CRANE RANCHMAN SHOT IN QUARREL OF GRASS LEASE

FT. STOCKTON, April 9.—T. C. Barnsley, prominent rancher and manager of the V-Rocker ranch in Crane county, was brought here Wednesday by Sheriff Bud Blair of Crane in a dying condition.

Barnsley was shot through the head with a pistol.

Jack Hall surrendered to Sheriff Blair at Crane after the shooting.

The bullet entered Barnsley's left temple and came out through the back of his head. He lay in his truck on the ranch for more than an hour after the shooting before Sheriff Blair arrived. Doctors here said he is dying.

Barnsley was known throughout West Texas as a successful rancher. The trouble was over ranch interests and division of leases.

LEA COUNTY CASE IS WATCHED WITH MUCH INTEREST

Decision of the United States circuit court of appeals handed down a few days ago affirming ownership of the United States to oil, gas and water to land homesteaded under the act of Dec. 29, 1916, affects 358 homesteads in Lea county, N. M., and probably many other homesteads of the more than 372,000 in the west.

The affirmative decision was made in an appeal of the case of Ivan Sken of Lea county vs. Beulah V. Lynch of Roswell and the Texas Production company of Denver et al. It affected mineral rights on a section of land in township 20-south of range 34 east. When an oil and gas lease was granted Beulah Lynch, Sken sought to show that the reservation by the government of "coal and other minerals" applied only to solid minerals and did not include percolating or migrating minerals such as oil, gas or water.

Tom W. Neal, counsel for Sken, contemplates appealing the case to the supreme court if the appeal can be financed. Lea county people are now wondering if this decision will affect water rights in the irrigation districts now under state control.

WASHINGTON, April 9. (UP)—Secretary Wilbur announced today that the Federal Oil Conservation board had approved the plan for stabilization of the petroleum industry presented today by the Oil States Advisory committee.

He pledged aid of federal authorities of the plan.

Increased Advertising As Aid to Business Is Decided by Committees

Increased advertising and publicity throughout this area of West Texas to increase Midland business was authorized Thursday morning at a joint meeting of the Trades day special publicity committee and the steering committee of the chamber of commerce office.

The publicity committee composed of Fred Wemple, T. R. Wilson and Clyde Y. Barron, held a preliminary meeting at which an advertising budget was adopted.

The program calls for distribution of 6,500 circulars in 11 towns and communities, the circular to be carried in a special Trades day number of the Midland Reporter-Telegram. Clyde Y. Barron was employed to distribute the circulars. The committee also recommended advertising in 14 out-of-town newspapers and in the local daily.

Cost of this is to come from those business men participating in the Trades day program, but no merchant will have any extra cost above last month. In other words, the present Trades day plan as used last month will finance the advertising decided on.

The publicity committee made its report to the steering committee at which Addison Wadley, W. Ily Pratt, J. M. Speed, John Bonner, T. Paul Barron and the chamber president were present. Fred Wemple presided over the joint meeting.

Reports were made showing increased business and general satisfaction of merchants and good will of surrounding towns.

Under the new plan, only those merchants who are actively participating in the Trades day program will be included in the general advertising which is financed by the participating merchants themselves. Any member of the chamber of commerce is eligible to participate and may enter at any time.

Freaks Elope

He was a South African "wild man." She was a circus freak, with lips distended as large as saucers. That don't prevent them from eloping, as love, you know, laughs at barriers. But what did matter is that they took $500 belonging to the woman's husband, according to grand theft complaints issued at Los Angeles against Jennie Lambze, shown above, and Caucasus Bird, the "wild man." South Sea Island Joe, the woman's husband, made the complaint—when he missed the $500.

Had "Duo" lived, David Neatherlin would have claimed one more kitten that the mother cat knew trailed around with her litter.

Neatherlin lives on the Jesse place, five miles northeast of Midland.

TRIPLE HOLIDAY

ELIZABETH, N. J.—Mr. and Mrs. William J. Mitchell were very busy, celebrating a triple holiday recently. It so happened that their 71st anniversary, Mr. Mitchell's 93rd birthday, and St. Valentine's Day fell on the same day. The couple have been married since 1860, and have three children, ten grandchildren and seven great-grandchildren. Mrs. Mitchell is 91.

FRIDAY IS LAST OF SESSIONS

Ice Cream Served to Hundreds by the Snowwhite

Pleasant weather, recommendations to friends and neighbors of women attending the cooking school, continued publicity and attractive attendance prizes were given credit for the continued growth in attendance registered today at The Reporter-Telegram School of Cookery.

Today's early crowds forecast a capacity house for the final day, Friday afternoon from 2 to 4 o'clock.

Ice cream was to be served at the close of the session today, compliments of the Snowwhite Creameries. Valuable attendance prizes, to the number of 25 or 30, were billed for distribution this afternoon.

Mrs. Doris Darnell, representative of the Chitwood School of Cookery, of Dallas, under whose auspices the four-day event is being staged by The Reporter-Telegram, has received high commendation from women who have attended the previous sessions. Her lectures and demonstrations are described as practical, yet replete with novel ideas and time-saving methods.

Recipes Requested

Well known successful cooks of Midland have enjoyed asking for favorite recipes for purposes of comparison with their own methods and have expressed compliments for some of the suggestions given.

Booths of exhibiting merchants and manufacturers, changed from day to day, continued to attract admiration today. The nursery on the third floor of the Thomas building, with two high school students in charge, eliminated the necessity of taking children to the cooking school building.

The meetings are being held in the former Dodge garage at the corner of Missouri and Loraine streets. Seats for approximately 600 are provided and the majority were in use as the session got under way today.

Friday is expected to draw a capacity crowd when the gas range, used in the demonstrations, is given away by the West Texas Gas company.

MACHINERY HERE FOR STARTING OFF EAST-WEST ROAD

Machinery is being unloaded from a freight car here for starting of construction on the east-west paved road through the city limits of Midland, County Judge M. R. Hill said.

The project, which will be completed in approximately 60 days, will be 20 feet wide and will employ local labor exclusively.

Employment will be increased through use of county residents at the rock crusher east of Midland, where approximately 20,000 square yards of stone will be crushed.

Grading will begin Monday.

The road will be one and three quarter miles long, and three quarters wide.

Whitham & Co. of Wichita Falls and Dallas hold the contract.

Oil Road Started

Preliminary work has been completed on part of a segment of the oil field road from McCamey via Crane City and Odessa to Andrews, which is to be paved. Completion of the paving will give either direct connection or connection by short side roads to seven different oil producing areas in Crane, Upton, Ector and Andrews counties. The road is already paved from McCamey to Crane City.

Nearness to Fields Exploited Here

Midland is using the present let-up in activity in the Permian basin to exploit the economic advantages of operating from Midland as office headquarters, no field being over two and a half hours distant from offices in Midland, the literature states.

Minimum temperature was 44 degrees.

NO PLAYTHING

MONTREAL—William J. Ledger and Alphonse Dorais, young bank clerks, decided to stage a hold-up drill while other employees of the bank were out to lunch. Ledger, representing the robber, advanced on Dorais with his finger pointed as if it were a revolver. Dorais grabbed a weapon on the teller's desk and pulled the trigger. Ledger fell with a bullet through his stomach. Both men told police they didn't know the gun was loaded.

NEW YORK, April 9. (UP)—Harry Stein, 32, known to police as a Broadway racketeer, dope peddler and petty thief, was charged today with the murder of Vivian Gordon, who is reputed to have made her living preying on wealthy men on the edge of the underworld.

Irion Wildcat Hits Production

Irion county had a new producer in wildcat territory when Stanolind's No. 1 Wilson struck pay from 4,155-73 and had 300 feet of oil in the hole late yesterday.

The wildcat is in the center of the southeast quarter of section 1-196, T. T. Ry. survey.

Nearest production is from shallow wells about ten miles northwest, producing from near the 1,190 foot level.

"GUSHER" NOT HEARD OF

Rumors that the A-1 Cowden well in Ector county was gushing oil "all over the prairie" apparently were not correct, for such reports had not reached the Southern Crude office at 2:15 this afternoon.

Other offices had not heard the rumor.

VETERAN STRICKEN TWO DAYS

Condition Was Kept a Secret Until Recently

AIKEN, April 9. (UP)—Nicholas Longworth, 61, speaker of the house of representatives in the 69th, 70th and 71st congresses died today.

The speaker died two days after his serious illness became known.

Fear that Longworth might not survive the night was expressed by Dr. R. H. Wilds, one of his attending physicians, late last night.

Condition Unfavorable

Dr. Wilds expressed his apprehension after issuance of a formal bulletin signed by all three of the physicians attending the speaker, who was stricken with pneumonia Monday night.

The official bulletin read: "Mr. Longworth has grown rapidly worse during the day, and the outlook is extremely unfavorable."

It was signed by Dr. Wilds, Dr. Thomas G. Brooks, both of Aiken, and Dr. V. P. Snyedstricker, a specialist from Augusta, Ga.

After the terse bulletin was given press representatives, Dr. Wilds was asked if in his opinion there was imminent danger for the patient.

He replied that he feared the illness might "take a fatal turn" before daybreak.

Wife at Bedside

Longworth was on the brink of death today. His wife, Alice Roosevelt Longworth was at his bedside.

Physicians said that they felt death was only a matter of hours. His condition last night was extremely unfavorable, said the doctors.

Relative Ill

TUNIS, Africa, April 9. (UP)—Countess De Chambrun, sister of Nicholas Longworth, was critically ill today of bronchitis. She was not informed of her brother's death.

Pierpont Morgan May Visit Here

Likelihood of the visit here about Saturday of J. Pierpont Morgan, northern capitalist and big stockholder in the Continental Oil company, Dan Moran, president of the Continental, and other company officials was expressed this morning after local officials learned definitely the party will stop in Big Spring and take a bus through the fields to the south of Big Spring and return to Monahan to catch a train.

The party travels in two Pullman cars, and numbers 23.

$1,000,000 LEGAL FEES

The million-dollar fee in a lawsuit is something that always jabs the attention of the ordinary citizen. It seems rather high. It makes one wonder just how great a man's legal attainments must be to make such a fee proper.

A few days ago it was announced that fees "of at least $1,000,000" for their services in 14 years of litigation about oil patents were being asked by ex-Senator James A. Reed and Charles W. German of Kansas City, lawyers.

The man in the street, probably, is moved by such news items to remark, peevishly, "No lawyer on earth is worth that much money." But the interesting point is that that complaint is unjustified.

Legal procedure has grown extraordinarily complicated during the last few generations. It isn't anybody's fault, and the remedy—if there is one—isn't on the horizon just at this moment.

As a result, the ordinary man, when he bumps his head into it, is lost. What seems a fairly clear problem in everyday life grows devious and baffling when it gets into court; and what is actually complicated to begin with takes on the proportions of an insoluble puzzle.

This is not the fault of the present-day lawyers. They did not invent the system. It existed before they tried their first cases, and sometimes it seems beyond human influence.

Nevertheless, the system is a drag on our economic and social life. The more fact that our method of settling disputes between man and man has grown so complicated that a lawyer can honestly earn $1,000,000 for his part in such a settlement is ample proof that we need a rather thorough revision of the whole procedure.

A PLAN FOR OUR VIRGIN ISLES

Commenting on the impoverishment in the Virgin Islands, which he recently visited, President Hoover declared, "Viewed from every point, except remote naval contingencies, it is unfortunate that we ever acquired these islands."

And perhaps Virgin Islanders are just as sorry as the president that the United States ever made the purchase. Since we took possession of this little trio of islands in the Caribbean 14 years ago, their profitable rum business has been ruined by the Volstead act and their commerce hampered by our shipping regulations.

But it is a mistake to assume that we can do nothing in restoring, in some measure, the prosperity they once enjoyed. The natural charm of the islands, which have been called "The Garden of Eden of the Caribbean," suggests, for one thing, that we might develop them as a resort.

It would require no superhuman effort on the part of the government to lure some of the thousands of Americans who travel to Bermuda, Cuba and Panama to the tropical playground which really belongs to them.

Marked Increase Shown in Last Few Years in the Number of Women Who Have Received Appointments to Executive Positions—89,000 Employed by Federal Government

WASHINGTON, April 9.—Women are still exceptions in the best government jobs, appointive and elective, but there has been a marked increase during the past few years in the number who have received appointments to administrative and executive positions.

The federal government employs 89,000 women, reports the National League of Women Voters after a survey of women in public office, and many of them serve as department division chiefs, supervisors of special department activities, librarians, business specialists, legal assistants, statisticians and naturalization officers.

Some of the more important jobs held by women are those which more or less obviously ought to be held by women. There's Chief Grace Abbott of the Children's Bureau; Chief Mary Anderson of the Women's Bureau; Chief Dr. Louise Stanley of the Bureau of Home Economics; and four women who are in charge of the nurses of the War Department, Navy Department, U. S. Public Health Service and the Veterans' Bureau.

Woman on Tax Board But there is also a female member of the Board of Tax Appeals, the U. S. Customs Court and the Civil Service Commission. And there's Mrs. Bessie Brueggeman, chairman of the U. S. Employees' Compensation Commission. Mrs. Anna Tillinghast is commissioner of immigration at Boston and there are women who serve as collectors of customs in North Carolina, Iowa, Hawaii, Tennessee and the Utah-Nevada district.

Mary O'Reilly is assistant director of the mint and is the most important person in that bureau. The Justice Department, deprived of Assistant Attorney General Mabel Willebrandt, still boasts a woman on the parole board as well as a female superintendent of the women's prison at Alderson, W. Va.

The Interior Department reports a woman serving as assistant commissioner of education and the State Department seems to have more women officials than any other department; the chief of the office of coordination and review, two assistant solicitors and four vice consuls serving at Valparaiso, Beirut, Geneva and Ottawa.

There are women trade commissioners at Shanghai, Oslo and Rome and assistant trade commissioners at Bogota, Barcelona, Madrid, Santiago (Chile), and Havana.

13 Women Sent to Congress The League of Women Voters also notes that 13 women have been sent to Congress, including Mrs. Rebecca Laimer Felton, who served in the Senate for one day, to wit Nov. 21, 1922. Ex-congresswoman in the order of their election are Jeanette Rankin of Montana, Alice Robertson of Oklahoma, Mrs. Winifred Huck of Illinois, Mrs. Katherine Langley of Kentucky, Mrs. Ruth Hanna McCormick of Illinois and Pearl Oldfield of Arkansas.

Several women, especially in New York, serve on state labor, industrial welfare and industrial boards, the outstanding one being Miss Frances Perkins, head of New York's Department of Labor.

One of High Court Bench There is hardly any administrative board or commission in state government organization that hasn't had a woman member, the league finds.

Two Ohio women, Judge Florence Allen of the Ohio Supreme Court and Associate Judge Genevieve R. Cline of the U. S. Customs Court, occupy the highest judicial posts ever held by women. Women are mayors of small cities and there's a sprinkling of them in county and municipal government posts over the country.

As poor an investment as the $25,000,000 we paid for the islands may now seem, there is no denying they have possibilities as an all-year-round resort. It is a lamentable fact that this paradise must be called the poor-house of the Caribbean.

OUTPUT OF MOTOR CARS IS SLOWLY INCREASING

BY ALLARD SMITH Executive Vice President, The Union Trust Co., Cleveland, O.

No industry is more significant of the direction of general business than that of the automobile. Since the first of the year, production of cars and trucks has been pointed upward. In some respects the expansion has been disappointingly slow, but the fact remains that with each succeeding month greater numbers of motor cars are being turned out.

39 states, four fewer than in 1929 but 20 more than in the 1927-28 legislative season. They include 88 Republicans, 51 Democrats, four non-partisans, one Socialist and two elected by both Democrats and Republicans. Forty-six were re-elected and 13 are state senators.

Connecticut has 21 women in its legislature, New Hampshire 18 and Vermont 16. Legislatures without women in 1931 are Alabama, Kentucky, Louisiana, Michigan, Nevada, Oklahoma, South Dakota, Tennessee and West Virginia.

Only Two Were Governors Only two women have been governors—Mr Ferguson of Texas and Nellie Ross of Wyoming.

No woman was ever elected a lieutenant governor nor has any state ever experienced one as an attorney general, but at the first of this year women were serving as secretaries of state in Kentucky, Louisiana, New Mexico, South Dakota and Texas. North Dakota has Mrs. Bertha Baker serving as state treasurer for her second term and Arizona has a woman as state auditor.

Several women, especially in New York, serve on state labor, industrial welfare and industrial boards, the outstanding one being Miss Frances Perkins, head of New York's Department of Labor.

One of High Court Bench There is hardly any administrative board or commission in state government organization that hasn't had a woman member, the league finds.

The Town Quack

(Reserves the right to "quack" about everything without taking a stand on anything.)

A lot of women who have gone through life saying, "I never won anything in my life," have been more fortunate since the cooking school opened. With 25 or 30 prizes given each day in a crowd of from 400 to 500 women, they can't all lose.

I want to disagree with the editor of the Clarksville Times who said, "Of course everybody realizes that when people begin talking about patronizing home merchants, ladies are always excepted. No woman has ever been able to get a fit in a pair of shoes in the town she lives in, no matter how small or how large the town may be."

That's the kind of talk you hear from a small town close to a big one. Midland is a big town within itself. Its merchants carry stocks on a par with those of much larger towns and women here don't "think it's smart" to say they bought their shoes in Fort Worth or Dallas. Midland women are doing a big work in helping local stores grow.

High-toned people, points out the office sage, are not necessarily people of note.

A Dutch boxer, after losing to his English adversary, kissed him in the ring. Apparently determined to get a smack in somehow.

Wave of Gambling Now Sweeps the Whole World

By PAUL HARRISON, NEA Service Writer.

NEW YORK.—The world is going in for gambling in a big way. In countries where race betting, games of chance and lotteries have been legalized before, the industry—and it is an industry—is rapidly expanding. In parts of the United States, race track gambling, once outlawed, has been legally approved, and in many others it is openly countenanced. And in Nevada, of course, Lady Luck now offers every sort of temptation.

Four States O. K. Race Bets
The pari-mutuel system of race betting is permitted in only four of the United States—Maryland, Kentucky, Illinois and Louisiana. In many others, such as Ohio, the "certificate system" of selling a mythical interest in a horse, and a chance for the buyer to share in his winnings, is allowed to operate with only occasional interference. In California, such a system actually has been upheld as legal by the state supreme court.

In recent sessions of legislatures, pari-mutuel bills have been introduced and defeated in North and South Carolina, Indiana, Missouri, Texas, Pennsylvania and New York. Such a bill is to be introduced in Florida early this month.

Bookies Thrive
In New York, where legalized gambling is conceded to have no chance of legislative approval, private bookmakers do a thriving business independently of the associations or the Jockey Club, which governs racing in the state.

In states where the pari-mutuel system is used, however, racing commissions are taking from 5 to 8 per cent of the amounts placed and claim they are able to offer larger purses and get better horses than associations with no income from bets.

Lotteries Make Gains
Every big legitimate sweepstakes, such as the recent one on the Grand

In more and more such scenes as these is the world-wide craze for gambling manifesting itself. At the top you see how English racing fans place their bets through booths resembling the American pari-mutuel system, which already has the approval of four states. Sketched below is a group of society folk bucking the bank at roulette in one of the casinos which are becoming more numerous abroad as well as in Nevada and off the southern coasts of Florida and California.

broadcasts. These were quickly snapped up by the gullible as tips on lottery winners. No fancied tip is too wild to ensnare the hopeful gamblers who play the wildcat, the irresponsible pools which flood every city with their tickets.

Ever since this country began to manifest an interest in foreign lotteries, such as the sweepstakes on the English Derby, and on the Agua Caliente Handicap and the Grand National, there has been a large traffic in spurious tickets. Thousands of such counterfeits have been sold on the Canadian Army and Navy Veterans lottery, to be decided by the English Derby on June 3.

Nevada Opens Up

Only in Nevada is gambling in nearly all its forms permitted. From quarter slot machines to racing pools, from chuck-a-luck, blackjack and craps to faro and roulette, "you pays your money and you takes your choice."

Numerous gambling houses are known to be operating quietly in the resort cities of Florida, but they still loom small in comparison of volume with the establishments in Cuba, where gambling is conducted under state auspices, and is permitted in cafes and dance halls. Much the same situation obtains between the small pleasure resorts along the southern coast of California and the American-owned resort at Agua Caliente.

But it is not always necessary for the southern tourist to cross to foreign soil in search of unmolested gaming. If he has money enough for an all-night tilt against the wheel or the cards, he may be taken in a sleek speedboat to a floating casino beyond the 12-mile limit.

Off-Shore Gambling

Several of these vessels, luxuriously fitted, have operated from time to time off the California and Florida coasts. The proprietors of one ship resort publicly announced their intention of moving up the Atlantic coast to an anchorage off Atlantic City when the winter season ended in the south.

Over on the French and Italian Rivas, keen competition is promised for the sucker trade. The Italian government is contemplating the establishment of a huge gambling center, actually a more or less independent little state, to draw tourist patronage away from the French.

France, however, has taken the leading making betting easier and gaming tables more accessible. Racetrack betting long has been legal there under the pari-mutuel system, by which the government takes 11 per cent placed. Now the Paris Mutuel Urban, or betting off the course, has been inaugurated. Under this arrangement, bets can be placed in state-controlled booths in cities throughout the country by fans who cannot attend the races.

France Out for Share
Since the war there has been a ban on casinos in the vicinity of Paris, but a measure now is before the French senate which would permit wide-open gambling. Furthermore, a daring proposal has been made by Fernand Morlette, Municipal Councillor, for the building of a giant casino in Paris. He would have a luxurious public gaming center and employ the profits for public works.

SHE WAS LUCKY

MILWAUKEE.—Just after Mrs. Winifred Hannon sent her laundry out, she discovered she had lost a $2000 diamond ring. She appealed to police, who after hearing her story went to the laundry. One of them went through the bundle she had sent and found the ring hidden in the clothes.

UNIVERSITY PRESIDENT DEFINES "COLLEGE BRED"

URBANA, Ill. (UP).—Dr. Harry Woodburn Chase, president of the University of Illinois, is rapidly attaining a reputation as a humorist.

At a recent conference with members of the Illinois State legislature, assembled to listen to his plea for passage of a bill appropriating $11,780,000 for the University's biennial expenses, Chase went a long way toward capturing the support of the members in appealing to their humor with a story in which a new definition is given to the term "college bred." "It means," he said, "the flower of youth and the dough of old age."

HUNTERS FIND MONTANA DREAMED OF PARADISE

HELENA, Mont. (UP).—Montana is a paradise for big game hunters, and one of every three persons who sought big game in Montana's national forests last season was successful.

More than 7,850 big game animals were bagged by the 22,600 nimrods who scoured the hills. The 1930 bag included 2,000 elk, 5,000 deer, and 580 bear of which about 30 were silver tips.

The animal census showed approximately 53,500 deer, 13,000 elk, 1,570 moose, 2,300 mountain goats, 6,200 mountain sheep and about 8,400 bear of the black and 600 of the grizzly species.

GET STRANGE JOB

BERLIN.—Doctors at the Berlin Zoo have many problems to overcome in the treatment of animals which the ordinary physician does not encounter. Here are some of them:

Harry, the zoo elephant, needed medicine, but refused to take it until it was mixed in a huge bowl of rum. He liked it so well in this form that he was disappointed when he recovered that he was given no medicine.

An ostrich had its neck cut open in order to have a piece of coal removed that it had greedily gobbled.

To operate on an elephant, the doctors find that they have to administer an anesthetic three times as strong as that given a horse before it will lose consciousness. This is about ten times the dose given a man.

Menu for Steak Dinner Suggested by Mrs. Darnell in School Table Talk

With the demonstration on meat the feature of Friday's program at the Reporter-Telegram Cooking School, Mrs. Doris Darnell will explain thoroughly the preparation and selection of meats.

She also suggests a menu built around the steak which is given in the following Table Talk:

Menu Broiled Steak Mashed Potatoes Stuffed Carrots New Cabbage Salad Strawberry Whip Coffee

Cooking Steak—Following some curious custom, almost every bride chooses steak for her first home dinners. It is a quick cooking meat and so she assumes that it is the easiest meat to prepare. There lies the great delusion.

The fact is that steak is one of the trickiest meats to prepare. Almost anything else is easier. A roast or a stew that has to cook a long time will be tender when it is finished, and the worst that can happen will be that there will be more flavor in the gravy than in the meat.

But unless a steak is well chosen and prepared exactly right, it is not fit to eat. And the longer you struggle with it the worse it gets.

Instead of jumping headlong into the problem, there should be some premeditation. Steak should be among the last, not the first of the cooking experiments. It is always an expensive cut if it is worth buying at all, and you have to watch it during the entire cooking process.

True, it takes no more than 15 minutes at most—and usually less, but you must give it your whole attention while preparing it. Stick a steak in the stove and go ahead with the rest of the dinner and the chances are that the steak will be overcooked, tough, and spoiled. Then the only way to rescue it is to run it through the meat-chopper, and buying hamburger steak raw is cheaper and quicker.

Care in selection—To insure a satisfactory finished product, care must be given to the selection of the steak. The cut must be chosen and for this purpose a porterhouse is the best for flavor and tenderness. Next is sirloin. Tenderloin is tender, but does not have as much flavor or juice as either of the other cuts.

A good steak has a bright color—is delicately veined with fat and is surrounded by a layer of white fat. The outer edge of fat should be cut in several places before broiling, to prevent the meat from curling. Steak should be cut at least one inch thick and preferably one and one-half inches. Thin steaks lose juice and flavor by the time they are cooked. Better therefore, to select a small, thick steak, then a large, thin one.

Steak requires intense heat. Heat the oven fully ten minutes before putting the steak in. Rub the rack with a bit of fat so that the steak will not stick and tear. Place the steak on the rot rack, quite close to the flame and let it brown or "sear" (which will keep the juices in the meat.) Then turn and brown the other side. Do not stick a fork into the meat when turning it as this little puncture will let the juice escape. Use two long-handled spoons for turning instead of a fork.

When both sides are browned nicely, lower the flame a little so that meat does not scorch. Continue cooking until done. Time for cooking—a steak one inch thick takes from seven to ten minutes of cooking, depending whether it is preferred rare or well done. A steak one and one-half inches thick will take from ten to fifteen minutes of cooking.

While the steak is broiling keep the serving platter and individual plates where they will stay hot. As soon as the steak is finished put it on the hot platter with its own juice. Place a small lump of butter on top and season lightly with salt and pepper. Do no season during the cooking. Adding salt while cooking a steak draws out the juice and also tends to toughen the meat.

Last, but not least, it depends considerably on the grade of meat whether the steak will be tender and flavorful or otherwise—and here is one place where it pays to patronize a higher class of market and purchase only the best. To balance up the higher cost of such a steak, the meat for the next day may be a stew or meat loaf, or some other dish requiring a cheaper cut of meat—but if you plan to serve a steak by all means serve only the best.

Menu Plan

In the above menu these things just emphasized in cooking steak have been taken into consideration, and every effort made to leave but little last minute preparation. The Strawberry Fluff may be prepared well in advance and will be better for standing and getting thoroughly chilled.

The cabbage salad, too, may be made in advance and the first cooking of the carrots. After they are stuffed the final cooking is done in the oven, while the steak is cooking. This leaves only potatoes to be mashed, and if preferred plain boiled potatoes may be served with a dressing of melted butter and chopped parsley.

Stuffed Carrots 6 medium carrots 2 hard-cooked eggs 1/2 cup chopped canned mushrooms 2 tablespoons butter, melted 1/2 teaspoon salt

Scrape carrots and cut in halves lengthwise. Steam until tender, but not thoroughly done. Cool and scoop out the centers, leaving boat-

Mary B. Murray's Salad Books Given At Cooking School

Copies of Mary B. Murray's latest book on salads and their appropriate dressings are being distributed at the Reporter-Telegram cooking school.

The book not only deals with the subject of salad dressings but it also contains much information in regard to the selection of salads according to the part they are to play in the menu.

"There is a right kind of salad for each occasion and there is a right kind of dressing for each salad. When I wrote this book I had in mind the many women who wrote to me seeking information about how to select and serve salads . . . and what dressings to serve with them. In it I have tried to answer some of their questions."

This statement was made by Miss Murray in a recent interview when she was asked to explain just why she wrote the book.

"In it," Miss Murray said, "I have tried to emphasize one point. It is this: No one or two salad dressings, with one flavor, can possibly be used on all kinds of salads. That would mean the reduction of all the delightful flavors of our different salads to one monotonous taste. Each kind of salad calls for a dressing that is best suited to bring out its flavors. Every woman should mix the dressing suggested by the flavors of the salad she is going to serve."

"If I can make this point clear," Miss Murray said, "and make women realize the wonderful possibilities that salad dressings offer them, I will be extremely happy."

Several hundred copies of Miss Murray's book will be distributed at the Reporter-Telegram cooking school when Mrs. Darnell will give a special talk on the subject of appropriate salad dressings. If you want extra copies, or if you fail to get your copy at the school, a request to Miss Murray will bring one to you.

ROCKNE'S WAY WITH HIS MEN WAS HIS GREATEST PSYCHOLOGY

FOOTBALL WORLD AMAZED AT HIS KNOWLEDGE

BY WILLIAM BRAUCHER
NEA Service Sports Editor

Knute Rockne was blamed for a lot of "psychology" that he never deserved. Most of Rock's psychology was expressed in his handling of men.

Thus several years ago Rockne started a second team backfield in a game with Princeton. There were many comments in the Sunday newspapers to the effect that Rockne "by a master stroke of psychology had upset the aplomb of the mighty Tiger."

The fact was that Rockne started that substitute set of backs because the first string backfield was being disciplined. It happened that the men of the first string backfield had begun to take themselves pretty seriously, owing to a number of laudatory writeups they had received. Rockne's "psychology" brought them down—and when he did send them into the game they romped like wild horses.

Last year, he scouted the powerful Northwestern team personally. When reporters sought him out, asking an opinion of the eleven that Notre Dame was to meet the following Saturday, Rockne spoke in this wise:

"We may have some trouble with those big Purple linemen—but I'll be able to tell you how good they are next Saturday night."

Was Rockne aiming that as a psychological dart at his own men? The fact is that Notre Dame did have plenty of trouble with "those big Purple linemen" just as Rockne had said—but the touchdown, after three and three-quarter periods of gruelling line-play and end runs, finally came when Schwartz carried the ball right through tackle.

Carideo had called line-play after line-play against the Purple and had seen the attempts wrecked before they could get fairly started. Undaunted, as though trying to make Rock's prediction about "how good they are" come true, he kept plugging away with end runs and off-tackle plays.

Finally, that off-tackle play went through. Carideo had answered Rock's question. The team had dispelled Rock's doubts as to what could be done to "that big Purple line." It was as though the Notre Dame team that day had taken up a challenge from its coach—and made him like it.

Before the game with Southern California, Rockne tremulously uttered a fear that Notre Dame would lose by a couple of touchdowns. Perhaps that was psychology, but there is a chance that Rockne down in his heart believed what he said. I always will think he WAS afraid that Notre Dame would take it on the chin in that game.

That was another challenge to his men. They answered it by getting the jump on the vaunted Trojan and running away with the game before the Californians could get going.

In this game, Rockne showed his characteristic consideration for his men, and at the same time raised their efficiency to its highest point by using for the first time in the season the huddle. The huddle, of course, took time, and that is what Rockne figured his men would need to get their wind coming suddenly into a warm climate to play.

Of his handling of men, it has been written often that he was never abusive. That may be, but his tongue could sting. I have seen him perched on the high platform at practice, with four teams running signals, and heard him harshly criticize some player who was loafing or going through the motions without the required fire and dash. He spared no persons—Captain Tom Conley, who came in for a public rebuke shortly before the Pitt game last year, can verify that. But Conley took his medicine like a man, and played a great game through out the schedule.

Rockne was an unerring judge of men, and though he knew how to make their necks red with a biting word, he was loyal to them and they called him friend.

He loved the Four Horsemen, but did not hesitate to bawl them out bitterly when occasion demanded. Once in a game against Princeton, Sleepy Jim Crowley lagged on a run and was nailed by Slagle from behind. In the dressing room Crowley remarked that he hadn't thought Slagle was that fast. Replied Rock: "Oh, well, maybe Slagle didn't know who you were. If you had shown him those New York clippings you have been saving, telling how

SPORTS REPORTS

Midland will be host to each member of the association at least once, and will make a visit to the course of each member.

Billy Moran took Bill Hoey down a notch on the ladder yesterday afternoon, and Jimmie Harrison withstood the challenge of Pat Riley. The match of Delo Douglas and Bill Lake went the full 18 holes, with Douglas getting the edge, we understand.

How do they do it, these fellows who look like they never try to hit a ball more than 100 yards? Jack good you were, he wouldn't have dared come near you."

Bareheaded Jack Cannon loafed once too often in practice on the eve of the Army game in 1929. Rockne shouted "Stop!" from his throne on the high platform. Then:

"You fellows might as well go to the showers before Cannon spoils any more plays!"

Cannon was stunned—but he came back. His play against Army next day when he was all over the field making tackles and taking out men, was one of the most brilliant bits of guard work I have ever seen. Rockne had read him rightly.

Rockne himself minimized psychology for the sake of his men. He taught them to depend upon themselves. They were thoroughly tested for errors by being allowed to make them, even by being led on to make them so they could be corrected.

After he was sure of his quarterback he let him do his own thinking. It used to be a popular misconception that Rockne, with the game going against Notre Dame, would send in substitutes with instructions for the quarterback. While it was true that the sending in of certain players—such as Two-Minute Brien—gave the quarterback his cue as to what play he might get away with, it was not necessary for the substitute to hold a conference with the signal caller. What had been drilled into the men in practice they knew, almost instinctively, how and when to use in a game.

Rockne left the game itself largely in the hands of the men. His work was done during practice. He did not want them to get the idea that any of Rockne's psychology was going to save them after the kick-off.

He was a master psychologist in that, anyway. They certainly played for him.

Johnson slapped the ball around the links yesterday as though he were using his putter. When the scores were turned in he was low on every hole except a couple that had been halved. Bob Scruggs and this department went along. Incidentally, Bob has just about broken his habit of slicing. No more will short pants figures over on a parallel fairway look up with surprise as a ball sings by completely out of control.

Bobby Campbell comes out with the following dope on the transfer rule, something we've been waiting to see. Coach Barry here is strong for the measure.

"A straw vote conducted by M. H. Duncan, superintendent of Lubbock schools, reveals that of 415 schools of which 246 voted, 173 or 70 per cent are in favor of adopting the one-year eligibility ruling, and 73 or 30 per cent, against it. The stamps could have been saved. It is generally accepted that the majority of school officials are for the ruling. It will be found, however, that those voting against it are those school officials who have never been benefitted by transfer athletes. Let a school put a winning team upon the field, be it a home manufactured product or an imported one, and that school official immediately is against the transfer ruling. We entertain little doubt but what the ruling will be adopted."

"According to the Interscholastic Leaguer, Jinx Tucker, Waco sports editor, is in favor of a ruling even more treacherous than the one-year ruling. The sage would have a measure which would make athletes ineligible at all schools save the one where they started their eligibility. Of course it is not hard for a fairly intelligent person to understand why Mr. Tucker would prefer of a ruling of this type. It would give the Waco high school a clear stretch to the state championship. Smaller schools would have no chance, with a ruling making all their transfer athletes exiles. Tucker's suggestion, besides absurd, isn't fair. It isn't fair to the athlete; it isn't fair to the school. Unless, of course, it's the Waco school.

"Incidentally, Superintendent Hood of Wichita Falls, is against the ruling. It is his opinion that there is no evil in imposing athletes. He rather accepts it as a game, and lets it go at that. 'Let's quit,' he says, 'hunting around to see if other towns are obeying every rule and get busy ourselves. I am for athletics as well as every feature of the school. I have never seen a boy ruined playing football or basketball.' To which Roy Bedichek, editor of the Interscholastic Leaguer, adds tersely, 'Needless to say, we think Superintendent Hood's attitude, if generally adopted, would wreck high school football completely in less than five years.'

Dependable Gas Service, like good health, is seldom considered while we enjoy it, but is appreciated keenly after it disappears. Your gas service is regarded as a good gas service only if it meets your needs 365 days in the year, every minute of the warmest day of Summer or the coldest day in Winter.

Day and night, the members of the West Texas Gas Company work diligently at their task to insure such a service.

Stickler Solution

The diagram of two circles may be drawn, without lifting the pencil from the paper, in this manner: Take a piece of paper and fold a corner in, as indicated in the diagram. Then draw the inner circle to touch the edge of the folded piece. Then draw over the folded corner of the paper until you reach the point where the outer circle is to be. Start the outer circle and, when you get back on the main paper, remove the folded corner and complete the outer circle.

CLAUDE C. WILD STRONG FOR NEW PIPELINE BILL

The other side of House Bill 554 was presented in an argumentative letter written The Reporter-Telegram by Claude C. Wild, executive vice president of the Independent Petroleum Association of Texas.

The letter in part follows:

"The character of propaganda spread by the pipe line companies, and by the integrated oil companies owning pipe lines, with regard to the pipe line bill, known as House Bill 554, is typical of the methods used by those organizations in trying to control the state government, as well as the oil business of Texas.

The bill is only a corrective and cumulative measure, seeking to make it easier for the railroad commission to properly regulate and establish rates of common carriers.

"The present law was sponsored by able men, among them the present governor of Texas, and it is a good law as far as it goes. But, in stating that the railroad commission shall establish rates, it does not give them any basis on which to set them. The proposed law says that they shall be set on the basis of a fair return on the investment necessarily used. The present law does not, of course, provide for an appraisal of the properties. The proposed law does. There is no provision for joint line rates under the present law. There will be, if the new law passes.

"The basis of all this effort is to secure a reduction in transportation rates. They now are such that the four big companies earned in 1930 on their investments as sworn to by them of 24 per cent; 19 per cent; 25 per cent and 25 per cent. How much more they actually made is, of course, unknown.

"The companies dominating the situation in Texas know that this bill will mean an ultimate reduction in rates, and for that reason they are threatening to disconnect from leases, in order to force certain independents to oppose the bill, and for the same reason they are coercing merchants into signing petitions asking the legislature to reject the bill.

"The reason they are making such a determined effort is because they know: (1) that pipe line rates are now too high; (2) that they are kept high for the purpose of preventing the transportation of oil through their pipe lines by others; (3) that they desire the rate so high that it cannot be used in order to force the sale of the oil belonging to small producers in any specific field to the pipe line company or to its affiliated company; (4) that they desire this control in order to be in position to determine the destination of oil going out of any field with particular desire to prevent its going into competing refineries that may sell on the open market in competition with the company owning the pipe line; (5) that, through all the oil out of a certain field is produced and purchased by companies engaged in the pipe line business, every royalty owner and producer in the territory is vitally effected by the established pipe line rate.

"The owners of the major pipe lines know that they have set the price of Texas oil on tide water basis. The farther your oil is from tide water the lower its price. The higher the pipe line company can keep the rate, the lower the net price paid to you for oil. For instance, Gulf Coast oil can be put on tanker for $1.13 bbl. leaving .93 to the producer as a posted price. Panhandle oil can also be placed on a tanker for $1.18, but, .75 is charged for gathering and transporting the oil, which nets the producer in the Panhandle 43 cents.

"Now the Texas company, Humble and others purchase the oil in the Panhandle from others for 43 cents average and pay to their own companies, the pipe line subsidiaries, the .75 cents. They claim what the rate is when they take it out of one picket and put it in another is nobody's business, but the facts are that if this .75 were reduced to 40 the price of Panhandle crude would be .78 instead of .43.

Magic Chef Range Praised by Darnell

The stylish Doric model, Magic Chef range to be given away as grand prize for The Reporter-Telegram cooking school by the West Texas Gas company, charms all who see it.

"Style has made a triumphant entry into the kitchen" says Mrs. Doris Darnell, conductor of the school, when discussing the range. "Built to endure, Magic Chef will give you many many years of superb cooking service. It offers practically everything formerly found only in higher priced stoves—modern design, harmonious colors, efficiency, economy of operation and, while compact, has ample cooking capacity for ten people. The famous red wheel oven heat regulator cooks whole meals to perfection while you go out and enjoy yourself. With all steel construction, ivory porcelain enamel finish with green cracked enamel trim, porcelain enameled linings, cool bakelite handles and numerous other attractive features, all contribute to make this a smartly styled range."

The Tiffin and Doric models of the Magic Chef line are handled in Midland by the West Texas Gas company and Barrow Furniture company.

price of 25 cents prevails and it costs more than twice that amount to gather it and transport it to tide water. The same transportation cost prevails now that existed when the same oil was around $1.00 a barrel.

"East Texas' only opportunity to remain out of the clutches of the pipe line companies and to defeat the low prices paid for their oil now will depend on a low transportation cost to the market.

"By the simple process of establishing their own tariffs, so high that you and others cannot profitably use the common carriers in Texas the large integrated concerns have by that one simple process established a control over the oil business as follows: (1) over the amount of oil to be produced from a field because the market of same is thereby set at the amount of oil the pipe line company or its parent company wants to buy; (2) The control of the prices paid, as above outlined; (3) has proselyted the right of eminent domain to private purposes; (4) has established a control over the refinery operations of the State by making it impossible for plants competing with them to secure an even supply of crude at a competing cost; (5) and lastly, by controlling the refinery business they thereby control the marketing and by simple process of a high private rate charged by their pipe lines they are controlling the entire oil business from production to consumption.

"Very truly yours,
"Claude C. Wild,
"Executive Vice-President."

THREATENS MAN'S RULE

NEW YORK—Step on it, men. If you don't, women will soon dominate you completely, rob you of your virility, flood the world with trouble, and destroy themselves by defying the laws of nature.

That's the cheerful future you have to look forward to according to Frederick Mitchell-Hedges, English explorer and lecturer, who has arrived here to organize an expedition into Central America.

"It all began to be serious with the war," he explains. "Women got a taste of power. They began to struggle for emancipation, and unfortunately they have had considerable success.

"The high type, brainy, American woman today is chiefly concerned with the quest for power. She is neurotic, selfish. She has too many interests to devote herself to her children, her home and cultivation of her husband's love. And the male, poor fool, let's her. He does what she says."

The explorer contends that if this goes on much longer women of the modern world will ride to a fall.

CHILDREN PICKETS

BOMBAY.—To boycott goods made in England, India has enlisted the aid of its "children's association" to do picket duty. Some 300 boys and 75 girls are now on picket duty. Practically all shops dealing in British perfumery, hosiery, cutlery, cigars and so on have agreed to seal up their stocks until a settlement is reached.

SHOWING PROMISE

BIRMINGHAM, Ala.—This modern city thought it was back in the early days when a coyote walked boldly into the town. The beast was found terrorizing dogs and cats along one of the city streets by workers on the city dog wagon.

STRANGE AIR CARGO

LONDON.—With the increasing popularity of airway freight lines, all sorts of queer cargoes are being carried by English planes. Recently on account of the fact that Brussels sprouts are not normally available in Egypt in winter, some of the big hotels in Alexandria and Cairo conceived the idea of having some sent specially by the Indian mail plane to give an extra attraction to the bill of fare.
