIOTT

BEGIN HERE TODAY

Susan Carey, pretty secretary, is in love with Bob Dumber and has a proposal of marriage from Ben Lampman, penniless musician. She refuses him. Ben is jealous and several weeks later when Susan agrees to marry Ernest Heath, her employer, Ben shoots at Heath, then turning the gun on himself. Meantime Denise Cronoy has informed Bob that Susan is going to marry Ben. Ben's condition is serious and Susan is distressed. Jack Waring, Heath's assistant, tells Bob Susan is still free. Bob tries to find her but cannot. Susan's aunt who is ill goes south and Susan stays with friends. She does not get Bob's message.

NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY

CHAPTER XXXVI

Susan did not sleep at all the night of the shooting. She lay tense and shivering, wondering what would happen on the morrow. Each time she closed her eyes she could see that horrible scene again. Ben shot at Heath and then at himself. How could she have dreamed that jealousy would drive Ben to such lengths? What if the newspapers should hear of the affair? Heath's position and hers would lend themselves to vivid headlines. No, she would not even think of such a thing. Heath had assured her the matter would be hushed up. But what if Ben died? It would be difficult keeping that quiet. The whole world's story would be blazoned before the world.

"I mustn't let Aunt Jessie know," Susan said to herself. "She must leave in the morning without finding out anything about it." Somehow the girl arched her shattering forces. She lashed herself into a state of calm so that the older woman suspected nothing. Cradling a little, but well pleased on the whole, the invalid allowed herself to be stowed away in a drawing room with the evening nurse. The train men began to give warning and Susan kissed the thin cheek, feeling a rush of emotion.

"You be good now," she admonished. "Do just as you're told and you'll be fat and sassy in no time at all." Aunt Jessie promised with unexpected meekness. "I feel easy about you as long as you're staying with the Miltons," she said. Susan dashed to the platform, stepping off just before the train began to move. She ran after it, waving for a minute or two. Then suddenly it dwindled to a mere speck along the track. She felt forlorn. She was quite alone now. It was it or was it not a bad omen that the expected telephone call had failed to come through before she left the house? She felt now that she could not possibly wait to know of Ben's condition until returning home. She stopped at a pay station and called the number of Heath's club. After a long wait, during which her heart palpitated frighteningly, she heard his voice.

"How is he?" she asked fearfully. "He had a bad night," Heath told her, "and he's running a high fever but Blake says it's not alarming and you're not to worry."

"Where are they keeping him?" Susan wanted to know. Heath mentioned the name of a small private hospital. "It's going to be all right," he told her cautiously. "There's no need to worry. Blake has fixed everything."

Susan understood and was grateful, but she was not entirely reassured about Ben's condition. A high temperature might mean many things. She never knew how she got through the day. It was a godsend to have the task of straightening the house after Aunt Jessie's departure. There were innumerable little things to do but as Susan went about these tasks, she listened apprehensively for the telephone to ring. Ben must get better. He simply must!

At four o'clock she went to Rose's home. Mrs. Milton noticed the girl's silence and put her down to a natural reaction following her aunt's illness.

"Your aunt's going to do fine now. Don't you think another bit about it," Mrs. Milton said. "Let's you and I have a cup of tea, lovey." Mrs. Milton eyed her young companion appraisingly. "You look mighty peaked to me," she announced. "Did you have any lunch?" "I don't remember. No, I guess I didn't."

The Town Quack

The name Burgoon King has become a common word in local conversation since the colt bearing that cognomen raced in five lengths ahead of any other Kentucky Derby entrant Saturday. And now they are planning to run Burgoon King in the Preakness at Pimlico, Md., Saturday.

I suppose that was where I saw Mr. Timber and Jay Floyd going this morning. They had a double trailer on behind their Chevie and turned east at Main and Texas with what looked like Four Mile and Split. The two mounts were all trimmed up like they might have been going visiting.

Wasn't it funny how that horse Burgoon King got his name? His owner, Col. Bradley of Lexington, sampled some burgoon that had been cooked by a Lexington grocer and said, "You are the king of burgoon makers. I'll name a horse for you and he may win the derby." And he did and the horse did.

That reminds me of an entertainment. That was why they had sent for her. She was led down a narrow corridor flanked on either side by closed doors. The music of the place, the antiseptic scent that hovered in the air weighed on her spirit. Before one of the doors Heath paused and knocked softly. A nurse's face appeared in the aperture. She nodded to him.

"Yes, you may come in," she said. "He's awake now."

Susan entered on unwilling feet. She scarcely dared to look at the face on the pillow of the high hospital bed. Ben's eyes were open, staring in her direction. Susan glanced around her wildly. Heath had vanished and only the nurse, cool and businesslike, remained at the foot of the bed.

"You may have two minutes," she said in a matter of fact voice, "and that will be all. The doctor," she added to Susan, "doesn't want him to become excited."

Ben's voice sounded unnatural, strange. She had to go very close to understand what he was saying. "Sorry, sorry. Terribly sorry," he was muttering. "Want to tell you?" Susan bent over him with a rush of pity. "It's all right," she assured him. "It wasn't really your fault."

Those had been the right words. She saw that instantly and was glad, she knew, too, that she had spoken the truth. Ben had been the victim of a fever, a madness. She understood that. She had felt something very like it that night when she had seen Denise with Bob. Jealousy was a fearful thing. It was a beast that drove you to unexpected violence.

She was glad she had said that. The sick boy's face lighted up. "Better now," he muttered. "Think I can sleep."

"That's fine," the nurse interjected. "That's just lovely. Sleep is what you need right now." She motioned Susan out of the room.

Susan felt shaken but somehow exalted. Heath, pacing up and down the corridor, was startled by the luminous light in her eyes. She took his arm impulsively.

Offie Walker, at the Willis Truck and Tractor Co., was doing some trading yesterday, according to reports, to get a race horse. It was reported that his first deal was to swap a mule for a mare, with plans for swapping this mare for a filly, and so on until he got the sort of horse he wanted. Offie had better watch or he will wind up with a willow-tilt.

Pola Negri in Her First Talkie

Great interest is being manifested by theatregoers of this city in the opening at the Grand theatre Thursday of "A Woman Commands".

This is the EKO-Radio picture which marks the return to the screen of one of its greatest favorites, Pola Negri.

Three years ago, when she was at the very peak of her fame, Miss Negri deserted the screen to return to Europe.

Advance reports indicate that Pola has never before been as superb as in "A Woman Commands."

The story, written by Thilde Forster with Miss Negri in mind, is said to suit the fiery star to the smallest detail.

Appearing with Miss Negri is a cast of talented and popular players, Basil Rathbone, handsome romantic actor, and Roland Young, exponent of subtly sophisticated comedy, have the leading roles opposite the star.

Others of note who fill important roles are H. B. Warner, Anthony Bushnell's Reginald Owen, May Boley and Frank Reicher.

Former Reagan Sheriff Defended

AUSTIN.—W. Gregory Hatcher of Dallas, former state treasurer, filed his answer to a suit brought by the state against R. W. Weatherly, former sheriff of Reagan county.

Hatcher and others, for recovery of $10,000 allegedly paid Weatherly erroneously in remitting for a claim presented by him.

S. H. Terrell, former state comptroller, and Robert Goodfellow, former warrant clerk in the comptroller's department, and the bondsmen of all named as defendants were others sued.

The state alleged the state paid Weatherly $11,171.05 for a fee claim of $1,171.05.

Hatcher said in his answer that the detailed work of the treasury department was carried on by employees provided for by law and that he had never seen or heard of the warrant until a few weeks ago.

He said the warrant was drawn by the comptroller's office and that in figures, written on a typewriter, in one corner was $1,171.05 and that in the body of the warrant, written with a typewriter, were the words eleven thousand, one hundred seventy one and 05/100 dollars.

Hatcher's answer said that the appropriation clerk in the treasury department regarded the figures as correct and without reading the body of the warrant entered in the register the sum of $1,171.05, and that afterwards when the warrant was presented through a bank for payment, $11,171.05 in figures had been written in with pen and ink and the depository manager paid and ordered paid the sum of $11,171.05.

Hatcher asked the court to make Charley Lockhart, present treasurer, and his bondsmen, parties defendant to the suit. Lockhart, it was alleged, was employed in the treasurer's department under Hatcher at the time of the Weatherly transaction.

Weatherly is a candidate for sheriff of Tom Green county.

LUCKIES PROGRAM

The guest speaker in the national political forum broadcast during the Lucky Strike dance hour Thursday, May 12, follows: Senator Tom Connally, of Texas, who will speak under the auspices of the Democratic party.

The Lucky Strike dance hour is broadcast over a nationwide NBC network at 10 p. m. eastern daylight saving time.

The number of persons on the federal payroll has increased five per cent since 1929.

Huey Long--

and that his attack had no dampening effect on the ebullient Mr. Long.

It appears that while Joe, who is generally felt to have done his level best to keep the Democratic party as conservative as the Republican, has his tender spots, Mr. Long's hide is tough all over.

In effect, Huey called Joe a traitor to Democratic ideals, a buddy of the plutocrats and an enemy of the unemployed poor. In effect Joe called Huey a nitwit, a blowhard, a grandstand actor and a false alarm.

But after Joe was through with his biting sneers, Huey went right on with his shouting and spitting, uttering unceasingly every time he sounds off. Huey has at least five more years in the senate.

A Potential Threat

And, sooner or later, he may have to be taken seriously. If it is true that millions of persons in the country are ripe to follow a demagogue who can dramatize an alleged issue between the rich and the poor, Huey may be able to swing the assignment, successful demagogues in the past have never had to be intellectual heavyweights.

Huey's proposal to limit incomes to $1,000 a year is a radical proposal. It is not so radical as the proposals to take, but if he harps on it long enough and loud enough it may attract plenty of popular support among the masses.

His battles Huey thinks he is fighting.

Meanwhile Huey probably will continue to try to convince the congress that the Democratic leadership in Congress is a mere imitation of the Republican, playing "Wall Street's game" and giving the forgotten people of the country.

Although his efforts will hardly be fatal to the party in 1932, the Democrats hardly relish the thought of Huey hollering in the country whose battles Huey thinks he is fighting.

It is supposed to be a closely guarded political secret and when a politician's name is mentioned in connection with it he automatically steps beyond the pale.

to operators on the ground asking that the city's entire population be notified by radio of an attempt to ground the dirigible.

Thunderstorms were reported in virtually all directions and there was a violent electrical display over the Pacific coast for naval maneuvers.

At midnight the ship was hovering over Christoval, a few miles southwest of San Angelo, while 600 or more San Angelo residents were ready to help land it here.

The crowd was assembled through the use of a radio, telephone, messengers and the fire siren. Each person telephoned was asked to phone two or three other persons and head towards the airport.

The Standard-Times radio station, KGKL, had gone off the air but it came back on to tell of the ship's desire to land.

It was raining hard here and the electrical storm was violent. Observers believed the ship retreated to Christoval to wait until the storm had ceased.

The airport here comprises 250 acres, one of the largest landing fields in West Texas. Residents were at a loss to know to what the ship could be moored, as they said the hangar wouldn't hold it.

Capt. Homer Freed, disabled veteran of the air corps, saw signals which he took to be distress warnings when the ship approached San Angelo shortly after 10 o'clock. He telephone Major Fred Martin at Randolph field, San Antonio. Major Martin got in communication with the ship then told Captain Freed to have a landing crew assembled.

The six hundred or more were gathered in about an hour.

Only One Light The Akron had drifted out of sight below Christoval at 1 o'clock this morning and weather reports were unfavorable. A message from Christoval said only one light was visible, but it was not known here if this was an unfavorable sign.

A weather report from Fort Worth said the area between here and El Paso was in terrific storm zone. Reports here were that half north of this city was intense.

found to be in bad leadership. Officials held responsible for the failure have been discharged and a thorough reorganization is under way.

About the same time the builders of a locomotive plant at Lugansk came in for public chiding, its director, M. Danilenko, being dismissed.

The construction work, Commissioner of Heavy Industry Gregory Ordzhonikidze, showed was unsatisfactory. He set Oct. 1 as an absolute limit for the completion of the whole plant.

The Victories The other side of the picture was provided by significant "victories" coinciding with these "defeats." The first blast furnace began to produce its full quota of over a thousand tons of iron daily by the first of March.

The first large ball-bearing plant in Russia and the largest in Europe, was put into operation about the same time. It was built in record time, a single year, and with a minimum of foreign assistance.

Fiance's Death Is Another Evidence Luck Against Her

By NEA Service

Life has been just one unhappy landing after another for Mrs. Jessie M. Keith-Miller. The jinx that has pursued her ever since she took up aviation is clinging to her like a stowaway to a wheel strut.

Recently you've been reading how fiance was found slain in her home in Miami Fla.; how she was first suspected, finally cleared, of being involved in a sinister love triangle; how her flying partner and manager Captain W. C. Lancaster was held in connection with the crime.

But trouble is an old story to the Australian woman. And here is where it has happened since the day in 1926 when she decided to become an aviatrix.

Marriage Crashes Up In the first place she thought that her husband, a Melbourne newspaper man, would be proud of her as a pilot instead of as "a prosaic housewife." Instead, their marriage was wrecked. Her flying took her to far-away places for long periods of time. Finally, less than a year ago, he divorced her.

It was Lancaster, formerly with the Royal Air Force, who taught her an art from which she and the two were firm friends. Early in 1928 after she had become skilled at the controls, they planned a 13,000-mile trip from London to Australia, with a detour to the South Sea islands.

Change of clothing she set out gayly on an adventure that was planned to require but six weeks.

On the very first they were forced down by fog. Shortly afterward they encountered a sandstorm between Palestine and Bagdad and had to seek refuge at a desert post, Magdala, where they halted for a night. Bagdad, and a piston jammed in India, and again in Burma. Taking off from Rangoon they discovered and landed in a desert.

They had traveled in the plane that had crashed into the ship. Mrs. Keith-Miller was in the cockpit when they left Batavia, and the motor stalled. Her nose was broken and the plane was wrecked at Singapore. They got to Australia but the trip took five months.

The Jinx Continues The pair came to America and Mrs. Keith-Miller was forced down by water when the plane which she attempted to hop to Bermuda. Later, in 1928, she failed in several attempts to start from Hampton Roads, Va. In 1929 she won the 50-mile flying race at Cleveland, Ohio, but two months later, while participating in the national air tour, she deliberately crashed her plane at Washington, D. C., when she was flying over a small bay in front of her plane as she was making a landing.

For a time in 1930, her jinx seemed to have been shaken off, for she shipped two transcontinental speed records for women. In November, flying solo, she accomplished her 12-hour hop from Pittsburgh to Havana.

But her jinx caught up with her there. She determined to fly back to Pittsburgh in the plane, which she had previously described as an "unworthy crate." It had killed two test pilots a year before, and had to be rebuilt for her use.

Finally, however, her ship was transported to Miami, and she gamely took off again for Pittsburgh. She crashed at Jacksonville. Penalties and ill, she dropped out of the picture for a time.

Mrs. Keith-Miller was planning a come-back in the flying game when the recent tragedy robbed her of her fiance, Eader Charles, and a child who was writing the story of her life. But the vivacious, 90-pound aviatrix says she'll carry on. She'll finish the book, she'll aid in the defense of Captain Lancaster, and she will fly again. Also, she says, she'll lick that jinx.

Clara Bow Is Poet and Actress HOLLYWOOD, (UP)—Clara Bow—flaming "IT" girl of the screen—demure actress.

Those three titles might describe the one-time star in three stages. After the physical breakdown, which caused her retirement from motion picture work, and culminated in her marriage to Rex Bell, movie cowboy who owns a ranch in Nevada, she began writing poetry.

But now—possibly out of ideas for poetical lines—the red-haired flapper of former days, is going to attempt a comeback in motion pictures. She will make one—at least one—picture for Fox.

But it must be a good story—a story in which she will be portrayed as a nice girl with strict standards of love and devotion. Clara absolutely refuses to be seen again as a promiscuous type of heart-breaker. She will play the part of a nice girl who gives herself to only one man, or she won't play at all.

She has received numerous offers—it is said—since she regained her health on Bell's ranch, but all the studios wanted her to play roles such as "The Red-Headed Woman," and Clara turned thumbs down.

Since her retirement, wild tales of her escapades have tended to quiet down. Clara almost has been forgotten in the rush of new, different kinds of stars.

Garbo, Dietrich, Crawford, Shearer, many other young women have flashed into stardom since Miss Bow's fame hit the inevitable downward chute. Clara's escapades that for some time had Hollywood and even the entire country gasping, are gradually becoming more or less hazy memories.

The younger Shute, who placed third in the National Open two years ago, turned professional six years ago to become his father's assistant at Columbus.

Five-Year-Old Leads Orchestra

SEATTLE, (UP)—One of the youngest orchestras in America, led by a talented five-year-old boy, has been formed here.

Ten children, ranging from three to seven years of age, make up the group under direction of Ethel-Ann Reining, former director of the Hollywood Baby orchestra.

The children use violins one-eighth and one-quarter of the normal size. A small cello also is used.

Jackie Wroten, five, conducts the orchestra and Jackie Le May is master of ceremonies, making all announcements.

The orchestra is a non-commercial organization and appears regularly at charity benefits.

Paper Made of Flax, Mulberry

WASHINGTON, (UP)—Tests made by the commerce department's bureau of standards show that old Chinese papers, made sometime between the sixth and tenth centuries, were composed of flax and mulberry fibers.

Other ancient Oriental papers, previously examined, consisted of mitsumata and bamboo fibers. On the two were firm friends. Early in 1928 after she had become skilled at the controls, they planned a 13,000-mile trip from London to Australia, with a detour to the South Sea islands.
