WCTU IS BOOSTING THE PARTY

Mrs. Watts Says All States Should Follow

AUSTIN, Sept. 11. (UP).--Women returning from the Galveston democratic meet today acclaimed the prohibition plank as the best ever nailed to the party platform.

Mrs. Claude D. Van Watts, state president of the WCTU, said "it was the strongest move for prohibition taken in the country during the past year. Texas' democratic stand on prohibition should be an example for other states to copy."

SIMMONS PREXY TELLS OF TRIP, WHILE ON VISIT

Dr. J. D. Sandefer, president of Simmons university, is here today from Abilene in the interests of his institution. He spoke favorably of the crop and range conditions noted here, also of the activity of the city, declaring it to be better than he had seen anywhere in the territory.

Dr. Sandefer returned recently from a summer in Europe, having accompanied the famous Cowboy band.

Airing his views here following his return from the tour of a large part of Europe, Dr. Sandefer declared that all Europe was tending toward socialistic principles; that Germany was the most economically sound of all European nations; and that Premier Benito Mussolini of Italy had done more along economic lines in his country in the past few years than his predecessors did in 1,400 years of the country's history.

"Mussolini has wrought wonderful changes for Italy in an economic way," Dr. Sandefer said. "He has reclaimed thousands of acres of land. Great progress is in evidence. He maintains his power by 2,500,000 Blackshirts, the country's soldiery.

A hospital is found in every county. Schools flourish and the cities are clean and sanitary. "England and Austria are suffering from much idle labor. All Europe is tending toward socialistic principles. The idea prevailing is that the government should care for all people until they can care for themselves.

ADDRESS OUTLINES PRINCIPLES

Heavy Attendance Is Accorded Visitor At Luncheon

Pointing out the value of Rotary to the average man, Ray H. Nichols, governor of the 41st district of Rotary International, delivered an inspiring address today on the occasion of his official visit to the Midland Rotary club. The executive went into the history of Rotary, showing its remarkable and rapid growth into the nations of the world, and went extensively into phases of club service, vocational service, community service and international relations.

Nichols told how Rotary clubs, and other similar organizations, have done much to bring out the average man, making him more useful to the community and in his own business or profession. His final plea was for individual members of the organization to catch the true spirit of Rotary and to put into its work such effort as will enable them to get the maximum from it.

Malcolm Meek, chairman of the committee entertaining the visiting district governor, introduced the speaker. The Big Spring Rotary club was represented by W. T. Strange. Only two members of the club were absent today, both being out of the city.

Directors of the local club and chairmen of the standing committees met with the visiting governor last night at a luncheon, three hours being spent in going into routine work of Rotary.

From Midland, he went today to San Angelo where he will visit the Rotary club tonight and tomorrow.

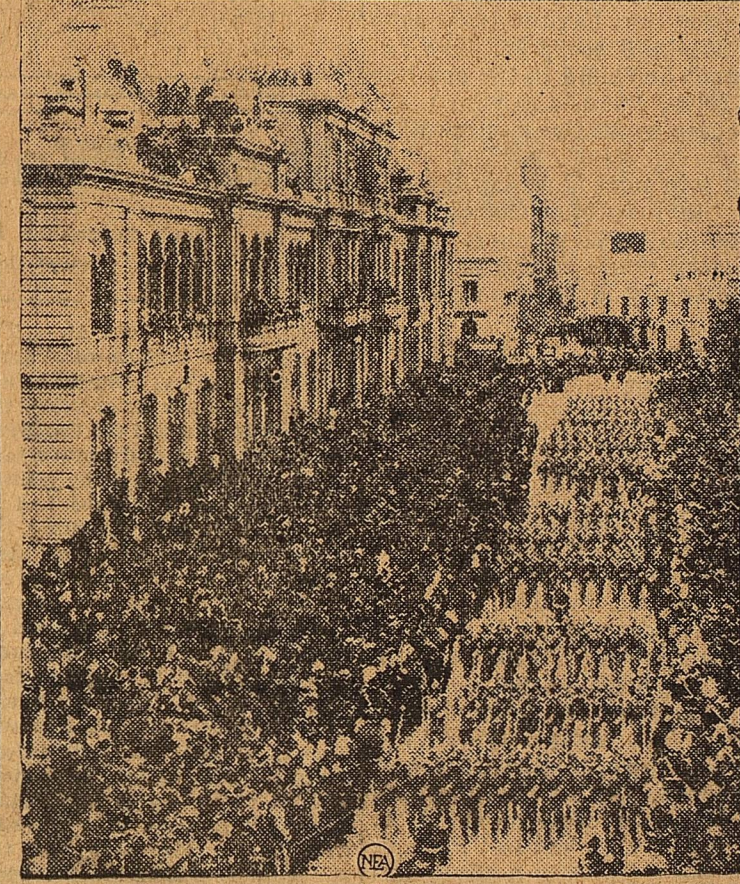

API DISCLOSES CURTAILMENT IS SLOW IN TEXAS

AUSTIN, Sept. 11. (AP).--American Petroleum institute figures indicate that Texas oil fields made little progress toward cutting down production to the maximum of 764,000 barrels under the state-wide curtailment order, during the first half of the order's effectiveness.

Particularly notable was the increase of 3,300 barrels in daily average production in the coastal fields, where, according to reports made to the state railroad commission, attempts already have been made to curb production.

The figures are not indicative of whether the proration will be effective, however, since several hearings were held before the commission even after the effective date of the order.

They Cheer Another Now

The same troops that once marched in review before Hipolito Irogoyen, ill and deposed president of Argentina, have turned against him in support of General Jose E. Uriburu. VISITING THE NEIGHBORS

Too much cannot be said of the value to local business men and citizens of making the bus trip Tuesday to Rankin, Iraan, McCamey and Crane. Sponsored by the auto and retailers committee of the chamber of commerce, the trip is calculated to strengthen the relations between Midland and the neighbors to the south, to establish new friendships and business relations, to acquaint local people with actual conditions in that area, and even to bring together local citizens who make the trip.

Midland has many friends in Upton, Pecos and Crane counties. Citizens from those places visit here regularly. Many of them know only a few people here with whom they have been dealing. They would like to get better acquainted, and this visit is an opportunity for Midland people to avail themselves of the same privilege. And too, the trip will result in Midland's having many more friends there.

The trip is not being made to ask those citizens to do their trading here instead of in their own towns. Far from it! However, it is known that in many of the neighboring towns there are some things that have to be sought elsewhere, and that is where Midland steps in. The facilities obtainable here that cannot be found in the smaller places will be offered to those folks. "Trade in your town first, but for goddness sakes come to Midland second" is a well known local slogan.

The bus chartered for the trip next Tuesday, as announced yesterday, is one of the luxurious Cotton Belt cars and will accommodate from 33 to 42 persons. Rates are low and reservations are being made at the chamber of commerce office. The opportunity is too good to be passed up.

A SILVER LINING

The present business depression is not exactly enjoyable, but it does have a brighter side.

For example: the mutual savings banks of the nation reported that during the six months period ending July 1 their deposits gained $274,000,000, where as a loss of $83,000,000 was reported for the last six months of 1929. People are saving their money nowadays instead of drawing on their savings for stock speculation. To that extent, at least, the stock market crash has been a boon.

Similarly, big business organizations are being forced to adopt more efficient measures. The prosperity of 1929 and preceding years bred a good deal of slackness and lost motion; this is being eliminated, and in the long run business will be the better for the depression. This, of course, is cold comfort to the worker who has lost his job. It does, however, indicate that the cloud has a silver lining.

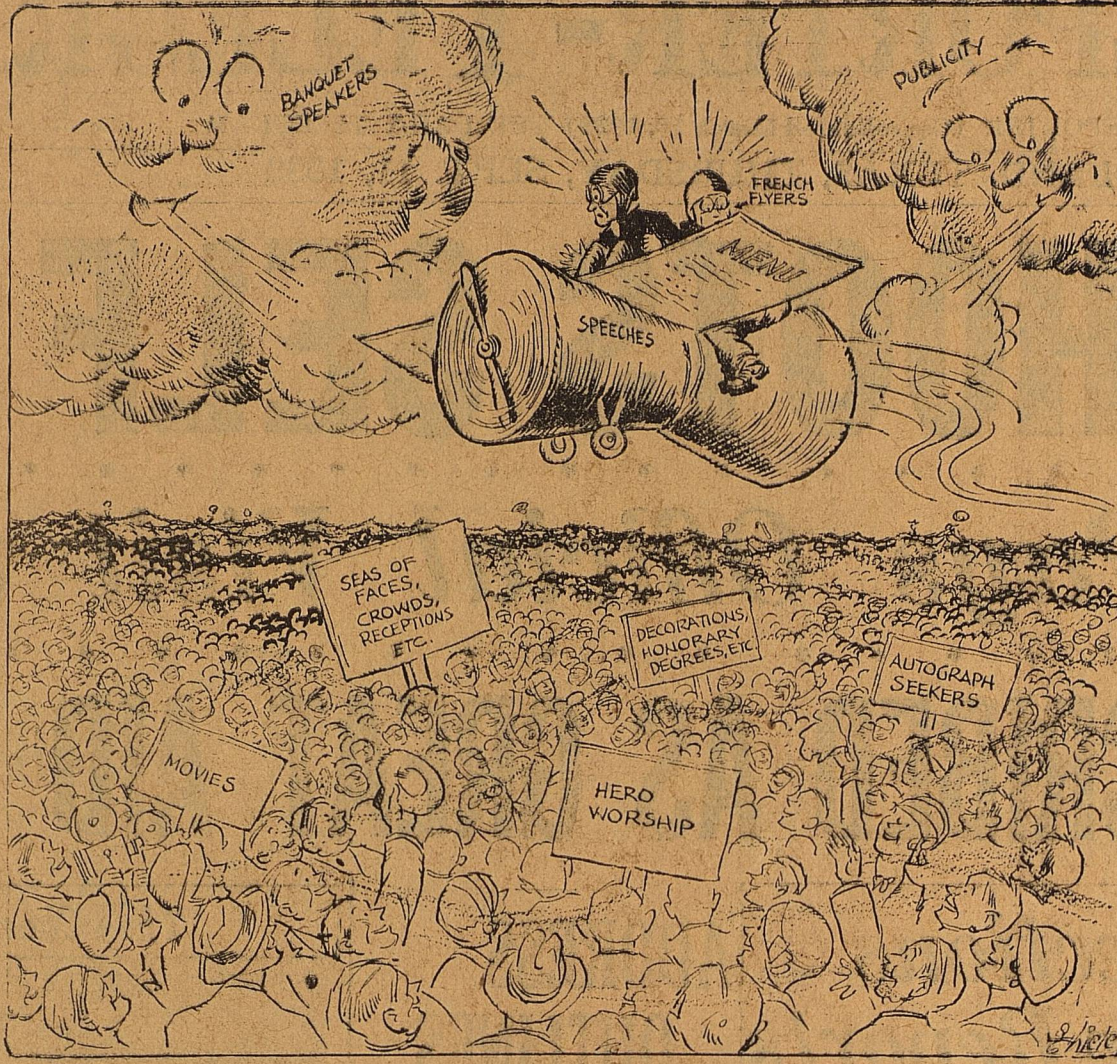

HANGING "THE WORST CRIMINAL"

It is a little bit hard for an opponent of capital punishment to stick by his guns when the case of Carl Panzran comes up for consideration.

Hanged in Leavenworth penitentiary, the self-confessed murderer of two-dozen people, Panzran seemed to represent humanity at its very lowest. He was called the worst criminal in America, and he seems to have deserved the title. He boasted that he deserved his fate, and remarked that he would kill everybody if he had the chance.

Demanding leniency for a man of that type is not easy. Until we grow a great deal wiser and more skillful in dealing with psychopathic personalities, there is little for us to do with such a man but terminate his existence. If society was ever justified in executing a criminal, it would seem to have been justified in this case.

Daily Washington Letter By Rodney Dutcher

Burning of Trade Commission Building Lends Impetus to Move for Replacement of Washington's "Temporary" Departmental Offices—They're Fire Risks and Eye-Sores

WASHINGTON, Sept. 11.—The burning of the wartime-constructed temporary building which housed the Federal Trade Commission, the Women's Bureau and the Children's Bureau was a partial answer to a prayer often offered up by government employees who have had to work in such flimsy structures.

There are still nine of these "Tempo buildings," as they are called here, housing various bureaus which cannot be accommodated in the larger and better government buildings. They have commonly been regarded as bad fire hazards and have always been unpopular because smoking in them has been strictly prohibited. Furthermore, being made of wood, carboard and stucco under tarpaper roofs, they offer no resistance to warm weather, and the workers within them are the worst sufferers during Washington's heat waves.

They Aren't Hadsome

And, if the truth must be told, they look more like overgrown hen houses than buildings commensurate with the dignity of a large, proud government.

Of course they are all going to be torn down sooner or later in the government's huge building program, but for all these years since the war they have been housing many important federal activities and protecting—or exposing—many important and valuable records susceptible to fire.

Visitors to Washington arriving by train are familiar with the general appearances of the Tempos, for among the group with the government hotels which faced the railroad station plaza, but which are now in process of demolition. One of these buildings was on the Capitol Grounds, just across from the Senate Office Building.

Those remaining are mostly in the vicinity of Tempo No. 4, the one which burned, and in the Mail, south of Pennsylvania avenue between the Capitol and the treasury. One of the latter housed the Prohibition Bureau and the Customs Service until recently, when both were moved up to the old Southern Railway Building at the foot of 13th street on the Avenue.

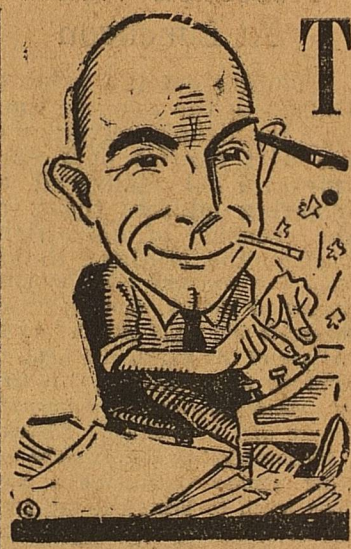

About 6000 employees of the Census Bureau are working in two of the old war buildings, it has been pointed out by Census Director William M. Stewart, and the important records of the 1930 census on which they are now working are regarded as seriously exposed to fire risk in the day time. At night the original records are moved out for safekeeping in a fireproof building until morning.

The U. S. Public Health Service and various offices of the Agriculture and Commerce Departments are among tenant of the other Tempos.

Federal Trade Commission records of the "power trust" and chain store investigators were not as seriously depleted by the fire as was at first reported, but the destruction of the building and such files as were lost seems to be giving new impetus to the ancient movement for a government archives building.

Money Now Available
The building is going to be constructed. It had been authorized by Congress. The site has been tentatively chosen after considerable argument, but it may be changed again. Some of the experts who have been studying the project are anxious to put up a building which will take care of added archives over a period of setting up one which will not much more than take care of existing needs.

Questionnaires have been sent out

The Town Quack

Reserves the right to "quack" about everything without taking a stand on anything.

Last night I was in the Scharbauer and a bell boy went through the lobby calling, "Mister Cochran, Mister Cochran." A bystander remarked, "Now isn't that just the way of it. A week ago, before he sold that royalty, he was just Owen."

I hear that there are people right here in town that won't stay away from prayer meeting and church conferences to attend banquets and parties. What's the world coming to, anyway?

Chunky Cowden didn't make the trip to Texon for the polo game yesterday. After being promoted from a job of leading horses to cool them off after each chukker, he was instructed last Sunday to keep time, keep score, umpire the bases and be bat boy. After the game was over, it was found by Cowboy Evans that Chunky hadn't half way done any of the jobs.

An amateur polo fan, telling of last Sunday's game, said the Bum knocked three of Midland's chukkers. I'll bet that fan don't know which end of the chukker to bat with.

FRENCH WRITER FINDS BORDER FORCES WEAK

PARIS, Sept. 11. (UP).—That the French are far behind the Italians in fortifying the common frontier through the Alps is the reasoned judgment of George Ferre, star reporter of Le Matin, who has just completed a thorough inspection of that frontier.

Whereas the French "Blue Devils" occupy only a half dozen scattered points on the mountain range, and then only in peacetime garrison, M. Ferre observed that the Italians had strongly fortified the veritable chain along the entire frontier from Mentone to Mount Tende, concentrating at certain strategic points.

M. Ferre further observed that military roads leading to the frontier from the Lombardy plains had been widened and strengthened to permit the passage of heavy artillery, and that tracks had been laid at four principal points for bringing up railroad artillery.

The guns of Monte Gramondo can easily dispose of our flimsy fortifications at Monte Agel," M. Ferre writes, adding that "probably Monte Gramondo was not the only eminence so equipped, although I could see none of the rest with my glasses, and of course was not allowed to approach on foot."

The occasion for M. Ferre's inspection was staging of the most elaborate French and Italian army maneuvers since the war in this region, prior to which, Le Matin says, there was a good deal of talk of war among the mountaineers of this region. M. Ferre is of the opinion that the maneuvers quieted this unrest, along with adoption of a more conciliatory diplomatic tone between the two countries.

A DIRTY TRICK

KLAMATH FALLS, Ore. (UP).—J. Wilcox, driver for a local dairy, wanted business so badly he put dirt in his competitor's milk bottles after it was delivered. I. B. Morrison and G. W. Roberts, charged with assault, claimed in court. They said Wilcox had also stolen delivered milk, causing the creamery to be regarded by its customers with a skeptical eye.

Hoover Continues Naming Of Special Commissions

WASHINGTON, Sept. 11. (UP).—Oblivious to political criticism of his special commissions, President Hoover has continued to appoint such bodies to advance various economic and sociological purposes.

A project for commission to study old-age insurance was indicated soon after the public had learned of the President's plan for a commission to study child health.

The president believes that such commissions afford the best means to develop the essential facts for guidance of public opinion, as well as responsible officials, and his advisers evidently think that in the long run the work of the commissions will prove a political asset rather than a liability.

The president's recent commissions apparently do not fall within the scope of congressional criticism that was heard in the last session. At that time, some congressmen felt that commissions appointed by the president would tend to usurp functions which congress ordinarily would fulfill through its regular committees.

The commission on law enforcement also came in for political attack because of some of its recommendations with regard to prohibition, always a highly controversial question in American politics. At one time the senate threatened to reduce appropriation for that commission.

It does not seem probable that politicians will be equally concerned over President Hoover's commissions for study of child health, old-age insurance and such social problems. Consequently popular attention is likely to be directed to the results accomplished by the various commissions rather than their mere existence.

Commissions named or projected by the White House during the first 18 months of the present administration, and some of their accomplishments, were as follows:

The commission on law enforcement proposed transfer of prohibition enforcement from the Treasury Department to the Justice Department, which has been accomplished. Members of the commission in public addresses have sought to secure greater activities by the states in enforcement, thus aiding the federal government in its difficult task.

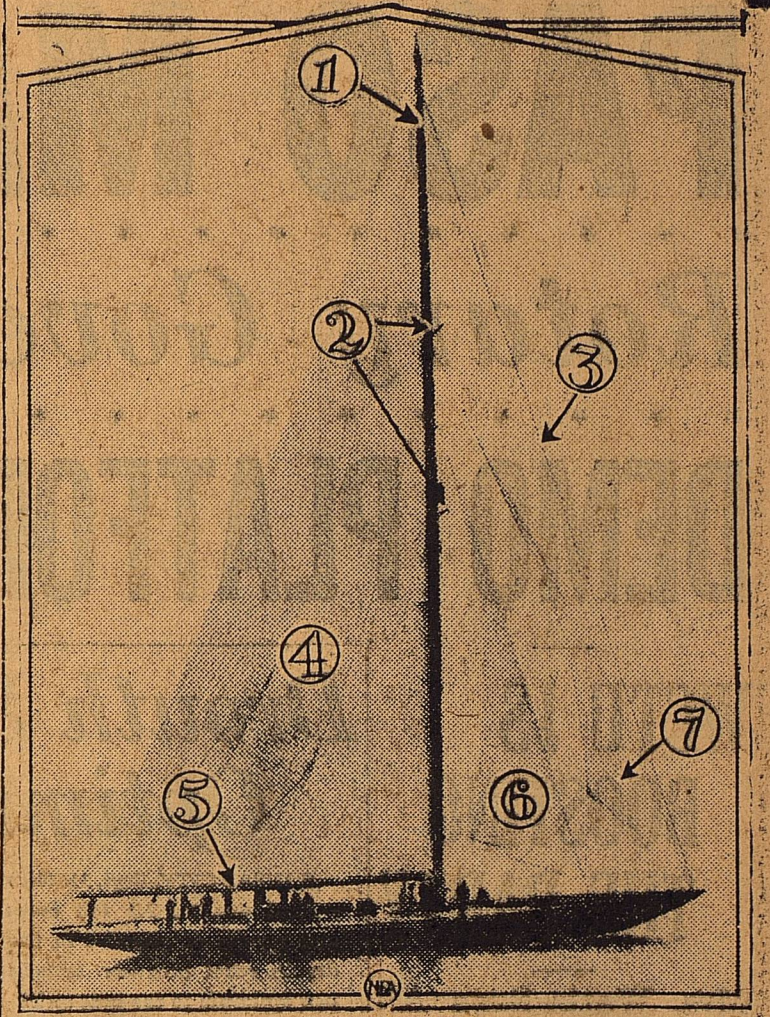

A commission on petroleum conservation has studied this problem with a view to reducing the present tremendous waste.

A commission on public lands has sought to formulate a new policy with respect to lands owned by the federal government, with a view to possible allocation of control over some of them to state governments.

The president named a federal commission on drought relief, intended to cooperate with state committees to be appointed in 12 states most seriously affected by lack of rain this summer.

Congress adopted and the President signed a joint resolution appointing a constitutional amendment for drafting of material resources and other services in the event of war.

How An America's Cup Yacht Sails

If you're confused by the seemingly complicated nomenclature of the yachts which are to race off Newport for the America's Cup, this diagrammatic picture of Sir Thomas Lipton's Shamrock V will help. Figure 1 indicates the mast to which all sails are attached, and figure 2 shows the spreaders, or braces by which the mast is strengthened. Others are: (3) the forestay; (4) mainmast; (5) main boom; (6) fore staysail; (7) jib. Other sails frequently used are jib topsails of various sizes, set high between the forestay and mast, the large Genoa jib, and the equally large spinnaker. The latter, which is used for running before the wind, is used on the side opposite the mainmast and is held straight out in similar fashion by a boom from the mast.

The President has recommended, but Congress has not yet acted upon, a commission to study the plan for railroad consolidation.

The President recommended reorganization and extension of authority to the federal power commission and reorganization is now in progress.

In the international sphere, the President found less need for special "fact finding" commissions than in domestic affairs.

Early in his administration, he appointed a special commission to study the political situation in Haiti, and he afterward adopted a policy based on the commission's findings. This resulted in prompt exchange of civilian ministers to supersede previous semi-military conduct of diplomatic relations through office of the American high commissioner.

The President has for his assistance a foreign debt funding commission but this was created in a previous administration.

The United States delegation to the London naval conference was regarded as having commission status.

The President named members of the commission which is to visit Samoa to formulate an organic act, but legislation for this commission was the work of Congress, and the American members were selected from Senate and House territories and insular affairs committees.

There are, of course, a large number of legally-established commissions in the United States government which were existent in previous administrations. Among these, the federal radio commission have been subjected to general reorganization.

Resembling an overgrown tube of shaving cream, a chemical fire extinguisher now is available for home or automobile.

Value May Fall as Prices Do

By WILLIAM H. BALDWIN Author of "The Shopping Book" Written for NEA Service

The wise shopper will bear in mind that values can fall just as readily as retail prices.

At a time when the business and financial news is giving attention to the slowing up of industry and to decreases in commodity prices, certain types of manufacturers and merchants try to reap a temporary profit from the current popular psychology. Merchandise which has a superficial similarity to the accustomed wares is sometimes offered at great reductions in price. It looks like a great bargain. In reality, however, this merchandise has been specially made for such sales out of inferior materials and with inferior workmanship. In such cases the price may be low but the value is even lower.

Honest merchants are offering many things at honest reductions in price. It is only fair to them—as well as to you—to inspect with particular care any merchandise offered to you far below what you know it is worth if it is what it purports to be.

Buster stopped teasing for an ice cream cone and subsided on the hot cushions of the car.

"Buster, stop kicking that suitcase. You've knocked five dollars worth of leather off since we started. Keep quiet and settle down."

"Look at your hands, Buster! How am I ever to take you into a hotel dining-room looking like that? You've wiped up the whole car since we left home. Grandma, have you a little comb in your bag? I never saw a boy get so mussed up."

Grandma hadn't a comb in her bag, but she had some evil-smelling stuff in a bottle that she produced and started to sniff. She said it kept her from getting roadsick. It permeated the car.

Father pulled up beside the road and lit a cigarette. Then the thought occurred to him to slip off his coat, roll up his sleeves and loosen his collar.

"There, that's better," he declared.

"Elsie, you hold my hat, will you?" Elsie took the hat and he started the car.

She took out her compact and surveyed herself in the little mirror. Not so good; Mascara running, rouge and powder completely gone. She took out her vanity box—and spilled powder over everything. She shook it off her dress onto the floor. No one said anything.

"Tom, I'm thirsty and I think I'd like an orangeade. If we go through a town watch for a store of some kind, will you? Buster, if you don't sit still, I'll go crazy. Fold those maps up and put them back. Why do you have to be amused every minute?"

"Tom," spoke up Grandma. "I guess I'll just have to get out till my stomach settles down. I'm getting awfully sick."

The car drew up and the family grumpy that scrambled off a log at their approach.

"Buster, come back here. First thing you know you'll be lost."

The whole family was having a vacation but Buster. No one reproached them for their gestures at comfort. He got it all, though everything he did had a complete duplicate in his elders.

We might think of any perfect day—at home, on a trip, anywhere, and consider if we aren't in a different way doing the very things in effect that we're scolding the children for.

Time Savers

THE great American instinct is to save time—a lot of time—and then some more time. In the big affairs and the little things of life, time is the most valuable thing at our command.

Limited trains, automatic telephones, special editions of newspapers, sixty-miles-an-hour automobiles, airplanes still faster—we have these things in answer to our demand for speed. And an equally important time saver in the lives of people today is advertising. Just as surely as any other modern service, the advertisements bridge hours and days for people who have wants to be filled. Readers of advertisements are the same people who demand the utmost efficiency in communication, in business, in their daily life. They know that a few minutes' reading of the advertisements will tell them more about products, values and the intelligent spending of their money than they could discover in days by any other method.

And like the other great time savers, advertisements save money and energy, as well. The reading of them is a genuine human economy.

PLENTY OF FALLS AND THRILLING PLAY AS MIDLAND COPS GAME

Colorful Football Season to Start in Southwest Loop

TEXON LOSES BUT SUNDAY WILL DECIDE

In a game of fast riding and numerous spills, Midland took the second game of the three-game series of polo at Texon, Wednesday afternoon. The score was 9-5, which is no indication of how hard the tight chukkers were fought. Jay Floyd, playing at No. 3 position was carried to a hospital after the game, but was found to be bruised only. He and a Texon rider ran their horses together while Texon was making a wild attempt to score and both horses fell over a goal post. This was one of two falls Jay received during the hectic afternoon that saw play faster and more visible because of a recent oiling of the polo field.

Bum Cowden grabbed off the fists of speed across the field, scoring honors with successive hammering the ball steadily as he rode. He attributed his scoring spree to his mallet assistants, who he said, put the ball in his way as much as possible when it was found that he was "on."

Midland riders said, however, that the cowboy rider was simply in and out of the play, making his own openings when he couldn't find one large enough to send the willow sphere skimming goalward.

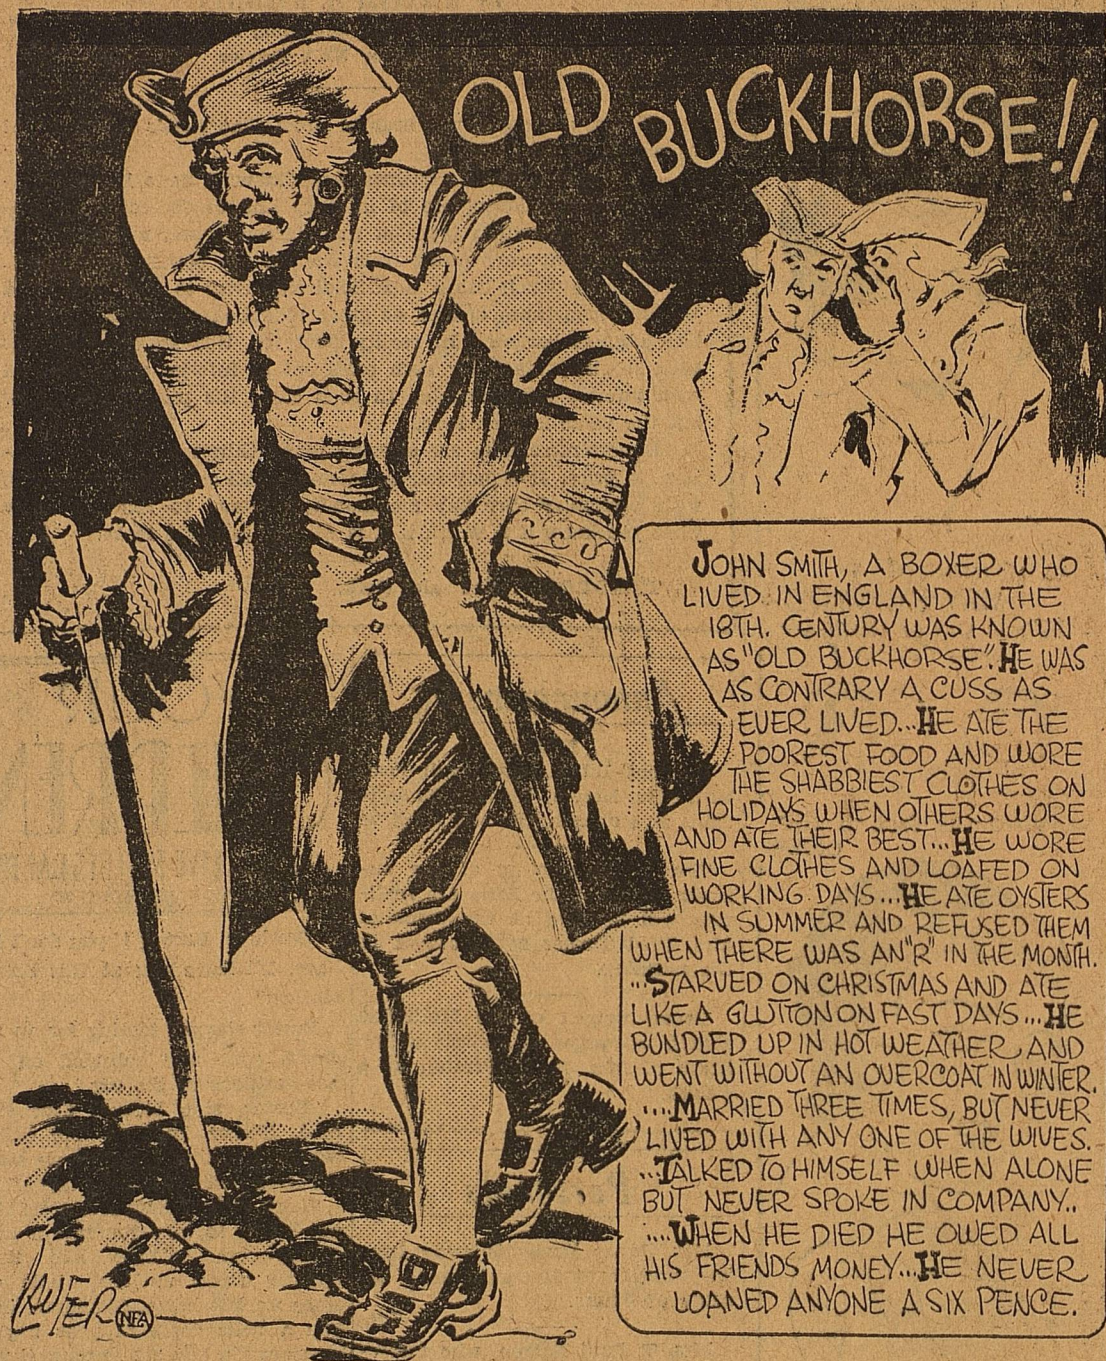

The game goes down on record as the most exciting one ever played by the red and green teams. The all-time record between the clubs now stands at Midland 4, Texon 2. The first of the present series was lost by Midland Sunday, 11-9, but the cowboy riders will try to wrest the third game from the Greensies Sunday, to take the series.

Jay Floyd, playing at No. 3 and Myrl Jowell, at No. 1, scored one goal each. Myrl was handicapped by an injury to his horse, having to astride one of the Texon players' animals. His mount was hurt on a water trough just before the game.

Jay played a strong defensive game, as did Clay, who didn't score during the afternoon but who was tight as the proverbial Scotchman about letting Texon drives drift through him. There was plenty of riding off players from the ball and deft locking of mallets. In fact, the game was the most thrilling Midland has ever played. Nolke and Lane alternated at No.

1 for the green tribe. Chaffin was at No. 2, Ferrington at No. 3 and Griffith in the black position. They tell a lot about Myrl's ability to drive goal shots through angles covered by the dancing feet of horses and commanded by sweeping mallets. Several times did he score when a huddle of players and mounts barred him right at the up-rights. "Are you hurt?" a Midland player asked Jay after he had taken his worst fall, the one over the goal posts.

WHAMS COVER OFF BALL BUT GETS NO CHANCE; HOW ABOUT MANAGERS?

By GALE TALBOT JR. Associated Press Sport Writer
DALLAS, Sept. 11. (P).—Larry Bettencourt, the big noise of the Wichita Falls Spudders, probably is wondering what it takes to get a big league tryout. At least, he has every reason to wonder. The St. Louis Browns, parent club, have "purchased" seven members of the present Spudder combination, including the entire infield, and all will get a chance in higher company next year. Bettencourt was not one of the seven. The bright fan who can figure out why will receive two reserved seats to the next Dixie Series at Beaumont.

Although his batting average for the season was nothing phenomenal—around .325 all the time—Bettencourt came very close to being the most valuable player on the Spud machine. He led the circuit in home runs, 43; batted in way yonder more runs than any rival, 148; was right around the top in runs scored, and played practically every position on the diamond. He even caught a few games, and did a cracking good job of it. He was regarded as about the most dangerous batter in the league with men on the sacks.

That was about all poor Larry could do during the recent campaign. Maybe he'll snap out of it and make good next year. The trade winds bear in rumors of wholesale managerial changes in the next Dixie Series at Beaumont.

Immediately after the Sunday game, Midland horses will be shipped to San Angelo, where the Cowboy aggregation is listed as one of the favorites among the six clubs entered for the West Texas exposition tournament, Sept. 22-27. Bum, Myrl, Jay, Clay and Jimmie Woods, San Angelo man who formerly played with Midland, will compose the Midland line-up there.

the Texas League again next year. Art Phelan's resignation at Shreveport started the ball rolling. If one believes all he hears, not a pilot's scalp is safe. Phelan, incidentally, was supposed to be bitterly opposed to night baseball. He advised the Sports owners not to install lights, but they didn't listen.

Just to forestall the usual flood of stories that start: "The first football game in the state, etc." it hereby is announced that the situation already has been filled.

So far as this department can learn, Ranger and Gorman high schools gained the distinction of opening the 1930 pigskin season. They met September 4 at Ranger, with the home team victorious, 19 to 0. The Ranger eleven is regarded as a potential champion in the rough-and-ready Oil Belt. The Bulldogs' backfield this year will include one "Chuck" Bird, a 200-pound fullback who played with Mineral Wells last year and is said to be about the finest bit of football flesh in all West Texas.

Time was when a 200-pounder on a high school eleven was just another one of the boys, but they are scarce nowadays, something to be pointed out by the stands and much sought after by coaches.

Back around 1919, before the State Interscholastic league came into being with all its new-fangled ideas about age limits, passing grades and the like, they had football players in Texas high schools. Instead of going to an academy or college as soon as they had finished "12th grade," the boys stuck around and took post-graduate courses for a season or two. Some of them were pretty well grown up by the time they got through.

Before the war, for instance, El Paso high school played annual games with the New Mexico Aggies and Texas School of Mines. And they were not practice affairs, what we mean. They were regular battles, usually late in the season, and the "Tigers" usually managed to hold their own, both in size and playing ability. It would be difficult to imagine one of the present day Texas high school eleven playing a college team on even terms. The closest approach these eyes have seen to the "schoolboy" squads of a decade ago was the Amarillo Golden San's storm of last year.

INTERSECTIONAL GAMES TO BE BRILLIANT

DALLAS, Sept. 11. (UP).—The thud of pigskins sailing across the gridirons of seven Southwestern Conference football squads will be heard Sept. 10, as the curtain rises on a colorful and exciting season that will be unparalleled in conference history, according to dopesters. Training camps will not be set up until Sept. 11, according to a conference ruling.

Ray Morrison, member of the national football rules committee, presided at a meeting of the Southwestern board of officials at Houston last week, when a difficult schedule of eighteen conference games was approved and changes in the season's rules were discussed.

The most important day of the new schedule is Nov. 8, when Baylor's Bears face the Longhorns of Texas University at Waco, while T. C. U. meets Rice and S. M. U. tackles the A. and M. cadets elsewhere. On other Saturdays no more than two games are scheduled to permit fans to attend as many contests as possible.

Intersectional tilts and easier non-conference games break the schedule of conference games. Despite the three hard games of the S. M. U. Mustangs billed with Notre Dame, Navy and Indiana, the fall football map favors the Methodist players.

Hard sledding is prophesied for Coach Francis Schmidt's Horned Frogs, who ooped the 1929 title. T. C. U. has three hard conference battles on consecutive Saturdays at the end of the season.

University of Arkansas is scheduled to play only two regular conference teams, T. C. U. and A. and M. College, but the Razorbacks' There was a team for lack, even if it did lose to the Breckenridge Buckaroos in the quarterfinals. Man for man, it was the heftiest outfit turned out by a Texas high school in years, but something was lacking. Maybe those bulky machines of 10 years ago would have suffered a like fate against the lighter, smarter eleven of the modern age. But we like to think they were better.

games with Centenary and Louisiana State University will be counted as conference results by agreement of football officials a few months ago.

Intersectional games afford the highlights for the coming season. Prominent among these are S. M. U.'s three battles, A. and M.'s game with Nebraska at Lincoln Oct. 4, Rice's contest with Arizona at Houston Oct. 11, the A. and M. Tulane clash during the Texas-Oklahoma fair here Oct. 18, and Rice's game with Iowa State at Houston Dec. 6, a post-season contest.

SATURDAY OIL MEETING AT McCAMEY ONE OF MOST IMPORTANT TO BE HELD RECENTLY; SEVERAL COUNTIES TO GO

By A. GARLAND ADAIR. Special Correspondent. McCAMEY, Sept. 11.—The McCamey chamber of commerce and Lions club, Saturday, September 13th, will be hosts to a conference of West Texas officials regarding the constitutional amendment to tax University of Texas lands for county and school purposes.

A feature of the conference will be a mass meeting held at 2:00 p. m. that day in the auditorium of the McCamey high school. The entire public is invited and according to advance information representatives and proponents of the amendment which is to be voted on in the November election will be here from the counties of Andrews, Crane, Crockett, Culbertson, Ector, El Paso, Irion, Hudspeth, Martin, Loving, Pecos, Reagan, Schleicher, Terrell, Tom Green, Upton, Ward and Winkler.

Representative Penrose B. Metcalfe is expected to be present from San Angelo. Back from the state democratic convention held in Galveston, he will be able to give the conference a report of the sentiment, if any, he heard expressed by Texas delegates and convention goers.

It was Representative Metcalfe who introduced the bill to tax university lands in the 51st legislature. While the counties themselves, in which state lands are located will profit most by the enactment of the proposition, the convention will sponsor a campaign by which it is hoped to gain ardent advocates in all parts of the state. Fairness to the counties discriminated against by the failures of taxation of these lands in years gone by will not be the sole appeal, it is declared here but the educational campaign plan, yet to be detailed, it has been insinuated, will endeavor to show Texas voters how the amendment's adoption will benefit the entire land of the Lone Star.

There are seventeen counties in the state in which these untaxed lands lie. The total is 2,000,320 acres. In some of the counties, especially where large tracts are located, it is claimed that a real burden has been imposed upon the property owners and tax payers to maintain a progressive civilization where such an important integral part of otherwise taxable property is exempt from any of the service of helping defray the expenses of county and school.

The amendment proposes valuations to be fixed by the state tax board and paid by the state. In 1928 the counties in which university lands are located paid to the state of Texas in taxes $1,281,498.47 of which $556,185 was paid back in school apportionments, leaving $725,313.47 retained by the state. The valuation of the university land taking as an average the county valuations in 1927 was $7,473,758.

The land in West Texas is distributed as follows: County—Acres Andrews 294,400 Crane 63,680 Crockett 356,480 Culbertson 46,080 Ector 6,080 El Paso 11,520 Irion 22,729 Hudspeth 453,120 Martin 14,080 Loving 22,400 Pecos 184,950 Reagan 194,520 Schleicher 57,600 Terrell 61,440 Upton 77,440 Ward 80,640 Winkler 53,120

WICHITA WALLOPS FT. WORTH IN THE FIRST ENCOUNTER

WICHITA FALLS, Sept. 11. (AP)—Hal Wiltse pitched Wichita Falls to a 6 to 2 victory over Fort Worth here in the opening game of the series to determine the championship of the Texas league. Approximately 6,000 fans were on hand.

A big sixth inning, in which McCabe was knocked out of the box, provided the winning margin. Storti hit a home run over the right center field fence to open it. Then with Kloza aboard, Burns slammed a home run over the center field fence. A triple by Betten-court and a single by Crouch accounted for the fourth run of the frame and McCabe was relieved by Roberts.

SMOKER GROUP WILL CELEBRATE 400TH BIRTHDAY

PARIS, Sept. 11. (UP)—The Ligue Nationale pour la Defense des Fumeurs—an organization devoted to the rights of man and his tobacco, is shortly to celebrate the 400th anniversary of the original Father Nicotine, whose real name was Jean Nicot. The then ambassador to Lisbon (under Francis II) introduced tobacco into this country long before government manufacturers thought of adulterating it with prairie grass and selling it in yellow, blue and green packs.

It seems that Ambassador Nicot did a favor for a Portuguese merchant, an incident which quickly passed from his mind. Months later the ambassador received a mysterious package with the assurance that he might try it with pleasing effect. Being a true gentleman, M. Nicot sent the package up to Catherine de Medici, but the latter, not wishing to be trapped by any practical joker, immediately called for the Cardinal of Lorraine. The latter crammed some of the powdery substance up his nostrils, staggered about the room as though intoxicated, and pronounced the thing "fair enough at that."

Habit grew and soon everyone at the court took stuff. Later smoking itself came into vogue. Not long after that epoch the Swiss match industry boomed, and then someone invented mouth washes and candy mints, so that men could smoke with impunity. By the beginning of the 20th Century 5,000,000 persons were busy thinking up slogans, 4,000,000 others were worrying with patent lighters and 100,000,000 movie fans were trying to roll 'em with one hand. A pity M. Nicot couldn't have lived to view his handiwork.

YANX BEAT GREAT BRITAIN FOR WIN OF THE POLO CUP

INTERNATIONAL FIELD. WESTBURY, N. Y., Sept. 11. (AP)—Coming from behind in the last three periods with a whirlwind, irresistible rush, the American "Big Four" galloped to their second straight victory over Great Britain Wednesday and clinched the defense of the International Polo Cup. The final score was 14 to 9.

Trailing 6-7 after five periods of spectacular play, the Americans put on a blazing rally that gave them the lead in the sixth period and put the British completely to rout by the end of the game. Eric Pedley of California, American No. 4, ran wild and scored eight goals. He tallied six in the last three periods and shared the honors of the victorious spurt with Earle Hopping, who contributed two goals in the sixth period.
