Mitchell is not even a member of the class, being a regular attendant at the Presbyterian Sunday school, but said he was glad to do anything to help a town movement like the big Men's class. J. T. Harris, member of the winning North side, volunteered to help Mitchell. L. A. Grantham will haul the men and the mortar out to Cloverdale this afternoon to do the work. Abe J. Gates is having brick already near the pit moved to the proper place.

"Human's Head" Made from Whale

Cyrus Gates would make a head hunter envious with his ingenuity. An ugly looking face that looks like a shrunken head of a human is nothing more or less than two ear drums of a whale set together.

Stationed at Wall and Loraine streets is a rolling home made from a hollowed-out Sitka spruce log. Cyrus Gates and his son Earl fashioned this unique departure in touring cars from one of the giants of the northwest forests. Up in Deming, Whatcom county, state of Washington, Gates and his son conceived the idea of showing just what could be produced in the way of big timber when they took a notion.

The log, thirteen feet long, and with a maximum diameter of seven and one half feet is mounted on a truck. The total weight is 8,000 pounds, the log weighing 5,000 pounds.

Many souvenirs of Alaska and the Pacific Northwest are exhibited within the log home. It is fitted with two bunks, compartment lockers below for storage, four chairs, a gas stove and wired for electricity. Gates and his son with Art Pearson expect to tour the United States.

"We had no candidate last year, and realized only after it was too late to put them forward the value of putting forward our own candidates. But the WCTU will figure in the general elections and will work hard to achieve its end."

Mrs. Murphy said that every candidate for city marshal answered the questionnaire sent out early in the week to those whose names were on the city election ballot, and that all replies were favorable.

The WCTU is setting out to achieve a ticket of sympathizers with the prohibition laws.

In hunting for clues in a recent treasure hunt in Big Spring by boy scouts, Robert Halley uncovered a surprising treasure on scenic mountain, located about one mile from the city.

He overturned a rock and under it was a small wooden box containing eight or 10 foreign coins. Dates on the coins led to belief they had been hidden but a short time.

Among the coins was an Italian piece, dated 1921, a Honk Kong piece of 1897 bearing a picture of Queen Victoria; a Greek coin of 1904, a two-mark piece from Germany; a 1917 one-cent Canadian piece, five centavos from the Philippines, a French coin of 1918 and two Mexican coins, five and 25 centavos.

"Big Bill's" Foe Is New Mayor of Chicago

Anton J. Cermak, Bohemian, grabbed off the biggest majority ever given a mayor of America's second city, in aiding the democratic threat to oust "Big Bill" Thompson. The ratio was fully 6-4. Thompson, at the right, is just recovering from illness. Cermak's slogan was: "Sweep the City Hall Free of Crime." Thompson's banner read: "Fight for Thompson; He Fights for You."

COUNCIL SCOUT ENCAMPMENT TO START JUNE 8

Boy scouts will encamp in the Maderia mountains this summer, according to Marcus J. Williamson, who said arrangements were so made at the executive board meeting Monday night in Big Spring. The encampment is located about 24 miles on the other side of Balmorea, and will open June 8.

Many Midland scouts are expected to attend. The cost will be a dollar a day per boy. Everything has been attended to in the way of preparation for the opening of the encampment, including sending away of water samples. These samples were tested and pronounced good by the state department of health, Williamson asserted.

Twenty-two men were at the executive board meeting, coming from Sweetwater, Colorado, Snyder, Loraine, Big Spring, Midland and Pecos.

W. Ily Pratt, the Rev. Thomas D. Murphy and L. O. Smith represented Midland. These said the plans include taking care of a big number of boys. Williamson said a field day will be held in Big Spring April 25, at which time a great crowd is expected. Dedication of the scout house in Big Spring will be held the following day. Penny Starts Fire; Truck Bumps Auto

Ellis Howell had saved a penny and, in lieu of no fuse, someone stuck it in the fuse box.

Result: smoke and lots of it at the Howell home on south side, and Mrs. C. R. Hines' car getting bumped by the fast running fire truck.

No damage of mention was done the Howell home, and Mrs. Hines' car escaped with a flat tire and a battered fender.

Mrs. Hines, who lives at 407 Cowden street, tried to cross the street at Missouri and Main so she could be out of the path of the truck. She had almost achieved her wish when the truck, turning south on Main swerved over near enough to scrape her car.

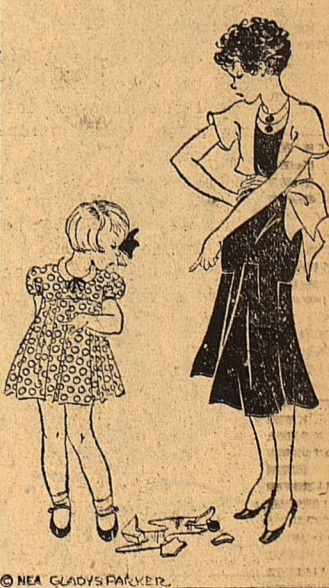

No one in the Hines car was injured.

Encouraged by reports from surrounding counties that none of the families who have availed themselves of the aid and advice of the farm and home demonstration agents had applied for Red Cross aid, citizens of Jones and Kent counties are asking for home agents. The Chronicle has endorsed the move.

Haskell county soon is to have its courthouse remodeled and repaired. The Free Press says that the county commissioners have awarded the contract to a Lubbock firm for $109,400.

Daily Washington Letter By Rodney Dutcher

Nicaragua's Population Isn't Equal to That of Several American Cities, but the Little Country, Now Stricken by Quake, Plays Big Part in U. S. Affairs

WASHINGTON, April 8. — The earthquake struck Nicaragua as she was striving to rehabilitate herself after years of unrest and revolt, engaging in a struggle rendered all the more bitter by the recent worldwide depression which gripped her principal industries.

Anyone who has traveled through Latin America, where national affairs, national life developments are nearly always primarily concentrated in national capitals, realizes the likely effect on the entire republic of the disaster which befell Managua.

Proportionately, the calamity is not so great when one recalls that Nicaragua's population of 638,000 is not equal to that of various American cities. And that Managua is not as large as many of our cities of which the average American hardly ever has heard.

U. S. Ran Election But the little Central American republic has been very large in our foreign affairs. American marines have been in Managua often and for longer periods than in any other foreign capital. This country stopped Nicaragua's last revolution and enforced the "free and fair election" which gave her the government which instituted her recent program of national reconstruction. We maintained the stability of the government and gave our blessing to the program.

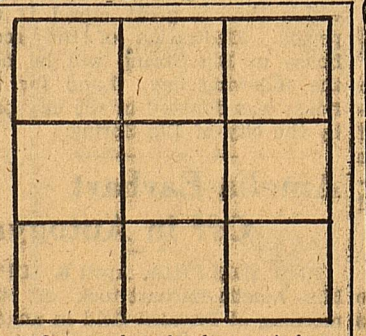

Now, after the sudden double affliction of earthquake and fire, it is the United States which has rushed to the rescue. And we still look to Nicaragua as the country through which we probably some day will build another canal from the Atlantic to the Pacific.

More than a century of recurrent disorder preceded Nicaragua's last three years of comparative peace and progress. Warfare was both internal and external. About 20 years ago, New York bankers took over the country's tangled financial affairs and in 1912 the United States made its first large scale intervention, sending 2000 marines. When the main body of marines withdrew we left a legion guard which parked at Managua until 1925. The Nicaraguan revolution of recent memory is that which followed the coup d'etat of General Emiliano Chamorro in 1926.

President Flea The elected president fled the country and Vice President Juan B. Sacasa, now minister to the United States, undertook to capture Managua with an army commanded by General Jose Moncada.

After warfare causing considerable property destruction and interference with the national economic life, the United States sent Henry L. Stimson to demand that both the advancing liberals and the conservatives lay down their arms and hold an election under marine supervision. All agreed except the works were being pushed forward on a large scale.

Government Regains Control The government had regained control of its bank and railroad and a new mortgage bank had been opened up for the aid of agriculture and industry. La Loma, the fortress overlooking Managua which was always the first goal of revolutionary movements because it so completely dominated the city, was razed and a splendid presidential palace erected on its site.

This country had erected a fine new legation and commercial concerns had gone ahead rapidly with improvements after the promise of continued peace had given them confidence. A road was begun to lead from Managua to the Atlantic coast, through territory now virtually impassable, along with several other important new roads. Railroad extensions were begun and dams here and there in the country for power and light systems. All this required strict economies in other ways and both determination and sacrifice on the part of Nicaragua.

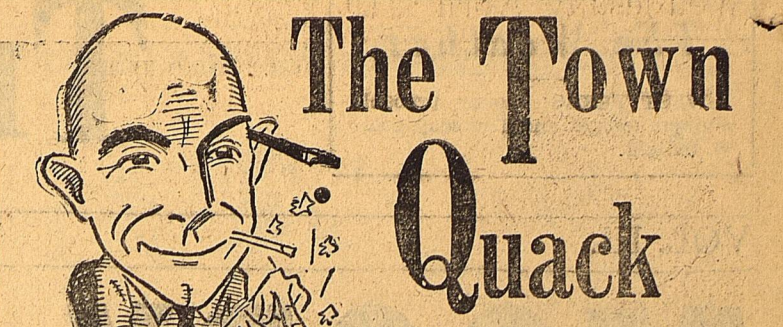

The full effect of the destruction of Managua on the country's immediate future cannot be told, but it probably will be an important one. And with a history of revolutions, wars, interventions and economic depressions, it seems that Nicaragua — now stricken by earthquake, fire and resultant distress — had had more than her share of the world's misery.

NO RESULTS

JACKSONVILLE, Fla. — Rev. A. C. Schuler's sermons might have an adverse effect if they all result like his recent one on "Thieves and Robbers" did. After he had finished his sermon he left the church to get his automobile, which he parked outside. Thieves had beaten him to it.

VOTE TWENTY TIES

ALLENTOWN, Pa. — The city council can't seem to decide who's the best man to take the place of James Holman, who recently died. Three members and the mayor cast votes twenty times, and the outcome stood at a tie after the last vote was cast. The two men running for election are Frank D. Beary and Elmer O. Osenbach.

(Reserves the right to "quack" about everything without taking a stand on anything.)

I can't see how I overlooked taking a more active hand in the city election. With my eyes on the cooking school (and the women attending), I lost sight of the big April voting event.

John Howe, when he discovered that he was running for mayor, realized that without my support he wouldn't get over with the best people and he quickly began to withdraw. It wasn't John's fault that he was a candidate anyway.

Charlie Guy, editor of the Lubbock Avalanche-Journal, was a visitor to our office yesterday. He reports everything okay over at the Hubub of the Plains.

Col. Erasmus Tack, that nationally famous columnist, editor and half owner of the Amarillo Globe-News and a dozen other papers, made his first visit to Midland. While here, he and Charlie Guy and John McCarty of the Dalhart Texan imbibed a coke prior to their departure for El Paso — just for practice, you know.

Col. Tack, whose real name is nothing but Gene Howe, said Midland was the most up to date little city he ever saw. That squad of uniformed bell hops over at the Scharbauer made him ponder about the Herring and some of those Amarillo hotels.

Col. Tack, it will be remembered, became nationally famous, or at least notorious, for his year-long squabble with Mary Garden; but, on her next trip to Amarillo, everything worked out all right and they are good friends now. Just a case of a grand opera star and a columnist allowing their eccentricities.

What tourists would like more than a United States of Europe is some united rates of Europe.

Mayor Walker of New York may have acquired a fine burn in California, but it will be nothing compared to the roasting he'll get back home.

BLACKMAILER SENTENCED TO FOUR YEARS FOR $12.50 LONDON. (UP). — Heavy prison sentences are being passed by London courts upon persons found guilty of blackmail in an effort to dissipate an increasing tendency toward this "racket."

Frederick William Sergeant, 39, a window cleaner, is one of the first victims of the campaign. He was found guilty of attempting to blackmail a widow of $12.50 and was sentenced to four years imprisonment.

MIDLAND MERCANTILE

RED CROSS HAS BROUGHT "LIVE AT HOME" PLAN

Little picket fences, tens of thousands of them, now dot the rural landscape of the southland.

Inside each picket fence is a garden plot, which means food for the family during the coming months.

The picket fences are particularly new in the delta country. Their presence represents a complete breakdown of the old plantation system which followed the time-worn plan of the share-cropper buying his foodstuffs at the planter's commissary, with the result that when the books were balanced after the crops were gathered, he seldom had a profit left.

Oddly enough, it took a disaster to teach the southern share-cropper and tenant the value of food and feed production. Likewise, the landlord apparently has sensed the mistake of depending upon one cash crop. Now, instead of insisting upon a single crop, he is advocating to his tenants, and practicing himself, the only safe program for southern agriculture—diversification.

An urge for less cotton acreage and the more feed and food production now can be heard in any section of Dixie. "After all," a prominent plantation owner recently remarked, "we can't eat cotton, it makes no difference how much we raise per acre."

But crop rotation is not the only benefit that seems to have been derived from the drouth. A decided "back-to-the-farm" movement is in evidence in a dozen affected states. This trek is returning to the agricultural belts thousands of individuals who in most instances started there, but were lured to industrial centers. Fortunately, most of them have learned the lesson of thrift.

Once established on a small farming tract, they will not be caught without a means of providing food for their families. The drift back to the rural sections has a double value inasmuch as it will result in fewer unemployed in congested areas. Quite another group, more restless than those mentioned above, can be found shifting from one county or state to another. Red Cross officials are urging those people to stay at home, instead of roving to parts unknown to them where credit and friends are lacking. Besides, as James L. Fieser, vice chairman of the American Red Cross, said this week, "Every community in the drouth area has its burdens and invasion of this restless group simply means added responsibilities."

At Murder Trial of Virginia Mountaineer

Picturesque figures in a murder drama of the Virginia mountains are shown here as they traipsed down from their hill country homes to the town of Luray when Dave Sours (left) went to trial charged with killing Ed Buraker, a fellow mountaineer, in a drunken brawl.

Following a 5,500-mile inspection tour through the drouth area, Fieser summed up the situation in five terse words. Upon his return to Washington, D. C., this week, he said, "The South has found itself."

In a statement issued during his tour the vice chairman declared, "Re-establishment of credit, diversification of crops and the back-to-the-farm movement, all form a combination which assures the drouth area of a comparatively speedy recovery."

"The Red Cross merely has been an important cog in the whole machine of recovery. Red Cross assistance is based upon need. Loss is quite another thing. When local resources became exhausted the Red Cross administered relief. Just as soon as drouth victims become able to provide for themselves our responsibility to the individuals ends. "But the Red Cross cannot leave any community," Fieser explained, "because the very people who make-up that community are the Red Cross. Without the people Red Cross obviously would not exist."

GRANDMOTHERS DOLLING UP LIKE BABES

HARTFORD, Conn. (UP).—There are no more grandmothers—they are all dolling up like 15-year-old babies," Emile Beauvais of Washington, D. C., president of the National Hairdressers and Cosmetologists Association, Inc., told the Hartford Hairdressers association.

"In fact as they grow older," he said, "they use more astringents, cosmetics, several kinds of cream and two or three coatings of powder. And they die and are buried with their make-up on."

42-YEAR-OLD BILL PAID WITH INTEREST

CINCINNATI, O. (UP).—Mathew Hermann, superintendent of the Bethesda Home for the Aged, stepped on a rusty nail 42 years ago while attending a school at Mt. Pleasant, Ia.

He was treated by Dr. Henry Schumacher, Davenport, Iowa, who presented him with a bill for $1.75, but Hermann being "broke," the bill went unpaid.

Recently Hermann met the doctor, whose name he had forgotten, during a visit to a son in Iowa City. Upon returning, the Cincinnati Hermann sent the doctor a check for $19.90, representing the amount of the bill with compound interest.

LIGHTNING IS TAMED; TESTS ARE IMPOSED

TRAFFORD CITY, Pa. (UP).—A 3,000,000-volt lightning bolt has been tamed in the laboratory of the Westinghouse Electric and Manufacturers company here. In fact engineers have taught the powerful flash a few tricks. Engineers developed the high voltage flashes in efforts to develop insulators for sub-stations and power houses to prevent the lightning bolts of nature from wrecking them.

The bolt was made to traverse a 75-foot wire. Traverse is a mild word to describe the flash which came and went in ten-millionths of a second. The wire simply went up in smoke.

Higher voltage could be developed, engineers said, but it would endanger the lives of workers and possibly damage equipment. Ordinary lightning is believed to carry from 8,000,000 to 10,000,000 volts; although it sometimes may be as high as 50,000,000 volts, engineers said.

The oldest set of bells in the United States is a set of four, bearing the date 1682, which hangs in the Moorish belfry of the Spanish Cathedral in St. Augustine, Fla.

Complete Dinner Prepared by Mrs. Darnell at Schools

Valuable Prizes Awarded at Close of Each Program; Magic Chef Gas Stove Given Friday by West Texas Gas Co.

The initial day, which was Federation club day, drew one of the largest crowds of Midland women to meet Mrs. Doris Darnell of the Chitwood School of Cookery at the first annual Reporter-Telegram school in the Dodge building.

In her model kitchen arranged by the Home Furniture company, Midland Hardware and Furniture company and Nobles Tolbert Hardware company, Mrs. Darnell prepared a complete dinner built around a prime rib roast.

Thursday's program will present another dinner starting with the pineapple cocktail. The main course will include meat loaf, spanish rice and turnips au gratin. Crushed banana cake and banana mousse prepared in the Frigidaire will be the dessert.

In preparing the dinner, Mrs. Darnell wiped the roast with Snowdrift and placed it in the waterless cooker from Nobles & Tolbert. Complement to the dinner and cooked in the cooker with the meat was onions, carrots and potatoes.

Salads for the program were Black Eyed Susan, complexion and pear salads. These with appropriate dressings were prepared and placed on the table for demonstration.

Other dishes demonstrated were a fluffy lemon pie, and white and yellow cake.

Flowers Presented A beautiful basket of gladioluses were presented to Mrs. Darnell during her lecture by the flower shop owned by Mrs. L. C. Waterman.

Chiffon and Lace Gown Modish Wedding Guest

BY JOAN SAVOY NEA Service Writer

You don't have to be a bride to be worrying about what to wear to the post-Easter wedding.

Being a chic observer at a wedding of the best people in town is often quite as distracting in its dress-problems as being the smart young bride who is doing the getting married herself.

By and large you have three choices to make this spring for the costume you will wear to Janet's wedding at St. Thomas'. Shall it be a lace gown, a figured one of the same kind or will you get a distinctive chiffon in plain color, one of the new shades?

The last choice is likely to dress you more sophisticatedly, more distinctively and less noticeably, which all goes under the name of chic.

Superb for the Easter wedding, and quite as good, I might add, for all kinds of afternoon or restaurant dinners or tea dances, is a blue chiffon gown in that heavenly blue that has an opaline touch to it, made with its own smart little wispy jacket that is fitted and has loose flaring long sleeves.

The gown has a low pleplum to its skirt, just over the hips and across the back and all up and down one shoulder there nestles as sweet a spray of gleaming white flowers as you could wish.

The ultra-femininity of this gown and coat is heightened by the sleek ballbuntl hat that sits up off one ear and down over the other, in the approved 1931 spring manner, with some of the same sweet flowers gleaming against the hair on the side where the brim tilts up.

A purse to go with this suit has the same flowers on its flap, and the rest of it matches the gown, as do the sleek crepe de chine pumps.

Each Different Kind of Salad Suggest a Different Kind of Dressing, Says Mrs. Doris Darnell

"If you want to bring variety and distinction to your salad course select your salads according to the part they are to play in the menu . . . and select a salad dressing that will bring out all the flavors of the salad."

This was the statement made yesterday at the Reporter-Telegram cooking school by Mrs. Doris Darnell in a talk on appropriate salad dressings.

"For every occasion," Mrs. Darnell said, "there is an appropriate kind of salad and four each different kind of salad these is an appropriate dressing. Mix the dressing suggested by the flavors of the salad."

Mrs. Darnell talked on appropriate salad dressings and made reference to the new book on this subject which was just written by Miss Mary B. Murray.

"Each kind of salad," Mrs. Darnell said, "has its own appropriate place . . . its own function in the pleasant art of dining. Some, for instance, serve best at formal dinners. Others belong to the luncheon or to the buffet supper. And still others are best suited for the bridge party or afternoon tea."

"The hostess of today, who may select her salad course from an almost limitless range, is presumed to know the correct salad for every meal and every occasion . . . and which dressing goes best with the salad she is going to serve."

"The dressing and the salad should 'go' with each other . . . just as cranberry goes with turkey and current jelly goes with duck. So, because of this, no one salad dressing can possibly be used on all kinds of salads. That would be deliberately disregarding all the possibilities our wide range of salads offers us. Each one would taste like all the others. All their individual flavors would be levelled to one test."

Just as Miss Murray says in her new book, nothing can take the place of the salad dressing you make yourself to suit the flavors of the salads. Because the dressing you make is a very definite creation . . . an expression of your originality and your own good taste.

"If there is one rule for success in salads it is this . . . Decide what part you want the salad to play in your meal and then select the salad that is best suited for the occasion. And then mix a dressing that best suits the flavors of the salad."

Mrs. Darnell made several salads which were proper for different occasions.

If you are going to have a formal dinner, Mrs. Darnell suggests an asparagus salad, which is to be served between the meat course and the dessert. In this case the salad refreshes the appetite after the hot, heavy meat course for the dessert. It should therefore be light and simple . . . and served with a tart Bachelor Club Dressing to bring out all the delicate flavors of the salad.

Mrs. Darnell gives the following recipe for the salad and its dressing.

Asparagus Salad Place three stalks of large asparagus on a thick slice of tomato. Put a ring of green pepper around the asparagus. Garnish with leaves of crisp lettuce.

Bachelor Club Dressing Beat together well six tablespoons of vinegar, a half teaspoon of salt, a teaspoon of mustard, and paprika. Then stir in two tablespoons of finely chopped onions.

If your salad is to be served before the main course, replacing the cocktail, a fruit salad would be most appropriate, Mrs. Darnell said. Care should be taken, however, to select a salad and a dressing not too sweet or too fulsome. An excellent appetizer salad would be a peach or pear salad which is made like this.

Peach or Pear Salad Place a half of a canned peach or pear on a nest of shredded lettuce and fill the hollow with American Cheese

FOR LUNCHEON

The luncheon salad is often the main course. So it should be rather substantial . . . like this Tuna Fish Salad: After removing the tuna fish from the can marinate it. Pack the fish into small cups to mold it, and place in the ice-box for several hours. Unmold the tuna fish on beds of crisp lettuce and serve with Devilled Dressing which is made like this:

Mash two cooked egg yolks smooth and blend with two tablespoons of Wesson Oil. Stir into this two tablespoons of cream, one and one-half tablespoons of vinegar and seasoning of a teaspoon of salt, a fourth teaspoon each of paprika, and onion juice. Add one tablespoon each of chopped green pepper and minced pimiento.

*1. marinate: Mix six tablespoons of Wesson Oil and two tablespoons of vinegar or lemon juice. Add a teaspoon of salt, one-eighth teaspoon of pepper. Pour this over the salad material and set aside in the refrigerator for several hours.

FOR BRIDGE

Your bridge guests will prefer a salad that is a happy medium between sweet and sour . . . a pleasant appetizer for their evening meal . . . such as grape fruit, and orange salad. Alternate skinless sections of grape-fruit and orange arranged with a garnish of pimiento-strips, make a salad that is mellowed by Cream Cheese Dressing.

To make Cream Cheese Dressing: soften a package of cream cheese with four tablespoons of Wesson Oil. Add a teaspoon salt, one-fourth teaspoon each of white pepper and sugar, and thin with two tablespoons of lemon juice. Pour over salad and dust with paprika.

FOR DINNER

Gowns are more sophisticated for dinner. Salads too! Served as a separate course, the simple salad is best. Perfect, tender asparagus tips, slipped through a ring of green pepper or lemon-rind, placed on a single thick slice of red-ripe tomato. Serve with Chiffonade Dressing, which is made like this:

Beat together eight tablespoons Wesson Oil, two tablespoons vinegar, half teaspoon salt, one-eighth teaspoon pepper and paprika; tablespoon chopped pimientos, half tablespoon chopped parsley, and a minced hard-boiled egg.

Dressing. Decorate with three large raisins.

American Cheese Dressing Mix four tablespoons of Wesson Oil, two tablespoons of lemon juice, a tablespoon of orange juice, a half teaspoon of salt, three-fourths of a teaspoon of sugar, a half teaspoon of paprika and one-third of a group of grated American Cheese. Beat until all ingredients are thoroughly combined.

Sometimes the salad plays the part of the main course . . . at a luncheon, for instance. Mrs. Darnell said that such a salad should be as hearty and substantial as this crabmeat salad.

Crabmeat Salad Marinade and chill a half-pound of crabmeat. Add to it three hard-boiled eggs cut in small pieces, two tablespoons of finely chopped parsley and two tablespoons of chopped olives. Garnish with hard-boiled eggs. Serve with Ravigote Dressing.

Ravigote Dressing Mash two cooked egg-yolks smooth and blend with two tablespoons of Wesson Oil, then add two tablespoons of cream, one and one-half tablespoons of vinegar and seasoning of salt, paprika and onion juice. Now add minced hard-boiled egg-white. Beat vigorously.

This recipe calls for marinating which means letting the salad ingredients stand in French Dressing for several hours. TO MARINATE, mix six tablespoons Wesson Oil and two tablespoons of vinegar. Add a teaspoon of salt, one eighth teaspoon of pepper. Pour this over the crabmeat and set aside in the refrigerator for several hours.

ROCKNE PASSED ON LEGACY OF TECHNIQUE, FEW OTHER GIFTS

ROCKNE'S LIFE A PERFECT PLAY, THEY SAY

By WILLIAM BRAUCHER, NEA Service Sports Editor.

When Knute Rockne went swirling to his death in a broken plane, he left one American gridiron gifts that never will be forgotten.

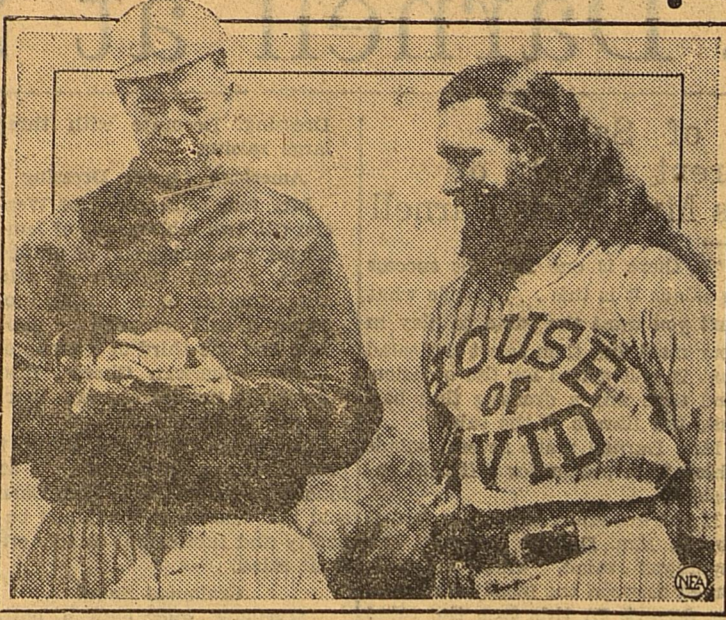

He left the immortal memory of his first All-American player; George Gipp. Other All-American men developed under the careful hand of the South Bend genius were Quarterback Carideo (who won the honor in 1929 and 1930); "Clipper" Smith, a great guard; Harry Stuhldreher, quarterback of the vaunted Four Horsemen; Jack Cannon, the bareheaded guard, and Bud Boeringer, center of the 1926 team.

Though he scored a "system" as such, he left a great pattern of play for posterity to follow. It was the precision, rhythm and efficiency of the Rockne shift that dominated the game in the last few years to such an extent that new rules were directed against it. He developed this simple yet devastating maneuver to the same point of perfection to which he brought the forward pass years earlier.

His "shock troops" have become a legend of the gridiron. One of his greatest coaching desires was for ample reserves. Often he sent second and third string men to the field to start an important game, many times thereby gaining a psychological advantage over his football foe.

The seven All-American men he developed are not many, considering that the coaching regime of Rockne goes back 14 years. But perhaps the main reason why more of his men were not chosen for the mythical elevens was Rockne himself. He placed ball-carriers second to blockers. Every man on a Notre Dame squad caught this spirit—or left the squad. Rockne clung to plays that were thoroughly tested. Most of the plays were not complicated, but he knew that they would click if every man performed his job of blocking.

Alex in "Bush" League; Comes Here

Grover Cleveland Alexander, former National league pitching hero, who seldom needed more than a haircut and shave to get in trim for a baseball campaign, doesn't need even that now. He has signed to pitch for the House of David semi-pro nine. This photo, taken at Mineral Wells, Texas, the spring training base of the House of David team, shows Old Alex and Dave Harrison, star third baseman of the club, discussing the new baseball. Alexander will be seen in a game here in early May.

The Northwestern game last year was a perfect illustration. Big Purple linemen and backs for three periods and part of a fourth smothered the same plays time and again. A little something went wrong on each of these failures. Until well past the middle of the last quarter,

Notre Dame was being shoved around. Then, suddenly came the perfect play. Schwartz went through tackle and ran nearly half the length of the field for a touchdown. One after another, the Purple tacklers were dropped in their tracks by the South Bend blockers.

That play was Rockne all over. All of the much talked of Notre Dame "system" was wrapped in that one play. To begin with it must have taken great faith for Carideo to call it, after seeing it slaughtered so often. It was faith that Carideo got from Rockne—and in the pinch, he had it. And it must have taken great persistence and courage for the players to carry through with the play that had been knocked cockeyed time and again. It was persistence and courage they got from Rockne, too—and in the pinch they retained it.

Rockne's life was like that "perfect" play. In high school he failed to make the team until his senior year. In his first workout at Notre Dame he looked like anything but a football player. But he kept on, "calling the same plays" with the faith and courage that some day the big click would come.

Rockne almost had to leave school following the death of his father in 1912. Aided by his sister, he overcame even that obstacle, and it was in the very next year, as captain, that the Dorais-Rockne pass ascended the east and ran an odd-on Army eleven ragged.

After being graduated, Rockne remained as assistant coach under Jesse Harper for four years. Gus Dorais was another assistant. The story is that when the opportunity to become head coach at the University of Detroit was presented, Rockne and Dorais flipped a coin to determine who should take the job. Dorais won and took the Detroit offer. Rockne remained at Notre Dame, and when Harper left in 1918, Rockne was the man for the place.

SPORTS REPORTS

If you want to improve that golf score, make a private bet, arouse a bit of competition and then shoot.

Such an arrangement worked for Aubrey Legg, anyway.

Aubrey, John Howe and another or two were out Sunday afternoon. Aubrey was late to reach the links and round the others ready to drive at No. 3 tee. He was taken into the group and asked—what score he wanted for the two holes missed. He said he would take a 14 for the holes, but would bet he could make 12 on them.

After the round was made, John Howe took the bet and the two started on the second round. Both parred the first, Aubrey parred the second, but John "blew up." Aubrey got hot and made four holes in a row, in par. Both golfers made good scores.

When it comes to addressing a ball, Bob Scruggs does it two ways: before hitting it, and afterward. Some of his statements are worth remembering but, sadly enough, don't fit here. Bob is known to be temperamental when it comes to associating with the little white sphere with the colored dots. He is paternal with it when one of his long-shots gets off down the fairway, but when he occasionally dubs one—

He was hittin' 'em a long way yesterday, long sizzling shots that taken great faith for Carideo to call it, after seeing it slaughtered so often. It was faith that Carideo got from Rockne—and in the pinch, he had it. And it must have taken great persistence and courage for the players to carry through with the play that had been knocked cockeyed time and again. It was persistence and courage they got from Rockne, too—and in the pinch they retained it.

Those who stand on No. 1 teeing off place and have their caddies shag balls are growing numerous. Golfers are working on the pet admiration of a famous golfer who said: "If you can't turn in the score of a good golfer, at least you can look like one." So several are developing form on the No. 1 fairway and letting the walk around the links be taken up by those who like.

His gifts of impartiality and loyalty he leaves only as a tradition, of course. Hundreds of coaches throughout the country are copying his methods, but Rockne's own qualities of companionship and leadership went down with him in the torn plane. These are intangible attributes, born of experience from within, and there is no way of mimographing those traits and passing them around.

Notre Dame football men had faith in him not only because he knew his stuff but because he was loyal to them under every condition. Once in a hard game against Indiana, his team pulled out winner by a single touchdown, which stirred to lamentation some of the alumni who had bet on a four-touch-down victory.

TOMORROW: Rockne's Psychology.

From the looks of the chart left on this department's desk this morning, it appears the telephone company beat the De Luxe laundrymen about 4-2. Various clubs have various ways of keeping scores. They should get together and decide on a uniform method of scoring games and get the box scores made out and turned in to this department by nine o'clock on mornings following games. Texas Electric Service company is the only club in the league that has been consistent in this. A special agent of that company also compiles data that will show at the end of the season just what each electrician did in each game, with all averages, etc. Very neat, and more clubs should take that much interest in their men.

The telephone company-laundry game was attended by a real thrill in the very last minute of play. H. L. Bunnell, playing in right field for the telephone lads, made a sensational running catch to retire the last batter for the laundrymen.

Ferguson of the Ferguson-Brown tennis combination was in a moment to say a tennis meeting will be held this evening at 7 o'clock on the fifth floor of the Thomas building. Godby, taller half of the God-by-Stubbeman combination, is ready to pow wow about an official season starting in tennis. We will try to get in on the tall end of the meeting, as usual. We assume the pass word—won't be difficult—just the raising of a racket. Marcus J. Williamson gives us a ring from Big Spring. Discounted rumors he has teamed up with Bobby Campbell the sports writer. Ever since the scrivener got the the-

When a single pistol shot opened an empire

The famous Oklahoma Land Rush of April 22, 1889, when the crack of a pistol opened 1,900,000 acres of land to homesteaders.

The first Post Office at Oklahoma City, opened April 23, 1889, the day following the great Oklahoma Land Rush. Drawn from an actual photograph. Postmaster G. A. Beidler is shown standing in front of the Post Office, guarded by his son, Chase Beidler.

FOR YEARS Captain David Payne and his followers haunted the borders of what is now Oklahoma. Time and time again they built settlements, only to be driven out by the red men . . . their homes gone in clouds of smoke . . . trampled under the hoofs of Indian mustangs.

But such adversity only added fuel to the perennial American urge to pioneer and to seek homes in a new land of promise. Their persistence was rewarded when on March 23, 1889, a proclamation was issued by the President, opening 1,900,000 acres of land for settlement. How a single pistol shot changed an unpeopled and untamed Canaan one day into an American commonwealth the next, is now history. April 22, 1889, saw thousands of eager settlers, waiting for the solitary pistol shot that would open the way to wealth beyond conception.

Among the last States to be admitted into the Union, Oklahoma is now third in oil production and ranks among the leaders in cotton and wheat. In 1905, two years before Oklahoma was admitted as a State, the discovery of the Glen Pool near Sapulpa forever placed Oklahoma in the vanguard of all oil-producing States.

In the comparatively few years since the first discovery of oil west of the Mississippi River, millions of dollars have poured into the pockets of the people of the Southwest through royalties, leases and taxes. Railroads have realized a tremendous source of revenue . . . millions of people have been given jobs . . . bank deposits have grown fabulously . . . cities have bloomed where prairies once existed . . . the entire realm of business has profited and prospered.

That the founders of the Magnolia Petroleum Company were among the first refiners west of the Mississippi is not nearly as important as the fact that in a single generation this pioneer oil company has supplied every conceivable need for petroleum . . . changing and improving its products constantly to meet the changes and improvements in automobiles, industrial and farm equipment.

Just as the Magnolia Gasoline and Motor Oil of ten years ago were ideally adapted to the motors of that time, so are the Socony Motor Oil, Magnolia Maximum-Mileage and Magnolia Ethyl Gasolines of today tuned to the needs of the modern motor car . . . carrying you luxuriously and efficiently over historic Southwestern trails.

C. N. PAYNE A Founder, Magnolia Petroleum Company When 15 years of age he drilled his first oil well. One of the three original owners of the J. S. Callinan Company, Corsicana, Texas, the pioneer refinery (1898), Mr. Payne selected the name "Magnolia". He died in 1926.

WHEN YOU BUY a Ford you buy enduring beauty. The body finish is made to last for the life of the car and practically all exposed bright metal parts except the bumpers are made of enduring Rustless Steel.

This Rustless Steel has great tensile strength. It is the same bright metal all the way through. A salt test equivalent to forty years' service under the severest weather conditions failed to have any effect on its brilliance. It never requires polishing. All you do is wipe it with a damp cloth, as you do your windshield.

This is just one of many features that show the substantial worth of the Ford. In speed, comfort, safety, economy and long life—in the richness of its finish and upholstery—it brings you everything you want or need in a motor car at an unusually low price.

PIGEONS BEAT PLANE
 OSLO.— Even though the modern airplane has attained a very high speed, it is slow compared with the flight of pigeons. In a race from this city to Jesshim between an airplane and six carrier pigeons, five of the birds beat the plane to the goal. The sixth finished in a dead heat with the plane.

NEW INVENTION TO HANDLE THE ZEP LANDINGS

WASHINGTON, April 8. (UP).—Further developments in the difficult art of handling the huge and cumbersome lighter-than-air craft of the Los Angeles, or Graf Zeppelin type, are now being perfected, according to reports made public by the navy department.

Latest mechanical invention to reach a practicable stage is a mobile mooring mast, running on tracks, and cutting down the number of the ground crew needed from 200 to 60.

Last year the navy put into use a stub mast, hauled by a tractor, which was successfully used in handling both the Los Angeles and the Graf Zeppelin. This latest invention operates on much the same principles, but substitutes a mast running on railroad tracks.

Parallel tests are now being made to determine whether the old "crawler" mast, or the newer "rail-mast" is the most practical. Navy officers hope to reach a decision on standard equipment before long.

Both types of mast under consideration, navy aeronautical officials said, can be adjusted to handle the giant dirigible Akron now building, which is larger than any other lighter-than-aircraft ever handled.

Ambulance Crew Won't Be Nurses

BRIDGEPORT, Conn. (UP).—When Robert Wheeler, 51, refused to obey his wife's command to go to bed and walked out of their apartment, Mrs. Wheeler called Emergency Hospital. A doctor and ambulance driver responded to the unusual request and found Wheeler in the cellar, sitting near the furnace, smoking his pipe.

Wheeler still refused to go to bed so the hospital attaches decided he was old enough to know his own mind and left.

PLANET EROS IS DASHING TOWARD US

LONDON. (UP).—The planet Eros is dashing toward the earth at terrific speed but astronomers are remaining calm.

It still has 16,000,000 miles to travel before the crash is expected. Eros, discovered by a German in 1898, is distinguished from other planets by the fact that its path at one point lies nearest to that of the earth.

Astronomers throughout the world are taking photographs of it twice nightly as part of an attempt to measure the sun's distance from the earth.

Five-Day Week Next Objective

WASHINGTON, April 8. (UP).—Federal employees, who won a substantial victory recently with the passing of the law granting them an all-year-round Saturday half holiday, now are ready to move for a five-day week and reduction of the retirement age, it was disclosed at a banquet held here by Federal employees Union No. 2.

The next legislative battle of Government workers will be on the issue of the five-day week. Henry G. Nolda, secretary-treasurer of the union, declared.

John S. Beach, chief of the retirement division of the Pension Office, and V. J. Biller, chairman of the committee on education and retirement of the union, urged the need for retirement at a younger age.

Billers said workers should be retired after 30 years' service, regardless of age. Beach suggested the age limit be reduced to 60 for all classes of employees.

Further legislative reforms were urged by Joseph Stansfield, president of the union, who suggested establishment of a "Board of Civil Service Appeals" to which employees might carry complaints of "unfair" administration of compensation and efficiency ratings.

Three Identified As Cafe Robbers

JENNINGS SAYS TREASURE HUNT "JUST BOLONEY"

CHIHUAHUA CITY, Mex., April 8. (UP).—Al Jennings, famous bandit and train robber of the early Oklahoma days, is beginning to believe that his newest occupation—that of hunting buried treasures and lost mines in Coahuila and Chihuahua—is just "so much boloney."

His latest exploit, however, shows that the lure of quick riches still rules his heart. Jennings adds excitement to his search for lost treasures by using an airplane.

He recently cracked up. But his plane is in shape again and he is on the trail of mythical riches.

"I haven't found anything yet, but I'm liable to strike it rich just over the ridge, or down in the next valley," he hopefully says.

"Treasure is like raw gold—it's where you find it, you know. From my experience so far, I've come to the conclusion that these old maps and symbols concerning exact locations of buried treasure and lost mines are just so much boloney."

The former outlaw turned to evangelism after giving up his criminal career. Later he turned movie actor and played in several western films. He also had dabbled in Oklahoma politics.

He was a writer for a time and his serial magazine story, "Beating Back," brought out his various escapades from outlaw to politician.

Refrigerator Display Inspected by Many

The demonstration truck of the E. O. Cone company visited Midland Saturday. Included in the display were two commercial refrigerators and two water coolers.

Saturday being trades day here, hundreds of people inspected the refrigerators.

This should be a banner year for sale of refrigerators, according to B. F. Taylor, merchandising manager for the Midland district of the Texas Electric Service company.

The display is being shown throughout West and North Texas.

Vicksburg Paper Is a Curiosity

AUSTIN, Texas, April 8. —What is said to be the only original copy now in existence of The Daily Citizen, Vicksburg, Mississippi newspaper, dated July 2, 1863, just two days before the Confederates surrendered Vicksburg to the Federals, is the property of H. B. Carroll, instructor in history at the University of Texas.

"So far as is known," Carroll said, "no copy of the paper as it was first set up, was ever made. The incoming Yankees found the type as the fleeing Confederates had left it, and one of the soldiers was so amused at the propaganda that the defendants of Vicksburg had been fed upon, that he added a note, ran off some prints, and sent copies to friends of the North for souvenirs."

The note was added July 4, and included the following: "For the last time it (The Daily Citizen) appears on 'wall paper.' No more will it imagine the luxury of mule meat and fricasseed kitten, urge Southern warriors to such diet never more. This is the last wall-paper edition, and is, excepting this note, from the types as we found them. It will be valuable hereafter as a curiosity."

A Union editor is described in The Daily Citizen as a "pink-nosed, slab-sided, toad-eating Yankee, who is a lineal descendant of Judas Iscariot and a brother germ of the greatest Puritanical sycophant howling scoundrel unhung."

According to Carroll, all copies of the wall-paper edition of The Daily Citizen, except the one in his possession, have been lost.

Blubber is now believed to be the equipment that enable whales to withstand the pressure of great sea depths.

AZTEC CALENDAR HELD IN ARIZONA MUSEUM'S VAULT

PHOENIX, Ariz. (UP).—A replica of the Aztec calendar stone, showing the time keeping methods of the Aztec Indians, has been secured by the Arizona Museum.

The scale is one inch to the foot, but, nevertheless, the replica shows the main features of the calendar which centers around the discovery, ages ago by an Aztec Indian, that the North Star was a fixed star.

From this discovery was evolved the calendar of the Aztecs which provided for a year of 18 months and 20 days each with five holidays between the end of the old year and start of the new.

The original calendar stone is in Mexico.
