Bandits Slug Dallas Cashier and Escape With $17,000

THREAT ON FORT WORTH BANK FAILS

Old Woman Attempts Holdup; Nitro Is Sweet Milk

DALLAS, Oct. 20. (UP).—B. W. Moore, cashier of the Union Terminal company of Dallas, was slugged and robbed of a satchel reported to have contained $17,000 in the downtown district today.

Four men drove alongside of Moore and his police guard, Charles H. Murray. One stayed in a large sedan and the other three leaped out as Moore reached a street corner. One hit the policeman over the head and grabbed his pistol. Another slugged Moore and his companion, having disposed of the officer, snatched the satchel.

The bandits leaped in the car which sped eastward. Murray's head was badly bruised and Moore sustained a gash on the head which was not serious.

FORT WORTH, Oct. 20. (UP).—A gray haired woman about 60 years of age walked into the Union Bank and Trust company shortly after it opened this morning and demanded $3,000 on a threat to blow up the bank if she didn't get it.

A few minutes later she was seized bodily by Policeman H. G. Dollar and Dan Lydick, president of the bank, while a note was made out for her to sign.

The bottle which she claimed held nitro glycerin was taken away from her. It later developed to be a bottle of sweet milk and coppers.

High School Grid Squadman Get Feed

High school football men will be allowed to break over training "a little" tonight when they get a feed at the Scharbauer hotel coffee shop, "just to take the taste of Wolves meat out of their mouths," it was announced at the high school this morning.

The men were promised the feed against the contingency of beating Colorado Friday. When they held the Wolves eleven to a scoreless tie, it was felt they won a moral victory, as they were outweighed more than 20 pounds to the man.

Miss Hopper—Chipper Flapper

With grace that many a debutante could envy, Edna Wallace Hopper, one of the perennial flappers, took a few trick steps with her dancing partner just to show how little she'd changed when she arrived at New York aboard a liner. The partner, who is less than half her age, is M. Grip, of Paris, and they have just filled a year of theatrical engagements abroad. Miss Hopper, who confessed to 62 summer in 1924, hasn't had a birthday since.

MAN LODGED IN JAIL; IS SAID TO BE VIOLENT

George Locke, Detroit racing stable owner, was taken from the Midland General hospital this morning and placed in solitary confinement at the county jail when he grew violent and broke out windows with the nozzle of a fire hose.

Cause for the man's condition was not given, a period of observance being required in such cases. He was said to have been dangerous while affected by the peculiar spells and quite harmless at other moments. He was brought to the hospital Sunday evening.

Eugene Franklin, negro porter of the hospital assisted Chief of Police Lee Haynes in taking the man into custody, going into the room and taking hold of the man after the hospital had asked for police assistance. The two men carried Locke to jail, where he was to be released this afternoon or night in time to catch a train for Detroit. Locke's brother goes with him on the trip.

The brothers have been in Mexico and Cuba, it is understood, watching their horses run. They registered at a tourist camp in East Midland upon reaching here Sunday.

Ritz Breaks Records With Noted Picture

War, stripped of its last vestige of glamor, and brought with stark realism to the screen is the offering of "All Quiet on the Western Front," Ritz theatre attraction.

Nationalism fades from the mind of the theatre goer as the horror of scenes falls on the screen like on a distant horizon. One finds himself cheered by the German lad who kills his enemy. No one picks sides.

The picture shows the war from the German angle for the first time. A company of young lads is followed through the whole period of war. Death stalks the company and holds a converse with almost every man. The numbness produced by the war makes skeptics of the young man, causing them to feel conviction that no one knows why the war is being fought.

The Ritz broke all house records for attendance Sunday. Unfortunately, one reel of the picture burned last night, but a replacement was being hurried to Midland by plane in order to fill in for the evening. Manager Bonner said it would arrive in time for the "first show" tonight.

The picture, adapted from the great seller of the same name, will be shown today and Tuesday.

Red Leader Seized in Riot

For the first time, a Communist demonstration was carried through the doors of New York's City Hall. Mayor Walker, presiding over a meeting of the Board of Estimate, was denounced by a Communist as "a grafting Tammany politician and a crook," and the Red delegation was banished unceremoniously into the plaza, where rioting already had been in progress. There scores were injured by flying clubs and fists, and sixteen were arrested. The above photo shows the arrest of two women Communists and one of their leaders, J. Louis Engdahl, Communist candidate for Lieutenant Governor of New York State.

MILWAUKEE, Wis., Oct. 20. (UP).—Blue is the most attractive color to men, while women show preference for "warm" colors in merchandise and colored advertisements, Ferdinand Aumueller, Milwaukee, told delegates to the 13th annual convention of the International Direct Mail Advertising association.

Aumueller emphasized the difference in color preferences of the sexes in revealing the results of personal tests. He said 44 per cent of all men chose blue as the color they liked best in all fields of purchase including clothes and automobiles. Red was the next preference and purple third.

Red headed the list for women followed by purple, blue, green, orange and yellow.

FLAPPER FANNY SAYS!

"Another amendment provides the field for the investment of the permanent university funds. Under the existing law these funds can only be invested in state or national bonds.

"The remaining two amendments are those dealing with the length of the regular sessions of the legislature and with compensation of its members. One of these amendments increases the length of the present 60 days regular session of the legislature to 120 days and provides that the first 30 days of this session shall be given over to the introduction of bills, the second 30 days to the consideration of these bills by committees and the remainder of the session to the consideration of the legislature in open session. It is provided, however, that this order of procedure can be changed as desired by a four-fifths vote of the members.

PROBLEMS OF EMPIRE

Texas in area and natural resources often has been called, and rightly, an empire. It is the coming empire State, and within a generation will be admittedly a leading Commonwealth in the Nation.

But this coming leadership demands that those who control the destiny of the State should have vision and foresight sufficient to plan in a large way a program as a guide for action in later years.

Texas has enormous natural wealth, but the wealth from the production of it enriches outsiders; little remains within the State. It has much capital in its financial centers, but comparatively little of it is invested in Texan industries.

Through ignorance the fertile lands of Texas are declining in fertility because of erosion and a one-crop system; its magnificent forests have been shamelessly wasted and practically no attempts made to reforest cut-down areas suited only to timber.

The best wealth of Texas consists of the energy and brain capacity of its people. Among these is much dormant talent that should have opportunity for expression in action.

What Texas needs is a definite program set for the younger generation to accomplish in the next twenty-five years. The resources of Texas should enrich Texas and Texans. Its farming population should own their lands, not be tenants in a condition quite like serfdom.

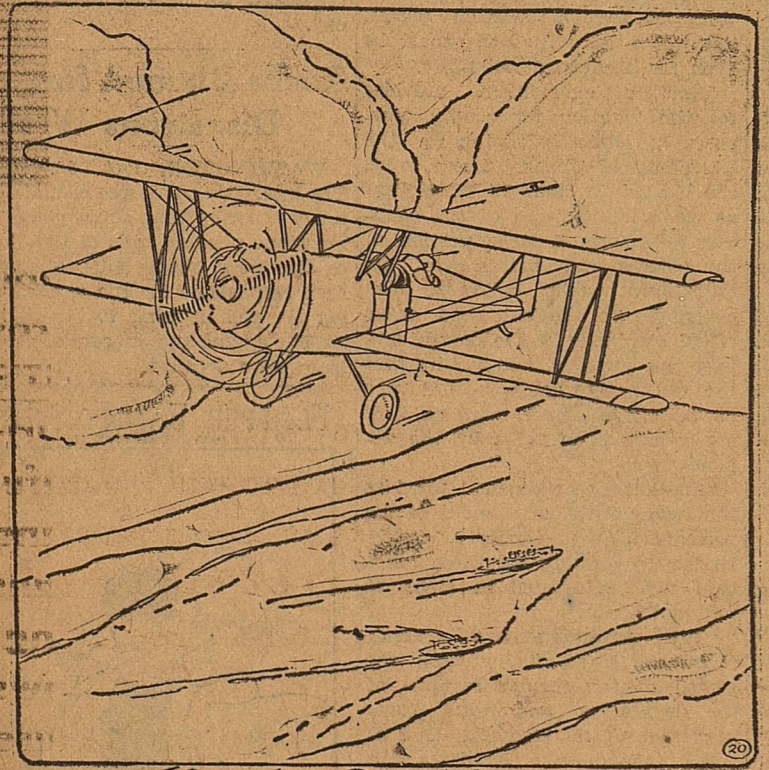

Texas needs local Chambers of Commerce, civic improvement societies and city planning. It needs a new Constitution, a reorganized government, wise legislators who can think in terms of an empire State.

THE CASE OF MR. DIAMOND

The excitement occasioned by the first news of Mr. "Legs" Diamond's shooting having subsided, there is something infinitely boring about the subsequent daily accounts of the efforts of the New York police to run to earth his assailants.

If the nation did not already know that its biggest cities are helpless before their underworlds this might be interesting. But that knowledge is all but universal, and the Diamond case offers nothing new on it.

ERRORGRAMS

There are at least four mistakes in the above picture. They may pertain to grammar, history, etiquette, drawing or whatnot. See if you can find them. Then look at the scramble by switching the letters around.

Grace yourself for each or the mistakes you find, and 20 for the word if you unscramble it. Today, on back page, we'll explain the mistakes and tell you the word. Then you can see how near a hundred you bat.

Let's Keep This Giant Wide Awake!

Jack Diamond First Won Power in Underworld as Ally of Arnold Rothstein

EDITORS: This is the second of a series of three timely articles on the life of Jack (Legs) Diamond's notorious New York racketeer.

By GENE COHN, NEA Service Writer.

NEW YORK, Oct. 20. — Even a Jack can hope to beat a King! It has happened — in poker. But the cards had to be precisely arranged and dealt for this particular Jack to be high.

Jack "Legs" Diamond had to get a few breaks to help him along. To be sure, he had a good record in evil environs—a dozen arrests or so for robberies and assaults, and never a conviction. A sly cat, indeed, in a rat's world!

However, there already was a king. One Arnold Rothstein, gambler, racketeer, crook, financier of the half-world. Rothstein had made millions. And along came a circumstance that projected Diamond from his "small time" operations into a world of "big shots."

Rothstein had heard of Diamond. And challengers as well as enemies were closing in on Rothstein. Diamond, after a long spell in the hospital and a narrow escape from death, had left Bellevue and returned to gangdom. This was some three years ago. And the rise of "Legs" as a "big shot" dates from that time.

DIAMOND'S BIG START CAME WITH ROTHSTEIN The circumstances were something like this: Diamond had encountered Rothstein as early as 1922. What may have been their indirect relationships in the intervening years is not known.

But one day two tough guys came drifting in from Philadelphia. They were after big money and they had a desperate scheme. They boldly walked in on the "biggest money" in the underworld — Arnold Rothstein himself, and informed him that the "kidnap" stunt was about to be worked on him. That is, he would be abducted and held for heavy ransom.

Rothstein thought it about time to strengthen his bodyguard. And within a short time, the world traveled that Rothstein had made Jack a "business assistant". This was prestige, indeed! To say nothing of the opportunities afforded to get an education at the hands of an old master. Jack decided to give his brother an opportunity to listen in on the lessons. So Eddie Diamond was also hired.

The other two lieutenants surrounding Rothstein were "Fatty" Walsh, who took his "hide" last winter in a Florida gambling resort, and "Bugs" Moran, whose body was found in a Jersey swamp.

Apparently Jack learned "plenty". He met the city officials with whom Rothstein was chummy at times; he was seen where Rothstein was seen. And the smell of underworld power became familiar to his nostrils. He began to get delusions of grandeur.

He actually began to ape the manners and habits of his superior. And one slushy night in early winter, "Fatty" and "Bugs" were set upon mysteriously and beaten into unconsciousness. Had they been about to hint something to the "big boss"? Certainly they had a suspicion that the ambitious Cassius to this Caesar had something to do with it. For they fought with Diamond and they quit Rothstein cold. The plot began to thicken and boil over.

Marion Roberts, upper left, New York show girl and sweetheart of Jack (Legs) Diamond, was in tears as she left the District Attorney's office after being questioned regarding her knowledge of the shooting of the racketeer. Another important figure in the case, John Ginsberg, manager of the Hotel Monticello, is shown upper right. Lower picture shows John Hughes, left, bellboy at the Hotel Monticello, and Thomas Marshall, day clerk, who were held as witnesses in the shooting of Diamond.

Eddie, hit hard by his tubercular ailment, went to Colorado. And one day in Denver he was waylaid and almost done to death. The story trickled back to Broadway that it was "Bugs" Moran and his pals who figured in the attack. And "Bugs" paid for his moment of revenge. His bullet riddled body was found by a Jersey roadside. And "Fatty" was stopped as quickly as the roulette wheel he had been watching.

Meanwhile, Rothstein came to realize that he had as an underling a fellow with as many ambitions as his own. The day came when the Jack dared to challenge the King!

GUNMEN QUARRELED AMONG THEMSELVES

An amusing "inside" story is told of this quarrel. With all his wealth and power Rothstein had the reputation of a "chiseler". He would wager with friends on "sure things"—and win, of course. The tale goes that one of the Rothstein bodyguards was arrested in connection with a drug peddling case. And Rothstein, who played many games, was said to have caused the arrest so that he could get the commission on the bail.

It was on this instance of super-chiseling that Diamond is said to have affronted his chief. They parted in bad blood. Small wonder, then, that when Rothstein was slain the police called in Diamond to explain what he had been about on the night of that mysterious slaying. While it's quite unlikely that Diamond had anything to do with the Rothstein murder—still, what a break! He had the inside information on the booze, drug, gambling and political situation.

Daily Washington Letter By Rodney Dutcher

Widespread Application of the Shorter Working Day and Shorting Working Week Seen as Outcome of Extensive Unemployment Situation—Hours Have Decreased 10 Per cent Since 1913

WASHINGTON, Oct. 20. — The exact effect of the business depression and resultant unemployment upon the wages and working hours of labor cannot be surveyed until the depression is over, but experts on labor conditions report that there have been marked changes in the previous trends both as to hourly wages and hours.

Prior to the past year there was a slight but steady average increase in hourly wages which now appears to have been replaced by a corresponding decrease.

There was also a small gradual decrease in working hours and the trend in that direction has been accelerated.

What will happen to wage scales in the near future remains a matter of speculation, although consensus of opinion is that there will be no more than a negligible change. But one net effect of the extensive unemployment situation, it seems certain, will be a much more widespread application of the shorter working day and shorter working week.

Lately, the five-day week and the six-hour day have been more than ever discussed as a partial remedy for unemployment and although there will be no general adoption of any such readjustment process it is conceded that the movement in that direction is bound to be somewhat more rapid.

Show Wage Trend

The trend of wages and hours for union labor up to May, 1929, is shown in the most recent compilations of the Bureau of Labor Statistics. Although there was considerable unemployment in the winter of 1928-1929, the period most comprehensively covered by the bureau's studies fell in the so-called peak period of prosperity.

There have been tabulated 4271 union scale quotations for 1929 for which there are comparable data for 1928. Of these 3143 showed no change either in wage rates or hours.

There were 976 instances of increasing in hourly wage rates as against only 69 instances of reduction. There were 893 cases of increases in wage rates per week as against 146 cases of reduction. One section of the survey covers 786,000 members of labor unions in 67 important industrial cities. The groups include bakers, building trades workers, chauffeurs and teamsters, granite and stone workers, laundry workers, linemen, longshoremen and printers.

The average wage per hour for all trades considered increased from $1.197 in 1928 to $1.204 in 1929. The largest increase in wages for any group was only 2.6 per cent, for the bakers.

The decrease in working hours averaged only one-tenth of an hour, but that was a continuation of the previous steady downward movement, totaling almost a 10 per cent decrease since 1913.

Average hours per full-time week were 44.8 hours for 1929. Seventeen per cent of the workers covered were found to have working weeks of 40 hours or less and only nine per cent had a working week of more than 48 hours.

Fewer Hours for Builders The building trades were found to show a general tendency toward the five-day week with 68 and 65 per cent of painters and plasterers, respectively, working the short week. Only a very small percentage of the other trades reported any five-day week.

Some of the increases from pre-war weekly wages of 1913 were Reserves the right to "quack" about everything without taking a stand on anything.

I get a lot of kick out of reading present day business maxims. A fellow who was advocating chamber of commerce membership said to a merchant, "Remember the banana. Every time it leaves the bunch it gets skinned."

And then there was the employee of the Lubbock mattress factory who got canned for lying down on the job.

And now I hear that Kenneth Ambrose thinks all of this birthday palaver is a collusion between me and Mrs. Ambrose to keep him reminded of her birthday.

What chance do I stand to forget the date when I read it in the paper every evening? Kenneth asked the editor. All of which proves that Kenneth reads my column every day.

There are some big things to be celebrated this month, including the Navy week maneuvers, the 10-year celebration of Houston's harbor and such things; but the big thing is Midland, as I see it, is the celebration of my birthday, October 23.

Think back over your period of residence in Midland and see if you know of anything that has been as important for a year as the Town Quack, at least in his own opinion. Why, then, shouldn't his first birthday be celebrated by the citizenship? Write me a letter.

If some of you fellows about like Bob Blevins and L. P. Boone don't quit calling the editor "Quack", he's going to make trouble for me. I believe he secretly enjoys the compliment but he can't afford to let me know it, and some of these days he may forget himself and put me on probation or something.

I saw Tom Mix as he passed through the lobby of the Scharbauer Saturday night and would like to have been in on the interview with him. He surely looked the part of the cowboy hero, all right. I would like to describe him to you. He has the poise of a natural horseman like Clay Floyd, but is heavier, Clay being built more on the lines of the international type of polo player. He has the upright walk of Ab Cooksey but looks more like an Indian than an Irishman. He has the steady gaze of Foy Proctor but is a little more on the show type, yet not as much as the beef type as Roy Parks, Timberline Floyd, Spence Jowell or Allen Connell. In fact, I can't think of a local cowboy that is built like Tom, but anyway he looked the part.

shown as follows: Bakers 160 per cent, bricklayers 129, carpenters 143, hod carriers 173, painters 148, chauffeurs 99, teamsters 147, longshoremen 90, newspaper compositors 108, pressmen 126, stereotypers 96.

The greatest increase listed since 1913 is 198 per cent for steam and sprinkler fitters' helpers in the building trades, which means that that group received practically three times as much per hour in 1929 as in 1913.

The average union worker, on the basis of the bureau's statistics, worked only 91.5 hours in 1929 for every 100 hours of work in 1913. He received $2.40 on a weekly basis for every dollar earned in 1913 and on the basis of wages per hour he received $2.62 for each 1913 wage dollar.

According to the U. S. Bureau of Standards, tungsten arcs under high pressure of inert gas have been raised for more than 5000 degrees Fahrenheit.

Fall Measure of Fashion

There is a new chic in fullness, used in the original manner of new gowns. Left: On a dark green morning ensemble, Jean Patou shows a novel basque effect at the front of the dress only. Right: A fine gold lace, posed over a green velvet slip, is given a basque movement by Patou that is short but jauntily flaring across the front, but pointed in the back to reach clear to the hem of the skirt. There is no fullness over the hips.

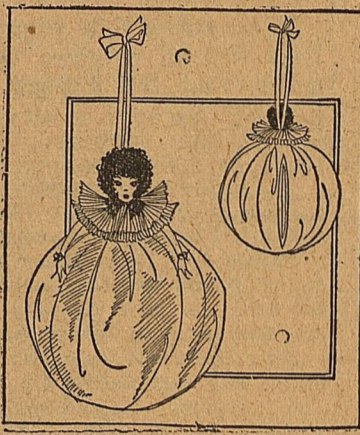

By JEAN PATOU NEA Service Writer PARIS, Oct. 20.—The use of fullness as a decorative medium is to be found in practically every phase of the present mode under various guises. The basque is perhaps the most typical expression of the season's style, and basque effects can be traced throughout every department, from sports clothes to the more elaborate evening gowns. It is perhaps in the evening mode that the basque is most successful and becoming. Here the elongated skirt and fitted hipline need a softening medium. It is also a fashion feature that needs careful study. When judiciously used, it imparts a look of airiness and lightness to a gown. Modern Basque Is Short Another point to be remembered when making use of the basque is that any trimming placed near the hipline is apt to widen the silhouette. That is why the modern basque is an abbreviated affair, leaving a length of skirt which gives that long, flowing line demanded in modern clothes.

The bias cut of the modern basque is another point that makes it even more supple. I have also found by experience that best effects are obtained—in evening gowns, at any rate—by carrying the basque to a tapering point down to the hem of the skirt at the back. A principle to be borne in mind also is that any hint of fullness on the hips must be studiously avoided. On daytime clothes, where heavier fabrics are used, the basque is often indicated by a movement placed either at the front or back of the model.

MAKE IT YOURSELF.

An amusing and yet highly useful Christmas gift for feminine friends is the doll-baby laundry bag. It suffices for a real laundry bag for little girls and is an excellent soiled handkerchief and lingerie bag for older ones.

To make the bag, get a doll's head, attached to shoulders and limp little arms. Take a yard of delicate silk or pretty wash material in the color of the recipient's bedroom. Cut off enough of the material to make a double ruffle frill around the doll's neck and for narrow string by which to hang it up. Double the material left, round up the bottom, finish a slit down the back and French seam the bottom and rounding sides. Run an elastic through the top and slide the finished bag up onto the doll baby's neck, under the frill. This allows for removing the bag for frequent laundering. You can make the same bag with a little sailor boy's head and darker material and little boys will like it very much indeed.

"The old time watch-word—'Let the Buyer Beware' has given way to the modern slogan of confidence 'Buy in Safety', and this miracle was wrought by the honesty of manufacture which characterizes every fine American product. A notable example of the modern manufacturers' constant desire to give the public the best is your use of the Ultra Violet Ray in the 'Toasting' of LUCKY STRIKE tobaccos. M'CAMHEY, BIG LAKE AND CRANE MAY LOSE WINS THIS YEAR

Intersectional Football No Longer an 'Exhibition Game'

COMMITTEE MAKES OUT CHARGES, REPORTED

Recommendation that three high schools be reported for alleged violation of football eligibility rules was made Saturday by the district inter-scholastic athletic committee that met at Fort Stockton.

The committee voted to recommend to the state committee at Austin that McCamey be suspended from the league in football for two years, that Crane be given one week in which to file eligibility blanks or be suspended for a year and that Big Lake be suspended for the remainder of the year, also that all games played by Crane to date be forfeited, according to Head Coach L. K. Barry of the Midland high school, who said he received this information by telephone from Murray H. Fly, superintendent of schools in Odessa and a member of the district committee.

According to Barry, it has been charged that not only has McCamey played ineligible men transferred

The above is a chart showing the long trips made by football teams participating in some of the major intersections clashes this fall. Dartmouth College in New Hampshire makes the longest jump, traveling to Palo Alto, Calif., to meet Stanford University on Nov. 20. Little St. Mary's College in California, with a long trek across country to New York to meet Fordham, Nov. 15, may claim the second longest trip.

FOOTBALL MAKING JOLLY OLD U. S. SMALLER

By L. S. (Larry) MacPHAIL, National Football Referee

There was a time when the East was all wrapped up in notion that the football sun not only rose but also set along the Atlantic seaboard. That was only a few years ago.

Then Iowa journeyed east to New Haven; Jimmy Phelan took a fast-moving Purdue machine to Cambridge; Notre Dame made annual pilgrimages that ambushed the Army and sank the Navy, The elite East sat up in wonderment.

Three Georgia victories over Yale in the last four seasons are proof that the South is up and coming in a football way. When Stanford routed the Army, and Southern California swamped Carnegie Tech and Pittsburgh last fall, even the most partisan of eastern supporters acknowledged the strength of the Coast elevens.

Thus it has been firmly established that intersectional games—clashes between teams from different geographical sections—are fine for football. The 1930 season, with more than 30 of these contests played or scheduled to be played on the remaining Saturdays, should exceed all others in point of intersectional interest. It is true that they do not provide the intense rivalry of traditional opponents, but as a counterbalance there is the assistance given in breaking down sectional prejudices and in cementing the football world into one group.

More color and interest will attend the games this fall because they are scheduled for the regular season while the contesting elevens are in stride. The majority of the past intersectional games have been staged as post-season games late in December or in January, with the result that they have been little more than exhibitions. To expect a team to retain its playing edge for six weeks after the season closes, with the weather of such nature as to prevent out-of-door practice in many sections, is impossible. The contests this fall played throughout the regular season, therefore, will be a much better test of strength of both the teams and sections.

While the increase in the number of intersectional games will make possible a closer estimate of the relative merits of the game as played in the different sections, they hardly will determine a "national champion." While there may be a lot of talk in the next few months about a national champion, a national football championship still remains a dream.

The Four Horsemen of Notre Dame in 1924 made a great record. If ever a team had a right to be called national champions, that Notre Dame outfit did. But the Four Horsemen did not play a single team that was champion of its own section.

The major intersectional contests scheduled for this fall are:

- October 18: Florida at Chicago. Carnegie Tech at Notre Dame. Pennsylvania at Wisconsin.
- October 25: Notre Dame at Pittsburgh. Indiana at Southern Methodist. Mississippi at Chicago.
- November 1: Princeton at Chicago. Pittsburgh at Nebraska. Kansas City at Pennsylvania.
- November 8: Michigan at Harvard. Illinois vs. Army at New York. Ohio State vs. Navy at Baltimore. Notre Dame at Pennsylvania. Georgia at New York University. Fordham at Detroit.
- November 15: St. Mary's (Calif.) vs. Fordham at New York. Penn State at Iowa. Pittsburgh at Ohio State. Southern Methodist at Navy. Georgia Tech at Pennsylvania.
- November 27 (A. M.): Oregon State vs. West Virginia at Chicago.
- November 29: Georgetown at Detroit. Army vs. Notre Dame at Chicago. Dartmouth at Stanford. Maryland at Vanderbilt.

December 6: Notre Dame at S. California. Detroit at Loyola (New Orleans).

from Eastland, where Coach Parks of McCamey coached last year, and graduates of Junction high, but that transfer blanks, up to Saturday, had not been filed on those men who participated in several games.

It was also said to have been charged that Allen, the present captain of the Eastland team, played with McCamey against Big Spring in the opening game of the season. The wife of another transfer from Eastland, it is said, was employed as a stenographer by a schoolman at McCamey.

Action was taken against Crane for failure to file information about players with the proper authorities within the district. Further action may be taken when eligibility blanks are filed, Barry said.

Suspension of Big Lake, he said, comes as the result of playing men in the old fields who were reported to have not been enrolled in the school.

Beautiful Photography Puts Over 'The Big Trail'

By DAN THOMAS, NEA Service Writer.

HOLLYWOOD, Oct. 20.—"I know this will be a good picture because no film with as many horses and cattle in it as this has could help being good."

That's what Guinn William spoke into the microphone as he was entering the Chinese Theater for the world premiere of "The Big Trail." And "Big Boy" slammed the nail right on the head—except that he forgot to mention the beautiful photography.

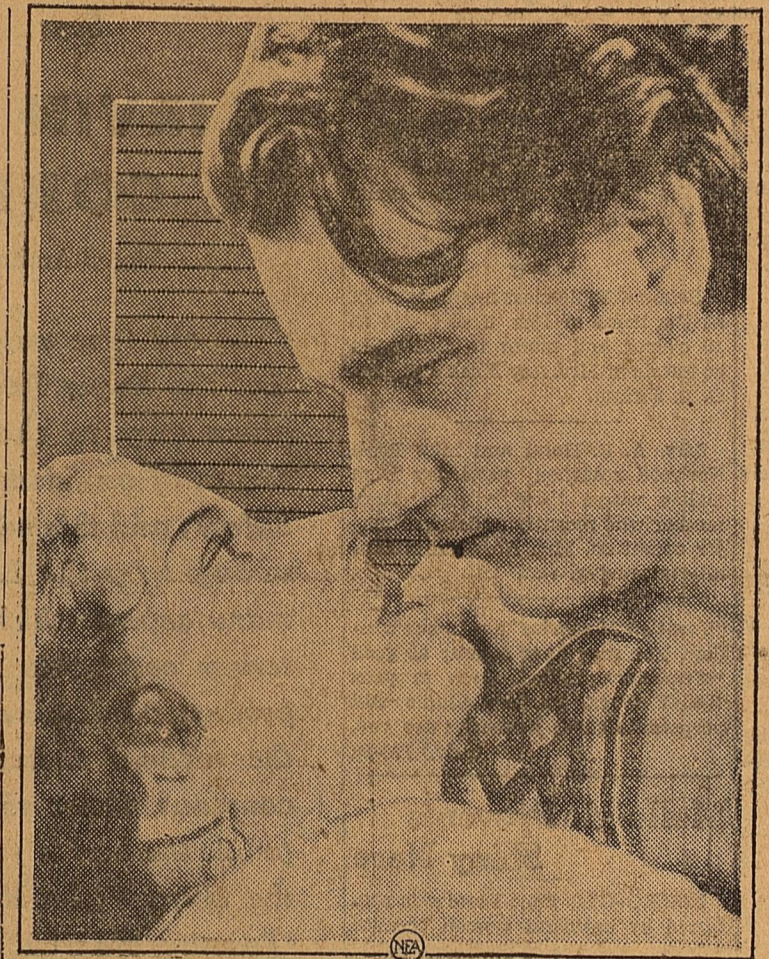

If we were asked to name the stars of "The Big Trail" we would reply, "The cameraman." But since we haven't been asked, we'll mention the fact anyway. The photography in this film is more beautiful than any other seen in these parts for a long time. And the picture is not lacking in spectacle either. Some of the scenes of the long wagon train trekking across the desert of the frontiersmen trying to get their horses, wagons and cattle across a river during a terrific rain storm are magnificent.

Of course, the picture was shown here on Frandeur film, which greatly enhances its photographic values. But there are only a very few other theaters in the United States equipped for using this oversized film. On the standard-sized film the photography will be beautiful, but it won't be spectacular. This production, if it does nothing else, certainly proves the value of the enlarged film and screen for outdoor pictures.

The story itself has whisks, being a tale of the hardy frontiersmen pushing their way to Pacific coast. John Wayne, a newcomer who shows considerable promise, and Marguerite Churchill have the leading roles and carry the rather insipid romance that runs through the picture. Ian Keith does some pretty fair work as the villain. And El Brendel is there, although we still are trying to figure out why—he doesn't have anything to do.

From an entertainment standpoint the best film previewed this week was Clara Bow's "Her Wedding Night." For a change, the flaming-haired star was given a good story and a good supporting cast and the result was what can always be expected of Clara under similar circumstances—a good picture.

The story is a light farce, with Charles Ruggles, a recruit from the stage, supplying most of the laughs. Ruggles, who has years of stage experience behind him, without a doubt is one of the funniest comedians on the silver screen today. The plot surrounds Miss Bow, Ruggles, Skeets Gallagher and Ralph Forbes. Gallagher unknowingly marries Clara in Forbes' name. Naturally that brings on various complications in trying to decide just whose wife she really is. There is some music in the picture, which is very good, but songs are noticeable only by their absence.

Jumping now into the field of short subjects, Mack Sennett has just completed a comedy entitled "Racketeers," which is very funny. Andy Clyde, Daphne Pollard, Marjorie Beebe, Charles Irwin and Patsy O'Leary make up the cast for this gangster story which brings into play everything from whales to battleships.

A THREE DAYS' COUGH IS YOUR DANGER SIGNAL

Coughs from colds may lead to serious trouble. You can stop them now with Creomulsion, an emulsified creosote that is pleasant to take. Creomulsion is a medical discovery with two-fold action; it soothes and heals the inflamed membranes and inhibits germ growth.

Of all known drugs creosote is recognized by high medical authorities as one of the greatest healing agencies for coughs from colds and bronchial irritations. Creomulsion contains, in addition to creosote, other healing elements which soothe and heal the inflamed membranes and stop the irritation, while the creosote goes on to the stomach, is absorbed into the blood, attacks the seat of the trouble and checks the growth of the germs.

Creomulsion is guaranteed satisfactory in the treatment of coughs from colds, bronchitis and minor forms of bronchial irritations, and is excellent for building up the system after colds or flu. Money refunded if not relieved after taking according to directions. Ask your druggist. (adv.)

Old War Birds To Be Bombed

WASHINGTON, Oct. 20. (UP).—The Army's war-birds will swoop down on Camp Stanley near San Antonio, Texas, on November 1 and let loose powerful bombs in an attempt to destroy a fleet of grounded airplanes.

This program of destruction, outlined by the War Department today, is designed to show whether fragmentation, or demolition bombs would be more effective in a war-time raid against any enemy air-crome.

Twenty worn-out army planes will be the target for the attack. 18 planes of the third attack group from Fort Crockett, Galveston, Texas. The test will be the first of this nature ever attempted by the Air Corps.

First, the attackers will drop low over Stanley field and drop a destructive cargo of fragmentation bombs on the planes below.

Then they will rise to swoop again, this time letting loose 100-pound demolition bombs.

What remains of the grounded airplanes after these two raids will be attacked again with incendiary machine-gun bullets. Army officers hope to learn much from this attack about the effect of such bullets in burning enemy planes and exploding their gas tanks.

LAST OF TRIBE SUE WHITE MEN FOR $1,000,000

NORWICH, Conn., Oct. 20. (UP).—The last of the Mohegans are on the warpath.

They have fared forth to fight what they term encroachment of the white man on their hallowed precincts and they have armed themselves with the legal weapons of their pale-faced brethren, instead of with the more destructive instruments of their aboriginal forebears.

The Mohegans, or rather their descendants, have brought suit in Superior Court against the State of Connecticut, its attorney general, the city and town of Norwich and others, demanding $1,000,000 for the alleged desecration of a small Indian burial ground near here, in which the body of the great Sachem, Chief Uncas, supposedly is buried.

Burial Ground Suit

Edyth B. Gray and others, who describe themselves as heirs of the great Uncas, charge the defendants with preventing them from continuing to use the burial ground as a cemetery, that monuments there have been destroyed or removed, and that the so-called reservation has been cut up into building lots.

All told there are not more than 100 descendants of the tribe about which James Fenimore Cooper wove such fantastic and romantic tales. None of them are full-blooded, virtually all being white-mixed. They live on what they call "the reservation," a small plot of land at Mohegan, on the west bank of the Thames river four miles from here. In reality, it is not a reservation, for it is not under federal or state supervision.

ANNOUNCEMENT

She is improving fast from illness caused from extraction of a wisdom tooth last week. It was necessary to have a nurse with Miss Lanham one night during her illness.

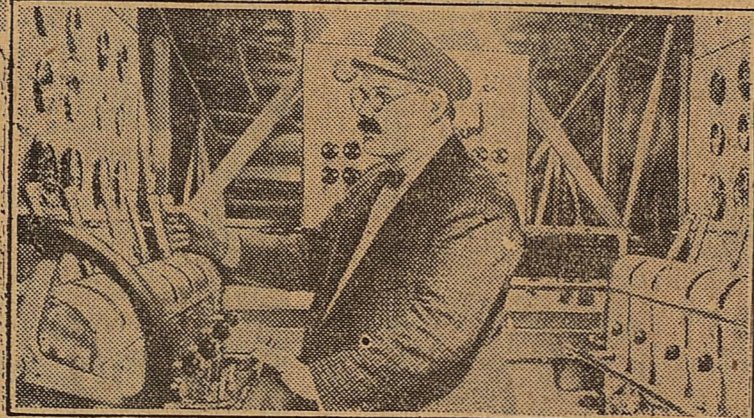

Market Report

NEW YORK, Oct. 20. (UP).—Steadiness prevailed on New York Cotton Exchange today and gains of about 10 cents bale were maintained in moderately active trading. At noon list was 9 to 14 points higher, with most positions few points below highs for day. Killing frost in northern sections of belt it is believed in many quarters practically ruined crop in these sections. These reports and stronger outside market brought in buying.

Giant Seaplane Tunes Up for Hop to America

A Cardinal Takes a Mate

Magnus Ott Gelbert, better known as Charley Gelbert, one of the hired hands on the St. Louis Cardinals baseball club, got a tidy little wedding present from Commissioner Kenesaw Mountain Landis in the shape of a $3,536.67 slice of the 1930 worlds series melon. And here you see the star shotstop of the pennant-winning but championship-losing Cards as he left a church at Valley Forge, Pa., with his bride, the former Miss Mabel Hafer, of Chambersburg.

INTERSECTIONAL TILTS OF WEEK ARE FAR BETWEEN

By L. S. CAMERON,
United Press Staff Correspondent

This week's football game roster contains surprisingly few contests of intersectional aspect. (Will someone please supply a good synonym for "inter-sectional"?)

The big boys of the college football world will concentrate on important battles, many of them involving meetings of traditional rivals.

There are, however, two really important inter-sectionals. Chicago will play Mississippi at Chicago, this being a meeting of the midwest and the south. Pitt entertains Notre Dame at Pittsburgh, pitting the midwest against the east. Northwestern takes on Centre at Evanston, and while this is an inter-sectional meeting, it hardly comes under the head of football warfare, Centre teams of these years being what they are.

One of the coming week-end's large games will be played at New Haven where Army meets Yale. Yale won last year. A second eastern thriller is the Princeton-Navy game at Princeton. These teams played a 13-13 tie last year.

Nowhere in the country Saturday will there be a more fiercely fought game than in New York where Fordham meets New York University. These teams fight annually for the leadership in the Metropolitan area. Fordham made a 26-0 runaway last year, but there's no indication that there will be a repeat performance.

Harvard plays Dartmouth at Cambridge in what will be at least a spectacular contest. Lafayette and Washington and Jefferson go to Atlantic City to hold their annual soiree.

The South teams with promising games, among them being Alabama-Vanderbilt, Georgia-Alabama Poly, and Georgia Tech-Tulane.

The prize midwestern game is the Michigan-Illinois event at Ann Arbor. The Illini scored a 14-0 shoutout last year. Out on the Far Coast there are some dandies—Standard-Southern California, Washington-California.

Man Who'll Do Anything Receives Strange Offers

SAN FRANCISCO, Oct. 20. (UP).—Strange offers—one of them $5,000 to court the intimacy of a man's wife and aid him in securing a divorce—have been made to Robert Ralls in response to his running "personal ad" to do "anything within the law, regardless of the risk."

"Another offer," Ralls adds, "was a job as gunman-bodyguard for a local bootlegger."

"Capping the climax, however," he continued, "was for a man who offered me $5000 to kill his wife."

Ralls, who is out of work, reiterated he would do anything or "bet his life with anyone of the square" for that sum. He needs the money, he says, for his family and to go into business.

David Crockett was a member of the United States Congress for three terms—from 1847 to 1851, and again from 1853 to 1855. His opposition to President Jackson led to his defeat.

NEW RABBIT PUBLICATION GOES ON NEWS STANDS AT FT. WORTH

The latest and newest publication in Texas that we know anything of, is The Texas and Southwestern Rabbit Journal, of Fort Worth, a monthly publication, devoted exclusively to rabbits and other fur-bearing animals, and we reprint the following from page three of said publication:

You may be looking for a hobby to pursue—or there are growing boys and girls in your family who need an influence that will train them for life's future work. What is more interesting than to start them, or yourself, in this fascinating business?

It is fascinating, for you watch your investment grow under your eyes, not slowly, but in a manner almost amazing. With proper care, your investment can double or triple with the year. For children, nothing makes them more self-reliant than the training that permits them to earn and save. Any one with a back yard can raise rabbits. Many people have scruples about the cleanliness of the animals. The rabbit is, by far the cleanest domestic animal. It is the simplest thing to keep their hutches clean, as they are made to be self-cleaning. Rabbits require a minimum of care, most of this being taken up by feeding.

Some Facts About Rabbits

In Los Angeles hundreds of thousands of domestic rabbits are shipped to slaughter houses every month, most of them coming from farms, where they have been collected from thousands of back-yard rabbitries which spot the vicinity. One rabbit farm in the middle west ships two car loads of rabbit meat every month, or approximately 60,000 pounds of meat, not including furs.

The Department of Agriculture reports one typical instance of a high school boy in Iowa, who in a small back yard, raised registered stock, and in the course of a year cleared over $1200.00. An Ohio farmer ships four hundred pounds of rabbit meat weekly to neighboring cities and does not nearly supply the demand. Institutions that have turned to rabbit raising from chickens or other animals report them far more lucrative. Rabbits raised on the county farm furnish meat for the county and city hospitals, in preference to chicken, because it costs less and the meat is much more digestible and nutritious.

The consumption of rabbits and the demand for its fur is so great in the United States that, under present conditions, only a small fraction, not 10 per cent, of the furs are domestic, but come from Europe and New Zealand. These are not isolated instances, but typical of what is happening everywhere.

To Come Back

TOMBSTONE, Ariz., Oct. 20. (UP).—This city, once the most famous mining camp of the southwest will rise again from the ashes of its hectic past at the annual Helldorado celebration Oct. 16, 17, 18 and 19.

Battered adobe and frame buildings, built in the late 70's and early 80's, will resound again to the clink of glasses from saloons, and whirr of roulette wheels and the old time dance hall music.

The task of restoration is now under way, and by opening day, Tombstone will have shaken off the dust of half century and will be again, in reproduction, the hell-roaring camp of 1881.

"WHITE ELEPHANT SALE"

Circle No. 1 of the Presbyterian church will hold a "White Elephant Sale" on Friday of this week. Cakes and candies will also be on the market.

The place for the affair has not been made definite but further announcement will be made tomorrow.

Amendments--

of legislators from $5 a day to the magnificent sum of $10 per day and decreases the mileage now allowed members of 20 cents per mile in going and returning from the seat of government to 10 cents per mile. This amendment has been presented as "doubling" the pay of legislators. It will have a very far different effect by reason of the "halving" of the mileage allowance only one for a 120-day session, while under the present system 120 days would involve three sessions and there would be paid mileage on each session at the rate of 20 cents a mile or a total of 60 cents per mile, going and coming of each member from his home to the capitol, while under the amendment he would get his mileage for once and that would be 10 cents. In other words, under the amendment a member for a session of 120 days would get a mileage allowance of just one-sixth the amount that he would get under the present constitution.

HIGH COURT ASKED TO SOLVE FREAKISH ONES

WASHINGTON, Oct. 20. (UP).—Freak cases only rarely find their way to the attention of the Supreme Court usually burdened with only the weightiest matters of law. But each session a few of them are included on the docket.

These matters, seemingly almost frivolous to the disinterested layman, frequently are of vital financial or personal interest to those involved.

Some of the unique matters to come up this session are indicated in the following questions the court is asked to answer.

Is sunstroke a disease or an accident?

Is blood poisoning from a self-inflicted operation an accident?

Is a check money?

Mrs. Dora I. Nickman asks the court to determine whether her husband, Simon who died on sunstroke in August, 1928, was killed by an accident. If he did she is entitled to twice the face value of his insurance policy under a double indemnity clause. The Cleveland Federal Courts held the death was not an accident.

The question of blood poisoning is presented by Mrs. Nannie L. Massie. She seeks to recover $30,000 from an insurance company on an accident policy. Her husband pulled a hair from his face. A few days later he died of blood poisoning.

Ex-Councilman Thomas W. Fleming of Cleveland, O., wishes the court to decide that a check is not money under the Ohio law. If it can't be made to go to prison. The local statute prohibits a city official from taking money such as "bills, notes, currency or bonds" as a bribe.
