GRID TREK TO PECOS BEGINS

ENGLAND, FRANCE IN OBSERVANCE

LONDON, November 11. (UP).—With over 8,000 ex-soldiers still being treated for war-wounds, and nearly a million and a half men, women and children, still receiving war-pensions, Great Britain, today, observed the twelfth anniversary of the Armistice.

Sirens screamed as the "Big Ben" clock on the Houses of Parliament boomed forth the hour of eleven, signaling the commencement of the two minutes' silence in honor of the nation's million odd dead.

Church services and open-air demonstrations were observed all over the British Isles, centering on the demonstrations at the Cenotaph, in Whitehall, attended by King George, for the first time in two years.

King Caught Cold
It is recalled that it was during the service at the Cenotaph in 1928 that the King first contracted a cold while standing bareheaded in the rain, which led to his lengthy illness.

Representative detachments of the army, navy, air force, merchant navy and fishing fleets, and ex-servicemen's associations formed a hollow square around the nation's memorial shortly before 11 a. m. Wreaths were then placed on the Cenotaph by the King and other members of the royal family, including the Prince of Wales, and also by representatives of the governments of England, and the Dominions, whose prime ministers have recently been attending the Imperial Conference.

Maroons, which gave warning of air-raids during the war, signalled the end of the two minutes' silence at 11:02 a. m. A short service, conducted by the Bishop of London, followed, after which the representative detachments marched off, and the long queue of official delegations, bearing wreaths, and the general public, began its slow progress passed the monument and on to Westminster Abbey, where similar tributes were placed on the grave of the Unknown Warrior.

Similar Service
A similar service was held in the Abbey before 11 a. m., while that at the Cenotaph was broadcast throughout the country, enabling many little villages to follow the service at their own war memorials.

All traffic, except rail and water transport, was suspended during the two minutes' silence, and the authorities had particularly requested the drivers of motor vehicles to shut off their engines during that period.

A few years ago Armistice night was the occasion for rejoicing in the shape of dances, banquets and parties, but it is now observed entirely as a day of mourning. Celebrations of any kind are usually observed the day before or the day after.

PARIS, Nov. 11. (UP).—The Twelfth Anniversary of the Armistice was observed throughout France today by ceremonies which each succeeding year renders profoundly impressive.

Observed throughout the country as a national holiday, the ceremonies in Paris centered about the historic Arch of Triumph whose towering arches rise above the Unknown Soldier's grave.

While thousands stood in the avenues radiating out from the great arch, under which were grouped soldiers, the battle flags, the President, and most of the active officers and important ambassadors to France a bugle note, followed by a cannon shot from the top of the arch, at 11:00 clock ushered in a deep silence of one minute's duration.

AMERICANS STILL PAYING GREAT COSTS OF WAR FINISHED TWELVE YEARS AGO; FIGURE MOUNTAINOUS

By JOSEPH H. BAIRD, United Press Staff Correspondent.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 11 (UP).—A dozen years ago today a group of tired and nerve-strained men sat in a private car on a railroad siding and signed peace terms which brought the World War to an end and released nearly 2,000,000 Americans from muddy trenches.

Tolls Still High
When Marshal Ferdinand Foch and Herr Erzberger agreed on armistice terms in the early morning of November 11, 1918, they stopped the war's actual slaughter, but today, 12 years later, the monetary, physical and spiritual tolls of the conflict still were being exacted.

The 12th anniversary of the armistice finds Americans still paying war costs which to now have totalled nearly $38,000,000,000. More than 32,000 former soldiers still are in Government hospitals. Hundreds of ships built to carry war-time commerce float idly in rivers and bays.

On the credit side of the ledger, the United States has the nucleus of an army which can be filled in without much delay to afford a fighting force of 1,000,000 men in a national emergency. And unliquidated assets resulting from the war are valued at $23,400,000.

Meanwhile, our outstanding war heroes whose names were emblazoned everywhere during the conflict have taken up the pursuits of civil life and are "doing their bit," to revert to a wartime expression, in such diverse occupations as commercial aviation and superintending hospitals. Some of them, however, are still in the army.

Reception Arranged
When the allies heard that a German commission, headed by Herr Erzberger, was en route to seek a stay in hostilities, a reception was arranged for it. Marshal Foch, with Admiral Sir Rosslyn Wemyes as his naval associate, set out for Compiègne.

Their private train was set on a siding in the gloomy forest of Laigue near the village of Rethondes. There, on the morning of November 9, the delegates were received.

Foch and Erzberger fenced verbally for some time, until finally the French commander-in-chief demanded: "Do you ask for an armistice?" "Yes," said the German.

Foch then read the conditions on which an armistice would be granted. When he had concluded, the German pondered, apparently stunned by the magnitude of the decision before him.

A courier was dispatched to Spa to present the armistice terms to high German officials. Meanwhile, the German delegates pleaded with Foch to modify the demands he had presented. These negotiations were cut short when, at 9 p. m. on the night of November 10, a radiogram arrived from the German chancellor. He accepted the allied terms.

Thus a war which had virtually wrecked Europe, had taken millions of lives, and had cost the world hundreds of billions of dollars was brought to an end. Official peace terms were not concluded between the United States and Germany, however, until July, 1921. We did not sign the Treaty of Versailles which brought peace to the rest of Europe.

Effects of the war were measured here today by prosaic Government records, which reveal little of the intense drama behind them. Up to June 30, 1930, the war and its effects had cost the American people $37,573,900,000. This includes actual war costs, interest on the public debt, veterans' hospitalization and compensation, and scores of smaller items which result, directly or indirectly, from the conflict.

ROBBERY SUSPECT SLAIN
SALT LAKE CITY, Nov. 11. (AP).—A man identified as R. T. Harold, a corporal in the 38th infantry at Fort Douglas, near here, was shot and killed Monday by Clifford Ivie, who declared he caught him trying to break into the Ivie residence.

The Greatest Unknown

Of course nobody knows who the Unknown Soldier was. . . . They took unidentified dead from four American cemeteries in France. . . . A corporal walked past the four black boxes and dropped white roses upon the one whose namelessness was to become immortal. . . . and nobody knows even from what cemetery the Unknown came. . . . but in a certain town there lived a boy named Jim. . . . He wanted to be a great athlete. . . . He loved games and the spirit of sportsmanship in which they were played. . . . above all else he cherished the desire to win letters for heroic deeds on gridiron or diamond. . . . Thorpe was his ideal, but in high school the boy never was more than a substitute guard. . . . Matty was an ideal, too, but in college Jim never was better than a third-string pitcher. . . . that was in May, 1917, and Jim was 21 years and a week old when he left to enlist. . . . he was with the first soldiers to reach France. . . . he got into action in Belleau Wood. . . . Just before they went over the top, Jim said: "Buddy, here is one game where they can't keep me on the sidelines." . . . An enemy machine gun was dropping Yanks like a sickle mows weeds. . . . Jim went straight for it, head low, dodging and weaving in open-field football style. . . . the last they saw of him he lay with the enemy machine gun clutched in his dying fingers. . . . he looked up and said, "I took out the interference." . . . Jim was listed among the missing in action. . . . When they brought the Unknown Soldier back from France, the body was in a coffin on which was lettered the inscription: "An Unknown Soldier Who Gave His Life in the Great War." . . . Could those be the letters Jim won at last?

'Cease Firing!' -- Yank Who Flashed Order Tells of It

By DAN THOMAS, NEA Service Writer.

HOLLYWOOD, Calif., Nov. 11.—The man who stilled the thunder of the guns of America's greatest army of Nov. 11, 1918, and formally brought America's part in the conflict to a close, is celebrating the 12th anniversary of that great occasion here by calmly going about his regular day's work as a watchman at the gates of a moving picture studio.

He is Major George D. Beaumont, veteran of the Spanish-American and World Wars, who received from General Hunter Liggett, at 7 a. m. on Nov. 11, the order to notify all American commanding officers to cease firing at 11 a. m., four hours later.

He still has the original copy of that historic order.

"It's about all I salvaged out of my army service," he says, "but it was something no other man could bring home."

Major Beaumont still wears a uniform—but not of the army. Instead it is a blue-gray uniform of a studio watchman. His medals, his puttees and his Sam Browne belt have been put away, and he busies himself at his duties of keeping unauthorized visitors out of the studio.

Order Came at 7 a. m.
"I received General Liggett's order to cease firing a few minutes after 7 o'clock in the morning, and started sending it out along the entire western front at seven ten," he says. "It was to take effect at 11 o'clock, the hours at which the war was to be officially ended."

"Our first thought was to make sure the order was received by every commanding officer, so that there would be no guns fired after 11 o'clock. To accomplish this we first telegraphed the order to the five generals commanding the five army corps at the front. Then we telephoned the order to them. After that I made copies of the message, sent

THE MESSAGE THAT ENDED THE WAR

Here is the message that ended the World War on the American fronts as transmitted by Major Beaumont shortly after 7 a. m. on the morning of Nov. 11, 1918:

SIGNAL CORPS UNITED STATES ARMY

one of them over to the radio dugout to be broadcast, and sent others by motorcycle messengers to each of the five commanding officers."
Armistice Signed at 5 a. m.
The armistice had been signed at five that morning. On the American front, as it happened, hostilities continued right up to 11, and probably a number of American and German soldiers were killed after the armistice had been signed; after the order had been transmitted from general headquarters, in fact.

The following is quoted from a dispatch sent to the New York Times on Armistice Day of 1918 by Edwin L. James, "The Times" correspondent with the A. E. F.
"On this front (the section northeast of Verdun) we attacked this morning at 9:30 o'clock, after heavy artillery preparation. Reaching the front this morning, expecting to find quiet reigning in view of the imminence of the cessation of hostilities, I found the attack in full swing, with every gun we had going at full speed and roaring in a glorious chorus, singing the swan song of Prussianism. It was a glorious chorus drowning the discord of German shellfire. We were attacking.

Attacked to the Last
"Picture, if you will, that scene at 10:30 this morning. Back in the rear everyone knew that the war was to stop at 11 o'clock, but in the front line nobody knew except the officers. The doughboys knew nothing except that their orders were to attack. They had heard rumors, but Germans back from their last hold on the hills east of the Meuse. At 10:40, at 10:50, at 10:55 they were fighting on. What could be more dramatic than when at 11 a. m. the platoon leaders in the front line sharply called the order, 'Cease Firing!' and explained that hostilities had been called off?"
But to get back to Major Beaumont; he says, with good reason, that he will never forget that first armistice day.
"That really was the greatest day of the war," he says. "We had been under fire continuously for 40 days and nights, and the nerves of all the men were completely shattered. Things were just the reverse over there from what they were in this country on that day. Over here a

Pecos Gridiron Recognized as Greater Foe To Midland Than Whole Pecos Team; Surface of Field Is Drying

More than 75 automobiles started a grim procession out of Midland early this morning for Pecos, where the fate of Midland's high school football team will be decided this afternoon.

Forty of the cars bore the team, pep squad and band. The other 35 were from the town and carried rooters.

Although somewhat heartened by information out of Pecos that it had not rained appreciably there and that the sun was trying to break through moist-laden clouds to dry the surface glush of the river town's gridiron, Coach Barry and other school officials had little to say. "It is too late to talk," Barry said. "The club has come to the crucial game of the season. It will win or lose or draw. To do anything but win would be to disappoint the fans and myself. To lose would be tantamount to dropping football here for the remainder of the season."

But the coach's eyes were proud as he looked over his well conditioned team, packed into several automobiles.

"They look good, don't they?" It seemed the coach wanted to say. "We will win by as many touchdowns as the slippery Pecos field will allow."

On a dry field Midland is better than Pecos by at least a touchdown a quarter. On a wet field, however, Midland uses only about four plays that could be deemed effective. The test will be Pecos' gridiron, not the Pecos team.

Shortly after 10 o'clock, other automobiles began the trek to Pecos, loaded with town rooters dressed in holiday attire despite the damp weather. More than 100 vehicles will be drawn up on the Pecos sidelines at 2:30 this afternoon when the game begins, it is believed.

Showers and threats of heavy downpours made impracticable the holding on a bon fire and pep rally at the high school Monday night.

Walker Pays Tribute To John T. Robison

In his report to Governor Moody, recommending changes in laws pertaining to sale and lease of state and public school lands, J. H. Walker, commissioner of the general land office, paid a tribute to the late commissioner, John T. Robison.

"A positive character, he fought behind his own convictions and died without knowing the courts had sustained him in the greatest legal battle of his life," Walker said. "Serving the state in the land office for a third of a century, he left on its land laws the imprint of his mind and in its educational funds a monument to his judgment. Time, it is said, makes all things even, and to me this is a consoling thought in his passing, for it is believed he died of a broken heart even in the refuge of a glorious vindication."

1,000 BACK TO WORK

DETROIT, Nov. 11. (AP).—An optimistic view of the business outlook was expressed by William J. MacNeeny, president and general manager of the Hudson Motor Car company, as 1,000 additional employees were called back to work at the company's plant.

LEASE IS VALIDATED

LOS ANGELES, Calif., Nov. 11.—(AP).—The lease of the Pan-American Petroleum company to 660 acres in the United States oil reserve No. 1, in Kern county, California, which the government claimed had been obtained by fraud, was held valid by Federal Judge Frank H. Norcross of Nevada Monday.

No Rain in Pecos Yesterday; Clouds Breaking up Today

The sun was trying to break through at Pecos this morning at 8:30, a telephone message from Marcos Williamson, regional scout executive said. No rain fell during the night and only a light shower yesterday. Unless more rain falls before the game this afternoon the field will be in good condition, the Midland man reported.

Crowds of people were pouring in to Pecos early today from Alpine, Marfa, Fort Stockton, Balmorhea, Toyah, Pyote, Wink and other towns to the west, it was reported.

Pecos held a pep rally last night in which the entire town participated. Filled with a determination to "beat Midland," the Reeves county football team will present formidable opposition to the Midland Bulldog eleven. The Pecos Eagles were declared by Williamson to be in the "pink of condition."

Pecos' new high school band will make its debut in a parade to be held on the city streets there this afternoon. Marching in new uniforms, the organization will be a colorful addition to the enthusiastic pep squad of the Pecos high school.

Damage Slight in Last Night Fire

Slight damage to the ceiling of one room was done when a fire burned around the flue at 710 North Big Spring last night about 10 o'clock. Chas. Houpt resides there. The fire was extinguished before the fire department could reach the scene.

MIDLAND TERRITORY AS MARKET

Few Texas towns or cities have better trade areas than Midland has. The few exceptions are Amarillo, San Angelo, Lubbock and El Paso, and of course the largest Texas cities.

When Midland's trade territory is considered, it doesn't extend more than 40 miles east or northeast, goes possibly 75 miles south and southwest, swings across the west and extends a hundred miles to the northwest.

Why can Midland claim this as her trade territory? Because cattle, oil and farm people from these distances come to Midland to trade, to buy the things not found in their own communities or closer to their homes, and to find amusements and big-city conveniences so unusual to a town no larger than Midland.

One of Midland's biggest opportunities is to develop the goodwill, the good business relations and to assist in the physical development of the great outlying area. Look what Amarillo's vast trade area has done for Amarillo. Look at San Angelo and Lubbock. Look even at El Paso.

USING CERTIFIED PLANTING SEED

There is an agricultural area in northern Colorado and southern Wyoming which, because of vast distance from markets and of high freight rates, had to resort to the planting of better quality products.

As a result, when agricultural products declined in value, the farmers of this area were receiving good prices for their commodities and also found a market for the seed.

TRADE MARKED GOODS

A housewife went into a grocery store and called for a well known brand of baking powder, a nationally advertised product. The grocer pulled down a can of baking powder bearing a name the housewife had never heard of.

The customer began to think. Why should he insist that she take this off-brand at the same price? Evidently to make more profit for himself or to work off some dead stock.

Nationally advertised products eliminate the chance. The same thing goes for your reputable home merchant. He builds his good will by giving fair treatment, selling at a profit but at fair prices.

GAS REACHES DEAF AND DUMB

A new and extraordinary use for gas has come into being in London. It is announced that an ordinary gas flame is being successfully used to teach deaf and dumb children the letters of the alphabet.

The method consists in showing each child how he or she may make the gas flame jump and flicker at a varying rate with the current of air produced in speaking the different letters. The average pupil can learn the alphabet in this way in three months.

The Town Quack

Reserves the right to "quack" about everything without taking a stand on anything.

A Midland singer said he had just received a wire from his friend Rudy Valle. He said Rudy was in the hospital, recovering rapidly from an operation on his nose; it had been so that he could hardly sing through it.

I hope to tell you that we need a football game with Big Spring and we need it bad. It's like the fellow who breezed into the safe and said, "I want an egg and I want it bad."

There are plenty of advantages to having a game with Big Spring. To begin with, the towns are ancient friendly foes and the game would be a money maker in either Midland or Big Spring.

My next point is that Midland needs about one Class A game this year, about two next year and maybe by that time we will be ready to apply for admittance to Class A district representation.

Reijnhart Circle With Mrs. A. B. Anderson Monday

A review of the chapters of Genesis and Exodus was given by the Rev. Howard Peters for members of the Reijnhart circle, when they met yesterday afternoon at the home of Mrs. A. B. Anderson.

At the business hour, plans were discussed for the Pure Food show. Arrangements are pending because of the location committee not being able to secure the proper site for the show.

Program Is Given for Home Mission Week

Opening the week of home missions by Presbyterian Auxiliaries over the United States, members of the local society met at the church for a special home mission program Monday afternoon.

Mrs. Hayden Miles was leader and also read the devotional. She directed a delightful play which set forth the present needs of home missions.

A second of these programs was announced for Friday afternoon at 3 o'clock, when Mrs. J. M. Caldwell will review the book, "Our Near Neighbors."

Mrs. L. O. Smith and Mrs. W. G. Whitehouse served refreshments to the members at the social hour.

HAD A PAIN IN BACK AND SIDES

Lady Says She Took Cardui On Her Mother's Advice and It Helped Her.

New Orleans, La.—"About five years ago I was in bad health," writes Mrs. A. C. Lightel, of 2225 Marais Street, this city.

"I suffered with a pain in my back and sides. I would have severe headaches, and I knew that I needed something to stop the pain and build me up."

"My mother had used Cardui for fourteen years and she thought it would do me good, and advised me to take it. I took about three bottles at this time, and it did help me. I did not have any more headaches or pain."

"Later, when I felt I needed something to build me up, I knew how good Cardui was so went back to it again. I took several bottles. I was all right and did not have any more trouble."

"I am glad to recommend Cardui to other young women for it is a splendid tonic."

This medicine contains nothing harmful or injurious and may be safely taken by women of all ages.

Mission Programs Presented by Baptist Circles

Two circles of the W.M.U. of the First Baptist church held their regular weekly programs at the homes of members Monday afternoon.

Mrs. Nora B. Holcombe was hostess to the Walker circle, who spent the afternoon studying the book, "In the Land of the Southern Cross."

Sixteen members of the Reagan circle met at the home of Mrs. Walter Anderson at the Atlantic tank farm for their meeting.

It was decided to pack a surprise box for Miss Luella Reagan, for whom the circle is named, at the church Thursday afternoon at 2 o'clock.

Mrs. J. M. White taught the lesson from the book, "Talks on Soul Whimpering." Mrs. Claud Cowden, who presented the devotional, based her talk on the lesson.

Book Completed By Methodist Auxiliary

Twenty-two women were present at the lesson, which concluded the mission book, "Trailing the Conquistadores," being studied by the Methodist auxiliary for the past few months.

Mrs. Charles Coffee read the devotional scriptures for the program and was followed by sentence prayers.

Mrs. M. V. Coman told of "The Latin Americans." Mrs. Frank Prothro talked on "United in the West Indies, Our Responsibilities." Mrs. H. E. Dickinson read an article on "Evangelism in Havana."

A debate was presented by Mrs. George Glass, who gave "Reasons for Intervention." Mrs. Holt Jowell, who gave "Objections to Intervention," and Mrs. A. P. Baker who discussed, "Is the Method for Peace Cooperation to Secure the End to Intervention?"

A report on the number of women who had studied the book was taken by Mrs. Coffee, who has been in charge of the classes.

Popular Stanton Girl Marries Sunday

A wedding of wide interest in this section of West Texas was that of Miss Faye Smith, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Bartley F. Smith, prominent Martin County residents, and Mr. Arlo Forrest of Big Spring, in Stanton Sunday morning at the Methodist church.

The bride has visited in Midland numerous times and is popular among circles here and in Stanton. Mr. and Mrs. Forrest are on a few days' honeymoon and will return to make their home in Big Spring.

Mrs. Murphy to Houston for Conventions

Representing the Midland Women's Christian Temperance Union and the 16th district of the state, Mrs. Thomas D. Murphy left last night for Houston where she will be a delegate to the state and national conventions of the W. C. T. U.

She will arrive in time for the state conferences of vice-presidents' council, of which she is a member. Thursday she will attend the Loyal Temperance Union and Friday the national proper convention will convene. It is expected that 1,500 delegates from the United States and Canada will attend the session.

Mrs. J. E. Fridge of Big Spring was another delegate to go from this district.

BOOTS AND HER BUDDIES

GEE, BABE, I GUESS TH' "VICTORY MARCH" THIS YEAR WILL JUST BE A FUNERAL MARCH FOR ME!

LISTEN, YA DONT HAVE TO WORRY ABOUT HER ANY MORE... I HAVE HER SIGNALS NOW

WHAT'RE YOU TALKIN' ABOUT?

LAY YOUR EARS INTO THIS! I HAD A HUNCH AN', JUST FOR FUN, I LOOKED UP HER RECORD — OOOEY!!!

Tsk! Tsk!!

WHY, BABE

— I FOUND OUT PLENTY, TOO — SHE WAS SHOODED OUT OF A COLLEGE JUST LAST YEAR FOR GETTIN' IN PEOPLES WAY, AN' BEIN' A GENERAL NUISANCE... AN' WASH OUT! I GUESS WE CAN BACK HER UP NOW, EH?

WAIT!! I CHIRP THAT AROUND

NOW, BABE — THAT'S OUT, AN' I WANTNA T'PROMISE ME YOU'LL KEEP THAT UNDER YOUR BONNET! WE'LL NEVER NUDGE HER OUT OF TH' PICTURE THAT WAY — B-SIDES, IT WOULDN'T BE FAIR.

WASH TUBBS

KINDLY STEP INTO MY STATEROOM, GENTLEMEN. I HAVE REQUESTED THE PURSER TO SEND YOU SOME SUITABLE CLOTHING.

HEY, LISTEN, FELLA. NIX ON THIS. ME AND MY PODNER CAN'T ACCEPT PASSAGE MONEY FROM STRANGERS.

PS-ST! HE'S NUTS. LETTİM SPEND HIS OLD MONEY.

WE'RE BROKE. WE CAN'T PAY YOU BACK, WE

TUT TUT! IT IS NOT NECESSARY, I ASSURE YOU. I AM A MAN OF MEANS, SIR, A MAN OF WEALTH.

NOW! SATCHELS FULLA $20 BILLS.

Santa Claus

POOP! POCKET CHANGE, MY FRIENDS, POCKET CHANGE. HELP YOURSELVES, BY THE WAY, I RECKON. WHAT ARE YOUR OCCUPATIONS? SEAMEN?

INTO A WAR NOW AND THEN, REST O' THE TIME WE LOAF.

WHAT! YOU ARE FIGHTERS? SOLDIERS? CAPITAL! SPLENDID! EXCELLENT! WHAT A JUDGE OF CHARACTER AM I! SOLDIERS OF FORTUNE — BY GEORGE! GENTLEMEN, I WANT YOU TO WORK FOR ME.

I THOUGHT THERE WAS A CATCH TO THIS GENEROSITY. WHAT YOU WANT US TO DO? MURDER SOMEBODY?

FRECKLES AND HIS FRIENDS

HERE'S THE PADDLE TO THE CANOE... LET'S GET GOING... WHO'S GOING TO DO THE PADDLIN', YOU OR ME?

I'LL DO THE WORK AND YOU SET UP FRONT AND KEEP AN EYE OUT!!

NO! SO FAST... WE GOT LOTS OF TIME!!

BUT GEE! I'M ANXIOUS TO GET OUT OF HERE!

On Their Way!

KEEP A SHARP LOOKOUT FOR ROCKS, FALLS, RAPIDS AN' LOW CEILINGS... HARD TELLIN' WHAT WE MIGHT RUN UP AGAINST!!

SO FAR, SO GOOD... CLEAR SAILIN' AHEAD BUT A LITTLE DARK!!

IF THE RIVER KEEPS A STRAIGHT COURSE LIKE THIS WE OUGHTA BE OUT IN SUNSHINE BEFORE LONG... AN' IF IT WINDS AROUND ALL OVER CREATION, WE'RE GOING TO HANE A PICNIC GETTIN' OUT!!

COME ON... KEEP PADDLIN'!!

STATUE HONORS STATE'S FAMOUS BALLOON BUSTER

PHOENIX, Ariz., Nov. 11. (UP).—Within the shadows of Arizona's capitol, a memorial statue to Frank Luke, Jr., the "Balloon Buster," who was killed in the World War, was dedicated today.

Several thousand Arizona legionnaires stood in silent tribute to the heroism of the man who distinguished himself on the battlefields of France as a bronze likeness of Luke was unveiled.

Governor John C. Phillips, of Arizona, paid high tribute to young Luke at the dedication. He reviewed briefly the hero's brief record at the front.

Luke saw exactly 17 days of action at the front, and in that brief period he brought down 14 enemy balloons and five planes. It gained him the title of the "Balloon Buster."

The 17th day at the front proved the last for the Phoenix boy. He was caught by eight enemy planes returning from one of his lone voyages into enemy territory and was forced down with a crippled ship.

After landing his plane behind the lines he was surrounded by Germans. Luke did not surrender. He fought to the finish with a pistol, killing six of the enemy before he dropped, his body riddled from a volley of machine gun bullets.

around which had been formed a hollow square of battle flags, President Doumergue reviewed infantry and cavalry troops, war veterans, and French War Orphans in long processions that passed from the arch on down the avenues, over which so many great processions have marched in the past. For fully half way down its length the avenue was flanked by a double cordon of infantry.

Long before the hour for the celebration contingents of reserve officers and wounded veterans marched to the Invalides War-Museum, where they became the color guard for 250 tattered and worn regimental standards.

Arriving at the Arch, the troops were disposed about the square, the regimental color bearers forming a hollow square beneath the arch around the slab which bears the single inscription, "Soldat Inconnu—1914-1918."

Others Attend

Outside the square was grouped the Ambassadors, State and City officials, prefects, Marshals of France, Staff officers, and Military Attaches of various countries.

Inside the flag rimmed square, the Presidents of the Senate and Chamber of Deputies, Premier Tardieu, The Ministers of War, Navy and Air, awaited President Doumergue. The President arrived in an automobile, and after greeting the ministers at the approach of 11 o'clock, the military signal was given for the observance of one minute's silence.

The review that followed was impressive and orderly, a comparatively small detachment of crack troops representing the Garrison of Paris, participating. Following the procession down the Champs Elysees, the regimental flags were given again to the custody of the War Museum, from which they were taken only on Armistice Day or for some especially significant ceremony representative of France's national solidarity.

dians, but that was like dead silence as compared to the booming of the guns we had heard so long. Although we knew the guns were to stop firing, it was quite a shock when they did. For a few minutes we all just thanked God it was over, and wondered why we were left when he had seen so many of our buddies shot down. Then the drinking started. The French had a lot of champagne cached away and it all appeared as if by magic. Major Beaumont is not going to keep the original copy of the "Cease

"HERE'S ANOTHER ADVERTISEMENT ON GERM PROCESSED OIL . . . I CHANGED TO IT YESTERDAY—AND FOR ONCE JIM AND I ARE AGREED"

Following the Pike's Peak Tests, where Conoco Germ-Processed Motor Oil was tested side by side with three other popular, nationally known oils, the Contest Board of the American Automobile Association issued Certificate of Performance number 2268, comprising 14 points, of which the point below is one.

POINT NO. 8

"That carbon deposits collected from the combustion chambers and cylinder heads and weighed by the official chemist were shown by the records of the test to be less after the use of the subject oil than after the use of the comparables."

The recent Pike's Peak tests disclosed some startling facts about motor oil . . . Free booklet at all CONOCO stations.

Even the women are becoming conscious of one oil brand, instead of just asking for "a quart of oil." That brand is rapidly becoming Conoco Germ-Processed.

The reason is simple. For, while these women don't think much of technical discussions of "adsorption," and "Penetrative Lubricity," every one of them knows what we mean when we say: "This oil actually penetrates metal surfaces." Then, the sensational proof of Conoco Germ-Processed oil in the recent Pike's Peak Tests and at the Indianapolis and Altoona races, appeals to practical-minded women who want to be shown.

For there is just as much difference in motor oils as there is in cold cream. Some oils, as with some inferior creams, simply lay on the surfaces to which they are applied. While Germ-Processed oil, like a fine cold cream, penetrates deep into the "pores" (there are pores in metal, you know) and there performs its true function.

The assurance and peace of mind which comes from this penetrating quality of Germ-Processed oil, instantly stamps this as every woman's favorite brand. That's why we see both men and women so well represented among our customers . . . at the Sign of the Red Triangle.

STOCK FIRE INSURANCE

has not only met the insurance requirements, but by research, engineering and laboratory tests has discounted the new hazards to such an extent that its average cost has constantly declined for more than twenty years.

Under the system of establishing fire insurance rates, Stock Fire Insurance company engineers have surveyed practically every commercial building in the United States, whether insured or not, and have on file minute details of construction, occupancy, protection, exposure and other information relating to fire hazards.

Stock Fire Insurance surveys buildings and their contents—studies neighborhood and community conditions—offers advice—makes recommendations—points out hazards—establishes facts by which risks are measured.

To this end it maintains Underwriters' Laboratories, where thousands of materials and devices are tested for safety purposes, and, when approved, are so labelled.

In many other ways it contributes to commercial stability by providing standards of safety.
