A NEW TANK AND A MONUMENT

Two entirely unrelated little news stores got into the papers the other day, and if you happened to read them together they may have set you thinking.

One told of the new army tank that was being tested at Linden, N. J. This tank proved itself able to travel 110 miles an hour along the highway and to do 60 miles an hour over rough ground. It can jump over ditches and it is light enough to be carried by an airplane.

All in all, it seems to be a delightfully efficient bit of fighting machinery.

The other story came from Thiepval, France. It told how the Prince of Wales, President Lebrun of France and other dignitaries met to dedicate Great Britain's memorial to the 73,000 English soldiers who died in the battle of the Somme.

Not much connection between these two stories—but reading them together does start one pondering.

We are at present devoting ourselves—like all other great nations—to the job of getting ready for the next war. We are spending huge sums and enlisting the cleverest inventors and designers we can find so that our army and navy can kill expeditiously and surely the next time they are called into action.

Given the present state of international relations, we can hardly do anything else. And yet—

That memorial on the Somme rises like a grim signpost. Seventy-three thousand Englishmen died in one battle there. Thousands more were maimed for life. Almost an equal number of Germans fell in the same fight. That memorial ought, somehow, to be more than just a tribute to gallantry.

It ought to stir us anew to bend every effort to make a repetition of that ghastly battle forever impossible.

So far, we haven't done much along that line. And, meanwhile, we have devised a fine new tank that can go 110 miles an hour and jump ditches.

THE FALL CHEST CAMPAIGNS

The fact that $300,000,000 in federal money is going to be available for unemployment relief this fall and winter is no reason why the ordinary citizen's contributions to private charity should be any smaller than they were last year.

Newton D. Baker, heading a national committee for welfare activities, does a public service in warning everyone that the established community funds will need just as much support this year as they ever did, if not more. "The people must be fed," he remarks. "Tax funds, federal and state, will have to bear a large part of that. But even for relief, tax funds will have to have important assistance from the community funds."

The warning is timely. Each city must prepare for the job of raising money in the old-fashioned way to supplement funds drawn from taxes.

AN EXCELLENT SCHEME

One of the best ways of promoting more confidence among the rank and file of the citizens seems to be the plan adopted by the Delaware & Hudson railroad in conjunction with the "big four" brotherhoods recently, by which every regular employe is guaranteed 240 hours of work a month for the next year.

Countless thousands of consumers have cut down on their purchases of goods during the last few years, not because their earning power has seriously diminished but because they have been afraid that it was going to. The man who believes he is going to lose his job or go on part-time work week after next cannot be expected to maintain his normal rate of purchasing.

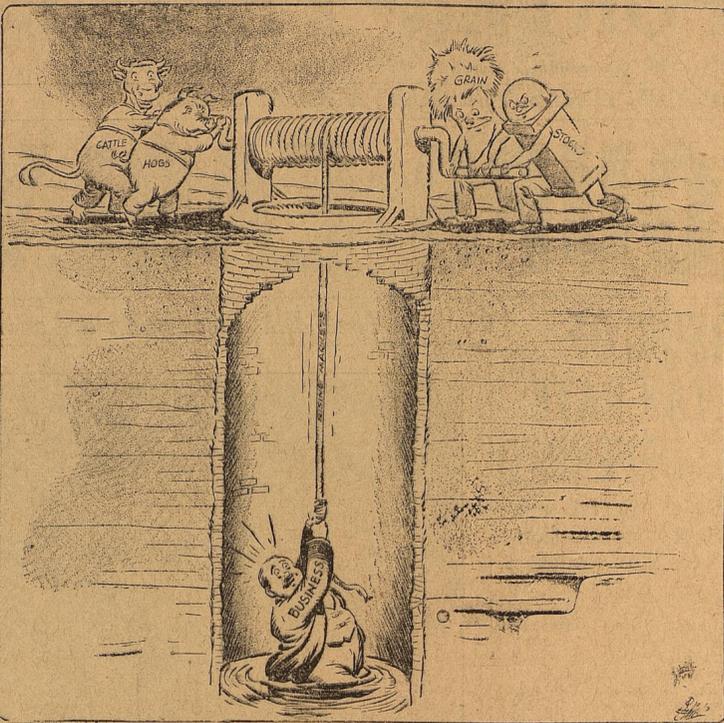

A scheme like this one, which assures workmen that their earning power will not be reduced for an entire year, should be an excellent stimulus to buying activity.

Side Glances By Clark

"Four o'clock—The boys back at the office are dropping down to the speak for a couple beers about now."

Everything Depends on the Rope!

The Town Quack

(Reserves the right to "quack" about everything without taking a stand on anything.)

This must have happened a long time ago, when the girls in the shows were tight. A little boy was asked by his mother what sort of a show his dad took him to, and the youth replied that it was a dandy show, where the women were dressed in stockings up to their necks.

What's wrong with this sentence: "Benny is where a man has one wife too many."

That's easy. Many a man with only one wife thinks he has one too many.

There's been big news in the papers for the past few days. Those rises on the stock market may mean as much in favor of good business as the declines three years ago did for bad business.

I'm not so keen on this wild speculation that follows a few days of upward trends in the markets. I'm always afraid that will be carried too far and will result in the same thing that happened before, but I am proud to see the semblance of restored confidence in those firms and individuals who make stocks and bonds their business. Confidence, nation wide, will make us forget we ever had a depression.

Right here in Midland, people are cashing in on the depression. There have been some good homes bought worth the money lately, and you can't blame the man who has a little money for taking a bargain when it is offered. If you must sell, but my advice is to the fellow who is going to buy. If you're going to buy, buy now and take that profit.

I've heard of some dumb secretaries, that that one working for John D. Rockefeller Jr. who wrote to Marion F. Peters (Dear Madam) and told him John D. Jr. wasn't a cattle breeder was the worst yet. Marion had merely written him his usual line to get John D. Jr. to draw one of the local cattle brands to be added to his collection and the secretary figured John D. couldn't comply, not being a cattle breeder.

There sure is a lot of talking and writing these days about the oversophistication of our children.

One story I read is about a boy who walked leisurely into a park where some other children were playing. He talked to some of the boys he knew and even sat down for a minute or so and then he said he had better be going.

"What's your rush?" he was asked. "I'm in no rush but I am looking for my sister," he replied.

"What do you want her for?" "Well, the old man is dying and we thought we'd get the family together."

A Scotchman went into a restaurant and the waitress brought him a glass of water. He told her that was all and taking a couple of sandwiches out of his pocket he proceeded to eat. And then he had an idea and he called the waitress and asked:

Olympic Stars on Lucky Strike Hour

A radio program to be broadcast from Los Angeles, the scene of the current Olympic games, on which several of the year's most sensational athletes as well as several of the officials are expected to speak is planned for Saturday evening, Aug. 13, at 10 o'clock (E. D. T.) during the Lucky Strike hour. Arrangements are being made to have the voices of several of the Olympic stars broadcast to millions of sports lovers throughout the country over a nationwide NBC network, and it is expected that these world record breakers will describe the events in which they competed.

In addition to the athletes themselves, it is hoped that a few of the Olympic officials will give their impressions of the spectacle that has been witnessed on the west coast during the past two weeks.

Besides the distinguished guests on this program, Jimmy Grier and his orchestra will be heard playing not only regular dance music but also, in all probability, supplying an international atmosphere with the music of several of the countries represented at the Olympics.

Walter O'Keefe, master of the magic carpet, will pilot his craft westward from New York, carrying his millions of passengers to Los Angeles to hear the Olympic stars and the music of Grier's orchestra.

Not Too Independent!

The freedom of American women doesn't appeal to the Rani of Jubbah, wife of Rana Bhagat Chandra Bahadur, C. S. I., Rajah of Jubbah, a small principality of 26,000 people in the Himalaya Mountains. She has been explaining to Americans on a recent visit that Hindu women desire independence in the home and have quiet "though" outside freedom, as a rule, without wanting to be independent individually as the men are. The women in her own country, she says, have all the independence that is good for them.

Racketeer in Film Learned From Life

Not all picture roles are pure fabrication. Lysie Talbot, playing the role of racketeer Eddie Shaw in Douglas Fairbanks, Jr.'s latest First National picture "Love Is a Racket," which comes to the Yucca theatre today and Wednesday, bases his characterization on a real personality, whom he often had the opportunity to observe while playing on the stage in New York. The New York milk racket king is the man Talbot took time out to watch whenever he got an opportunity, figuring that some day he might be called on to give a similar representation on the stage or screen. The "Milk Czar" parked his armored grey car within a block of Talbot's theatre for many weeks, and the young actor, after taking due precaution, secreted himself near it to observe the owner's exits and entrances. What he learned then, he has remembered, and though he has used this knowledge sometimes on the stage, this is the first opportunity he has had to try it upon the screen. "Love Is a Racket" is his first picture.

HARDWARE PLAYS STELLAR GAME TO WIN OVER ELECTRICIANS

By HERB A. ROUNTREE Midland Hardware went into eighth inning to clinch the top rung of the ladder and move Texas Electric down to second place when the two teams met in the second game Monday night, the score ending 3 to 2. "The Crowd Roars" might well have been the title of the story which was enacted, as the spectators repeatedly went wild in sympathy with either the nallsackers or the electricians.

In the seven o'clock game, celebrating Scotty Gemmill's sore back and Dick Morse's new baby, The Reporter-Telegram team dropped its game to the Petroleum Drug, moving to the ladder's bottom rung with the Petroleum. The new team outlit the opponents 3 to 5 but couldn't get to Slim Newton with bunched hits. Slim refused to walk a batter, Morse, pitching for Reporter-Telegram, passing three. Woody, at third base for Petroleum, got two of the team's five hits and one of the four runs, one being a four-put blow with two team-mates in front.

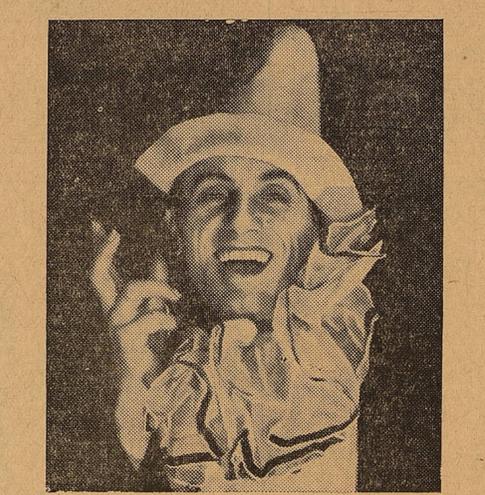

Hard hitting and good fielding won for the Hardware. They outlit Tesco 5 to 2. In the first inning, three walks and an error gave the electricians their two runs, but after that point the nallsackers tightened up and didn't allow a man to pass second base.

Hooks and Slides By William Braucher

Just as in boxing, certain fighters are "suckers for a left hand," so in baseball are some clubs easy for the southpaws to subdue. The league-leading Pirates offer one of the season's most flagrant cases of cousinship for the portersiders. Almost any left-hander in the National league, where there are no go-ones, is glad to pitch to Gibson's men.

Portsider Punishment A recent double-header dropped to Brooklyn illustrated the Pirate weakness. Max Carey started Watson Clark in the first game and he won eased up. Joe Shaute, who has not been able to finish a game all season, started the second, and for seven innings held the Pirates in check. He gave way to Quinn, the mopper-up. The Robins won both games.

Perhaps the reason why the Pirates are up there is the fact that they have cut the few good left-handers. Hubbell and Hallahan, with more than a dozen victories apiece, seem to be the only consistently effective wrong arm flingers in the circuit. All the others, except Freddy Heimach of the Robins, with four wins against two lost, are below the 500 mark in averages.

Cheerio, 'Sumpaws! Yet another one of the shopworn portersiders in the National League can take a fall out of the Pirates. One of the best games Heimach has pitched was a victory over the Pittsburghers.

Ancient Eppa Rixey won two of the first three games he pitched against the Pirates this year, and would have won the other if his mates hadn't forgotten their bats that afternoon.

Joe Shaute, on the shelf nearly all season, has been dragged forth whenever the Pirates get off the train, and about the only creditable performance he has turned in were at their expense.

Left Wing Attack Old Tom Zachary still has enough left to stop his cousins from Pittsburgh. Hub Pruet, brittle Bostonian, lost a game to 0 against the Gibson's team. Wyson of the Reds has beaten them, as have Walker and Hubbell of the Giants and Ed Brand of the Braves.

Obviously the Pirates are up there because of their concentrated attack on right-handers. The two Wainers, bawling left-handed, when they get into a game with Catcher Earl Grace and First Baseman Gus Suhr also hit from the wrong side.

In a world series against the Yankees at Athletics, the Pirates would find tough going. Gomez, Penneck and Wells would see plenty of action against the team if the Yankees got into a series with the Braves. Wells hasn't been so hot this year, but on the face of the Pittsburghers' showing against National League left-handers, he should be an eye money bet to win a game from them.

And Grove and Walberg, of the A's? Wouldn't that be just too bad!

Scientific Prophet Sees Travel in Mars

BY W. G. QUISENBERRY United Press Staff Correspondent

LONDON (UP)—Hugo Gernsback, American scientific prophet, predicted today that inter-planetary travel would dispose of the problem of economic depressions in the future.

Gernsback has some standing as a seer of scientific discoveries. He foretold the coming of wireless telegraphy and other modern miracles, and now is confident that the age of round-trip rocket excursions to Mars, Venus and other planetary neighbors is at hand.

"Economic ills that the world suffers from over production," said Gernsback. "Well, within 50 years we will be able to dump our surplus products, as well as our surplus population, on the planets."

The rocket airplane age, Gernsback declares, awaits only the discovery of a sufficiently high explosive fuel. He says it will spring into existence almost overnight, and then things will begin to happen so fast that previous scientific marvels will appear puny in comparison.

"Transatlantic flights will be made in eleven minutes," he said. "I predict that will come within 20 years. Regular passenger service between the planets will come within 50. After that we will be able to colonize the inhabitable planets with the surplus population of the earth."

"Certainly our migration skyward will be as acceptable to our Creator as our evolution from a tiny bit of protoplasmic jelly, swimming in the primordial swamps."

Gernsback thinks the earth-man is superior to any that might be living on the planets. Otherwise, he reasons, we would have had visitors from space long before this. The necessary rocket-fuel will be developed in some laboratory soon, he is sure.

Story Recalls Lost Battalion

ALLEDALE, Ill. (UP)—A recent United Press story from Varennes, France, stating that a searching party in the Apperment woods of the Argonne forest had uncovered the whole setting of one of the most dramatic incidents of the World War—the spot where the "Lost Battalion" was lost—brought memories of stirring war days back to a former soldier of Wabash County.

The former soldier is Paul Holsen, a veteran of the "Lost Battalion." He was one of the 600 who, encircled by Germans and fighting against thirst and hunger, was lost for days in advance of the American line in the Argonne. During a three-day period that the battalion was lost, Holsen was wounded.

It said sides of the hill are honey-combed with "fox holes" cut into the shale and just large enough for a man to hide, and that all around were accoutrements of war, left by the battalion.

When Holsen read the story, he expressed surprise that the scene of the battalion's activities had lain hidden and unknown for 14 years.

"I've never been back," Holsen said. "But I had supposed that the place where we were trapped had been marked."

"The spot written about was, in fact, the place where the culmination of our 'lost' period came. We were out there without connection with the remainder of the army and moved from place to place."

Holsen has been located in Honduras, Central America, for several years, but makes periodic trips back home.

Ellis Indians to Iraan for 2 Games

A two-game series with the Iraan Braves at Iraan Saturday and Sunday will bring Doc Ellis and his Indian baseball club up against a strong aggregation that fumbled Wink, 4-0 victors over the Indians on a slippery Wink diamond Sunday.

In the Sunday game, Bill Mayfield, wily left-hander, held the Midland sluggers in the palm of his horny hand, giving them only three hits, two of these of the fluke variety, and all so bunched that no Midland man advanced in halting distance of a score. Some of the heaviest hitting Irishmen did not even touch the ball, those who got away with a foul counting themselves as lucky.

Bill Howard and Bill Brown pitched for Midland and limited the winners to a half dozen hits, but some of these were clustered well enough to translate themselves into the quartet of runs.

British Rush 1931 Census

LONDON, (UP)—In a huge, gray, rectangular block of government buildings in West London, a small army of workers is feverishly completing the organization of data collected in the 1931 census. Gathering the original house-to-house reports is only the barest beginning of the giant task.

The full record of age, sex, color, residence, occupation, etc. of 40,000,000 persons must be transcribed from the original reports of the census takers to a card index for permanent filing.

There must be every possible economy of detail consistent with completeness and accuracy; abbreviations and code numbers incomprensible to the uninitiated, are used. The data are punched on cards by girls robots, doing 500 cards an hour with fingers moving at an unbelievable rate of speed. The cards, when punched (each one has an average of 16 or 17 notations), are taken to uncanny machines, which sort and count them at the rate of 16,000 an hour.

In order to supply all the various information required, the 40,000,000 census cards go through the machines 16 times. Details which cannot be conveniently recorded by machine are checked off

How much it may cost you Not to have a telephone

In case of sickness a single call may be priceless

Without a telephone "John, wake up. Betty has a high fever. You've got to go for a doctor." With a telephone "... and she seems worse, doctor. Please come at once."

If you do not have a telephone, this may be the REAL cost you are paying:

Lack of protection for you and your family... for your home and property

When there is an accident... a fire... burglars... prowlers... the value of a telephone cannot be measured in money. A single call may be priceless.

Loss of opportunities to get a job... or extra work

When there's a job to be filled, employers and agencies want to get in touch with you quickly. Not having a telephone means fewer opportunities for work.

Loss of time and money you can save by telephone

The telephone runs errands for you, to the grocer's, the butcher, the drug store, the laundry, the cleaners. Makes appointments. Gets information. Orders bargains. It saves your time and strength for the jobs that need to be done in person.

The cost of having a telephone is reasonable. The cost of Not having one may prove expensive. Call the Business Office. Say "I want a telephone."

FRIENDLY SERVICE Is Not "OUT OF DATE" It may be "modern" to render only the service that is absolutely necessary, but Conoco thinks otherwise. We believe that a Service Station should live up to its title wholeheartedly. Of course, you go to a service station primarily for oil and gasoline, but isn't it pleasing... and fitting... to have your windshield cleaned, the radiator filled, the tires checked, without having to ask?

you, give you dependable road information and maps, and inform you fully concerning local hotels, camps and sports if you are traveling? All these free services and many more are standard at Conoco stations. Conoco men do these things in a friendly, courteous manner. They are chosen because of their willingness to serve you... and trained to render their service expertly. Whenever you want gasoline, motor oil... or service... drive to the nearest Conoco station. sions, was reorganization's triumph. The R. F. C., having completed the absorption in Washington, proudly announced that it had fired 15 people at a total saving of $34,000 a year.

Those dismissed included an official who was making $4800, and a staff lawyer who was drawing $3600. The rest were clerks and the F. R. C. says that most of them were married women whose husbands were also working for Uncle Sam.

Now the absorption is being achieved in the field service of the commission and the division and out there 25 more employees will be canned at a saving of $43,000—a grand total of 77,000.

Deduct that $9000 added expense caused by the B. of N.-S. I. S. merger and you get a net saving of $68,000, which is almost as good as us every 15 minutes of the year to pay off expenses of past wars and preparations for possible future wars.

Sea Dog Sees Russia Fading

HOUSTON (UP)—Russia today, as seen by a British sea captain, who makes monthly journeys there with Texas cotton, is a nation paralyzed by the power and viciousness of three per cent of its population.

"It is ever becoming more eager to reach out and drag other nations into Communism," said Capt. B. D. Thomas, of the freighter New Westminster City. The hold of his ship was receiving bales of cotton for Murmansk.

"Something should be done about it, but I'm afraid it's too late. The country reeks of propaganda, while the people stumble dully along under a hypnotic state induced by their change from a two-class country to a non-class country.

"I dare say they were happier in the days of the czar than they ever will be in the days of the Tcheka, or its even more dreadful successor the GPU."

In the czar's time, said Thomas, the peasant with one ruble could buy a basket of vegetables. Today, he asserted, the peasant with a basket of rubles can not get one vegetable.

The hope that resumption of international trade will awaken Russia to decency and its economic needs is fading fast, Thomas said. "The United States should recognize the Soviet, I think," he said. "It would give Russia a bit of money and would aid the United States in that the entire Russian trade would quicken and provide freer international circulation."
