Sixteen Die In Flames As Detroit Night Club Burns

MORE THAN 50 ARE IN HOSPITALS

Proprietor Believes Business Rivals Responsible

DETROIT, Sept. 20.—(AP) Sixteen persons were killed and more than 50 others are in hospitals with injuries suffered in a fire which gutted the "Study Club," a night club on the edge of the downtown theatre district, early today.

Patrolman James McGuire, who discovered the blaze, ran to a nearby firebox and returned to find the flames and smoke roaring up the staircase.

Trapped in Cloak Room There were 30 persons found in a small cloak room, seven by fifteen feet in size, all unconscious. They had apparently gone there to get valuable wraps and were trapped.

Many were injured jumping from third floor windows. S. H. Hearne, 33, of Houston was burned slightly. Damage to the building and contents was estimated at $35,000.

Marty Cohen, proprietor of the club, attributed the fire to rivals in business.

JURIST ADVISES VOTE BONDS FOR NEW COURTHOUSE

Judge Charles Gibbs, former district judge here but now a prominent practicing attorney of San Angelo, and who knows the needs of the courts and county and district officers, had the following statements to make when interviewed about the proposed new court house:

"The reporter for the Reporter-Telegram having asked for an expression from me relative to the proposed court house bond issue I shall gladly and briefly add my endorsement to the proposed bond issue. It is true I have no vote in Midland county's affairs at the present time, but the fact remains that my friends are here and my heart is here and I am interested in the welfare of my old home town more than I am in the welfare of the town in which I live.

Some wag has said that an optimist builds a town and a pessimist owns it. The optimist hasn't finished his work in Midland and I hope the pessimist will be patient until the optimist can build a good town for him.

As I view the situation it is altogether probable that a city of considerable proportions will develop somewhere on the South Plains and at the present time there is a "hoss race" on between Big Springs and Midland as to which will claim the honor. The loser in this race is doomed to be dead cock in the pit after the race is over. For a time Midland had the lead because of the fact that she had just finished her new high school building and was ready for business when the boom hit the country and by reason of the fact that the Llano hotel was the most western outpost for the oil operators. But Big Spring soon sensed the situation and has caught up with Midland with her public buildings and hotels and the race is on again. The town that lags at this stage of the race is doomed to take the count.

Figures In Sensational Trial Of Young "Torch Killer"

GRISSOM-ROBERTSON STORE HELD MEMORABLE OPENING HERE THURSDAY

The Grissom-Robertson store, successor to Wadley-Wilson Company, is now down to routine business, practically finished in all its beautiful furnishings and metropolitan appointments, and the formal opening yesterday afternoon was an unqualified success. Taken as a whole it beggars powers of description. Adjectives are inadequate. It was just beautiful, unusual, gorgeous!

Before entering one was impressed with the show windows. Very urban. Four beautiful evening gowns, which would grace any occasion, were attractively displayed. First a wood-brown transparent velvet, then a rose velvet, a gorgeous black chiffon and silver cloth, and a robin blue lace combined with transparent velvet, which was indeed like a dream came true. These models were all worn by Hollywood movie stars.

The store was lovely in its floral decorations of ferns, quantities of hot-house flowers, and with baskets of our own wild prairie sunflowers, stationed here and there, which seemed suggestive of loyalty upon the part of this "Greater Store" to the soil and the old West, from whence all this prosperity came.

Trailing vines and floor baskets, filled with variegated flowers, lent a note of beauty to the harmony of the ensemble. Music of an excellent character was played on a Panotrope, furnished by courtesy of the Midland Hardware and Furniture company, as the "guests"—for the prevailing atmosphere of gracious hospitality made one feel as a guest of honor at a splendid social function—were served the most delicious lime freeze. Mesdames C. C. Watson and N. W. Bigham presided at the punchbowl. The men visitors were also presented with fine cigars.

And here we digress briefly to mention a thoughtful, friendly incident. It was Rotary luncheon day. At the conclusion of this festivity, ex-President Pratt suggested that the members visit the opening, in a body; and they did, directly after one o'clock, and the occasion was of the merriest sort.

The ready-to-wear department, although lavishly decorated for the occasion, seemed to need no other adornment than its own handsome furnishings, and the wonderful array of beautiful gowns, created for the languorous, dreamy hours of evening, chic little sports models, afternoon gowns of richness and dignity of materials, demure and saucy little morning and house frocks; in fact every type of dress, coat and hat were found, in all the style, all the quality, all the workmanship, to appeal to every capricious mood of midday.

And of all this but partially describes the feminine attractions arrayed in this great store in panoramic splendor, what may not be said even of the departments for men? You have noted the publicity given in this paper Wednesday of every conceivable wish of the masculine heart. It was all there, all of it, and more beyond mention. Throughout the hours between 1:30 and 6:30 p. m. great crowds thronged these spacious store unceasingly. As they entered, the callers were presented with beautiful red and white carnations, which seemed drowsy with their own fragrance. Mesdames Wadley and Ulmer presided here.

The salesmen and salesladies from Superintendent Addison Wadley, all through the sales force of the old Wadley-Wilson Company, vied with each other in a cheerful, wholehearted endeavor to make it a pleasing and memorable occasion for all visitors, assuring every one of the present welcome, and no less hospitality, courtesy, and an ever suiting service upon their visits in the future.

Officials Present President Grissom of the Grissom-Robertson Stores, Inc., of Abilene, was present. He is a pleasing courteous gentleman, just well entered into virile activities of a great executive business career. Obviously he was highly pleased with every well directed detail of this formal opening, and in his pleasure Superintendent Wadley and his earnest helpers, who had so labored and so planned for the success of this greeting to the public, reflected a satisfaction that is splendid to feel and to realize.

Approached and interrogated by a representative of the press, Mr. Grissom said:

"I am pleased, of course, delighted. So are and will be other members of our corporation. It has all cost lots of money, true enough, but this is a beautiful store, and the money has been well spent.

STRONG SERMONS RAYBURN PROGRAM FOR WEEK END

With a busy and successful week of the Rayburn campaign drawing to a close, a strong schedule of sermons is announced for the week end.

Friday night's message is on "Three Liars and What They Said." Saturday night's sermon is "The Anchor of the Soul."

Sunday will have five services, the 10:30 morning sermon at the tabernacle being on "The Missing Disciple"; the 2:30 meeting for men and boys, at the tabernacle, to have Dr. Rayburn's sermon on "Manhood"; the 3 o'clock afternoon service at the Methodist church for women, with Mr. Ottosen as speaker; the 6:30 evening service for young people at the Christian church, at which time Mr. Ottosen will speak on "Falling in Love"; and the 7:30 night service at the tabernacle when Dr. Rayburn will use the subject "Hell—What It Is and What It Is Not."

Modern Lions Don't Require Warm Meat

"Some like 'em hot, some like 'em cold—some like 'em in the pot ten days old."

At the barbecue Thursday afternoon the theory that Lions like their food fresh after the kill was disproved. Cakes and pies and crullers and every other "lionized" tid bit from the cuisine had been baked for several days. The beef which was barbecued had been killed the first of the week.

The picnic had successively been postponed because of rainfall.

EXPERIMENT AUTOMOBILE TO BE USED

Local Land Company To Assist In A Campaign

Exploitation of farm land in Midland County will be done in an original way this year, the Midland Chamber of Commerce determined at its meeting Thursday. An exhibit automobile will be sent on a 20-day tour of West and Central Texas farming towns.

Ira F. Lord will use his own automobile and work without salary, the Chamber paying only part of his actual expenses. Lord will have in his car exhibits of cotton, grain sorghums, fruits, melons, and vegetables.

Large signs reading: "Midland Farm Car—Free Demonstration by Dirt Farmer" will be placed on the car. Illustrated farm literature about to be issued by the Chamber of Commerce will be carried.

Lord will drive his auto onto the market square or farmers' market place of such towns as Winters, Ballinger, Abilene, Roby, Cleburne, Itasca, and Hillsboro and there talk personally to farmers urging them to buy the low priced fertile farm lands.

Cheap and Efficient Directors of the Chamber of Commerce believe this method of advertising will be more efficient than exhibiting at fairs, and the whole 20 days will cost less than an exhibition at only one fair. Lord will make direct contact with the farmers, answer their questions, and give them complete data on Midland as a farming area.

Many business men of Midland believe Midland's outstanding future development is involved in growth of farming in the county. They know the cattle and oil industries will always be important, and now lead so far as wealth is concerned, but they believe a combined farm and stock program—stock farming—will mean Midland's steady growth and permanent prosperity. Some of the leading cattlemen of Midland are the most zealous supporters of the farm program.

"FORGETFULNESS" TERRIBLE SIN, RAYBURN SAYS

"Beware Lest Ye Forget the Lord Thy God!"

Evangelist James Rayburn used this text as a warning that engendered full attention of a good crowd at the all-city tabernacle Friday night, a night officially designated as Lions Club Night.

"There are three subtle lapses of memory entailed in the unforgivable forgetfulness of God," the evangelist said. "Prosperity, which seemingly should cause thanksgiving over the period of life many times defeats itself by offering a background of luxury, which causes ambition to seek more luxury and all that is traced to voluptuousness.

"Adversity sometimes causes the mind of the mortal to turn his back upon the God who created him. This factor, too, is unintelligible when considered as a basis for breaking relationship with the only One who can resolve comfort out of chaotic misery and sorrow of bereavement.

"The third influence which causes the weakening on earth to forget that his God is omnipresent and omnipotent to the exclusion of all trials to him who puts his trust in Him is over-occupation. He who is too busy to remember his Lord is indeed over-occupied."

The evangelist did not state a premise and then leave conclusions to the collective mind of his large audience. Small children strained forward as illustration after illustration was given to show concretely the application of each principal argument in the vital address.

"There is virtue in warning," the evangelist said. His characteristic pause directly afterward left time to bridge the as yet unspanned gap of the audience's reasoning on the assertion and the next thought. "We erect startling color signs against disease, gongs against mechanical contrivances at danger points—why not sound the warning against an alternative which faces everyone before death, the taking of the wrong path?"

The category of sins which, not cardinal, yet turn the individual to the deepest offenses against the Godhead was depicted in quick succession by the evangelist. He spoke of personal dissensions creating a decision in the individual not to attend church and the words of God. He pointed out the futility of getting away from the words of Paul who admonished the children of the earth to put away childish things when they should become of mature mental age. Things of the world should be put aside, and the high calling of God looked into the face.

A sharp slap at those who hide behind excuse in saying they do not feel themselves amenable to more work in the church, citing as their reason that they "do more already than most others," was directed at culpable membership of churches. "There should be definite spiritual ambition as well as material ambition," the evangelist showed. "There are too many spiritual runts."

In creating a background for analogy and contrast, the minister showed many remembrances which it would be foolish to forget. He spoke of home and mother and father and of childhood scenes as inextricably fixed in the memory of all men who try to be religiously proper in all things.

"How much more necessary is it that we remember the God who created these things," Dr. Rayburn shouted.

"The greatest lapse of memory is that of forgetting God. Moses knew that he was to see an end of war and persecution made against his people; but he saw a definite danger in the fatted days to come. Too many cattle, too many shekels. Too much ease. Did not the Roman empire fall before the Vandals for that reason?"

"There are outstanding cases to prove the axiom which says that prosperity is a universal cause of forgetfulness. History records it. Biography reeks with it. Beware when thy silver and gold be multiplied." Money drunk is worse than (Continued on Page 6)

MIDLAND PEOPLE GO TO IMPORTANT ODESSA MEETING

When a meeting on the proposal to tie up by injunction further enforcement of the present sterilization and fumigation laws on cotton grown and ginned in the pink boll worm restricted district is called to order in Odessa Monday morning, the Midland Chamber of Commerce secretary and an attorney, W. Edward Lee, may be present to aid in getting the best legislation possible for farmers. A representative of the Reporter-Telegram will be present to give news coverage to the session.

Reimbursement for expenses incurred in fumigation and sterilization appears to be the alternative. Legislators, farmers, secretaries of chambers of commerce and others have received call letters signed by Representatives Henry E. Webb of Odessa and Carl Rountree of Lamesa.

Attorney Lee proffered his services when the call requested that lawyers be brought to the meeting. Injunction action to overthrow the restrictions, incitement of a congressional investigation and other movements have been suggested frequently since Governor Moody vetoed, on the contention of its unconstitutionality, an appropriation of $150,000 to be paid farmers for cost of fumigation and sterilization. The restrictions are enforced by the federal department of agriculture assisted by the state.

Sandefer, Jr., with Dr. Wimberly of San Angelo acknowledging the welcome. Special lectures will be given by Dr. A. L. Frew, oral surgeon on the staff of the Dallas Medical and Surgical Clinic; Dr. W. T. Lloyd of Plainview and Dr. W. A. Grouws of Dallas.

The annual golf tournament will be held at the Breckenridge Country club at 5 p. m., while at 7 the annual banquet will be held at the Burch hotel with dancing to follow. Entertainment will be furnished by the Oil Belt Dental society.

NUMBERS FOR THE PILOTS

The aeronautics branch of the Department of Commerce, seeking to aid aerial navigation by having all air routes plainly marked, suggests that automobile highways be marked for the benefit of aviators.

It proposes that the regular automobile route numbers be painted on main highways in letters 20 or 30 feet long, so that they would be visible from a considerable height. This, it says, would be easy to accomplish and would prove an invaluable aid to pilots.

It sounds like a good idea. The numbering of automobile routes has proven an inestimable boon to the motorist. Touring in a state which pays decent attention to the job of setting up the numbered route markers is a delight. It is almost impossible for even a careless motorist to lose his way, provided he is willing to spend 35 cents for a map. If painting the numbers on the roads would do as much for the flyers, we're in favor of it.

WE INSIST ON SPEED

Tragic as the loss of the City of San Francisco was, it is not likely that it will in any way check the development of commercial aviation.

Mankind's love for speed—its eternal desire to travel across the earth faster than before—has survived a tremendous number of tragedies. The advance of aviation is nothing but an extension of this desire for speed, and the latest accident will not check that desire.

The early railroads—the first improvement on the horse—cost many, many lives before they were made safe. The first steam boats killed so many people that one wonders why people didn't give them up in disgust. And the automobile continues to kill thousands every year.

When people find a new way of traveling fast, they are apt to stick to it in spite of all accidents.

ROCHESTER'S DISTINCTION

The National Safety Council points out that Rochester, N. Y., has a claim to distinction such as few other American cities, large or small, can claim.

Rochester, which is a city of 328,000 citizens, passed through three entire months this year without a single motor traffic death.

Less distinguished, but topping all other cities, is Baltimore, whose 830,000 inhabitants managed to go three weeks without one fatality.

Those are marks for other cities to copy. It would be fine thing if cities could work up as much rivalry over their traffic safety records as they now do over more exciting, but less important things.

Weekly Sunday School Lesson

Text: Mal. 3:1-12

Behold, I will send my messenger, and he shall prepare the way before me; and the Lord, whom ye seek, shall suddenly come to his temple, even this messenger of the covenant, whom ye delight in: behold, he shall come, saith the Lord of hosts.

But who may abide the day of his coming? and who shall stand when he appeareth? for he is like a refiner's fire, and like fullers' soap.

And he shall sit as a refiner and purifier of silver; and he shall purify the sons of Levi, and purge them as gold and silver, that they may offer unto the Lord an offering in righteousness.

Then shall the offering of Judah and Jerusalem be pleasant unto the Lord, as in the days of old, and as in former years.

And I will come near to you to judgment; and I will be a swift witness against the sorcerers, and against the adulterers, and against false swearers, and against those that oppress the hireling in his wages, the widow, and the fatherless, and that turn aside the stranger from his right, and fear not me, saith the Lord of hosts.

For I am the Lord, I change not; therefore ye sons of Jacob are not consumed.

Even from the days of your fathers ye are gone away from mine ordinances, and have not kept them. Return unto me, and I will return unto you, saith the Lord of hosts. But ye said, Wherein shall we return?

Will a man rob God? Yet ye have robbed me. But ye say, Wherein have we robbed thee? In tithes and offerings.

Ye are cursed with a curse; for ye have robbed me, even this whole nation.

Bring ye all the tithes into the storehouse, that there may be meat in mine house, and prove me now herewith, saith the Lord of hosts, if I will not open you the windows of heaven, and pour you out a blessing, that there shall not be room enough to receive it.

And I will rebuke the devourer for your sakes, and he shall not destroy the fruits of your ground; neither shall your vine cast her fruit before the time in the field, saith the Lord of hosts.

And all nations shall call you blessed: for ye shall be a delightful land, saith the Lord of hosts.

The International Uniform Sunday School Lesson for Sept. 22, Preparing the Way of the Lord, Mal. 3:1-12.

By WM. E. GILROY, D. D., Editor of The Congregationalist.

Malachi, though it stands in our Bible as the last book of the Old Testament, probably comes from a time earlier than certain other portions of the Old Testament. It is doubtful whether it should be dated before the time of Ezra and his reform, about 458 B. C., or a few years later between the time of Ezra's arrival at Jerusalem and the coming of Nehemiah.

The name of the writer of the prophecy is lost, for Malachi means "my messenger," and the translators of the Septuagint, the ancient Greek translation of the Hebrew Scriptures, give the title of the book as "His Messenger." The name of the messenger, however, has little to do with the message, which might have been given by any great prophet of the time. The value of this scripture for us is in all that it symbolizes concerning the hope of a new day and the means by which the golden era may be ushered in.

A Source of Inspiration

The work of John the Baptist as a forerunner of Christ has emphasized the place of the messenger and the need of preparation, even for the coming of the Lord. Possibly a great part of John's inspiration for his task may have come from this vivid description of the messenger in the Book of Malachi and in the emphasis there placed upon the preparation of the way.

The beauty of the description of the coming of the Lord here given is equalled only by the beauty of the spiritual ideal set forth. The coming of the Lord is a time of discrimination and judgment, when all that is pure shall be revealed and all impurities shall be purged, as a refiner purges base metals with fire or as a fuller prepares his garments with soap. This coming Lord is to sit as a refiner and purifier of silver, and it is significant that the purification begins with the sons of Levi, the ministers of religion, who thus purified, as refined gold and silver, shall offer unto Jehovah offerings of righteousness.

This day of purification will not be one of mere ritualistic holiness, but a day rather of purification in righteousness and truth. This Lord who is to come abhors all evil—sorecery, adultery, and false swearing. His age will be an age of social righteousness and justice, with splendid morality and spiritual vision. All that the Lord represents stands opposed to the oppression of the worker, and of the widow and fatherless. The day of the Lord is to be a day of the common people in which the rights and needs of every man are recognized.

It is in this high climax of social morality that the religion of the Old Testament finds its noblest expression, and it was the emphasis upon righteousness and truth in its social relations that gave distinctive quality to every great era and movement of reform in the Old Testament times.

From this vision of the coming of the Lord and all that His coming means, the prophet turns to intense rebuke of the evils and sins of his own age. He charges the people of his day with a disregard of the ultimate obligations and privileges of religion. They have not dealt justly with God; they have robbed the Almighty of a just return for all that has been bestowed upon them, and in robbing God they have robbed man.

The reference here to "the devourer" indicates the nature of the evils that result when men disregard the claims and purposes of God. The devourer has been present in every age, and the devourer is responsible for a great part of the misery in the world. Such conditions of social evil and injustice bring a curse upon men, but from this curse there is a refuge if men will turn to God and to the ways of righteousness and truth.

A Magnificent Ideal

Hence the dominant note of the prophecy is an appeal to the people to turn to God and to find the blessing that inevitably comes when men seek to fulfill divine purpose, living in harmony, honesty and truth. It is a sublime ideal that the prophet sets before the people—the ideal of a happy nation and "a delightful land."

"A delightful land"—what a beautiful phrase in all that it implies! It ought to be inscribed upon all our national banners as an ideal—an ideal to which no nation has ever attained, but an ideal that looms before us with the invitation of joy and glory. Would God that we might yet see established a society so perfect in its recognition of God, in its devotion and righteousness, in its regard for the need and welfare of every individual that there might be a realization of the ideal here set forth in an ancient prophecy so amplified and glorified in the coming of Jesus the Christ and in His revelation of the way of salvation!

Regarding ELECTRICAL APPLIANCES

FOR many years this Company was concerned with only one problem—that of delivering dependable and economical electric energy to the home.

Then the electric appliance—of one type and another—began to play a very important part in electric service to the home. This condition brought a further and deeper responsibility to this Company—that of supplying the proper kind of electric appliances to its customers.

An electric appliance for the home should do certain definite things. First it should be efficient; that is, give the most service for the least cost price. Second, it should use the least amount of electric energy in operation, and should stand up for the longest period of service.

It became necessary, then, for this Company to adopt a very rigid policy in the matter of selecting and offering appliances for sale to its customers. So, throughout the years this Company has maintained a testing laboratory through which each appliance must pass with creditable performance before it is offered to our customers.

You can depend absolutely on the appliances which we offer to you through our stores. Each one is the best of its kind. They have been carefully tested for quality, workmanship, economy of operation and are backed by the reputation of this Company, as well as by the manufacturer of the various appliances. Enjoy the fullest use of electric service with the best of electric appliances.

STAR AND DIRECTOR OF "UNDERWORLD" PRODUCE SMASHING DIALOGUE FILM

George Bancroft, who made such an overwhelming success of his first all-talking picture, "The Wolf of Wall Street," appears in a new all-talking drama, "Thunderbolt," at the Ritz Theatre Sunday. Bancroft's voice is part of the man himself, deep, resonant and capable of expressing a wide range of emotions. Richard Arlen, co-featured with Fay Wray in "Thunderbolt," has already made a name for himself in talking pictures in "The Man I Love." "Thunderbolt," directed by Josef von Sternberg, maker of "Underworld," is a gripping picture of life and love outside the law.

The fame of "Underworld" started two outstanding screen personalities on the road to success. They are George Bancroft and Josef von Sternberg. Now these two have turned to talking pictures and have made another masterpiece, said to outstrip "Underworld," in the all-talking medium. The picture is "Thunderbolt." Sights and sounds of Harlem, New York's great Negro metropolis, and of Sing Sing's "condemned row" furnish the background for the story of a fighting he-man. Richard Arlen and Fay Wray are co-featured in the picture.

Few of the actors who won fame in the silent picture have switched to the all-talking medium with such success as George Bancroft. His great masterpiece, "Underworld," which Josef von Sternberg directed, revealed Bancroft to motion picture audiences as one of the outstanding stars of the cinema world. Then he made the all-talking picture, "The Wolf of Wall Street," and won a new fame. In "Thunderbolt" he and Von Sternberg have combined to make an all-talking masterpiece which is greater than "Underworld."

HOORAY! AL COMES WITH DAVEY LEE IN "SAY IT WITH SONGS"

Al Jolson, the world's greatest entertainer, comes to the R-R Ritz Theatre, Big Spring, Texas, for five big days, commencing Tuesday, September 24th, in Warner Bros. latest picture, "Say It With Songs." "Say It With Songs" is a personality-plus picture and packing personality into pictures is Al Jolson's particular gift. Call it fervor, magnetism, luck, wit—what you will—this strange ability to electrify everybody, everywhere, belongs to just one person—Jolson!

There is probably more of Jolson in "Say It With Songs" than in either of his other pictures. In some inexplicable way he dominates every one he touches while a picture is in process of production and the camera catches all the brilliant high lights, and tender by-lights of his remarkable presence.

While the early scenes of "Say It With Songs" were being recorded, the same difficulties that have beset the early scenes of "The Jazz Singer" and "The Singing Fool," appeared. The crew and cast became so enthralled during Jolson's first scene that business practically stopped.

"It always takes a little time for us to get used to working while Al acts," Director Lloyd Bacon explained to a bystander.

"I'll never get used to it," a camera man remarked, "but I hope I will know enough, not altogether to forget what I am doing, when that same scene is shot again!"

Lock of Hair May Hold Fate of Freeman, Midland Man, In Murder Trial

KIMBROUGH IN CASE; RELATIVE IS QUESTIONED

A lock of light brown hair, cut from the head of Warren Hudson, 21, after he died of injuries received May 27 when he was struck by a hit-and-run driver near Tye, was produced in 42nd district court by his widowed mother, Dr. Lydia P. Hudson of Abilene, for comparison with a wisp of hair found clinging to a sideboard standard on a truck owned by D. W. Freeman of Midland. Freeman is on trial on a charge of murder in connection with Hudson's death, says the Abilene News this morning. The account continues:

Lock of Hair Shown
A lanky young man about 25 years old—T. A. Richardson, Freeman's nephew by marriage and the state's star witness—was on the stand for an hour Thursday afternoon. He described in detail a trip he made with Freeman from Midland to Abilene on the night of May 26, relating the number of times he said he and Freeman drank from a half-gallon jar of whiskey between Midland and Sweetwater, how he had quarreled with Freeman about the latter's driving, and why he told Midland officials about a thud he heard against the side of the truck about the time and place Hudson was struck.

State May Rest Today
State attorneys expect to rest their case about noon today. Twelve witnesses, including Warren's 20-year-old widow and his mother, testified for the state Thursday.

Defense attorneys, who will begin presenting testimony when the state rests its case today, have not indicated how many of the witnesses they have summoned will go on the stand, nor when the defendant's case will be closed.

Circumstantial Evidence
The state, represented by District Attorney J. R. Black, County Attorney Frank Smith and W. J. Cunningham, special prosecutor, probably will depend largely on the testimony of Richardson for conviction.

Richardson's story, as he told it from the witness stand, was substantially as follows:

"I have known Mr. Freeman for about 18 years. He is my uncle by marriage. On May 26, after I had been working for him at his filling station and auto wrecking yard in Midland for about four weeks, we left Midland in his model A Ford truck for Wichita Falls, where I was to join my wife while he went on to Bowie to see his sister. Freeman took two drinks of whiskey about noon before we left Midland between 3:30 and 4:45. Between Midland and Sweetwater I took four drinks and Freeman took five. A man we picked up on the road and who was riding in the back of the truck drank with Freeman twice.

Cautioned Freeman
"Before we reached Sweetwater I cautioned Freeman about his driving when he ran a car off the road and again when he went into a ditch. He would say, 'Well, we didn't hit 'em.' Once on the trip there was a car coming and I saw we were going to hit it. I jerked the wheel and he got mad. 'If that's the way you're going to do, I'll pay you off and send you home by train,' Freeman told me. 'This is my car and I'll drive it as I please,' he said.

"We stopped at a little town and asked about trains, but none was due out until the next day and we started on into Abilene. I fell asleep and was woken up by a noise or crash. The left wheel of the truck was almost off the pavement on the wrong side of the road. I looked back and saw a tail light moving on up the road. I thought we had just scraped a fender on a car and that Freeman was just going on. We left Sweetwater at 11:25 p. m."

Richardson said he was let out of the truck here, to wait for the return of Freeman. He waited awhile then couldn't locate his companion and hitch-hiked back to Midland. He had heard of Hudson's death before Freeman returned to Midland that afternoon (May 27) in the truck, and examined the machine, finding a split board, bent standard and the hair on one of the left-hand sideboards. He drove the truck to the home of his uncle C. W. Cowley, and told him about the whole transaction, Richardson testified. They later called in Sheriff A. C. Francis, who communicated with Sheriff H. T. O'Bar at Abilene. Francis and O'Bar inspected the truck the next day, took the left hand sideboard from the truck and arrested Richardson and Freeman.

King Reads Statement

King, reading from a statement purported to have been made by Richardson to Letcher King and Mr. Kimbrough, present Midland county attorney, asked Richardson after each sentence "Did you make that statement?" Richardson admitted making those statements which coincided with his testimony on direct examination, but denied each statement which varied from his testimony, notably that he and Freeman left Midland May 22 and that he returned there alone May 23, placing the incidents he described four days before Hudson died.

On re-direct examination Richardson said he was questioned by King and Kimbrough, that "they didn't take anything down" and that "several days later they brought me a typewritten statement. It didn't sound good to me. I told them it wasn't correct and I didn't want to sign it."

C. W. Crowley, Midland county stockman, corroborated Richardson's testimony, in the main, and added, on cross examination, that he didn't tell Richardson to bring the truck to him.

Lock of Hair Traced
Sheriff Francis related what transpired from the time he first heard of the case until he and Sheriff O'Bar arrested Richardson and Freeman. O'Bar followed Francis on the stand with substantially the same testimony.

Young Hudson's widow was the first witness for the state when the case was opened Thursday morning. Sobbing, her pale face and blonde hair contrasting sharply with a trim, black ensemble, Mrs. Hudson took the stand and described how her husband was dragged from her arms to his death as they were riding tandem on a motorcycle enroute to Sweetwater, she with her arms around him.

Bad Check Giver Is Jailed Here

A man walked into Weinstein's Dry Goods company. He bought a pair of shoes and presented a check made out on a local bank for approximately $15 more than the purchase.

"But you are a stranger. I'll have to see about the check," a clerk said, and left to ask about the matter at the bank.

The man, who was accompanied by a small girl, stayed in the store. Officer Norwood came into the store at this juncture with another check, one that had been given a restaurant. He was "looking" for the man who had given it.

C. C. Praises Work Of Helping Members

Informal appreciation for outstanding community work recently done by Midland citizens was expressed today by the Chamber of Commerce officials. Special attention was called to the fact that Aubrey S. Legg has obtained the donation of a $150 Jersey bull from the Texas Power and Light Company to be awarded one of the prize winning communities in the Midland County Farm Fair, Sept. 28.

Appreciation had been previously expressed for the Jersey bull donated a Midland farm community by the Texas & Pacific Railway Co. Attention was called to the work done by Sam Preston in getting the road work started in Andrews county, and the work previously done by John Nobles and E. H. Barron. The chamber expressed obligation to C. A. McClintic who annually pays his own expenses in connection with Midland's great oil exhibit, and to all others cooperating in building a bigger and better Midland.

Moody Issues Order Hold Whitey Walker

AUSTIN, Sept. 20.—(UP)—Governor Moody last night issued instructions to the Hutchinson county sheriff to hold William M. "Whitey" Walker for Oklahoma officers in case he is acquitted on a murder charge in Hutchinson county. Oklahoma wants him on a charge of robbery with firearms.

JUST FORCED HER HUSBAND TO TAKE IT

"If Everybody Here in San Angelo Knew What Orgatone Did For My Husband You Would Have A Rush In This Store," Says Mrs. Conger.

"If everybody in San Angelo only knew what Orgatone has done for my husband you would have a rush in this store for that medicine like a run on a bank," said Mrs. Fred Conger, living on Route E, Miles, Texas, while talking with the Orgatone representative.

"I just had to force and persuade my husband to take Orgatone, but since taking it he would not be without it, it has helped him so," she continued. "He had a very chronic case of stomach trouble; gas formed on his stomach and he would bloat up something terrible until he could hardly get his breath. He was just in a general rundown condition and felt bad all the time and really didn't feel like working. He had, too, worked inside so long, his condition was bad because he didn't get the fresh air and sunshine he needed. He had a languid, draggy feeling most all the time."

"At first he didn't want to take Orgatone, but now he says he can swallow Orgatone better than any kind of medicine for the shape of the tablet makes it so easy to take. He feels much better and his stomach doesn't bother him; the gas and bloating spells have all disappeared and he looks and feels like a different person. He sleeps fine and doesn't have those tired, draggy feelings. He has a much better appetite and Orgatone has helped him so much we both are glad to recommend it."

Genuine Orgatone may be bought at Midland, at the Midland Drug Co.—Adv.

SAYS HE'S LIKE A MAN MADE OVER NEW NOW

"I feel like a new man—made all over again and I'm glad to tell the whole world what Sargon has done for me."

"For the first time in 15 years, I am free from pains and feeling fine. I've gained 12 pounds, too, and that's something worth talking about, because I was in a terrible rundown condition."

"I had pains in my side for three years and they were so bad I could hardly stand them. My blood pressure was low and people my age know what that means, because it brings on all sorts of complications like headaches, shortness of breath and low vitality. That's not worrying me any more for my blood has been built up and even though I am 52 years old, I feel fine and full of energy all the time."

"I'm through now" with losing lots of time and spending lots of money on useless medicines. I know Sargon does the work and I'm not going to be without a bottle handy from now on.—H. M. Curtis, 725 Frey Avenue, Fort Worth—Agents, Midland Drug Co.—Adv.

DRAMA IS DEPICTED IN TRIAL OF BLACKIE HILL ON MURDER CHARGE

The case of the State of Texas versus J. H. "Blackie" Hill, charged with murder in connection with the killing of J. Brewer on the night of May 6, last, in the Ballard Cafe—so it was defined in the legal record.

With the prosecution, it was a case of demanding the death penalty. With the defense attorneys, it was an entirely different matter. They sought to prove their client was not guilty of murder as stated in the case.

The reporter's interest being neither legal nor prejudiced, he looked upon the case and the principals as a bit of drama—part of this greater play called life.

The scene was familiar and yet, a newness that any different set of principals would give to a story.

Facing the judge was a table at which the attorneys sat. At the extreme left of the center section of seats sat the plaintiff near her attorney. And to the right, separated by several seats occupied by other interested people, were Blackie Hill, his wife and two little girls.

Attorney Sam R. Wasaff, facing the jury seated along the east wall of the court room, just to the left of Mrs. Brewer, began his argument to prove the guilt of Blackie Hill. Evidently impressed with the seriousness of their task, those twelve men listened intently to each word of the lawyer. Rarely did any one look away from the man before them, as he re-enacted the scene of the murder.

Mrs. Brewer, in a light brown satin dress with soft lace at the throat and cuffs, was an appealing figure. Her face, framed by a small black hat, was sad in a set expression. And as she looked steadily to the front, resting her chin slightly on her left and then her right hand, the reporter pondered on the emptiness that a woman of her type must feel in life, her husband suddenly taken from her.

For Mrs. Brewer has the air of being a dependent little woman. Her sensibilities are of the finer type, she has been sheltered from association with the rough side of life.

At mention of her husband's death and her loss of the man who had been her bread-winner, tears were seen to fall from her eyes. Quietly she wiped them away.

Blackie Hill, seated a bit to the court's left, listened intently to the pleading of Wasaff. With his heavy shock of black hair it was easily seen why he has been called "Blackie." His apparent Indian blood has determined more of his features than his hair however, and his intense brown eyes, swarthy skin and straight features give evidence of the strain of the red man which flows in his veins.

In rather careless attire, his light shirt opened at the throat, he had fallen into an easy attitude, smoking almost constantly, frequently turning to his wife to answer some question. There was nothing beaten or hurried about his expression; he faced the court and listened to the lawyer's words with a direct gaze, apparently missing nothing.

Next to him was Mrs. Hill, a rather small woman dressed in a plain wash dress of tan checked material. Her bright hat and short strand of large black and white cut glass beads, sadly out of harmony with the rest of her costume, are a reckless expression of a longing in the little woman's soul for the gay and beautiful.

Every now and then Blackie's two little girls come back into the court room. Careless of his attention they were attracting, they hurried down the aisle to their parents. The younger, Betty Jean, 3 years old, climbed into her mother's lap. Lois, who is about school age, leaned against her daddy until he lifted her onto his lap, whispering to her to be quiet.

The defense attorney was up.

Little change was noticed in the principals. Perhaps a bit of tenseness in Mrs. Hill's face and manner, showed her anxiety for this man's work to be good.

Then the case was rested. The jury received their instructions, the crowd left the court.

Three hours later the jury had arrived at a decision. Part of the motley crowd had returned. The ugly old room heard another man's punishment described. Blackie Hill was sent to the penitentiary for 35 years.

MALLETEERS OF MIDLAND RIDE IN VICTORY AGAINST ABILENE

Golden Bears of Baylor Are Expected to Cop 1929 Southwestern Season

ONE HORSEMAN IN PLANE LANDS ON FIELD

San Angelo's riding horse-men, Jimmy Woods and George Coates of Midland among them, hammered their way to a win over Abilene to even the count in the West Texas Exposition polo tourney Thursday afternoon. The score was 9-5, Abilene's handicap giving the Angels the fast game.

The deciding game is to be played Saturday.

The Abilene News said that No-elke's riding proved the feature of the winning four's play.

Abilene's four goal handicap, after each team had scored five goals during the eight chukkers of play gave the victory to San Angelo.

Deane Gill of Abilene landed his airplane on the field and taxied to the side lines to get out and start the contest.

Though he failed to make a goal, the sensational riding of "Sonny Boy" Noelke of Mertzon on the San Angelo team proved a big factor in the local victory. So did the accuracy of Woods and Linticum with the mallet. Nasworthy did some fancy riding to provide interference for the San Angelo team.

While Gill and Widmer were the big scorers for Abilene, the work of Childers was an outstanding feature of the contest and the playing of Austin stood out.

New people moving into the west will naturally take note of public buildings and other civic improvements. They know that their families will be better satisfied in a live wide awake forward-looking town. Midland has an advantage in that it is nearer to the main oil fields than any of its competitors and if it keeps abreast of this progressive move it is sure to win in this contest for the metropolis of the oil fields.

It is my firm belief that company is coming and that the citizenship of Midland should put on its Sunday clothes and get ready to entertain.

whiskey drunk; its influence is more lasting. Why did Harvard and Yale and Princeton and Chicago universities cease their corrective functions and trend towards doubt and the Slough of Despond? Too much endowment. They became independent of the prayers of those who sustained the universities, even though the interested ones did not always find themselves listed as great material contributors.

"In taking up the second division of the great reasons for forgetting God, I should say that adversity sometimes causes the individual to ask 'What's the use? I am not treated equitably by God. Look what He did to my neighbor, and yet I have suffered His hand even while trying to serve Him.'

"Did Job say this, even when covered by abominable sores and beset by every affliction at the resource of the devil's cunning. His children and herds and material wealth were swept away, and yet he was heard to utter his plaintive thanks to God that all was not as it might have been.

"Forgetfulness sometimes destroys human life on earth—before that life is called before the High Tribunal to see weighed his fate. The engineer forgets the block signal, the mother leaves the strong disinfectant within the baby fingers of the first born. Sorrow falls excruciatingly upon those who are responsible. So it is with those who err profligately in the sight of the Supreme. They forget God and their God is removed farther from them. Their souls parch in the heat of desire and drown in the wait for sordid material acquisition.

"Then there is the man who is over-occupied. He forgets quickly. He cannot go to church; there is a deal on for his attention. He falls into the class of an earthly

WRECKED HOPE OF TWO CONTENDERS LAST SEASON

WACO, Texas, Sept. 20. With a team which wrought havoc with the championship hopes of at least two southwest conference schools after it had been eliminated in the 1928 race, practically intact, and a wealth of material acquired from freshmen ranks, Baylor University's Golden Bears are facing the brightest grid prospects in many years.

Coach Morley Jennings' paramount problem is to uncover the best combinations from a galaxy of pre-season stars. Brain followers are freely predicting that the 1929 conference banner will wave over Carroll field.

Amarillo Fliers Stop At Airport

Two fliers from Amarillo, John Yeres and Bill Berson came in Thursday to see the government inspectors who were here. They left early this morning for Amarillo.

Bill Berson, an Odessa boy, took the Universal flying course at Amarillo and recently soloed over Odessa on his first cross-country flight.

Road Donation Pays In Midland County

Directors of the Midland Chamber of Commerce in regular meeting Thursday appropriated $100 for work on the McCarley farm road in Midland. Investigation showed that one property owner in the Andrews community has spent $10,000 with Midland business men in the past six years. The farmers of the community are donating a large part of their own time in claying over the deep sand between McCarley and Midland. The farmers expect Andrews county to assist in the work. Nearly all of the McCarley cotton crop will be ginned at Midland this year. Andrews commissioners wish to see the road built as they recognize good roads must be established to insure development of the county.

Appraisal City Property Under Board's Study

West End addition's value was appraised at approximately one and a quarter million dollars this week by the board of equalization, appointed jointly by the city council and school board, which is looking into intrinsic values of all Midland property.

The board is meeting daily, having gone into initial session Monday, Sept. 16. It is expected by the members, E. N. Snodgrass, W. S. Hill and R. J. Moore that ten days will be required for finishing their appraisal.

Actual values as opposed to speculative values form the basis for all appraisals, one member of the board said. Maps showing every building in the city limits are taken and a composite map being arranged from them. This map shows every home and improvement, and data shows what the cost of given improvements would be if necessary to rebuild.

The amount of annual depreciation on improvements was set by the board as five per cent.

After all valuations are turned in by the board the necessary taxes required by the city for maintenance of its institutions will be made out and the tax rate announced.

LIARS TO GET ATTENTION IN SERMON TONIGHT

"Three Liars and What They Said" is the subject of the sermon to be preached by Dr. James Rayburn at the tabernacle tonight.

"One of these liars lives in Midland and if he isn't in the audience it will be the first time he has missed," the evangelist has announced.

The Thursday night service was well received, although the attendance was not quite as large as on Wednesday night when the building was almost filled.

Hold No Dances During Revival

"No more public dances will be held in the Hotel Scharbauer ballroom until after the Dr. Rayburn revival is over," announced Dusty Waller, manager of the hotel, today. "We do not want anything to conflict with the services that Dr. Rayburn is holding."

Mr. Waller further announced that a different plan will be followed in conducting the hotel dances hereafter.

"When we begin giving dances again we are going to try a new experiment which we feel will bring bigger and better crowds to our dances," he said. "Midland really needs some place where the people can enjoy themselves in clean, wholesome fun. We are going to try to provide it."

"I Am Innocent!" Maude Raines Says

EDITOR'S NOTE: The following installment, as written especially for The Reporter-Telegram by Maude West, nee Raines, shows how the woman, out on bond on a charge of diamond robbery in Midland, began to be beset by difficulties attaching to relationship with her second husband. Her life, she says, had been one continual period of misery. The story is reproduced as it was written behind the bars of the county jail.

On April 16, 1926 I was shot by a moonshiner or a guard. My step son was the man who shot me. I went out to look for my husband. I started to the still near Geneva, Ark. I lay 21 days in the hospital. The way it came up was this. The step son had asked me for a gun and I had let him have mine, a 30-30. He already had a shot gun loaded with buck shot.

It got dark and I wanted my husband. I decided to hunt him. I went in my car to where I thought the still was. I did not know that I was in danger.

Suddenly a voice said, "Halt." I told him to go to the mischief. I kept driving my car. It was in a wooded section of the forest. Suddenly a shot I heard. Buck shot whistled all around, and I did too. Some of it took effect in my body.

A heavier boom and the 30-30 spoke. A bullet crashed into the car, through the side of the car and into my breast. The breast bone was shattered and the bullet lodged. I was operated on. My health was broken. I took to drink to overcome my trouble, and to dope, too.

I weighed 90 pounds at that time. When I was in the hospital a store was robbed. They thought at that time I was near death. So when I got well and went home I heard some of the buddies talking. I had it bad, and so on.

A Justice of the Peace I knew came by. I told him if the law would search Laura Chappin's house they could find $5,000 in stuff. I knew he could be trusted with my secret.

He could and the law did and the stuff was there. They found out some way. I done this then. She said she bought it from me and had a bill of sale. No witnesses on it and not sworn to, and dated the day I was on the operating table, so thanks to the good doctors and nurses.

So while I was on bond waiting for trial, or they thought I was on bond the sheriff let me out on my word and honor. They promised to shield me and stay by me. They did.

I was dismissed but Laura went to the pen and served her time. But never did tell who helped her in this. They used my car while I was in the hospital. Yes.

I found out about it afterward. It happened a young married couple in the neighborhood. My dear husband went back and took the young wife and carried her about 50 miles from her home to a negro house and kept her away from her husband and told it later and laughed.

The most humiliated I was. I was in a barber shop of a friend. Some one came in with a big starch collar. My friend introduced me as Mrs. D—. He took a look over his glasses. I thought Ms. D— was a big, pretty, pink-faced blonde, he said. You may have met one that passes of that description. But I am Maude D—, I said and gave him a sour look and dismissed him like that.

Mrs. Hatch called one day. Maud, you know where your husband is, she asked me.

No, I answered. I am here with my children.

Why, he is in Fulton, Ark. with that blonde head Billy Yuberrian in jail for kidnaping a gal. Somewhere on the river her daddy had the law to get them.

My old man is with them. What are you going to do.

I turn to look at her. I ask in a mile fashion who used to worry about him, Mrs. Hatch, when he was out with you?

I dismissed her that way. He came home that night about 12 or 1 and walked up to the fire.

He said, Maude get out of that bed woman and warm me some bath water.

The answer was you go straight to hell. Get Billie to heat your bath water.

He started toward my bed. I raised up with a .38 special.
