

NEW ORGANIZATION TO GIVE HORSE LAUGH TO SKEPTICS OF IDEA THAT THE TRINITY RIVER IS NAVIGABLE

By THOMAS C. CLUCK, United Press Staff Correspondent.

DALLAS, Texas, Oct. 17. (UP).—The Trinity river is navigable, some say.

Which inspires an indulgent but scornful horse laugh from a persistent contingent of skeptics.

"Boats on that?" and a majestic scorn is compressed into the gesture embracing the sluggish, narrow, muddy and for most part filthy stream which meanders an erratic course through east Texas and empties into Galveston bay.

The Trinity River Canal association, with offices in Fort Worth, has settled down to a business-like process of proving the error springs from a lack of vision and foresight.

Its objective is a canal of 9-foot depth, obtained by a series of locks and dams, from Fort Worth and Dallas to a connection with the Intracoastal canal in Galveston bay, a distance of 570 miles.

A preliminary survey of the Trinity from Fort Worth and Dallas was authorized by congress in the rivers and harbors act approved by the president on July 6, 1930.

The elevation of the river bed at Fort Worth is 504 feet, and the banks are relatively high and stable, of firm, black earth.

While Texas was yet a republic the question of navigation of the Trinity river arose, and it has provoked consistent controversy since that time.

The Scoto Belle which steamed along the stream in 1836 is the first known vessel to navigate the Trinity. In the distant 50's a great amount of cotton was handled on its waters in preference to the ox wagon teams to Jefferson and Galveston.

At the instance of proponents of navigation, United States engineers made a survey of the river in 1853, saying that it was the most-navigable stream in Texas on account of its high banks. The movement gained considerable headway, and navigation was a leading topic in Dallas up to the coming of the H. & T. C. railroad in the 70's.

It was revived later, and in 1891 the Trinity River Navigation company was organized and a snag boat put to work on the river. The M. A. Harvey Jr. was bought in 1893 in Mermonteau, La., and was brought to Dallas. Perhaps the most spectacular event in Texas navigation history was its arrival.

In a speech in congress in 1911, Senator Morris Sheppard gave the names of 100 steam boats which operated on every section of the Trinity from its mouth to Dallas before the advent of the iron horse.

In 1902 congress made the first appropriation for work on the Trinity, and a survey was started. After a decade it lagged and the navigation association revived the work by promotion and purchasing the Commodore Duncan and sailed her up the river in 1914. The movement died a slow death, partly due to the influence of the World war, and in 1922 congress formally abandoned the project.

In May, 1929, Dr. J. B. Cranfill of Dallas, an ardent supporter of the movement over half a century, made a trip to Washington in the interest of it, and just at the close of last year he and John M. Fouts, general manager of the present association, and John W. Carpenter, its president, again went to Washington to appear before the National Rivers and Harbors Congress and government engineers.

Congress appropriated $20,000 for a re-survey of the Trinity.

Six Hundred Miles Per Hour?

Maurice Poirier, left, an inventor of Burbank, Calif., is shown here with the model of a rocket plane which he hopes will attain a speed of 600 miles an hour. Both the model and the full-sized ship, which Poirier plans to build soon, will be powered by the fireworks spouting from the tubes in the tail, but the big plane will have a small gasoline motor for taking off and landing. The inventor and his assistant, Franklin Wallace, are shown here charging the model for an experimental flight.

TIAA CLASHES THIS WEEK TO PROVE WHO CAN AND WHO CANNOT STAY IN THE FAST GOING; THREE ON THE TOP

SAN MARCOS, Oct. 17. (AP)—San Marcos teachers, West Texas teachers and East Texas teachers were this week stacked at the top of the Texas Intercollegiate Athletic association as the leaders in the 1930 grid race.

San Marcos, uncrowned champs of 1929, seemed to have a slightly tighter hold on first than the newcomers, East and West Texas, if seniority rights are recognized in football races. West Texas replaced Abilene Christian college by taking a 16 to 7 game from the Wildcats and East Texas just shoved in and made its own niche at the top by downing the Stephen F. Austin Teachers college Lumberjacks, 13 to 0. Both came as upsets.

At Canyon a flashing young quarter-back by the name of Powell who pushed over two touchdowns to make a Buffalo win possible was the shining light in the West Texas win.

Two of the leaders, East and West Texas, are billed to meet Friday night under the arches at Canyon in what is expected to be one of the feature affairs of the conference schedule. It at least will unplug the top rung. San Marcos teachers meet Abilene Christian college Saturday in Abilene.

North Texas of Denton, appearing under the lights Friday evening at Georgetown, failed to live up to advance notice and was held to a 13-13 draw by the Southwestern university Pirates, a team considered weaker than the 1929 Pirate eleven. Southwestern chalked up 17 first down to the Eagle's four.

Daniel Baker college was badly beaten by Loyola of the South Saturday in New Orleans. Loyola plastered a 39 to 0 defeat on the Hill Billies.

Sul Ross continued to drop by one point its well played football games. St. Mary's university of San Antonio beat the Lobos to the finish, 19 to 18. Two weeks before Schreiner beat them out 7 to 6. The complete TIAA schedule for the week:

October 17
East Texas vs. West Texas at Canyon (night game).
Trinity vs. North Texas at Denton.
Daniel Baker vs. Simmons at Abilene (night).
October 18
McMurry vs. Sul Ross at Big Spring.
San Marcos Teachers vs. A. C. C. at Abilene.
Oklahoma Teachers vs. Sam Houston at Huntsville.
Texas A & I vs. Rice Team B at Houston.
John Tarleton vs. Stephen F. Austin at Nacogdoches.

BIG WOLF KILLED
WASHBURN, Wis.—Held in the steel jaws of a trap by two toes of one forefoot, "Big Lupe" giant Bay field county wolf that ranged the surrounding countryside for years finally met death when a rifle bullet fired by the owner of the trap pierced his brain. "Big Lupe" measured six feet from nose to hind paws and weighed 150 pounds.

To aid in flying and landing at night, a German aviator has installed powerful headlights on the front of his airplane fuselage.

BULLDOGS GO INTO COLORADO GAME FLANKED BY OPTIMISM

STUDENT BODY IS EXPECTING GOOD BATTLE TODAY

Injured men, a lotta pen, a suddenly-gone-wild student body still hot from the bon fire last night that burned everything but Mr. Lackey's pants, and a collection of hungry Wolves from Colorado—all this mixed into a heterogeneous mass and spinning around like a fan.

Yelling students in assembly hall, the blare of the high school band, the massed pep squad, speeches!—That was the aspect of the high school this morning as everyone waited on tip toe for the moment when discipline should let up and allow students to flock to Lackey field for the 3:30 grid game with the Colorado team of Coach Harry Taylor.

Pessimism was drowned in enthusiastic racket. Stress was placed by speakers on the possibility of a downing the weight and speed of the invaders. Sheer combativeness is the key to bursting open the Colorado machine, the student body was told. The Midland team, possibly the best condition one in the district shuffle, awakened this morning to find the weather made to order. Fight, and fight alone was presaged by the snappy smell in the cool breeze.

More than 100 automobiles were parked around the campus curbing last night when freshmen began bumping up the fuel for the fire that soon mounted high. A funnel dirge for Colorado went up and the band started playing. An emotion-madened student body, augmented by the throats of town supporters, made the sector sound like a reunion of an eleemosynary colony.

Quite the smoothest running organization at usual times, the high school this morning was the capital of bedlam when the superintendent turned the band and pep squad loose on their house-wrecking tactics.

The school showed 27 men that sweat and chill under the purple and gold that it was behind the team and expected to win, odds or no odds.

Lamesa Man Makes Money on Poultry

LAMESA, Oct. 17. B. F. Painter, who lives 12 miles southwest of Lamesa, believes in diversified farming. He has a flock of 400 White Leg-horn hens, on which he has kept books, and he says they have paid him $362.50 net profit within the past two months. He is planning to expand his poultry plant, and is thinking of establishing an egg route in the city of Lamesa, giving his customers fresh eggs daily. Painter is going strong on dairy products too. He has just purchased ten heifers which will be producing by next spring, and he expects to sell milk to the milk plant here. Mrs. Painter has canned fruit, vegetables and meats, that were canned as far back as 1919, and Painter says he and his wife bought one of the five pressure cookers that was sold in Dawson county, in the year 1919. According to Painter, farmers are going to have to get away from cotton for a money crop and raise their living at home, if they hope to get along. If more farmers were diversifying as the Painter's care, no doubt there would not have to be as much farm relief.

Valley Grapefruit Industry Growing

BROWNSVILLE, Texas, Oct. 17. (P)—The grapefruit industry of the Lower Rio Grande valley, started only a dozen years ago, promises to be the greatest in the world in number of trees in orchards by the end of 1931. This was revealed in the citrus census completed recently by the department of agriculture, and in estimates of valley plantings.

The census shows that the Lower Rio Grande valley had a total of 6,001,001 citrus trees of all kinds on April 1 of this year. Of this number 4,201,650 were grapefruit trees. During the present season the Lower Rio Grande valley will plant approximately 1,500,000 additional citrus trees, and 1,250,000 of this number will be grapefruit trees, bringing the total to 5,451,650. By the end of 1931 an additional 650,000 grapefruit trees will have been planted, bringing the total grapefruit trees in the valley to 6,101,650.

The state of Florida has approximately 5,600,000 bearing grapefruit trees, and 400,000 non-bearing trees, most of which are replacements. Plantings in Florida have been at a standstill for several years with the exception of replacements, and the 6,000,000 figure of that state is not expected to vary greatly by the end of 1931.

DANISH FARMER LEARNED

CANYON, Texas, Oct. 17. (P)—The farmer in Denmark is the best read farmer in the world, according to Professor Frank R. Phillips, head of the agriculture department of the West Texas Teachers college. Phillips attributes the success of the cooperative marketing movement in Denmark to the fact that the farmers are so well read, and to the work of the Danish schools. Phillips has made an intensive study of the situation in Denmark.

PREFERS FLYING

HOLLYWOOD.—Al Wilson makes his living by stunt flying. All day long he thrills thousands with his loops, dives, and climbs in the air. And never once has he had a serious accident. And so he prefers flying to being home on farm land. While sound asleep recently he tumbled out of bed and dislocated two vertebrae, which accounts for his preference.
