"And where are these leading candidates trying to lead us?" he asked. "One of them," he said, "wants to lead us to the chute See SMALL PANS, Page 6

By JOSEPH H. BAIRD United Press Aviation Editor

WASHINGTON, June 16.—(UP)—Under the impetus of Federal money the nation's airways will be vastly improved and expanded during the coming fiscal year, which begins June 30, according to officials of the Commerce Department's Aeronautics bureau.

Included in the bureau's vast program which will cost $7,944,000, are the following outstanding projects:

- 1. Installation of 900 miles of new air routes.
2. Lighting of 3,000 miles of airways for night flying.
3. Construction of 33 additional radio beacons and 20 airway radio message stations.
4. Maintenance in good order of the existing wide-spread system of aids to flying.

What officials regard as one of the most important single phases of the new aeronautics program will be the opening of a lighted transcontinental airway across the southern half of the United States. When this route is completed, commercial planes will fly from New York to San Diego in two nights and one day. Thus, with the use of "Lullman planes," generally forecast, the eastern business man may journey to the west coast with the loss of only one business day.

The new transcontinental route will make use of several existing sections, but unlighted portions of the present routes between Midland, Texas and San Diego, will be equipped with beacons. The cross-continent route will touch the following large cities: New York, Atlanta, Fort Worth, El Paso, San Diego and Los Angeles.

Also a lighted airway will be installed between Dallas, Little Rock, Memphis, Nashville, and Louisville, forming an alternate route to this southern transcontinental system.

Further, an additional airway, from the middle west to the east will be provided by the St. Louis-Indianapolis, Columbus, Pittsburgh, Harrisburg, Philadelphia. New York route, which will be equipped with navigation facilities.

It is likely, the Aeronautics bureau points out, that transcontinental fliers may vary their route from day to day, selecting the one over which the most ideal weather conditions prevail. A far-flung weather information service will operate to keep dispatch stations and pilots advised of atmospheric conditions all over the country.

Still another lighted airway of considerable importance planned by the Bureau for completion within the next 13 months is a cut-off route between Richmond, Va., and Jacksonville, Fla., a distance of 550 miles.

Installation of this airway will provide an alternate night route for planes flying between Boston, New York and Florida, connecting at Miami with Pan American planes, one route following the Atlantic coast line and another over the Florida peninsula to the Piedmont section via Atlanta.

Completion of the Aeronautics Bureau's ambitious program will give the United States 17,500 miles of lighted airways, which is about 75 per cent of the network of trunk airways being installed by the Federal government.

At the end of the coming fiscal year there will be 65 airway radio stations broadcasting weather information hourly. At the same time the government's teletype system for conveying weather data will have been extended to 8,500 miles, or more than twice the distance from America to Europe.

Then, scarcely a square mile will be left in the United States over which flying normally takes place, where a pilot may not receive hourly broadcasts of weather information affecting the safety of flight. Along with the development of stable aids to flying, it is forecast, will go further refinement of airplane instruments to insure safety of flight. Two developments of the past year—the automatic pilot and artificial horizon—likely will come into general use soon, aviation leaders believe. Planes fully equipped with the most modern instruments and guided over lighted airways by accurate weather advices should be able to offer transportation under conditions of unprecedented safety.

CRITICISM OF ACTION IS CAUSE

Popular Wave of Resentment Follows Lingle's Death

CHICAGO, June 16. (UP).—Police commissioner William F. Russell and Detective-chief John Stege resigned under fire today, swept aside by pressure of public indignation over the gang murder of Alfred Lingle, police reporter for the Chicago Tribune.

Under terms of their resignations, neither Russell nor Stege will leave the police department, although surrendering their positions of high command.

Russell becomes captain assigned to civil service and Stege's demotion makes him captain of the Irving park police district. Deputy-commissioner John Alock was named acting commissioner and the deputy detective-chief was appointed temporary chief.

Capitulation of the two white-haired executives came a week after the assassination of Lingle and climaxed seven days agitation for a new deal in Chicago law enforcement.

CAPONE'S BROTHER SENTENCE

CHICAGO, June 15. (UP).—Ralph Capone, brother of the notorious Scarface Al, was sentenced to three years in Leavenworth Federal penitentiary and fined $10,000 today on two charges of income tax fraud. Two other misdemeanor charges drew a year's sentence in Cook county jail and another $10,000 fine for Ralph. He was the first of the Capone family ever convicted in Cook county on any charges, despite the long records of the brothers in gang affairs.

The judge ruled that the two sentences run consecutively. Capone's conviction was the opening wedge in a drive by which the government hopes to deal a death blow to gangsters by hitting their pocketbooks.

Cadet Planes Land At Airport Today

The flight came here this morning from Ft. Sill, Oklahoma. The cadets are graduating this month, getting their wings June 21.

A REPORTER IS KILLED

It is just barely possible that in murdering Reporter Alfred J. Lingle the Chicago gangsters have gone a little too far for their own good.

Newspaper reporters are not, ordinarily, specially honored members of the community. They are not up on any pedestal. No one gives their calling the veneration that goes to such people as doctors and clergymen.

But when a newspaper man, in pursuit of his duty, follows the news trail into a place where his temerity costs his life, there seems to be something in the situation that jars public opinion clear down to the bottom.

Perhaps it is because the reporter or the editor is, in a sense, a representative of all the people. He is the eye and ear for the man in the street. The ordinary citizen depends on the newspaper man's integrity, his daring, his zeal, for his knowledge about what is going on in the world. When Lingle, for instance, pursued his inquiries in the dark places of Chicago—those deep abysses where death is an ever-present threat, where all the structure of order and decency that society has painfully reared is held in contempt—he was there as the representative of all of us.

However that may be, organized crime invariably puts its foot into it when it elects to put one of these news-gatherers out of the way.

The underworld of Canton, O., might give the Chicagoans a tip. Canton had a wide-open underworld a few years ago. It also had a courageous newspaper editor named Don Mellett, who swung his searchlight on this underworld. Canton failed to get excited about it—until Mellett paid for his daring with his life. Then Canton boiled over with indignation. It landed on its underworld like a thousand of brick. The underworld, with its leaders imprisoned, has never been the same since.

Chicago has been extraordinarily patient with its gangsters. For many years they have held open house in the nation's second city, and the city has seemed willing to tolerate them rather than rouse itself to the point of putting them down. But now it is, we repeat, just barely possible that things will be different.

For killing a reporter is, when you come right down to it, gangland's last word in open defiance to society. It is as if gangland had said: "Here—you not only can't keep us from doing the things we want to do, but you can't even find out about us. We don't want you to bother us even to the extent of putting things about us in the newspapers. If you do, we'll shoot."

It will be interesting, now, to see what happens. Killing a reporter has always been bad medicine. Will it prove so in Chicago?

HOW TO RAISE CHILDREN

Our psychologists have been very busy of late telling us how we should raise our children. The job ought to be done scientifically, they insist; most of us have not the knowledge to be good parents, and botch the job fearfully.

Now, however, comes Miss Joanna C. Colcord, of the Russell Sage Foundation to laugh these pretensions to scorn.

Miss Colcord tells the National Conference on Social Work, meeting in New York, that the old-fashioned, unscientific way of raising children is after all about the best way there is.

"The most stable children," she says, "seem to be reared by parents who are too busy at useful tasks to interfere unnecessarily in the development of the children."

That sounds like common sense. The psychologists are prone to take in a little too much ground for their claims.

Huge Sums for Germany's Land and Sea Armaments Arouse Suspicion in Europe

By MILTON BRONNER
NEA Service Writer
LONDON, June 16.—What are the bosses of the German army and navy up to?

Under cover of apparently ordinary estimates, are they providing the money for military surprises which may some day rock Europe even though the Treaty of Versailles sought to the Germany rans and foot by limiting its army and navy so it could never endanger world peace again?

These are some of the questions that are being asked today by European cabinets which are in rather anxious communication with their attaches in Berlin. For the army and navy budget estimates recently submitted to the German Reichstag have achieved the remarkable effect of at the same time arousing the violent opposition of German republicans and the deep distrust of French reactionaries. Which is a record, especially after Germany has assumed all its obligations under the Young plan for payment of war reparations and France, in turn has set in motion machinery for the withdrawal of all her troops of occupation in the German Rhineland.

Rising Cost of Navy
The German opposition in the Reichstag and in the republican newspapers is based mainly on the grounds of economy. Those who are analyzing the budget view with alarm a constantly rising sum spent on the army and navy. The French reactionaries, who always have been opposed to withdrawing their armies from the Rhine see something sinister in the big amounts proposed to be spent. They are worried by the fact that the budgets for these purposes have steadily risen ever since 1925, when the Inter-Allied Commission of Control was disbanded. This commission had as one of its main jobs to see that Germany was disarmed within the meaning of the Treaty of Versailles, and to discover any hidden stores of munitions, as well as to see that plans for the manufacture of arms forbidden by the treaty were converted into peace-time plants.

The French conclusion drawn from these ever-mounting budgets, is that Germany is manufacturing and storing war material, or is covertly subsidizing industries for the manufacture of war material. It is also suspected that by arrangement with Russia, plants are being installed there where munitions, poison gases, machine guns, artillery, and airplanes can be manufactured. Certainly there has been no dearth of criticism nearer home. The greatest newspaper in Germany the Democratic Berliner Tageblatt, has been devoting extensive articles to dissection of the budget. The facts pointed out are hard for the army and navy officers to explain. For the current year the estimate for army and navy combined was 788,000,000 marks, an increase of 50,000,000 over last year. This is at a time when Germany needs all the money she can get to meet her war reparation obligations, to conduct the government at home and to lower the heavy burden of taxes.

French Are Suspicious
Germany's army is limited to a Reichswehr of 100,000 men who volunteer for service for a long term of years. The estimated cost for this little army for the year 1930 is put down at 515,000,000 marks. In 1913, when all Europe was nervous and heading for the world war, Germany had 500,000 men in the army, the cost was only 750,000,000

It cost Germany 603,000,000 marks in 1913 to equip its big war machine, the mightiest in the world. Today, in time of peace, it costs Germany the huge sum of 288,000,000 marks to equip an army of 100,000. This figures out 1200 marks per man in 1913 and 2880 per man in 1930. Even allowing for the increased cost of things, Germans exclaim this is a striking figure.
In 1913, Germany spent 65,700,000 marks for arms and munitions. This year it is estimated they will cost 95,000,000, and last year the cost was nearly as great. This is one of the items of the budget that makes the French onlookers think there is something fishy about it. A similar case in point is the sum of 21,300,000 marks estimated for the maintenance of weapons. The much bigger army of 1913, with its unlimited machine guns compared with 1926 pieces allowed now, only cost 2,200,000 marks.

Builds Large Cruiser
The same kind of suspicion attaches to the figures for the navy. England, with higher wages and shorter hours of work, builds a ten thousand ton cruiser for 58 per cent of what it costs Germany.

Of course, there the answer is that the famous 10,000-ton replacement cruiser the Germans built is supposed to be the most formidable thing of its kind in the world, with wonderful armor, enormous tonnage and very powerful Diesel engines.

But the critics go on to say that no such excuse can be made for the small 6000-ton replacement cruisers. These cost Germany 41,880,000 marks, and for the same price, England built much larger cruisers. Furthermore, the German critics point out that for approximately the same price, the United States, with much higher wages, shorter hours and more costly material than Germany, builds a 9000 ton cruiser. Not only is this cruiser 50 per cent heavier than the German one built at the same cost, but it has stronger guns, better armament and greater speed.

Daily Washington Letter By Rodney Dutcher

Political Talk Is Going Fast in Washington These Days, Dealing Chiefly With Presidential Candidates, But It Doesn't Mean Much—Democrats Loudly Hopeful.

WASHINGTON, June 16.—Well, anyway, these reports about a new Jim Reed-for-president boom stir up a lot more political talk although it never takes much to do that in Washington and often doesn't require anything at all.

The outstanding characteristic of political talk, on the word of one who has had as man earaches out of it as anybody, is that most of it is several degrees sillier than ordinary town-talk, small-talk, or even baby talk.

It's only two years now until the parties will be holding national conventions, so the season for mentioning men for presidential and vice-presidential nominations is getting under way. There will be few states where some distinguished favorite son won't be introduced at a banquet as the next president, and no states at all which will not have someone to suggest as the next vice-president, even though he may get no banquet.

They're All Optimistic
If the Democrats remain as excited as they are now, you may expect them to be extraordinarily enthusiastic as they trot out their possibilities. Probably at no time since 1912 have they been so optimistic about a presidential election more than two years ahead as they are today.

The more one examines this optimism the more genuine it appears. In their own minds they have already nearly captured both houses of Congress and are assured of making President Hoover's last two years of office even more miserable than his first two.

Assuming that this feeling continues, nearly everyone of consequence in the party will have his ear to the ground for a sign of sentiment for his own nomination. Republicans were like that in 1920 when they felt convinced of a November victory. They turned out to be quite right, but of course the Democrats have plenty of time left in which to be proved all wrong.

The presidential bid since infancy has been an insect totally blind in both eyes. In common with Dan Cupid, and his pernicious arrows, it delivers its sting at the most random destinations and thousands of perfectly nice men have become all hot and bothered about their "possibilities" because their friends wouldn't—or couldn't—tell them anything. All too often the friends seem to be get bitten at the same time and there are enough other cloudy-minded persons to make forever sure that the beginning of the next silly season in political gossip will follow immediately at the end of the last.

What is making Democrats such tender feeding ground for the old bee is the fact that almost any Democrat can say: "I'm just as

There was no trouble at all for each to get his ball.

Of course, the Quack never attempts to jump into people's business and it would hardly pay to try to settle that matter in this column.

If the Democrats can look amongst themselves and find one ideal candidate they will be doing mighty well. There isn't one in sight at the present moment. Perhaps there's no such thing as an ideal candidate, anyway.
Lots of Choices Now
But the lack of tall, strong timber in Democratic ranks helps a lot to explain why more or less attention will be paid to the aspirations of such fellows as Jim Reed, Senator Joe Robinson of Arkansas, and Jim Hamilton Lewis of Illinois—in case he is elected Senator. And why there will even be some talk of borrowing Owen D. Young from the "power trust."

In case anything happens to disqualify Governor Franklin D. Roosevelt of New York, it's likely to be a very sad mess indeed. And the Democrats, happy over the mess

Paris' New "Open Air Frocks" Are Less "A Matter Of Form"

Patou's interpretation of a country or open-air frock takes the form here of a simple, easy model of crepe marocain printed in an orange-beige polka dot design. The hat is white crepe, with an orange-beige velvet ribbon. Right: Ideal for wear and simple with outdoor frocks is this natural paillasson straw hat from Patou, bound with bright blue grosgrain to match the frock's hand-embroidered trim and suede belt.

YOUR CHILDREN by OLIVE ROBERTS BARTON

What kind of stories do you tell your children? Stories of good little bunnies, wicked witches, pirates, or maudlin tales of mistreated orphans? There was a time, not so long ago, that psychologists preached the doctrine of mamby-pamby-ism to parents in regard to story reading and telling. The story with the thrill was taboo, particularly if it contained the word "wicked," or dealt with witches, dwarfs, or trolls of distorted visage and ill-intentioned mind. Here I shall make one permanent and irrevocable exception to the following paragraphs, and then go on with the story. No child under four should be told an alarming tale or an unhappy one. He should not even be told an exciting one, especially at night. Stories of animals who act like people, he will love. Also stories of toys or other little folk like himself. He likes to picture himself in their places, for about this time his imagination begins to run away with him. He imagines that he is everything under the sun from an airplane to a turtle; his little dream world is almost as real to him as his real world. His imagination does the work. But in the next year or so a change takes place in him.

An Impressionable Age He is very impressionable now. He absorbs little sermons and becomes thoughtful about the difference between good and bad. But how can he learn about good overcoming evil unless there is an occasional evil factor in the stories he hears? Also, in all real stories there must be an obstacle to overcome. There is a world of meaning in the "good fairy" who overcomes the "wicked witch" or the "kind tailor" who breaks the spell of a "bad fairy," by dividing his last morsel of bread with a beggar. How can Tom show his courage unless there is a terrible "pirate" to fight, or Jack give an example of bravery without his "giant"? I do not see any reason for obliterating these useful people. Now there are stories such as Hansel and Gretel, in which a wicked witch folds Hansel in an cage to fatten him for eating, and ending by Gretel pushing the old girl herself into the oven she had prepared for roasting Hansel. These stories should be burned "as is." A story like "Rumpelstiltskin," the dwarf who stole the baby out of the poor queen's bed, and "The Rose Tree," depicting a flower pot in which a young man's head had been buried—all these and their like should be cut out of a mother's story repertoire. As for "Red Riding Hood," I shouldn't make it too silly by changing it. But harrowing details can be omitted. "Dirty work" should never be gone into in detail.

Vary the Stories If a child is not nervous; if he is a natural normal person, you can mix the story diet and give him a right stiff one occasionally. His imagination should be fed. If you "sweep off" a pirate or push a wicked dwarf over a precipice and make "the last of him" with no revolting details, or demolish a witch before she demolishes someone else, with a large fine sweep of your story brush, that's good for him. I shouldn't go in too strongly on the adventure or witch demolishing stuff during the child's first five years. The animal stories are sufficient, then. But each year the story diet can be strengthened. A child loves to hear the same story over and over when he is little. Later he will beg, "Tell me another." And if you can beg, borrow, or steal stories, tell him all he can hold. It is good for him. But I should not feed him pap. If he is too nervous to hear real stories, don't tell him any until he is older, and can stand a bit of a thrill.

BUSHERS, PENWELL, LENORAH AND VALLY VIEW ARE WINNERS

BUSHER-OILER GAME A THRILLER - A HITTING BARRAGE FEATURES OTHER GAMES; DAY MARKED START OF RACE

The Midland Bushers and the Valley View club won their starts against the Midland Oilers and the Pleasant Valley clubs Sunday in games that opened the first half of the Tri-County league. Penwell and Lenorah won their games but did not report. It was understood Penwell won from Stanton 9-6, and that Lenorah beat Stanton 10-2.

The Bushers won a tight game, 3-1, but Valley View got hot on the steaming diamond, to elope with a 17-5 massacre.

Although Johnson, first baseman, was responsible for the only score of the Midland Oilers in the game here, it was the redeeming factor of his two double plays that saved the Bushers from defeat. Moon Myrick must be accredited for fast thinking. Dawson hit a screeching drive over first, Johnson leaping high in the air to rob him of a hit. Apparently, the first baseman did not realize he had caught the ball, and it was Myrick's yelling that brought the baseman to his right judgement, causing him to touch up and out off two runs by Hamick and Cunningham. These runners had started for home at the crack of the bat.

Scoring was in the fourth, fifth and ninth innings. In the Bushers' half, Red Hill hit a grounder in the third inning. Forney took a bases on balls. Myrick hit for two bases to score Forney. Mills singled to score Myrick. Mills stole second. Stevens went to first on an error. Johnson forced Mills at third, and Cook struck out.

In the fifth inning, Girdley scored on a long fly from the bat of Forney. Girdley hit a double. Heath struck out. Hill advanced Girdley to third on a hit. Hill stole second. Forney sacrificed on a long fly to left, to score Forney.

The Oilers scored in the last inning. Griffin was out at first. Dawson stole second. Robinson hit a slow ball to the pitcher and Dawson was out on a fielder's choice at third. Robinson stole second and went to third on a wild throw. Kopp batting for Allgood, hit a grounder to short, and Johnson dropped the ball on a throw to first. Robinson scoring. Neal popped out.

In the sixth inning, the Oilers had three men on base and no outs registered against them. Yet they failed to score.

GETS FIRST TICKET

SAN ANGELO, June 16.—W. L. Aldwell, president of the First National Bank of Sonora, will use the first ticket issued by the Santa Fe railroad for service over its three million dollar line to Sonora, it was announced here by B. M. Halbert, of San Angelo.

Mr. Halbert, who owns extensive ranch holdings in the vicinity of Sonora, ordered the first five tickets to be issued by the Santa Fe for service over the new road. He will go to Fort Worth Monday to visit Mr. Aldwell in a hospital there, where he is recovering from injuries sustained in an accident five weeks ago, and will deliver the first ticket issued by the Santa Fe to the Sonora bank president, Mr. and Mrs. Halbert and their daughter, Mrs. L. P. Bloodworth of Edinburg, will accompany Mr. and Mrs. Aldwell on the special train to Sonora. More than 400 people are expected to ride the special train.

MONEY IN POULTRY

During the six months the hens laid 12,342 eggs, or 61.71 eggs per hen. Her expenses for feed was $105. Mrs. Gowen realized a profit of $154 per hen during the time.

MAX IN A "DEMPSEY CROUCH"

East Vows Vengeance On West at Poughkeepsie

By CLAIRE BURCKY, NEA Service Sports Writer.

Egbert East has stood for all the bullying his Yankee pride will permit. His patience has become exhausted at frequent reversals, all of which may be attributed to an unscrupulous bully, Bad Bill West.

The showdown is bound to come and, maybe in true Algeresque fashion, defeats of the gridiron and track and field will be wiped out. If Egbert East can thrash Bad Bill West to within an inch of his life at the big crew races—well, all is well that ends well.

And so, in the next to the last chapter, we read that the California and Washington crews of this bully are coming on for the big race. Aha! Little does he suspect, dear child, that Egbert East has rallied Columbia, Cornell, Massachusetts Tech, Navy, Pennsylvania and Syracuse to his aid.

"We'll catch that thief red-handed this time," is Egbert's parting remark to his little circle of coaching friends. A nod of assent comes from Jim Ten Eyck, Old Pop Glendon, Bill Haines, Young Dick Glendon, Rusty Callow and Jim Wray.

June 26 is the date and the Hudson river at Poughkeepsie is the place for the big showdown. An eastern crew must win the championship to erase smirches cast upon them by Southern California and Stanford football and track teams. Besides, intercollegiate rowing really belongs in the east. Honors have been taken away from there only four times in 32 years.

Navy won the championship three times in the last 10 years. Columbia captured it twice in the same span. There must be something significant in the coaching of the Glendons, Pop at Navy and Young Dick at Columbia. Columbia won a year ago and this year the boat is filled with veterans of that crew, plus experienced sweepswingers from the 1929 Jayvees. Navy's varsity is built around six veterans.

Not only is there a chance, but a big chance that Syracuse or Cornell may win the championship. At Ithaca, they look upon Wray's crew as the nearest approach to those groups the Old Man of Cayuga Lake, Charles E. Courtney, used to develop in his 40 years of coaching there. In those days, Cornell never went longer than four years without a championship. Grizzled Jim Ten Eyck at Syracuse moved his winning freshmen eight of last year, with but one exception, into this year's varsity boat. Captain Deming is at No. 5 because No. 5 of the frosh aggregation left school. The 77-year-old Ten Eyck has done most of his coaching this spring from the coxswain's seat, instead of his own launch. Improvement in his young group has been remarkable.

Both weight and experience are included in Massachusetts Tech's boat. Five of the eight men rowed to victory over Navy last year. The shortest oarsman is six feet tall. The crew averages 185 pounds per man. Haines is confident they will give a good account of themselves.

From Penn and Wisconsin, the east and middle west hardly expect better than a fourth position. Callow's outfit defeated Murphy's Badgers a few weeks ago, but neither group was impressive.

But getting back to those westerners—well, that is a different story. Al Ulbricksen handpicked his crew from 14 veterans of last year—and the Huskies finished second in 1929. They beat California by five feet in the annual meeting on the coast in April. Ulbricksen and Washington believe theirs is the winning crew this year, which would make the first Husky championship since Callow left to go to Pennsylvania. California's boat contains three men who pulled an oar in the intercollegiate and Olympic championship shell of 1929. They are Caldwell, Dally and Brinck and the remainder of the crew comes from the 1929 Jayvees and freshmen.

Bearing in mind what happened last year to make the regatta an unique event in boating history, stewards of the I. C. R. A. propounded new rules and regulations, last January, supposed to improve the race both for the crewmen and spectators. It seems to me, however, that they missed the very thing that distinguished that race.

Four of the nine boats that shoved off on that storm-darkened afternoon a year ago filled with water and sank, yet the stewards took no note of this. Instead, they wrote in a rule to disqualify any boat not at the starting line on time and another to disallow all pleas for a new start except in case of actual breakage of equipment. Headlights on the shells and life belt on the oarsmen might have been a more appropriate ruling.

TO ENLARGE REFINERY

BIG SPRING.—The Cosden Refining company plant located three miles east of Big Spring will be enlarged to a rated capacity of 16,500 barrels, it was announced here. Excavation work is now under way and a 6,500 barrel still will be erected, which will be among the very best manufactured according to the reports from the plant. The Cosden refinery is the largest in West Texas with an annual payroll of approximately $500,000. Three hundred fifteen men are now employed at the plant, however the force will probably be cut during the construction period. The new still will especially designed to handle the West Texas crude said Mr. Cosden.

IMPROVE SCENIC ROAD

BIG SPRING.—The road leading around Scenic mountain is being put into excellent shape according to E. F. Robbins, chairman of the Civic committee of the Big Spring chamber of commerce. The work is being done by public subscription and with day labor. The mountain overlooks the city of Big Spring by six hundred feet and has proven an interesting place for the tourists passing through this section as many miles of outlying territory can be seen from this point. The road leading around this summit has been extremely rough and hard on automobile tires due to the huge rocks. These rocks are being removed and the road will be in first class shape before the Oil Men's Jubilee on July 3, 4 and 5, said Robbins.

An automobile thief alarm, invented by an Australian, sounds a bell and switches on an electric sign, "stolen," when an unauthorized person attempts to drive the car away.

TIES FEATURE GOLF PLAY AT CLUB SUNDAY AFTERNOON; NEW PLAY FOUND INTERESTING; JACKSON IS MEDALIST

Harry Tolbert, Ellis Cowden, John P. Howe and Dan Lillis tied for first honors at country club during an afternoon of "different" golf play.

The players set their "own par" and the one who stroked the course for the nearest score to that par won. Jack Boone and Jake Stolzenbach halved second money (or balls, as it happened) and Bill O'Ho'Ho and O. C. Harper took third places.

Each player put up a ball as his contribution to the prize pool, first prize being 10 balls, second seven balls and third four balls.

C. L. Jackson was low medalist. Scores for the 18 holes:

Senator Small said that thinking people who recognize the Democratic party as an agency of good government had better look around now for some good man, untainted by partisan politics and put him into office before the Republicans make good their boast to control the state government.

LONDON LETTER

By ARCH RODGERS, United Press Staff Correspondent

LONDON. (UP)—Women are not as free as they might be in London, according to complaints of some. That such a situation should exist in the city where a statue of Emily Pankhurst was recently unveiled by no less a political figure than Stanley Baldwin hardly seems right to the ladies. Even the extension of the franchise to 6,000,000 did not counteract the grievance that has been responsible for numerous mass meetings and innumerable speeches among London's women.

The trouble is that some restaurants, cafes, and coffee stalls in the West End will not permit women to enter unless accompanied by one or more members of their own sex, some description of male escort, or anything indicating that the lady customer is not at peace with the world in the evening all by herself. The women resent the fact that there are some places where they cannot be seen alone. This is not due to any plot against their independence but to the fact that the proprietors of the places concerned desire to exclude certain types of women who will spend the price of a cup of coffee to get inside out of the rain.

Unfortunately the rule also applies to women who would like a spot of caviar and a dash of champagne before meeting a theater party or those in business who want to eat when they are hungry and are usually hungry after they have put in a few hours overtime in their shops. There are many places, sandwich shops and cafes, that welcome the unescorted ladies and where ladies are treated as such, alone or in ballet formation. But a certain female element that probably never bothers to vote will not be satisfied until they have the right to enter the lowest coffee stall or the best restaurant all alone.

The freedom of London's women seems complete to the average observer, unofficial or blessed with plenipotentiary prerogatives. They can smoke in tubes, trams, trains, and theaters, not to mention restaurants, road houses, railway carriages, parks and pubs. They have their own reservations, called Ladies' Bars, absolutely barred to meek men, where they may partake of beer, wine, or spirits. If father is along he can wait in another bar or tend to baby outside. Father may meet mother in the saloon bar, private bar, or public bar but to hip the Lady's Bar is only something he hears about.

The class of women who do not patronize bars but who nevertheless like alcoholic refreshment share the same right with men to enter restaurant or hotel lounges and order what they like. Female teetotalers whose lips never touch wine in public may go in and have a look around if they want to. So far as the average optic can ascertain, women in London do pretty much as they like.

Some professional women have solved the dining alone problem by forming clubs of their own, and if there are any gentlemen present they are allowed in as guests but are not allowed to pay the bill.

Things to Learn About London: Most tobacco shops close at 8 p. m. but they leave the shilling-in-the-slot cigarette machine outside all night.

WCTU PUBLICITY AIDED BY LETTERS; ONE OF THESE WRITTEN BY INGERSOLL

Literature distributed last week by a local insurance company coincidentally aided publicity of the Midland WCTU organization, which celebrated its first anniversary Thursday.

The literature carried a reprint of two famous letters representing one from "Bob" Ingersoll to Dr. Edmund Buckley, and the reply. These follow:

"Dear Buckley: 'I send you some of the most wonderful whiskey that ever drove a skeleton from a feast, or painted landscapes in the brain of man. It is the mingled souls of wheat and corn; in it you will find the sunshine and shadows that chased each other over the billowy fields; the breath of June; the dews of the night, the carol of the lark; the wealth of Summer and Autumn, rich, content and golden with imprisoned light.'

"Drink it and you shall hear the voices of men and maidens singing the Harvest Home, mingled with the laughter of little children. 'Drink it long and deep and you shall feel within your blood the starry dawn, the dreamy tawny dusk of perfect days. 'For forty years this liquid joy has been confined within staves of oak longing to touch the lips of men.

"I send it to you in token of my esteem and friendship. 'Your friend, 'BOB.'

To which Dr. Buckley replied: 'Dear Bob: 'I send you some of the most wonderful whiskey that ever brought a skeleton into a closet or painted scenes of lust and bloodshed in the brain of man. It is the ghost of wheat and corn, crazed by the loss of their natural bodies. In it you will find a transient sunshine, chased by a shadow as cold as an arctic midnight, in which the breath of June grows icy and the carol of the lark gives place to the foreboding cry of the raven.

"Drink it and you shall have woe, babbling, and wounds without cause; your eyes shall behold strange women, weeping,—and worse than orphaned children mourning the loss of a father who lives. 'Drink it long and deep and serpents will coil themselves around your neck, hiss in your ear and seize you with their fangs. 'For forty years this liquid death has been confined within staves of oak—harmless there as purest water. I send it to you that you may put an enemy in your mouth to steal away your brain; and yet, I call myself your friend. 'BUCKLEY.'

Trading throughout the morning was very active and unsettled with an entire absence of any support, and disposition on the part of large speculative interests in July to liquidate. Late morning market rallied slightly realizing and scattered recovering with list noon showings July 51 points net lower and other months 22 to 29 lower.

PIONEER TEXAS COWBOYS WILL FORM INTO STRONGER ORGANIZATION SOON

STAMFORD, Texas, June 16.—(UP)—One of the features of the Texas Cowboy Reunion to be staged here June 26, 27, 28, will be a roundup and get-together of the pioneer cattlemen of the State.

A permanent organization of the old-timers will be formed to hold annual meetings in Stamford. Only those who saw actual service in the saddle and on the ranges of the region prior to 1895 will be eligible for membership in the organization. It is the plan of Col. R. L. Penick, chairman of the arrangements for the entertainment and reception of the early-day cowboys, and his committee, composed of R. E. McDonald, John Selman, W. P. McDonald and D. T. Perkins, to keep alive the history, traditions and associations that were formed during the early days of civilization in this area through having annual meetings of the pioneer cattlemen.

In addition to the active committee, Col. Penick and officials of the reunion association have selected an honorary committee made up of 50 pioneer cowboys who will assist in the program and the formation of the old-timers' organization. The committee includes: Wilson Connel, Fort Worth; Billy Moore, Wichita Falls; Can Newman, Sweetwater; Baylor Crawford, Abilene; Vick Colbert, Stamford; George Boles, Lubbock; Ben Cullum, Stamford; Jim Moody, Truscott; John Bryan, Abilene; Bud Jones, Lubbock; and George Barr, Cisco.

Each afternoon a western cowboy rodeo will be staged and an old-fashioned ranch dance will be given each evening.

All early-day citizens of West Texas will be given a special invitation to attend the affair.

The rodeo will be held in a natural amphitheatre a mile west of the business district of Stamford.

MEAT TASTER IN USE

EAST LANSING, Mich. (UP)—Housewives now can ask the butcher what degree of tenderness meat has, as the result of an imperfect device, now being tested in Michigan and 24 other agricultural stations. The device was first tested at the United States department of agriculture at Washington. The apparatus consists of a knife so arranged that it can be drawn through a piece of meat with pressure exerted from a crank. The degree of tenderness then is registered upon a scale.

COUE BEDCLOTHES

PARIS.—Dr. Coue's famous theory has finally wound up in the bedclothes business. It has been adopted by this trade with the result that bed clothes are now being embroidered with the auto-suggestions, "You Can Sleep," "Count Ten and You'll Sleep Tonight," and "You Won't Dream Tonight."
