PINK BOLL WORM QUARANTINE AMENDMENT EFFECTIVE AUG. 1

AFFECTS MIDLAND COUNTY

Sixteen Counties of Two States Share In Changes

WASHINGTON, July 23. (AP)—Effective Aug. 1, the secretary of agriculture announced amendment to the pink bollworm quarantine under which permits are issued for movement of cotton from infested sections of Texas and New Mexico. The amendment covers the counties of Chaves, Eddy, Otero, Dona Ana and Luna in New Mexico, and Pecos, Reeves, Ward, Loving, El Paso, Winkler, Andrews, Ector, Midland, Crane and Upton in Texas. Also there is included a small part of Hudspeeth county along the north bank of the Rio Grande from a point immediately west of the town of McNary to the western border of the county. The department explains that in the foregoing areas the infestation is so slight that fumigation of the material may be omitted without involving risk of spread of the pink bollworm.

Heretofore both fumigation and compression have been required to prevent baled cotton lint from carrying pink bollworms to uninfested areas. The new amendment authorizes the plant quarantine and control administration, under certain conditions, to permit interstate movement of compressed but unfumigated bales of cotton lint produced in areas so lightly infested with the pink bollworm that in the judgment of the department any possible danger of spread of that insect in baled lint would be prevented by high compression without fumigation. Recent investigations have confirmed, the department says, the importance of compression as a measure for greatly reducing or, under most favorable circumstances, entirely eliminating infestation of the bale.

The release from fumigation applies only to square bales which have been compressed so that when ready for transportation they have a density of at least twenty-two pounds to the cubic foot. Permits for the shipment from the areas named of compressed but unfumigated cotton, will be authorized, the department says, under conditions that relate primarily to the protection of the bales from contamination by cottonseed and to the sterilization of all cottonseed produced in the gin which bales the cotton.

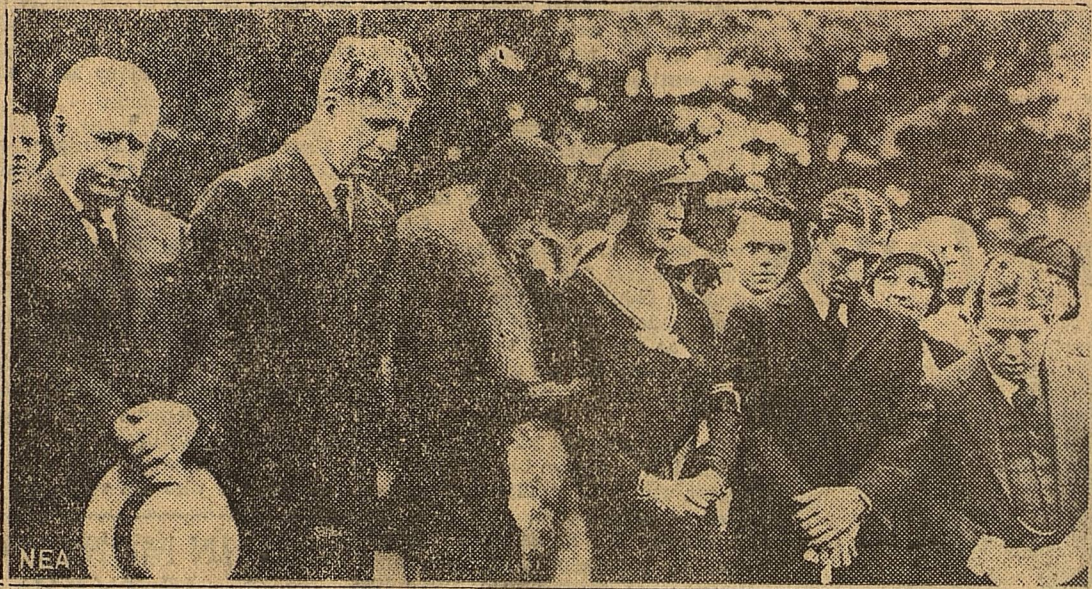

Lovington to Get New Postoffice

Stimulation of growth through oil development has brought a new post office building to Lovington, N. M., contract for which was signed a few days ago. The oil development also this month brought elevation of the Lovington post office from third to second class.

Visitors to City Are Entertained

Mrs. H. S. Tate entertained out-of-town relatives and friends with a slumber party at her home and a swimming party and sunrise breakfast at Pagoda pool. The slumber party was held Wednesday night, the breakfast and swim this morning. Out-of-town guests were Anita Gene Youngblood of Fort Worth and Marjorie Orr of Stanton. Midland guests were: Cleo Tidwell, Miss Beauchamp, Marion Cantelou, Catherine Beauchamp, Eloise Gabbert, Freda Lou Barber, Doris Tidwell, Clea Dee Tate. Mrs. D. E. Gabbert assisted with the breakfast.

Vallee Family at Rites for Rudy's Mother

While radio fans the nation over sympathized with Rudy Vallee, whose mother had died shortly after he reached her side at Westbrook, Me., the popular singer and orchestra leader, with other members of the family, attended funeral services for Mrs. Charles A. Vallee. Left to right, as the group is pictured here, are: Charles Vallee, the father; Rudy Vallee and his bride, the former Fay Webb; Mrs. Kathleen Lenneville, Rudy's sister; Prosper Lenneville, her husband; William Vallee, Rudy's brother.

MERCER, Penn., July 23. (UP)—Four were shot to death and four others badly stabbed here today by Marko Demofiti. The dead included his wife and sister-in-law.

He had been adjudged insane by a medical commission and was returned home, awaiting removal today. Waiting until men boarding at the house left, he ran amuck with a shotgun, using a knife after ammunition was exhausted.

Boy Falls Into Tub Of Boiling Water

Howard Ford, 10, son of Mr. and Mrs. J. B. Ford, 400 South Texas, was painfully burned Wednesday evening when he slipped into a bath tub into which he was running hot water.

He was undressing while sitting on the side of the tub when the mishap happened.

He was pulled from the water almost immediately, a doctor treated him within ten minutes. More than a third of the body surface was badly scalded. Doctors believe the boy will recover.

Colorado Church Warfare Is Lively

COLORADO, July 23. (AP)—Rev. J. E. McDermitt, pastor of the First Baptist church at Westbrook, was freed of a charge of disturbing a religious business meeting at Westbrook when County Attorney W. H. Garrett dismissed the case. Rev. Mr. McDermitt was charged with disturbing a meeting when Moderator J. R. Oglesby, ordered him off floor, but Mr. McDermitt continued to read minutes of a previous meeting after the moderator had requested him to be seated.

Charges were filed with Justice W. S. Stoneham's court, signed by G. E. Leach, secretary of the board of deacons. Rev. Mr. McDermitt was arrested Sunday afternoon and immediately brought to Colorado where he made a bond of $250 set by Justice Stoneham. It was signed by W. H. Brunson and Ollie Thompson. The preacher made bond and returned to Westbrook in time to fill (See COLORADO CHURCH page 6)

LABOR TROUBLE IN SEVILLE ON INCREASE TODAY

SEVILLE, July 23. (UP)—The Spanish republican government today resorted to martial law through Seville province in an effort to quell labor disturbances which had spread destruction to life and property for the last two days.

Eleven were dead and 40 were badly wounded. Police arrested 900 anarchists and communists. Base-ments of the exposition were used as prisons. Machine guns were mounted on roofs facing the plaza. There was sharp fighting last night in the center of the city. Industry and transportation were paralyzed.

Swim Meet Prior To Water Polo

Prior to the water polo game this evening at Pagoda pool, a swimming meet will be staged.

The following races have been arranged: 20-yard back stroke, 20-yard side stroke, 20-yard breast stroke, 20-yard free style.

A demonstration of breaks and carries ended in Red Cross life saving work will follow.

Any scout in Midland is eligible to compete in these events.

The water polo game will bring Big Spring Troop 1 against Midland's Troop 51.

STIMSON TO VISIT GERMANY

Will View Close-up Of Situation in That Country

LONDON, July 23. (UP)—The historic seven powers statesmen's conference ended today with adoption of measures designed to save Germany from financial ruin.

The United Press was informed by reliable authority that the plenary session approved a report of finance ministers suggesting ways and means of temporarily solving the German crisis.

Following the conference, delegates appeared optimistic, expressing opinions that real progress was made.

STIMSON TO VISIT GERMANY

WASHINGTON, July 23. (UP)—Secretary of State Stimson reported to the state department this morning that the London conference had agreed on relief measures for Germany. He said he would go to Berlin tomorrow for a close up view of the situation there.

BY ROBERT J. BENDER

BERLIN.—Germany will pay her private debts first and foremost, Finance Minister Herman Dietrich said Wednesday.

Dietrich, who is acting chancellor in the absence of Dr. Heinrich Bruening, outlined frankly in an interview Germany's plans for utilizing credits which may be granted by the powers. Such credits, he said, would not be used to cover short-term foreign loans, which would not afford Germany any immediate benefit.

He made it clear that Germany is not drifting aimlessly but is determined to steer a planned course by means of the Paris and London conferences.

REHABILITATION PLAN

Germany's plan, he explained, is to use credits from abroad for internal debts and eventually for the benefit of industry, so that Germany may rehabilitate herself and place the country on a sound basis from within.

"The rediscount credit we are discussing at London," he said, "is being for a breathing space to bring our banking and credit systems into shape. Our aim is to replace the discount credit by a long-term loan of the same amount, but it would be childish to assume it can be accomplished in two days at London.

We plan that the rediscount credit will not be used merely to serve to cover the normal note circulation.

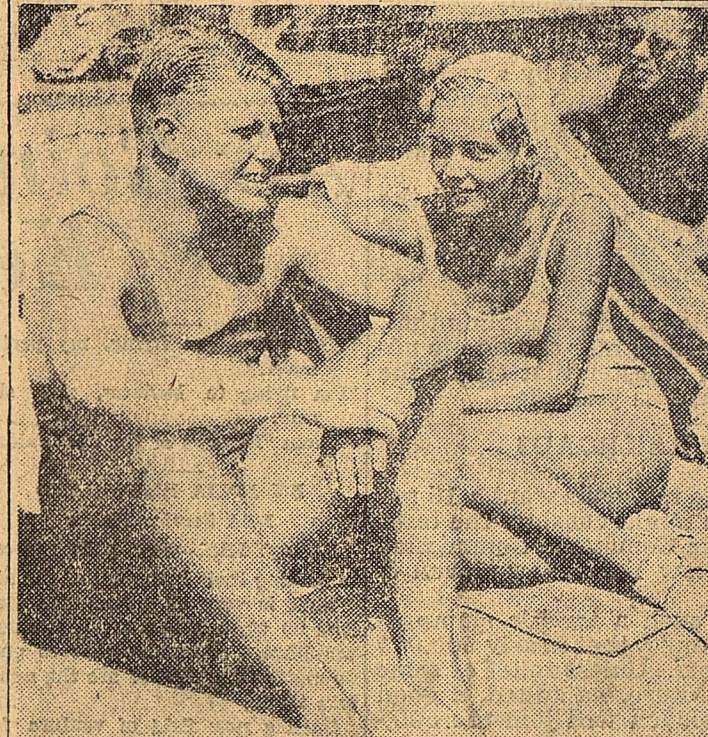

Employment of the loan to pay the short-term foreign debt would afford no relief to Germany and bring no new capital to the country, so we are determined to use it for internal debts, notably those of the states and communes and eventually of industry—a procedure that would liberate a corresponding sum at home, which would replenish the depleted monetary credit, supply private banks and savings banks and place fresh credit at the disposal of business.

LONG-TERM FOREIGN LOAN

"Simultaneously, a long-term foreign loan, because it would be paid to the Reichsbank in the form of foreign currency, would give the Reichsbank an opportunity to increase the bank note circulation."

Contrasting the present crisis with that of 1923 in Germany, Dietrich emphasized that Germany is now suffering from deflation, not from inflation. He added that the deflation was due to the loss of gold cover for German banknote circulation. France, he recalled, with only two-thirds of the German population and one-half the German industry, has over twice Germany's (See CONFERENCE page 6)

Run For Office? Swim, Rather

Running for office may be a hot job for some politicians, but for Marshall Duffield, noted University of Southern California football star, it's just a lark. They plan to fly to Washington first to obtain papers needed for themselves and to return to New York for an overnight stop before continuing their journey.

Odessa Trades Campaign Starts

ODESSA, July 23. (Special)—The Odessa business council has just perfected plans for an extensive trade campaign and has selected August 4, the anniversary of the organization of the city, as the date for the opening gun.

The occasion will be a celebration featured by horse races, bronco riding, calf roping, swimming contests, bowling contests and dancing, in which all the surrounding country is invited to participate.

Featuring the campaign, which will continue throughout the year, will be a special "trades day" held on the first and third Saturdays of each month. Prizes, contests, treasure hunts and other interesting features will be the order of the day on these occasions.

A recent survey reveals the fact that Odessa has suffered less from the general depression than any other city in this area.

PLAYERS ENTERTAINED

Because of their win over the Reds Saturday week, the management of Pagoda pool extended the courtesies of the swimming place to members of the Blue team of the women's league one day this week.

Mrs. Shook, Mary Pou, Mrs. McClain, Mrs. Hurst, Willie Jo Pou and Mrs. Frazer were guests.

INJUNCTION TO FOLLOW THE GRANT

State Concedes No Legality in Contract

AUSTIN, July 23. (UP)—The senate this morning voted to give the Red River Bridge company the right to sue the state on the contract dispute which has kept the Denison free bridge closed by federal injunction.

The senate action was taken following the reading of the governor's message outlining the need for such permission.

Under a bill passed by the senate, the state concedes nothing concerning legality of the contract between the bridge company and the state but permits J. R. Handy, receiver, to get what money he can in court.

As a condition to passage of the bill, Handy agreed to ask Judge Kennerly at Houston to dissolve the injunction.

Plan Agreement

AUSTIN, July 23. (AP)—A plan whereby the Red river free bridge north of Denison is expected to be opened within a week or ten days was agreed upon Wednesday by Governor Ross S. Sterling, Senator Loy of Sherman, Cone Johnson, highway commissioner, and Sidney Benbow, assistant attorney general.

The plan involves the introduction of a bill by Senator Loy to permit the Red River Bridge company, operator of a parallel toll bridge, to sue the state on its contract with the Texas highway commission.

Governor Sterling submitted the subject and Loy said he would introduce the bill today. He predicted no difficulty in passing it in a few days.

Opening of the bridge had been delayed by a federal court injunction obtained by the toll bridge company. Loy said representatives of the toll bridge had promised to withdraw the injunction suit in event a law should be enacted permitting them to sue the state.

Attorneys for the toll bridge company said they believed the contract was valid while the attorney general's office claimed it was invalid. Under its terms the commission would pay the toll bridge company a sum estimated by Johnson as $80,000 and estimated by the bridge concern at $117,500.

RAILROADS AND REDSKINS

A railroad grade crossing in Texas claimed the life of another of the human links connecting the present day with its lost frontier epoch. An Indian known as Old Roque, having attained the ripe age of 100, was killed by a passenger train near El Paso.

Old Roque belonged to a bygone era. He was one of Geronimo's band of Apaches, who harried the southwest in the old days until tough General Nelson Miles crushed them in 1886. Thereafter Old Roque became a "good Indian," herding sheep on the Texas plains and, in the last years of his life, making bows and arrows for the white children of El Paso and teaching them archery and woodcraft.

All in all, the old chap's life spanned great events. He was born when Texas was a part of Mexico, and he kept on taking white men's scalps and burning homesteads for a whole decade after Custer went down at the Little Big Horn; and in his old age he became the friendly counselor of white children, a survival in 20th century civilization direct from the stone age.

It was strange that he should be killed by a railroad train—this old warrior who had donned war paint so many times and had faced the rifles of frontiersmen and the horsemen of the United States army. Strange—and yet rather fitting.

For the railroad, more than anything else, ended the reign of the red man in the old west. When the first iron horse puffed across the plains, the Indian was done for. A few bloody years of protest remained, but the end was inevitable.

An Indian warrior ought to die in battle. Failing that, however, wasn't it right that this old fighter should die under the wheels of the mechanical monster that ended the reign of his tribesmen on the limitless plains?

THE PLIGHT OF THE RAILROADS

If you are wondering why the railroads want a 15 per cent increase in freight rates, you might consider the testimony recently given the Interstate Commerce Commission by J. J. Pelley, president of the New York, New Haven & Hartford railroad.

The depression has caused such a terrific slump in freight revenues, Mr. Pelley explained, that nearly 500,000 railroad workers have been laid off. Unless relief of some kind is forthcoming in the near future, he added, a good many railroad workers now employed will join the 500,000 jobless ones.

Whether the rate increase would directly help these unemployed workers is a question. Their plight probably won't improve until freight traffic picks up. But the mere fact that they have been laid off testifies to the way the depression has hit the railroads.

WHEN WAGES ARE REDUCED

President William Green of the American Federation of Labor, joined by Senator Wagner of New York, appeals to Washington for a general industrial conference to maintain existing wage levels.

Despite the lip service that has been given the no-wage-reduction slogan, industry as a whole has cut wages sharply in the past year. The loss to the workers in 1930 has been estimated at $8,000,000,000. In countless cases where rates have not been reduced men have been put on part-time work, and the effect is the same.

As President Green points out, laboring men these days are saving what they earn and are refusing to spend a cent more than they have to. That fact in itself goes a long way to explain the slump in consumer-demand for manufactured articles. Any further wage cuts will only accentuate it.

Air Going Hostesses Keep House in Clouds

"Where are you flying, my pretty maid?" "I'm flying to business, sir," she said. —From "Rhymes of the Air Maids."

BY JULIA BLANSHARD NEA Service Writer

NEW YORK.—Few girls succeed in making their living out of the air. That is why all air-minded girls look up when a new air post opens possibilities of employment to girls no matter how limited are the numbers taken.

Such a new field of venture for girls comes with the installation of hostesses on passenger transport lines. England has just started using airmaids on the Imperial Airways between London and Paris Japan has installed hostesses on her main passenger line. Three American lines now have corps airmaids who serve in the capacity of social hostesses, social entertainers and waitresses to the passengers.

She's Flying Waitress Of the eight airmaids on the Eastern Air Transport company's lines from New York to Richmond, only one holds a limited commercial pilot's license. She is Beulah Unruh, the flying waitress, the girl who won acclaim last year when it became known that while she waited table in a restaurant for her living, she spent her tips learning to fly.

The rest of the eight are recruited not from among pilots or among girls who have any desire to pilot a plane, not from colleges or society ranks, but from girls with an army background behind them, daughters, wives, sisters of army men. These girls, so says the woman in charge of the airmaids, seem to be able to put up with emergencies better than the average girl, are able to get along with a variety of people without being upset or superior, are very adaptable and understand what it means to be of service.

Each week all of these girls fly one day to Richmond and back and the following day twice to Washington and return and have the third day off. Costumes are furnished them by the company, and neat little red, white and blue outfits they are, too, with the white frocks having divided skirts for comfort. The jackets are blue-twill with pearl buttons made in the form of propellers.

In the morning they serve passengers with hot coffee and coffee cake, at noon they give them neat sandwiches and hot bouillon, and in the afternoon they serve tea, consisting of sandwiches, tea and cake. They pass free cigarettes and magazines

When they're "given the air," that means they're hired! Here are some of the pretty maids of the Eastern Air Transport, seen in the chic blue and white costumes which they wear as hostesses in mid-air around, give cold drinks to those wishing them, and must stand ready to sit in on a round of bridge, backgammon, double solitaire or any other game passengers want to play. They function as regular hostesses, seeing to it that "guests" enjoy themselves! Before landing, they pass around a huge beauty kit to women passengers, with mirrors and the makings for a new complexion, so they can freshen up before leaving the plane.

They're Air Beauties

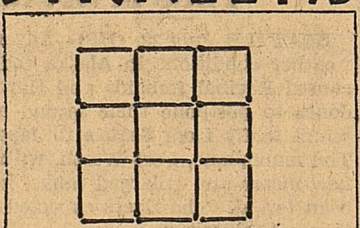

The main requirements for such a position seem to be personality, airworthiness and a wholesome, genial quality that makes a girl a natural hostess. Appearance is no guide at all, yet no line takes any girl who is not young and good looking. But just looks alone do not suffice. Quality is demanded, because a hostess on an air line must be the high class type of person who just naturally inspires confidence.

There probably never will be many airmaids in America. But the fact that this new line of airplane work utilizes women opens up the possibility that other ways may develop in which big air companies can eventually hire more women.

Daily Washington Letter By Rodney Dutcher

Now's the Season for Those Anti-Hoover Biographies in Which We Learn That the President Used to Be Only a Promoter of Mines Rather Than a "Great Engineer"

WASHINGTON.—President Hoover, who had some nice biographies written about him before he was elected, is now suffering from a literary backwash. At least four biographies or books containing extended sketches have lately appeared, all of which tend to cast considerable asparagus at him, describing him as weak, irritable, vacillating, selfish, disagreeable and so on. Much is made of the fact that the president used to be a promoter of mines rather than "great engineer."

The first anti-Hoover biography, called "The Great Mistake," drew no wide attention. Extremely critical evaluations of the president in "The Mirrors of 1932" and "Washington Merry-Go-Round," both anonymous, are attracting more notice. A Washington newspaper has also begun a Hoover serial biography which obviously wasn't ooked at the White House. Those who want to renew their faith in Hoover, however, can still rely on the biographies by William Hard, Will Irwin and Rose Wilder Lane, as well as one published early this year—"The Boy's Life of Herbert Hoover" by Mitchell V. Charney. All books mentioned are full of anecdotes.

Ambassador Fred Sackett in Berlin told the newspaper boys there that in his trans-Atlantic phone conversations with Under-Secretary of State Bill Castle he had used slang as a code to conceal his meaning from possible foreign eavesdroppers. It sounded like one of the most cock-eyed ideas ever to come out of American diplomacy. Castle was asked to reveal some of the slang Sackett had used. He replied that he didn't recognize any of the ambassador's words as slang. In as much as Castle used to teach English at Harvard this seems to make the yarn more cock-eyed than ever.

Congressman Sol Bloom, the effervescent Washington biennial director who is feverishly humanizing George Washington, also aims to popularize the famous old Liberty Bell in Philadelphia. "They don't know what they've got there," he says. "Philadelphia hasn't the heart-interest and the enthusiasm to bring that bell to the people." Thanks to Sol, there will be cards beside the bell for people to sign. They will say: "I visited the Liberty Bell and touched it on (such and such a date)." The idea is that you sign the card, take it home and gaze at it fondly forever after. That makes you more patriotic.

Governor Albert Cabell Ritchie of Maryland, considered a Democratic presidential possibility almost since boyhood, recently visited ex-Senator Joseph I. France of Port Deposit, Maryland, the only announced candidate for the Republican presidential nomination. "I hope the Democrats don't nominate you after my party gets through nominating me," France told him. "You're the handsomest man they've got and I'm depending too heavily on the women's vote to stand the competition." France ought to be able to pick a winner this time (he picks himself) just by the law of averages. He supported himself in 1920, Senator Hiram Johnson in 1924 and Ritchie in 1928. His most prominent supporter this year is ex-Senator Jonathan Bourne of Oregon, a man of agile mind, 76 years old, who now lives here with an attractive 35-year-old wife. In 1912 Bourne first backed LaFollette for president, then Roosevelt and finally Taft. He also found time to run for re-election, but was licked.

The Russian "embassy" here, as the Soviet Union Information Bureau under Boris E. Skirsky on Massachusetts avenue is often called, is now guarded at the front entrance by a tiny, ornamental, painted toy bulldog whose leash is attached to the doorknob. These "Reds" don't seem especially bloodthirsty. Neighbors tell how once when Mrs. Skirsky's pet canine escaped, the whole staff, headed by "Ambassador" Skirsky himself, piled down the avenue in hot-and-successful-pursuit.

Women Suffer From More Serious Diseases Than Men—Many Conditions Connected with Childbirth

By DR. MORRIS FISHBEN Editor, Journal of the American Medical Association, and of Hygeia, the Health Magazine.

Some years ago the commission on Medical Education, after studying the cases in the practice of numerous general practitioners, came to the conclusion that 9 per cent of diseases coming to the attention of physicians could be handled by general practitioners with the amount of equipment that could be carried in a handbag. Statistical studies of diseases are important because they show physicians the kind of work for which they must be prepared. The organization which makes ex-

GAIN IN MONEY CIRCULATION IS GOOD OMEN FOR TRADE

BY ALLARD SMITH Executive Vice President, The Union Trust Co., Cleveland, O.

Slow trade of recent months apparently has not been due entirely to the lack of spending money in the average pocketbook. The amount of money in circulation for every man, woman and child in the United States as of June 30, according to government figures, was $38.56, as compared with $37.66 one month before and $36.71 one year ago.

There has been a sharp increase in money in circulation, the total being $4,819,940,520—a gain of $298,000,000 in a year. With such an expansion in the amount of currency in circulation, there would seem to be the basis for considerable activity in general trade, once confidence returns and the general trend starts upward. At the moment a considerable part of the purchasing power available is being withheld through lack of confidence and not through lack of ability to spend. Part of the recent increase in currency is credited to seasonal improvement in business and in some degree to vacation requirements. The per capita figures of circulation are based on an estimated population of 125,007,000 on June 30, of 124,853,000 on May 31 and 123,156,000 on June 30, 1930. Total stocks of money in the United States amounts to $9,077,300,000, a high record figure. This reflects a gain of $771,000,000 for the year. It was partially attributable to a gain of $156,000,000 in gold during the month of June. A large number of federal reserve notes are outstanding also.

The volume of monetary gold in the United States is at a new high record, the total being nearly $5,000,000,000, an increase of $426,000,000 during the year. The United States now holds more than half of the monetary gold in the entire world. The money and credit situation comprise one more important factor indicating the strength of fundamental conditions and helping to set the stage for eventual revival of business. aminations of men and women at periodic intervals has recently compared the rates for disease among men and women as determined by the examination of 12,618 people. The women included workers of all types, housewives, clerks in stores and those serving in the various professions. Many of the conditions from which the women suffer are connected with childbirth. The rates are higher among women than among men for functional murmurs of the heart, neuritis, nervousness and abnormal reflexes. Women have varicose veins more frequently than do men and also valvular lesions of the heart and enlargement of the heart. On the other hand, the only conditions in which there is a definite excess in the rate for men are defective septums in the nose, thickening or hardening of the arteries, defective hearing, frequent colds and pyorrhea. Just why men should have nose and throat troubles so much more than women is of great interest but the reason is not clear. When the figures for housewives were studied in relation to all of the women, it is found that they suffer more frequently from some conditions than do women in general. Since housewives are married to a far greater extent than are other women workers, the explanation lies in the fact that the conditions concerned are definitely associated with childbirth. Women have far more disturbances of the thyroid than do men. They complain much more of tenderness in the region of the gall bladder and appendix.

So far as the age at which disease occurs is concerned, the ages in both groups seem to be the same. Sex differences in the occurrence of various diseases are factors which interest physicians greatly, particularly in the matter of making a diagnosis. There was a time when certain diseases were limited almost exclusively to men, even those that did not affect tissues or organs peculiarly masculine. Since women have come to a large extent out of the home and into industry and into similar politically active positions, they begin to show disturbances which were formerly limited almost wholly to men.

In the past the life expectancy of women was in general greater than that of man at any given age, and among people living to 100 years of age there would usually be more women than men. Equality of the effort and associated therewith equally of exposure makes it likely that in the future this distinction will not maintain.

All gun crews of the British Navy are now equipped with masks. The masks are expected to enable gunners to remain at their stations in the face of a gas attack.

"Alison's House"
Read by Mrs. E. H. Barron

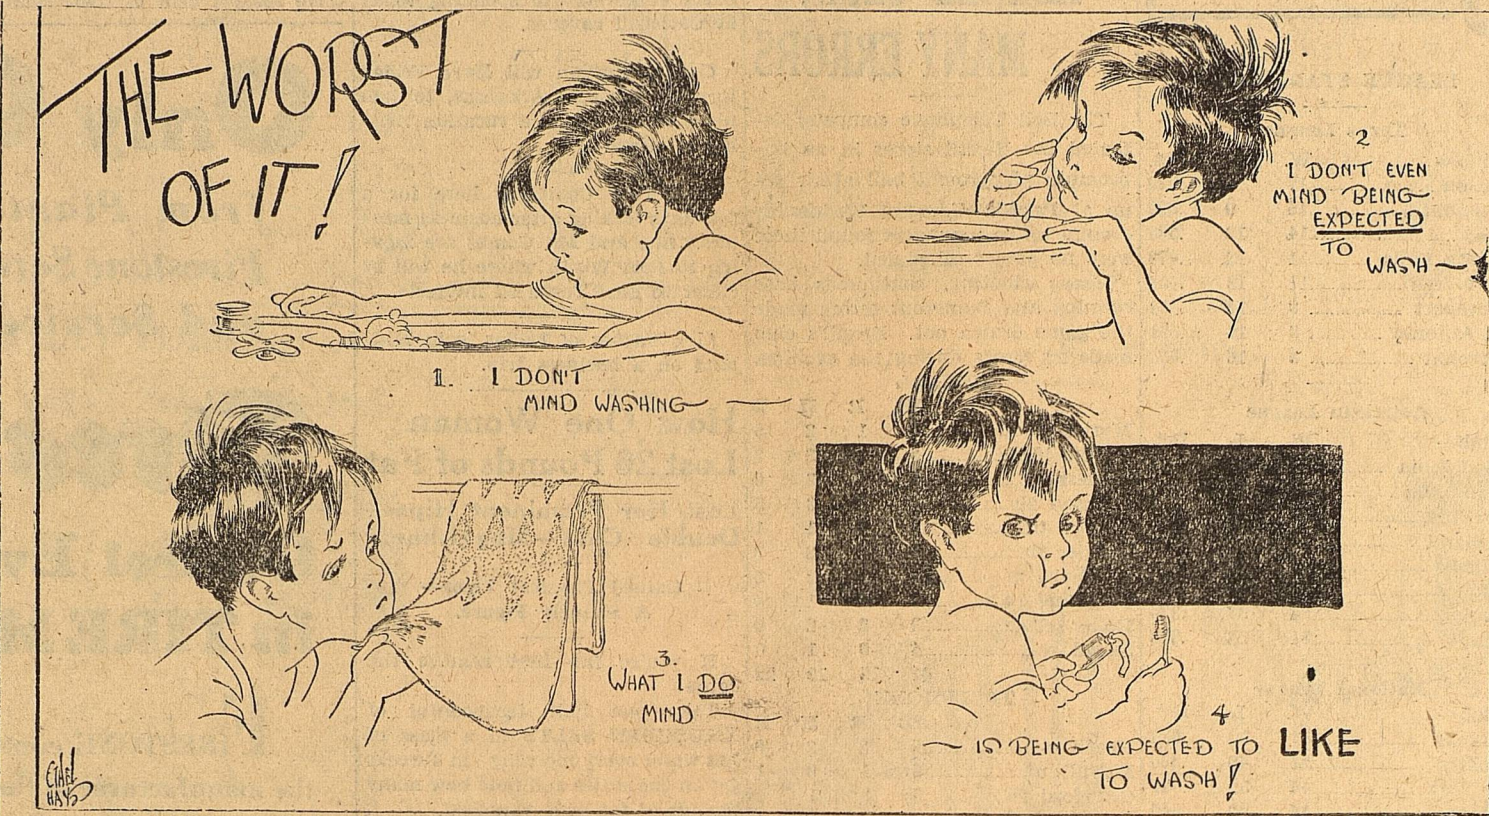

By Mrs. John E. Adams
An absorbing story, the basis of an extraordinary human study, was read to the Play Readers club by Mrs. E. H. Barron at her home Wednesday morning. "Alison's House" is the Pulitzer prize winner in the drama for the season of 1930-31. This latest play by Susan Glaspell is considered by the judges as "the original American play which shall best represent the educational value and power of the stage."
Only recently the understanding biography by Genevieve Taggard, added a fresh viewpoint to our knowledge of Emily Dickinson; it is perhaps not fantasy to see in this play, "Alison's House" a reinterpretation of some of the facts in her life and a genuine tribute to a poet whom some of us are just beginning to appreciate. Emily Dickinson's unassuming and quiet life was rich with inner drama and "Alison's House" tells her story vividly.
"Alison's House" is a play in three acts. The time of action is December 31, 1899. Acts one and two are laid in the library of the old stand-home homestead in Iowa on the Mississippi. Act three takes place in Alison's room.
The play is an absorbing story with tremendous human interest, having to do with the family of John Standhope, famous American poet who has been dead for eighteen years. Her old home, rich in tradition and filled with memories, is about to be sold just at the close of the nineteenth century. Her sister, her brother and her brother's family gather in the old house to take their last farewell and to share in the distribution of the precious belongings, which have been preserved by her aged sister, Athaga. As the old century is about to pass on, she whom the author symbolizes as the old life-Athaga—passes on with it, leaving a secret she has guarded since Alison's death. The secret is embodied in a series of manuscript poems which reveal the inner life of the poet, and in seeking to keep this from the eyes of a new and paying generation, she nearly destroys the house itself.

It is through the niece, Elsa, daughter of Standhope that the secret so long guarded is brought to light. Elsa has disgraced the family by running away with a married man. She returns to the old house for a last visit. Just before the death of Miss Agatha the two, aunt and niece, are left alone. Elsa promises to do anything her aunt wishes. Miss Agatha hands Elsa a small leather portfolio.
Later in Alison's room, the portfolio is opened and reveals poems that no one knew existed until the present moment. Mr. Standhope attempts to destroy the poems. He doesn't wish his sister's secret to become public. She had been in love with an English professor, but he was a married man. The brother, John Standhope had persuaded Alison to give him up. Alison did so, remaining in the old home, writing beautiful poetry and loving her nieces and nephews. The final decision of the fate of the poems rests with Elsa as they were "Alison's gift to Elsa."
PRAIRIE LEE HOUR

House Planning Plans Presented

COLLEGE STATION, July 28.—A new method of house planning was presented to rural homemakers of Texas by Dan Scoates, head of the agricultural engineering department of Texas A. & M. college, in his talk on "The Game of Planning a Home" at the Farmers Short Course here Tuesday.

"The method begins by getting together all the facts that the home builder needs in order to meet the family requirements for a home, then those facts are put together in various ways and the best arrangement arrived at after family discussions," said Mr. Scoates.

"The usual method of planning a home is to take somebody else's plan and rework it. This is not satisfactory at all because you start with some other family's solution and try to make it fit your needs. It is far better to decide just what you want—how many rooms and the size and purpose of those rooms then put these together in different ways until they fit your particular wants.

"A number of years of research involving the study of hundreds of house plans has revealed that there are relatively few ways in which the various rooms of a house can be put together. These arrangements have been analyzed and the analysis has been made the basis of the game of planning a home."

Mr. Scoates illustrated his talk with charts showing the typical house shapes minus all porches, galleries and exterior ornamental features, and by small wooden boxes built to represent rooms without ceilings and roofs which were used to develop the various possible ar-

THREE CORNERED ROUND ROBIN TENNIS MATCHES HERE SUNDAY

B'SPRING AND FORT STOCKTON TO VISIT

Tennis clubs of three cities, Big Spring, Lamesa, and Midland, will meet in a tri-cornered round-robin tournament on the Midland courts Sunday in the second scheduled match of the Sand Belt net association. Play is expected to begin around 9 a. m.

On their own courts the local racquetees are expected to raise themselves somewhat in the league standing, as players from Big Spring will face a handicap in leaving their concrete courts for the Midland dirt affairs. Theo Ferguson is expected to head the Midland envoys and with W. S. Lanham from the No. 1 doubles team. Ferguson was the only undefeated local player in the Big Spring meet last Sunday, though Frank Stubbeman displayed unusual form to upset Louis White, Lamesa No. 1 player, in his first round match.

Big Spring, heading the league as a result of Sunday's play, will bring their undefeated quartet, Dunagan, Bishop, McCarty and Davis. The latter, a fifteen-year-old product of Big Spring High, defeated Lanham in straight sets, 6-4, 6-4 last Sunday to feature the first week's play, while the first-named trio are easy-striking veterans who have not lost a singles match in a duel meet this year. Dunagan has defeated Ferguson once and Godbey once while Bishop has bested Stubbeman and Godbey. McCarty and Davis play No. 1 doubles for the Big Spring team and have yet to be defeated in Sand Belt play.

Lamesa, who did not begin to take tennis seriously until a few weeks ago, presents the weakest quartet of the three, but in N. J. Allen and Louis White the plains city has a pair of racquetees who will improve with consistent play. Raymond Hatch and Ross Lowry completed the roster that played in Big Spring Sunday but Allan indicated that some change might be made in his lineup.

The same "big four" that has started for Midland in previous meets, with the addition of Lanham, is expected to play Sunday. Ferguson will play either No. 1 or No. 2, Godbey No. 3, and Stubbeman No. 4. Ferguson and Lanham compose the No. 1 doubles team while Godbey and Stubbeman play No. 2.

The standing of the three teams:

Team	W.	L.	Pct.
Big Spring	8	3	.727
Midland	4	4	.500
Lamesa	1	6	.147

ORDERS "TYPEWRITER"

INNER TUBES MAKE DOLLS TOGUS, Me. (UP).—Inmates of the National Soldiers' home here keep themselves in pocket money by making dolls from discarded inner tubes.

SPORTS REPORTS

BY R. C. HANKINS

Something new in hat tipping came up when the crowds at a playground ball game at Pagoda diamond last night saw a slit develop in Doc Ellis' trousers after a slide into a bag. Bull McCall hung a hat over the breach and the crowd insisted that Ellis go back into the game. He went to the mound for the telephone boys and did a nice job of twirling, but the fans wouldn't let him alone. "Tip yer hat, Doc!" Or, "Somebody pass the hat!"

The game was a practice affair between the Rexall stores and the Bell Telephone company, and ended 15-15 in favor of the Bell lads. Crawford slapped one for the circuit, but Langley's coast for four sacks was automatically ruined when he overstepped third.

Start of the second half in the Candlelight league gets under way this evening, with games slated between Cowden-Epley and Rexall, at 7 o'clock, Midland hardware and De Luxe laundry in the 8-15 frame.

Bell Telephone company and Scruggs Buick play Friday night's first game, followed by the Texas Electric and The Reporter-Telegram.

They say Ching Ramsey got high and very much high behind last night in playing third for the Bell lads. He made some nice plays, hit the ball and otherwise slipped around furtively in the shadows. Small matter, if he threw a few balls away.

The Petroleum and the Business girls of the women's league will play a practice game at Scharbauer diamond this afternoon, beginning at 6:30. Stanton girls play the Betty Co-Eds Friday afternoon at Rainwater diamond. A business meeting for the women's league will be held immediately afterward. Scotty Gemmill has about completed the schedule for the league, and this will be passed on by directors.

FLINTLOCK PISTOL FOUND

ROCHESTER, N. Y. (UP).—A French officer's flintlock pistol, manufactured about 1760, was unearthed by Samuel Japp while he was digging a cellar in his new establishment. There still remain traces of gold and silver work on the butt and stock, and a few faint marks of carving. A silver purse and an old jug also were unearthed at the same time.

ANTI-RACERS GIVE THANKS

MOBILE, Ala. (UP).—After a bill intended to legalize horse racing in Alabama had been defeated in the state legislature, the congregation of the Dauphin Way Baptist church here held a thanksgiving service. Ministers from all parts of the state protested passage of the measure.

WALKER FIGHTS SAILOR MAN TO A TIGHT DRAW

BY ALAN GOULD
Associated Press Sports Editor
EBBETS FIELD, Brooklyn, N. Y.

July 23.—Jack Sharkey, the erratic sailor man from Boston adopted war-like measures a trifle too late last night and was held to a draw by his under-sized but highly courageous opponent, Mickey Walker, in 15 indecisive rounds of rough-house battling.

Almost Too Late
Outfought for the first ten rounds by an opponent he figured to beat decisively, with every physical advantage in his favor, Sharkey was forced to put on a two-fisted drive in the last four rounds to get so much as an even break.

The outcome was distinctly an upset, for Sharkey crawled into the ring a 3-to-1 favorite to whip the chunky, barrel-chested New Jersey Irishman.

Walker spotted Sharkey exactly 29 pounds, plus big margins in height, reach and strength, but Mickey lashed and harassed his bigger foe with a courageous determination that frequently had the sympathetic crowd of 35,000 fans in an uproar.

Sharkey's stronger finish, however, appeared sufficient to balance the scales that were tipping strongly against him and saved what little prestige there was left for the big Bostonian.

Moguls See Differently

None of the three officials voted alike. Referee Arthur Donovan, who repeatedly warned Sharkey for hitting low blows and for otherwise using questionable tactics, cast his ballot for Walker. Of the two judges, George Kelly voted for Sharkey and Charles F. Mathison voted a draw.

On the Associated Press score sheet, seven rounds were scored for each of the fighters, with the remaining round registered as even, thereby further evidence of the closeness of the bout.

Walker surprised even his most enthusiastic backers by the effectiveness with which he carried the right to Sharkey throughout most of the first ten rounds. Except for a bad time in the fifth, when Mickey was clipped while off balance and bounced to the floor, then suffered a nasty gash over his left eye, the Irishman swarmed over Sharkey and scored repeatedly with short blows until he began to tire in the last few rounds.

Not until the start of the 12th round did Sharkey show anything like a sustained attack.

Clara Bow's South Side House Is North of Tracks

By DUANE HENNESSY
United Press Staff Correspondent
HOLLYWOOD, (UP)—Clara Bow lives north of the railroad tracks.

North of the tracks in Beverly Hills are the finer homes, the bigger cars, the broader lawns. The farther north the finer, the bigger, the broader. South there is the business district and street after street of little stucco bungalows.

Within but half a block of the tracks, just far enough removed to avoid the noise of the passing train, is the home of Clara Bow. Her Spanish bungalow, north of the tracks, to be sure, is nevertheless of unmistakable south side stamp. Truly, you would not take it for the home of a famous star.

It is small and homey. Its chief exterior feature is a double row of trees bordering the walk that leads in from the street. There are eight rooms.

This is the home that success has brought to her. It is a far cry from the little flat in Brooklyn where she was born 25 years ago.

When she arrived in Hollywood, an unsophisticated shabbily dressed girl with a movie contract, Clara had known nothing but poverty. She and the woman who was her manager took a small apartment.

"I worked and worked," Clara said in an interview. "Sometimes I worked in two or three pictures at a time. For some reason my manager, who had full control of my affairs, tried to make me think I wasn't making good. That worried me. She tried to make me think, too, that my father was a handicap and should stay in Brooklyn."

"Finally he insisted that I allow him to join me in Hollywood. When he arrived, I was determined to be very cool, but I just couldn't—I rushed into his arms."

"I was so happy to have him again. We looked over my affairs, and I broke with my manager." Clara's first picture in Hollywood was "Maytime" which starred Ethel Shannon. Miss Shannon, Kenneth Harlan and Gaston Glass made the little newcomer welcome.

Clara had only a small part in "Maytime" and it did little to advance her.

The picture that started her career as the jazz-age girl was "Wine." Universal wanted her for the picture and the independent producers who held her contract, B. P. Schulberg and J. G. Bachman, realized that the larger company could aid her progress.

So outstanding was Clara's work in "Wine" that Schulberg and Bacmann bought "The Plastic Age" by Percy Marks, for her. In passing it should be noted that the picture brought her two romances. Donald Keith fell in love with her while working in "The Plastic Age." He wanted to marry her, but she refused. Then she had a romance with Gilbert Roland, who was the villain in the picture. He called her Clarita and sang her Spanish love songs.

A short time later Schulberg joined Paramount. He took Clara with him. She was loaned for the flapper role in "Black Oxen" with Corine Griffith. Then she worked in "Kiss Me Again" as the girl who led the husband astray. Ernst Lubstich, the director, lauded her as the girl with appeal to the masses, as the type of girl others try to imitate.

The Bow star was on the ascent. From then on she shot rapidly ahead—"Kid Boots," "Dancing Mothers," "Mantrap," "Children of Divorce," "Get Your Man," "Red Hair," "Wild Party," "Dangerous Curves," "Kick In."

Perhaps Clara's greatest piece of good luck, once her success was assured, was her meeting with Elinor Glyn in 1927. Mrs. Glyn selected her for the leading role in "It." From that day on, Clara Bow was the "It" girl of pictures.

until the contract had been fulfilled.

The proposed law would be contingent on the injunction being dissolved within 15 days after its enactment.

End of the long controversy over the Denison bridge was seen by Loy in the decision to introduce the bill.

The bill proposed by Loy says the federal court injunction was granted on grounds the toll bridge company did not have an adequate remedy at law to enforce its contract. The federal constitution provides that a state must give its consent before it

Hawks Record Is Still Good

By Associated Press
ROOSEVELT FIELD, N. Y., July 23.—James Goodwin Hall grounded his plane, Crusader, at Roosevelt Field at 4:58 p. m., E. S. T. Wednesday after a flight from Montreal, on which he had taken off at 2:59 p. m. His elapsed time was 1 hour and 59 minutes, which is 14 minutes slower than Capt. Frank M. Hawks' time for the 350 miles.

Hall had departed from New York in his plane, Crusader, at 12:22 p. m., E. S. T. He reached Montreal one hour and 57 minutes later.

When he took off for New York again at 2:59 p. m., E. S. T., after refueling, he flew alone, to add to his weight advantage. His passenger on the upbound trip had been Jules R. Timmins, also a stock broker, whom he left in the Canadian metropolis.

The big Lockheed Sirius machine was in perfect condition for the homing flight, Hall said.

His time going up was only 12 minutes slower than that of Frank Hawks—1 hour 45 minutes—for the southbound flight. When Hawks made his record trip he had a tailwind nearly all the way.

Hall believed his northward flight had established a record, as there are no known speed marks for the flight and commercial planes ordinarily take about four hours for the 350 miles, including time out for customs clearance, which generally is at Albany.

participation. He expressed hope that France's participation in the London conference means that France is convinced a new era of Franco-German collaboration is possible and that Germany is acting in good faith, so that the French government is confident the French people will subscribe to a new loan for Germany.

his pulpit Sunday night.

To avoid further trouble between members of the congregation, who filled the district court room at Colorado, in attendance on this trial, County Attorney Garrett filed an injunction before Judge Fritz R. Smith in Thirty-second judicial court, which was granted, forbidding use of the church building to either side. The church building was turned over to Shriver R. E. Gregory with instructions to close it and keep it closed until the injunction had been dissolved.

Rev. Mr. McDermitt stated the trouble arose over the desire of some of the members for his resignation. Leaders of both sides are striving to settle the difficulty by arbitration.

PUSHES CART TO WEST COAST

WHEELING, W. Va., (UP)—C. W. Darmon, this city's official push cart pusher, is en route to the coast pushing his push cart. The push cart pusher reported to friends here a slight accident to his cart at Sisterville, W. Va., when an autoist pushed the cart over a hill, damaging it considerably. Darmon had the cart repaired and pushed on, he wrote.

ARIZONA HOTELS PROSPER

PHOENIX, Ariz. (UP)—Arizona, with its population of less than half a million, enjoys an annual hotel business of more than $6,000,000, a chamber of commerce survey disclosed. A large portion of the hotel income is from eastern visitors who spend the winters in southern Arizona, with the summer business of the northern highlands swelling the volume considerably.

German Nude Cults Grow

NEW YORK, (UP)—Over 150,000 men and women members of some 1,000 "nature culture" clubs have become devotees of the German nudist movement, according to a survey published here recently by Physical Culture.

"Nature culture camps can be found from one end of Germany to the other," says Gebhard Hirshfeld, author of the article. "Their doors are open to all who heed the two rules governing membership: decency and nudity. The Federal Association for Free Development of the Body, in Berlin, is one of the most important of the organizations furthering the movement. Its purpose is to establish tracts of land where men, women and children may follow their inclinations undisturbed. The membership fee is 50 cents per month. The practice of nudity has been legalized in Germany in places shielded from public view.

"Regardless of what scandalized derogators may say," the article continues, "the nudist movement itself is pure, although the conservative German general public has looked upon it neither with favor nor tolerance. Those who violate the unwritten laws of the movement meet with summary expulsion from the camps. Its members, with deep and earnest sincerity, endeavor to overcome the shame and fear which naturally possess newcomers and those who wish to try the experiment but lack the courage to take the initial step."

Ward County Park Possible

If plans which are now under way are completed, Ward county will have a state park. Interested citizens have started a movement to secure a hard surfaced state road, leading from the Bankhead highway to the site of the old Indian massacre, where the redskins of many years ago intercepted a wagon train going over the old trail and slaughtered approximately 200 men, women and children.

Arthur Hayes, citizen of Ward county for a long, long time, is taking the lead in securing the road and park site for Ward county citizens. Hayes believes that a thing of this kind would bring much tourist money into the county, as a majority of those travelers along the Bankhead highway would like to see the place where the pioneers camped, and where they were surprised by the Indians.

"The land belongs to the Sealy estate," Hayes stated, "and John Adriance is agent for the estate. These people will donate the park site, and people would be surprised at the small cost of a road through the sand."

"The length of the road," Hayes continued, "would be approximately 12 miles. The site is 9 miles northeast of Monahans, and many evidences of the struggle and the slaughter of some 200 persons can be found there. Citizens of the county have been picking up relics of all kinds—old daggers, flintlock guns, wagon parts, and a number of other things for a long time."

Greek Play to Be Given Ross

One hundred years ago the Greeks declared their independence from Turkey and a war which lasted years ensued resulting in the independence of Greece in 1830.

Only the United States raised its voice in behalf of the freedom of the Greeks. President Monroe, Henry Clay, Daniel Webster, Edward Everett and Dr. Samuel Gridley Howe impressed the Greek revolutionists with speeches in congress favoring the freedom of the descendants of those Greeks who had given to human civilization.

The year 1930 was a year of festivities in Greece. The one hundred anniversary of Greek independence was celebrated by Greeks all over the world.

In gratitude for the signal contribution of America to Greek independence, the Greek school children erected at Athens a splendid memorial monument to the American patriots who struggled for Greece morally and with arms.

would be an achievement, and the towns of the county likely would stand behind such a move. A state road, hard-surfaced and passable through the sand, would divert the Bankhead tourists on a sort of detour, and would promote the interests of the entire county, and the historic interest of West Texas.

At present automobiles cannot go closer than several miles through the dunes of that section must necessarily be done on foot, and such modes of travel dampen the ardor and interest of those who attempt it.

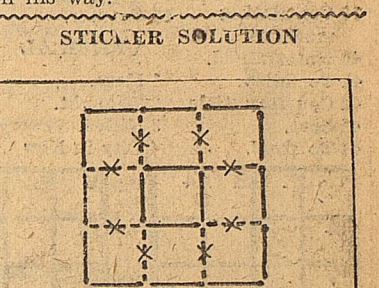

More than 300 American legionnaires sailed last August for Athens, Greece, to honor the unveiling of the memorial to the American patriots who help Greece between 1821 and 1830 and carried with them the 48 states flags, gifts of the governors of the states to the republic as a reminder that the people of the United States love Greece and appreciate the vast contributions of the Greek race to human civilization.

The entire Greek government and over 150,000 Athenians turned out to receive the legionnaires as messengers of good will of Greece with unusual ceremonies and gratitude.

ANSWERS CALLS IN AUTO BURLINGTON, Wis., (UP)—Louis Wanasek, Burlington blacksmith, has found his business more profitable since he stopped waiting for horses to come to him and started going to them—in an automobile. When farmers telephone him no, Wanasek loads his forge, tools and new pairs of shoes into his automobile and is on his way.

"Here's why I switched -how about you?"

HIS brow is wet with honest sweat—but not his Camels. Nor will yours be, no matter how hard you work or play.

Whether you labor outdoors in the rain or indoors in the heat, whether you whip a trout-stream, or whatever you do, your cigarettes will never be stained or soggy or unwholesome—if you carry Camels.

Camels are blended of fine Turkish and mild Domestic tobaccos, made fine and kept fine, kept always in prime smoking condition.

The new Humidor Pack of moisture-proof Cellophane seals in all the natural factory-freshness—seals it in so tightly that wet weather cannot make Camels damp, nor drought weather make them dry.

When you open your package of Camels, don't remove the Cellophane wrapper. Keep it on until you have smoked the last cigarette. It's put there for your protection.

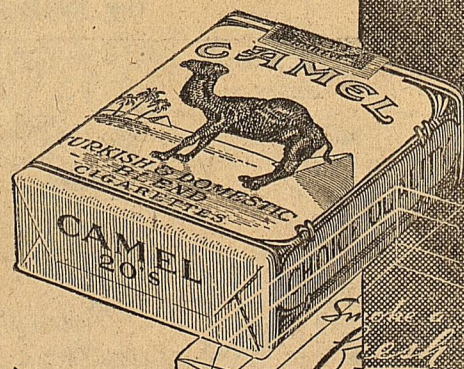

Do your throat a favor, try Camels for just one day. Once you've compared their cool, smooth enjoyment with the brackish, stale taste of cigarettes packed the old way, leave them—if you can.
