STRANGE CASE OF MR. CURTIS

More than one man, in times past, has gone slightly gaga from the strain of seeing his own name in the newspapers. It is hard to recall anyone, however, who got as completely off his base in that respect as did Boatbuilder Curtis of Norfolk.

The cruel consequences of his hoax have already been enlarged upon in detail. There is one more point, though, that seems worth mentioning. That is the fact that Curtis lies seem to have thrown a cloud of suspicion over certain other witnesses in the Lindbergh case.

It would be well if the public could withhold judgment until the case has been cleared up. Curtis may merit the contempt of his fellow-citizens, but it would be tragic if an indignant public should let some of that contempt slop over on those who do not deserve it. One headliner in this investigation lied fiendishly; but that is no sign that the others did too.

THE COUZENS EXAMPLE

The discovery that Senator James Couzens of Michigan has most of his big fortune invested in tax-exempt securities seems to have aroused public interest chiefly because his recent proposals for higher income taxes would not have affected his own income so very much.

But there is, after all, something more significant about it. Senator Couzens sold his bank, railroad and corporation stocks when he entered the Senate—in order that he could pass upon legislation affecting corporations without being influenced in his personal investments.

That, when you stop to think about it, is exactly what every public servant ought to do. No lawmaker should have a monetary interest in any business which can be affected by laws that he makes. But few lawmakers besides Senator Couzens seem to have recognized the fact.

DREAMS OF YOUTH

Every year, in May and June, an army of boys and girls set out to conquer the world.

They are confident that their diplomas will help them cope with any situation. They haven't a doubt but that they will be able to take every bend in the road, sight banners all the way, and come into a Promised Land.

They haven't tried to tackle reality as yet. Their dreams haven't had a chance to grow tarnished in the struggle. So they start on the uphill road gaily, gallantly, unafraid.

Instructors who are wise in the ways of life as well as the routine of the classroom will not teach boys and girls, young men and young women, that all battles go to the strong. They will not tell them that every race belongs to the fleet. They have learned better.

Rather, they will tell those who are new in the conflict that there are things of the spirit that mean infinitely more than material success can possibly mean. They will try to inspire them to make lives, not merely a living.

It would be a splendid thing if the far-flung visions that are such a glorious part of youth could span every long tomorrow as the dream of doing. But they can't. The play isn't written that way. There are few all-star casts. The vast majority of May and June graduates must stay in the wings, waiting for cues that seldom come. They are going to be disappointed and restless, unless they have some abiding, deeper interest.

Then, too, the sorry plight of the present economic system may make them think that there are no holes, either round or square, for their pegs, in the industrial structure. If their dreams are entirely materialistic this will be tremendously discouraging. If they are built from firmer stuff they will stand the strain.

Youth is such a buoyant time. It is only right that boys and girls should have a period of dreaming before life brings problems for solving. However, if the loss of a little transient glamour will supply more durable stuff for tomorrow's building, it is well worth the cost.

Very soon now you will be able to know if you got the gladiolas mixed with the onions last fall.

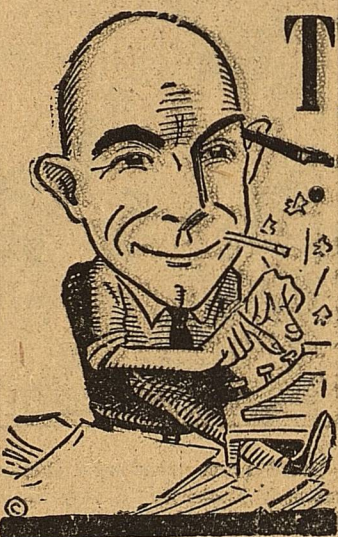

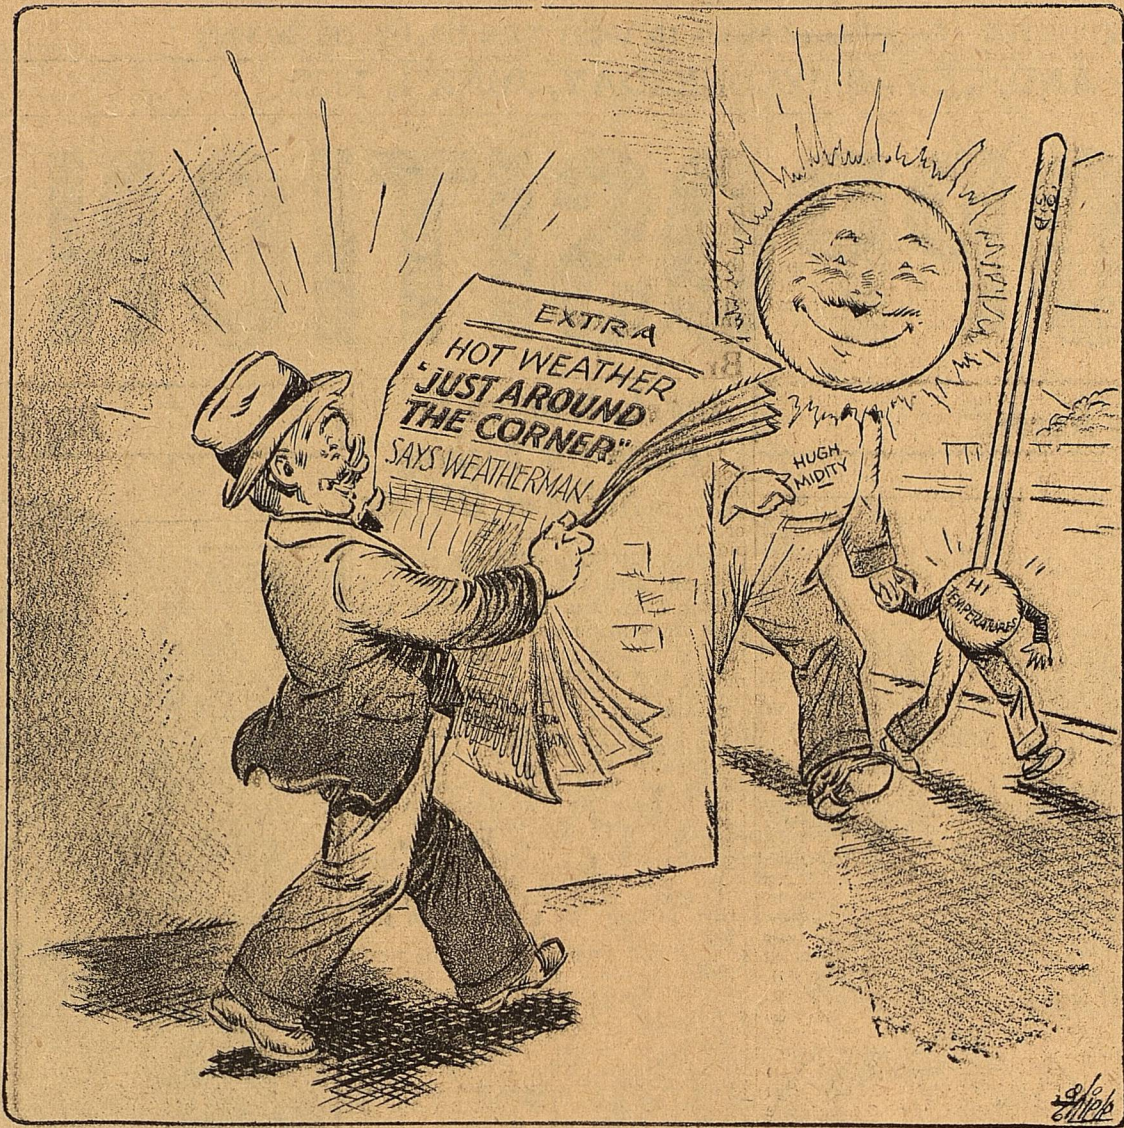

Many persons wish they could turn down bills as easily as the Senate does.

I have been criticized, along with other columnists, for passing on jokes about prohibition, but I can't refrain from repeating this one:

Lecturer: "If I should lead a jackass up to a pail of water and a pail of beer, which do you suppose he would drink?"

Soak: "Water."

Lecturer: "That's right—why?"

Soak: "Well, you said he was a jackass, didn't you?"

Have you heard the story of the two Jewish merchants seen hanging to a strap in a local street—ear the other evening? Both remained silent for many minutes, gazing with worried and beaten expressions into space. Finally one of them gave vent to a long drawn sigh. The other looked around and with a sneer said, "You're telling me?"

Fiddlers to Contest At Oldtimers' Meet

STAMFORD.—The old fiddlers' contest, one of the popular features of the Texas Cowboy Reunion each year, promises to have a larger entry list and keener competition than ever during the third annual reunion which will be held in Stamford, July 4, 5 and 6. The fiddlers' contest will be held one day only, Tuesday, July 5, the second day of the reunion, beginning at 9 a. m.

Cash prizes totaling $300 will be awarded. No entry fee will be charged and spectators will be admitted free to the city auditorium, where the contest will be held.

Only fiddlers 50 years of age or over are eligible for the contest. Each fiddler will be limited to two break-down tunes of his own selection. He may play alone or choose his own second. Five judges will decide the winners of the following prizes: First prize, $15, second, $10; third, $5.

Antelope-Lambs Born in Nevada

EUREKA, Nev. (UP)—Three lambs having all the characteristics of antelopes have been born to two ewes in a flock of sheep belonging to Palmer brothers.

The freak antelope-lambs have been taken to the Palma ranch, in Antelope valley, about 40 miles west of here, and are being given extra attention and care.

The Palma flocks wintered in the Silver Bow district of Nye County, 70 miles southwest of Tonopah, and were recently brought to summer range near here.

A single antelope-lamb was born to one ewe and twins to the second. The animals have all the characteristics of antelope—hair instead of wool, a short tail, and straight, pointed ears.

Says Philadelphia Is Best for Stork

PHILADELPHIA. (UP)—It's easier for the stork to land in Philadelphia than in any other large city north of the Mason-Dixon line.

And the reason, according to John M. Smith, director of Hahnemann hospital, is because the cost of the flight is lower here than in the other cities.

A survey of ten large Philadelphia hospitals, Smith said, revealed the fact that a ten-day maternity case averaged in cost from $30 to $43 each.

Firestones Played Part on Speedway

A graphic story of the remarkable part played by tires in the 500-mile international sweepstakes on Decoration Day, was told today by W. F. Hejl, Firestone dealer in this city. It was the thirteenth consecutive triumph for Firestone in this great motor-racing classic.

"There is no more severe test of automobile tires than that to which they were put at Indianapolis," said Hejl.

"The cars darted along the straightaways at close to 150 miles an hour and swept into the embanked curves at an appalling pace. It was on these turns that the stress and strain was the hardest. As the cars dived into the turns, their momentum caused them to climb the embankment from the lower rim to the outer. This was an uncontrollable action by the car and it is called 'drifting.' In these perilous moments it was necessary that there be a perfect co-ordination between the skill of man and the strength of tire and rubber to avoid disaster.

"At these terrific speeds one would expect to find great holes burned in the tread and the rubber worn entirely away. But nothing of the sort happened. An inspection of Firestone tires after they had traveled the full 500 miles revealed an amazing state of preservation. Very little wear was discernable.

"It is the patented construction features of Firestone tires which have made it possible for them to hold a supreme mastery for thirteen years in the 500-mile contest. Gum-dipping is one of these features. By this process the innermost fibers of the cord body are coated with rubber and protected against the fierce heat which in Captain Archer's Daughter, by Deland. A witty moving romance of the new England water-front unfolded with all the old skill of the long popular author of "The Awakening of Helena Richie," "Old Chester tales," etc.

Two books borrowed from the state library: "Power Control," by Bausenbusch, and Laidler. Treating of economic, social, and cultural conditions, monopolies, trusts, etc.

"Soviet Russia," by Chamberlin. A straightforward, objective discussion of the many problems—political, economic, social, and cultural—that have confronted the leaders of the new government, and how they have been solved or adjusted.

In the children's room: "Bee of the Cactus Country," by Smith Bee, a little Mexican girl is the central character in this story of a Mexican settler in the Arizona.

Others to come into the story are her widowed mother, whom she calls Mamachita, her young uncle Juan, who drives a stage over the border. Favorito, a little dog, who looks as if he were made of old rubber boots, and Lorito, a parrot, who loves coffee. They all live contentedly in an adobe hut. Interest in Mexico and her people is increasing, and there could be no better introduction for American children of seven to ten than this charming story.

What Do You Think Of Jean Harlow as Red-Headed Siren?

By DAN THOMAS NEA Service Writer HOLLYWOOD—The platinum blond goes red-head!

Strangely enough, that is the most exciting thing which has happened in Hollywood in many weeks. Yes, the old town is certainly drying up. Needless to say, the platinum blond is Jean Harlow, now playing the title role in "Red-Headed Woman"—for which those platinum tresses have given way to equally flaming locks.

Jean makes a very attractive red-head, too, even though totally different from the girl you have known for the last couple of years. However the difference is far more striking in real life than it will be on the silver sheet. On the screen you will recognize her immediately.

But were you to meet her face to face, it would be an entirely different story. Your reaction probably would be, "Who is that girl?" At least that was mine and I have known her pretty well for two years now.

"I didn't like the change at first," Jean declared. "When I looked at this red hair in the mirror for the first time I thought it was awful. But now I am getting a bit used to it and rather like it. Don't worry about me ever becoming a permanent red-head though. As soon as the picture is finished this red hair is going to be given a nice place among my souvenirs."

"I am glad to get the chance to play this part, though. It is different from anything I have done before and I have been trying for a long time to get away from the type of character started by 'Hell's Angels.' Perhaps if I prove that I can do more than one thing I will be given a chance to play a variety of roles in the future."

Studio executives spent months trying to find a suitable girl for "Red-Headed Woman." Every known and unknown red-head in Hollywood, plus a flock of brunets, were tested for the role before Miss Harlow finally was selected. Each of the others lacked one thing or another necessary to the part. Then, too, it would have been upsetting Hollywood's traditions to have a red-head playing such a part on the screen.

We lunched in Jean's dressing room just a few days after the picture was started. And you have no idea what a change can come over that girl the moment she finds seclusion. All of that hot-cha air vanishes like ice in midsummer. In her dressing room as at home, she is a quiet, hard-working girl who wants so badly to get along in the world.

Yet she gives you the impression that she is absolutely tired of it all and would throw up her whole career for a plugged nickel. She wouldn't, though.

Career is everything to Jean. That is why she goes along putting on her act day after day. Everyone thinks of her as the last word in sex—wants her to be that. So she gives them what they want—all the time wondering how long it will be until she can get away and be herself until time for the next "act."

British Bandits Ordered Whipped

LONDON, (UP)—Said to have boasted that they were gangsters, John Alfred Wright, 22, a laborer, and Clifford John King, 20, a butcher, were recently sentenced to an old form of punishment (in addition to imprisonment) on a charge of robbery with violence.

They were ordered whipped with a birch rod. Wright got 13 strokes, and nine months in prison; King got 15 strokes and six months in prison.

Akron Process in Goodyear Air Tubes

The adaptation of a process, developed in building the gigantic airship, "U. S. S. Akron", to the manufacture of inner tubes is one of the greatest steps yet taken to give the motorist care-free and trouble-free service, in the opinion of J. J. Willis, local Goodyear dealer.

The gas cells of the "U. S. S. Akron" carry 6,500,000 cubic feet of helium, the non-explosive, non-inflammable lifting gas, and the retention of this gas and prevention of air-diffusion present a real problem to airship builders. The diffusion of air reduces the purity of the helium with a corresponding reduction in the buoyancy or 'lift' of the airship.

In construction the "U. S. S. Akron" at the huge dock of the Goodyear Zeppelin corporation at Akron, Ohio, Goodyear engineers developed a method of treating the inner surfaces of gas cells with a "latex" or rubber film, which exhaustive tests have proven to be impenetrable. The 12 cells of the "Akron" are coated within with this impenetrable film, thus assuring the maintenance of both volume and purity of the helium they contain.

Willis says the work of adopting this process to inner tubes began soon after the launching of the "Akron" in September, 1931. The Goodyear Zeppelin tube was the result of this work, and it is now available. The new inner tube has an inside treatment which assures the motorist that his inner tubes are maintaining their pressure. The new tube inner sealed like the helium gas cells of the "U. S. S. Akron" retains air longer, thus requiring less attention by the car owner; it increases mileage because proper air pressure is maintained; it eliminates under-inflation, the cause of most of the difficulty experienced with steering and shimmy.

The new Goodyear Zeppelin tube, red and black in color, is spliced by the Goodyear patented electric method, a feature found exclusively in Goodyear inner tubes.

Over 250 varieties of cheese are made in France. Holland produces 45, Italy 200, and Denmark about 60. The U. S. produces only a few kinds of cheese.

FAST MATCHED RACES AND SWIFT CLOCKING IN ODESSA ROPING

Hokus-Pokus and Southern Ice Win Over Hardware and Ford Clubs

MEMORIAL EVENTS CONCLUDED THERE

Faster time in the calf roping and more furiously matched horse races tended to speed up Odessa's rodeo and race meet Tuesday, ending one of the best shows staged in this section since the famous Midland rodeo of 1926.

Allen Holder, who won the first day's calf roping with time of 19.9

seconds, did not break into the field alone Tuesday although he roped and tied his calf in 18.2. However, he won the highest two day average.

Money winners Tuesday were Bill Lusk, with 17.5; George Todd, with 17.6; and Jack Young with 18 seconds flat.

In the wild cow milking, Curtis McElroy and Amy Gamblin were first with 28 seconds, J. D. Ambury's team was second with 33.2, and Myrl Jowell and Dub Young took third money with 34.1. The cow milking time was considerably slower than on Monday.

Three matched heats comprised the horse race program, the pick of Monday's winners taking the field alone.

Wondergirl, dark bay mare of the Ray stables from Cisco, winner of the quarter mile Monday, was matched for three eighths against Norman Radlett's Colorado, sorrel mare, Ma Ferguson, easy winner of Monday's three eighths race. With a perfect start, Ma Ferguson held the rail all the way to the stretch, Wondergirl having to hold steady at her side until the straight-away, giving the necessary burst of speed to win over the sorrel by half a length.

The Locklear stallion, Harry M. from San Saba, was matched in the half mile against Norfolk's Joker Joe from Hale Center. These horses, with George Keith, ran the half Monday, but, due to a "no start," had to split the $90 purse three ways and wait for Tuesday to settle the argument.

George Keith chose to leave it to the visitors. Harry M. drew the inside but was too unruhly to be lined up, even with use of a twitch on his nose. After several minutes of attempting to line up the two, the handsome Norfolk horse remaining quiet meanwhile, the Locklear jockey offered the inside track to the opponent and the start was effected. Getting off perfectly, the two remained side by side throughout, Harry M. making just what it took to win by a neck, or half a length, in the home stretch.

Moondime, diminutive short distance mare from Leonard Huff's ranch, met her match yesterday when she was raced against an even smaller black mare, sixteen years old and with a wren on her belly. The black was in the back end of the Ray track from Cisco and had remained unmolested until yesterday. Her owner, J. R. King, set the race for only 150 yards but the distance was lengthened to 200.

Looking sleepy and "ornery" before coming on the track, the little black became a piece of "greased lightning" at the starting pole, acting up and charging the atmosphere repeatedly before lining up with the quiet and well behaved Midland bay. The time was not announced, out the race looked like the fastest 200 yard sprint ever seen as the tiny mounts sped down the stretch with their light jockeys, the black winning without showing daylight between them. Curtis Cook rode Moondime.

ERRORS PLAY THE MAIN ROLE IN DEFEATS

Hokus-Pokus won a fast game in the playground ball league last night from Midland Hardware, 3-2, and Southern Ice took the measure of Cowden-Epley, 7-5, in the night cap.

The first game was particularly fast, both clubs being on their toes every minute. Bobby Miller, pitcher for the grocerymen was a bit wild, walking four men, but, despite the Nail Sackers getting the edge on hits, the grocerymen gave perfect support and took the game.

Joe Pryon for the hardware was right, allowing but one walk and three hits, but right field and short stop errors cost the game.

Dr. David M. Ellis hit a home run to right field in the sixth.

The hardwaremen showed well in their new suits, white trousers and orange shirts trimmed in black leather.

The icemen collected seven hits and made four errors, while Ford made four hits and seven errors—which tells the story. The icers got to Emberson in the third, fifth and sixth, and the pitcher's support was wobbly. The Fords started a hitting rally in the seventh and scored three runs. For the time it looked bad for Southern Ice, but Adamson, pitcher, whittled one batter, made a good catch on a pop up, play out of bounds and Estes took Mills' line drive to retire the side.

MEXICAN COLTS DOWN ICEMEN IN MONDAY AFFAIR

The Mexicans are getting tougher and tougher.

Southern Ice tried unsuccessfully again Monday to down the Sons of Montezuma, but lost a 13-12 decision.

The Mexicans outbit the Icemen 22-18 and played errorless ball while the icers made a single bobble.

Woods pitched for the Icemen, Hernandez and Chaves for the Mexicans.

The game was called in the last of the sixth on account of darkness.

This win made the ninth for the Mexicans this season. They have lost two games, one to the Bushers and one to Bennie Bizzell's farmer nine. They played every day last week.

Umpires, Gemmill, Hurst, Ellis.

Time of game, 1 hr., 5 min.

NIGHT COURT

By arrangement with Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer

CHAPTER VII.

The complaint clerk in the Night Court finished filling out the paper in front of him, glanced cursorily over it, took it up and read what he had just written to the burly policeman who was leaning over the desk.

"Defendant did then accost said complainant and by cajolements and with promises induced him to accompany him to her rooms, and that while there did attempt to extort money from him, and then, falling to do that, created a disturbance and loud noise against the peace and dignity of the people of this State."

He stopped reading and asked: "That's true, ain't it?"

"Sure."

"Complainant here?"

"Yeah."

"Where's the dame?"

The policeman jerked with his thumb over his shoulder to the lineup of hardened men and women—the crew of the night, gangsters, prostitutes, drunks, both men and women, dope sellers, dope users, burglars, stickup men—who are

"But I don't understand it," said Mary, whose perplexity had only been increased by the courtroom scene, "I tell you I haven't done anything."

gathered up by the law during the course of the night.

"The weeping dame?" asked the complainant clerk.

"Yeah. That's her."

"Bring her here."

The policeman made his way to the line-up, took Mary by the arm, lead her up the two steps to the platform and gave her a push toward the clerk's desk.

The clerk looked at her, a gleam of more than passing interest in his eyes as he ran them over her figure, from head to foot, and back to her head as though seeing the figure underneath the dress. Mary would have felt shame at the boldness of the glance had she not been so absorbed in her grief even to notice it. The clerk at length withdrew his eyes and began asking her questions, comparing her answers with what he had written down on the complaint.

"Your name is Mary Thomas and you live at 931 West 67th street. That right?"

Mary nodded and covered her eyes with her handkerchief to wipe away the tears that continued to ooze out between her swollen, reddened eyelids.

"Occupation?"

"Taking care of my b-b-baby," sobbed Mary.

"Housewife, huh?" said the clerk, and at her nod wrote something on the complaint.

"Where's the complainant?" he asked of the policeman who again jerked his thumb over his shoulder. "Bring him up."

The policeman beckoned and Ed swaggered up and took his place beside Mary. She looked up at him a second and shrank away from his leering glance.

The clerk was speaking to Ed. "You say this woman enticed you up to her house and tried to get money out of you and when you wouldn't give it to her she accused you of being a burglar?"

"Yes, sir. That's it."

The clerk gulped out in one breath:

"You solemnly swear the information you are giving in this complaint is true, so help your God?"

"I do," replied Ed, with the fervor of utter conviction.

"All right, you can go."

The policeman led Mary back to the line-up of prisoners.

The minutes dragged endlessly by. A few spectators got up and went out, or changed their seats; a few more came into the courtroom. There was a buzz of talking in low voices, a flutter of movement.

It seemed to Mary that she had been waiting there for hours. She thought of her baby in the apartment alone, of Mike. If she could but get word to him, he would come and get her out. But there was no way to reach him. He wouldn't find out that she had been arrested until he came home in the morning.

"Hats off—His Honor, the Judge!" cried a big voice.

At that cry Mary looked up, saw a door open, and a man enter and walk solemnly towards the judge's bench, while the people in the court stood up and the men removed their hats. The judge was followed by another man, a tall, middle-aged man, who took his place among the lawyers waiting for their cases to be called. She watched the judge as he sat down at the bench.

forward. She clung to the iron railing as she looked up at the judge. A few papers were passed from his bench and looked swiftly through them.

"Well, young woman, what have you got to say for yourself?" he asked, for the first time looking at her.

"Judge, I don't know what it means, I don't know what has happened."

"Have you got a lawyer?"

"No, sir."

"Have you got any money to employ one?"

"I don't need a lawyer. What do I want with a lawyer? I haven't done anything."

"This court is here to see that justice is done," said Judge Moffett, lifting his eyes to the spectators and putting on a little of the pompous air that some judges affect. "I will appoint a lawyer to represent you."

His glance wandered over the group of lawyers gathered in the court and seemed to recognize with pleasure one individual among the group.

"Oh, Mr. Crawford, will you take this case, please, and see what you can do for this young woman?"

The man addressed as Mr. Crawford rose. Mary looked at him curiously; he was the man that had followed Judge Moffett out of his private office when court had been opened.

"Yes, Your Honor," he said, and walked towards Mary, whom the court again addressed.

"Young woman, this court is for the protection of poor people. I have appointed one of our best lawyers to take care of your case."

Mr. Crawford had reached Mary's side by the time the judge finished his remark; he slipped a hand under Mary's elbow and guided her to one side while Moffett said emotionlessly:

"Next case."

"Now, my dear," began Mr. Crawford when he had Mary in a corner by themselves, "there's nothing to be frightened about. These things happen all the time. We'll get you home, with him knowing nothing at all about this, than to have him come here and find you charged with something. How do you think he would take it to know his wife?"

"But I'm not guilty!" repeated Mary.

"Of course you're not," cooed the attorney. "But if you say you're not guilty, it means a trial and you'll have to stay in the prison here. On the other hand, if you say you are guilty, you'll be fined five dollars, and out you go, back to your baby, and your husband need know nothing that would arouse his suspicions and make him jealous. You see, there's nothing to be frightened about. Come, we've taken enough time. I must plead to the charge for you."

Mary said nothing; she could find nothing to say except to repeat that cry. "But I'm not guilty!"

He followed Crawford back to the railing in front of the Judge's desk. He stepped on the platform and leaned slightly forward towards the magistrate, exchanging an understanding look with him.

"Well," said Judge Moffett, looking at the prisoner.

"My client pleads guilty, Your Honor," said Crawford, "and throws herself on the clemency of the court. I suggest a small fine in view of the fact she has a baby."

Judge Moffett interrupted him sternly. "I do not regard this as a case where a fine would be adequate. These cases of women extorting money from their victims must be stopped. Six months in the workhouse. Next case."

Mary was too stunned for a moment to speak; she looked at Crawford, bewildered, frightened. "Six months," the words formed soundlessly on her lips. Then suddenly she screamed:

"No! I tell you, no! You can't do it! I'm not guilty! He made—"

"Next case!" said Judge Moffett. A policeman took Mary roughly by the arm, half led, half pulled her out of the court room while she continued to scream:

"No! I tell you, you can't do it when I'm not guilty! No! No!"

More Jobless Camps Planned

SACRAMENTO, Cal. (UP)—Based on the success of experimental labor camps established throughout California last year, plans for the expenditure of $500,000 on this type of employment relief next winter have been presented by state officials.

Twenty-five state labor camps were operated last winter. The men were required to work six hours a day for their board and lodging under the supervision of the state division of forestry. By this means approximately 3,000 men were kept off the streets.

The camps were operated at a cost of 50 cents per man per day, and Roland A. Vandegrift, state director of finance termed the investment "the best ever made by the state of California."

The plan as tentatively outlined by the committee would provide employment amounting to 1,000,000 "man-days."

Indian Princess Well Received

BERLIN. (UP)—Although Europe has its share, and more, of royalty, and princesses ordinarily stir little notice, a personage from the Western Hemisphere can still attract interest, as was demonstrated by the appearance in mid-April of the American Indian Princess Lushanya.

Lushanya, who is 24, a granddaughter of Silver Eagle, of the Chickasaws, was well received not only for her music, but for her own personality, which quickly established a bond of understanding with her German admirers. She appeared before a well-filled house, including many Americans, in a recital of American Indian, German and English songs.

Her Indian costumes, and her costume changes for the varying character of her program, pleased the Germans.

New Magnolia Is Announced

DALLAS, June 1.—Designed and manufactured as the first automotive lubricant to better meet every requirement of modern day motor vehicles, a new motor oil—the New Magnolia—is announced by the Magnolia Petroleum Company. New Mobil oil goes on sale for the first time today, at more than 12,000 Magnolia and Mobil stations and dealers throughout the Southwest.

Representing the combined achievement of the makers of Mobil oil, the world's first refiners of automotive lubricants, and of Magnolia, first in the Southwest, the New Mobil oil is being introduced with the knowledge that it is superior to the former Mobil oil, largest selling motor oil in the world, and to the new Mobil oil, most popular premium motor oil in the Southwest.

E. P. Angus, Vice President and Sales Manager of the Magnolia Petroleum Company, said in announcing the new lubricant "Tested for months in the laboratories of Socony-Vacuum Companies and under every conceivable climatic and road condition, this new oil has proven its ability to meet the exacting requirements of high-compression motors which demand more complete lubricating than can be expected from old-fashioned oils.

For Greater Economy

"Though the utilization of more efficient manufacturing methods, rearrangement of patent processes and a closer co-ordination of the vast resources at the command of the Socony-Vacuum corporation, it is possible to market this superior motor oil in all parts of the Southwest, except the extreme western portion, at a price considerably less than the premium motor lubricants which it supplants," Mr. Angus said.

"However, economy in the use of New Mobil oil is not confined to the price alone. It is in the extra protection against costly repair bills which its use assures that the New Mobil oil proves its real economy.

Specialized Lubrication

"Magnolia station men, trained by Magnolia Specialized School of Training in lubrication in accordance with the recommendations of automobile manufacturers, are equipped to provide complete and correct lubrication for any make or model of motor vehicle. Their Mobil charts show the proper grade of lubricant for every automobile part as recommended by the car makers and designate the grades which give most efficient service under the particular climatic conditions involved. With the coming of hot weather Magnolia service men are urging car owners to change to the correct grade for summer driving, in order that the New Mobil oil and greases may prove conclusively their superiority over all other lubricants."

Tax Bill--

on income of electricity companies made up the margin needed.

Mr. Hoover's unexpected appearance before the senate to ask quickly balanced budgets in reply to world attacks on the American dollar and to make his futile plea for the manufacturers' sales levy climaxed a series of events that returned the senate into maelstrom of action.

Secretary Mills started the day at a special, secret session of the finance committee making for $295,000,000 more yield from the revenue bill.

Even before he had concluded and the president had decided to go to Capitol Hill the senate added $70,000,000 by voting another increase in the income tax rates.

Quick Rebuke

But the administration met a quick and decisive rebuke on the manufacturers' sales tax as the additional method of getting the $1,125,000,000 total in revenue.

Almost before the president could return to the White House after delivering his message, the finance committee rejected the proposal, 12 to 8—the same vote by which it had done so before.

Proponents of the disputed sales levy gave up the battle and turned to taxes on gasoline and upon consumers of domestic gas and electricity to raise the other $215,000,000 demanded by the administration. This, although approved by the committee, was defeated by the senate, 45 to 40.

Emergency Cited

"An emergency has developed in the last few days which it is my duty to lay before the senate," Mr. Hoover said in opening his address. The chamber was crowded. Almost every member was in his seat.

Half Million Economies

The president coupled with his plea for new revenue an insistence that congress provide for a total of $500,000,000 in economies as the other essential for balancing the budget.

Revealing his endorsement of the disputed sales tax, Mr. Hoover explained he was opposed to a general sales tax—which has not been proposed.

Concluding with a note of confidence, he said:

"The natural wealth of this country is unimpaired and the inherent abilities of our people to meet their problems are being restrained by failures of the government to act. Time is of the essence. Every day's delay makes new wounds and extends them. I come before you in sympathy with the difficulties which the problem presents and in a sincere spirit of helpfulness. I ask of you to accept such a basis of practical adjustment essential to the welfare of our people. In your hands at this moment is the answer to the question whether democracy has the capacity to act speedily enough to save itself in emergency. The nation urgently needs unity. It needs solidarity before the world in demonstrating that America has the courage to face its difficulties in between the capacity and resolution to meet them."

Satterwhite Speaks At Wichita Falls

AUSTIN, June 1.—Lee Satterwhite, candidate for railroad commissioner, spoke Monday night at Wichita Falls and Wednesday night will be at Amarillo. He is to speak at Brady Saturday and at Hillsboro Monday.

Satterwhite has been making an aggressive campaign throughout the state. He is advocating cutting the expenses of the railroad commission, and declares that, because of his experience on the appropriation committee of the house, he can effectually do this, if elected to office. He is attacking the present administration methods and is charging Terrell with gross extravagance. Emphasizing impartiality in the rail and truck situation, he classes it as unwise to play one mode of transportation against another. He is standing firmly for strict conservation of our natural resources.

At his opening address at Wortham, Satterwhite was presented by the mayor of that city with a pledge signed by the voters of the district, assuring him their loyal support and aid in his campaign. Wortham is Satterwhite's boyhood home, and this evidence of good-will on the part of his home-town voters was greatly appreciated by the recipient.

It's the atmosphere that counts! Miss Vivian Lambert, the youngest of London's young composers, dons gray flannel trousers and smokes a black pipe to get the proper spirit of a composer.

with house members jammed in the rear. The galleries were crowded. Despite the intense silence, the words of the president were barely heard by the voters of the district, a calm voice, senators cupped their ears and those in the galleries strained eagerly forward. Mr. Hoover was escorted out by the press and the dramatic leaders—Watson of Indiana and Robinson of Arkansas—amid applause from the floor and gallery.

HAND OR FOOT?

LONDON—On whether a monkey's paws are feet or hands hinges whether or not duty shall be paid for their importation at Folkestone. There is no duty on quadrupeds, and the railwaymen porting the monkeys claim they are in this classification. Customs officials, however, think the monkeys have no feet, but four hands, and are dutiable. The case may require court action.

Downward Trend Helped

"The continued downward movement in the economic life of the country," the president said, "has been particularly accelerated during the past few days and it results in part directly to the financial program of the government.

"There can be no doubt that superimposed upon other causes, the long continued delays in the passing of legislation providing for such reduction in expenses and such additions to revenues as would balance the budget, together with proposals of projects which would greatly increase governmental expenditures, have given rise to doubt and anxiety as to the ability of our government to meet its responsibilities.

"These fears and doubts have been foolishly exaggerated in foreign countries. The immediate result has been to create an entirely unjustified run upon the American dollar from foreign countries and within the past few days, despite our national wealth and resources and our unparalleled gold reserve, our dollar stands at a serious discount in the market of the world for the first time in half a century."

The president coupled with his plea for new revenue an insistence that congress provide for a total of $500,000,000 in economies as the other essential for balancing the budget.

Bonner Favored Yucca Stage Booking

John Bonner, owner-manager of the beautiful Yucca theatre, is favored by big time circuits in stage show bookings. It is not unusual for the larger circuits to "farm out" their talent to some of the smaller circuits in completing routings for their stage acts, but it is somewhat out of the ordinary for a lone theatre operator to acquire such privileges. Such is the case, however, according to an announcement from Bonner, who recently opened the Yucca theatre.

Bonner was called on the phone and asked to come to Big Spring and review a stage show of the Public time, which had been allowed to play some three or four R. & R. theatre circuit towns. The show, the "Texas Rocketts," was booked into the Ritz at Big Spring for a one day showing, but their approval by patrons warranted holding over a second day and according to manager Robb, would be held over longer if booking arrangements would have permitted.

The show has not been made available for independent theatre owners heretofore, having played the same Public circuit towns and cities as the "Chicago Folies," which Bonner played a short time ago in the Ritz, but through friendly relations between Bonner and the big time circuit executives, he was permitted to book the show for the Yucca. It is scheduled for Sunday and Monday, and will be on the program with one of the year's most outstanding talking picture hits, "The Miracle Man," featuring Chester Morris and Sylvia Sydney. This picture when produced in the days of the silent drama, is credited with making Lon Chaney the greatest character actor in America. The big double program will doubtless interest Midland theatre goers to a great extent than they have been interested during the past several months.

Hand Or Foot?

LONDON—On whether a monkey's paws are feet or hands hinges whether or not duty shall be paid for their importation at Folkestone. There is no duty on quadrupeds, and the railwaymen porting the monkeys claim they are in this classification. Customs officials, however, think the monkeys have no feet, but four hands, and are dutiable. The case may require court action.

Downward Trend Helped

"The continued downward movement in the economic life of the country," the president said, "has been particularly accelerated during the past few days and it results in part directly to the financial program of the government.

"There can be no doubt that superimposed upon other causes, the long continued delays in the passing of legislation providing for such reduction in expenses and such additions to revenues as would balance the budget, together with proposals of projects which would greatly increase governmental expenditures, have given rise to doubt and anxiety as to the ability of our government to meet its responsibilities.

"These fears and doubts have been foolishly exaggerated in foreign countries. The immediate result has been to create an entirely unjustified run upon the American dollar from foreign countries and within the past few days, despite our national wealth and resources and our unparalleled gold reserve, our dollar stands at a serious discount in the market of the world for the first time in half a century."

Half Million Economies

The president coupled with his plea for new revenue an insistence that congress provide for a total of $500,000,000 in economies as the other essential for balancing the budget.

Revealing his endorsement of the disputed sales tax, Mr. Hoover explained he was opposed to a general sales tax—which has not been proposed.

Concluding with a note of confidence, he said:

"The natural wealth of this country is unimpaired and the inherent abilities of our people to meet their problems are being restrained by failures of the government to act. Time is of the essence. Every day's delay makes new wounds and extends them. I come before you in sympathy with the difficulties which the problem presents and in a sincere spirit of helpfulness. I ask of you to accept such a basis of practical adjustment essential to the welfare of our people. In your hands at this moment is the answer to the question whether democracy has the capacity to act speedily enough to save itself in emergency. The nation urgently needs unity. It needs solidarity before the world in demonstrating that America has the courage to face its difficulties in between the capacity and resolution to meet them."

Sweetwater to Be Host to Veterans

SWEETWATER, June 1.—With details of the Westexas chamber of commerce convention cleared up, civic leaders are making plans for the entertainment of the annual encampment of the Spanish American war veterans, June 12-15.

Indications are that there will be an attendance ranging from 600 to 800, with a motorcade originating at Houston and gathering delegates from all towns enroute where there are veteran camps.

Sweetwater's Gypsy girls will be in evidence as entertainers, and the famous Sweetwater legion band will furnish both popular airs of today, as well as familiar songs in the war days of '98. The Business and Professional Womens' club will handle registrations and assist in the reception of visitors. A number of dances, teas, a memorial service, etc. will make up part of the entertainment.

Outstanding as an entertainment feature will be the chuck wagon dinner tendered visitors on Sweetwater creek, 3 miles south of town, where a menu of barbecued beef, onion-of-a-gun, black coffee, pickles and onions prepared by men who have learned the art of chuck wagon cooking from long years of actual experience will be served the visitors. This dinner, while provided by the Sweetwater board of city development is sponsored by the cattlemen and ex-cattlemen of Sweetwater, who are forming an organization known as the Sweetwater Chuck Wagon. This organization, while independent of other civic organizations of the city, assists in and features real chuck wagon entertainments. They expect to have a fully equipped chuck wagon and will soon elect a wagon boss, horse wrangler and cook. It is their aim to provide entertainment for themselves and families as well as to assist in entertaining conventions and meetings that may be held in Sweetwater, and at the same time to perpetuate an institution in the chuck wagon that served such a useful and entertaining purpose in the cattle industry in West Texas.

The Sweetwater Chuck Wagon, with Sweetwater cattlemen, will assist and entertain at the Texas Cowboy reunion and rodeo in Stamford, in July.

Seven Ex-monarchs Living in Exile

Seven ex-monarchs living in exile are estimated to possess between them $75,000,000. Of this total, the ex-Kaiser, who is the richest German, owns more than $62,500,000.

Stockton Rodeo Falls This Week

Port Stockton will be the scene of the next rodeo and race meet of this area, a two-day session having been announced for Friday and Saturday of this week. Special invitation to Midland people was extended by Raymond McKay, arena director, and Dick Davis, race horse owner.

In addition to a full program of rodeo events, polo and baseball races will be as follows: quarter mile, $50 purse, entrance fees added, two monies; three eighths mile, $75 purse, entrance fees added, two monies; 300 yards, for two year olds, $25 purse, entrance fees added, two monies.

Lions Officers Installed Today

Lion Harry L. Haight presided today at the Lions club luncheon, having charge of installation of new officers for the ensuing year. The luncheon was served by the ladies of the Christian church.

The new officers are Marion F. Peters, president; Frank Stubbs, first vice president; Earl Horst, second vice president; George Phillips, treasurer; W. F. Heil, secretary; Delo Douglas, lion tamer and Albert Oreck, tail twister. The other officers to be filled will be appointive and the new president will give out the names at the next meeting.

The program consisted of three clever readings by Jolly Day, Johnson and two instrumental numbers by Miss Lydie Watson and Ned Watson in which the banjo, cello and piano were used. An adaptation of "Fee as a Bird" in commemoration of Memorial day was beautifully rendered and made a deep impression.

Homers Rowe presented the incoming president with the identical gavel used by Speaker Garner in opening congress at the last session. Rowe received the gavel direct from the speaker.

President Seymour made the statement, upon retiring from his office, that the membership had almost doubled in the last few months.

Corrects Impression

William Vance Bennett, ex-soldier who is living in Midland, was not wounded overseas, but suffered exposure which led to his classification belatedly being marked as totally disabled, he explained in a letter to The Reporter-Telegram following a story telling of his classification being changed through influence of Midland men.

Bennett wrote that Joseph A. Seymour, Midland attorney, Fred Middleton, business man, and Peace Justice B. C. Girdley were influential in aiding him.

Willis Operates Another Place

Operation of the Continental service station at Wall and Loraine streets, in the former Chevrolet location, was assumed today by the Willis Truck & Tractor company, Goodyear tire and International farm machinery dealers here.

Offie Walker, manager, announced that a Goodyear factory trained repair man is in charge of tire service at the station.

Compulsory Spanish In Schools Urged

DALLAS.—Compulsory teaching of Spanish in the public schools of Texas beginning with the third grade, met approval of editors and publishers of over 50 daily newspapers in Texas at a meeting held Sunday in the Baker hotel of Dallas.

The suggestion was offered by Houston Harte, editor and owner of the San Angelo Standard, also interested in a number of leading Texas dailies. Harte is the retiring president of the West Texas chamber of commerce.

The editors also voiced approval of plan to create greater friendship between the people of Texas, Oklahoma, New Mexico, Colorado, Arkansas and Louisiana with all Latin republics in Central and South America, as well as island republics in the West Indies. Present tariff walls that are acting as a barrier to trade from the Southwestern states into the Latin republic were deplored, and senators and congressmen will be implored to work for reciprocity trade agreements between the Latin republics and the United States.

It was also voted to give particular attention to fostering better relations with Mexico and to lend support of Texas daily newspapers in creating tourist travel in Texas and Mexico. Also, to create greater interest in the northern and eastern states in bringing people to Texas and Mexico winter and health resorts.

Wilbur C. Hawk, of the Amarillo Globe-News, and newly elected president of the West Texas chamber of commerce, made the suggestion that the services of Fred L. Haskett, of Dallas, and who is a former newspaperman and interested in newspaper properties at this time in Texas, be secured to prepare news and editorial copy about Mexico to be furnished members of the association.

Last year Hawk's paper operated a special railroad excursion into Mexico. It was his opinion that with completion of the new highway from Laredo to Mexico City that a million tourists will be attracted to Mexico annually, and that 95 per cent of them will travel as many miles through Texas to reach Mexico as from Laredo to Mexico City. Hawk predicted that within two years $50,000,000 of tourist money will be spent annually in Texas, and two or three times that amount in Mexico.

The league comprising practically all daily newspapers in Texas, at its board meeting Sunday, requested its president, S. W. Papert, of Dallas, to go to Mexico City soon and collaborate with Mexican officials and to make a careful study of the tourists' travel possibilities from the United States to Mexico.

During the Texas Press League meeting to be held in June at the Baker hotel in Mineral Wells, further discussion of the plan will be made. It is planned to work up a party of 200 leading business men of Texas.

MAY CAUSE CATARACT

NEW YORK.—That clouding of the vision by cataract of the eye may be caused by lack of vitamin "G" in the diet is reported to the American Chemical Society by Prof. Paul L. Day, of the University of Arkansas. He says that experiments with rats have shown that deficiency of this vitamin, contained in pears, carrots, turnips, oranges, apples and green leafy vegetables, impaired their eyesight.

There are extensive deposits of gold in Peru that have not been mined because of their remote location and lack of transportation.

Spanked "Severely"

BOSTON—If what Mrs. Mary Grace Birch says is true, her hubby has decided not to spare the "rod" and spank his wife. In suing for a divorce here Mrs. Birch explained her husband, Albert Francis Birch, Harvard instructor, had "hit me with a slipper and spanked me severely." It was not said whether he turned her across his knee and used the slipper to administer the spanking.

It's as though the tobaccos were "welded" together...

"CROSS-BLENDING" means much more than just mixing tobaccos together.

It "welds" together different kinds of the several varieties of tobacco... many types of Bright tobacco, a great many types of Burley tobacco and numerous grades of Turkish tobacco.

THIS "WELDING" TOGETHER—or Cross-Bleending—permits every kind of tobacco used in the Chesterfield blend to partake of the best qualities of every other type. Each tobacco is thus made to yield its finest flavors.

CROSS-BLEENDING takes all these pleasing flavors and aromas and combines them into one—the Chesterfield taste. And we think you will agree that it is a far better taste... worth all the extra care that Chesterfield takes to get it.

EVERYTHING that money can buy and that science knows about is done to make CHESTERFIELD milder and taste better.
