MOODY DECLINES CALL SESSION ON ACREAGE REDUCTION

SAYS CALL FARM BOARD TAKE LEAD

Vetoes Possibility of Bill if Call Extra Session

AUSTIN, Oct. 3. (UP).—Governor Moody today declined to call a special session of the legislature to enact a bill requiring cotton acreage reduction.

Moody told the committee conferring with him that if Texas passed such a law and other cotton states didn't, Texas farmers would oppose it.

Overwhelming sentiment of members of the legislature in favor of a special session to enact cotton acreage reduction by legislation and provide drought relief was reported by members of the committee here today to confer with Moody.

Ray Holder, committee member, had replies from 90 members of legislature to a questionnaire on a special session. He said a majority favoring a session was nearly four to one.

Wants Conference AUSTIN, Oct. 3. (P).—Declining to call a special session of legislature for cotton acreage reduction unless he was assured other cotton states would do the same, Governor Moody today consented to confer with other southern governors on a south-wide reduction program.

POSSIBILITIES OF MAIL STOP LOOK BRIGHTER

Following favorable statements of postal authorities in Texas and the possibilities of an air mail stop in Midland, the aeronautic committee of the chamber of commerce has requested that heads of oil companies and business institutions write letters to head offices and to postal authorities asking for a Sloan field stop.

It is to be requested that planes landing in Big Spring, the regular stop provided in the recent decision of the government, land at the Midland field also. The request will say that the volume of incoming mail to Midland would warrant such a landing.

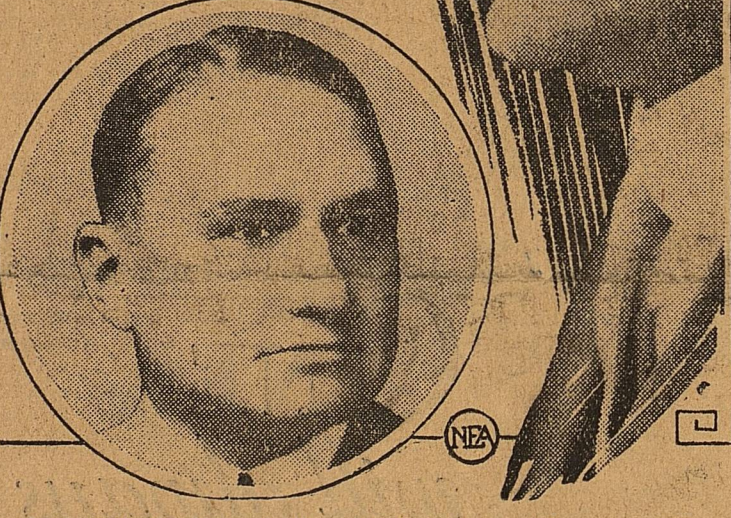

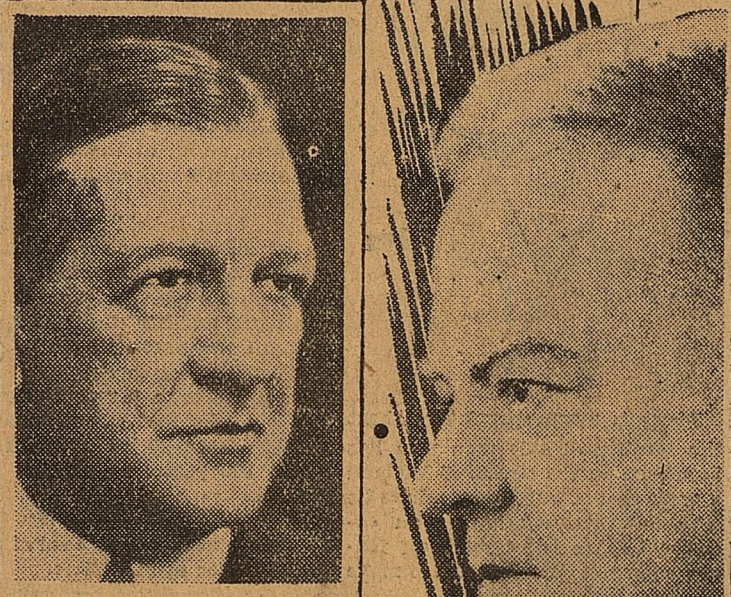

"Midland is believed to be in line for a stop on the airline," a letter from an outstanding official said today. "Due to the excellent landing and service facilities designation of such an additional stop should not be considered difficult."

SPEAKS TO AMERICAN BANKERS

Executive Returns to Washington for a Short Rest

WASHINGTON, Oct. 3. (UP).—President Hoover returned here today from Cleveland where he addressed the American Bankers' association, to rest over the week end before resuming his speech-making trip next week.

CLEVELAND, Oct. 3. (P).—President Hoover told the nation's bankers last night the business depression "will be shortened largely to the degree that you feel you can prudently, by counsel and specific assistance, instill into your clients from industry, agriculture, and commerce a feeling of assurance."

Many Midland radio listeners in heard the president as he chided those who have grown pessimistic over the business situation. Several of them had a perfect background for the lecture, since they heard Roger Babson, famous business leader and author of the well-known business cycle charts, recently, say over the ether that the end of the depression cycle appears in sight.

Prefaced by expressions of belief in the power of American enterprise, his word went to them in a personal address before the fifty-sixth annual convention of the American Bankers' association.

"You already have done much," he said, "and at this juncture the responsibility of those in control of money and credit is great. Without faith on your part and without your good offices, the early return to full prosperity can not be accomplished."

"We know that one of the prerequisites of ending a depression is an ample supply of credit at low rates of interest. This supply and these rates are now available through the cooperation of the banks and the Federal Reserve system."

"The income of the large part of our people is not reduced by the depression but it is affected by unnecessary fears and pessimism, the result of which is to slacken the consumption of goods and discourage enterprise. Here the atmosphere of your offices will affect the mental attitude and, if you please, courage, of the individuals who will depend upon you for both counsel and money."

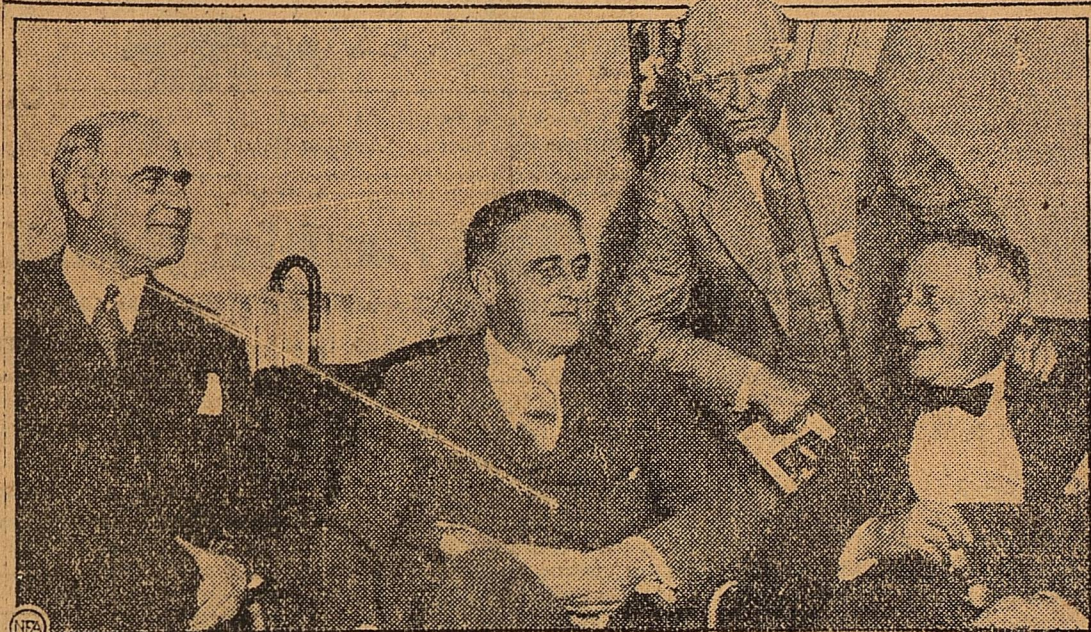

Mr. Hoover praised the federal reserve system as furnishing "an admirable center for cooperation of the banking business with the production and distribution of industries and the government in the development of broad and detached policies of business stability."

He called upon the bankers to consider "what further effective measures can be taken either in the business world or in cooperation with the government in development of such policies, both for the present and for the future."

'Lady Finger' Threat Is Carried out by Chinese

PEIPING, China, Oct. 3. (P).—British consul at Foochow today was notified that Miss Edith Nettleton and Miss Eleanor June Harrison, British missionaries captured last July, had been shot by communists at Chungang. The executions followed protracted negotiations for their release in the course of which bandits cut off one of Miss Nettleton's fingers, sent it to the British consular authorities as a dire reminder of their death threats if $100,000 ransom was not paid.

NEW MASSACRE IN FAR EAST EXACTS TOLL OF 4,500

LONDON, Oct. 3. (UP).—An exchange telegraph dispatch from Jerusalem without confirmation today said the Turks had massacred 4,500 men, women and children and had destroyed many villages in the Zilan district.

It was last October 6 when the Buffs journeyed over. Midland was touted as a green, yet fast machine, and likely to edge out the invaders. But the moon was wrong, or the psychology warped or the dopesters cockeyed—for Stanton scored by a pass, an intercepted pass and a safety.

Last night Stanton showed that that town realizes the time has come when the cards are to be stacked against the Humped Beast school.

A big rally was held and the team was hopped up like race animals before a stake classic.

Midland held a vociferous pep meeting at assembly hour this morning. No one wanted to hail himself as a prophet of the score but everyone pledged to fight, whether in the lineup or on the sidelines, for a win which would give the Dogs a good start on the big push for district championship.

Coach Barry assumed the "Doleful Doc" attitude when he spoke. He might have done this to destroy or confidence in his charges, or he may believe in the 'll' story about the bogey man living over in Stanton. And he adorned the bad fella with horns and sharp forks and pointed tail 'all' everything.

But the team left with the express purpose of de-horning the old scratch, filing his tail and bringing back the fork with a something to nothing score hanging to it.

Death Demanded for Houston Marksman

HOUSTON, Oct. 3. (UP).—A jury heard a demand for the death of Jess J. Maple, killer bandit, in opening arguments of the trial for the murder of Policemen E. D. Fitzgerald today.

SEEK TO AVENGE A 15-0 LOSS

Fans Expect Bulldogs To Win District Championship

The official district interscholastic football season had its lid blasted by whistles this afternoon in Stanton when a powerful purple and gold machine charged down the field towards the embattled grid wall of the Buffs, traditional grid enemies of Midland.

The game started at 3:30, a game that was not just a game, but a 22-man verdict of whether Midland goes this year into a threatening position for a district championship, a keeping of that title won last season.

Both teams had their hospital lists. Arnett, big 170 pound linesman for Midland did not suit out. He is wearing a plaster paris cast on one foot, a result of the 53-18 win over El Paso's Austin high last Saturday night. Pinnell was not due to start. White, ponderous linesman who does most of the kicking, was not expected to see much action.

STANTON MEN INJURED

The miserer was echoed in Stanton. Kelly, 165-pound tackle, got his shoulder bone pulled out of place in scrimmage Wednesday, and Smith, another beefy lineman, has a bad foot. To make the bass notes stand out in the doleful Stanton tune, these two injuries happened to the only two letter men in the line.

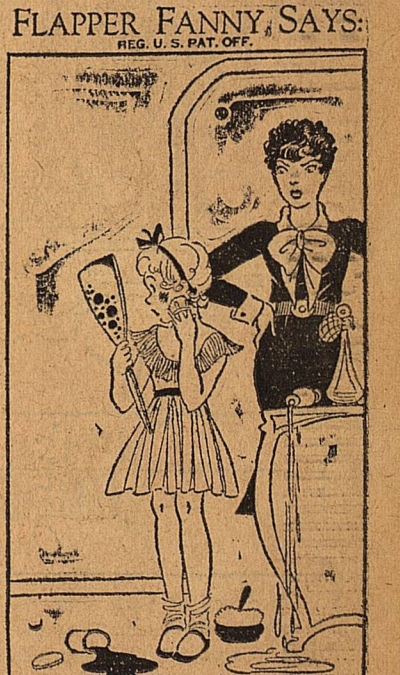

Stanton has only four letter men back, and Pollock, fast end, was ruled ineligible at Monahan's one other day, to cut down the vets to three. Epley, diminutive quarter is the only man in the lineup that wears last year's "S".

A telephone message from Stanton just before noon said that the Buffaloes had given up hope at crashing the Midland line. The team had settled down to a more-or-less hopeful speculation on playing its air-mindedness and deception against the heartless driving of the Canine contingent. Midland, while expecting this announcement, planned not to leave the stoppers out of the forward wall bulkheads.

MIDLAND FAVORED TO WIN

Midland went into the game a strong favorite. In case no more rain falls, the club should wade through for a margin of three touchdowns, local fans believe. Coach Barry said this morning that his backs had mud cleats so that, in case the gridiron becomes slippery, they may have as much traction as possible. The Stanton field being dusty and unsoaked.

IMPRESSIONS ON VISITORS

One of the most important statements made by Alfonso Johnson, business expert who visited Midland this week, was that when a visitor comes to town, his opinion of the place is formed from his contact with only a few people.

A visitor may stop for only a few minutes to fill up with gas and oil, talking to one or two filling station attendants. He gets a cup of coffee or a fountain drink and drives on through. A hundred miles farther down the road someone asks him about Midland. "It's a good town," he will say, or perhaps "Give it a wide berth," depending on the reception he got from the two or three or a half dozen people with whom he came in contact.

No better attention can be given by employers than to school employees in proper methods of giving service to strangers. Tourists have questions about distances, roads and road conditions, places to see and that sort of thing that can be answered accurately by the clerk or attendant who spends a few minutes finding out. Or on the other hand such employe can give a gruff answer and it will reflect on the town itself.

The employer who sees that his hired people use intelligent and courteous methods in giving service to visitors will find that these methods are used also to regular customers, resulting in greater revenue, better profits, more friends for both the employer and his community.

A MOVE AGAINST STUNTING

Fifty of the nation's leading airplane makers, meeting at Washington, have passed a resolution aiming to outlaw the stunting of airplanes except for necessary test work. The movement is a step in the right direction.

In routine army and navy work stunting is essential. It is also essential, as the airplane manufacturers point out, in certain test flights. It is entirely out of place, however, at public exhibitions. Lives of innocent bystanders can too easily be endangered.

Furthermore, it is bad business—which, probably, is what hit the makers of airplanes. It does little good to tell the public that flying is safe when a squadron of stunters can go out and, by doing a dizzy series of flips, persuade the average man that aviation is after all a game for daredevils.

TRAFFIC AND HEALTH

Zaro Agha found conditions in life in his native Turkey highly favorable, and reached the age of 156 years without trouble, or so, at least, his press agents insist. However, visiting America to see and be seen, he promptly falls victim to modern traffic congestion and gets hit by an automobile before he can even get past New York.

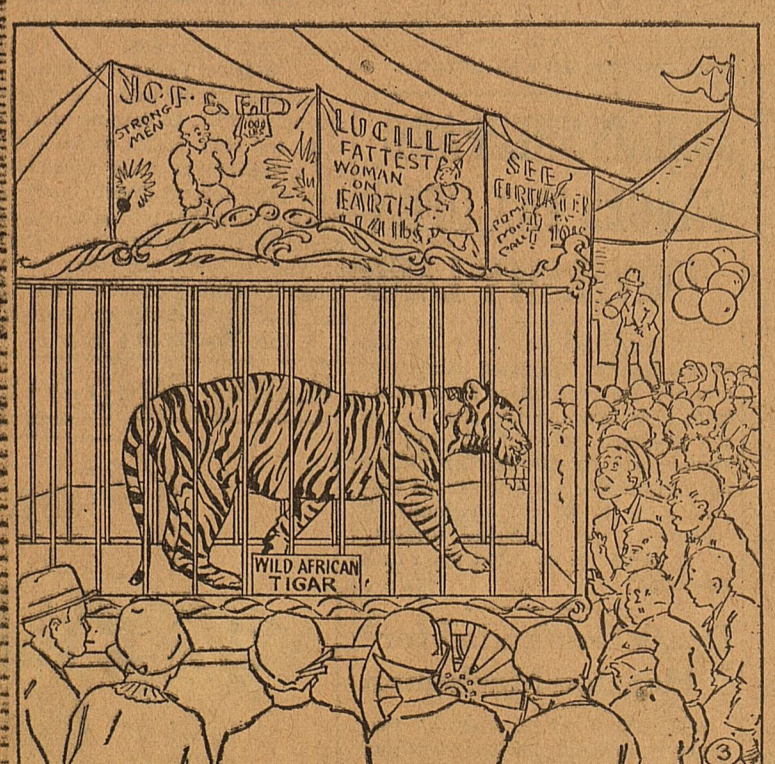

It doesn't do to inspect each incident of daily life too closely, in the hope of finding a moral. Nevertheless, there is something rather apt about Zaro Agha's mishap. The ordinary conditions of health, sanitation and medical care in this country are almost infinitely better than they are in Turkey; but a centenarian is likely to find that we have raised up new perils to counterbalance things. Zaro Agha may be freer from the menace of disease here than at home—but if he had stayed at home he at least would not have been endangered by automobiles.

INTERESTED IN SIR THOMAS

The cup races between the yachts Enterprise and Shamrock drew a great deal of attention in the newspapers; but it is interesting to reflect that fully 98 per cent of this interest came because of the presence of genial Sir Thomas Lipton. As a boxing promoter would say, Sir Thomas was "the gate."

Yachting on this scale is, after all, a sport for multi-millionaires. Except for an ardent yachtsman, the spectacle is not particularly thrilling or interesting, especially in view of the maze of technicalities through which the contestants must struggle. If it had not been for Sir Thomas the American public would not have cared whether the yachts raced at all.

All the Fireworks About Russians Selling Short on the Chicago Wheat Market Hasn't Done the Administration Much Good to Date, but You Can't Tell What May Happen

WASHINGTON, Oct. 3.—Anyone who purports to collect and chronicle the more interesting news emanating from the national capital is forced to report that the recent fireworks set off by Secretary of Agriculture Arthur M. Hyde have exploded in every direction with unexpected results.
Stalin and his gang. Another thing: The Russians have denied that American producers of lumber, pulpwood, matches, manganese and such commodities are threatened by competition from Russian convict labor. It isn't, they say, convict labor. But if American interest can prove—as the American Lumber Manufacturers' Association is now trying to prove, for instance—that the Russians are lying, then the Russians will be discredited and appropriate measures will be taken.

Hyde, you will recall, is the boy who lit the fuses to the skyrocketers in a series of statements undertaking to fasten blame for low wheat prices on a Russian concern which had sold a few million bushels short. The grain trade, struck squarely in the seat of the pants when it wasn't looking, is much sorer at the administration than it was before, although it has agreed to endeavor to prevent foreign governments from selling short on the exchange. And the poor farmers, as invariably seems to be the case, are worse off than ever—wheat prices on the Chicago market dropping to the lowest level in 24 years.

Administration critics, joined by the Chicago grain men, profess to believe that the onslaught on the Soviet and its few million bushels of grain was a piece of political campaign strategy designed to line up the farmers with the administration in a whooped-up defense of the old homestead against the wicked Russians. That, however, presupposes an almost incredible naivete.

Democrats Tried It
As a matter of fact, it would be unfair to suggest that any special discredit ought to be attached to the Republicans for seeking to stir up animosity against Soviet Russia simply because nearly all Americans have little sympathy for the Communist theory.

The Democrats started that sort of thing when A. Mitchell Palmer was attorney general. Their efforts to make political capital out of the wretched Communists failed, but it did just about suck the lemon dry.

Ever since the Communist movement in this country has gradually become weaker and more futile and it has been correspondingly more difficult for politicians to get the American people all hot and bothered about it. Thus, even if it should be admitted that the administration has been trying to dangle the old Red herring before the farmers, it can be accused of nothing worse than political ineptitude.

The net effect of the present fiasco doubtless will be good. American politicians probably are being taught that the Red scare simply doesn't work any more as a remedy for all political ills.

Might Help G. O. P.
Lest it be thought that your correspondent enjoys chronicling all this, one hastens to point out that there are one or two ways by which the administration can strengthen itself with popular support as it makes hullabaloo about the Reds. It must be admitted that short sales of five or ten million bushels of wheat could hardly ruin the grain market and that the real reasons for wheat price depression are well known. But—

If it can be proved incontrovertibly that the Soviet government has deliberately sought to depress American grain prices in order to stir up trouble among American farmers, this government will be able to spank the U. S. S. R. as hard as it knows how, amid the virtually unanimous cheering of all patriotic Americans. Hyde, Mr. McKelvie of the Farm Board and one or two others seem to think the U. S. S. R. had just that in mind and if they can prove it the country will be willing to believe almost anything of

The Town Quack

Reserves the right to "quack" about everything without taking a stand on anything.

Others believe he is a government operative sent here to make secret investigation of applicants for postmaster, but this is discounted by the fact that two men are reported to have been here yesterday with this announced purpose. Managers of chain stores fear that the important looking stranger may be scouting their activities, determining whether or not they are putting in full time on the job or whether another manager should be sent here to replace them.

Looking at the well groomed upper lip of the individual, some have decided that he is an advance agent for the medical convention which is to be held here Monday and Tuesday. More optimistic citizens see in the stranger possibilities of new industries for Midland—possibly a refinery or large payroll concern. This conjecture was strengthened when the man called at the chamber of commerce for information about the common point.

Little hope is held out that he is an oil man looking for a location. He does not fraternize with other oil men, has not played a game of miniature golf and has placed no money on the world series. He seems sober at all times. I am making a personal effort to find out who the man is, what he is doing and why he is here. I will advise the public as soon as possible.

There is much speculation about the identity of this man who has been seen on the streets of Midland a great deal of late. Some believe he may be a "stool," buying an occasional drink and tipping off federal agents in time for them to make

WHO IS HE?

LETTERS to the EDITOR

Editor, Reporter-Telegram:

The school board met with about a half dozen patrons of the independent school district, comprising 64 square miles, in the directors room of the First National bank to discuss the proposition of financing and putting in operation some busses to carry scholastics to and from Midland schools to their homes.

Any one there could see that a decision of the board had been adverse from the start. It is very unjust to incorporate the rural patrons into the independent school district, force a mortgage on 60 square miles of farms to build and maintain four school houses with an enormous cost, and also pay for an expensive acrobatic arena to pull off contests to glorify one man, and then refuse to furnish conveyances with a part of the funds so derived from the enforced taxes to pay for the four school houses and other expenses, some of which will be useless.

It is old as history that the common class, which constitutes 90 per cent of the population of all countries, are subject to the rule of the financially prosperous.

As the law is written at present, the school board itself has the power to act on the bus transportation, so you rural people will have to await legislative relief or elect a school board that will be more in sympathy with your wishes.

Local Housewives' Choice Recipes

Famous women also have their favorite recipes. A copy of Mrs. Woodrow Wilson's recipe for gold and silver cake or Mrs. William H. Taft's for sponge pudding would be splendid in the dessert section of your cookbook.

Gold and Silver Cake
Both of these cakes are usually made at the same time. They are made after an old Southern recipe and the silver cake is frosted with white and the gold with yellow.

Gold cake: The yolks of 8 eggs, 1 cup of sugar, 3/4 of a cup of butter, 1/2 cup of sweet milk, 1/4-1/2 cups of flour, 1 teaspoon of cream of tartar and 1/2 teaspoon of soda. Flavor with lemon.

Silver cake: The whites of 8 eggs, 2 cups of sugar, 1-2 cup of butter, 3-5 cup of milk, 3 cups of flour, 1/2 teaspoon of cream of tartar and 1/2 of soda. Flavor with vanilla.

Sponge Pudding
1-2 cup of flour, 1-4 cup of sugar, 1-4 cup of butter, 1 pint of boiled milk, 5 eggs.

Mix sugar and flour, wet with a little cold water and stir into the boiling milk. Cook until it thickens and is smooth. Add butter and when well mixed, stir it into the well beaten yolks of the eggs. Then add the whites beaten stiff and bake in a shallow dish of cups, placing them in a pan of hot water while in the oven. Serve with creamy sauce.

The Sunshine Sister contest of the month was closed and much interest was shown by the members in discovering what was contained in their packages.

During the social hour an interesting contest was conducted and at tea time party plates were passed to 21 women.

Pleasing Color Effects Found in Earthenware

By WILLIAM H. BALDWIN
Author of "The Shopping Book"
Written for NEA Service

There always has been a feeling in buying dinnerware that it must be china, through which light will penetrate, and noth earthenware. Good china certainly is desirable, but it is also expensive.

At one time hard-fired china was more interesting than earthenware, but in the past few years the art of potting has been so improved that it is now impossible to get more pleasing contours into earthenware. Moreover, fine coloring effects can be put on earthenware through improvement in decalcomania. Colors cannot be easily transferred to hard-fired china because the heat is so intense that it would burn the color.

In other words, when people say, "This isn't china," don't be upset; you may have in earthenware a fine product pleasing in shape and attractive in color.

Rich Oil Man Plans Model Community for 20,000 of His Oil Fraternity Men

By BERYL MILLER, NEA Service Writer.

CLEVELAND, O., Oct. 3.—A model community now being developed by John D. Rockefeller, Jr., at Forest Hill, his famous father's picturesque old estate here, is a home lovers' fairyland transformed into reality.

One thousand fireproof dwellings equipped with very modern conveniences, a $750,000 office, store and apartment building, beautiful winding boulevards, a transportation system, a recreation center and everything else that goes to make up a complete residential city is planned on the 400-acre tract.

The housing development will be a Rockefeller monument in memory of the many pleasant hours father and son spent on the old estate, located in East Cleveland and Cleveland Heights, suburbs adjoining Cleveland on the east. It was the elder oil king's summer home until the large house burned several years ago.

Is Object Lesson

The new city is intended primarily for the younger executives and professional working classes. It is the hope of Rockefeller that it will serve as an educational object lesson to other wealthy men, showing them how to invest their money to help the housing situation and place more families in their own homes.

However, there is nothing that savors of charity about the project. Homes are priced at from $25,000 to $40,000. Buyers must make down payments of 15 per cent of the total, and are given 15 years to complete the purchase. No second mortgages will be permitted. Rockefeller having arranged to care for all financing through first mortgages at six per cent.

Eighty-one houses, of seven and eight rooms each, and a novel business block constitute the present building program. Fifteen dwellings have been completed, and the others are under roof. Sewer installation provides for a possible population of 20,000.

$5,000,000 Already Spent

The old private golf links, where John D. Sr., played his favorite game, and the lake, where young Rockefeller learned to swim, are preserved and probably will be utilized for recreation facilities for residents of the model city, but no definite details have been worked out.

Vastness of the project is indicated by the fact that $5,000,000 has been expended to date, not including land values.

A visitor at the development is amazed at its distinctiveness. There is not a pole in the entire district. All wires for electricity and telephone service have been placed underground. Except for trees and shrubbery, there will appear only artistic lighting standards and lanterns and street signs.

The houses are in modified English style, but each is different and each stands on a plot 56 by 150 feet, set back from the street. Every block is landscaped to fit into the complete picture.

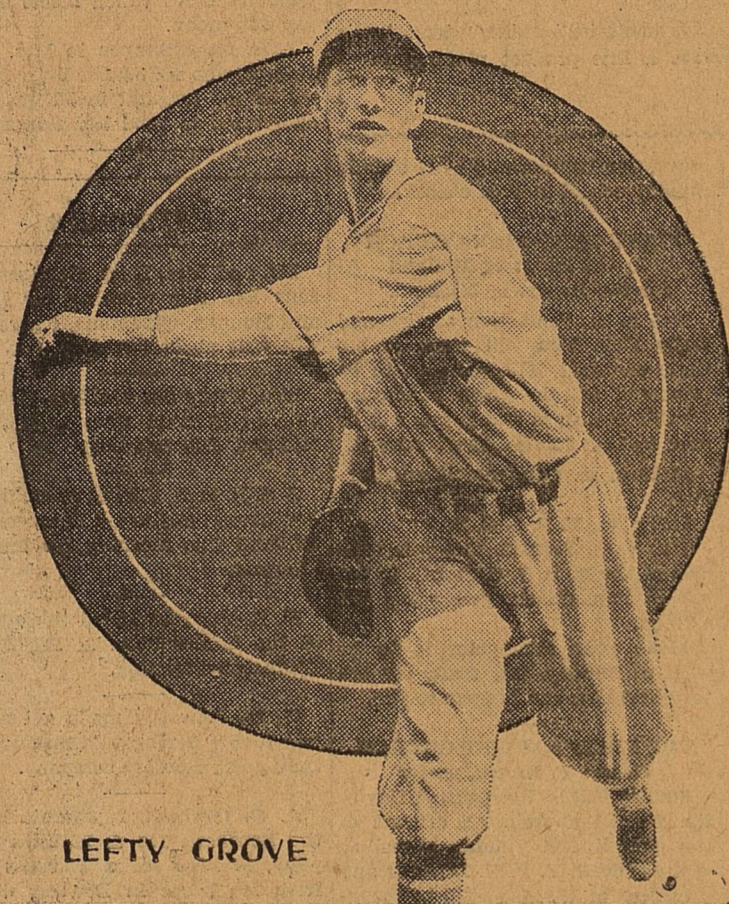

Built-In Garages

All garages are built in, but are completely cut off from the basement portions to be used by occupants. Back of the garages are wide stretches of lawn, making the back as attractive as the front. Several building inspectors at-

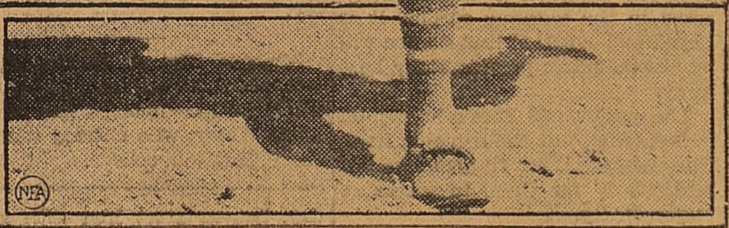

FEATURES OF ROCKEFELLER HOMES

- Among distinctive features of the Rockefeller homes are: Underground wiring and built-in double garages, eliminating unsightly poles and buildings.
- Radio equipment, including inside aerial.
- Practically fireproof construction with 12-inch brick-on-tile walls and steel and concrete in the first tier of beams.
- Heating units which will burn coal, gas or oil.
- Recreation space in basement.
- Architectural design and landscaping which conform to general scheme of entire community without losing individuality.

tending a recent convention here pronounced the houses "the best ever built on earth." They have 12-inch brick-on-tile walls, four-inch concrete sub-floors on the first story, with sound-deadening between them, and wide oak-top floors. Metal lath is used through-out and all flashings and down-spouts are copper.

"Mr. Rockefeller has sought to provide here a community of good homes for the younger people, homes that will stand, that have architectural and structural quality and hence freedom from the annoying necessity of frequent repairs," declared C. O. Heydt, president of the Abeyton Realty Corporation, the Rockefeller organization in charge of the development.

A glimpse inside the dwellings reveals a housewives' Utopia. A vestibule and tiled hall opens off the living room. On the other side is a dining room. The living rooms are 23 feet long by 13 feet wide. An enclosed porch opens off the end of the living room.

The dining room, 13 by 15 feet, is on the other side of the entrance hall, and of the dining room a dining alcove with breakfast nook furniture leads to a tiled kitchen.

The kitchen has a gas range in a deep tiled recess, a large enameled sink, an electric refrigerator, and built-in cupboards and closets. A wide back hall gives entry to a lavatory, several deep closets and opens onto the rear yard.

A master bed chamber, several closets, another bath, a servant's room with bath are found on the second floor.

The laundry, 10 by 13 feet, and the boiler room, 13 by 19 feet, are in the basement. They occupy the basement space not utilized for the garage.

Cotner Eleven Cops Junior High Game

TIAA Conference to See Hard Contests

SAN MARCOS, Oct. 3. (P)—That the San Marcos Teachers college Bobcats will again have to be reckoned with in 1930 was emphasized in their 6 to 0 win over the Stephen F. Austin Lumberjacks at Nacogdoches Saturday in the Texas Intercollegiate Athletic Association's opening game. The Bobcats, unofficial champs of the conference in 1929, had been doped to lose.

Francis Sanders, Bobcat quarterback and field general, did something that Strahan-coached backs seldom do when he ran 55 yards for a touchdown. The Bobcat win also introduced again to TIAA grid fans a former Lumberjack backfield ace, "Sub" Pylant, who, in playing his first game for Strahan, caused Nacogdoches sports scribes to pick him as the "best defensive man ever seen on that field."

In the TIAA's second game, an evening affair, Abilene Christian college and McMurry college, both of Abilene, fought it out at home. A. C. C. winning 24 to 0 and thus serving notice that Abilene will have at least one strong entry in the race.

The Sam Houston Teachers, if their performance against Rice means anything, loom as the strongest of the group at present, stronger than East Texas Commerce, anyway. Sam Houston trimmed Lon Morris 25 to 0 and East Texas eked out a 2 to 0 win over the Lon Morris eleven.

The Schreiner Institute Mountaineers beat Sul Ross 7 to 6. The loss no doubt cooled off Sul Ross fans, who had believed the husky Lobo pack powerful enough to win the TIAA title.

Seguin Lutheran college sprang a surprise by holding the Kingsville Javelinas to a 6-6 tie.

West Texas Teachers were another group of TIAA gridsters to feel the disappointment of an early season loss when the Edmond, Okla., Teachers took a 10 to 0 decision from them.

In the way of features for the present week there loom the Austin college vs. North Texas tilt, a game which will no doubt definitely establish the status of the Eagles; this fall and the Howard Payne-Bobcat tilt at San Marcos.

October 3: Texas A. & M. vs. Southwestern at Georgetown; Austin college vs. North Texas at Denton; Panhandle A. & M. vs. West Texas at Canyon; Trinity vs. Daniel Baker at Brownwood.

October 4: Abilene Christian college vs. John Tarleton at Stephenville; Howard Payne vs. San Marcos at San Marcos; East Texas vs. Louisiana Teachers at Natchitoches, La.; Blinn Memorial college vs. Sam Houston at Huntsville; Lon Morris vs. Stephen F. Austin at Nacogdoches.

Cleveland's downtown business center. The community was designed by Andrew J. Thomas of New York. He also drew plans for a series of model tenements sponsored by Rockefeller and the Metropolitan Life Insurance Company in and near New York city.

Engineers and workmen have been busy for four years on the project. Secrecy veils the complete plans for the development, but it is expected to be the finest of its type in the world, surpassing the vast Florida projects of the boom days.

All details are being handled by the Rockefeller interests. All construction, landscaping and designing, is being done by Rockefeller workmen to insure that the beauty of the entire development will be considered in each individual home.

The residential section will connect with Cleveland's new rapid transit system over a new Forest Hill boulevard to the East Cleveland station. At present it is planned not to have any traction cars in the district, but to have frequent bus service.

CRITICISM BREAKS OUT RELATIVE TO AMERICAN CUP

There is every indication that the outcry over the recent international yacht races for the America's cup will be both loud and long.

First there is the matter of the mechanical equipment of the winning cup defender Enterprise. And then there is the instance of the third race when the Shamrock broke down and Harold Vanderbilt continued on to record a victory with his defending yacht.

Of course much criticism is made of the American yachtsmen on both scores, but it seems to this writer who saw all of the races that at least some of it is ill-considered.

There may be room for discussion over the Enterprise's equipment from the standpoint of where does a sail boat cease to be a sail boat and become something else. Perhaps the Enterprise, with its towering, metal mast, its windlasses to hoist sail, its trick boom and its other mechanical devices, was a far cry from the elemental sailing ship of clipper days—the days in which cup competition began. Yet the equipment of the Enterprise measured the progress of the age. No one would expect the cup defender to use the sails of 1851—they are either dead or too old. So, perhaps, may be the methods and equipment of 1851.

There is the added fact that the British knew or certainly could have known if they were interested, the sort of ship the Enterprise would be. Americans had no monopoly on the devices aboard it. Many of them are used in some form or another on British yachts. As a matter of fact Harold Vanderbilt got some of the most important ideas used in the Enterprise from the yacht Britannia owned by His Majesty the King.

Hence the Shamrock could have been equipped as was the Enterprise. It apparently was not so equipped simply because Sir Thomas Lipton elected to pit a different sort of ship against the defender. He was wrong—or at least he lost. And it is noticeable that it is not Sir Thomas who is doing the complaining.

It would seem that the time may have arrived when a better definition of what constitutes an eligible cup yacht is required. Perhaps the yachtsmen better decide whether, in the future, they will let the sport progress with the times or whether they will make it merely an occasional revival of ancient arts, under which circumstances in time it will become a historical pageant rather than a sporting event.

As to the third race and Vanderbilt's action in continuing after the Shamrock broke down, undoubtedly it would have been a fine gesture had the Enterprise quit the race or disqualified itself. But those who condemn Vanderbilt for not adopting such a course should first consider his position. He was the man, delegated by a large number of others who formed the syndicate which built the Enterprise, to sail the ship. And the ship had been delegated by the New York Yacht Club to defend the cup. It was not Vanderbilt's boat, although perhaps he was one of the three largest contributors to the fund with which it was built. Nor was it his race. It was the New York Yacht Club's race and he was just an agent of the club. When Shamrock broke down there was no time for him to ask his associates in building the boat, nor the officers of the club what he should do, so he did the only thing possible. He brought his boat around and made certain there was no danger to the

Old Operator Aids in Broadcast

The Reporter-Telegram in giving its daily play-by-play version of the World's series baseball games depends on a veteran operator.

Baseball fans in more than 5,000 cities and towns in all parts of the United States will view the World's series play by play through the eyes of one man who will sit in the press box at Shibe Park with his eyes on the diamond and his fingers on the master telegraph key.

The audience of Edson S. Brewster, master telegrapher, who has described baseball contests for Western Union for a quarter of a century, will grasp plays even before the average fan sitting in a coveted grandstand seat, although that audience of many hundreds of thousands is scattered over thousands of miles, in crowds before playerboards, scoreboards and bulletin boards, in theatres, music halls, clubs, stores or in office groups clustered around 2,500 baseball tickers.

This miracle of modern science is made possible by 45,000 miles of wire, telegraph apparatus and by Brewster's coordination of his telegraphic ability, his knowledge of the name and face of every Major league player, and his understanding of the game as few others have. Before the crowds in the grandstand have asked their neighbors who was out and why, Brewster taps his key and the nation instantly knows the detail of the play. The fan before a playerboard in San Francisco or the fan before a ticker in New Orleans is thus informed of every play.

Edson Brewster has been the public's representative at great sporting events for years. Millions have hung breathless on his words, but few of them know whose words they awaited and few of those millions have met the man of nerve and iron who has telegraphed almost every game played at New York in the past thirty years. Brewster takes on play for granted except the home run into the bleachers, and has not made an error in any World's series game.

Shamrock or its crew. Then—and that is not generally known—he sent for a copy of the rules of the race which were aboard. The afterward gathered in a hurried conference. They could find nothing in the rules permitting them to withdraw or justifying any course but to go on.

So they sailed through to the finish knowing all the while that a different course would bring to them reputations for sportsmanship far more desirable from an individual standpoint than the day's hollow victory.

The fact is that the course they followed was the more difficult and the less selfish.

Thumb Nails Are Sketched

FRANKLIN, Oct. 2. (UP).—Gaudily painted finger nails are too tame for the society women of this resort where thumb nail sketches are now the fashionable vogue.

A blood red heart painted on a blue background is the symbol worn by one well-known French social leader. Another has etched upon her thumb nail the head of her husband's favorite polo pony. Family crests, monograms, and fantastic designs are also being used.

Several clever painters are making a small fortune decorating women's thumb nails with appropriate sketches. One woman is said to have the initials of her four different husbands.

Gasoline Usage Registers Increase

TULSA, Oct. 3.—At the meeting here of the Oklahoma division of the Independent Petroleum Association of America, Wirt Franklin, President of the association, called attention to the fact that in the first seven months of 1930 the consumption of gasoline in the United States showed an increase of 19,500,000 barrels over the same period of 1929. In the first three months of 1930

the domestic demand for gasoline showed a sharp increase over 1929, but beginning with April of this year there has been a slowing down in the increase over 1929.

Much publicity has been given to this slowing down in gasoline demand although business in many lines has not shown the same increase this summer as in 1929. For the year 1929 there was increase over 1827 in domestic gasoline consumption of 10.7 per cent while 1929 showed an increase of 13.2 per cent over 1927 in domestic gasoline consumption of 9.3 per cent for the first seven months of 1930 over the same period of 1929 is only slightly less than the average increase for the last several years.

This unflinching increase in the domestic consumption of gasoline, that has averaged about 10 per cent a year, is due almost entirely to the increase in the registration of motor vehicles. This increase in motor vehicle registration has averaged over 1,750,000 a year for the last five years.

Franklin also called attention to the exports of gasoline for the first seven months of this year, 39,763,000 barrels, compared with 35,036,000 barrels in 1929. This is an increase of 13 per cent over the same period last year.

BLACK-DRAUGHT LONG IN USE

Georgia Lady Tells of Buying Her First Package of This Medicine in 1876.

Gainesville, Ga.—Theford's Black-Draught has been in use for the relief of constipation, indigestion and biliousness, for nearly one hundred years, and many people tell of having taken it, when needed, all their lives.

Mrs. M. C. Barron, of 64 West Myrtle Street, this city, recalls her first use of Black-Draught, fifty-three years ago.

"When I lived in Forsythe, Ga., in 1876," says Mrs. Barron, "I bought my first Black-Draught at Mr. Jim Jay's store. He was selling it, and some one in the store recommended it to me for biliousness, and as I was having trouble and needed a purgative, I bought it.

"If I get constipated, I have headaches and feel so tired and sluggish, and such a bad taste in my mouth. But after I take a few doses of Black-Draught I get all right.

"In all these years, I have never found a better medicine of the kind. I am satisfied, so why change? I recommend it to old and young."
